1772, August 21. London.—On his father's death he drew out an account of the salary and disbursements due from the House of Representatives in Boston to him as their Agent, and they passed a vote on 2 July 1771 to remit to his executors 1,400*l*. The Governor having received instructions to refuse this vote, the money remains unpaid. Hopes Lord Dartmouth will grant this decision to be altered, and the money paid.

Letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr. De Berdt. Money voted in Massachusetts Bay.

"GASPÉE" ENQUIRY.

1772, August 21. St. James's.—Order in Council.

Copy. 2⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed:—No. 3. Copy of an Order in Council, 21st August 1772 Directing the Attorney and Sollicitor General to prepare the Dra^{t} of a Com^{n} of inquiry in Rhode Island; and also Dra^{t} of a Proclamation.

Another copy follows.

THOMAS TAYLOR to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 21. Alnwick.—Went to America five years ago, and whilst there inspected very narrowly the provinces of New York, the Jerseys, Pensylvania, and Maryland. Remarks on the commercial relations between England and America. Relates his services in the war of 1745. Hopes he may be appointed to some office in America.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr. Taylor of Alnwick.

Endorsed on wrapper:—B 25. Mr. Taylor, Alnwick, Augst 21st, 1772, requesting an employment.

JOHN WILLDAY to LORD DARTMOUTH, Secretary of State for the Colonys in London.

1772, August 22. Atherstone, Warwickshire.

Letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Mr. Willday of Atherstone on American Trade. C—24.

SIR MATTHEW FETHERSTONHAUGH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 26. Brighthelmstone.—Recommends to his favour and protection Samuel Wharton, concerned with Mr. Walpole, himself, and others in the new grant upon the Ohio. Speaks of Wharton as thoroughly conversant in American affairs, and having a great connexion in that country. His ideas are truly British, and he is well acquainted with Indian affairs.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A 36. S^{r} M. Fetherstone. 26 Augst 1772. Mr. Wharton.

" GASPÉE " ENQUIRY.

1772, August 26. St. James's.—Order in Council. The King approves of the commission of inquiry and the proclamation to be issued for apprehending the persons concerned in the burning of the " Gaspée " schooner. General Gage and Admiral Montagu to give all assistance possible in this affair.

Original, signed Stephen Cottrell, sealed. 4½ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Order in Council. 26th August 1772.

Copy of the foregoing.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 26.—Sends the warrant to the Attorney and Solicitor General to prepare a commission of inquiry for his signature. Encloses with it two Orders in Council and draft of Proclamation. Will send the rest of the papers on this subject to-morrow.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr. Pownall. 26 August 1772.

ANDREW REA to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 26. Grigsby's Coffee House, Royal Exchange, London. —Relates his services in the late war. Owing to commercial failure he is now in adverse circumstances, and would be glad of some appointment.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—B 24. Mr. Rea. 26th August 1772. Desiring an office. Mr. And^{r} Rea.

Enclosures :—

THE EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH to [LORD MOUNTMORRIS].

1772, July 8. Hanover Square.—Very few offices are under his patronage, and he is unable to assist Mr Rea.

Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

A[NDREW] R[EA] to the [EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH].

1772, July 16.—Asks for a recommendatory letter to any of the Governors in America to appoint him a sheriff of any of the counties under their Government, or any other employ.

Autograph letter signed " A. R." 2 quarto pages.

DAVID BLISSETT to the REVEREND MR. TALBOT.

1772, August 27. Reading.—Asks that his friend Mr. Irving may succeed Mr. Ellis as King's Agent for West Florida. The latter having been ill some time, Mr. Irving has proved, by doing his work for the last eighteen months, his ability to succeed him.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—A 33. Mr. Blissett to Rev. Mr. Talbot. Mr. Irving to succeed Mr. Ellis. 27 Aug. 1772.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 27. Whitehall.—Sends all the despatches relative to the Rhode Island business requiring his Lordship's signature, also draft of the instructions proposed to attend the Commission of Inquiry. Will send papers on other matters to-morrow. Hopes none will be of sufficient importance to bring him to town. Encloses copy of letter just received from Admiral Montagu.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr. Pownall. 27 August 1772.

THOMAS WILSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 27. Leicester Street.—Promises diligent service in any office to which Lord Dartmouth may appoint him.

Letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr. Thomas Wilson. 27th August 1772. V. Cor., p. 4. Ent.

Mr. Wilson & Lord Hillsborough, Chief Justice of New York.

Enclosure:—

The EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 25. Hanover Square.—Recommends Mr. Wilson for the Chief Justiceship of New York, with salary of 600*l. or* 800*l. a year. Considers him the most deserving man for this post, which will soon be vacant.*

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—A 50. Earl of Hillsborough, Hanover Square, 25*th Augs* 1772. Recommending Mr. Wilson. V. Cor., p. 2. Entd.

EDWARD THURLOW and ALEXANDER WEDDERBURN. REPORT to the KING.

1772, August 28.—Have taken into their consideration the several papers relative to the burning of the "Gaspée" schooner, and prepared the draft of a Commission to inquire into the circumstances attending it, and a Proclamation for the said affair.

Copy. 3½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—N° 5. Copy of the Attorney & Solicitor General's Report. 28 Aug^{t} 1772.

Extract of the foregoing without date or signatures.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 29, Saturday evening.—The "Gaspée" business is of such importance, both in itself and in the consequences it may have, that if Lord Dartmouth has any difficulty with the papers, he hopes he will come to town before the despatches leave the office, as there will if sufficient time to allow of that. The Attorney General considers this business of "five times the magnitude of the Stamp Act."

The despatches to be sent to Hutchinson and Cramahé are of such delicacy that he will send drafts of them by another messenger to his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. 5 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Pownall, Aug. 29, 1772.

LORD VISCOUNT GAGE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 30. Fife.—Desires his friend M^r^ Kemble to have the office in America now held by M^r^ Morgan.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed on first page :—L^d^ Gage M^r^ Kemble.

„ „ wrapper :—A 49. Lord Viscount Gage. August 30^th^ 1772, recommending M^r^ Kemble, v. Cor. p. 4 & 5. Ent^d^.

The DUKE OF MANCHESTER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, August 30. Spa.—Solicits attention to his brother Lord Montagu's memorial showing that he has served as Governor of South Carolina for several years greatly to the prejudice of his health and fortune. Suggest a removal to a less disadvantageous post and compensation for expenses if such is not an unreasonable proposal. M^r^ Williamos, who is well versed in American affairs, delivers this letter.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—A 57. Duke of Manchester. 30 August 1772. In behalf of his Brother. D. of Manchester. L^d^ Cha. Montagu.

JOHN OSBORN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, August 30. Dresden.—Has received by the last post from England news of Lord Dartmouth's appointment as Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—J. Osborn Esq^r^ (private) M^r^ Osborn Dresden, 30^th^ Aug^st^ 1772. Congratulations on Lord Dartmouth's Appointm^t^.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to the GOVERNOR and COMPANY of RHODE ISLAND.

1772, August. Whitehall.—Transmits copy of the Attorney and Solicitor General's report upon the burning of the "Gaspée" schooner. Instructions for their proceeding in this matter. His Majesty's opinion of the case. He expects all persons within the Colony to exert themselves in order to bring the offenders to justice.

1½ pages.

Endorsed :—Dra^t^ to the Gov^r^ and Company of Rhode Island (N^o^) August 1772.

The KING to GOVERNOR JOSEPH WANTON, DANIEL HORSMANDEN, FREDERICK SMYTH, PETER OLIVER, and ROBERT AUCHMUTY.

1772, September 2. Westminster.—Commission authorizing them to inquire into and report upon the circumstances relative to the attacking, taking, plundering, and burning of the schooner "Gaspée."

Copy. 4¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—No. 7. Copy of the Commission.

RODOLPH VALLTRAVERS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 2. Somerset Chapel, Strand.—Submits the enclosed memorial to his Lordship's judgment.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—C—22. M^r^ Valtravers Plan for procuring Protestants from Germany to settle in America.

Enclosure:—

MEMORIAL TO THE KING.

1772, September 2. London.—Signed J. Rodolph de Valltravers (sic). Offers his services to procure from the Protestant parts of Poland, Germany, and Switzerland useful colonists to settle in America.

Original. 2 folio pages.

NOEL HILL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 3. Tern.—Recommends M^r Pitman to Lord Dartmouth's favour as Lord Hillsborough promised some provision should be made for him. Refers him to M^r Pownall who is well acquainted with previous applications made on behalf of M^r Pitman.

A copy of Lord Dartmouth's reply, dated 14 September is on the reverse, stating that he has many similar applications on hand, and will attend to this when opportunity arises.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A 48. Noel Hill Esq. Tern. Sept. 3^d 1772, recommending M^r Pitman, v. Cor. p. 5 & 6. Ent^d. Noel Hill Esq^r, M^r Pitman.

Enclosure:—

CAPTAIN FREDERICK COBBE PITMAN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

Memorial. Relates his services in North America and India. Is now in distressed circumstances and asks for some employment in America.

1 page.

Endorsed:—No. 18. Memorial of Capt^t Pitman, requesting an Employm^t in North America. In Noel Hill's Esq of Sept^r 3^d 1772, v. mem. p. 1. Ent^d. Memorial of Fred^k Cobbe Pitman Late Captain. In the East India Companys Service.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 3, at midnight.—Is much perplexed over an estate in consequence of the death of a relation. Sends with some enclosed letters the Instructions for the Commissioners appointed to investigate in the "Gaspée" affair. Remarks on them.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Pownall, 3^d Sept. 1772.

LORD DARTMOUTH to GOVERNOR JOSEPH WANTON.

1772, September 4. Whitehall.—No. 1. Containing the King's directions to inquire into the circumstances attending the outrage on the "Gaspée" schooner.

Draft. 9¾ pages. [Similar drafts in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 201, fos. 279 and 373.]

Endorsed:—Draᵗ to Govʳ Wanton. 4th Septʳ 1772. (No. 1.) Entᵈ.

Copy of the foregoing.

The KING to GOVERNOR JOSEPH WANTON, DANIEL HORSMANDEN, FREDERICK SMYTH, PETER OLIVER and ROBERT AUCHMUTY.

1772, September 4. St. James's.—Instructions to inquire into the "Gaspée" affair.

Copy. [5⅔ folio pages. Draft is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 201, fo. 389.]

Endorsed:—No. 6. Copy of Instructions to the Commissioners of Inquiry in Rhode Island 4 Sept. 1772.

CAPTAIN ARCHIBALD BLANE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 6. Reading.—Desiring to be appointed to one of the Governments to be settled on the Ohio.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B 26. Capⁿ Blane 6th Augˢᵗ 1772 for Ohio Government.

Enclosures:—

COLONEL HENRY BOUQUET to LIEUTENANT ARCHIBALD BLANE commanding at Ligonier.

1763, July 4. Carlisle, North America.—Commends him for his bravery in defending his post. Those who agreed to stay with him shall be rewarded. Is ashamed of those who so treacherously abandoned him. Had Lieutenants Christy and Gordon behaved with the same courage as Blane their important posts would not have been lost nor Christy and his garrison massacred. Importance of his post for support of Fort Pitt. Sends a reinforcement.

Copy in Blane's hand. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Copy Colˡ Bouquet's letter, July 4ᵗʰ 1763.

LORD BARRINGTON to CAPTAIN ARCHIBALD BLANE.

1772, September 3. Cavendish Square.—If a Governor is appointed on the Ohio, considers he deserves such an appointment, but the application must be made to Lord Dartmouth.

Copy in Blane's hand. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Copy of Lord Barrington's Letter. Septʳ 3ᵈ 1772.

CAPTAIN ARCHIBALD BLANE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 6. Reading.—Memorial. First part begins "That your Memorialist served the whole of last war in North America." After this comes a memorandum, then the 2nd part begins: "My other Services in that Part of the World, and which I now have the honour to lay before your Lordship are," &c. &c., the first part being copy of what was written in December 1764 or January 1765 to Welbore Ellis.

Autograph copy. 2 folio pages.

*Endorsed:—Captain Blane's Memorial. Sept*r 6*th* 1772.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 6. Sunday Evening ½ past nine.—The despatches on the "Gaspée" business are about to be sent off. As this affair has been misrepresented in the newspapers he has suggested to Mr. Eden that a notification of the Commission and the Proclamation should be there made. Death of Lord Hawley, Lieutenant Governor of Antigua; this appointment is in Lord Dartmouth's patronage. Encloses the papers he ordered. Is leaving London to-morrow.

Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Pownall 6th Sept. 1772.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 7. Rochester.—Mr Eden's surprise that Lord Dartmouth had not kissed the Queen's hand upon taking the Seals. Such conduct was considered extraordinary. As some importance may be attached to this matter, he mentions it in a friendly way to his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Pownall 17th Sept. 1772.

WILLIAM KNOX to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 8. Whitehall.—Fears that the proceedings related in the despatches will lead to a war with the Indians. Apologizes for omitting to send two papers on the "Gaspée" affair. Encloses one, the other will follow.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Knox. 8th Sept. 1773 (sic).

HENRY BASSET to LORD [SCARSDALE].

1772, September 10. Detroit.—With a slip of paper on which is written "To Captain Basset Major to the 10th Regiment at Detroit by New York to be forwarded by General Gage." Refers to a letter in which he desired his Lordship's influence with Lord Hillsborough to get him appointed Governor of Detroit. Necessity there appears to be for a Governor. Should this not succeed, proposes that he be appointed Surveyor General of the lands and woods and Receiver of the quit rents of Detroit and its dependencies. Has been an officer nearly thirty years.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

LORD DARTMOUTH to CAPTAIN ARCHIBALD BLANE.

1772, September 10. Sandwell.—In answer to his letter of 6 September. When the settlement is decided upon, his application will be attended to, though he fears he can give him but little encouragement.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

LORD DARTMOUTH to LORD VISCOUNT GAGE.

1772, September 10. Sandwell.—In answer to his of 30 August, states that he cannot give Mr Kemble any encouragement to accept of a deputation from Mr Morgan in the hope of succeeding to his office in America.

Autograph copy signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Entd.

JOHN MORE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 10. Rothimurchus.—Is "importuned by two hundred families in this and the neighbouring parishes, to intreat of your Grace to let them have the encouragement given by Government (if any) for settling in North America."

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Scotch Families desiring to be transplanted to America.

MONSIEUR LAVANCHY to [LORD DARTMOUTH.]

1772, 7bre 11. à Utrecht.—Setting forth his ideas with reference to making new settlements on the rivers Ohio and Mississippi.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—C—34. Mrons. (sic) Lavanchy Ohio Settlemt &c.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 19. Whitehall.—Receipt of letters from America. Fears an Indian war will result from the barbarous murders committed on them, and considers stringent measures should be taken to bring the perpetrators to justice. West Indian affairs.

Autograph letter signed. 4½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Pownall 19 Sept. 1772.

SIR JAMES WRIGHT, Baronet, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 22. Venice.—

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Sr James Wright Venice 22d Sept. 1772. Congratulations.

The EARL OF ROCHFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 23. St. James's.—Hopes he will be able to attend the Cabinet on Wednesday the 7th October, if not, any resolutions then passed will be forwarded to him.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—E. of Rochford 23 Sep^r 1772 (private).

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

[1772], September 27, ½ past 1 p.m. Sunday.—Difficulty he foresees in Colonel Dalrymple being made a Major-General for the purpose of assuming the duties carried on by Governor Leyborne in the expedition against the Caribs. The placing military persons over the chief Governor in America, has already been complained of in Parliament in the case of General Gage. Further observations on the subject. With this is an autograph copy of Lord Dartmouth's answer.
Autograph letter signed. 5¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r Pownall 27 Sept. 1772.

CHARLES WILLIAMOS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 28. Dover Street.—Sends a letter from the Duke of Manchester and a memorial from his brother relative to his disagreeable situation in America. Encloses considerations. His services in the Customs at Jamaica having been detrimental to health and fortune, he seeks for the appointment of Naval Officer at New York.
Autograph letter signed. 4 folio pages.

Endorsed :—B 29 M^r Williamos 28^th Sept. 1772, desiring an Appointment.

Enclosure :—

Considerations on the Culture of Vines, Olive, and other Trees in North America with a Plan for carrying such Culture into execution.
Autograph. 9 quarto pages.

LORD EDGCUMBE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 29. Mount Edgcumbe.—Recommends to his notice William Pepperell, grandson and heir to the General who took Louisburgh. Advises the bestowal of this favour as he has large family connections and they will then be more likely to support his Lordship's measures.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—A 32. Lord Edgcumbe 29 Sept. 1772, recommending M^r W^m Pepperell. Lord Edgcumbe.

The EARL OF ROCHFORD to SIR WILLIAM TRELAWNY, Baronet.

1772, October 1. Whitehall.—The 50^th Regiment from Ireland and part of 60^th from North America to go to Jamaica and the 36^th and 66^th to come to Europe.
Copy. ¾ folio page.

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Rochford to Sir William Trelawny, Bar^t, dated Whitehall, Oct^r 1^st 1772.

LORD SCARSDALE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, October 6. Kidleston.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages. With Lord Dartmouth's answer dated Sandwell 12 October promising to take the request into consideration.

Endorsed:—A 53. Lord Scarsdale. Kidleston, Oct. 6th 1772. Recommending Mr Bassett. V. Cor. p. 1–2. Entd.

Again endorsed:—Ld Scarsdale Mr Basset Detroit.

Enclosures:—

CAPTAIN HENRY BASSET to LORD [SCARSDALE].

1772, May 1. Quebec.—Sets out for Detroit on the 5th instant, to command the Fort and garrison there. Desires to be appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Detroit.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ pages.

Endorsed:—In Lord Scarsdale's of Oct. 6, 1772. 1.

CAPTAIN HENRY BASSET to LORD [SCARSDALE].

1772, June 29. Detroit.—Entreats his Lordship to influence the Secretary of State to make him Lieutenant-Governor of this place. Arrived here with the troops under his command on the 23rd instant. On the way met an Indian trader who had just brought in the scalps of eight Indians. A Governor is much wanted as there are no regular police. Mentions seeds he sent his Lordship last year.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—In Lord Scarsdale's of Oct. 6, 1772. 2.

JOHN POWNALL to LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS GAGE.

1772, October 7. Whitehall.—Receipt of his No 76. The regulations for civil Government proposed by the Inhabitants of the Illinois were not enclosed in General Gage's dispatch as stated. West India affairs.

Draft. 1¼ pages.

Endorsed:—Drat to Lieut Genl Gage Whitehall 7th Octor 1772. J. P.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 8. Whitehall.—Sends copies of all the letters signed by the other secretary during his absence. Difficulties he has had to encounter with Lords Rochford and Suffolk in the business concerning the relief of troops.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Pownall 8 Oct. 1772.

RELIEF of TROOPS.

[1772, October 8.] Not dated, but see Pownall's letter above.—Memorandum relative to the business in connection with the relief of troops going to or returning from America.

3¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—In No 1 Domest.

DEER ISLAND SETTLERS to JOHN CALEF.

1772, October 9.—Authority to act as their Agent. Authorising him to present a petition to the King, for a grant of this Island. Sixty signatures.
Copy. 1 folio page.

J. MALLET to DOCTOR WILLIAM HUNTER in Wind-Mill Street, London.

1772, October 9. New York.—Governor Tryon assures him he will do nothing to the detriment of the lands in question. Hopes the lady will be able to get a grant of these lands, under the great seal and free of quit rents.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—In B—12.

FOX ISLAND SETTLERS to JOHN CALEF.

1772, October 9.—Authority to act as their Agent. Authorising him to present their petition to the King for a grant of this Island. Twenty-five signatures.
Copy. 1 folio page.

Settlers in FOX ISLAND, county of Lincoln, Massachusetts, to the KING.

1772, October 9.—Petition. Stating the circumstances under which they have subsisted on this island, and asking for a grant of it, instead of being turned off with their families into the wilderness. Twenty signatures.
Original. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Pet^{n} Fox Island.

JOHN THORNTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 14. Clapham.—"I must trouble your Lordship to execute the inclosed full power & to send it to Baron Smythe. I have been some time in disburse for D^{r} Wheelock's Schools and shall have more to pay soon." Thanks for his reply concerning his nephew Knipe. Recommends Thomas Rennard in America to his notice for some suitable employment there.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A 56. M^{r} Thornton M^{r} Knipe M^{r} Rennard in N. America 14 Oct. 1772.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, October 17. Chandos Street, Cavendish Square.—His indisposition. Finds there are many letters and papers in the Department of Secretary of State requiring Lord Dartmouth's serious attention, and two or three needing the consideration of the Cabinet. Transmits a note with its enclosures just received from Sir Stanier Porten.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Pownall 17 Oct. 1772.

The Reverend BERNARD PAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 19. London.—Represents the necessity of keeping the families on the lands lying upon the Susquehannah River. If some relief is not granted many must die of want before the spring. When he left them they had nothing but a small allowance of potatoes.
Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Rev^d^ M^r^ Page. 19 Oct. 1772, inclosing a Letter from Lady Huntingdon.
Also endorsed:—Rev^d^ M^r^ Page & Lady Huntingdon.

Enclosures:—

PETITION to the KING.

Petition of Sixty Fathers of distressed Families.
3¾ large pages.

Endorsed:—N^o^ 22. The humble Petition of Sixty Fathers of most distressed Families residing at Fort Augusta in the province of Pennsylvania, and in the Jerseys in North America; Husbandmen. By the hand of Bernard Page, Clerk, requesting the Re-possession of Lands from which they have been driven, after many Contests, about Wyoming on the Back of Pensylvania, and that they might be more immediately under the Royal Protection in their Persons and Properties, &c. V. mem. p. 11. Ent^d^.

LADY S. HUNTINGDON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 21. London.—Recommending M^r^ Page and desiring help may be granted to the people living on lands upon the Susquehannah river.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

RICHARD CRACRAFT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 20. Philpot Lane —Distress of the Moheagan Indians and their agents, owing to the delay of judgment in the controversy between them and Connecticut in 1770. Serious consequences that will follow if it is not speedily settled.
Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Cracraft Moheagan Cause. M^r^ Cracraft 20^th^ Oct. 1772. In behalf of the Moheagan Indians.

Enclosure:—

MOHEAGAN INDIANS. PETITION to the KING.

By John Mason. Relate their sufferings from encroachments on their lands by the Colonists. Desire permission to move to a fresh settlement between the Falls of the Ohio and the entrance of the Mississippi, and there to receive the King's protection. Offer this petition by Mason, who is their chief guardian and trustee in all their transactions with Government.
2½ pages.

Endorsed:—No. 36. Petition of the Moheagan Indians. Cracraft.

William Samuel Johnson to Lord Dartmouth.

1772, October 20. Stratford in Connecticut.—Congratulations upon Lord Dartmouth's appointment as Secretary of State. His friends having suggested that he be appointed Chief Justice of New York, states the pleasure such an office would give him and mentions several people in London who would recommend him for it.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B. 30. Oct^r 20, 1772. D^r Johnson desiring a Law-Office.

General Phineas Lyman to Lord Dartmouth.

1772, October 21. Suffield.—Considers Lord Dartmouth's appointment will greatly help to restore harmony between England and America. Remarks on his plan to form a settlement on the Mississippi.
Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—B 31. 21 Oct^r 1772. Gen^l Lyman desiring some Attention for his Services.

Deposition of John Beath.

1772, October 23. Lincoln Island.—Before Thomas Rice and John Stinson J.P. Details the circumstances under which he obtained a settlement at Pemaquid under Colonel Dunbar acting by commission from George II. Shews how unjustly they have been turned off and their sufferings in consequence.
Original. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—No. 4. Beath. John Beath's Deposition.

Samuel M^cCobb, William Moore and William Fullerton. Depositions.

1772, October 23. Lincoln Island.—Before Thomas Rice and John Stinson J.P. Recounting how they settled on lands East of Kennebeck River. That Col. Dunbar offered to give them the deeds of these lands, but the execution was delayed and in 1733 he was removed to New Hampshire. Their sufferings from the Indians etc. In 1764 they were legally incorporated into a town by the name of Boothbay, and, though poor, they have built a church, paid the public charges of Government and proved themselves loyal subjects of George III.
Original. 2¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Samuel M^cCobb, W^m More & W^m Fullerton's Deposition. No. 1, 2, 3, M^cCobb Moore Fullerton.

The Reverend William Gordon to Lord Dartmouth.

1772, October 24. Jamaica Plain.—Details of a conversation lately held with Thomas Cushing on American affairs. "He assured me that the Colonists would not be fully satisfied till matters were brought back to the state in which they were before the stamp act." The right of Parliament to regulate trade was admitted, as also to appropriate the sums arising therefrom, but not to raise a revenue. The conversation turned on what would be an immediate gratification and put the General Court into good humour, on which the Speaker mentioned the removal of the troops, the restoration of the castle to the care of the Colony, instructions to be given to the Governor to sign tax bills without any exception in favour of commissioners etc. and the leaving it to the General Court to provide for the Judges. M^r^ Gordon thinks the removal of the troops would be a good thing ; he continues :—"I had the honour of dining with the Governor at his table, the day his Excellency prorogued the Assembly and refused signing the tax bill in virtue of the instruction received a few days before, and had an opportunity of observing the disgust, and of knowing the sentiments of some of his warmest friends, who could not refrain from mentioning that they hoped the Assembly would never agree to make the proposed exception let the consequences be as they would." Governor Bernard's former imprudence with the Council.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ pages.

Endorsed :—Oct^r^ 24, 1772. Rev^d^ M^r^ Gordon Boston.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 27. London.—Relates his zealous services to Government for 21 years. Complains of conduct of Governor Grant by whom he was condemned and ordered to England in 1771. Remarks on his surveys. Desires restoration to his office, and proper encouragement in the service.

Autograph letter signed. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ De Brahm.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR ANDREW OLIVER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 30. Boston.—Congratulations.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—No. 3. Boston Oct^r^ 30, 1772. L^t^ Gov^r^ Oliver. R/ 6^th^ Dec^r^.

CORTLAND SKINNER, Attorney-General of New Jersey, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 30. Perth Amboy.—Memorial. Having held the office of Attorney General of New Jersey for upwards of eighteen years, desires an increase of salary.

Original. 1¼ folio pages. [A signed duplicate is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 195, fo. 17.]

Endorsed :—No. 5. Memorial C. Skinner Esq^r^ Att.Gen. N. Jersey Gen^l^ Fitzroy.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[1772, October.]—The possessors of large territories in North America generally lay out their tracts in several hundred lots, reserve some as a favourable place for themselves, then let every third or fourth lot by lease to tenants at a certain annual rent. If Lord Dartmouth approves, he can easily find thirteen good French Protestant families willing to go and cultivate his lands in East Florida. Suggests names. By this means his Lordship's lands would be settled in less than twenty years with honest, industrious, experienced and religious tenants. Encloses two original letters received from M^r^ and M^rs^ Roux.

Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—C—37. M^r^ De Brahm (without Date) relative to the Purchase of American Lands.

Enclosures :—

MADAME ROUX to WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM.

1772, 8^bre^ 6. Merges.—Thanks for kindness to her husband and sons. Hopes to meet de Brahm in America.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 3 quarto pages. In French.

MONSIEUR ROUX to [WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM].

N. D. [1772, October].—Solicits his interest to procure him a grant of 6,000 acres in America.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages. In French.

JOHN CALEF to the KING.

N. D. [1772, October].—Memorial in behalf of the Proprietors of Twelve Townships lying in the Territory of Sagadahock: Granted to James Duncan and others, by the Province of Massachusetts-Bay. Repeats a petition presented in 1763 to the King shewing that the territory of Sagadahock and the adjacent islands were granted to the inhabitants of Massachusetts Bay by William and Mary, and desiring him to confirm it. This petition was referred to the Board of Trade which considered the advisability of such a step being taken, but since 17 July 1764 nothing more has been done. Desires a speedy settlement either by confirmation of former grants, or by erecting the district into a separate province, as the inhabitants are at present in great distress because of this uncertainty.

Original. 7½ folio pages.

"A LONDONER" to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, October.—Congratulations. Entreats him to watch his two secretaries who "carry with them into office, all the injurious and illiberal Ideas, and Enmitys, publick and personal, of their late Lord, and will insidiously labour, to possess your Lordship, with their private Prejudices and Resentments." Warns him of the consequences of slighting this admonition, which comes from one who loves him cordially.

Letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Anonymous Oct^r^ 1772 C—32.

OHIO SETTLEMENT.

1772, October.—Observations on the new Settlement on the Ohio, addressed to Lord Dartmouth. Exposes the difficulty of communication for the purposes of trade. Believes that the settlers would shortly become "tartars or savages;" ridicules the notion of silk culture and concludes that the people would be lost to Britain in a commercial view.

Original. $3\frac{3}{4}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Oct^r 1772 Anonymous Ohio Settlement C—36.

SAGADAHOCK and PENOBSCOT RIVERS.

1772, October.—A General account of the Country Eastward of the River Sagadahock in the Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, and an account of the settlements East of the Penobscot River. Gives names of places granted, and of grantees. Remarks and observations.

3 folio pages.

Endorsed :—A General Account of the Territory of Sagadahock N. England.

A duplicate follows.

The DUKE OF MANCHESTER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, November 2. Paris.—Considers his brother Lord Montagu has served Government well in South Carolina, and he wishes now to be removed to a more congenial climate. Mentions Barbadoes if Lord Dartmouth has not decided on a more suitable person for that Government.

Autograph letter signed. $1\frac{1}{2}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—A 39. Duke of Manchester. 2^d Nov^r 1772 recommending his Brother.

Again endorsed :—Duke of Manchester.

LORD DARTMOUTH to LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE.

1772, November 4. Whitehall.—The state of the Illinois district requires serious consideration. Quarrel with the Chickasaws at Kaskaskias is a very unlucky event.

Copy. $1\frac{1}{2}$ folio pages. [Draft is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 128, fo. 145.]

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Lieut: Gen^l Gage, dated Whitehall 4^th Nov^r 1772.

The REVEREND JAMES ALICE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, November 5. Paisley.—Solicits his assistance with regard to the act passed in Pennsylvania concerning the manner of swearing in law courts. As the King and Council have a negative over the laws made by the Governor and Provincial Assembly the Rev. Wm. Marshel of Philadelphia desires him to try and procure an interest with some of the nobility, who can be of service to prevent the repeal of this Act.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Rev^d M^r Alice of Pensylvania.

BOARD OF TRADE. MINUTES.

1772, November 5. Plantation Office.—Concerning the Indians and lands and debts in Georgia.
Original. 1¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Minutes of the Board of Trade 5 Novr 1772.

Judge ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 5. New York.—Complains of the conduct of the New York General Assembly in excluding him from a seat in the Assembly, though five times elected representative for the Manor of Livingston, the pretence being that "No Judge of the Supreme Court should sit or vote in the House." Recounts his services as judge of the Supreme Court of the Province since 1763. Refers to Mr Wooldridge as able to confirm all he has stated.
Copy. 5 folio pages. [The autograph signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 182, fo. 883.]

Endorsed:—B 20 Judge Livingston New York. 5th Novr 1772.

PHILIP SKENE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 7. Skenesborough in the County of Charlotte.—Introducing the bearer, Mr. Hawley, who was amongst the first settlers under the faith of a New Hampshire grant, and who has been appointed by the members of the Church of England agent to represent their case in the mother-country. Daily disputes, often attended with riots, had occurred between the proprietors under New York and New Hampshire, until Governor Tryon took the measures he did. He (Skene) has one of the first grants in Charlotte county under the New York government..
Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—No. 1. Mr Skene N. Hampshire recommg Mr Hawley 7th Novr 1772.

BOARD OF TRADE. REPRESENTATION to the KING.

1772, November 9. Whitehall.—With Appendix consisting of:—

Schedule of the following Papers. 9 November 1772.
- A. Memorial of Governor Wright to the Earl of Hillsborough. [November 1771.]
- B. Governor James Wright. List of Papers relative to his Memorial about Indian Affairs. [November 1771.]
    - No. 1. Cherokee Indians. Cession of lands to Indian Traders in Payment of Debts. 22 February 1771.
    - No. 2. Talk from Judd's Friend, an Indian, to Captain John Stuart at a Convention of the Over Hills Cherokee Chiefs and beloved Men. 7 March 1771.
    - No. 3. Cherokee Indian Talk to Governor James Wright. 3 May 1771.
    - No. 4. Governor James Wright to the Cherokee Indians. 23 May 1771.
    - No. 5. Upper Creek Indian Talk to Governor Wright. 1 May 1771. With note of Philemon Kemp transmitting the talk 6 June.

No. 6. Governor James Wright. Talk to the Upper Creek Indians. 25 June 1771.

No. 7. Cherokee Indian Talk at a Meeting near Fort Charlotte. 8 June 1771.

No. 8. Indian Traders in the Creek and Cherokee Nations (George Galphin, James Jackson, and nine others). Memorial to Governor Wright. [November 1771.]

C. London Merchants, trading to and interested in the Province of Georgia. Memorial to the Board of Trade.

D. Memorandum only of a Map describing the lands proposed to be ceded by the Creeks and Cherokees.

Copy. 71½ folio pages. [Original is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 233, fo. 327.]

Endorsed:—No. 1. (Copy.) Representation of the Lords of Trade upon the Proposition of Gov^r^ Wright, for a Cession of Land from the Creek & Cherokee Indians Whitehall 9th Nov^r^ 1772.

MONTFORT BROWNE. MEMORIAL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 10.—Recounts his services, sufferings and losses.
Original. 2 large pages.

Endorsed:—No. 17. Memorial of Montfort Browne Esq^r^, requesting an Appointment to a Government in North America. V. Mem. p. 2. Ent^d^.

Enclosures:—

The EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH to MONTFORT BROWNE.

1772, August 25. Hanover Square.—Is grieved that his resignation of office will prevent him from compensating Browne for his losses and ill treatment at Pensacola. Apologizes for not writing to his friend at New Grove.
Copy. 1 quarto page.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT on the MISSISSIPPI.

Reasons for the immediate Establishment of a Civil Government in the British Dominions adjoining the River Mississippi in North America. With foot notes containing application from some French at Pensacola to Governor Browne and extract of a Report of Engineer Cambel to the Government, all undated.
Printed. 4 large pages.

Endorsed:—No. 6. Reasons For the immediate Establishment of a Civil Government in the British Dominions adjoining to the River Mississippi in North America.

CHARLES TURNER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, November 11. Kirkleatham.—The delay in attending to the enclosed petition, has necessitated the petitioner borrowing 300*l.* from him and others.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—A 43. Charles Turner Esq^r^. Kirkleatham near N^o^ Allerton, Nov^r^ 11th 1772, recommending M^r^ Hird's Case. V. Cor. p. 10-9 Ent^d^.

Enclosures :—

JAMES HIRD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 10. Kirkleatham near N^o Allerton.—Renews his application on behalf of his son, who is now at New York without employment but is willing to go to any part of North America or the West Indies and able to undertake any service given him.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—In M^r Turner's of 11 Nov^r 1772.

JAMES HIRD to the EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH.

1772, July 16.—Petition. With certificate of Charles Turner as to the veracity of the petition. Stating that his son sailed for New York in August 1770 where he settled till May 1771 when Gage appointed him Barrack Master of Nova Scotia. In January 1772 he was deprived of this office by a M^r Morden and since then has been unable to maintain himself and family.

Autograph copy. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—In M^r C. Turner's of Nov^r 11*th* 1772.

CABINET MINUTE.

1772, November 12, Thursday (received from the Earl of Rochford for Lord Dartmouth's use).—Sketch of the points to be taken into consideration with reference to the present situation of England with France. "England has not a single friendly power or ally to boast of." France, Spain and the Italian States are united in the south, and in the north, Russia, Prussia and Vienna are joining in the dismemberment of Poland. Russia is on the eve of a war with the Porte and will then attack Sweden.

6¾ folio pages.

*Endorsed :—*Cabinet. For Lord Dartmouth's Use.

[BOARD OF TRADE] MINUTES.

1772, November 9, 12 and 16.—Concerning M^r Hocquart's Claim to Gros Macatinat. Lands on Lake Champlain. New Hampshire grants, etc.

2⅓ folio pages.

[BOARD OF TRADE] MINUTES.

1772, November 18.—Two papers, one not dated. The first refers to fees in New York and Virginia, the Governor of the first having 12*l.* 10*s.* for every 1,000 Acres. The second relates to the recovery of debts in New Hampshire and New Jersey and to Charters for Massachusetts Bay.

1 folio page and 1 quarto page respectively.

THOMAS WOOLDRIDGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 24. New York.—Congratulations. The New England provinces rejoice at his appointment and anticipate the full enjoyment of civil and religious liberty. Encloses a letter and some verses from Phillis Wheatley, a negress, to Lord Dartmouth. [Query for these enclosures see the Eleventh Report of the Royal Commission, Appendix, Part V., page 334.]

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Woldridge N. York, Nov. 24, 1772.

SETTLERS ON SOUTHERN FOX ISLAND to JOHN CALEF.

1772, November 25.—Authority from the settlers on Southern Fox Island, Lincoln County, Massachusetts, to John Calef to act as their Agent. Authorising him to present their petition to the King and endeavour in any way to procure the royal grant of their island.

Copy. ¾ folio page. [For a list of the other papers found within the same wrapper see Calef to Dartmouth 1 February 1775.]

SETTLERS on SOUTHERN FOX ISLAND to the KING.

1772, November 25.—Petition praying for a grant of this island.

Original. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Petn Southern Fox Island.

BOARD OF TRADE to the LORDS COMMITTEE of the PRIVY COUNCIL for PLANTATION AFFAIRS.

1772, November 30. Whitehall.—Report. Have taken into consideration the extract of a letter from Governor Tryon to the Earl of Hillsborough, dated 1st of February 1772, and consider that the terms of His Majesty's mandamus, in favour of Howard, do not warrant the construction put upon it by Tryon and that he ought not to have made the grant. The only way for the proprietors to be redressed for injuries, is to apply to the Courts of Justice in New York.

Copy. 3¾ folio pages. [Draft of this Report is in the Public Record Office, Board of Trade, New York, Vol. 63A, fo. 517.]

Endorsed:—No. 3. Report of the Board of Trade upon an Extract of a Letter from Wm Tryon Esqr Govr of New York, relative to a Grant of 10,000 Acres of Land made by him to Lieut. Col. Howard. Dated Novr 30th 1772.

[LORD DARTMOUTH]. MINUTES.

1772, November 30.—Relating to the Mississippi. Mississippi Custom House removed from Mobile to Ship Island. Depth of water etc.

In Lord Dartmouth's hand. ½ folio page.

GOVERNOR SIR JAMES WRIGHT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November.—Memorial.

Autograph signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—No 21. Memorial to the Earl of Dartmouth. Govr Wright, presented Novr 1772, relative to securing the Province of Georgia from the Depredations of the Indians. V. Mem. p. 8. Entd.

Enclosures :—

GOVERNOR SIR JAMES WRIGHT.

1772, October 31.—Heads of his memorial sent to Lord Hillsborough in November 1771. Concerning Indian trade. Forts and lands in Georgia.

Autograph. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Heads of my Memorial. In Gov^r Wright's Memorial of Nov 1772. 1.

GOVERNOR SIR JAMES WRIGHT.

1772, October 31.—Reasons in support of his memorial sent to Lord Hillsborough in November 1771. Observations on the advantageous proposal of securing and continuing peace with the Indians by the concession of lands. Serious consequences that will ensue if some measures are not taken to protect the Inhabitants against the Indians.

Autograph. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Reasons in Support of my Memorial. In Gov^r Wright's Memorial of Nov^r 1772. 2.

GOVERNOR SIR JAMES WRIGHT.

1772, July 8. Savanah in Georgia.—"A General State of things as they were in Georgia when I came to the Government in October 1760, and how they are now in July 1771."

Autograph Copy.. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed :—General State of things in Georgia from 1760 to 1771. In Gov^r Wright's Memorial of Nov^r 1772. 3.

EXPORTS of GEORGIA.

An Aggregate and Valuation of Exports of Produce from the Province of Georgia, with the number of vessels and tonnage employed therein, annually distinguished, from the Year 1754 to 1771. Compiled by William Brown, Comptroller and Searcher of his Majesty's Customs in the Port of Savannah.

Printed. 1 strip.

Endorsed :—In Gov^r Wright's Memorial of Nov^r 1772. 4.

BOARD OF TRADE to the LORDS COMMITTEE of the PRIVY COUNCIL for PLANTATION AFFAIRS.

1772, December 3. Whitehall.—Report. [Printed in full in Vol. VIII., p. 488, of the "Documents relating to the Colonial History of New York," published by that State; also in Force's American Archives, Vol. IV., Fourth Series, col. 704. A draft of it, in manuscript, is in the Public Record Office, Board of Trade, New York, Vol. 63A, fo. 523.]

Copy. 25½ folio pages.

*Endorsed :—*N° 4. Report of the Lords Comm̃ for Trade & Plantations, relative to the Disorders that have prevailed in consequence of Grants of Land between the Rivers Hudson & Connecticut in America. Dated Dec^r 3^d 1772.

JOSEPH WARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 3. Boston.
Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B 22. M^r Joseph Ward, Boston, Dec^r 3^d 1772. (Praying the Office of Secretary to New Hampshire, or any other civil Employment in New England; and inclosing the Testimonium of M^r Abrm̃ Fuller to his Character) with the additional Signature of Gov^r Hutchinson to M^r Fuller's Honor & Veracity.

Enclosures:—

ABRAHAM FULLER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 13. Newton.—Recommending M^r Ward as a loyal subject and well deserving and fitted for the post he solicits.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—In M^r Joseph Ward's of Dec^r 3^d 1772.

RECOMMENDATION of JOSEPH WARD.

1772, December 13. Newton.—By Abraham Fuller J. P. With a certificate by Governor Hutchinson 14 December as to the veracity of Fuller's character.
Original. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—In M^r Joseph Ward's of Dec^r 3^d 1772.

WILLIAM COOPER, Town Clerk, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 8. Boston.—Sends the enclosed by order of the committee.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

Printed pamphlet containing the Votes and Proceedings of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, in Town Meeting assembled, according to Law. Published by Order of the Town. To which is prefixed, as introductory, an attested Copy of a Vote of the Town at a preceding Meeting.

Containing:—Votes of the Freeholders appointing a Committee of 21 persons to state the rights of the Colonists 28 October—2 November; Report of the Committee appointed by the town stating the rights of the Colonists, and showing the infringements and violations of those rights, 20 November; Letter from Boston to the other towns 20 November; Appendix N^o I. Message to the Governor; N^o II. Governor's answer 30 October; N^o III. Petition of the Town to the Governor 30 October; N^o IV. Governor's answer 2 November.
Printed pamphlet in stiff covers. 46 quarto pages.

MAJOR-GENERAL PHINEAS LYMAN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 8. Suffield.—By the increase of population a constant emigration is taking place from the settled lands in Connecticut to the country between Crown Point and the Connecticut River.

Proposes the erection of a civil government from the Bay of Mexico to the Ohio and so to direct that emigration thither. Asks encouragement for the Company of Military Adventurers, who served in the provincial forces and who propose to settle there. "As to the temper of the people they are evidently returning to their old sentiments of loyalty and the spirit of Boston don't seem to communicate any heat into the country."

Autograph letter signed. 3 pages.

Endorsed:—C—13. Connecticut 8th Decembr 1772 Major Gen Lyman Proposing Means for the Settlement of the Mississippi R/ 15 Febry 1773.

MARBLEHEAD. PROCEEDINGS of a TOWN MEETING.

1772, December 8.—"Resolved, That every part of the British Dominions hath a right to expect that no powers of Legislation or Government be exercised, but what are every way consistent with the English Constitution, and its true Principles." That the Acts of the British Parliament are opposed to the exercise of these rights. That a Committee of grievances be chosen etc. etc.

Copy. 7¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of the Proceedings at the Town Meeting at Marblehead on the 8th December 1772.

LORD DARTMOUTH to LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS GAGE.

1772, December 9. Whitehall.—No. 6. Critical state of Indian affairs. Troops to remain at Kaskaskias.

Copy. 1¼ folio pages. [Draft of this letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 128, fo. 171.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Lieut: Genl Gage, dated Whitehall 9th Decr 1772.

LORD DARTMOUTH to GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON.

1772, December 9. Whitehall.—No. 4. Has received his letters of 1st October, 23rd October, and Nos 1 and 2. Remarks on the seditious newspapers of Boston and the people's mistaken notions of the authority of the British legislature.

Copy. 5½ folio pages. [Draft of this letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 173, fo. 483.]

Endorsed:—No. 4. Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Govr Hutchinson, dated Whitehall 9th Decr 1772.

MINUTES.

1772, December 10.—In Lord Dartmouth's hand. "Governor Hutchinson concerning the clause to give the Governors custody of lunatics and idiots." Governor Franklin on the same subject. £586 to be allowed to Gov. Browne.

¾ folio page.

The Reverend Mr. Breynton to Captain Hughes.

1772, December 14. Halifax.—Desertion of troops at Halifax and Boston. Considers the King's ships are not half manned, notwithstanding the vigilance of the Admiral. The inhabitants induce the desertion. "A few pusilanimous Commissioners of the Revenue are the sole cause of Boston's being the rendezvous of the shipping." The military meet with constant insults at Boston.
Extract. $1\frac{1}{3}$ folio pages.

Endorsed :—No. 2. Extract of a Letter from the Rev^{d} M^{r} Breynton To Cap^{n} Hughes, dated Halifax, Nova Scotia, 14th December 1772.

Town Meeting at Plymouth.

1772, December 14. Plimouth Court House.—Proceedings.
Copy. $5\frac{1}{2}$ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Copy of the Proceedings and Resolves at the Town Meeting at Plymouth on the 14th December 1772.

Town Meeting at Roxbury.

1772, December 14.—Proceedings at a Meeting of Freeholders and other Inhabitants taking into consideration a "State of the Rights of the Colonists."
Copy. $7\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Proceedings of the Freeholders & other Inhabitants of the Town of Roxbury legally assembled by adjournment on Monday 14th Dec^{r} 1772. (Copy.)

William Gerard de Brahm to Lord Dartmouth.

1772, December 15. London.—Asking him to consider the enclosed and render him some assistance.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page. With seal (broken).

Enclosure :—

Abridgement of part of Governor Grant's deportment against the Surveyor General William Gerard de Brahm.
Autograph. 7 folio pages.

Captain Elihu Hall to Lord Dartmouth.

1772, December 15. P.S. 20 January. Wallingford.—Relates his services in America. Mentions his losses. Desires some lucrative post in the Civil department in any of the provinces.
Autograph letter signed. 7 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Capt. Elihu Hall 1773.

Enclosures :—

Memorial to Lord Dartmouth.

Desiring compensation for money advanced to soldiers, and expended upon them in the war for the reduction of Canada.
Autograph. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Memorial of Elihu Hall.

Enclosures—cont.

CASE of CAPTAIN HALL.

He raised a Company at his own expense to join the British armament under command of General Sinclair for an immediate reduction of Canada. Had to advance half their pay and the whole of their subsistence for which he has received no compensation, though he has crossed the Atlantic six times for that purpose.

Printed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Case of Elihu Hall.

CAPTAIN HALL to the EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH.

1772, July 31.—"I am sick of this bad World, London and Westminster grow Painful to me." Thanks for his kind treatment. Refers to his petition to Lord North for the Collectorship of Customs in Connecticut.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Elihu Hall July 1772, praying the Collectorship of Customs in America.

VIRGINIA.

1772, December 19. Council Chamber, Whitehall.—Order of Committee of Council.

Signed. 1 folio page. With seal (paper impressed over a wafer).

Endorsed:—No. 3. Virginia. Order of the Lords of the Committee of Council for plantation affairs, dated Dec^r^ 19, 1772, referring to this Board for their consideration & report, an Address of the House of Burgesses of Virginia to the King, praying that the Gov^r^ of that Colony may be permitted to assent to such Laws as may check the importation of Slaves from the Coast of Africa into the said Colony. C.c. Rec^d^ Dec^r^ 23, 1772. Read Jañry 25 1773.

Annexed:—

VIRGINIA HOUSE of BURGESSES. ADDRESS to the KING.

[1772, about May 1.]—Desiring him to prevent the importation of slaves from Africa into this colony.

Copy. 2 folio pages.

The EARL OF DUNMORE to the EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH.

1772, May 1. Williamsburg.—The evil consequences of having so many slaves imported to the colony and the desirability of passing laws to prevent this.

Copy. 2 folio pages.

[The originals of these annexed papers are in the Public Record Office, Amer. and W. Indies, Vol. 210, fos. 91 & 95.]

B. ROBERTS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 21. Kings Bench.—Relates his services to America. In 1766 he acted as commissary of Indian affairs and settled the trade of the Indian country. His present distress owing to a lawsuit. Desires Lord Dartmouth's assistance by granting him a written leave of absence from prison to enable him to raise money to procure his liberty.

Autograph letter signed. 2¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—C.—17. M^r Roberts, with various Informations respecting the Savages, &c., in America.

WILLIAM BOLLAN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 22. Southampton Street, Covent Garden.—Immediately after his last attendance on Lord Dartmouth he applied to a worthy friend, a great dealer in tea, well acquainted with the trade in all its capital parts, to draw up his sentiments in writing upon the effect of the threepence duty imposed. This friend was also desired by a gentleman from the city to make him such a statement to be communicated to Lord North.
Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

Reasons for a Repeal of the Act of 7th George III. which imposes a Duty of three pence per pound weight on Tea imported into America. That the levy is contrary to an agreement between the Government and the East India Company; that its removal would be beneficial to public revenue as well as to that of the Company, and would enable them to dispose of the large quantity in their warehouses. They cannot keep up their China trade without a freer circulation.
2½ pages.

Endorsed:—State of the Tea Trade.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 22. Boston.—Acknowledges letter N° 2 of the 4^th of September. Thanks him for copies of papers concerning the Rhode Island affair and complains of the conduct of the people of Boston and other towns.
Copy. 1⅔ pages. [The autograph signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 174, fo. 23.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Gov^r Hutchinson to the Earl of Dartmouth dated Boston 22^d December 1772.

LORD SUFFOLK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 23. 50 minutes past 5 p.m. Duke S^t Westminster.—Lord North believed Lord Dartmouth would approve of the resolution of last night's meeting so had his name inserted among the Lords present. If not agreeable it can be erased.
Not autograph, third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^d Suffolk 23 Dec^r 1772. Enclosing Minute of the Cabinet.

The REVEREND THOMAS ATKIN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1772, December 26. Queen Ann's County.—The bearer, Captain Thomas, will be glad to receive commands.
Fragment of autograph signed letter. ⅓ quarto page.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 26. Bath.—His zeal for the public service. Hopes soon to be well enough to return to his duties.
Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Pownall, Bath, 26 Decr 1772.

TOWN MEETING at PEMBROKE.

1772, December 28.—Proceedings of a Town meeting, with copy of a letter from it to the Committee of Correspondence at Boston 31 December 1772. Complaint of grievances. Desire for redress.
Copy. 4¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—No. 5. Copy of Proceedings of a Town Meeting at Pembroke Decr 28th 1772.

The REVEREND DR. ELEAZAR WHEELOCK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 28. Hanover, New Hampshire.—Congratulations on his appointment as Secretary of State. Good wishes. Submits the enclosed petitions to his Lordship's disposal. "I am very sorry to hear that the Character, and Administrations of My dear Governor Wentworth are impeach'd before the Board of Trade. And indeed it is strange to me, if there be any Reason for, or Justice in the Charges laid against him, that I have been so long in this Province, and have had so much acquaintance with him (and as I supposed with all orders and sorts of men in it) and have never once, that I remember, heard him complaind of in any one particular which I hear he is now complaind of and charged with before that Honourable Board. And your Lordship will pardon me that my Zeal is so far warmed for his vindication against that which I suppose to be cruel slander, as to say, and it is but what I must say if I were under the greatest solemnity, that his true character (so far as I know it) is that he is easie of Access, his Temper benevolent and obliging, he is a Pattern of Charity and Compassion to the poor and afflicted, He is vigilant, and Assiduous, to promote, and incourage Virtue, Learning, Industry, impartial Justice, Peace, and good Order throughout his Province, and the happy Effects of his mild, and prudent Administrations witness the same. And I verily beleive their is not a Governor upon this Continent more cordially and universally beloved by his People than Governor Wentworth, nor one they would be willing to exchange him for."
Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Revd Dr Wheelock Decr 28 1772.

Enclosures:—

The REVEREND DR. WHEELOCK to the KING.

1772, December 28. Dartmouth College, Hanover, New Hampshire.—" The Petition of Eleazar Wheelock Doctor in Divinity and President of Dartmouth College on Connecticut River in the Province of New Hampshire, Most Humbly Sheweth,—That the Petitioner Your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subject, did upon his own Inheritance and at his own Expence found and erect an indian charity School, in Your Majesty's Colony of Connecticut above twenty years ago, with a view to civilize and christianize the Natives in the Wilds of America, and by the Charitable Donations of Friends piously disposed towards the Design of said School, and particularly by Your Majesty's most benevolent Assistance in the Year 1766, and the charitable Donations of many Noblemen, Gentlemen and Others in imitation of Your Majesty's pious Example, which your Petitioner dos always most gratefully Acknowlege, he has been enabled to support and continue said School unto this Day.

Enclosures—cont.

That by Your Majesty's Royal Munificence said School was constituted a College by Letters Patent under the great Seal of the Province of New Hampshire bearing Date the eighteenth Day of December in the year of our Lord one Thousand, seven Hundred and sixty-nine by the Name of Dartmouth College, and there upon was soon removed and Settled in this new and almost uncultivated Wilderness, with a Special View to civilize & Christianize the indian Natives, as well as encourage and promote the Settlement of this new & wide extended Country, whereby a large Addition of Subjects and oppulence may accrue to your Majesty's American Dominions.

That it has been found by repeated Tryals, & long Experience that it is necessary in order to the Successful Prosecution of the great Design proposed, that a Suitable Number of English Youths should be fitted for Missionaries to go forth with the Children of the Natives to take the Lead and conduct of the great affair in the Wilderness.

That a Number Educated in this School have been and still are employed as Missionaries with Success in that Service, and a considerable Number are now preparing in this College and School to follow after them in a Succession as God in his Providence shall open a Door for their Employment therein.

That the Hardships and Dangers they have to encounter in such a Service, while separated so far from all the pleasurable Enjoyments of the Social Life, and among uncultivated Savages in the Wilderness, are too many and great to enumerate or justly describe.

That one great and common Objection, among many others which their own thoughts as well as their Friends naturally and strongly suggest against their undertaking such a Mission, is that they must either undergo the Mortification and all the Burdens & Disadvantages of a Single and unmarried Life in that Service, or bring up a Family without the ordinary Advantages of an Education and be exposed to leave a Widow and Children under very penurious and dependant Circumstances.

That the Slender Funds already collected for the Support of Missionaries in this said Service, bear but small proportion to their great Expences, or the Demerit of Such a Service. The Confederation of which has induced Your Humble Petitioner, though at great Expence, to examine into the State and Situation of Your Majesty's vacant and uncultivated Lands in this Country, by which he has discovered Sundry large Tracts of Land in the Province of New York wholly uncultivated, & never yet granted by any of your Majesty's Governors in America, and neither claimed nor possessed by the Indians.

That your Humble Petitioner is very desirous of obtaining your Majesty's Letters Patent under the great seal of the Province of New York for the Quantity of Twenty-five Thousand Acres of the said vacant Lands, in Trust for the use of said Missionaries and their needy Families on the same Terms of Quit Rent which your Majesty has lately been pleased to grant (as your Petitioner is informed) in Trust to the Governors of your Majesty's College in the Province of New York and to the Church of England in the same Province by Law Established.

Enclosures—cont.

Your Petitioner therefore most humbly prayes that Your Majesty would be graciously pleased to take the Premises into your princely Consideration and to grant unto the Trustees of said Dartmouth College your Majesty's royal Order or Mandamus, to the Governor or Commander in Chief of your Majesty's Province of New York directing and commanding him by your Majesty's Letters Patent under the great Seal of the said Province to grant unto your Petitioner or to the Trustees of said Dartmouth College, in Trust, for the use of such Missionaries as shall be from Time to Time sent forth into said Service, or for the Education of their Children, or Support of their needy widows and Families, at Discretion as Merit or necessity shall deserve and require, the said Quantity of Twenty-five Thousand Acres of Land on the same Terms of Quit Rent as above Specified, and that the same may be erected into a Township by the Name of Appii Forum and vested with all the usual Privileges granted to other Townships with in the Said Province, and your Petitioner as in Duty bound shall pray &c."

Autograph signed. 2¾ folio pages.

The REVEREND DR. WHEELOCK to the KING.

1772, December 28. Same address.—" That the Petitioner your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subject, being deeply impressed with a just sense of your Majesty's most gracious and benevolent Aid and Assistance extended in the Year one thousand seven hundred and sixty-six, to the Indian Charity School founded more than twenty Years ago, and carried on in your Majesty's Colony of Connecticut by your Majesty's humble Petitioner, which has since been removed to the Province of New Hampshire, and thro' your Majesty's Royal Munificence constituted a College by Letters Patent under the great Seal of the said Province bearing date the eighteenth day of December in the Year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixty nine by the name of Dartmouth College, for which peculiar privileges your Petitioner begs leave with undissembled Sincerity to return your Majesty his most unfeigned and hearty thanks.

That your Petitioner flatters himself that the erection of the said College has already been, and will yet be of great utility and Advantage to this as yet almost wild and uncultivated part of your Majesty's American Dominions, by encouraging Population and Literature, and promoting civility and Virtue, particularly among the Indians.

That the slender Funds on which this Infant Seminary is established has induced your Majesty's Petitioner (tho' at great expence) to examine into the State and Situation of your Majesty's vacant and uncultivated Lands in this Country, by which he has discovered sundry large tracts of Lands in the Province of New York wholly uncultivated and never yet granted by any of your Majesty's Governors in America, and neither claimed nor possessed by the Indians.

Enclosures—cont.

That your Petitioner is very desirous of obtaining your Majesty's Letters Patent under the great Seal of the Province of New York for the quantity of twenty five thousand Acres of the said vacant Lands to your Petitioner and his Successors, or to the Trustees of said College in Trust, for the same Uses and purposes of said College and School as the Lands already given by private Doners were designed for, and on the same Terms of Quit Rent which your Majesty has been lately pleased to grant (as your Petitioner is informed) in Trust to the Governors of Your Majesty's College in the Province of New York, and to the Church of England in the same Province as by Law established.

Your Petitioner therefore most humbly prays, that your Majesty would be graciously pleased to take the Premises into your princely Consideration, and to grant to your Petitioner, or to the Trustees of said Dartmouth College your Majesty's Royal Order or Mandamus to the Governor or Commander in Chief of your Majesty's Province of New York, directing and commanding him by your Majesty's Letters Patent under the great Seal of the said Province to grant unto your Petitioner and his Successors, or to the Trustees of said College in Trust, for the early Use and Benefit of said College and School as before specified, the said quantity of twenty-five thousand Acres of Land on the same Terms of Quit Rent as above specified, and that the same may be erected into a Township, by the name of St. George, and vested with the usual Privileges granted to other Townships within the said Province."

Signed. 3¼ quarto pages.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE.

1773, January 1.—Address to Lord Dartmouth from twenty-eight Scholars of different standing in the College and School, intending missionaries. Expressing their deep sense of his lordship's goodness to them and offering their congratulations on his promotion. Affairs of the seminary wear an encouraging aspect "whether we consider the endearing generosity of our excellent Governor in particular or the good affection the leading part of the Province manifest towards it or the unwearied assiduity of our worthy President."

Letter signed. 3 pages.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE.

Specimen of two Indian boys' writing after five weeks' instruction. "Courtesy and humility denote gentility."

1 slip.

[SOUTH CAROLINA.]

$\frac{\text{1770, February 19}}{\text{1772, December 31}}$.—Report of the Committee on the Public Treasurer's Accounts between these dates.

4 folio pages.

Endorsed :—(Paper No. 1.)

[N.B.—For paper endorsed Nº 2, 3, and 4 see under Thurlow and Wedderburn 31 March 1772, which paper is in the same handwriting as this.]

THOMAS WOOLDRIDGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 31. New York.—Remarks on lands in East Florida Virginia, &c. Desires an appointment in East Florida.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Woolridge concerning Lands in America.

EDWARD ABBOTT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

N. D. [1772].—"My Lord. In obedience to your Lordships commands I have Collected from some Papers I have with me the best Accounts they and my memory furnishes of the State of Detroit." The inhabitants are loyal and brave; they have often expressed a wish for a civil government. The Indians there could be easily governed by a proper person. The imports from British manufactures amount to £100,000 and from the West Indies to nearly as much.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Abbott. Account of Detroit.

JOSEPH ADAMS, mate of sloop "Liberty," to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

N. D. [1772].—Petition. Recounts his distresses since the destruction of the "Liberty" at Newport 19 July 1769, having had to flee to Connecticut, West Indies, New York, Philadelphia, and Barbadoes; thence by the kindness of Captain Thomas Adams was brought to London, where he presented a memorial to the Lords of the Treasury. John Robinson at this time charged the petitioner falsely, on which he returned to Boston and obtained two affidavits and other papers clearing his character, came back to London and now seeks relief.

Original. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—Jo. Adams. Petition To the Rt Honble the Earl of Dartmouth his Majestys Chief Secy of State for N. America.

TRADE and REVENUE of NORTH AMERICA.

N. D. [? 1772].—Observations on the Trade and Revenue of North America, with some Hints for the Improvement of both, and a Plan for the Prevention of Smuggling. Begins.—"North America having been fully explored in the Course of the last War, a more thorough Knowledge was obtained of its real State and Circumstances."

54 folio pages.

Endorsed :—No. 11. Observations on the Trade and Revenue of North America, &c., and A Plan for the Prevention of Smuggling.

MAJOR-GENERAL JOHN BRADSTREET to the KING.

N. D. [? 1772].—Petition. Written by T. Howard his agent. Expense to which he has been put, for cultivating certain lands in Albany County New York. Desires he may hold said land exempt from all quit-rents and provincial fees, in consideration of the money he has laid out, and for his services in America during the late war.

Original. 2½ pages.

Endorsed :—The Petition of Maj^r Gen^l John Bradstreet.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [1772].—Observations on the annexed sheets, which comprehend a full history of Florida.

Not autograph. 2 large folio pages, in stiff cover.

Annexed :—

> 1772. History of East Florida from its discovery in 1513 to 1771. In three chapters and with tables of Surveys. Gives details of its discovery, conquest, settlement by the Spaniards, cession to England, and first inhabitants, a description of the country, the boundaries, and surveys.
>
> The separate title page to the Tables of Surveys alone is in De Brahm's hand.
>
> 64 large folio pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [1772].—Memorial. Asks that his papers and maps may be laid before the Board of Trade and the usual certificate for his salary due since last midsummer 1772.

Autograph signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—The Memorial of William Gerard de Brahm.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to the LORDS COMMISSIONERS of the TREASURY.

N. D. [1772].—Memorial. Relates his services in establishing in 1751 the colony of Bethany in Georgia with 300 Germans with the approval of the several Governors. Complains of Governor Grant's treatment of him in St. Augustine. Sends particulars of the same. [Qy. That this is the Memorial referred to in his letter to Lord Dartmouth, 23 January 1773.]

Signed. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Southern District of North America. Surveyor General's Memorial And Governor Grant's Deportment.

Annexed :—

> Abridgement of Governor Grant's Deportment against the Surveyor General. With a letter from John Stokes to De Brahm, 21 December 1772.
>
> Copy. 14 large pages. [See above under 15 December.]

MINUTES.

N. D. [? 1772].—Paper in John Pownall's hand, endorsed "Cabinet" and headed "Memorandum of business upon which The King's Pleasure is [to be taken." "For taking the sense of Cabinet upon General Gage's request to have orders for withdrawing from the Illinois the Detatchment of 50 men stationed at the Kaskaskias." Other items refer to Lieutenant Governor Cramahé, Governor Shuldham, and Lord Dunmore's letter respecting the running of the boundary line between Virginia and the Indian country. Governor Leyborne. Memorial of Merchants trading to Africa. Governor Chester. Lieutenant Governor of Antigua. Appointment of Horsmanden to be Chief Justice of New York. Mr Duke Solicitor General at Barbadoes.

3 folio pages.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL GABRIEL CHRISTIE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [? 1772].—Memorial.

¾ page.

Endorsed:—No 12. Memorial of Lieut.-Col. Christie, praying, that some Lands which were formerly in the Possession of the French as a part of Canada, and which he purchased of the French proprietors, may not (tho' included in New York by the Proclamation of 1763) be granted away from him.

Annexed:—

PETITION to the KING.

No signatures. Said by Lieut.-Col. Christie to be from the original proprietors and others who purchased from them.

Land purchased by them on Lake Champlain in consequence of the session of Canada to the King, made by His most Christian Majesty. By an alteration in the boundary line their property comes within the jurisdiction of New York, they are under apprehensions of being deprived of it, as some of them have been already by grants made during the government of the late Sir Hy. Moore. Desire the King to examine into the just cause of their complaint, recall those grants and prevent the like occurring again.

2¾ pages.

Endorsed:—In Lieut. Col. Christie's Memorial to the Earl of Dartmouth.

NEW YORK and NEW HAMPSHIRE DISPUTED GRANTS.

N. D. [1772].—State of Facts relative to the Lands West of the Connecticut River. Owing to the uncertainty of the boundary between New York and New Hampshire, the Governors of both these provinces made grants in disputed lands between the Connecticut and Hudson Rivers. An order was issued on 24 July 1767 that the Governor of New York should not make any grants within the limits of any townships laid out by the Governor of New Hants. In June 1771 the Board of Trade considered this subject and reported their opinion to the Lords of the Council but no determination has been made thereon as yet, though Governor Tryon has granted several townships of late.

Copy. 8¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Nº 3. State of Facts relative to Lands West of Connecticut River.

The REVEREND TEMPLE HENRY CROKER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772.—Memorial. Has been invited by several influential gentlemen to go and settle with them on the Mississippi. Is willing to go, but waits Lord Dartmouth's appointment to a place or living within the said settlement, and with such provision for support as may be thought proper.

Signed. 1 page.

Endorsed:—To the Right Honourable The Earl of Dartmouth The Memorial of The Rev^{d} Temple Henry Croker, Clke.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to the LORD PRESIDENT of the COUNCIL.

N. D. [? 1772]. Whitehall.—In accordance with the King's command has directed Pownall to deliver to the clerk of the Council in waiting all papers relative to the complaint against the Governor of New Hampshire with representation of the Board of Trade to His Majesty thereon.

Rough draft in Pownall's hand. 1 quarto page.

TRADE OF DUNKIRK.

1772.—Estimate of the Annual Imports at Dunkirk from Great Britain and Ireland with the Principal articles of Fair Trade, exported from Dunkirk to London, with remarks. America is mentioned several times. By Captain Frazer.

11½ folio pages.

MEMORIAL of the INHABITANTS of EAST FLORIDA.

N. D. [? about 1772].—To whom is not stated. On Governor Grant's promise to the inhabitants of enjoyment of their privileges. Outrage of Creek Indians. Showing how money given by Parliament for the improvement of the colony has been wasted. Mention of Josiah Bagly whose lands, on his death, were seized by the Governor. Their grievances against Governor Grant are so numerous that they pray for an Assembly like other provinces, for the purpose of making such laws as the exigency of their circumstances require.

Not signed. 1 large leaf, both sides.

CAPTAIN JOHN GORDON, JACOB VANBRAAM, and others, to the KING.

N. D. [? 1772].—Memorial. Difficulties in procuring grants of land in North America on account of their inability to apply for them personally. Desire the King will grant a mandamus that such officers of the navy and army as served in North America during the late war may be allowed their shares of lands in North America upon application to the Governors and Councils of the Provinces by power of attorney.

2 pages.

Endorsed:—To the King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council the Humble Memorial of John Gordon &c.

CASE OF CAPTAIN JOHN GRÆME.

N. D. [1772].—Representing that his brother the late Lieutenant-Colonel Græme about the year 1768 gave a power of attorney to a friend to enter into negotiations for 5,000 acres of land in New York. Requests that Lord Dartmouth would procure a new mandamus for him or the heirs at law.

¾ page.

Endorsed:—Case of Cap^t^ John Græme of Duchrie rec^d^ from Col. Murray.

The same, but with some variations in the opening sentence.

1½ pages.

Endorsed:—Case of Cap^t^ John Graham of Duchrie.

CAPTAIN ELIHU HALL TO LORD NORTH.

N. D. [1772].—Memorial. Certified by several London merchants. Beginning "That your Memorialist raised a Company for an intended Expedition against Canada" (qy. see a similar memorial in the previous list of Lord Dartmouth's MSS., Eleventh Report, App^x^ V., p. 372.)

Signatures of the merchants are autograph. 2 large pages.

Endorsed:—N^o^ 9. Memorial of Elihu Hall to Lord North, praying the Appointment of Collector of Customs in Connecticut, or other Provision, in requital for his Losses and Services.

MONSIEUR HOCQUART.

N. D. [? 1772].—Claim to the Port of Gros Mekatinat on the Coast of La Bras-dor.

5¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Mon^r^ Hocquart's Claim to the Gros macatinat.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL THOMAS HOWARD.

N. D. [1772].—State of Title to the 10,000 Acres on Connecticut River in the County of Cumberland. "This Title is founded on a peremtory Mandamus from the King, recommended by the Board of Trade, and Advised by the Privy Council."

8½ folio pages. [A duplicate of this is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 173, fo. 423.]

Endorsed:—State of Colonel Howard's Title to Lands on Connecticut River in the County of Cumberland.

Enclosures :—

1772, February 3. Boston.—Copy of Governor Hutchinson's letter to Governor William Tryon.

Certified by William Tryon. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from Gov^{r} Hutchinson to Gov^{r} Tryon, dated Boston, 3^{d} Febr^{y} 1772 (relative to Col. Howard's Grant at Hinsdale, and his Controversy with the other Claimants of that Township). In State of Col. Howard's Title to Lands on Connecticut River.

Narrative of Lieutenant Colonel Howard's Application to Governor Tryon for a Grant of Land in New York. Upon Lieutenant Colonel Howard's arrival at New York, he made application to Governor Tryon to have his Majesty's Order of Council for ten thousand Acres of Land located near a settled country. Not finding such, he employed a private surveyor who reported a vacant tract near Connecticut River and letters patent were ordered by Gov. Tryon to invest him with that property.

1¾ pages.

Endorsed :—Narrative of Col. Howard's Application to Gov^{r} Tryon for a Grant of Land in New York. (In State of Col. Howard's Title to Lands on Connecticut River.)

[These three papers were probably enclosed by Governor Tryon to Lord Dartmouth in his letter of 5 January 1773.]

DESCRIPTION of the ILLINOIS.

N. D. [1772].—Its position—in the 40th degree of latitude, 500 leagues from New Orleans by water and 350 by land—its natural features, the people, the forts and the best way to deal with the Indians there.

2¾ pages.

*Endorsed :—*Description of The Illinois.

NATHANIEL JONES of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [? 1772].—Memorial. Being constituted by sign manual Chief Justice of the Jerseys in North America in June 1759, he relinquished his business. Objection and persecution shown towards him there and refusal of the Assembly to support him. By his long absence he has lost his business and having been at much expense is now in reduced circumstances.

Original. 2½ pages.

*Endorsed :—*To the Right Honourable the Earl of Dartmouth one of his Majesty's principal Secretary's of State.—The Memorial of Nath^{l} Jones Esq^{r} Barrister at Law.

Note.—For letters and papers relative to the opposition to Mr. Jones and the prior claim put forth by Robert Hunter Morris to the chief justiceship of the same province, see the New Jersey Archives, Vol. IX., Newark, N. J. 1885.

[WILLIAM KNOX TO LORD DARTMOUTH].

N. D. [? about 1772].—Note in the hand of William Knox to the effect that Mr Arnaut would not trust him with any part of the Report. That there is nothing in it worth his Lordship's perusal as it is merely an abridgement of the case lately laid before the Attorney and Solicitor General and of the State in 1768 and a narrative of what passed respecting the association for non-importation, the quartering the four Companies of the Artillery that put in to Boston and the proceedings respecting the Judges' Salaries.

1 quarto page.

FEES OF CIVIL OFFICERS.

N. D. [? about 1772].—Case of the Civil Officers claiming fees in the Colonies. "In the Colonies of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New York, Georgia, East and West Florida, The Fees to be taken by the Civil Officers are established by Ordinance or Order of the Governor and Council." In other colonies the fees are in general settled by Act of General Assembly. Questions as to the King's legal power to revoke, annul, or even alter many of these fees.

In the hand of William Knox. 7 pages.

Endorsed:—Dra^{t} of Case of the Civil Officers claiming Fees in the Colonies.

CLAIM OF THE SIEUR LOTBINIERE.

N. D. [1772].—A number of papers in French with reference to the claim of the Sieur Michel Chartier de Lotbiniere to lands on Lake Champlain—apparently memoranda for the Earl of Dartmouth.

These papers are:—

"Memorandum pour deux seigneuries a la tête du lac Champlain propriété du S^{r} Michel Chartier de Lotbiniere" &c.

"Prospectus sur mes deux seigneuries du lac Champlain et des sommes dépensées a leur occasion." Londres 23 Juin 1772.

"Ext: de la capitulation générale du Canada 8 Sep. 1760, concernant les propriétés et droits de tous ceux qui vivent dans l'Etendu du d^{t}. pais" with "Ext: du traité de paix" 10 Fev. 1763.

"Réfléxions sur la valeur de mes deux Seigneuries du lac Champlain" Londres 9 Dec. 1772.

Extract from his journal concerning a conversation held with Lord Hillsborough 24 March 1772.

Original. 13 quarto pages. [Somewhat similar papers are in the Public Record Office, Board of Trade, New York, Vol. 42.]

MISSISSIPPI SETTLEMENT.

N. D. [? 1772].—Reasons for Establishing the intended Government on the Mississippi at the White Cliffs near Point Coupé. Signed by Merchants, American Officers, and Intentional Settlers and addressed to Lord Dartmouth. Upwards of 4,000 persons from different parts of America and Europe are settled on lands between the Natchez and Lake Maurapa. Importance of forming a seat of Government on the Mississippi. Six reasons why the tract of land called the White Cliffs, now in Montfort Browne's possession is the best spot for such an establishment. Governor Browne has offered a large tract of land adjoining these cliffs for building purposes.

Original signed. 2 large pages.

Endorsed :—Reasons For Establishing the intended Government on the Mississippi at the White Cliffs near Point Coupê. Humbly offered to the Consideration of the Right Honourable The Earl of Dartmouth.

Copy of the foregoing.

1⅔ large pages.

N. D. [? 1772].—Further Reasons for the immediate Establishment of a Government on the Mississippi in the Province of West Florida, humbly submitted to the consideration of the Right Honourable the Earl of Dartmouth. Commercial advantages that will accrue to Britain and the West Indies from this establishment.

1 large page.

NATCHEZ.

N. D. [? 1772].—Thoughts on erecting a New Government at the Natchez. "The Memorial of Lord Eglinton, Colonels Taylor and Brown, Recommending the erecting a New Government at Natchez on the Mississippi certainly deserves the most serious consideration."

5 pages and a line and a half.

Endorsed :—C—28. Thoughts on erecting a New Gov^t at the Natchez on the Mississippi.

CLAIM OF MR. REMSON.

N. D. [? 1772].—Paper containing opinion on M^r Remson's claim of lands in New York. The writer submits that as M^r Remson and others disclaimed their title to lands illegally purchased from the Indians, the remaining part not yet granted away by the Crown might be allowed them in payment of the quit rent.

1½ pages.

Endorsed :—N° 9. M^r Remson's Claim of Lands in N. York.

CAPTAIN SINCLAIR, late of the 15th regiment, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [? about 1772].—Petition. That he served during the last war in North America. That he was employed for three years thereafter in exploring the lakes and rivers on that continent. That he erected a small post for the security of the vessels then under the management of the Crown, for which no adequate allowance has yet been made to him. An Indian deed and papers relative thereto are lodged in M^r Pownall's hands. Prays for a sufficient title to the lands granted in the Indian deed and to the barracks built thereon.

1⅛ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Memorial of Cap. Sinclair.

GOVERNOR WENTWORTH and PETER LIVIUS.

[Winter of 1772–3.]—Extract of the answer of Governor John Wentworth to the complaint exhibited against him by Peter Livius. [A copy of this complaint in the Public Record Office is dated 18 December 1772.] With this answer is placed the reply of Peter Livius, including evidence containing extracts from the Minutes of Council from 1768 to 1772, and depositions of George Wentworth, Samuel Livermore and Thomas Palmer, the last dated 10 March 1773.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, January 4. Bath.—Hopes to return to his duty in a week or ten days. Has received from M^{r} Pollock a copy of the last despatch from Carolina, upon which he will only say that he most zealously wishes that without prejudice to any other person, some occasion may soon present itself of removing Lord Charles to a better situation and thereby avoid to himself and to Government the unpleasant consequences of a dispute which whilst it is maintained on one side upon the ground of privilege and on the other side upon the ground of prerogative can never have an end. Observations as to the legality of General Haldimand exercising the powers of commander-in-chief in North America.

Autograph letter signed. 5 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Pownall. Bath, 4 Jan^{ry} 1773.

JOHN THORNTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 4. Clapham.—D^{r} Furneaux, the dissenting minister, called on him and showed him an advertisement which appeared in the Virginia Gazette signed by five ministers detained in prison for preaching outside their meeting houses. "He was somewhat earnest with me to lay the case before your Lordship, which I was the less fond of doing as I apprehended he wanted to recommend himself in order to solicit more powerfully for the Dissenters Bill to be brought in by Sir H. Hoghton."

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—J. Thornton Esq^{r} 4 Jan^{y} 1773.

THOMAS WOOLDRIDGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 4. New York.—Relates information he has gained respecting the apprehensions of the judicious of this country as to what may be the result of the execution of a commission to examine into the affair of the "Gaspée" schooner.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Woolridge concern^{g} American Troubles.

EDWARD ELMSALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 5. Thornhill.—The latter part of the letter refers to one John Sykes who is very desirous of going to America.

Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Elmsall, 5 Jan^{y} 1773.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 5. Fort George. New York.—Acknowledges the King's approbation of his endeavours to become acquainted with the state of the different parts of the Colony. With reference to the purchases and grants made at the Congress in July previous, states that in full confidence of the quiet enjoyment of these lands a number of subjects have expended nearly 5,000*l.* in surveys and purchases. Submits whether it would not be a real hardship if titles thus regularly obtained should suffer any impeachment. Concerning the Canadian claims, states the facts on which he grounded the opinion he had presumed to give—that the Dutch, the first settlers, claimed the whole of the Connecticut River and Lake Champlain and all the country South of the St. Lawrence down to the Delaware River—that a West line from the head of the Connecticut has always been deemed the ancient boundary of New York. Two instances in which it has been abridged. Considers the question of the extent of the French dominions as interfering with these bounds. Encroachments of the Canadians. Regrets the failure of his expedient to settle the New Hampshire claimants. With regard to Colonel Howard's grant, it was issued in obedience to His Majesty's mandamus, and it was not until afterwards he was informed that some settlers on this grant pretended a claim under Massachusetts Bay. Sends a copy of the case and of his correspondence with Governor Hutchinson on the subject.

Copy. 12¾ pages. [The original signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 183, fo. 79, and a duplicate in Board of Trade, New York, Vol. 43, fo. 5.]

Endorsed:—N^{o} 5. Copy of a Letter from Gov^{r} Tryon to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated New York, 5 Jan^{ry} 1773. Relative to the New York Claim of Lands near Lake Champlain, and to Col. Howard's Grant at Hinsdale.

JOSEPH CAWTHORNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 6. At M^{rs} Hix's, Vine Street, Piccadilly.—On the necessity of preventing the jail distemper being carried in infected ransports to America.

Autograph letter signed. 3 pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Cawthorne with Some Essays on the Jail Distemper.

DANIEL COXE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, January 6. Trenton, New Jersey.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ pages.

Endorsed:—N^{o} 3. M^{r} Daniel Coxe, Trenton, New Jersey, Jan^{ry} 6th 1773 (relative to a Claim of Land on the Mississippi, for which he requests a more adequate Compensation (but in any shape) than he has hitherto received).

Enclosure:—

BOARD OF TRADE to the KING.

1699, December 21. Whitehall.—Representation. A note on the back is as follows: "About this Period (1699) D^{r} Coxe sent two Ships on Discovery and Settlement, one of which entered > the River Mississippi, and went up as far as where New Orleans now stands, (being the first English Ship that ever did it), but were drove off by a Party of French, superior in numbers, and obliged to give over the Enterprize & further Attempts of Settlement, nor have the Family ever been able since to make any, for want of the Aid of the Crown to support them against the Possession of the French 'till the late Peace, when the present Heir of D^r^ Coxe made an application, tho' unsuccessfull, for a Regrant, or an adequate Recompence for his Surrender & Release."

Enclosure—cont.

1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Inclosed in M^r^ Coxe's Letter of 6^th^ Jan^ry^ 1773.

JOSEPH WARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 6. Boston, Massachusetts Bay, New England.—Satisfaction of the Americans at his Lordship's elevation.—A plan is being formed to render America entirely independent of Great Britain. They are appointing standing committees in the towns to keep up a correspondence with all the colonies. They have also a system of civil government drawn up, ready to publish, similar to that of the United Provinces of Holland. For the security of the seaports their idea is to offer free trade to all nations. Desires his Lordship to procure him a commission as Secretary of New Hampshire.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Jo. Ward, Boston N. E. Jan^y^ 6, 1773. B. 22.

SAMUEL CUTTS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 9. Portsmouth (Province of New Hampshire in New England).—General satisfaction of the Americans on his lordship's appointment as Secretary of State. Desires compensation for a loss of land in the island of Miquelon, sustained on the establishment of the peace with France. Hopes Joseph Ward may succeed in his application for a civil office in this province.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B—33. S. Cutts, Portsmouth N. Hamps. Jan^y^ 9, 1773.

SOUTH CAROLINA, CLERK of the ASSEMBLY, to MR. GARTH.

1773, January 12.—Uneasiness caused by the postponement of the passing of the Tax bill. Lord Charles [Montagu] sails for England in a month.

Extract. ¾ page.

Endorsed:—N^o^ 3. Extract of a Letter from S. Carolina to S. Garth Esq^r^ 12 Jan. 1773. [Qy. that the initial here is a mistake. Charles Garth was agent for So. Carolina.]

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 12.—Paper not signed, addressed to the "Earl of Dartmouth, Blackheath, Kent." Considers it great impolicy to nominate either Scotch or Irishmen for governors or other employment in America owing to the prejudice of the Americans against them.

English noblemen or gentlemen will be the most agreeably received. All secretaries &c. should be enjoined to reside in their respective provinces. Necessity for good roads, upon the making of which transported felons and deserting soldiers might be employed.

4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Anonymous 1772.

The Duke of Argyll to Lord Dartmouth.

1773, January 13. Argyll House.—Hearing that Lord Greville Montagu is not to continue in his government, asks that his brother, now Governor of Nova Scotia, may be transferred thither. His health has suffered from the climate and he was in danger of losing his eyesight from the effects of the continued snow. A copy of the answer, not dated, in Lord Dartmouth's own hand, is on the reverse.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages. Answer 1 page.

Endorsed :—A 41. Duke of Argyle 13th Janry 1773, desiring the Removal of his Brother Ld Wm Campbell to So. Carolina.

Mrs. Deborah Chetwynd to Lord Dartmouth.

1773, January 14. St. James's Palace.—In 1767 a grant of 30,000 acres of land in North America was made to her in the name of her agent Charles de Friedenberg. Desires a new mandamus may be now made out in her own name.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mrs Chetwynd. Grant of 30,000 Acres N. York.

Annexed :—

Board of Trade to the Lords Committee of the Privy Council.

1768, November 17. Whitehall.—Report. Propose that the King be recommended to instruct the Governor of New York to grant 30,000 acres of land to Charles de Friedenberg free from the payment of quit rents for the first ten years.

Copy. 2½ pages. [A Draft of this is in the Public Record Office, Board of Trade, New York, Vol. 63a, fo. 271.]

Charles Freidenberg to the Board of Trade.

1768, November 3. London.—Memorial. Desires the dispatch of the mandamus for 30,000 acres of land granted him on the west side of Lake Champlain at the river Savannah [Saranac].

1¼ pages. [The original of this is in the Public Record Office, Board of Trade, New York, Vol. 39, fo. 253.]

Charles de F[illegible]iedenburg (or Freidenburg) to the King.

Memorial. Desires a grant of 30,000 acres of land in New York.

¾ page. [A duplicate of this, annexed to an Order in Council of 24 August 1767, is in the Public Record Office, same volume as the preceding enclosure, fo. 39.]

WILLIAM STORY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 15. Ipswich, New England.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ pages.

Endorsed:—B—7. Mr Wm Story N. England Janry 15 1773 requesting an Appointmt in the Customs in Mass. Bay.

GRANVILLE SHARP to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 16. Old Jewry.—The last part of the letter refers to the enclosed minutes.
Autograph letter signed. With seal. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—C—3. Mr Sharpe, London, 16 Jan. 1773. On the Business of St. Vincents.

Enclosures:—

1772, Wednesday, April 1.—Extracts from the Minutes of the House of Burgesses of Virginia. Considering the address to be presented to the King with reference to the importation of slaves from Africa.
2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Extracts from the Minutes of the House of Burgesses in Virginia Wednesday April 1st 1772.

1772, November 14.—Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Antigua to his correspondent in London.

The BOSTON GAZETTE and COUNTRY JOURNAL.

1773, January 18.—N° 928.
4 printed pages.

Endorsed:—N° 8. Boston Gazette of Janry 13 (sic), 1773, containing Resolves of some Town-Meetings.

TEA.

1773, January 19. London.—Observations upon the consumption of tea in North America. Even the Indians drink it twice a day. Subjoined are two invoices of 6 chests of Bohea tea shipped by A. B. and Co. in the "James," George Simpson, Master, on account of Messrs D. and E. Merchants in New York, dated London 1 September 1770, the one showing on what conditions the American merchant is supplied with tea when he can remit money to his agent in London to buy at the Company's sales, the other, when he can only purchase from the merchants on credit, £41 on six chests being the difference.
4½ pages.

DOCTOR C. MORTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, January 21. Royal Society.—Acknowledging Lord Dartmouth's very obliging answer to the application for specimens in Natural History from his Majesty's dominions in America &c.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Dr Morton, Janry 21st 1773. Containing Thanks of the Royal Society.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, Thursday, January 21.—Paper not signed, addressed to Lord Dartmouth, Blackheath, calling attention to a letter in that day's Public Advertiser addressed to his Lordship. If the assertions are authentic, a more barefaced and shameful monopolization of employments in the hands of one family or relations never occurred before in any country. They are all men of mean birth and damaged character and must be objects of hatred and contempt to the Americans. Advises him to use all his influence to remove the numerous sinecures of which they justly complain.

2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Anon. Jan. 1773. Respecting Sinecures in America.

JOHN THORNTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 22. Clapham.—"My Lord, I duly received Dr Wheelocks Packet & it certainly will be best for the Trust to dispose of the remainder of the Fund as soon as they can do it consistently & I have no objection to allowing the Dr £500 for the Building of the School which I shall mention to Mr Keen & I see no necessity of a meeting for the purpose. By this opportunity I send your Lordsp Mr Occoms Letter of thanks & I inclose a Letter a Friend wrote me from the Grenadoes (my partner Mr Cornwall's Brother-in-Law) which I thought you might not dislike to peruse at your leisure. I am obliged to your Lordship for Mr Burnetts packet he wrote me Mr Crooke the Vicar of Huddersfield was given over & I have wrote to Mr Weddell in behalf of a young Oxonion if he drops but I fear I stand but little chance. Your Lordsp has probably heard that Lord Shelburn has engaged Dr Priestley of Leeds to come in March & be tutor to his sons & he has £300 a year settled on him for life. (My Hull partners Brother) Mr Thomas Rennard that I took the liberty of mentioning to your Lordship is at Philadelphia but his Family being in England I doubt not but he would remove anywhere for a maintenance. Mr John Fenton now writes his place turns out better than he expected tho not half so much as it was represented to be, that if anything could be annexed to it, or any small matter given to his son who is five & Twenty & purposing to go to him he might I should hope subsist, till it might be more convenient to remove him which I submit.

I am with great regard trusting your Lordsp will be an instrument of much good.

My Lord/Your Lordships much/devoted obed & hum Servt/John Thornton/Mr Fentons Son has a great impediment in his Speech that he is not fit for publick life."

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—A—37. John Thornton Esqr Clapham, 22d Jan. 1773, recommending Mr Fenton. V. Cor. p. 12.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 23. London.—Encloses a memorial he has prepared to lay before the Treasury, [qy. see the end of the previous year], and desires his Lordship's advice about presenting it. Complains of the injustice of his antagonist (Governor Grant). Recommends his cause to his Lordship's protection.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ De Brahm.

Enclosure :—

1769, February 15.—James Delaire. Survey of land belonging to Lord Grosvenor west of the Leach Shoal East Florida.

Original signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—Lord Grosvenors 12,000 acre behind the Leech Shoal. 24 F.

HANS STANLEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 23. Privy Garden.—Sends the enclosed extract of a letter from Captain Hamond which explains the memorial left in the hands of M^r^ Pownall.

Autograph, third person. ½ quarto page.

Endorsed :—H. Stanley Esq. 23^d^ Jan^y^ 1773 inclosing Memorial of Capt. Hammond for Land in Virginia.

Enclosures :—

CAPTAIN ANDREW SNAPE HAMOND to HANS STANLEY.

1772, December 6. "Arethusa" at New York.—Relates certain information concerning the settlement of the boundary line between Virginia and the Cherokees in order to elucidate a difficulty raised by Lord Hillsborough respecting his grant.

Extract. 1⅔ quarto pages.

CAPTAIN ANDREW SNAPE HAMOND to the KING.

1772, April. Williamsburg in Virginia.—Memorial. Desires a grant of 20,000 acres of land free of quit rent.

Original signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—N^o^ 28. Capt. Hammond's Memorial.

Again endorsed :—Captain Hammond's memorial for land in Virginia 1772.

AMERICAN REVENUE.

1773, January 25.—J. Williams. An account of the produce of the American Revenue and proposing Remedys for extending and securing the same. Upon the three articles of sugar, molasses, and wine alone, the duties, if put under a proper mode of management, would annually amount to £109,333 6*s.* 8*d.* This is almost all lost by the misconduct of the present members of the American Board who have impressed such an idea of their insolence, timidity and ignorance upon the whole continent of North America that the people there abhor having any transactions with them and all subordination and respect to the revenue under their management. Advises a removal of the present members of the board (who may be put on half-pay) and the appointment of a new one with a respectable, experienced commissioner from the mother board in England at the head of it, which would spread universal joy through the whole continent.

Signed. 1½ pages.

RELIEF OF REGIMENTS.

1768, January 29 / 1773, January 26. War Office.—Paper containing copies of letters from Lord Barrington of various dates to the different Secretaries of State—Lords Shelburne, Hillsborough, Rochford and Dartmouth. With reference to arrangements for the relief of the 15th and 60th Regiments serving in America.

7 pages.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL PATRICK TONYN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, January 26. New Norfolk Street.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B—2. Liet. Col. Tonyn 26 Jany 1773. Soliciting the Govt of East Florida.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 30. War Office.—In answer to his lordship's note of yesterday the opinion of the Attorney and Solicitor General has not yet been received. Sends a copy of the case which is before them.

Not autograph, third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—War Office 30th Jany 1773. Lord Visct Barrington R/ 31st.

Enclosures:—

Paper headed "Case" giving the opinion of the Attorney General, Sir Fletcher Norton, dated Lincoln's Inn 16 February 1765, showing that a foreign officer serving in America may be promoted to the rank of general officer. Following this are two queries as to whether Major-General Haldimand could be legally authorised to act as Major-General in America and execute the command of Lieutenant-General Gage during his absence. Also three printed Acts of an earlier date mentioned in the "Case."

Copy. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Case. In Lord Barrington's Note of 30*th Jany* 1773.

1764, September 8. St. James's.—Copy of Warrant to the Attorney or Solicitor General to prepare a Bill to pass the Great Seal, appointing Major-General Thomas Gage Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in North America.

Copy. 2¾ pages.

1764, November 16.—The King's Commission to Major-General Thomas Gage.

Copy. 2¼ pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of Commission for Major General Thomas Gage,—under the King's Sign Manual. 2. The powers contained in this commn appear to be confined personally to Genl Gage. Q. If the person upon whom the command devolves in Genl Gages Absence, must not have a commission with the like powers contained in this.

NEWSPAPER CUTTING.

[1773, January, about.]—Containing a letter signed "Raleigh" to the Earl of Dartmouth, giving an extract of a letter from Boston.
1 strip.

CABINET MINUTE.

1773, February 1, Monday.—In Lord Dartmouth's hand. With regard to the doubts which have occurred whether General Haldimand can take upon him the command of the King's troops in America, it is the decision of the lords present that a motion be made in the House of Commons for leave to bring in such a bill as shall remove all doubts as to the capacity of foreign officers who have served in America to accept such rank as the King may confer on them. Consideration of Massachusetts papers deferred.
$2\frac{1}{4}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Minute 1 Feb^{y} 1773.

ALDERMAN BARLOW TRECOTHICK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 1. London.—Desired to wait upon his lordship to introduce the bearer M^{r} Donough, private secretary to Governor Wentworth, sent home with a defence against the charge concerning the Governor. The general esteem Governor Wentworth has acquired is strongly in his favour.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—N^{o} 2. M^{r} Alderman Trecothick 1 Feb^{y} 1773.

MRS. CHETWYND to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 3, Wednesday. St. James's.
Autograph, third person. $\frac{1}{2}$ quarto page.

Endorsed:—B—12. Hon^{ble} M^{rs} Chetwynd Feb. 3, 1773, concerning some Lands in New York.

Enclosure:—

1772, November 10. New York.—Letter to M^{rs} Chetwynd. Concerning M^{r} Friedenberg's land. Before he arrived in New York a great part of the land mentioned in his order was covered by actual patentees. The location which he expected to have cannot now be procured.
Copy. $\frac{2}{3}$ quarto page.

LORD DARTMOUTH to the EARL OF DUNMORE.

1773, February 3. Whitehall.—N^{o} 1. Replies to his letters Nos. 1, 2, & 3. Encloses copy of declaration made to the Virginia Assembly by Lord Botetourt relative to the Governors of that Colony.
Copy. $3\frac{1}{2}$ pages. [A draft of this is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 211, fo. 27.]

Endorsed:—N^{o} 4. Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to the Earl of Dunmore, dated Whitehall, Feb^{ry} 3^{d} 1773. (N^{o} 1.)

LORD DARTMOUTH to GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON.

1773, February 3. Whitehall.—N° 6. Remarks on the conduct of the Inhabitants of Massachusetts as shown by articles in the newspapers. The late M^r de Berdt's case. Commissions for the trial of pirates.

Copy. 4¾ pages. [A draft of this is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 174, fo. 47.]

Endorsed :—N° 9. Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Gov^r Hutchinson, dated Whitehall, Feb^{ry} 3^d 1773. (N° 6.)

LORD DARTMOUTH to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1773, February 3. Whitehall.—Desirability of a decision on the claims of the proprietors of the Hardenburgh patent. Thinks the mode proposed for bringing on the discussion by a grant to Colonel Bradstreet of a part of the lands is not regular or proper. Colonel Bradstreet is to be acquainted with this, but assured that Lord Dartmouth will be happy on any other occasion to show him every attention due to his services. The state of the country West of the Connecticut River has been discussed by the Board of Trade and reported to the Privy Council and the Lord President promises to take it up the first day the Committee meets.

Copy. 1¾ pages.

Endorsed :—N° 6. Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Gov^r Tryon, dated Whitehall 3^d Feb. 1773. (N° 5.)

LORD DARTMOUTH to the LORDS OF THE ADMIRALTY.

1773, February 6. Whitehall.—To provide for the embarkation of some regiments about the 15th April.

Copy. 1½ pages.

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to the Lords of the Admiralty dated Whitehall 6th Febry 1773.

LORD DARTMOUTH to the EARL OF ROCHFORD.

1773, February 6. Whitehall.—To inform the Lord Lieut. of Ireland that the 47th Regiment is to go to America.

Copy. ¾ page.

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to the Earl of Rochford dated Whitehall 6th Febry 1773.

LORD DARTMOUTH to LORD VISCOUNT BARRINGTON.

1773, February 8. Whitehall.—To give directions for the various regiments required to replace those returning from America, to be in readiness.

Copy. 1 page.

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Lord Viscount Barrington dated Whitehall 8th Febry. 1773.

JONATHAN CARVER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 10.—Memorial. Recounts his services in America. For three years past has been without pay or employment. Desires relief and an appointment either civil or military.

Original signed. 1 page.

Endorsed:—The Memorial of Jonathan Carver Late a Captain in the Provincial Troops in North America.

ISAAC SPOONER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 10. Birmingham.—Fears that if Mr. Quincey's petition now before the House of Commons be granted it will be prejudicial to the country; if they manufacture the steel and send it over to England it will greatly injure the home trade, and if the use of tilt hammers is permitted it would prejudice that part of the home manufacture. "If they are permitted to make steel, and draw it with Tilt hammers, they will soon manufacture it, that being the next step, & though the beginning may be small, yet manufacturers will soon increase with them to the great prejudice of England, on which I am sure I need not enlarge to your Lordship, nor need I mention to you how greatly any progress in the Iron & Steel Manufacturies will tend to promote the favourite scheme of America; Independence on (sic) this Kingdom. Tilt hammers are of very general utility in allmost every Branch of the Iron & Steel manufacturys, being a more expeditious and cheaper method of preparing both for their different uses than any other, & I think should be absolutely prohibited in America, if we have any power to prevent their use there."

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—10 Feb. 1773. Is. Spooner Esq^{r} Against M^{r} Quincey's Petition for making Steel in N. England.

RELIEF of REGIMENTS.

1763, [should be 1773], February 11. Thursday.—Notes, in Lord Dartmouth's hand. "That L^{d} R[ochford] considers the letter from L^{d} D[artmouth] concerning the Reg^{t} that is to go from Ireland to America as irregular." Sir Stanier Porten in giving the message adds that he believes the King wishes all orders for this service to be given for the future by the Secretary of State for the Northern or Southern Department. Lord Dartmouth in reply refers to a precedent in 1768 by Lord Hillsborough and proposes to consult the King. His Majesty's decision that fresh regulations are to be issued.

3½ quarto pages.

CHIEF JUSTICE FREDERICK SMYTH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 8. New York.—Containing his remarks and observations in connection with the execution of the commission for inquiring into the circumstances of the burning of the "Gaspée" schooner.

Copy. 7½ pages. [The autograph signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 195, fo. 29, and a duplicate in Board of Trade, Proprieties, Vol. 23, fo. 291.]

Endorsed:—N^{o} 7. Copy of a Letter from Chief Justice Smyth to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated New York Feb^{ry} 8th 1773.

JACOB BLACKWELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 16. London.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Jacob Blackwell London, 16 Feb^ry^ 1773, (praying the Renewal of a Grant of Land in West Florida and that Gov^r^ Chester may receive Directions for that purpose).

LORD HYDE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 18.—Thinks it a public as well as a private duty to transmit the enclosed.

Autograph, third person. ½ quarto page.

Endorsed :—Lord Hyde, 18 Feb^ry^ 1773, inclosing Extract of a Letter from Philadelphia, relative to the Services &c. of Col. Tryon, now Gov^r^ of New York.

Enclosure :—

1772, November 15. Philadelphia. Extract of a letter from William Allen to David Barclay.

Extract. 3¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Extract of a Letter from M^r^ Allen of Philadelphia (dated Nov^r^ 15, 1772) to M^r^ David Barclay of London, respecting the Services of Col. Tryon, Gov^r^ of New York. R/ 18*^th^ Feb.* 1773.

NEWSPAPER CUTTING.

1773, February 18.—Cutting from the Public Advertiser N° 11,824, containing a further letter signed "Raleigh" addressed to Lord Dartmouth concerning the restrictions laid on American commerce.

1½ columns.

Endorsed :—Customs in America.

JOSEPH WARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 18. Boston, New England.—Has obtained a copy of the "system" mentioned in his letter of the 6th January. Desires his name may be concealed. For the better securing America to the British Crown submits a proposal that to His Majesty's titles there be added, the Dominions of North America, to keep alive in the minds of the Americans that the King of Great Britain is their King. Repeats his request for the secretary's office in New Hampshire or that of Lieutenant-Governor. Is assured that if he held an important office in Government he could contribute much to his Majesty's service.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Jos Ward. Boston 18 Feb^y^ 1773. In—B 22.

Enclosure :—

Extract from "A System of Government and Civil Policy for the United Provinces in North America with observations thereon."

6½ quarto pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, February 20. Queen's Square, Westminster.—Transmitting the enclosed paper, which is what he believed his Lordship ordered him to make out. "Altho a restored Servant allways recoveres the whole emoluments of his office accrued during his suspension, ... to prove my duty in forwarding peace and tranquility, I raise my demands not to the presidential right of restored Servants to the full but only half the emoluments accrued in the provincial office since my Suspension."

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure :—

Memorandum concerning emoluments due William Gerard de Brahm since his suspension from office.

Autograph. 1 page.

Endorsed :—de Brahms pretension of £573–18–7½ as provincial Surveyor of East Florida.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 20. Queen's Square, Westminster.—Encloses answer he has returned to Mr Bercher which he desires to be forwarded. Offers some advice in case the agreement with the Society takes place.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page.

Enclosures :—

DANIEL BERCHER to [WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM].

1773, February 20. Harley Street.—Thinks that if a grant of 6,000 acres be made, it would be accepted as there are many persons who would join and so make it prove beneficial to Lord [Dartmouth].

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page. In French.

DANIEL BERCHER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, February 20. No 44 Harley Street, Cavendish Square.—On the subject of the land which the Earl of Dartmouth is willing to grant to the Cape Florida Society. A counter proposal for 6,000 acres free of all vexatious dues subject solely to a perpetual rent of £300 to commence the 10th year.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages. In French.

LAND in EAST FLORIDA belonging to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[1773, February 20, about.]—Paper in Lord Dartmouth's hand containing two proposals concerning grants of land belonging to him [in East Florida] the first being for 3,000 acres, the second for 6,000 on different conditions.

1 quarto page.

LORD STAMFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 20. Sackville Street.
Autograph, third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—A—3 Earl of Stamford 20 Febry 1773, recommending Mr Nelson to be of the Council of Virginia.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 24. Queen's Square.—Conversation with Mr Bercher as to details of rent, fees, etc., with reference to the land to be granted by the Earl of Dartmouth in East Florida.
Autograph letter signed. With seal. 2 quarto pages.

The HONOURABLE MR. THYNNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[1773, February 24.]—At the request of Lord Granville has taken the liberty to trouble his Lordship by desiring Mr Todd to present Mr Finlay as a person Lord Granville has appointed to enquire into his concerns in North Carolina and prays a mandamus that he (Mr Finlay) be admitted to the Council there.
Not autograph, third person. ⅔ quarto page.

Endorsed:—Honble Mr Thynne (without Date, but recd 24th Feb. 1773) (requesting that Mr Finlay, Surveyor of the Posts in No America, may be admitted of the Council of No Carolina).

JONATHAN CARVER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 25.—Memorial. Necessity there is for the appointment of an Indian Superintendent for the country west of Lake Huron. From his knowledge of the Indians thinks he could act well in that capacity. He could also be employed as a surveyor and draughtsman. The Indians desire him to represent them to the King. Prays that his case may be taken into consideration.
Original signed. 1⅔ pages.

Endorsed:—No 2. The Memorial of Jonathan Carver Late a Captain in the Provincial Troops in North America 1773. L/.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 27.—"Inclosed is my original Letter with your Lordship's corrections."
Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page.

Enclosures:—

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to DANIEL BERCHER.

1773, February 27. Queen's Square, Westminster.—Contains the terms upon which Lord Dartmouth consents to grant 6,000 acres in the centre of his territory at Cape Florida. His Lordship reserves the fine of alienation, to be paid by the purchaser with 10 p. c. only. Agrees to the Society's proposal of the rent being £300, this, however, to be paid after the 5th year with £100, after the 8th with £200, after the 10th with £300, etc. He is to acquaint the gentlemen of the Society therewith.

Enclosures—cont.

Autograph letter signed. With corrections by Lord Dartmouth. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Autograph copy of the same, signed.

Mr. Reeve to Lord Dartmouth.

[1773, February.] Nº 12 Craven Street, Saturday morning.—Sending the enclosed papers.

Autograph, third person. ½ quarto page.

Enclosures :—

Charles Dudley to [Mr. Reeve].

1773, January 19.—Prophesies the failure of the inquiry into the burning of the " Gaspée " schooner. The offenders are not only safe from detection but ridicule the measures taken to punish them. Encloses cuttings. It will hardly be credited that so much information as to these measures appeared in print before the commission was opened. " Did Lord Dartmouth expect his secret letter to be given to the public in a newspaper ? " Is persuaded no person will be apprehended while the powers of government remain in the present hands or while a man of Gov. Wanton's " cast " sits at the Board of inquiry.

Extract. 3¾ pages.

Endorsed :—Nº 10. Rhode Island 19 Jany 1773. Mr Dudley Collector of the Customs there to Mr Reeve.

1773, January 19.—Newspaper cutting containing a letter signed " Americanus."

1 strip.

1773, January 19.—Newspaper cutting containing Remarks on the Resolution passed at the Rhode Island General Assembly 25 October 1769.

35 lines.

1772, September 4. Whitehall.—Newspaper cutting containing an Extract of Lord Dartmouth's letter to the Governor of Rhode Island [Joseph Wanton] communicating the King's directions to investigate the circumstances attending the outrage committed on the officers of the " Gaspee " and the burning of that ship.

1 strip. [Drafts of this letter are in the Public Record Office, America and West Indies, Vol. 201, fos. 279 and 373.]

Troops.

1773, February.—Arrangement proposed concerning the transportation of troops from Great Britain or Ireland to the colonies in Africa and America, and as to their return from the colonies.

3 pages.

Endorsed :—Nº 1. Arrangement respecting the transportation of Troops feby 1773.

THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

[1773, March 1, about.]—Daines Barrington. Suggestions for obtaining natural productions from the colonies.

Original. 3 pages. [This is enclosed in a letter, placed in the West Indian section of Lord Dartmouth's MSS., from the Committee of the Royal Society to Lord Dartmouth 1 March 1773.]

Endorsed:—Daines Barrington Esq^r^.

[BOARD OF TRADE.]

1773, March 2.—List of Business for the Committee.

Two papers. 3¼ pages and 2¾ pages respectively.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 6. London.—Absence of the Colonel (not named). Fees he fixed for himself upon undertaking the provincial office. Account of the unjust treatment he received from Governor Grant. Expense he has been at and money he has lost. Desires his lordship to procure him a vessel and tender that he may go to America for eight months to expedite the general surveys.

Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 2¾ pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 15.—Unjust treatment he experienced from Governor Grant in East Florida. Will give up all provincial fees and perquisites in favour of M^r^ Mulcaster provided he is paid all fees for lands surveyed from 1767, is allowed to draw annually the salary of £150, and is reimbursed the expenses he has incurred.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 2½ pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 15.—Map he has made shewing the situation of his lordship's territories of 40,000 acres in Cape Florida.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 page.

Endorsed:—Ex.

Enclosure:—

DANIEL BERCHER to WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM.

> 1773, March 13. N^o^ 44 Harley Street.—There is no difficulty in accepting the terms laid down by Lord Dartmouth in his letter of 27^th^ February, excepting that of payment beginning after the 5^th^ year. Asks that the first proposal of payment on the 10^th^ year be acceded to.
>
> Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages. In French.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 19.—Sends copy of his answer to M^r^ Bercher. Hopes his waiting on Lord Dartmouth for orders and the necessary assistance to carry on the King's service in the southern district of North America is approved of.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure :—

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to [DANIEL BERCHER].

[1773, March 19.]—Lord Dartmouth gives up the 6*th year, and has fixed the rent to begin for the* 7*th year at* £100, for the 8*th at* £150, for the 9*th at* £200 and the 10*th* £300. De Brahm thinks the Society ought to understand these are very advantageous terms.

Autograph copy. 1⅓ quarto pages.

JOSEPH WARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 20. Boston, New England.—A plan is in contemplation for all people who pay quit-rents to the King to sign an agreement never to pay any more and to unite in defending themselves against the King's officers. Observations and information on the disposition of the people and on the means which might restore harmony. Repeats his request for a commission in one of the New England colonies.

Autograph letter signed. 3 pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Jos. Ward. Boston 20 March 1773. R. 12 May. In B—22.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 22.—Mr Bercher has sent him the enclosed letter. By unjust reports of the province the members of the Swizer (or Cape Florida) Society are afraid to bind themselves to an obligation before the expiration of 10 years. Is willing to become security for 450*l*., the three years' rent, if allowed to return honourably to East Florida.

Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 2 quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

DANIEL BERCHER to WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM.

1773, March 22. Harley Street.—Difficulty concerning the rent to be paid the Earl of Dartmouth. Will see the principal members again.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page. In French.

DANIEL BERCHER to WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM.

1773, March 23. No 44 Harley Street.—Enclosing a Resolution.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page. In French.

Enclosure :—

1773, March 22.—East Florida Society. Resolution. They "give up the 7*th year gratis" and commence on the* 8*th year with* £50, the 9*th* £150, the 10*th* £300.

Original signed. 1 quarto page.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to [DANIEL BERCHER].

1773, March 25. London. — Acquainting him of the Earl of Dartmouth's acceptance of the terms laid down in the last resolution of the Society.

Autograph copy. 1 quarto page.

MINUTES.

1773, March 25.—In Lord Dartmouth's hand. On Mr Livius's complaints. (New Hampshire.)

6 quarto pages.

RICHARD JACKSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 26.—Relative to the Incorporation solicited by the Presbyterians of New Jersey. Asks pardon "for having forgot to read the New Jersey papers till last night." The charter, as corrected by Mr Ogden and the Attorney-General of New Jersey, may pass. It will amount to nothing more than that of a charitable institution.

Autograph, third person. 1½ quarto pages.

Note.—In his letter of May 11, 1772, Wm. Franklin, Governor of the Province, writes to Lord Hillsborough, the Secretary of State, that a Petition from the Presbyterian Clergy of New Jersey praying for a charter of incorporation to enable them to raise a fund for the support of their widows and children had been presented to him, that the Council and the Attorney-General were divided in their opinion as to the propriety of taking His Majesty's orders on the subject, and consequently he forwards copy of the petition, draft of the charter, reports of the Attorney-General &c., for His Majesty's consideration and for permission to pass the said Charter. In his letter of 27th February 1773 Governor Franklin reminds Lord Dartmouth that no answer of His Majesty's determination had been received, and that he would be glad to give a reply to the Petitioners.

The BISHOP OF LONDON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 27. London House.—Recommending Mr Chapman for a nomination to Pensacola.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—No 7, BP. of London March 27, 1773, recommending the Revd Mr Chapman.

HANS STANLEY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, March 28. Privy Garden.—With regard to Captain Hamond's memorial would be glad to know what hopes may be entertained of his success.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—1773 Hans Stanley Esqr.

Enclosure:—

CAPTAIN ANDREW SNAPE HAMOND to [HANS STANLEY.]

1773, January 25. "Arethusa" at Rhode Island.

Copy. 5¾ pages.

Endorsed:—No 11. Copy of a Letter from Capt. Hamond of the Arethusa, dated Rhode Island, Janry 25th 1773 relative to the Execution of the Commission of Inquiry into the Riot at Rhode Island.

Lord Barrington to [Lord Dartmouth].

1773, March 29. Cavendish Square.
Autograph letter signed. $2\frac{1}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A—7. L^{d} Barrington 29 March 1773, recommending L^{t} Col. Leland, for a Gov^{t}.

The Duke of Manchester to [Lord Dartmouth].

1773, March 30.—Concerning his brother Lord Charles Montagu, late Governor of S. Carolina.
Autograph letter signed. $1\frac{1}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A—8. Duke of Manchester March 30, 1773, in behalf of his Brother to succeed to Dominica.

Lord Edgecumbe.

1773, March.—Memorandum concerning Capt. Nicholas Cox, late of the 47th, who has been in the army 32 years.
Not signed. $\frac{2}{3}$ quarto page.

Endorsed:—A—6. Memorandum from Lord Edgecumbe—Recommending Cap^{t} Cox—March 1773. V. Cor. p. 14.

The Bishop of Ely to Lord Dartmouth.

1773, March. Monday morning. Hertford Street.
Autograph letter signed. $1\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A—5. Bishop of Ely, March 1773, recommending M^{r} Powell for some Law Office in the Colonies. V. Cor. p. 16.

Charles Smith to [Lord Dartmouth].

1773, March. London.—Is engaged in trade with America and once in two or three years takes a voyage thither to collect debts. He thus rides through the provinces of New England, New York, and Pennsylvania. Everywhere he observes a disposition which savours too much of rebellion. Advises Lord Dartmouth to read the American newspapers which can be got at the coffee-houses. These rebellious sentiments are especially prevalent in the back settlements particularly of Pennsylvania. Some 8 to 10,000 people were imported there from Ireland in one year. These settlements are composed of an uncultivated banditti on whom the lawless publications take great effect. Can the event be any other in a few years than to throw off their dependence? They are ripe for it. Suggests the need there is to cool and quiet the present tumults in New England and to choose the wisest men for governors of the different provinces.
Autograph letter signed. $3\frac{1}{3}$ pages.

Copy of the foregoing. $6\frac{1}{4}$ pages.

Lieutenant Thomas Webb to Lord Dartmouth.

[? 1773, March or April].—Memorial. Personal injuries sustained in military service in America having necessitated his retiring on a small civil appointment, begs to assure his lordship that he is the only officer in this condition not promoted. Refers to Sir Jeffery Amherst, General Webb, General Monckton and other officers for testimonials of his conduct and character, and desires some post or appointment in New York.

Not autograph. 1 large folio page.

Endorsed :—N° 4. The Memorial of Lieu^t^ Tho^s^ Webb.

THOMAS MACDONOUGH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, April 3. Charles Street, Westminster.—On the difference between the minutes of the New Hampshire Council sent in March 1768 concerning the conduct of the Vice-Admiralty Court in Newfoundland and those now transmitted. This is a matter separate from any of M^r^ Livius's charges.

Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—Ex.

LIEUTENANT JOHN CARTWRIGHT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, April 9. Marnham.

Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—C—11. Lieut^t^ Cartwright 9 April 1773, on securing a Supply of Oak Timber.

LORD DARTMOUTH to GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON.

1773, April 10. Whitehall.—It is vain to hope that the Council and House of Representatives will be induced to yield due obedience to the laws of Parliament. Recommends him to avoid any further discussion on the subject, and to prorogue or dissolve the General Court, should he consider it expedient.

Copy. 2½ pages. [Draft of this is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 174, fo. 215.]

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from Lord Dartmouth to Governor Hutchinson dated Whitehall, 10^th^ April 1773.

CALEB JO. GARBRAND to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, April 10.—When he first came from East Florida he applied himself to painting as a profession. Received a proposal from M^r^ Wooldridge to take his appointments in East Florida, where he went a second time. Submits to his lordship the difficulties he has met with in getting established.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—B—6. M^r^ Garbrand 10 April 1773.

LORD GUERNSEY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, April 10. Saturday morning.—Recommending M^r^ Franklyn to succeed the present Governor of New Hampshire.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—A—10. L^d^ Guernsey 10 April 1773, recommending M^r^ Francklyn.

The HONOURABLE THOMAS GREVILLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, April 13. Tuesday morning.—Hopes his brother's request will be complied with. He himself would have the greatest advantages to travel as a Lord of Trade throughout America and might fulfil any objects desired by Lord Dartmouth better than any more important person.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Hon: M^{r} Greville 13 April 1773.

NEWSPAPER CUTTING.

1773, April 15.—Cutting from the Public Advertiser containing another letter signed "Raleigh" addressed to the Earl of Dartmouth. Concerning a sermon lately preached by the Lord Bishop of St. Asaph. Remarks on the wisdom of Lord Dartmouth's policy touching the American colonies.

1½ columns.

The REVEREND DOCTOR ELEAZAR WHEELOCK to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, April 15. Hanover.—"Right Hon^{le} Sir. May it please your Lordship. I esteem it a Singular Favor of Heaven that I may apply to your Lordship, and especially in your late dignified Capacity, with Confidence that I shall find the Ear, & Heart of a Father, while I have no other or higher motive, than the Furtherance of that cause which I am confident lies nearest your Heart, and I assure you, my Lord, it is only your well known Character, your past Condesensions, the nature and importance of the case, together with the Consciousness of the Singleness, & uprightness of my Intensions that have inspired a Boldness in my present Application to you, and which are all I have to rely upon to excuse me without any other Apology for myself. In my Letter to Your Lordship of December 28, 1772, with an Address, of a number of my Pupils on Your Lordships Advancement to the American Administration, I also enclosed two Petitions to His Majesty for the royal Favor of two Patents of his ungranted Lands in this Country containing 25,000 Acres each free of Quit Rents, the one for the use and Benefit of this School, the other for the Encouragement of Missionaries, the Support of their Widows, Education of their Children &c., and prayed that the royal Mandamus for the same might be given to the Governor of New York, whom I then understood to have the right of Granting those Lands on the west Side of this (Connecticut) River, which Lands were, 'till of late, supposed to belong to this Province, and are situate nearer to this School than any other of his Majesty's ungranted Lands, on which I designed those Patents should be laid, as being most convenient for the Purpose designed, if the Favor Should be granted, but we have lately been advised by Reports from several quarters which have gaind such credit as to occasion much joy to the Inhabitants, that his Majesty has given Orders to the Governor of New York to ratify all the former grants of those Lands made by the late Governor of this Province, and of course has vacated all the Patents of the same Lands granted by the Governor of New York which has raised a hope in all who had not a Prospect of personal advantage by those new Patents that this step is an Omen that all those controverted Lands will revert to this Province. And this is that which has given me Occasion to give Your Lordship this Trouble, which is humbly to bespeak your Lordships Favor to alter those Petitions, if you shall see it needful, and it be not too late, that the royal Mandamus may be to the Governor of this Province, or to either of them as Your Lordship shall see to be proper. I would also beg leave humbly to suggest to Your Lordship, the present necessities of myself & Family on account of my having no visible means of support adequate to my necessary Expences. God has graciously provided for me and mine hitherto, and has not left me or them to Suffer, nor am I yet afraid to trust him to provide for me while I have a Heart to Serve him, and he has anything for me to do for him here, yet it appears to be duty to let my case be known to Friends of Ability, while I wait upon God to perform the desire of my heart. I yet live in the little Store House which I erected for the use of the School, and which is now used for that Purpose, on which account my Family is much straitned for Room, and I am not yet able to build for myself. I am sensible that Pensions have been much confind to a Party. Yet as his Majesty has been made, in some measure, sensible of the great utility of this undertaking, to his American Dominions, and has been graciously pleased, repeatedly to testify his royal Approbation, and especially as the Hearts of all are yet in the Hands of God, I have confidence there is some hope of Relief for me by a proper Application to him for it, which I wholly submitt to your Lordship's wisdom. God is graciously pleased to continue his Loving-kindness to this School and the Prospects are yet, I think, greatly increasing, some account of which I have given the Honourable Trust, which I suppose your Lordship will See. And that God may graciously guide you by his Counsel in your high, and important Sphere of Action, and make you eminently & very extensively useful to inlarge & build up the Kingdom of his dear Son, is the earnest Prayer of him who begs leave with Sincerest Duty, Affection and Esteem to Subscribe himself Your Lordship's Most Obedient and Most Humble Servant Eleazar Wheelock."

Autograph letter signed. 2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—1773. D^{r} Wheelock.

GOVERNOR LORD CHARLES GREVILLE MONTAGU to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, April 20. Bath.—Giving reasons for his sudden departure from his Government [of South Carolina]. A draft of Lord Dartmouth's answer, not dated, accompanies this letter, expressing concern at finding how much his Lordship's health and that of his family had suffered from the climate of Carolina. Had been uneasy because of the King's displeasure. However, doubts not that the Duke of Manchester's explanation of his intentions will satisfy the King.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages. Answer 3½ pages.

Endorsed:—N^{o} 5. L^{d} Cha. Montagu 20 April 1773, giving Reasons for his sudden Departure from his Governm^{t}.

MINUTE of the COUNCIL of NEW YORK.

1773, April 21. Fort George, New York.—Concerning petition of the inhabitants of Spencer Town against their land being included within the line of Col. Renselaer's grant incorrectly laid down on the map.

Certified Copy. 1¾ pages.

Endorsed:—Minnets of Counsell on the Deseption Line 1^{t} Coppy.

JONAS BROWN to NATHANIEL CHOLMLEY.

1773, April 23.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Jonas Brown to Nathl Cholmley Esqr. April 23d 1773, requesting his Interest in procuring an Office for his Son in Georgia or South Carolina. V. his Son's Letter inclosed. In A—12.

Enclosure:—

THOMAS BROWN to NATHANIEL CHOLMLEY.

1773, April 23, Friday. Rose and Crown Inn, St. John Street.—Requesting his interest in procuring some office in one of these Provinces.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, April 30.—Transmits a copy of the instructions drawn up for the Cape Florida Society. Desires the grant may be communicated to the principals whenever it is ready. Visit from Mr Bercher.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

NEWSPAPER CUTTING.

N. D. [1773, April].—Containing a Letter from "A Friend to the Community" addressed to Governor Hutchinson. Reflections upon the dispute between Great Britain and her colonies.

1⅓ columns.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, May 4. Queens Square, Westminster.—On subject of enclosure.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to the CAPE FLORIDA SOCIETY.

Information and proposals which will be of use to them in making their intended settlement at Cape Florida.

Autograph. 12 pages.

WILLIAM KELLY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, May 5. Crescent.—Gives his opinion and observations upon the advisability of the introduction of corn from America.

Autograph letter signed. 8 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—C—2. Mr Kelly May 5th 1773. Thoughts on American Affairs.

BOARD OF TRADE to the KING.

1773, May 6. Whitehall.—Representation. With Names of the Persons to be inserted in the grant of lands on the Ohio.

Copy. 29¼ pages. [A draft of this is in the Public Record Office, Board of Trade, Virginia, Vol. 45A, fo. 575.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a representation of the Board of Trade to the King on the application of Mess^rs^ Walpole &c. for a grant of Lands on the Ohio &c. dated May 6, 1773.

SIR JOHN DALRYMPLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, May 6. Vine Street, Piccadilly.—Encloses a catalogue of plants which might be carried to the new North American or West Indian settlements for cultivation and for purposes of trade. Remarks on the usefulness of the plan.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^r^ J. Dalrymple May 1773. On Botany.

The ROYAL SOCIETY (by Daines Barrington, Marmaduke Tunstall and W^m^ Hudson) to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, May 6. Crane Court.—Requesting for M^r^ Livius, F.R.S., on behalf of whom they applied to his Lordship for a recommendation to the Governor of New England, a further recommendation to the Governor of New Hampshire.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Royal Society May 6, 1773.

The EARL OF SANDWICH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, May 6.—Edmund Thomas of the "Squirrell" shall be appointed to the first fifth rate that becomes vacant.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—E. of Sandwich for Ed^d^ Thomas.

JOSEPH WARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, May 8. Massachusetts Bay, New England.—A correspondence is now established between the towns and provinces by private committees, which is to be further strengthened by committees chosen by the Houses of Representatives in all the colonies. Affairs are altering visibly and the people are almost universally determined to support an independent government unless Great Britain will confirm their liberties. Will think himself happy if his information is of any use.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Jos. Ward New Eng. 1773.

BOARD OF TRADE to the KING.

1773, May 10. Whitehall.—Report. New Hampshire dispute.
Copy. $9\frac{1}{2}$ pages. [Duplicate of this is in the Public Record Office, Board of Trade, New Hampshire, Vol. 10, fo. 26.]

Endorsed:—No. 6. Copy of the report of the Lords of Trade on the complaint exhibited by Peter Livius Esq^r against Governor Wentworth, dated May 10, 1773.

WILLIAM BOLLAN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, May 14. Southampton Street, Covent Garden.—Since his late attendance has received the enclosed letter, which, with papers transmitted, informs him of all proceedings relative to the important dispute between the Governor and the two Houses, in the late session of the General Court ending 6 March.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^r Bollan May 14, 1773.

Enclosures:—

1773, March 12. Boston.—M^r Erving and others, Members of the Council of Massachusetts to William Bollan. The Governor has not concurred in their resolution. They do not know how he can be compensated without obtaining a relaxation of the instruction to the Governor on this head.
Extract. $1\frac{1}{8}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a letter from sev^l members of council to M^r Bollan. March 12^th 1773.

[About 1773, March 12.]—Several Members of the Council of Massachusetts to [William Bollan]. "The warrant for paying the regal stipends to the judges of our Superior Court being not yet arrived and perhaps not yet issued, we desire you will use your best endeavours to prevent this pernicious measure being carried into execution."
Extract. $1\frac{1}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a letter from sev^l members of Massachusetts council.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, May 14.—As he sincerely wishes well to his Lordship's undertaking at Cape Florida he finds this employment both a duty and an agreeable entertainment and will do his utmost to assist the settlers.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH, Member of the Royal Society.

1773, May 25.—On his philosophical and religious researches Requests his Lord ship's continued favour.
Autograph letter signed. $3\frac{1}{2}$ pages.

Enclosure:—

Diagram of a new invented copper Athanor dedicated to the Earl of Dartmouth by William Gerard de Brahm.

The Earl of Dunmore to Lord Dartmouth.

1773, May 25. Williamsburg.—In favour of M^r^ Foy his private secretary to whom he refers his Lordship for information on the subject of the clerks of the County Court, fees of commissions, and M^r^ Colden's affair.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—A—13. Private L^d^ Dunmore 13 (sic) May 1773, rec. M^r^ Foy.

John Williams to Lord Dartmouth.

1773, May 25, Tuesday.—Result of his considerations on appointing a new set of commissioners of the Public Revenue.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B—4. M^r^ Williamss, 25 May 1773. On the Commissioners of Customs, No. America.

B. Roberts to Lord Dartmouth.

1773, May 27. Kings Bench.—His necessitous situation. Recounts his services among the Indians in America since 1759. Difficulties to which he has been subjected with regard to his salary. Is assured that if the King knew of his sufferings he would not permit the friend of Sir William Johnson so long to languish in confinement.

Autograph letter signed. 8 pages.

George Clement to Lord Dartmouth.

1773, May 29. At the Bunn House, Field Gate, Whitechapel.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B—16. M^r^ Clement May 1773. Representing his great Distress, and desiring some Employment.

Major Henry Basset, 10th Regt, to Lord Scarsdale.

1773, June 1. Detroit.—Death of M^rs^ Basset. Entreats his Lordship's assistance in favour of his children. Has taken three Indians who have killed some traders.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ pages.

Endorsed:—to L^d^ Scarsdale.

Sir Charles Thompson to Lord Dartmouth.

1773, June 1. Old Bond Street.—Recommending Captain Sinclair for an appointment in Pennsylvania, the Jerseys, New York or the New England provinces.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A—15. Sir Charles Thompson Old Bond Street, June 1^st^ 1773, recommending Capt. Sinclair. V. Cor. p. 16. Ent.

[Lord Dartmouth] to Governor Thomas Hutchinson.

[1773, about June 2.]—Transmits copy of his letter to D^r^ Franklin [of 2 June 1773], in consequence of D^r^ Franklin having presented to him the Remonstrance and Petition of the late House of Representatives of 14 July 1772 to the King and their Petition of 6 March last. Instructions how to proceed with the present House of Representatives. Whenever they think fit to establish permanently competent salaries for the Judges, His Majesty will withdraw the allowances at present made and will grant their commissions during good behaviour. He will also permit his Governor to receive his salary from the province provided that it be not less than 2,000 per annum.

Draft in Pownall's hand. 3⅓ pages.

Endorsed:—Dft to Govr Hutchinson.

INSTRUCTIONS to AMERICAN GOVERNORS.

Submitted to the King by the Board of Trade [3 June 1773].—Draft of Additional Instructions to the Governors of His Majesty's Colonies and Plantations in America.

13¼ pages.

Endorsed:—Drat of Instructions for disposal of Lands in America.

COLONEL HOWARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 3, Thursday morning.—Note. Sending the enclosed.

Autograph, third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—No 6. Col. Howard, concerng Gen. Bradstreet 3d June, 1773.

Enclosure:—

> Memorandum concerning Major General Bradstreet's case. That he had laid out seven thousand pounds, etc.
>
> Autograph. 1¾ pages.
>
> Endorsed:—M. Genl Bradstreet's Case, in a Note from Col. Howard.

Mr WILLIAMOS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 4, Friday morning. St. James's Place.—Submits the advisability of establishing an office of Inspector General of the sales and grants of land, of the Receiver General's accounts and of the Surveyor General's offices in North America, which office he would endeavour to discharge with satisfaction.

Autograph, third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Mr Williamos, 4 June 1773. In B—4.

SAMUEL KIRKLAND to [. . . . possibly DR. WHEELOCK.]

1773, June 7. Onvide.—"I bless God for friendship, & the hope of its being perfected in the world above." Apologises for not writing. Has been collecting materials during the winter and spring for building a church and too much engaged in promoting the temporal accommodation of his people. His proposed narrative of the five Nations he has thrown by for the present. He has attended considerably to translating the Scriptures, which he ought to have pursued and neglected less weighty matters. "Last Monday, we erected our Church 35 Feet in Length, 18 feet post—a Gallary at one End. The Indians with my Assistance got most of the Timber. I hired a Carpenter and two hewers several weeks—the house was raised by the Indians without the help of white people. Several small Towns of Indians assembled in the Morning to implore the Divine Blessing. . . . . The whole was conducted with Decency beyond my most sanguine Expectations—not one either Man or Woman was the least disguised with strong Liquor, nor asked for any more than was given them. Upon a petition from the people Sir Wm. Johnson has given a Bell. I hope if Things go on well to erect a Steeple & finish a House by next Summer." The people improve much in husbandry and are inspired with an ambition for comfortable dwelling houses. "Two are already set up 35 by 18 feet seven or eight more are upon the Work. I have furnished them with a number of Carpenters tools for which I expect some allowance from the Boston Board." Council held by the Indians at Onondago. Their disposition for war seems to abate and their affairs are well settled for this season.

Autograph letter signed. 3⅔ pages.

Note.—Samuel Kirkland, though not of Indian blood, had been one of the scholars in Dr. Wheelock's Indian Charity School. He was ordained in 1766, and spent his life amongst the Indians. See his Life by Rev. S. K. Lothrop, Sparks' Biographies.

The DUKE OF MANCHESTER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 8. Huntingdon.—On behalf of his brother the late Governor of South Carolina. Recounts the expenses incurred by him in consequence of his appointment to that government.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—No. 10. D. of Manchester June 1773.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, June 8. New York.—On the subject of the enclosures, which concern the mandamus granted to Charles De Friedenberg.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—New York June 8th 1773. Governor Tryon. R/ 9th June.

Enclosure :—

SURVEYOR-GENERAL ALEXANDER COLDEN to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1773, May 5. New York.—Returns enclosures.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—In Gov^r Tryon's of 8*th June* 1773.

Enclosures :—

1769, May 24. Fort George, New York.—Minutes of Council.

Copy, certified by Goldsbrow Banyar 5 May 1773. 3 pages.

Endorsed :—New York 5*th May* 1773. State of the Proceedings on his Majesty's Order of the 11*th January* 1769 to grant 30,000 *Acres of Land to Charles De Freudenbergh Esq*r . *In Gov*r Tryon's of 8*th June* 1773.

Enclosures—cont.

1773, May 5. Surveyor-General's Office, Province of New York.—Report of Surveyor-General Alexander Colden to Governor William Tryon.

Autograph. 1 page.

Endorsed :—New York May 5*th* 1773 *Alexander Colden Surveyor Genl. Report of his proceedings on a Warr*t *of Survey Issued by his Late Excellency Sir Henry Moore to Survey and Lay out for Charles de Fredenberg Esq*r the quantity of 30,000 *Acres of Land on the West Side of Lake Champlain. In Gov*r Tryon's of 8*th June* 1773.

B. ROBERTS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 9.—Gives account of the means by which he gained his influence amongst the Indians and other interesting information respecting them.

Autograph letter signed. 7¾ pages.

Endorsed :—In C—17.

TESTIMONIAL to JOSEPH WARD.

1773, June 10. Portsmouth, New Hampshire.—Samuel Langdon, D.D. Certificate of the character and loyalty of Joseph Ward.

Autograph. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed (on a wrapper covering also Dr Haven's certificate of the 13th) :—Testimonials of Dr Sl Langdon and Dr Sl Haven, in behalf of Mr Jo. Ward. In B—22.

CHARLES GARTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, June 12. Devizes.—Concerning the distressed situation of the Government and affairs in South Carolina in consequence of a tax bill being rejected by the Council.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—N° 4. Ch. Garth Esqr 12 June 1773.

ADAM WOOD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, June 12. Great Titchfield Street.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—B—10. Ad. Wood Esqr June 1773. Soliciting an Appointment in the New Govt upon the Ohio.

TESTIMONIAL to JOSEPH WARD.

1773, June 13. Portsmouth, Province of New Hampshire.—Samuel Haven D.D. Certificate testifying to the character of Joseph Ward from personal acquaintance.

Autograph. 1 quarto page.

(For endorsement see Doctor Langdon's certificate of 10 June.)

The REVEREND WILLIAM GORDON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 16. Jamaica Plain.—Present sentiments of the Americans concerning his Lordship. Congratulates him on having escaped the difficulties that must have followed had a discovery been made by the court of inquiry at Rhode Island of any concerned in the business of the "Gaspee," and had any attempt been made to take the accused to Great Britain for trial. Such an event would have "set the continent into a fresh flame," especially since the Act of Parliament making it death to destroy any of the King's ships, stores, etc. and authorising the trial in Great Britain. "The affair of the Judges, the court of inquiry, and the act, have led the house of burgesses in Virginia to set on foot committees of correspondence through the several colonies. . . . All open attempts from home to put a stop to them will only convince the country of their importance . . . & hasten a kind of congress." Admiral Montagu has said "that British Acts of Parliament will never go down in America, unless forced by the point of the sword." His own opinion that Government should take things back as far as possible to the state they were in at his Majesty's accession. The Lieutenant-Governor by broaching afresh and supporting through the former assembly the anti-American doctrine of the parliament's right in all cases has given disgust to the public, not lessened by the fact that the Massachusetts House of Assembly have possessed themselves of original private letters written by his Excellency and others years ago to Mr Weattly [Whately], which they have voted "had a tendency to overthrow the constitution of the country and to introduce arbitrary power" so that neither the house nor the body of the people will have any "confidence in or value for the writers." If a change in the government should be made suggests Wm. Pepperrell. The Bishop of St. Asaph's sermon is highly approved. Should there be a war with France fear may be entertained for Canada. P.S.—The committee considering these letters has resolved to petition His Majesty for the removal of the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor.

Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 1 page.

Endorsed:—Rev. Mr Gordon June 1773.

Duplicate of the foregoing. Autograph signed letter.

THOMAS DANFORTH, JR., to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, June 17. New England Coffee House.

Autograph letter signed 1 page.

Endorsed:—B—5 Mr Tho. Danforth Junr of Boston, June 17, 1773. Inclosing a Memorial, and praying for some Office in the Mass. Bay.

Again endorsed:—Mr Danforth Junr of Boston, 1773.

Enclosure:—

Memorial and Petition to Lord Dartmouth.

Original signed. 2⅔ pages.

Endorsed:—Memorial of Mr Thos Danforth of Boston, requesting some office in the Mass. Bay. In B—5.

LORD HYDE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 18.—Sending the "enclosed voluminous packet."
Autograph, third person. ½ quarto page.

Enclosure:—

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD HYDE.

1773, April 30. New York.—Respecting the enclosures. Asks for some solid reward for his services.
Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Enclosures:—

Journal of Governor William Tryon's Expedition against the Insurgents in the Western Frontiers of North Carolina, begun 20 April and continued to 21 June 1771.

Signed. In stiff cover. 51½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—N° 1. *Gov*r Tryon's Journal of his Expedition against the Insurgents of North Carolina, in 1771, R/from Lord Hyde, June 18*th* 1773.

1771, May 1 to June 20.—Orderly Book of Governor William Tryon's Expedition against the Insurgents of North Carolina. With Return of the Army whilst encamped at Hermon Husbands on Sandy Creek 22 May 1771.

In red morocco cover. 95 octavo pages and 1 sheet. [Duplicate of this is in the Public Record Office, Series America and West Indies, Vol. 218, fo. 379, having been sent by Governor Tryon to Lord Hillsborough 2 August 1771 in despatch N° 78. The Return of the army, sent in the following despatch N° 79, 14 December 1771, is in Vol. 219, fo. 10.]

Endorsed (on a wrapper):—N° 2. *Military Orders given by Gov*r Tryon in his Expedition against the Insurgents of N° Carolina, in 1771.

Governor William Tryon. A state of the salary and whole Emoluments of the Government of New York (exclusive of his Fees on Patents for Grants of Land) from the 5*th* day of April 1772 to the 5*th* of April 1773. The total amount is 2,401*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.*

Signed. 1 folio page.

Plan of the Camp and Battle of Alamance the 16 May 1771. Between the Provincials of North Carolina Commanded by His Excellency Governor Tryon, and Rebels who styled themselves Regulators. Surveyed and drawn by C. J Sauthier.

1 sheet.

LORD D[ARTMOUTH] to THOMAS CUSHING.

1773, June 19. St. James's Square.—Private and Confidential. Has laid the petitions from Massachusetts before the King and has signified to Dr Franklin the commands received from his Majesty thereupon. Desires he will thank the Assembly for their favourable sentiments expressed about himself. Is concerned at the unhappy spirit which has lately prevailed in Massachusetts Bay. Gives his opinion on acts lately passed; also upon the wild and extravagant doctrines contained in the answer of the Massachusetts Assembly to the speech of the Governor at the opening of the late session of the General Court.

Draft. Part in Lord Dartmouth's hand. 8 pages. [See B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Endorsed:—Ex.

A fair draft of the foregoing.

Endorsed:—No 10. Drat to Thomas Cushing Esq. St. James's Square, June 19th 1773. Private and Confidential.

The REVEREND DOCTOR G. BERKELEY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, June 20. Canterbury.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev. Dr Berkeley June 20th 1773, in behalf of the Rev. Mr Symonds.

B. ROBERTS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 21, Monday.—Sends some Indian trinkets of which he begs his Lordship's acceptance.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

JOSEPH WARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 26. Boston, Massachusetts Bay.—The system for a commonwealth in America seems by every appearance to be ripening fast. Suggests means by which the various and distinct parts of this great empire can be held together under present circumstances.

Autograph letter signed. 3 pages.

Endorsed:—Boston 26th June 1773. Mr Ward. R/ 14 August. In B—22.

CHARLES WRIGHT to SIR P. MUSGRAVE.

1773, June 28. Admiralty Office.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B—8. Mr Wright to Sr P. Musgrave 28th June 1773. Soliciting an Appointment in the Admty. Office.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 29. Queen's Square, Westminster.—Gives the answer he returned to the enclosed letter from M^r^ Bercher concerning land granted to the Cape Florida Society. Remarks in connection therewith. Advises them not to ask for more land.
Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

Enclosure:—

DANIEL BERCHER to WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM.

1773, June 28. Harley Street, Cavendish Square.—Account of a meeting of the Directors of the Cape Florida Society. They think that 20 heads of families are not sufficient to make a settlement and that 25 or 30 would be better; this necessitates more land. Would be glad if his Lordship would add another 2,000 acres to the 6,000 already granted.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ pages. In French.

The EARL OF ROCHFORD to [LORD DARTMOUTH.]

1773, June 29. Berkley Square.—If he is not "particularly engaged with regard to the government of the Ohio," desires to recommend Mr. Stanton.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

The BOARD OF TRADE to the LORDS COMMITTEE of COUNCIL for PLANTATION AFFAIRS.

1773, July 1. Whitehall.—Report. On consideration of the petition of Maj. Gen. Bradstreet for confirmation of a tract of 300,000 acres purchased by him from the Indians, it is found the proceeding of the purchase of such a large tract by a private person cannot be reconciled with the spirit and intent of the King's Instructions; at the same time the services and character of the petitioner recommend him to the bounty and munificence of His Majesty.
Draft. 7½ pages. .

Endorsed:—New York. Report to the Lords of the Committee of Council for Plantation Affairs on the petition of Major General John Bradstreet. July 1, 1773. Ent^d^.

The MASSACHUSETTS GAZETTE and BOSTON WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

1773, July 1, Thursday.—No. 3,639. Part only, containing, amongst other items, an article signed "Philalethes," a message from the Council to the Governor 24th June, Report of the Committee 25 June upon the letters of Governor Hutchinson and Lieutenant Governor Oliver, and Resolutions.
2 printed pages.

THOMAS IRVING to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 2. Hay Market.—Concerning the enclosed letter.
Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ pages.

Endorsed:—Irving, Inspector Gen. of Imports.

Enclosure :—

THOMAS IRVING to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 2. London.—Account of his services in Boston as Inspector General of Imports. Was obliged to leave that place in consequence of the resentment of an enraged and disappointed faction. Has made various applications for redress but hitherto without success. Reasons for desiring an exchange with Sir Charles Burdet of Florida.
Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

J. H. LIVINGSTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 2. New York.—On behalf of the Dutch Church of New York.
Original signed. 2 pages. [See B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Endorsed :—N° 8. Dutch Church of N. York. Letter of Thanks & Congratulation July 2d 1773.

DUTCH CHURCH of NEW YORK to the KING.

1773, July 2.—Address signed by J. H. Livingston p : t : præses.
Original. 2 pages. [See B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Endorsed :—To the Kings most Excellent Majesty. An address of Thanks from the Minister Elders and Deacons of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of the City of New York, for the Royal Remission of the Quit Rent for the Township of Leyden in the County of Gloucester & Province of New York.

LIEUTENANT THOMAS WEBB to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 2. Burlington.—Has searched in the Secretary's office at Burlington and found a grant on record to Henry Salter for 10,000 acres in Fenwick colony. Mrs. Hayne has to prove her father heir to the said Henry Salter and the estate is without doubt hers. Reminds his Lordship of his memorial and hopes he will not be forgotten if any vacancy happens in Boston, New York, the Jerseys or Pennsylvania.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—N° 4. Mr Webb Burlington N. Jersey 2d July, 1773. On Mrs Haynes's Claim of Lands.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 5. Queens Square, Westminster.—Anxiety of the Cape Florida Society to have matters brought to an issue. They desire to take labourers with them but can secure them only by giving them a share of land. Necessity for their obtaining their last request from his Lordship.
Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—1773. Mr De Brahm.

Enclosures :—

Map of Cape Florida drawn by William Gerard de Brahm showing the situation of the Earl of Dartmouth's land.
Original. 1 sheet.

1773, June 30. London.—Letter from, apparently, the Cape Florida Society to William Gerard de Brahm. Concerning the difficulties connected with their obtaining the further grant of 2,000 acres.
Original not signed. 1 quarto page. French. With seal.

Proposal and Plan " Pour formé une colonie sociale de bon et habiles Agriculteurs sur les Dommaines d'Amerique de Mylord Dartmouth, situé au Cap Florida sur le Golphe Sandwich."
Original not signed.

The MASSACHUSETTS GAZETTE and BOSTON WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

1773, July 8. Thursday.—N° 3640. Part only. Containing, amongst other items, titles of various Acts passed in the last session of the General Court and an article signed " Philalethes."
2 printed pages.

The EARL OF DUNMORE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 10. Williamsburg.—Account of what he has done in behalf of Mr Prior.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—E. of Dunmore July 10, 1773.

B. ROBERTS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 10.—Requesting to be appointed Commissary, Superintendent &c. among the Indians.
Autograph letter signed. 7 quarto pages.

CAPTAIN SAMUEL HOOD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 11. Catherington by Petersfield.—The successor to his command of the squadron in North America has been paid 1,500*l.* for his expenses at Boston. Thinks he will appear equally entitled to Royal favour. Refers to a memorial presented by him to the King. Craves his support with reference to the enclosed.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—N° 38. Captn Hood. July 11th 1773, with a Memorial to the King.

Enclosure :—

Memorial to the King, beginning, " That your Memorialist has been in your Majestys Sea Service, Thirty three years."
Autograph copy. 3 pages.

Endorsed :—Memorial of Capt. Hood to the King, praying to succeed as Colonel in the Marines.

The MASSACHUSETTS GAZETTE and BOSTON WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

1773, July 15. Thursday.—Nº 3641. Part only. Containing, amongst other items, a further Article signed "Philalethes."
2 printed pages.

CAPTAIN GAVIN COCHRANE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, July 19. Edinburgh.
Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B—9 Capt. Cochran July 19, 1773. Applying for Lands at Crown Point.

LORD DARTMOUTH to LORD ROBERT SPENCER.

1773, July 22.—Will make immediate inquiry into the state of the Council of South Carolina, and order Mr Bull's name to be put down to be recommended.
Autograph draft. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Nº 13. Dft to Ld Robt Spencer 22d July 1773.

The MASSACHUSETTS GAZETTE and BOSTON WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

1773, July 22. Thursday.—Nº 3642. Containing, amongst other items, another Article signed "Philalethes."
2 printed pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 23. Queens Square, Westminster.—The injustice to which he has been subjected with reference to his appointment in East Florida.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Ex.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, July 23. Queens Square, Westminster.—Is informed that the (Cape Florida) Society is only stopped for power to make out sufficient lots to give as encouragements to their servants. Acquaints him of this in order that his Lordship's pleasure may be known as soon as convenient.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

The DUKE OF ARGYLL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, July 24. Inverary.—Desiring leave for Lord William Campbell to come to England before taking possession of the Government of South Carolina.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Nº 12. D. of Argyle 24 July 1773. Desiring Leave for Ld Wm Campbell to come to England.

The HONOURABLE DAINES BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 26.—Sending the enclosed.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—The Hon^{ble} Daines Barrington 26 July 1773. Relative to American Plants, &c.

Enclosure :—

PRINCE MASSERANO (Spanish Ambassador to England) to MR. C. MORTON.

1773, April 30. Aranjuez.—Desires he will express his thanks to the Royal Society. Has procured orders from the King (of Spain) that the Royal Society should receive from his American dominions any productions called for provided a return is allowed of any natural curiosities of his Britannic Majesty's dominions.
Translation. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Prince Masserano to D^r Morton, Aranjuez 30 April 1773.

The DUKE OF MANCHESTER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, July 26. Kimbolton Castle.—His brother's health is re-established and he can wait upon his Lordship when convenient.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—N^o 11. D. of Manchester July 1773.

SIR SYDNEY STAFFORD SMYTHE, Chief Baron of the Exchequer, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 29. Chelmsford.—Recommending Captain Cox for some employment in the new settlement on the Ohio or as collector or comptroller of the Customs in any of the ports in America.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—A—19 L^d Ch : Baron Smythe. July 1773, recom. Cap. Cox.

LORD ROBERT SPENCER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 29. De la pré (?).—Receipt of letter ; returns thanks.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—L^d Rob. Spencer 29 July 1773. In N^o 13, Domestic.

GOVERNOR THOMAS POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, July.—With a newspaper cutting of six lines which states that M^r Pownall has accepted the Government of New England. Cannot account for the above paragraph getting into the newspaper. For many months has cautiously avoided talking of America and has risked the good opinion of his friends there by suspending all correspondence.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—N^o 14. Gov^r Pownall July 1773.

The HONOURABLE DAINES BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 1. King's Bench Walks.—Will do his best to contrive that a small collection of natural productions be prepared to be sent to the King of Spain. The Royal Society will require his Lordship's further protection with regard to the expense which will be incurred in preserving specimens that may come from America or elsewhere.

Autograph letter signed. 2¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Hon. D. Barrington 1 Aug. 1773.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 2. London.—A letter signed "Fact." On the objectionable paragraphs which appear in the newspapers, particularly in the Public Advertiser. These are concerted by M^r^ Temple, Lieutenant Governor of New Hants, assisted by M^r^ Lee. Confidential letters of Hutchinson, Oliver and Paxton to the late M^r^ Whately were procured immediately after his death by Temple from Whately's brother, a banker in Lombard Street; they were sent to persons in Boston who kept them until an opportunity offered for laying them before the Assembly. The paragraphs which recommend that some one be sent out as a grand reconciler and umpire between Great Britain and the Colonies, come from Governor Pownall, but the taunting sneering paragraphs and letters come from M^r^ Temple.

Original. 2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Fact. 2 Aug. 1773.

Enclosure:—

> Newspaper cutting containing a letter signed "An American" and addressed to Lord Dartmouth. His Lordship was designed for private not for public station. He has been rashly prevailed upon to undertake the superintendence of American affairs at a time when they were hourly hastening to a most unfortunate catastrophe. Lord Hillsborough foresaw this and prudently retired. Remarks on the scandalous manner in which the Americans have been traduced as appears by the disclosure of the letters of Mess^rs^ Hutchinson and Oliver.
>
> 1 strip.

CALEB J. GARBRAND to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 2.—Is now fully aware of the impropriety of the manner in which M^r^ Wooldridge proposed to dispose of his civil employments in East Florida, but was ignorant at the time he made it. A foolish transaction of M^r^ Wooldridge's in the West Indies makes him fear that he will be unable to pay him the money he owes. Desires his Lordship's protection in enabling him to return to East Florida to take up the civil employments held by M^r^ Wooldridge.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr. Garbrand 1 (sic.) Aug. 1773. In B—6.

LORD HYDE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, August 5. The Grove.—Should the government of New Hampshire or the surveyorship of woods in America become vacant Colonel Howard would be glad of either appointment.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A—23. L^d^ Hyde Aug. 1773. Col^l^ Howard.

The MASSACHUSETTS GAZETTE and BOSTON WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

1773, August 5. Thursday.—Part only. Containing, amongst other items, another article signed "Philalethes."

2 printed pages.

Endorsed (on a wrapper covering also the Gazettes of 1, 15, and 22 July) :—N° 13. Defence of Gov^r^ Hutchinson's Letters. August 1773.

JOHN STUART to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 5. Charles Town.—On behalf of his brother Lieutenant Patrick Stuart of the "Centeaur." Desires his Lordship's good offices with Lord Sandwich in his favour.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ pages.

Endorsed :—J. Stuart Esq^r^ Charles Town 5 Aug. 1773.

GREY COOPER to WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM.

1773, August 6. Treasury Chambers.—Desiring he will attend the Treasury Board on Thursday next.

Autograph, third person. ⅓ quarto page.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Cooper.

C[HARLOTTE], COUNTESS OF DUNMORE, to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, August 10. Berkley Street.—On behalf of Captain Foy who went to America with Lord Dunmore as secretary while at New York, whence he accompanied him to Virginia. A vacancy has happened in the naval office at New York by the death of M^r^ Williams. If his Lordship would confer this on Captain Foy, Lord and Lady Dunmore would feel essentially obliged.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Css. of Dunmore Aug. 1773 Cap. Foy.

GOVERNOR THOMAS POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, August 10. Chesterford.—He has seen Lord North. His Lordship and Lord North have only to decide how his services can be most usefully employed.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—N° 15. Gov^r^ Pownall 10 Aug. 1773.

PETER DUVAL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 11. Hackney.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—B—19. M^r^ P. Duval 13 Aug. 1773, requesting an Office in N° America.

SIR WILLIAM DRAPER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 12. George Street, Hanover Square.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—A—24. S^r^ W. Draper 12 Aug. 1773, recommending M^r^ Delancey to be Naval Officer of New York.

DENNIS DE BERDT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, August 14. London.—Thanks for effectual service in his affair with the House of Representatives at Boston. Wishes to know if he would care to be concerned with his brother-in-law in some shares for land in the Jersey Society. M^r^ Reed is ambitious of opening a correspondence with his Lordship.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—C—7. M^r^ De Berdt, 12 (sic) Aug. 1773 on American Lands.

JOHN THORNTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 14. Clapham.—Encloses (not here) a duplicate of what he had previously sent. The greatest difficulty in America appears to lie in the exasperation of both sides. Desirability of removing persons that are so obnoxious to the province. Surely a steady, considerate, and judicious governor might be found who would have the good of the province at heart. Lady Huntingdon has requested the Reverend M^r^ Piercy to come over to consult with her about the Orphan House. An Irish lottery in consideration to raise 300,000*l*. Irish.
Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

GEORGE RICE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, August 15. Windsor Castle.—In favour of Captain Foy for whom application has been made for the post of naval officer in New York.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—G. Rice Esq^r^ 1773, Aug. Cap. Foy.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 16. At M^rs^ Smith near Queens place Westminster.—On the subject of the salary due to him. Offer made by Governor Tonyn to settle his affairs. Desires to be restored to the provincial office and to return to the execution of the general surveys by his Lordship's order.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ De Brahm 16 Aug. 1773.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to [   ].

1773, August 18. At M^rs^ Smith 2^d^ door South of Queens Place Westminster.—Possibly to M^r^ Pownall. Finds some members of the [Cape Florida] Society intend to call upon him with M^r^ Stokes. Encloses these copies as they may be necessary for conversation, otherwise would have sent them to his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. ½ quarto page.

Endorsed:—East Florida Society.

Enclosures:—

DANIEL BERCHER to [WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM].

1773, August 18.—On the subject of the terms under which it has been arranged that the land in East Florida should be granted to the Society. Insists that they are not suitable for a Society of free persons who are risking their lives and fortunes. Intimates that De Brahm's object is to discourage the plan.

Copy. 2⅓ pages. In French.

[WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM] to DANIEL BERCHER.

1773, August 9.—Is sorry he has been induced to believe the grant disadvantageous with regard to its tenor. Remarks on the quit rent and the generosity of the terms.

Copy. 1 page.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to the [CAPE FLORIDA] SOCIETY.

1773, August 18.—Defending himself against M^r^ Bercher's misrepresentations concerning the grant and terms upon which it is made.

Autograph copy. 1⅔ pages.

LORD CRAGGS CLARE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, August 18. Gosfield.—In favour of Captain Foy who has been recommended by Lord Dunmore to the late naval officer's post at New York.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Clare Aug. 1773. Cap. Foy.

JOHN WODDROP to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 18, Wednesday. Tolbrook Glasgow.—Is imprisoned on account of a debt of £10 he owes James M^{c}Call because he will not renounce to him his right and title to some lands in Virginia. Account of the injustice he has met with from him.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—John Woddrop Glasgow Aug. 18, 1773.

WILLIAM BOLLAN and DOCTOR B. FRANKLIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 20. Southampton Street, Covent Garden.—Transmitting the enclosed letter.

Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Bollan 20 Aug. 1773.

Enclosure :—

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL and ASSEMBLY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

June 29. Province of Massachusetts Bay.—Signed Thomas Flucker, Secretary. " The original causes of the interruption in the union that formerly subsisted between Great Britain and her colonies may probably be found in the letters sent from hence to Administration and to other gentlemen of influence in Parliament, since the appointment of Sir Francis Bernard to the Government of the province." Apprehend that he and his coadjutors laid the plans for the establishment of the American revenue and have since prevented the petitions against it from reaching both King and Parliament. They are of opinion that if things were brought to the general state in which they stood at the conclusion of the late war it would restore the harmony which at that time existed.

3½ pages. [Duplicate of this is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 174, fo. 719.]

CAPE FLORIDA SOCIETY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 20. London.—Signed by James Samuel Loup, J. Jams Bonhole, Daniel Bercher and Henry Dessoulavy, intended Directors. Cannot discover in the draft of grant of 8,000 acres drawn up for Lord Dartmouth by the agent, Mr De Brahm, any sign of his Lordship's benevolence. Are thankful they are provided with a sufficient quantity of common sense to distinguish the real and generous intentions of his Lordship from the oppressive disposition of the agent.

Letter signed. 2 pages.

Enclosure :—

Objections made to the draft copy of a grant of 8,000 acres of land in East Florida (delivered by William Gerard de Brahm) said to be by order and with the approbation of the Earl of Dartmouth. With Terms and Conditions which the grantees take the liberty to offer the Earl of Dartmouth.

Original. 3 pages.

MARY HAYNS or Hayne to [LORD DARTMOUTH.]

1773, August 21. London.—Concerning the will of her father Mr Richard Salter, which, or a copy of which, she requests he will endeavour to procure.

Autograph letter signed. 1 page.

Endorsed :—Mrs Hayne Aug. 1773.

THOMAS CUSHING to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 22. Boston.—Thanks his Lordship for the communication of his sentiments in his letter of 19 June. Gives an account of the manner in which the controversy between the Governor and the Assembly arose. Observations respecting the temper and disposition of the gentlemen who composed the late House of Representatives. Thanks his Lordship for the assurance of his aid and support to any temperate representation of grievances that the province may make. Hopes that the letter of the two Houses to his Lordship of 29 June will answer that purpose. Submits whether it would not be eligible for Parliament to take up American affairs upon their own principle without any apparent attention to the applications made by the Americans for redress.

Autograph letter signed. 5⅔ pages. [Reproduced in B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Endorsed :—N° 11. Mr Cushing Boston 22 Aug. 1773.

Duplicate of the foregoing.

The EARL OF ROCHFORD to [LORD DARTMOUTH.]

1773, August 26.—On the subject of enclosure. Did a great deal of business for him yesterday at the Council. Everything goes on quietly, hopes they will not meet the Parliament as soon as was expected.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Ld Rochford 26 Aug. 1773 wth Col. Prevost's Memorial.

Enclosure :—

LIEUTENANT COLONEL AUGUSTINE PREVOST to the KING.

Memorial. Relinquished his post to Haldimand in 1755, and in 1762 was sent to take possession of Pensacola. On Haldimand's succeeding Lieutenant General Gage he hoped to have been appointed in his room. In the case of Lieutenant Governor Colonel Dalling being promoted desires to succeed him.

Not signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

REVEREND WILLIAM GORDON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 28. Jamaica Plain.—Sends intelligence of the measures likely to be taken by the Assembly at their next sessions. Remarks upon his Lordship's letter to Doctor Franklin which he has seen. Though the King acting consistently could not but disapprove of calling into question the right of Parliament to make laws binding in America in all cases whatsoever yet the prevailing sentiment is that the British legislature has not that right. Was grieved "that his Lordship's letter should suggest, that the doctrines held forth in the petitions and remonstrance, might be owing to the artifices of a few who seek to create jealousy and distrust ; for individuals though not intended might think themselves aimed at . . . . and have their minds soured into a stiffer opposition to all healing measures," and without the concurrence and assistance of such individuals no measures are likely to be adopted. Thinks there should be a petition for the removal of complaints. Their politicians depend much on the correspondence set on foot by the Virginians and on the apprehension of a French war for an opportunity of insisting on an equivalent to a bill of rights. Would like to know if a petition would be supported in Parliament as he might be able to promote and procure such a one.

Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 1 page.

Endorsed :—Revd Mr Gordon 28 Aug. 1773.

WILLIAM WHATELY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 30. Lombard Street.—Has endeavoured, hitherto fruitlessly, to find out by what means the letters written to his late brother by Governor Hutchinson, M^r Oliver and others fell into the hands of the Bostonians. In the month of October last M^r Temple applied to him saying that he wished to see a paper relative to the colonies transmitted to his late brother and also a letter written by him (M^r Temple). In perfect confidence he laid before him various parcels of letters and after some time spent in search M^r Temple acquainted him that he could not find his own letter nor anything relating to it. On receiving recently M^r Oliver's communication as to the publication of the letters he immediately went to M^r Temple and said to him that he was the only person who had had access to them. M^r Temple assured him in the frankest manner and in precise terms that he had not taken away the letters, and indeed had seen so little of importance that he did not even take any extract or memorandum. The matter gives him deep and anxious concern both as regards his brother's memory and his own character.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r W. Whateley 30 Aug. 1773. Relative to the Letters of Gov^r Hutchinson &c. published at Boston.

Note.—In connection with this subject and the resulting duel between Whately and Temple, see Sparks's Works of Franklin, Vol. IV., page 105. "An Account of the Transactions relating to Governor Hutchinson's Letters." Franklin, writing to the Printer of the Public Advertiser, says:—"M^r W[hately] could not com- "municate them, because they were never in his possession; and, for the same "reason, they could not be taken from him by M^r T[emple]," p. 435.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 31. At M^rs Smith, Queens Place Westminster.—Refers to enclosures. His own affairs. Has been paid his salary. Deplores that his grievances have been left so long to a Governor who only contemplates his ruin.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ pages.

Enclosures:—

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to the PRESIDENT of the (Cape Florida) SOCIETY

1773, July 30.—Expresses Lord Dartmouth's good wishes with reference to the grant he is making the Society. Governor Tonyn has promised to afford his protection and assistance.

Autograph letter signed. ¾ page.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to DANIEL BERCHER.

1773, August 9.—[See duplicate above enclosed in letter of 18 August.]

Autograph copy signed. 1⅓ pages.

DANIEL BERCHER to WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM.

1773, August 18. No. 44 Harley Street.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 2 pages. French.

Enclosures—cont.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to the [CAPE FLORIDA] SOCIETY.

1773, August 18.—[See duplicates of both these above in De Brahm's letter of 18 August.]
Autograph letter signed. 1½ pages.

LORD DARTMOUTH to the [CAPE FLORIDA] SOCIETY.

1773, September 1. Sandwell.—In answer to a letter signed by Mr Loup and others containing their objections to the terms of the grant. The draft given them by De Brahm was drawn up by Lord Dartmouth's instructions who thought he had exactly adhered to the plans and proposals of the Society. Some things are now expected of him with which it is not in his power to comply. The whole project may be dropped or the draft may be settled between his lawyer, Mr Wilmot, and their own.
Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

MAJOR GAVIN COCHRANE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, September 2. London.—Refers to his application for lands at Crown Point. Would like to know how his Lordship received it.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Majr Cochran 2 Sep. 1773. In B—9.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL THOMAS DESBRISAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 4.—Dublin.
Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—No 4. Lt Col. Desbrisay Sepr 1773 respecting Lands, and desiring to succeed to the Lt Govt of the Mass. Bay, in case of a Vacancy.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 4.—A letter signed "Fact." Concerning the contents of the enclosed newspaper. The intelligence extraordinary is the production of Mr Temple as are other sneering paragraphs scattered through the daily newspapers.
Original. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Fact, Sepr 4, 1473.

Enclosure:—

1773, September 4. Saturday.—The Public Advertiser No 11976.
4 printed pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[1773, September 6, about.]—Acknowledges the interest taken by his Lordship in his affairs. Observations relative to the Cape Florida Society. Has many times thought they meant to desist. Hears Mr Wooldridge is arrived. Remarks relative to the enclosed letter from Mr Peyer Imhoff.
Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

Enclosures :—

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to MR. LOUP.

1773, September 6. Monday morning.—Transmits a letter received from Lord (Dartmouth).
Autograph copy. Third person. ½ page.
Endorsed :—Copy to M^r^ Loup.

J. L. PEYER IM HOFF to [WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM].

1773, July 15. James Island, South Carolina.—The reason M^r^ Roux did not go to East Florida was because he heard there was no settlement at the Gulf of Sandwich. His death. Fresh orders sent to Governors concerning granting lands. Fears that the grant in East Florida may come under the new regulations. Would the 6,000 acres for M^r^ Roux be transferred to his family? His (De Brahm's) friends desire very much to see him.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages. French.
Endorsed :—M^r^ Peyer Imhoff.

The EARL OF ROCHFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 7. St. James's.—As M^r^ Walpole and his associates are uneasy at the delay of their grant, sends the Attorney and Solicitor General's report relative to the order of council of the 3rd of last July. Observations in connection therewith. Sends other papers on the subject.
Letter signed. 4 pages.
Endorsed :—E. of Rochford 7 Sep^r^ 1773.

Enclosures :—

1773, July 3. Council Chamber, Whitehall.—Order of the Lords of the Committee of Council for Plantation Affairs. To prepare a draft of the Ohio grant containing the conditions and reservations proposed by the Board of Trade
Copy. 1 page.

1773, July 16.—Edward Thurlow and Alexander Wedderburn, Attorney and Solicitor General. Report to the Lords Committee of Council for Plantation Affairs.
Copy. 3 pages.

[Not dated.]—Thomas Walpole, John Sarjant, Doctor Franklin and Samuel Wharton. Memorial to the Lords of the Treasury with the bounds of the tract applied for.
Copy. 2 pages.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to the EARL OF ROCHFORD.

1773, September 9. Sandwell.—Thanks him for communication of the report of the Attorney and Solicitor General in consequence of the order of Council of 3 July. Agrees with him in his opinion concerning the objections made by those gentlemen to the mode of granting in joint tenancy. Believes the bounds are as clearly and distinctly ascertained as the knowledge of the country will admit of.

Autograph copy. 1 page.

CAPTAIN GEORGE LEHUNTE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 17. Wexford.—Requests he will lay the enclosed memorial before the Board of Trade.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—George Lehunte Eq^{r} 17 Sep^{r} 1773, re^{d} 15 Oct^{r}.

Enclosure :—

MEMORIAL to the BOARD OF TRADE.

Desires to settle in North America and prays for a grant of 10,000 acres of land in one of the provinces.
Autograph signed. 1 quarto page.

The REVEREND WILLIAM GORDON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 18. Jamaica Plain.—His Lordship having written a confidential letter to the Speaker has given alarm to the gentlemen who have been in connection with Sir Francis Bernard. They think it beneath the dignity of a Secretary of State to correspond with the speaker of a petty provincial assembly. Warns him that their feelings will give a partial cast to the letters transmitted to the Government. Relates the manner in which he became acquainted with this fact.
Autograph letter signed. ¾ page.

Endorsed :—Rev^{d} M^{r} Gordon Jamaica Plain 18 Sep^{r} 1773.

DAVID PRYCE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, September 18. Upton Grey near Basingstoke.—His unsuccessful endeavours to obtain land granted to him in New York for his services in the late war. Is informed all lands are located. Desires to be recommended to His Majesty for some equivalent for his great loss.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Dav^{d} Pryce Esq^{r} Sep^{r} 1773 for Land in Am^{a}.

EDWARD FOY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, September 22. Mount Street.—Will be happy if the enclosed observations are of use in directing his Lordship's choice of locations and if he should be employed to put the plan in execution.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—C—4. Ed. Foy Esq^{r} Sep^{r} 1773. With Observations on the Land of sev^{l} Districts in the Colonies.

Enclosure :—

Observations beginning " The Western parts of Virginia contains (sic) a great quantity of unpatented lands."
Original not signed. 6 quarto pages.

The EARL OF ROCHFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 23. St. James's.—Has well considered the report of the Attorney and Solicitor General relative to the grant to the Ohio Company. Thinks an order of Council may be made with the greatest propriety agreeable to the enclosed draft. If his Lordship approves of it, will call a council.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Earl of Rochford 23 Sep^r 1773.

Enclosure:—

OHIO COMPANY.

Draft of a proposed Order in Council. Concerning the grant to the Ohio Company.

4 pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 24. London.—Sends the second part of his report which relates solely to East Florida, and remarks thereon.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 page.

JULIAN LEGGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 27. M^rs Lloyds, Hemlock Court, Carrey Street, near Lincolns Inn London.—Addressed to His Lordship at Sandwell Hall near Birmingham.

Autograph letter signed. 1 page.

Endorsed:—B—3. M^r Julian Legge Sep^r 1773 late Midshipman of the Lowestoffe, desiring Employm^t.

GEORGE WENTWORTH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 28. London.—Sends copy of his petition to the King and entreats his Lordship's patronage and protection.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—George Wentworth Esq^r 27 Sep^r 1773.

Enclosure:—

GEORGE WENTWORTH to the KING.

1773, September 27. London.—Petition. Account of the injustice he has undergone in endeavouring to obtain a legacy of £1000 left to George Wentworth, petitioner's uncle, by his father John Wentworth in 1730. Implores justice from the King.

Signed copy. 3½ pages.

BENJAMIN HALLOWELL to JOHN POWNALL.

1773, September 29. Boston.—Unsettled state of the province. Surprise caused by M^r Temple having ingratiated himself into the favour of those in power in England. In the earliest of the disturbances in America it is known that he took a leading part in the opposition.

Since he has been in England the intelligence he has given has been as mischievous as that of Doctor Franklin. Satisfaction felt at Mr Cushing receiving a letter from Lord Dartmouth as it appears as though his Lordship had ignored the Governor. Difficulty Governors have always had to please the people in this province. Attitude of the Government of Rhode Island concerning the inquiry into the loss of the "Gaspee." Remarks on importation of tea. Suggests measures for securing duties and preventing smuggling. Further remarks respecting Mr Temple who must be violently imposing on his superiors.

Autograph letter signed. 7 pages. [Reproduced in B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR H. T. CRAMAHÉ to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 1. Quebec.—Proceedings in the running of the boundary line between New York and Quebec. Before it receives the royal sanction the inhabitants of this Province beg the King to take into consideration how much the interference of New York upon the course of the river St. Lawrence may injure their commercial interests, especially in the fur trade of which the New Yorkers have already a considerable share and which their superior wealth would probably put them in full possession of.

Copy. 3 pages. [The signed letter, in duplicate, with the enclosure, is in the Public Record Office, Colonial Correspondence, Quebec, Vol. 9, fo. 20, and Board of Trade, Canada, Quebec, Vol. 7, fo. 245.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Lieut. Governor Cramahé to the Earl of Dartmouth dated Quebec October 1st 1773.

Enclosure:—

QUEBEC. MINUTES OF COUNCIL.

1773, August 2 and 4. Council Chamber Castle of St. Lewis Quebec.—Report on the running of the western boundary line.

Copy. 6¾ pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of the Minutes of His Majesty's Council of Quebec, the 2d and 4th of August 1773. In Lieut Govr Cramahé's (No 8) of 1st October 1773.

ARCHIBALD DUFF to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 2.—In behalf of his brother Arthur Gordon to be Advocate General of the Court of Admiralty in East Florida.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

The HONOURABLE LUCIUS FERDINAND CARY to [LORD DARTMOUTH.]

1773, October 4. Grosvenor Street.—Is concerned that his application has not met with better success but comforts himself with the thought of obtaining his Lordship's good offices on a future occasion.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Honble Mr Cary 4 Octr 1773.

THE ALARM, NO. 1.

1773, October 6.--Printed paper entitled "The Alarm" No. 1, consisting of a letter signed Hampden, dated New York 6 October 1773 and beginning "My dear Fellow Citizens." Against monopolies, particularly the East India Company.

1¾ pages. [Duplicate of this is in the Public Record Office, Series America and West Indies, Vol. 183, fo. 921; and copies were presented, with other American papers, to the Houses of Parliament 7 March 1774.]

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 6. New York.—Intends deferring his departure until the spring. Presumes he is to leave the seals of Government with Governor Colden who is 86 years of age and in feeble health. In case of his death, could he leave the great seal with Chief Justice Horsmanden or Sir William Johnson?

Autograph letter signed. 4 pages.

Endorsed :—Gov^{r} Tryon 6 Oct^{r} 1773.

GOVERNOR LORD CHARLES GREVILLE MONTAGU to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, October 7. Bath.—Upon the enclosed petition.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—L^{d} Cha Montagu 7 Oct^{r} 1773.

Enclosure :—

LORD C. G. MONTAGU, LADY ELIZABETH CHAPLIN and seven others, to the KING.

Petition. On behalf of Ann Beckett who was convicted in August 1771 of privately stealing a purse and sentenced to transportation for 7 years. She went to Charles Town South Carolina, entered the service of Lord Charles Greville Montagu whom she served faithfully for two years. Petitioners have always believed in her innocence and entreat that the remainder of her sentence may be remitted.

Original signed. 3 pages.

THOMAS DANFORTH to JOHN POWNALL.

1773, October 8. Boston.—Expresses his acknowledgments for the kindness and favour received from M^{r} Pownall. Found upon his arrival at Boston that the publication of the letters had greatly increased the prejudices of the people. Cause of the odium brought against Gov. Bernard and other officers by the people. Educational differences in Britain and New England largely account for the disposition of the people with regard to politics. The description he has given of Lord Dartmouth has been received with great pleasure.

Autograph letter signed. 3¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Danforth Ex.

ORDER IN COUNCIL. New Hampshire.

1773, October 8. St. James's.—Approving a long report of the Lords Committee of the Council for Plantation affairs with reference to the complaint of Peter Livius against Governor Wentworth. As the report concluded that there was no foundation for any censure on the Governor, nor for any of the charges brought against him it is hereby ordered that the said complaint of Peter Livius be dismissed.

Copy. 10⅓ pages.

Endorsed:—Nº 7. New Hampshire Copy of order in Council.

"THE ALARM," Nº 2.

1773, October 9.—2 printed folio pages.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, October 11. New Norfolk Street.—Recommending Mr John Leadbeater for the appointment of Minister and Schoolmaster in East Florida.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Nº 8. Govr Tonyn 11 Octr 1773.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 11.—Will always retain the highest sense of his Lordship's patronage.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Nº 9. Govr Tonyn, 11 Oct. 1773.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 16. New Norfolk Street.—Concerning his recommendation of Mr Leadbeater for the appointment of minister in East Florida.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Nº 10. Govr Tonyn 16 Octr 1773.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 18.—On the same subject.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Nº 11. Govr Tonyn 18 Octr 1773.

ROBERT HAYNE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, October 19. Nº 43 Shoreditch London.—Concerning estates which rightly belong to his wife in America but which cannot be claimed on account of the difficulty in procuring the will of Richard Salter.

Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Hayne 19 Octr 1773.

ROBERT HAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

Not dated.—Petition. With a memorandum concerning the will of Richard Salter.

Original, not signed. 2½ pages.

Endorsed:—N° 8. Petition of Robert Hayne, praying the Interposition of the Earl of Dartmouth for the Recovery of an Estate and the Effects of Rich^{d} Salter Esq̃. of Trenton in New Jersey, which he alledges to be detained from him by a M^{r} Cox of that Town, as Heir at Law (in right of his Wife, whom he states to be only Daughter of the said R^{d} Salter) to the said Estate.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES of NEW YORK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 20. New York.—Address of the Ministers, Elders and Deacons. Signed John Rodgers, Moderator.

Original. 5⅓ pages.

Endorsed:—Presbyterian Churches of N. York.

The SAME to the SAME.

1773, October 20. New York.—Substance of the above Petition from the Ministers &c. of the United Presbyterian Churches of New York to Lord Dartmouth for a charter of incorporation.

4¾ pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 23. London.—The report is finishing agreeable to the directions he has received. Has found it necessary to add to that report the 8th chapter now enclosed. Is informed that his geometer Joseph Purcell has secretly taken copies of his surveys since his absence from America and entered the service of John Stuart Indian Superintendent, a special friend of Governor Grant. One Bernard Romans acted in the same manner previously. Stuart's present appointment is entirely the effect of de Brahm's recommendation.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Enclosure:—

Chapter 8th. Of the Indian Boundaries.
Autograph. 3¾ pages.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BOSTON.

1773, October 28.—Addressed to J. T. Esq.

2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—C—17. Ext. of a Letter from Boston to J. T. Esq^{r} 28 Oct^{r} 1773. (Thoughts on the Means of restoring Peace to the Colonies.)

CHARLES GARTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, October 30. Devizes.—Thinks it necessary his Lordship should see the continued resolution in South Carolina not to pass any Government bill while the instruction of April 1770 is in existence. A continuance of this instruction will cause heated dissensions between the Council and Assembly and increase the many evils the province already labours under.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—N° 5. Ch. Garth Esq^{r} Oct^{r} 30, 1773.

Enclosure :—

SOUTH CAROLINA MINUTES OF COUNCIL.

1773, August 17, 19 and 20.—Contained in a Newspaper cutting. Begins, " Ordered. That a Committee of the following Gentlemen be appointed to inquire into the present State of the Public Treasury." Report submitted and resolutions thereon.

WILLIAM KELLY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 30. Worcester.—As he is engaged in a contested election for this city and must strain every nerve, desires permission to print the letter he addressed to his Lordship on the importation of corn from America. His reason is solely to confirm the favourable sentiments as to his commercial knowledge, and the fact of his being in communication with Lord Dartmouth would have a good effect.

Autograph letter signed. 1 page.

Endorsed :—W. Kelly Esq^{r} 30 Oct^{r} 1773.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [about October 1773]. Answers to questions from the Secretary of State relative to the condition of the colony of which he is Governor—its extent, boundaries, natural features, harbours, constitution, trade, inhabitants, and expenses; with a paper marked, Valuation 1761.

Copy. 15½ pp. in two columns. [The original is in the Public Record Office, America and West Indies, 174, fo. 791.]

Endorsed :—America.

SAGADAHOOK.

1773, October.—A list of the number of Inhabitants settled on lands eastward of the Sagadahook River to the River St. Croix. Total number of families 2,438.

Original. 1 page.

Endorsed :—List of the N° of Inhabitants in territ° of Sagadahook.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to MR. LOUP.

1773, November 3.—Concerning a letter forwarded by him from the Earl of Dartmouth to which no answer has been received. Remarks upon his Lordship's generosity with regard to the grant he has made. Asks whether the plan of the Society is to take place or is dropt.

Copy signed. ¾ page.

GOVERNOR JOSIAH MARTIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, November 4. New Bern, North Carolina.—Private. Acquaints him of the retraction by Mr Burgwin of certain charges he had made against him (Martin); he, on his part, now desires to withdraw any misrepresentations in Burgwin's disfavour.
Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ pages.

Endorsed:—Govr Martin 4 Novr 1773. Private.

MONTFORT BROWNE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, November 5. Greenwich.—To explain his disagreeable situation during his command at West Florida from the cruel misrepresentations made against him would take up too much time, therefore only goes into the question of the great injuries his estates have suffered from their being totally dismembered by the sale of his negroes to discharge the debts of Government. Desires an appointment. Dominica is the object of his wishes.
Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ pages.

Endorsed:—Montd Browne Esqr 4 Novr 1773.

GOVERNOR SIR FRANCIS BERNARD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, November 6. Aylesbury.—Refers to an application he made nine months ago in favour of his two sons for the appointment of the naval office at Boston. His own services. Requests that this office may be extended to make provision for more than one of his sons.
Letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Sr Fr. Bernard 6 Nov. 1773.

J. TEMPLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, November 8. Great George Street.—Transmits copies of letters on American affairs which passed between himself when in America and the late Mr Whately. He is the first person in England this correspondence has been shown to except some short extracts which relate to particular matters. Sends them from a desire to throw every light on the affairs of the colonies. These letters will in part disclose the trouble and illtreatment he (Temple) met with.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Temple 8 Novr 1773.

COMMODORE SAMUEL HOOD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, November 9. Catherington by Petersfield.—Renews his application that his Lordship will recommend him to Lord North for a similar mark of public favour to that bestowed on Mr Gambier his successor in the American command.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Com. Hood 9 Novr 1773.

JAMES LOUP to WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM.

1773, November 11. Basinghall Street.—The intended Society for Cape Florida and the projects in connection therewith have ended in smoke. Acknowledges the condescension shown by the Earl of Dartmouth. Reasons for the affair terminating in this way.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 3½ quarto pages.

CAPTAIN WILLIAMOS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, November 18. Thursday Evening, St. James's Place.—Would like to be appointed to the office named in the enclosure but should such an office appear inadmissible offers himself as a candidate to succeed Mr Shuckburgh as Secretary to the Indian affairs under Sir William Johnson.

Autograph, third person. 1 page.

Endorsed :—Cap. Williamos 18 Novr 1773.

Enclosure :—

A paper showing the advisability of establishing an office for inspecting the sale of lands in North America. " The Spirit of emigration to North America being now so prevailing in Europe the Immense tracts of land which the Crown possesses in that Continent are of course of the greatest Importance, and therefore every step ought to be taken to regulate every thing relative to them.

Autograph. 5 pages.

ROBERT TOMLINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, November 23. " Resolution " at Portsmouth.—Desiring to be appointed first Lieut. of the Admiral's Ship upon the No American Station.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

JOHN JONES to MR. PADMORE.

1773, November 24. Denmark Court, No. 15, Strand, London.—On the subject of the enclosures.

Autograph letter signed. ⅔ page.

Endorsed :—pr Lt. Wm Campbell.

Enclosures :—

Memorandum relative to his claim to certain lands in South Carolina.

Original. 1½ pages.

Endorsed :—South Carolina.

Extract from the will of Lewis Jones of South Carolina, 10 February 1743 with some " Suppositions " concerning the land therein mentioned.

CASE OF JOHN JONES.

Not dated.—Respecting lands bequeathed to him in South Carolina. Draft. 1¾ pages.

JOSEPH WARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, November 27. Boston, New England.—Upon the serious state of affairs in America. Endeavours of France to gain some advantage in the prevailing dispute. Urges the necessity of a speedy reconciliation. Autograph letter signed. 4 pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Ward Boston Novr 27 1773.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, November 29. States his connection with Governor Grant through the marriage of his daughter. Loss he has sustained by her death. Recommends his father-in-law John Row, who has been for many years Sheriff of Maryland, for the appointment of Provost Marshal of East Florida.
Autograph letter signed. With seal. 2 pages.

CORBYN MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, December 1. Storys Gate, Westminster.—Refers to a conversation with Lord North on the subject of a new American commission. Proposes two new members and gives a list of the gentlemen who would then compose it. Remarks on the advantages which would be gained by its establishment.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—C. Morris Esqr 1 Dec 1773.

TEA. PROCEEDINGS at BOSTON.

1773, December 1.—Two copies of a printed paper headed "Boston" containing proceedings of the people of Boston and the neighbouring towns, 29 and 30 November, assembled for the purpose of consulting, advising and determining upon the most proper and effectual method to prevent the unlading, receiving or vending the "detestable tea" sent out by the East India Company.
2 pages. [Copy of this was presented with other papers to the Houses of Parliament on the 7th March 1774.]

TEA.

1773, received December 1.—"Scævola" to the Commissioners appointed by the East India Company for the sale of tea, in America. Setting forth the odium attached to the office held by them.
Printed. 1 page.

Endorsed :—No 10. Address to the Commissrs for sale of Tea in America N. York. R/ 1 Decr 1773.

TEA.

1773, after December 6.—Postscript to a letter from Boston dated Dec^{r} ye 6th. "Since dating the within, all the Tea which had arrived in the three vessels, Capts. Bruce, Hall and Coffin, has been utterly destroyed by a number of persons disguised like Indians, who broke open the Hatches, hoisted up the Chests, stove them, & threw them overboard" . . . . The owners and others concerned dared not accept the Admiral's protection; their own lives, their families and their property must have been the forfeit.

2¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a letter from Boston. From an officer on board the Arthur.

CASE of COLONEL GEORGE MERCER.

1773, December 7. London.—Beginning "In 1754, The Government of Virginia raised a Regiment, to prevent the encroachments of the French." His services in the army and later as stamp distributor.

Printed. 3 pages.

Endorsed:—Case of Colonel Mercer.

The REVEREND WILLIAM GORDON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, December 11. Jamaica Plain.—Disgust displayed by American merchants in London on account of the measures pursued by the East India Company with regard to the tea. Explains that their representations of the monopoly of that Company have been the means of rousing the opposition in America. The meetings etc. Temper of the people. His own endeavours to dissuade them from a rupture. How far they may have exceeded the bounds of moderation, after allowing for the manner in which they have been managed by interested persons at home and among themselves, as that Government may decline giving them relief or judge it necessary to adopt rough measures, is not for him to determine, but if any colony should be dealt with separately the rest would make it a common cause. Warns that from his observation they could oppose any British regiments set against them. The population is much greater than any returns show as the people do not wish their real numbers known.

Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed:—Rev. M^{r} Gordon 1773.

Copy in his own hand of the foregoing.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, December 16. Queens Square, Westminster.—Religious sentiments with reference to the enclosed essay.

Autograph letter signed. 1 page.

Enclosure:—

1773, December 12.—"Essay upon the Apocalipsin on the time and times passed present and to come."

Autograph. 4 pages.

B. ROMANS to DOCTOR WILLIAMSON.

1773, December 20.—Concerning a proposed expedition by the Lakes or the Mississippi through the western parts of America to the North Eastern parts of Asia and thence to Russia. (The beginning of the letter seems to be wanting.)

Autograph signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—Rec^{d} 2^{d} Feb^{y} 1774 from D^{r} Williamson.

HOUSE of ASSEMBLY of NORTH CAROLINA.

1773, December 21.—Resolutions to present an address to the King soliciting the withdrawal of the instruction relative to attachments Certified by Governor Martin 2 March 1774 with a large wax seal of the province attached by a blue ribbon.

Copy from the Minutes, attested by Jas. Green. 2¾ pages.

TEA.

1773, December 27.—Printed paper headed "Philadelphia" containing an account of the transactions in this city with reference to the tea sent to America.

1 page. [Another printed copy is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 202, fo. 35.]

THOMAS DANFORTH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, December 28. Boston.—Gives an account of the late very extraordinary occurrences with regard to the East India Company's tea.

Autograph letter signed. 7 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Tho^{s} Danforth Jun^{r}. 28 Dec^{r} 1773. Boston.

FIRE at FORT GEORGE, NEW YORK.

1773, December 29.—An Estimate of the loss of several persons (servants of Governor Tryon) by the fire in the evening of 29 December.

1 page.

Endorsed :—Estimate of the Losses of the within nam'd Persons by the Fire in the Fort House the 29 Dec^{r} 1773. Servants to Gov. Tryon In consideration whereof the Gov^{r} gave them £340 Sterling equal to £595 Currency of N. York.

$$\begin{array}{r} 340 \\ 170 \\ 85 \\ \hline 595 \end{array}$$

JOHN POWNALL to PETER MICHELL.

1773, December. Whitehall.—Desiring to know whether the East-India Company has obtained licenses to export teas on their own account to North America. (This is within a wrapper bearing the following note in Pownall's hand :—"The inclosed Letter consequential of the Advices lately reced from America is submitted to your Lordship and shall be either sent or suppress'd as you think fit.")

Letter signed. 1 page.

BOSTON, NEW YORK, and PHILADELPHIA.

1773, November and December.—Schedule of Papers touching the different town meetings in the various Provinces of America during these months. The list is arranged under the headings—Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.
1 quarto page.

BANK IN AMERICA.

N.D. [Qy. about 1773 or 1774.]—Plan for establishing a Bank in North America, beginning "Tho the Prohibition of Paper Currency in the several provinces of North America, has as yet taken place in few or none entirely, as the time their Bills have to run is not yet expired, it has notwithstanding caused great distress."
$6\frac{3}{4}$ pages.

Endorsed:—C—21 Plan for Establishing a Bank in North America.

WILLIAM BOLLAN, Agent for the Council of Massachusetts Bay, to the KING.

N.D. [1773.]—Petition. Remarks concerning the charter of the province. Endeavours to justify proceedings of the Council and desires to be heard in their further defence.
Copy. $1\frac{3}{4}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Bollans petition to the King in Council. Copy.

[WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM] to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

N.D. [Qy. 1773.]—Paper headed Memorandum. Remarks on the mis-government of the Governor [Grant]. Persecution shown to those who refuse to submit to his requests and caprices. Injustice displayed in settlement of lands in the province. Impossibility of the country flourishing under the present Governor unless he reforms.
In de Brahm's hand. 4 folio pages.

The EARL OF BUCHAN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773.—
Letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—E. of Buchan 1773. Intimating his Intention of visiting the Colonies, and offering Information.

COD FISHERY.

1773.—Paper endorsed "M^r^ De Berdt on the Cod Fishery."
$1\frac{1}{10}$ pages.

JOHN CALEF to the KING.

N.D. [Qy. 1773.]—Memorial on behalf of William Eaton and 59 other settlers on Deer Island. Concerning the settlement made by them on that Island lying on the eastward side of the entrance of Penobscot river which they desire may be granted to them and their heirs.

Original signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mem^{o} of John Calef Esq^{r} Agent for W^{m} Eaton & others.

NOTES for LETTERS to AMERICAN GOVERNORS.

N.D. [1773.]—Memorandum of Instructions to be given to General Haldimand, Governors Hutchinson, Tryon and Martin and the Commissioners of the Customs. General Haldimand to be instructed that there is no intention to re-establish the Post at Crown Point. The garrison either to rejoin the corps to which it belongs, or be added to that of Ticonderoga. The 60th regiment. Hutchinson's private correspondence. Tryon to be ordered to return to England to place before His Majesty the state of his province. Instructions for Governor Martin concerning the Court Act. Commissioners of Customs are not to allow any packets to be opened addressed upon His Majesty's Service to the Secretary of State or his under Secretaries.

In Pownall's hand. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—(In pencil) Gen. Haldimand 2. Gov^{r} Tryon. Gov^{r} Martin. Cust. House. R. Society. Rev^{d} M^{r} Vickers.

JOHN GORDON to the KING.

N.D. [1773.]—Memorial. Concerning a previous memorial presented by him, relative to difficulties which have arisen in connection with his and others' claims to land in East Florida. Desires the King will direct an inquiry to be made into the merits of his case and the nature of such means as he may have to propose.

2½ pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Gordon's Memor^{l} to the K. in Council.

MARY HAYNE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

N.D. [1773.]—Respecting the trouble she has experienced in procuring the will of her father M^{r} Salter.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{rs} Hayne.

THOMAS IRVING.

N.D. [1773.]—A paper containing extracts of letters in favour of Thomas Irving Inspector General of Exports, from the Collector, Commissioners and Secretary of the Customs at Boston to the Treasury and the Board of Customs at home, to the effect that he has rendered essential service to the Government.

2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Extracts concern^{g} M^{r} Irving.

WILLIAM KNOX.

N.D. [Qy. 1773 or 1774.]—On the proposed mode of granting lands in America. A long essay containing comparison between the present mode and that intended to be adopted.
In Knox's hand. 30¾ pages.

LORD CHARLES GREVILLE MONTAGU to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N.D. [1773.]—Pecuniary losses sustained by him in the execution of his appointment as Governor of South Carolina. Hopes his Lordship will represent his case to the King that he may be allowed the same salary which has lately been established for the Governors of New York and Boston.
Original. 3 pages.

Endorsed:—To the Earl of Dartmouth His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies and Plantations.
The Memorial of Lord Charles Greville Montagu Governor of South Carolina.

NEW ENGLAND.

N.D. [Qy. 1773.]—A list of New England Grievances. "1. Acts of Parliament raising a revenue in America without our Consent. 2. The Appropriation of it alarming. Salary to the Governor destroying the mutual Dependence between him & People, establish'd by the Charter. Creating undue Dependance of the Judges on the Crown. 3. Revenue Officers needlessly multiplied in the Colonies. Board of Comm^{rs} an Innovation, embarrassing Trade, Fleets & Armies posted in the Province for no purpose but to protect them in their Oppressions. 4. Enormous Extension of Admiralty Powers an intolerable Grievance—depriving of Rights to Trial by Juries. 5. Act about Dockyards depriving of Trial by the Vicinage. 6. Instructions to seize our Fortress, Castle William. 7. Danger from the Powers of a Military Commander in chief. 8. Instruction to exempt Particular Persons from Taxes repugnant to Rights of the General Court. 9. Instruction forbidding Governor to assent to the Payment of the Agent."
⅔ quarto page.

Endorsed:—N° 14. New England Grievances.

PAPER MONEY in AMERICA.

N.D. [Qy. about 1773 or 1774.]—Paper concerning the issuing of paper bills of credit in the Colonies.
2⅔ pages.

Endorsed:—C—18. Paper Money in the Colonies.

PENNSYLVANIA.

1773.—A Paper headed "The foreign Trade of Pensylvania," being Imports from and Exports to the Foreign European Ports. Extracted from the Collector's account.
1 page.

Endorsed:—Pennsylvania Trade.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

1773.—A paper endorsed "S. Carolina Proceedings concerning the Commitment of Powell the Printer. Augst 1773." Quoting, amongst other items, the Protest of William Henry Drayton of 27 August and the Addresses of the Council of 11 September to the King and to Governor Bull.

Draft. 54 pages.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

N.D. [to 1773].—A sketch of the proceedings of the Assembly relative to the transmission of money from the Public Treasury to England. Endorsed 1769, but the proceedings appear to be carried up to the autumn of 1773. Gives details of the proceedings resulting from the correspondence between Lieutenant Governor Bull and Lord Hillsborough and Governor Montagu and the Earl of Dartmouth.

Draft. 71⅔ pages.

Endorsed:—No. 1. Proceedings of the Assembly, relative to the Transmission of Money from the Public Treasury to England. 1769.

EDWARD SOUTHHOUSE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773.—Memorial. Is by profession an attorney.

2 pages.

Endorsed:—Memorial of M^{r} Edward Southouse praying for an office in N^{o} America, or elsewhere. 1773. Ent^{d}.

ROYALIST MILITIA.

1774, January 1. New York.—General Return of the Orange Regiment consisting of Two Battalions commanded by Colonel William Bayard.

Original, signed William Bayard. ⅔ large page.

Endorsed:—General Return of the 1st & 2^{d} Battalion's of the Orange Regiment Commanded By Colonel William Bayard New York 1st Jan^{y} 1774.

MRS. S. OSBORN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, January 1.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A—31. M^{rs} Osborn 1st Jan^{ry} 1774. Recommending M^{r} John Fennel, whose Letter to her is inclosed. V. Cor. p. 20.

Enclosure:—

JOHN FENNELL to [MRS. S. OSBORN].

1773, August 12.—Requests her influence with the Earl of Dartmouth for an appointment in the proposed colony on the Ohio.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

FIRE at FORT GEORGE, NEW YORK.

1774, January 3–14.—Various depositions of Governor Tryon's servants—Patty Hatch, housekeeper, Benjamin Johnson, Malcolm McIsaac, Ann Patterson, Isaac De Peny, Elizabeth Dudley, Elizabeth Laycock, Moses Mardon, and of Samuel Bayard, Merchant, as to the fire in Fort George, sworn before Whitehead Hicks, Mayor. 3, 4, 5, and 14 January 1774.

Certified copies. 3½ pages.

Endorsed :—January 1774. Depositions of the Governor's Servants touching the Fire in Fort George. As also the Deposition of Samuel Bayard Merchant.

The MASSACHUSETTS GAZETTE and BOSTON WEEKLY NEWS LETTER.

1774, January 6, Thursday.—Number 3666.

4 printed pages.

SAMUEL KEMBLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, January 7. New York.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Kemble N. York 7 Jan. 1774. Returning Thanks for his Appointment of Naval Officer of N. York.

[THOMAS CROWLEY] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, January 8. Grace Church Street.—Paper signed Amor Patriæ, certified T[homas] C[rowley] and addressed to Lord Dartmouth. "Wisdom is better than Weapons of War, but one Sinner destroyeth much Good." Eccles. 9th ch. Ver. 18. An essay on American taxation.

Copy. 1⅔ pages.

Endorsed :—Amor Patriæ 1774. Ex.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM.

1774, January 10.—Memorandum. American lands to be cultivated, manufactures to be discouraged. Suggests the separation of the garrison and King's officers from the inhabitants in each province by the erection of forts large enough to hold 3,000 men besides the governor's residence.

Autograph. With seal. 1½ pages.

Endorsed :—Memorandum concerning America.

THOMAS DE LA MAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, January 10. New Bond Street.—Upon the subject of the enclosure.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Delamaine Jan^ry^ 1775.

Enclosure :—

Thoughts upon American Complaints. "The Complaints from America, like those of most other States, spring from the two great bases of political security, Property and Liberty."
Original not signed. 5¾ pages.

Endorsed :—Thoughts on America.

The KING'S SPEECH to PARLIAMENT.

[1774, January 13.]—Draft, with interlineations and corrections by Lord Dartmouth. Not dated—believed to be about this date. Regrets that peace between Russia and the Porte is not yet effected. Recommends to their attention the state of the gold coin. Has ordered the proper estimates for the current year to be laid before the House of Commons. Desires they will be careful to select for their immediate consideration such affairs as appear most important.
3⅓ pages.

Endorsed :—Dra^t of Speech.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR ELIAS DURNFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, January 15. London.—On the enclosures.
Autograph letter signed. 1 page.

Endorsed :—Lieut. Gov^r Durnford 15 Jan^y 1774.

Enclosures :—

Cause of the high price of provisions in West Florida.
Original. In Durnford's hand. ⅔ page.

Proposed Regulation for Fees in West Florida.
Original. In Durnford's hand. ½ page.

Observations on the Indian Affairs of West Florida.
Original. In Durnford's hand. 1⅓ pages.

T. WEBB to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, January 19.—Has seen Mr. Smith the Chief Justice of the Jerseys who tendered any services in his power in favour of Mr. Haynes. It rests with Mrs. Haynes to prove her father Richard Salter heir to Henry Salter. Acquaints of two vacancies in New York by the deaths of the naval officer and commissary general of provisions. Would be glad of the latter appointment. Flatters himself that his Lordship will not forget his long and faithful services.
Letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r Webb N. Jersey. Jan^y 19 1774.

THOMAS HUNT to the REVEREND MR. MADAN.

1774, January 22. No. 15, Bread Street.—Mr. and Mrs. Hayne desire their acknowledgements to Lord Dartmouth for his kindness in writing to Judge Smith. As the efforts to obtain a copy of the late Richard Salter's will have proved ineffectual, they intreat his Lordship to write to the Governor of New York requesting him to obtain and transmit a copy of the will immediately.

Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 1 quarto page.

SIR FRANCIS BERNARD to JOHN POWNALL.

1773 [should be 1774], January 23. Aylesbury.—Sends extract of a letter which comes from one who is firm in the interests of government.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—S^r F. Bernard to J. Pownall Esq. Ex.

Enclosure:—

1773, December 16.—Extract of a letter from Boston. "The Temper of the People, and what has lately been said to be the disposition of Administration, lead some to think the Revenue Acts may be repealed and the American board of Commissioners be dissolved. You will hear more particularly than I can inform you, That the Tea in Bruce and Hall was this evening distroyed." The Governor is detested by one party while he is blamed by the other. Does not think the people will come to a general and open rebellion if the government should pursue coercive measures, but it may be feared when a firm union between the Colonies may be completed.

1 quarto page.

SAMUEL WHARTON to THOMAS PITT.

1774, January 25. Argyle Street.—Concerning the grant of land made to Mr. Walpole and his associates and the objections made to it by the Attorney and Solicitor General.

Letter signed. 10¼ pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Wh. to M^r Pitt concern^g Vandalia.

WILLIAM BOLLAN to the KING.

1774, January 26.—Petition. Showing that the harmony between Great Britain and the colonies has been disturbed by the King's ministers and that the Council of Massachusetts have endeavoured to preserve peace and good order although Governor Thomas Hutchinson while Lieutenant Governor wrote letters most unjustly censuring their conduct. Complains of the representations made against the Council by the Governor as also by Andrew Oliver Lieutenant Governor. Desires that copies of the Council's proceedings may be added to the other papers now before the Privy Council.

Copy. 2¾ pages.

Endorsed:—Petition of M^r Bollan, agent for the Council of the Massachu^tts province, to his Majesty. Copy. Ex.

SIR GEORGE SAVILE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^r G^o Saville 28 Jan^y 1774. relative to M^r Green's Desire of being Secretary of N. Hampshire.

HANS STANLEY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, January 28. Privy Garden.—On behalf of Captain Pryce who has lately submitted a memorial of his services and of his pretensions to a grant of lands in America.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ pages.

Endorsed :—H. Stanley Esq^{r} 28 Jan^{y} 1774 recommending Capt. Pryce.

CABINET MINUTE.

1774, January 29.—(Held at the Earl of Suffolk's.) Concerning American advices to be laid before the House of Lords.

Draft. 1⅓ pages.

Endorsed :—Minute 29 Jan^{y} 1774. Ex.

CAPTAIN HENRY CALDWELL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, January 29. London.—A report has prevailed for some days past that his Majesty intends raising a corps of his Canadian subjects. Offers his services on the occasion. Supposes there may be 1,000 men on his estates in Canada holding their lands under feudal tenure and liable to military service, who are fit to bear arms. His powers as a seigneur and his experience as a military officer are both at the disposal of Government.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—B—21. Cap. Caldwell 29 Jan^{y} 1774.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, January 29. London.—The people of Boston are endeavouring to raise a sum equal to the value of the teas destroyed to refund the Company. There remains still some fear of the consequences of their late frantic behaviour.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—L^{t} Col. Dalrymple 29 Jan^{y} 1774.

JOHN MALCOLM to GOVERNOR HUTCHINSON and the HOUSE of REPRESENTATIVES of MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

[1774, January 30, certified].—Memorial, giving an account of the outrage committed on him by the people of Boston and desiring relief and suitable redress. Not dated. With a certificate by Joseph Gardner J. P. 30 January 1774, followed by a Resolutton of both Houses of the Province 1 February relative to the memorial.

Copy certified in London 16 June 1774. 2⅔ pages.

Endorsed :—Copy of Petition To the Governor and Representatives Massachusetts Bay N. England 1st February 1774. J. Malcolm.

ROYALIST MILTIA.

1774, January 31.—A list of the foot company of Flatbush in King's County whereof Leffert Martense is Captain, Johannes Ditmas Lieutenant and Jacob Snediker Ensign.

Signed Leffert Martense. 1 page.

Endorsed :—A List of the Foot Company of Flat Bush.

1774, January 31.—Return, addressed To his Excellency Governor Tryon, of the strength of the regiment of militia in West Chester County by James Van Cortlandt Colonel of the Regiment.
Signed. 1 page.

Endorsed:—Weschester Militia Col^{o} Ja^{s} Van Cortlandt.

"AN OPINION" ON AMERICAN AFFAIRS.

1774, January.—Concerning the present disposition of the colonies and measures to be pursued in consequence.
2 pages.

Endorsed:—An Opinion. Jan^{ry} 1774.

AMERICAN TRADE.

1774, January.—Britannicus. Thoughts on American trade. How to make the Colonies serviceable to the Mother Country.
Original signed. 1⅔ pages.

Endorsed:—C.—5. Britannicus Jan. 1774. Thoughts on American Affairs. Britannicus Jan^{y} 1774.

TEA.

N.D. [1774, January.]—Paper headed "Case" beginning "The Advices received from Boston in letters from Governor Hutchinson, Admiral Montagu and the Commandant of the King's Troops at Castle William, and the Information taken here of Captain Scott lately arrived from thence, contain the following Facts"—(etc). With two Queries "on the foregoing Case" and Appendices A to I.

Appendix A.—Governor Hutchinson to Earl of Dartmouth Extract 4 November 1773.
Enclosures:—
Copy of an impersonal letter signed O. C. and addressed to Thomas and Elisha Hutchinson [2 November].
Copy of a printed notification posted up in Boston 3 November.
Benjamin Davis. Narrative of proceedings with regard to the tea [3 November].
Josiah Green. Narrative of proceedings [3 November].

Appendix B.—Governor Hutchinson to the Earl of Dartmouth 6 November 1773.
Enclosures:—
Boston. [Freeholders and] inhabitants Vote to request Thomas and Elisha Hutchinson to resign 5 November.
Thomas Hutchinson Jun^{r} for self and brother to John Hancock [4 November].
Richard Clark and others to John Hancock 4 November.

Appendix C.—Governor Hutchinson to the Earl of Dartmouth 15 November 1773.

Appendix D.—Governor Hutchinson to the Earl of Dartmouth 2 December 1773.

Enclosures :—

Extract from Massachusetts Gazette 26 November.

Massachusetts. Minutes of Council 19/29 November with a petition from Richard Clarke and others to the Governor and Council and a Certificate of Hutchinson.

Proceedings of Boston inhabitants 29 and 30 November (headed 1 December.)

Appendix E.—Information of Capt. Scott taken 25 January 1774.

Appendix F.—Rear-Adl. Montagu to Philip Stephens 8 December 1773.

Appendix G.—Governor Hutchinson to the Earl of Dartmouth 15 December.

Appendix H.—Governor Hutchinson to the Earl of Dartmouth 17 December.

Appendix I.—Rear-Adml. Montagu to Philip Stephens 17 December.

82½ pages.

The same "Case" and "Queries" but without the Appendices.

TEA.

N.D. [Qy. about 1774, January].—Paper headed "Narrative" similar to the foregoing "Case" but giving also abstracts of letters from Major General Haldimand, from Philadelphia and the agents of the East India Company there, and from Governor Bull of South Carolina.

Draft. 30½ pages.

Endorsed :—Narrative.

JOHN HURST to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, February 1. Bow Churchyard.—Transmitting enclosure.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Concern^{s} American Lands M^{r} Hurst.

Enclosure :—

HENRY REMSEN to JOHN HURST.

1773, October 25. New York.—Per the "London" Captain Chambers. Concerning a tract of land which he has discovered in New York. Recommends it to the Earl of Dartmouth for one of his sons. Gives boundaries and description.

Signed copy. 2 pages.

JOHN LANE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, February 2. Nicholas Lane.—Desires Mr. Woodbury Langdon may be appointed to a vacancy in the Council of New Hampshire occasioned by the death of Mr. Daniel Pierce.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

RETURNS OF ROYALIST MILITIA.

1774, February 2.—A list of the Militia company of foot in the township of Flatlands in King's County signed by Captain Jeremiah Vander Bilt.
$1\frac{1}{3}$ pages.

Endorsed:—Col° Lots Return of the Militia in King's County.

1774, February 2.—"A list Or Roole of the Names of the Troupers in King's County under the command of Captain Rem Couwenhoven," signed by him.
1 page.

Endorsed:—The Return of the Troop in King's County.

1774, February 2.—A list of the company of militia of the township of New Streight under the command of Jacques Denyse.
Signed. 1 page.

1774, February 3.—A list of the militia of Gravesend, whereof Isaac Denyse is Captain, signed by him.
1 page.

1774, February 4.—A list of the militia &c. of the north side of the Rode of the township of Brookland under the command of Captain Abraham Remson.
Signed. 1 page.

1774, February 4.—A list of the men's names in the western division of the township of Brooklands in King's County, signed by Captain Farnandus Suydam.
1 quarto page.

CABINET MINUTE.

1774, February 4.—(At Lord Rochford's office.) In Lord Dartmouth's hand. To recommend to the King that the Governor remove to some place in the province least likely to be influenced by Boston. The Attorney and Solicitor General to consider whether the late proceedings amount to high treason.
Rough draft. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Minute 4 Feb^y 1774.

WILLIAM BOLLAN TO LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, February 5. Covent Garden.—Concerning the laying of his petition before the King and his desire to be heard on behalf of the Council he represents.
Letter signed. With seal (broken). 2 quarto pages.

CABINET MINUTE.

1774, February 5.—(At the Earl of Sandwich's.) In Lord Dartmouth's hand. Measures to be pursued in case the Attorney and Solicitor

General are of opinion that there is sufficient ground to institute a criminal proceeding against any of the persons concerned in the late outrages committed in Boston.

1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Minute 5 Feby 1774.

"AMOR PATRIÆ" [THOMAS CROWLEY] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, February 5. Grace Church Street.—The advisability of sending ships of war to procure justice by capturing vessels bound from the American ports to foreign European ports and the West Indies, rather than depending wholly on military inland measures.

Original. ⅔ quarto page.

Endorsed:—Amor Patriæ 1774.

Enclosure:—

Letter to the Printer of the Public Ledger signed "Amor Patriæ." On the important crisis now pending between England and America.

Newspaper cutting. ½ column.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, February 5. North America.—Thoughts upon the American colonies. Taxation. Fears if some conciliatory measures are not adopted, hostile aversions and animosities will produce mutual distress.

Autograph. 21⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Anonimous N. America 5 Feby 1774. R/ 11 July Ex.

RETURNS OF ROYALIST MILITIA.

1774, February 7.—A list of the militia company of foot of Bushwick in King's County, signed by Captain Petrus Lott.

1¾ pages.

1774, February 8.—A list of the names of the officers belonging to the regiment of King's County who are not included in the several rolls of the respective companies.

Original. ½ quarto page.

A return of the militia in Richmond County, with a list of persons recommended by Christopher Billopps to Governor Tryon, dated 8 February 1774. The commissions dated 25 February.

2 pages.

Endorsed:—Return of Col. Christopēr Billops Regiment in Richmond County.

COLONEL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH.]

1774, February 10. London.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Col. Dalrymple 10 Feb. 1774 desiring Employment in the Measures with America.

The NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE and HISTORICAL CHRONICLE.

1774, February 11.—Containing, amongst other items, speeches of Gov. Wentworth of 12 and 14 January and address of the Assembly on the 21st.

No. 903. 2 printed pages.

Endorsed (on a wrapper):—Case of Mr Livius.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to JOHN THORNTON.

1774, February 12.—When he writes to Mr. Gordon, will he desire him, if he has any influence among the leading persons in the province, to set before them how fatally and effectually they have now shut the door against all possibility of present relief for any of the things they complain of, and how utterly vain it must be to expect that Parliament will ever give it them till there appears to be a change in their temper and conduct. Would be thought as mad as they if he were to say a word of repealing the tea duty now. . . . Hopes yet to see it done. Had they made no opposition to the E. India Company's teas it might have been this session. . . . If it is meant to drive this country to extremities, there is an end of all schemes and plans of reconciliation.

Copy. Last few lines in Lord Dartmouth's hand. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Copy to J. Thornton Esqr 12 Feb. 1774. On Mr Gordon's Letter, and Boston Riots.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, February 13. Downing Street.—Believes that a letter from the Admiralty to Mr Montagu will be requisite that he may know the conduct he ought to hold with respect to ships attempting to enter the harbour of Boston. Has sent a short sketch of a letter which contains his idea of the order proper to be sent to the Treasury.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Ld North Feby 13 1774 relative to the Boston Bill &c.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, February 14, at Mr. Roberts, Queen Street, Westminster.—The vessels, boats, and instruments he requires are for the King's and not for his own service and will remain the King's property for ever. What he requires for himself is an honest subsistence so that he with his family may not burden others. Refers to the representations he has made of his sufferings. Desires that justice may be done to his demands.

Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

ROYALIST MILITIA.

1774, February 15.—Return of the Southern regiment of militia in the County of Cumberland within the Province of New York, signed by Colonel Wells. The commissions issued 15 March 1774.

1 page.

Endorsed:—Return of Col Wells Regeimt Cumberland County.

CORBYN MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, February 15. Board Room, Custom House.—Mr. Beaumont's case with regard to the tobacco seized from him stands in a very unfavourable light. In consequence of the enclosed report and the solicitor's opinion thereon the Board have ordered the tobacco to be proscribed.

Autograph, third person.—1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Corbyn Morris Esqr 15 Feby 1774. Mr Beaumont's Case.

Enclosure:—

H. STONE and W. SPENCE to [the BOARD OF CUSTOMS].

1774, February 5.—Report. Seizure made by them of tobacco in possession of Mr. Beaumont of Rosemary High Street or Lane, some of which is from Virginia and Maryland. At the end is this note.—12th February 1774 To the Solicitor with the former papers E. M. From the Officers report, The goods appear liable to Seizure, J. Hedges, for Mr Medcalfe, 12th Feb. 1774. 14th Feby. Prosecute. E. H.

CABINET MINUTE.

1774, February 16.—(At Lord Rochford's.) In Lord Dartmouth's hand. Decision concerning the information lately received from Boston touching the disorders there. Agreed that two guard ships be added to the squadron under the command of Admiral Montagu at Boston.

$1\frac{2}{4}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Minute 16 Feby 1774.

1774, February 19.—Heads, apparently for the following Cabinet Minute. In Lord Dartmouth's hand.

$1\frac{1}{8}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Heads for a minute 19 Feby 1774.

CABINET MINUTE.

[1774], February 19.—(At Lord Dartmouth's.) In John Pownall's hand. In case a warrant is issued to arrest persons guilty of treason at Boston to recommend the King to send out a person conversant in the law to assist in its execution. Advices received from America, with the proceedings of the Privy Council thereupon to be laid before the Houses of Parliament. Permission to be gained to bring in the Boston Port Bill and a bill to alter the constitution of Massachusetts Bay.

$2\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

ROYALIST MILITIA.

1774, February 19.—A muster roll of the regiment on the north side of the Highlands in Orange County.

Not signed. 1 page.

Endorsed:—Return of Colo Tusten's Regiment in Orange County.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to the HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

1774, February 22. Boston.—Message dated Council Chamber 22 February 1774. Is headed Boston, Thursday, 24 February 1774.
Copy. 4 pages.

ROYALIST MILITIA.

1774, February 24. Windsor.—Return of the Second Regiment of Militia in the County of Cumberland. Commanded by Colonel Nathan Stone. Commissions issued 19 March 1774.
Original signed. 1 page.

THOMAS BRIDGEN ATWOOD to the EARL OF ROCHFORD.

1774, February 28. New York.—Recommends a former inhabitant of Bungay, Suffolk, who is in reduced circumstances. A small post in the Customs, in the post office, or in the land office, in New York, Boston, Quebec, Montreal or Philadelphia, of only £50 salary, would supply all his wants.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Atwood to L^d^ Rochford. N. York. 28 Feb^y^ 1774, recommending M^r^ Brown.

CABINET MINUTE.

1774, February 28.—With memorandum of a previous minute, undated, on the same business. In Lord Dartmouth's hand. As the charge of high treason cannot be maintained against any individuals on the ground of the depositions taken at the Council Board on the 19th instant, agreed that the depositions with the American advices be laid before Parliament on Monday next. To address the King with assurances of support. Boston Port Bill to be brought in and a bill for supporting the declaratory act of the 6th of this reign.
2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Minute 28 Feb^y^ 1774.

BOSTON.

1774, February.—Remarks of a Merchant who makes an annual progress through the colonies on the continent of North America upon the character of the people at Boston. They are not only the worst subjects but the most truly immoral men of any he has had to deal with, unfair in trade, etc. If large and loud professions of the Gospel be an exact criterion of vital religion they are the best people on earth but if meekness, gentleness and patience constitute any part, those qualities are not found there. If they could maintain a state of independence they would soon be at war amongst themselves.
2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A Merchant's Remarks upon the People of Boston. R/ Feb. 1774.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, February. Letter not signed.—The importance of removing Mess^rs^ Hutchinson and Oliver. "The fairest opportunity is now offer'd for Government perfectly consistent with its Dignity, to restore the American System to its good old-Establishment." . . . . . . "All they want is to be restored to the State they were in, before the unhappy period of the late M^{r} George Grenville's administration; & let the glorious successes of the late War tell, whether that is not a desirable one, both for the Mother Country and the Colonies."

Original. 3⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Anonymous Feb^{y} 1774. Redress of Amer. Complaints.

CABINET MINUTE.

1774, March 1.—In Lord Dartmouth's hand. With a memorandum in Pownall's hand dated from the Secretary's Office 4 o'clock concerning the opinion of the Attorney General on a certain case. Resolutions as to alterations in the manner of appointing justices of the peace in Massachusetts Bay and in the constitution of the Province.

⅔ quarto page.

Endorsed:—Minute 1 March 1774.

CORBYN MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 1. Princes Street.—Submits a plan for an American representation.

Autograph, third person. 1 quarto page.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, March 1. Caroline Park.—Explains that Dr. Ferguson, the present Professor of Moral Philosophy in the University there, having been appointed travelling tutor to Lord Chesterfield's heir, and being unwilling to part with his chair has wished for a year's leave of absence. The magistrates are not willing to grant this. Dr. Beattie stands well with them but he has made many enemies by his attack on Hume. Is urging his nomination. Sends an essay on emigration written by a Highlander. The Episcopal Church is nearly finished; subscriptions are failing. As the Commander in Chief in Scotland is generally an Englishman and no provision made for the exercise of his religion suggests that with £200 a pew could be bought in perpetuity and furnished decently for his use.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^{r} Adolphus Oughton 1st March 1774, on D^{r} Ferguson, D^{r} Beattie, episcopal Church, &c.

Note.—Dr. Adam Ferguson appears later in the history of the America nwar as secretary to the Commissioners—Lord Carlisle, William Eden and Governor Johnstone, who in 1778 were sent to America to restore peace.

MINUTE of COUNCIL. NEW YORK.

1774, March 2. Wednesday.—Accompanied by copy of a Petition of the Inhabitants of Spencer Town Albany County to Governor Tryon.

Copy. Certified Gw. Banyar. 1¾ and 2 pages respectively.

Endorsed:—9/0 Paid for this Minutes Council. 2nd Coppy. Also, Extract of Minnets of Counsel of the Desseption line. New York. 3^{d}.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 3. Great Queen Street, Westminster.—Captain Atkins will be obliged if his Lordship will recommend him to Lord Sandwich for the command of the sloop ordered for the service of the General Survey.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

> List of the Sloops of War at present not in Commission.
> Autograph of De Brahm. ½ page.

COUNT BRÜHL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, March 4. G. George Street.—John Augustus Ernst has a grant of 20,000 acres in East Florida dated May 13 1767 which he is desirous of having located. Jean André de Luc, a citizen of Geneva, is the other gentleman mentioned.
Autograph, third person. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Count Brühl 4 March 1774 recommending M^r^ Ernst & M^r^ de Luc.

The EARL OF SUFFOLK to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, March 5. 30 minutes past 8 a.m. Duke Street, Westminster. —Will Lord Dartmouth send him the American papers.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

LORD CHANCELLOR APSLEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[1774, March 6.] Sunday evening.—His opinion of the different bills being discussed in Parliament concerning Boston. States measures he considers necessary to be pursued towards the ringleaders in Boston as the past palliative ones have brought on the present situation.
Autograph letter signed. 3¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^d^ Chancellor 6 March 1774 on Boston Affairs.

The KING to PARLIAMENT.

N.D. [1774, March 7, about.]—Draft of a Royal Message to the Houses of Parliament. Desiring that they will take into consideration the state of affairs in Boston and the best measures to be pursued.
1⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Dra^t^ of Message original D^t^.

Endorsed (on a wrapper). Dra^t^ of Motion in the House of Lords— and House of Commons.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 7. Augustine.—Private Letter. No. 1. In his passage a gale of wind took them off the coast of Portugal. Was unable to touch at Madeira. Sends copies of a letter from Lord Barrington and his answer relative to a charge for the garrison hospital at St. Augustine. Hopes his answer to Lord Barrington will meet with his Lordship's approbation. Is concerned to find the principal inhabitants of this place divided into parties. Is afraid some oppressions have been practised by the attornies.

Autograph letter signed. 3 pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^{r} Tonyn 7 M^{ch} 1774. Private.

Enclosures:—

LORD BARRINGTON to GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN.

1773, November 3. War Office.—Desires the charges of Mr. Catherwood, Surgeon to the Garrison of St. Augustine, be defrayed and placed to his (Gov. Tonyn's) contingent account.

Copy. 1 page.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to LORD VISCOUNT BARRINGTON.

1774, March 7. Augustine.—Arrived at this place on the 1st instant. In the course of business Mr. Catherwood's disbursements shall be examined. A specific sum is allowed for the contingent expenses of the civil government of this province, so that his Lordship can judge with what fitness he can charge a military hospital's contingent expenses to the civil contingencies.

Copy. 2 pages.

SIR JEFFERY AMHERST to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 9, Wednesday. Whitehall.—Transmitting the enclosed.

Autograph, third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—S^{r} Jeffery Amherst 9 March 1774 Consum. of Tea in America.

Enclosure:—

Extract of a letter from a friend in America. Concerning the importation of English and Dutch teas in America

3 quarto pages.

CABINET MINUTE.

1774, March 10, Thursday.—(At Lord Rochford's office.) In Lord Dartmouth's hand. Concerning the Bills for removing the port and seat of Government in Massachusetts Bay and for Indemnification.

¾ quarto page.

Endorsed:—Minute 10 March 1774.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 10. Caroline Park.—Reasons given by Dr. Beattie for declining the moral philosophy chair. Recommends Lord Dalhousie for Parliament. Adjutant General Colonel Skene is now in Half Moon

Street, Piccadilly. Canvassing for the general election is almost the sole object of attention in this country for which purpose an immense number of occasional votes have been made. Fate of the linen bill is waited for with great anxiety.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^r^ Adol. Oughton 10 March 1774. D^r^ Beattie, L^d^ Dalhousie, &c.

MR. ABERCROMBY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 12.—At Mr. Russell's Oxenden Street. Sends the enclosed note on account of seeing his Lordship abused in the Daily Ledger for laying the American papers before the House of Lords in the first instance.

Autograph, third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Abercrombie 12 March 1774. On presenting American Bills, in the first Instance, to the House of Lords.

Enclosure:—

Note of a Plantation Case in the House of Lords of 12 March 1705.

CORBYN MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 13.—Suggesting the use of the enclosed form.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—C. Morris Esq^r^. 13 March 1774. American Tests.

Enclosure:—

Form of declaration to be made by an American magistrate before admission into office.

In Morris's hand. ¾ quarto page.

Endorsed:—Declaration of an American Magistrate.

BENJAMIN BARONS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 16. Acton, Middlesex.—Remarks on the situation of affairs since the passing of the Stamp Act. Offers his sentiments upon the natural disposition and political sentiments of the Americans.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Barons 16 March 1774. On American Affairs.

THOMAS KNOX GORDON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, March 16. Charlestown, South Carolina.—Without presuming, he would like to suggest that the son of the late naval officer of Georgia might be appointed in his place.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Gordon Ch. Jus. of S. Carolina March 16 1774 rec^g^ the son of the late naval officer of Georgia.

LORD NORTH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 17.—Settled the Bill yesterday evening. Did not adopt the Atty. General's plan. The Bill does not differ in matter from the old one but is extremely altered in form.

Autograph letter signed. 1¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—L^d North 17 March 1774. On the Boston Bill.

JOHN WILLIAMS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 17.—There are but two other harbours besides that of Boston in Massachusetts which are in any way convenient for shipping, namely, one at Casco Bay, and the other at Plimouth. If proceedings in the Massachusetts Government should occasion their charter to be vacated, submits that it would be equally just to inflict a like punishment on Rhode Island. Apprehends in this case that it would tend to promote the intended ends if Rhode Island and that part of Massachusetts lying west of New Hampshire were incorporated into one government and Maine annexed to New Hampshire.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r Williams 18 March 1774. Port of Salem &c.

Enclosure :—

Paper endorsed—Extract from M^r Williams's Report of the Port of Salem.
2 pages.

WILLIAM BRADLEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 19.

Letter signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—W^m Bradley Plan for a Coinage for America recom^d by M^r Ward.

Enclosure :—

A scheme proposed for raising the sum of four millions of specie to be coined into a particular coin for the use of America, with tables showing how it may be done.
Original. 8 pages.

JOHN WILLDAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 19. [Athe]rstone near Coventry.—Writes from a desire of rendering some service to both countries. Opines it would be much better to give up the right of taxing America, to make requisitions to their Assemblies for such aids as were wanting, and to give them seats in Parliament to enable them to assist in making laws for the good of the whole empire. The American members to have no vote for taxing Great Britain.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ pages.

Endorsed :—John Willday Atherston 19 March conc^g America. (And, in pencil) S^r F. Bernard. M^r Hutchinson.

The EARL OF DUNMORE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 20. Williamsburg.—Private. Hoping that his conduct has appeared to His Majesty in such a light that he may ask for his re-election as one of the sixteen peers.
Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Duplicate of the foregoing.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 21. Boston.—Receipt of letter No. 14. Remarks as to using military aid in riots. The Chief Justice. Desire of the House to be informed of the state of the province powder and their proceedings on this point. Judges' salaries. Measures projecting in opposition to the establishment of the Post Office in America, the proposals coming from as far southward as the Committees of Pennsylvania and Maryland to the Committees of this province. The messenger who came with proposals to this province is gone forward to New Hampshire.
Copy. $5\frac{1}{3}$ pages. [The signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 175, fo. 315. Copies were presented to Parliament, amongst other American papers, on the 17th May.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Gov^r^ Hutchinson to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated Boston, 21^st^ March, 1774.

ROYALIST MILITIA.

1774, March 21.—A return of Colonel John Peters' regiment in Gloucester County and Province of New York.
Original signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—A Return of the Gloucester Militia by Col^o^ Peters.

1774, March 21. Johnson Hall.—Return of the Militia both Horse and Foot of the Northern District of the Province of New York under the command of Sir William Johnson.
Original signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—To His Excell^y^ Gov^r^ Tryon, Return of the Militia of the Northern District of the Province of New York. March 21st 1774. This Return serves only for Ulster, Albany, Tryon, and Charlotte County, of which no return has been made to His Excellency Gov^r^ Tryon by the Several Colonels. Ex.

The REVEREND THOMAS RANKIN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, March 30. New York.—On the state of religion in America.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

PETITION to the KING.

[1774, March 31.]—Petition of natives of America to the King to suspend his Royal signature to the Boston Port Bill. Not signed nor dated but according to Force's American Archives Fourth Series Vol. I, col. 61, it was presented to the King 31 March 1774 and was signed by William Lee, Dr. Franklin, John Ellis, Jonathan Williams and others.

1⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Petition of natives of America, agst the Bill for removing the Port of Boston.

BOSTON PORT BILL.

N.D. [1774, March 31, passed].—Two Drafts of the Boston Port Bill and of Clauses A and B.

PETER LIVIUS.

N.D. [1774, March 31, about].—Details of the career of Peter Livius of New Hampshire, with question and observations in reply giving extracts from Acts relating to the right of an alien to fill a place of trust in America.

2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Case of M^{r} Livius.

1774, March 31. Lincoln's Inn Fields.—Opinion of Samuel Wegg on the foregoing case—as to the right of holding office in the colonies with his cosmopolitan nationality.

In two handwritings; signed Samuel Wegg. 1 page.

ORDERS of the LORDS COMMITTEES.

1774, March 31.—American papers to be laid before Committee at their next meeting.

1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Orders of the Lords Committees. In Clerk of Committee's Letter to J.P. 2 April.

BOSTON.

N.D. [1774, March].—Two queries concerning the port of Boston and the removal of the Custom House.

Not signed. ½ quarto page.

Endorsed :—Queries.

COLONEL PETRUS TEN BROECK to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1774, April 1. Rhynobeck.—Transmitting enclosures.

Autograph letter signed. 1 page.

Endorsed :—A Return of Col^{o} Ten Brocks Regim^{t} in Dutchess County.

Enclosures :—

Returns of his regiment. Twelve papers.

GOVERNOR LORD WILLIAM CAMPBELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, April 2. New Man Street.—Having been appointed Governor of South Carolina and finding it impracticable to carry on his Majesty's service with any satisfaction while the affairs of the colony are in such a state of disorder and confusion, he gives the result of the inquiry he has made into them. Represents the necessity of withdrawing an instruction given in April 1770 which the colony will not submit to.

Letter signed. 7 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—L^{d} W. Campbell. 2 April 1774.

Enclosure :—

1771, February 28.—Henry Peronneau, joint public treasurer with Benjamin Dart, Bond and securities for £20,000 for the due execution of the office.

Copy. 2 pages.

The EARL OF DUNMORE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, April 2. W[illiams]burg.—Private. In behalf of Capt. Foy.

Letter signed. $1\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

ISAAC EDWARDS to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1774, April 3. Newbern.—In justification of a representation made against him that he took the lead in the Assembly in opposition to every measure and proposition of the Government.

Autograph letter signed. $9\frac{3}{4}$ pages.

Endorsed :—Isaac Edwards to Gov^{r} Tryon.

Again Endorsed :—Isaac Edwards to Gov^{r} Tryon Newbern 3^{d} Apl 1774. Rec^{d} June 1774. Ans.

MATTHEW BRICKDALE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, April 4. Clifton near Bristol.—Arrival of the "John" from Casco Bay. The captain reports Boston quiet and that contrition seemed to have followed violence. Governor Hutchinson was to have come over in this vessel but preparations were countermanded on account of Lieut.-Governor Oliver's indisposition.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Brickdale 4 April 1774 relative to the State of Things at Boston on the 1st of March, 1774.

MRS. MARIA COWPER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, April 4. Park Street.—Desiring one year's leave of absence for Major Hore who was appointed last year Commissary of Musters and Judge Advocate in America.

Autograph letter signed. $1\frac{1}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{rs} Cowper, Park Street, 4th April, 1774, recommending Major Hore.

NEW YORK.

Docquet of Lands granted by His Excelly. Wm. Tryon Esqr. Capt. Genl. and Govr. in Chief of the Province of New York. Pursuant to His Majesty's Proclamation of the 7 Octr. 1763, from the 7th September 1771 to the 5th April 1774.

$6\frac{2}{3}$ pages.

INHABITANTS of NEW CONCORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, April 6. New York.—Petition signed by James Savage, Agent. Concerning the settlement made by them of New Concord. Entreat that his Lordship will not permit their land to become the property of others and that he will procure instructions to the Governor to grant them the land or such part thereof, sufficient to secure them from penury and wretchedness.

2 pages.

Endorsed:—Petition of the Inhabitants of New Concord N. York.

NEW YORK.

A docquet of lands granted by Governor William Tryon (exclusive of military grants) from 5 September 1771 to 6 April 1774.

Original signed. $2\frac{1}{2}$ pages.

CABINET MINUTE.

1774, April 7.—(At Lord Rochford's office.) In Lord Dartmouth's hand. Consideration of the questions asked by General Gage with reference to his authority to call out the King's troops to assist in quelling disturbances without the advice of the Council of Massachusetts Bay.

$2\frac{1}{8}$ pages.

Endorsed:—Minute 7 April 1774. N. G.P. A. R.

Not dated. Paper headed "Questions"—probably those referred to in the foregoing Minute. If any violences should be committed, or opposition given to the execution of the Act of Parliament, (etc.) can General Gage in such cases, call in the military to his assistance without the advice and consent of the Council; and what steps should he take if he and his troops should be exposed to prosecution?

$\frac{3}{4}$ folio page.

ORDER of the HOUSE OF LORDS.

1774, April 7. House of Lords.—Lord Dartmouth to lay before the Lords Committee extracts of papers relative to proceedings at Boston, which have been received at his office.

Signed by their Lordship's command, Matt^{w} Rob^{t} Arnott. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Order of House of Lords. April 7th 1774.

COLONEL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, April 8. London.—Submits the expediency of securing Castle William at Boston to the Government.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON.

1774, April 9.—The King's approval of his conduct. State of his province.
Draft in Dartmouth's hand. 4⅛ pages.

Endorsed:—Draft to Gov^r Hutchinson 9 April 1774. Private.

A copy follows marked "addressed by Lord Dartmouth to Gov^r Hutchinson immediately before his sailing for England in 1774. A."

[ORDER of the HOUSE OF LORDS.]

N. D. [Qy. 1774, April 14.]—In William Knox's hand. That there be laid before the House copies or extracts of all letters and papers which have been received by His Majesty's Secretaries of State from the Governor, Lieutenant Governor or other officers in Massachusetts Bay containing advices of any proceedings in opposition to or derogatory of His Majesty's Sovereignty in Parliament from 7 July 1766.
½ page.

LORD BARRINGTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, April 16. Cavendish Square.—Concerning Capt. Campbell. Hears the Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts is dead. Suggests the appointment of a successor on the spot lest any accident happen to General Gage.
Autograph letter signed. 2¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^d Barrington 16 April 1774 relative to Capt. Campbell's Memorial, desiring military Rank.

Enclosure:—

CAPTAIN JOHN CAMPBELL to LORD VISCOUNT BARRINGTON.

Memorial. Desiring his Lordship will move the King to grant him the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in America.
Not signed. 1 page.

Endorsed:—To the R^t Ho^nble Lord Visco^t Barrington His Majestys Secretary at War. The Memorial of Captain John Campbell.

LORD MONTFORT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, April 20.—Takes the liberty of enclosing this "poor-man's" memorial.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^d Montfort 20 April 1774 in behalf of M^r Randall.

Enclosure :—

1769, August 9. London.—William Randall. Memorial to [Lord Dartmouth] with a note recommending himself to succeed Mr. Oliver as Secretary of Massachusetts Bay. Remarks on the difference between the salary allowed him and that given Surveyors General of the Northern district. Gives an account of his expenses. Desires that the same salary and allowances as those of the Northern district may be made to him or that he may be restored to his former station of comptroller.

Autograph signed. 3 pages.

Endorsed :—The Memorial of William Randall late Surveyor General of the Southern District in America London August 9*th* 1769.

The DUKE OF NEWCASTLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

[1774, April 21.] Exchequer, Thursday.—Begs attention and support to Genl Clinton's memorial to the Treasury, which is referred to his Lordship's board.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

CHARLES GARTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, April 23. Golden Square.—Recommending Mr. Tatnell to succeed to the Naval Office of Georgia.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

SIR ROGER NEWDIGATE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, April 25. Spring Garden.—Recomg. Mr. Wm. Stephens of Georgia to be Naval Officer.

Autograph, third person. With seal (broken). 1 quarto page.

COLONEL ELIAS DURNFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, April 27. London.—Difficulty there is in obtaining fees for surveys of land made by himself or his deputies.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ pages.

Endorsed :—Col. Durnford 27 April 1774 concerg fees as Survr general of W. Florida.

Enclosure :—

COLONEL ELIAS DURNFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

Memorial. Law suits unjustly commenced against him since his departure from the Province. Difficulties in connection with his execution of the duty of Surveyor General. Hopes his Lordship will grant him redress.

Autograph signed. 2 pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, April 28. Great Queen Street, Westminster.—Concerning his astronomical researches.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

JAMES FERGUSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, April 28.—Memorial. Has fulfilled his office without any salary or other emolument than the perquisites which are so small that he finds it impossible to support himself thereupon. Desires a salary may be annexed to his appointments.

Original signed. $\frac{3}{4}$ page.

Endorsed:—To the Right Hon^{be} Lord Dartmouth, Secretary of State for the Colonies First Lord of Trade &c. &c.

The humble Memorial of James Ferguson Ranger of the Woods and Forrests, and Marshal of the Court of Admiralty in West Florida.

EDWARD WEBSTER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, April 28. Lisson Green near Paddington.—Advantage of continuing the bounty granted on the importation of naval stores.

Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 1 quarto page.

MASSACHUSETTS.

N.D. [Qy. spring of 1774.]—Queries for consideration previous to the instructions to be given to General Gage and the other steps to be taken in consequence of the Act for regulating the Government of the Province of Massachusetts Bay.

Draft. 1$\frac{2}{3}$ pages.

Endorsed:—Mass. Bay Queries.

The EARL OF HARDWICKE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, May 8. Richmond.—Has been reading over the American Regulation Bill. His opinion and suggested alterations.

Autograph letter signed. 4$\frac{3}{4}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—E. of Hardwicke 8 May 1774. Thoughts on American Bills before Parliament.

PAUL WENTWORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, May 8. Poland Street.—Requesting an audience on American affairs.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

The REVEREND WILLIAM STRINGER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, May 14, Philadelphia.—Acknowledges his obligations to his Lordship and knows of no better way of expressing his gratitude than by acting up to his character as a clergyman. Distribution he has made of the bibles and prayer books given him by his Lordship. Knows he will be pleased to hear that his labours are blessed amongst his congregation. Mr. Persey's preaching is not acceptable. Consternation in Boston on hearing that their harbour is to be blocked up. All the colonies seem to unite to oppose the authority of Parliament. Recommends Mrs. Stringer's son.

Autograph letter signed. 3$\frac{1}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev. M^{r} Stringer Philad. 14 May 1774.

MAJOR GENERAL HALDIMAND to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, May 15.—The accounts received before the arrival of the packet as late as 14 April had made known the plan of operations intended to bring Boston to a sense of order. It is the opinion of many people here that they will acknowledge their fault. Will defer any changes with regard to troops until he hears from General Gage. Intends suggesting the propriety of stationing a couple of regiments at Crown Point under pretence of rebuilding that fort. Has ordered a company and a half of artillery, field pieces and ammunition to Boston according to orders received from Gen^l Gage of the 6th ultimo.

Extract. 2 pages. [The signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 129, fo. 287. An extract was presented to the Houses of Parliament amongst other American papers, 19 and 20 June 1775.]

JOSEPH WARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, May 20. Boston.—His opinion concerning the restoration of harmony between England and America. The violent measures which are adopted to subject the Americans will never prosper and are pregnant with ruin to the nation.

Autograph letter signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Ward Boston 20 May 1774, on American Affairs.

B. ROBERTS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, May 28.—Has mentioned to his Lordship that his long acquaintance with Governor Browne has made him wish to be settled near his concerns of the Mississippi. Hears that a town is to be formed at the White Cliffs with a Lieutenant Governor who is to be dependent on the Governor of Pensacola. Gives his reasons for soliciting that appointment.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ pages,

Endorsed:—B. Roberts 28 May 1774. Ex.

GOVERNOR SIR FRANCIS BERNARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, May 30. Aylesbury.—Requesting an office for his son.

Letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

SIR CHARLES BURDETT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, June 2. Roxbury near Boston in New England.—Gives an account of his family connections. Appointments he has held in America. Desires his Lordship will use his influence to procure him a better collectorship or some more lucrative employment. Should the place of commissioner of the Customs for America be vacated by Mr. Robinson would be glad to succeed to that or any other profitable collectorship.

Autograph letter signed. 3 pages.

Endorsed:—S^r Cha. Burdet Roxbury N. Eng^d 2 June 1774.

AMERICAN TRADE.

1774, June 9.—Printed letter from J. Massie addressed to The Principal Landholders of England and to the Principal Citizens of London. Announcing the titles of three treatises he proposes to publish on the subject of commerce with Europe and the British American colonies.

2 pages.

COLONEL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, June 14. Great Pulteney Street.—Soliciting preferment.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, June 16. Lower Grosvenor Street.—Private. Desires to know the conduct he should pursue in so delicate an affair, wishing to serve North Carolina and at the same time avoid giving offence to Governor Martin.

Autograph, third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Gov^r^ Tryon 16 June 1774 private with papers concern^g^ N. Carolina.

Enclosures:—

NORTH CAROLINA GENERAL ASSEMBLY to the KING.

Address. Signed John Harvey, Speaker. Express their loyalty. Considered as the "reservoir" which chiefly supplies the materials for framing and supporting the British Navy, claim in this regard the favourable notice of Government. Set forth the disadvantages arising to them from the instruction given to their present Governor with reference to the terms upon which only he will give his assent to a law for establishing Courts of Justice. Desire the restoration of those privileges they have hitherto enjoyed in the process by attachments in common with their sister colonies.

Original. 5¾ pages.

COMMITTEE of the HOUSE of ASSEMBLY to GOVERNOR TRYON of New York.

Address signed by John Harvey and seven others. Complaining of the difference in the system of laws which their Governor has been instructed by His Majesty to introduce. Upon this account they have addressed the King and desire that his Excellency will convey it for them and support their solicitations. The application of the Assembly to him is the result of affection and a firm reliance upon his future efforts in their favour.

Original signed. 2⅔ pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to GOVERNOR JOSIAH MARTIN.

1774, February 15. New York.—Is much concerned to find he has met with so many difficulties in his public transactions.

Enclosures—cont.

Cannot accept of the compliment paid him. Is amazed at the Deputy Auditor's conduct, which he condemns. Since the calamity at Fort George both he and Mrs. Tryon have been extremely ill. Intends sailing in the spring for England.

Abstract, signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^{r} Tryon to Gov^{r} Martin New York 15 feb^{y} 1774.

GOVERNOR JOSIAH MARTIN to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1774, April 5. New Bern, North Carolina.—Cannot forego this opportunity to make his adieus before Tryon's departure. Knowing the interest he takes in the welfare of North Carolina and in order to prevent the ill impressions he may receive with regard to his own proceedings at the late session, he lays before him a few facts, and leaves him to comment upon them at his leisure.

Autograph letter signed. 7½ pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^{r} Martin Newbern 5 Ap^{l} 1774. Rec^{d} in London June 1774. Ans^{r}.

RICHARD REEVE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, June 17, Saturday afternoon, [should be 18]. No. 17, Strand.—Sends, for his Lordship's information, the enclosed which is written by a principal officer in the Customs in the port of Philadelphia.

Autograph letter signed. 1 page.

Endorsed:—R^{d} Reeve 17 June 1774 with Extract of a Letter from Philadelphia.

Enclosure:—

1774, May 15. Extract of a letter from Philadelphia. The sober part of the people now say it will be right to pay for the destruction of the tea at Boston and the losses incurred by sending it back from this place and New York and to petition for a repeal of the act. Commends the measure of removing the officers of the Customs from Boston and the appointment of General Gage to that government as being very wise and giving a degree of credit to administration. Hopes it will end in good order, quiet, and a respect to the laws.

1 page.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1774, June 21. London.—Receipts and disbursements. Taken from the account of Mess^{rs} Drummond.

2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A State of Governor Tryon's Disbursements taken from the Acc^{t} of Mess^{rs} Drummonds Bankers exclusive of those from the Provincial Emoluments & King's Salary in New York.

MARYLAND.

1774, June 22–25.—Proceedings at a meeting of the Committee appointed by the several counties of the Province of Maryland at the city of Annapolis the 22nd June 1774 and continued by adjournment from day to day until the 25th day of same month. Containing ten resolutions touching various Acts of Parliament, non-importation, union with other colonies and a general congress, and an order that copies be transmitted to the committees of correspondence for the several colonies and also published in the Maryland Gazette.

Printed. 1¾ pages.

The DUKE OF PORTLAND to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, June 25, Saturday. Welbeck.—Recommending Lord Torrington for the government of New York.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅛ quarto pages.

ROYALIST MILITIA.

1774, June 25, London.—Governor William Tryon. A State of the Militia of the Province of New York drawn out from the Returns that have been made since the Fire at Fort George of the 29th December 1773 wherein was consumed a complete state of the Militia.

Original signed. 1 page.

Endorsed:—State of the Militia of the Province of New York In 1774. Ex.

BÉRET TAVEL to MONS. DE WALLTRAVERS.

1774, June 28. London.—Remarks on Lord Dartmouth's offer of land in East Florida. Gives his opinion concerning the nature of the soil in those parts.

Letter signed. With seal. 3⅔ pages. French.

FIRE at FORT GEORGE, NEW YORK.

1774, June 28. London.—An Inventory of the Furniture which was destroyed in His Excellency Governor Tryon's house in Fort George in New York the 29 December 1773. Signed by Governor William Tryon. For the Earl of Dartmouth. Beginning with the pictures in the Council Chamber—King William and Queen Ann, King George the first, King George the second and Queen etc. etc.

23 pages.

Endorsed:—N. York Inventory of Furniture, Plate &^{c} &^{c} &^{c}. destroyed by the Fire in Fort George, the 29th of December 1773.

JOHN CAMBEL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

("A copy of a memorial delivered to his Lordship in May or June 1774.")—For a grant of 1200 acres of land on the Mississippi in the province of West Florida to himself and certain other lands to several persons whom he names.

Copy. Signed. 1⅔ pages. [The original Memorial is described in the Catalogue of Lord Dartmouth's MSS. previously issued, 11th Report, Appendix, Part V., p. 354.]

Endorsed:—Engineer Cambel's Memorial for Land.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON.

1774, July 1.—Paper marked C. Conversation between the King, Lord Dartmouth and Mr. Hutchinson. Copied verbatim from Mr. H's Journal. It begins, "Received a card from Ld. Dartmouth desiring to see me at his house before one o'clock. I went soon after 12." Recounts his introduction to the King. Conversation on the shutting of the Boston port. His Majesty's favourable opinion of Hutchinson's administration. On the betrayal of the latter's private letters and on Messrs. Hancock, Cushing and Adams. Forms of religion in the Colonies. Further enquiries made by the King as to Hutchinson's administration and to the state of the province and the other colonies. [Printed in the Diary and Letters of Thomas Hutchinson, Vol. I., 157.]

Accompanying this is a document marked "B. Copy of Marginal Note in the late Gov. Hutchinson's MS History of Massachusets Bay." This relates to the procuring and sending to America of his private letters. Reference is made to the duel between Mr. Temple and Mr. Whately, the appearance in the Public Advertiser of a letter by Dr. Franklin, the hearing of the case on 9 January 1774, Mr. Wedderburn's speech and the statement made by the Agent of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts against the Governor and Lieut. Governor. "The manner in which these letters were obtained was never fully discovered . . . ., they must have been unfairly obtained from Mr. Whately in his lifetime . . . . From some circumstances there were strong grounds to suppose, that they had been in the possession of another person, a Member of Parliament, by whom they had been communicated to D^r^ Franklin; but Governor Hutchinson, upon information given him, thought it prudent to discourage further inquiry, which would increase the number or malevolence of his avowed enemies." [See note on page 170.]

20 quarto pages and $3\frac{1}{3}$ pages respectively.

The EARL OF HARDWICKE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, July 3. Richmond.—Congratulates on so happy a beginning of his American plan. Warns against insisting on an express acknowledgment of the right of taxation but a general recognition of legislative power is no more than necessary. His satisfaction at Hutchinson's acquittal.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—E. of Hardwicke. 3 July 1774. Thoughts on American Affairs.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 3. Parliament Street.—Remarks concerning the Council of Massachusetts. Difficulty of arranging precedence.

Autograph letter signed. $2\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^r^ Hutchinson 3 July 1774 private.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, July 5. Great Queen Street, Westminster.—"My Lord I should have waited for D^r^ Horsleys decision in regard to my Tables, but the necessity of preparing for the approaching expedition of my Gl Survey admitted no longer suspension as otherwise I should have been obliged to set out unprepared for this new method of levelling Streams Rivers &c., consequently not ben able to add this operation to that of fixing every place in its precise Latitude and Longitude, M^r^ de Luc's prescribed formula would increase the fatigue of my Calculation afresh, which I have been obliged to lessen by constructing Zonical Tables, to which I have added also the labor of constructing Atmospherical Tables so as they are in this present form adjoined to a small Treatise which I beg leave to deliver to Your Lordship for His Majesty. I shall in a week's time have it in my power to present Your Lordship with a Copy to be added to my Reports, which and my self I beg leave also to recommend to your Lordships protection and am most respectfully, My Lord, Your Lordships most obedient and most humble serv^t^ W. G. de Brahm."

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

MAJOR PHILIP SKENE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 5.—Ballymote near Boyle. Items of intelligence.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Maj^r^ Skene 5 July 1774. On Irish & American Affairs.

Enclosure:—

GOVERNOR WILLIAM FRANKLIN to [MAJOR PHILIP SKENE].

1774, May 3. Philadelphia.—Thanks for information as to what passed between Major Skene and Lord Dartmouth respecting himself. Was conscious that he had not given any just cause of offence to Government, but his friendly letter was exceedingly well timed.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

The HONOURABLE MRS. D. CHETWYND to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 11. St. James's.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Hon. M^rs^ Chetwynd 11 July 1774, relative to her Lands in America.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, July 11. Parliament Street.—Speaks of enclosing a letter and a newspaper. Is not fearful of consequences, especially as after the receipt of the two bills they are taking measures to obtain relief. Cannot express his obligation with regard to Lady Dartmouth presenting his daughter to the Queen.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^r^ Hutchinson 11 July 1774.

PETER LIVIUS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 11.—Sending, according to his Lordship's direction, the enclosed memorial.

Autograph letter signed. ½ page.

Enclosure :—

MEMORIAL to the LORDS OF THE TREASURY.

1774, July 12. London.—Desiring a salary may be allowed his office of Chief Justice of New Hampshire.

Signed. 1⅓ pages.

COLONEL J. BURGOYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, July 12. Tingrith near Wodburn.—In favour of Captain Grant whose memorial he encloses.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Col. Burgoyne 12 July 1774, with the Memorial of Capn Grant.

Enclosure :—

CAPTAIN JOHN GRANT to the BOARD OF TRADE.

1774, July 11. London.—Petition. Account of his services for the King. Is now desirous of settling in North America and hopes for the lot of a field officer. Prays his Lordship to move the King to grant him lands in New York.

1 page.

Endorsed :—Petition Captn Grant to the Lords of Trade 11th July 1774.

C. WILLIAMOS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 12. St. James's Place.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Williamos. 12 July 1774, desiring to succeed Mr Colden as Surveyor &c. of N. York.

GOVERNOR MONTFORT BROWNE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 13. Cowes (Isle of White).—Difficulty of getting out of port on account of bad weather. Is very disappointed to find Mr. Atwood does not intend going out with him. Hopes his Lordship will think of his request with respect to fixing Dartmouth Town on his township. Wishes that Engineer Cambel may return to his duty, as he promised to superintend a church Browne proposes building on the Mississippi.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Govr Browne Cowes July 13 1774.

The BISHOP OF LONDON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 14. Tunbridge Wells.—At the desire of the Clergy of New York transmits the enclosed address which has been sent to him without a seal, that he might be informed of the contents, and thus recommend it to his Lordship's protection. Dr. Cooper of New York mentions an appeal of Governor Tryon in a case between Mr. Bloomer the minister, and the churchwardens of the parish of Jamaica in that province. Refers to the intended addition to the salary of the three Protestant ministers in Quebec.

Autograph letter signed. 4 large quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B^p of London. 14 July 1774, on an Episcopate at N. York.

Enclosure:—

EPISCOPAL CLERGY of NEW YORK and NEW JERSEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, May 18. New York.—Address of the Episcopal Clergy of the Provinces of New York and New Jersey met in Convention. Desiring his Lordship's friendly interposition in behalf of the National Church in His Majesty's American Plantations. Disadvantages in the want of an Episcopate.

Original. Signed Samuel Auchmuty D.D., Thomas B. Chandler, D.D., and three others. 8 quarto pp.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to [the EPISCOPAL CLERGY of NEW YORK and NEW JERSEY].

1774, July 14.—Acknowledging receipt of their letter of 18 May through the hands of the Bishop of London. Assurances of his hearty concurrence with them in their sentiments and wishes on the great and important subject of an American Episcopate upon the wise and equitable plan proposed. Promises to use his efforts in the matter.

Autograph copy. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Com^{ee} of Episc^l Clergy N. York. 18 May 1774.

GEORGE SUCKLING to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 15. Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Suckling 15 July 1774 desir^g Employm^t.

MAJOR PHILIP SKENE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 16. Ballymote near Boyle.—Quotes a letter from his son at Skenesborough touching the confusion over the New Hampshire settlers.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Maj^r Skene 16 July 1774 conc^g Settlers on the Back of N. Hampshire.

CHARLES GARTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 25. Devizes.—Papers he has placed before Mr. Pownall relative to the proceedings of the Assembly of South Carolina in March last. Gives his thoughts upon what he considers proper to be communicated to his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Garth 26 July 1774.

FREDERICK MONTAGU to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, July 30. Popplewick.—Remarks how the newspapers contradict each other with regard to American affairs. Hopes that the reported determination of the Government to adopt healing measures is true. Has had two letters from Mr. Gordon. He hopes to be a pillar of the government which his Lordship, Wharton and Pitt are founding in Vandalia.

Autograph letter signed. 2¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—F. Montagu Esq^{r} 30 July 1774.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 3.—Signed "A Friend to y^{e} Publick." Being informed that M^{r} Neave is applying for a grant of land in America, takes the liberty of acquainting that he is credibly informed the land is supposed to contain copper ore.

Autograph. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Anon. concern^{g} copper mine in America.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 4. Dartmouth Street, Westminster.—Thanks him for his patronage by which Lord North reinstated him in his provincial office of East Florida. Shows that even now he is not on a footing with Mr Holland. Reasons which detain him in London.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} De Brahm 12 Aug. 1774 on his Surveys.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

[1774, August 4.] Thursday night.—Has conversed with the Attorney-General who thinks Dyer's case a foolish unconsidered proceeding on the part of General Gage and Admiral Montagu. No facts are charged on him or others for which they could be tried or prosecuted here. All Dyer says about the destruction of the tea is mere hearsay. He should be immediately released.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—J. Pownall 4 Aug. 1774, on Dyer's Case & Destruction of Tea at Boston.

SAMUEL LEE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 5. Manchester, New England.—Enclosing a letter to His Majesty.

Autograph letter signed. 2¼ pages.

Endorsed :—S. Lee Manchester in N. England Aug. 5 1774.

Enclosure :—

SAMUEL LEE to the KING.

1774, August 5. Manchester, New England.—Gives his opinion concerning the parliamentary measures pursued towards America by Great Britain.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

SAMUEL LEE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 5. Manchester, New England.—Gives a short sketch of a plan for a British and American reconciliation and agreement in establishing an East India Company; in paying 5 p. c. on all profits and a fifth part of all gold and silver mines.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅓ pages.

RESOLVES of the COLONY of VIRGINIA.

At a meeting of the deputies of the several counties at Williamsburg from 1st to 6th August 1774 to consider and agree upon an Association of non-importation of British goods.

MS. 3⅓ pages.

Endorsed :—Resolves of Virginia Aug. 1774.

The EARL OF H[ARDWICKE] to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 7. Wrest.—Thoughts on American Affairs.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

PETER LIVIUS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 8. Tunbridge.—His ill-health makes him wish to remain in the country as much as he can. There is now an additional reason for expediting his business, the General Assembly having proceeded so far with their votes that the Governor has dissolved them which will not be very likely to pacify matters. Necessity for his presence in New Hampshire. Desires his Lordship will speedily dispatch him there. Prays he may be allowed to present his memorial to the Treasury.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Livius.

The DUKE and DUCHESS OF NORTHUMBERLAND to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 8. Alnwick Castle.—With reference to Lord Percy's safe arrival at Boston.

Autograph letter in the third person. ½ quarto page.

Endorsed :—D. of Northumberland 8 Aug. 1774 Thanks for Information con^{g} L^{d} Percy.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 12. Saturday. Bushy Park.—"The paper which M^{r} Tryon shewed me at the Treasury could hardly be called an account."

Autograph letter signed. 3¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Lord North 12 Aug. 1774, on Gov^{r} Tryon's Claim's upon Gov^{t}.

GOVERNOR ROBERT EDEN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 15. Conduit Street.—Thinks it his duty (in the present crisis) and proposes returning to Maryland.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Gov^{r} Eden Aug. 15 1774, on his Departure to Maryland.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 16. London.—Expresses his astonishment at hearing of Temple's acknowledgement that he had seen the letters among Mr. Whately's files and that he had them in his possession in a packet directed to Doctor Franklin. Desires his Lordship will endeavour to obtain further information on the subject.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Private Gov^{r} Hutchinson 16 Aug. 1774.

The HONOURABLE HENRY (?) WILMOT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 16. Bloomsbury Square.—Upon the subject of deeds belonging to Lord Dartmouth. The postscript refers to a letter received from Pennsylvania.
Letter signed. 2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Hon. (concealed by wafer) Wilmot Esq^{r} 16 Aug. 1774.

GEORGE REYNOLDS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 23. No. 1, Laurence Poultny Lane, Cannon Street.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Reynolds 23 Aug. 1774 conc^{g} Gov^{t} on the Mississippi. 1 Inclosure. Copy of a Letter from N. York, 5 July 7774.

Enclosure:—

COLONEL ROBERTSON to J M.

1774, July 5. New York.—The sentiments of the people of Boston. Mentions one Adams, a poor man, with very powerful wrangling abilities, who governs in the Assemblies. Gives information concerning Massachusetts.

Copy. 2 quarto pages.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 26. St. Augustine.—No. 2. Private. Considers it would be highly wrong to make a settlement upon the land located by Mr. Wooldridge under the present circumstances of the province. Describes that which he has directed the Surveyor General to run out for his Lordship at the head of Hillsborough River. Recommends Mr. Alexander Gray.
Autograph letter signed. 3½ pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^{r} Tonyn. 26 Aug. 1477 Private.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 30. Dartmouth Street, Westminster.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Debrahm 31 Aug. —74 desiring Mr Ferguson Appointment as his Assistant.

JOHN BLACKBURN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 31. Wednesday. Scots Yard.—Gives intelligence received in various letters concerning the state of New York.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Blackburne 31 Aug. 1774, inclosing Resolves of the Committee of N. York.

Enclosure:—

COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE in NEW YORK.

1774, July 13. Committee Chamber.—Proceedings. Containing ten resolutions on the subject of the infringement of their rights by recent Acts of Parliament and an order that the same be printed and distributed in hand bills.
1 printed page.

The EARL OF HARDWICKE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 31. Wrest.—On American Affairs. Expresses his acknowledgments for the obliging attention given to his letters. Apprehends the worst consequences if, after the first Congress has been allowed to be held, the colonists, feeling their own strength, should agree to hold annual ones or form associations for self-defence.
Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 31. America Square, Crutched Friars.—Apologises for sending enclosures which he had hoped to do through means of Lord Marchmont. Would like an audience.
Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Molleson 31 Aug. 1774.

Enclosures:—

Extract of a letter from Maryland to William Molleson. On the resolutions passed at a general meeting of committees from the several counties of this province. Encloses a private copy. Every newspaper justifies the assertion that they contain the sense of America in general.
2¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a letter from Maryland to —— Molleson Esqr 1774.

1774, June 22–25.—Proceedings of a Meeting of the Committees appointed by the several counties of Maryland, at the city of Annapolis the 22nd day of June 1774, and continued by adjournment from day to day, till the 25th day of the same month. Containing ten resolutions etc. same as above under this date.

Enclosures—cont.

Printed. 1¾ pages.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 31. St. Augustine.—No. 3. Private. If Mr. Ernst comes out, will show him every attention. Has given the Surveyor General directions, conformable to his requests. It will afford him great pleasure to be of service.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^{r} Tonyn 31 Aug. 1774. Private.

The REVEREND JOHN VARDILL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 1. No. 33, Suffolk Street, Charing Cross.—Soliciting his Lordship's countenance on the present occasion and hinting at the position in which he desires to be placed.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Vardill 1 Sep^{r} 1774, relative to Religion in America.

Enclosure:—

Observations on the appointment of an American Bishop. In the Reverend John Vardill's hand. "The Equity and Utility of such a Measure seems no longer doubted. The only Question now is whether an immediate appointment would be seasonable." Gives his reasons for determining in the affirmative.

1¾ quarto pages.

COLONEL T. HOWARD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, September 3. Earsham, near Bungey, Suffolk.—Apologises for both his friends and himself having been troublesome upon the subject of American Governments. Desires to succeed Sir Wm. Johnson.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

EARL GOWER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, September 5. Trentham.—The draft to Lord Dunmore seems both proper and necessary but cannot take it upon himself to write purposely to him. Hopes the accounts from North America are more favourable than those given in the newspapers, if not, fears for a short and troublesome session of Parliament.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Earl Gower Sept. 5, 1774, relative to L^{d} Dunmore.

The REVEREND JOHN VARDILL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 5. Suffolk Street.—Application he makes in behalf of the College of New York. Desires Lord Dartmouth's interest with the King on the subject.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev^{d} M^{r} Vardill 12 Sep^{t} 1774.

The REVEREND WILLIAM GORDON, Rector of Mobile, to the BOARD OF TRADE.

1774, September 6. Mobile.—Petition for land on the River Mobile.
Original signed. ¾ folio page.

Endorsed :—Petition of the Rev^d W^m Gordon for a Mandamus for 4,000 Acres.

SIR GILBERT ELLIOT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 7. Moule near Keswick, by Carlisle.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^r Gil. Elliot 7 Sep^r 1774, rec^g M^r Jauncey to be of the Council of N. York.

CAPTAIN GRANT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 7. Margaret Street, Cavendish Square.—Desires to pay his respects in person. Wishes to convey some ideas concerning America.
Autograph letter signed Jo^n Grant. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Capt^n Grant 9 Sep^t 1774 on American Lands, Granted to Officers &c.

PETER DUVAL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 10. Hackney.—A civil government soon to be established a few miles from the Natchez on the Mississippi. Governor Brown's reasons for such an establishment. Desires the post of secretary and receiver of quit rents.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Duval 12 Sep^r 1774. Soliciting an Office in W. Florida.

EDMUND FANNING to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 12. New Bond Street, London.—The improved state of health of Mr. Colden, the Surveyor General of New York, cancels application for that office. Asks for the appointment of Chief Justice of Jamaica.
Autograph letter signed. 2¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Fanning 12 Sep^r 1774, for the office of Ch. Justice of Jamaica.

GENERAL SIR JEFFERY AMHERST to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 14. Montreal.—Communicates the contents of a letter of 8 August received from New York which mentions the arrival of the June packet with dispatches for Gage; it is concluded they contain the new Acts regarding Boston; these will be the touchstone to try the mettle of the men of Massachusetts; the preparations for the General Congress go on and the deputies chosen are not of a spirit to propose healing measures; General Lee has gone to influence Rhode Island, thence to Boston where his admiration for Gage, and his hatred for Government must lead him to some inconsistencies. Quotes from a letter of 3 August from another hand, stating the bad humour circulating through the Colonies, the fears that the General Congress will be unanimous in a non-importation agreement, and remarking that upon the want of virtue at home the colonists rely for carrying every contested point.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—S^r^ Jeff. Amherst, 14 Sep^r^ 1774.

LIST OF LETTERS.

From Colonel Howard and various persons on American affairs, the dates ranging from 31 January to 14 September 1774. With a note of the contents of each letter.

2¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—List.

EDMUND FANNING to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 16. New Bond Street, London.—Rests his pretensions to the consideration of His Majesty's Ministers, on his sufferings in the cause of Government, and on Lord Dartmouth's goodness.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Fanning 16 Sept^r^ 1774, with Thanks for a L^r^ rec^d^ from E. of Dartmouth.

GENERAL GAGE to GOVERNOR HUTCHINSON.

1774, September 17.—Postscript of a letter dated Boston 17th September 1774 referred to in General Gage's letter of the . . . September to Lord Dartmouth. In Mr. Knox's hand. Suggests suspending the execution of the Acts for a time that the Province might send home Deputies, and, in the meantime, to prepare for the worst, Hanoverians and Hessians may be hired, for by all appearances "these provinces must be first totally subdued before they will obey and a powerful Force must in that case be employ'd."

1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Extract of a Letter from Gen^l^ Gage to Gov^r^ Hutchinson dated Boston 17 Sept. 1774.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 20. Golden Square.—With list on a scrap of paper of 11 Members of Council. Private letters received from New England he is sending to Lord Dartmouth. Judgment that may be made from Mr. Erving's account of the state of the province. Information to be found in a newspaper of August 15.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—(With the two following). Gov^r^ Hutchinson 20 & 21 Sep^r^ 1774.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[1774], September 20, p.m.—Mr. Royall has declined, which Hutchinson thinks is very well. Reasons for thinking it probable that Messrs. Danforth, Erving, and Green will finally decline.

Autograph, third person. ¾ quarto page.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 21. Golden Square.—Remarks upon letters he is sending. Narrates a circumstance which must facilitate the execution of the Act for changing the Council. States that Winthrop, Hancock, and Doctor Cooper are members of the Corporation.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

LIST OF LETTERS.

From Governor Hutchinson and others, the dates ranging from 1 March to 21 September 1774, with a note of the contents of each.

1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—List.

CABINET MINUTE.

1774, September 29.—Held at Lord North's in Downing Street. Upon the advisability of dissolving Parliament, and calling a new one.

⅔ quarto page.

Endorsed:—Minute of Cabinet 29 Sep^{t} 1774.

JAMES IRELAND to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 30.—Steps taken by the Americans upon their resolution to receive no teas from England. Orders are sent to Holland and vessels are now cruising to the westward and as high as the Isle of Ascension to meet with French and other India ships in order to purchase tea of them. Address at Bordeaux where Dartmouth may write, should any other particulars be desired.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Ireland Bristol 1774.

EXTRACT of a LETTER from CONNECTICUT.

[? 1774, September].—Believes they support Government and execute the laws with more firmness than any colony on the continent. There are some few persons who take the utmost pains to provoke the people in order to meet with some insult and thereby gain favour with the Ministry. One of these is a Mr. Peters, a clergyman in Connecticut, a man of mean character. He annoyed the people to the utmost of his power and is now gone to Boston to put himself under the protection of General Gage and from there is bound to London. Warns against the tales he may tell.

2¼ pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from Connecticut relative to Rev^{d} M^{r} Peters.

Cabinet Minute.

1774, October 3. Monday.—Held at Lord North's house. Lord Dartmouth communicated the dispatches received on Saturday last from General Gage and Admiral Graves. State of affairs in New England to be further considered at another meeting. Advisability of consulting the Admiralty upon the expediency of sending two or three ships of war with a detachment from the marines to Boston immediately.

⅔ folio page.

Endorsed:—Minute of Cabinet Oct. 4 1774.

Governor William Tryon to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, October 4. London.—Nominates James Jauncey, junior, Colonel William Bayard, and David Colden to serve in the Council of New York.

Letter signed. ¾ folio page.

William Gerard de Brahm to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, October 10, at noon. Dartmouth Street, Westminster.—Reasons given by Mr. Ramus for the detention of the Treasury letter. Refers to the conditional delivery of his (De Brahm's) commission into Lord Dartmouth's hand. His suspension now taken off and his character approved by the Treasury. Compares his salary etc. with that of Mr. Holland. Desires he may be put on an equality with him, and continued in his provincial office.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

William Gerard de Brahm to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, October 11.—Reduced situation of Mrs. De Brahm's father in St. Augustine. In his younger days he held the post of Sheriff of Maryland. Wishes to renew the deputation he gave his father-in-law in 1767 at Governor Grant's desire. Hopes his Lordship will approve and endorse the appointment.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Pierre Roubaud to [Lord Dartmouth].

1774, October 11. Volburg.—His sentiments concerning the present state of America. Remarks on the measures being pursued by Government.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages. French.

Lord Barrington to [Lord Dartmouth].

1774, October 14. Bath.—Gunpowder on board a vessel at Plymouth, bound for North America. His advice to the Collector of Customs. Considers it right to acquaint his Lordship, but does not know by what authority it can be stopped.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Bath 14th October 1774. Lord Visct Barrington R/ 18th C.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, October 14. Dartmouth Street, Westminster.—With Lord Dartmouth's approbation he will date and sign the enclosed letter to his son-in-law in his presence. He has advised Mr. Fairland, who is going to St. Augustine, to beg his Lordship's commands for that place. Desires the Governor may be informed of his (de Brahm's) re-establishment.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure :—

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to FREDERIC GEORGE MULCASTER.

He has appointed his brother Attorney on behalf of Mulcaster's children. Instructions he has given. He appoints Mulcaster his deputy in the provincial office, during the time he (the writer) will be able to continue the service of general survey and no longer. His allowance to his son-in-law and to his grandchildren, also to John Row.

Autograph letter not signed. 1½ quarto pages.

NEWSPAPER CUTTING.

1774, October 14–16.—Containing, amongst other items, Extracts of letters from Plymouth and Portsmouth 14 and 16 October as to the arrival and departure of frigates &c. for America, extract of a letter from an officer in the camp at Boston dated 24 August, and Mr. Burke's speech from the hustings at Bristol.

1 strip.

GENERAL GAGE.

1774, June 26 to October 17.—Excerpta from letters of General Thomas Gage. Measures taken by several gentlemen to persuade the people to comply with the Act of Parliament to save Boston from ruin. Town-meeting at Boston; endeavours to annihilate the Committee of Correspondence proved ineffectual. Protest made by gentlemen of Worcester County. Disposition of the people; civil government is near its end. Gage despairs of any overtures he has endeavoured to make, unless they come recommended by the Continental Congress. Quotations from two enclosures in his letter of 20 September No. 13. Judges of the Inferior Court of the County of Hants in Massachusetts Bay called to meet the mob, to hear allegations against them. Concessions which they were compelled to sign. An anonymous account of the proceedings against the Inferior Court at Springfield in the County of Hampshire.

Extracts. 8⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Excerpta from some of Gen^{l} Gage's Letters.

WILLIAM EDEN to JOHN POWNALL.

1774, October 18. Tuesday, 11 a.m.—Directions to Sir Joseph Yorke at the Hague in case the Rhode Islander should not have sailed, to obtain if possible the re-landing and detention of her cargo, either as an act of power on the part of the Dutch Minister, or under some pretext of contraband trade.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. ¾ quarto page.

Endorsed:—18th October 1774. Mr Eden, J.P. R/ do A.

NOTE from JOHN POWNALL.

[1774, after October 18.]—Account of steps taken upon intelligence received from Sir Joseph Yorke of a vessel loading at Amsterdam with firearms.

Autograph, not signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Note from Mr Pownall.

GENERAL GAGE to the PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

1774, October 20. Boston.—Minute of 20 October containing General Gage's Answer to the Address of the Provincial Congress dated Province House October 17. In Governor Hutchinson's hand. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Genl Gage's Answr to the Address of the Provincial Congress 20 Octr 1774.

The REVEREND JOHN VARDILL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, October 21. London.—Quotes from a letter which he has received from New York. Injury done to the fair trader by these smugglers (see Endorsement), added to the great number of those who import tea from Holland.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Rev. Mr Vardill Oct. 21, 1774, relative to a smuggling Vessel at the Isle of Ascension.

J. ALLEN to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, October 22. Shrewsbury.—Enclosure sent from Hardwick by Mrs. Powys; presumes she wishes it forwarded to his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. ½ folio page. Mutilated. With seal.

Enclosure:—

B. ALLEN to THOMAS POWYS.

1774, July. Frederick County, Maryland.—Inhabitants upon the Ohio driven into the interior parts of the country by the Indians. Alarm caused by their critical situation with Great Britain. Speaks of transmitting resolves of Maryland [qy. see above 22–25 June.] Refers to a scheme of non-importation proposed in 1768 to merchants of Philadelphia by Boston and New York Committees. State to which he is reduced; his living is three years in arrear and the present disturbances form a good pretext for non-payment. Desires the post of Collector of His Majesty's Customs upon the North Potomac. Mr. Bennet convicted here from Shrewsbury, is now in Philadelphia.

Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Allen, Maryland.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, October 28. Dartmouth Street, Westminster.—His resolution to submit to his Lordship's orders and directions. Reasons for arranging matters as he has, with regard to Messrs. Mulcaster and Row, who have been instruments in Governor Grant's hands. Explains his inability to give up the £100 per annum. Memorial he will be obliged to lay before his Lordship, to have an additional sum allowed him by Parliament.

Autograph letter signed. 2 large folio pages.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, October 30. Boston.—Private. Detection of Samuel Dyer in enticing soldiers to desert; was carried to England by the Admiral. Has returned with an affidavit he made before the Lord Mayor. Statements false; the man a vagabond. General Gage is pleased his conduct is approved by His Majesty and Ministers. He is chagrined his endeavours have not met with better success. Belief current at Philadelphia that the Continental Congress has insisted that Boston shall pay for the tea. His concern that affairs have gone to so great a length that Great Britain cannot yield without giving up all her authority, unless some submission is shown on the part of the Colonies. Complaints made against him to the Continental Congress. Enclosures. Treatment received by a clergyman named Peters, who was driven here from Connecticut. M^r^ Ingersoll, who was obliged to fly from his home in Berkshire County, goes by this conveyance.

Duplicate letter signed. 5¼ folio pages. [The autograph signed letter with enclosures is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 130, fo. 29.]

Endorsed:—Gen^l^ Gage Oct^r^ 30, 1774.

Enclosures:—

P[EYTON] R[ANDOLPH], on behalf of the General Congress, to LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE.

1774, October 10. Philadelphia.—Newspaper cutting 5½″ × 3″. That Genl. Gage would discontinue the fortifications in and about Boston, prevent invasions of private property, restrain the irregularities of the soldiers, and give orders for open communication between town and country.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to the HONOURABLE PEYTON RANDOLPH.

1774, October 20. Boston.—"Representations should be made with Candour, and Matters stated exactly as they stand . . . no man's property has been seized or hurt, except the King's . . . No troops have given less cause for complaint . . . but insults and provocations are daily given to both Officers and Soldiers. The communication between the Town and Country is free and unmolested . . . It gives me pleasure that you are endeavouring at a cordial reconciliation with the mother country; which from what has transpired, I have despaired of . . . I have endeavoured to be a mediator, if I could establish a foundation to work upon. . . . I should hope that decency and moderation here would create the same disposition at home . . ."

Enclosures—cont.

Copy. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from General Gage, to the Hon^ble^ Payton Randolph Esq^r^ President of the American Continental Congress, sitting at Philadelphia. Dated Boston October 20^th^ 1774.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to the LORDS OF THE ADMIRALTY.

1774, October.—Transmits letter from Sir Joseph Yorke to the Earl of Suffolk. They are to despatch a sloop or cutter to Amsterdam and the commander on his arrival is to send some trusty person with the enclosed letter to Sir Joseph from whom he will hear whether the Rhode Island vessel has, or has not sailed. Further instructions on this subject.

Draft. Not signed. 2 pages. [Another draft is in the Public Record Office, Holland, Vol. 657.]

Endorsed:—Dr^t^ to L^ds^ Admiralty B.

EXTRACT of a LETTER from NEW YORK.

1774, November 7.—Reasons for it being impolitic to call the Assemblies together at this time. Proceedings of Congress very generally disliked in this place. Considers this Province the most moderate and peaceable of any upon the Continent. Sends every proceeding of Congress which is yet made public here.

1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Lett. from N. York Nov^r^ 1774.

HENRY WHITE to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1774, November 8. New York.—Fears the claims contained in the proceedings of Congress will not tend to conciliate matters on the other side of the water. Effect the General Election, which is near at hand, will have. His opinion concerning the non-exportation, said to take place in September—that it is only hung out in terrorem to Great Britain. Considers it would be policy to repeal the tea duty. Fervently wishes for the restoration of harmony.

Copy. 2⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from M^r^ Henry White to Gov^r^ Tryon, dated N. York, 8 Nov^r^ 1774. Private.

The REVEREND J. W. GIBERNE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, November 9.—Belle Ville, in Richmond County, Rappahanock River, Virginia.—Enquires after his Lordship's health. Expresses his gratitude to Lord Dartmouth for his interposition with regard to his ordination. Giberne desired by the County of Richmond to be their Moderator in all their associating meetings. His acquiescence. Opinion concerning these people. They look to Lord Dartmouth to disperse the threatening cloud now over America. Book he is sending to his Lordship. Transmits this letter by Cyrus Griffin.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev. M^r^ Giberne Virginia Nov^r^ 1774.

WILLIAM KNOX to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, November 15. Whitehall.—Disappointment at not receiving a letter from General Gage, nor any further account of Congress proceedings from Franklyn. Information from Colden. Intelligence obtained from a letter from one of the Congress, shown to Knox in confidence concerning the non-importation and non-exportation resolution. Different dispositions of the New England and other Governments. A petition to the King lies for consideration. Deputies for its presentation. Arrival of a ship from Salem brings private letters down to September 29. Return of the Commissioners of Customs to Boston. Carleton's arrival at Quebec. Communication between Gage and Carleton. Opinion about it ; it is so expressive of Gage's timidity and weakness that he has kept the letters secret in the office. Attempts are being made for the repeal of the Boston Act. Lord North thinks a paper addressed to the merchants will be of use ; Knox is to draw it up.

Autograph letter signed. 6 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Knox 15 Nov. 1774. Ex.

EMANUEL MATHIAS to the EARL OF SUFFOLK.

1774, November 15. Hamburgh.—Information of the "Flora" being loaded with chests supposed to contain firearms, and forty chests of tea. Steps to be taken for the detection of her cargo. She will be ready to sail towards the latter end of next week.

Extract. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from M^r^ Mathias To The Earl of Suffolk. Hamburgh 15^th^ Nov^r^ 1774.

SIR JOSEPH YORKE to the EARL OF SUFFOLK.

1774, November 18. Hague.—Imagines he will soon have no further occasion to trouble His Lordship about the Rhode Island vessel, as, according to information, it has begun to unload and is to winter at Amsterdam.

Extract. ¾ folio page. [The signed letter is in the Public Record Office, Foreign Office, Holland, Vol. 691.]

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from His Exc^cy^ Sir Jo^s^ Yorke to The Earl of Suffolk. Hague 18^th^ Nov^r^ 1774.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, November 19. Bath.—Private. On the subject of the enclosure. He can depend upon the facts therein contained, as it is from a friend, a native and resident of New York. He has received no letter from the Lieutenant Governor since he (Tryon) left London.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page and 1 line.

Endorsed:—Gov^r^ Tryon Bath, 19 Nov^r^ 1774. Containing Intelligence from his Friend at N. York

Enclosure :—

[ ] to GOVERNOR TRYON.

1774, October 5.—Extract of a letter from New York to Governor William Tryon. (Private and Confidential.) Haldimand going with the troops to Boston. Disturbance caused by the violent ones trying to prevent the carmen doing their duty, and intimidating the merchants. Drubbing received by Mr Sears. Boston Resolves adopted by the Congress which also advises non-importation. Opposition it will cause. His opinion on the subject. The cloud to the eastward seems to thicken, and will, it is probable, break in thunder and lightning. Powder and arms in these ports bought up and carried eastward. By all accounts Boston and Connecticut will take up arms to oppose the Act taking place against the Charter of Massachusetts Bay. Opinion of the Connecticut people.
In Tryon's hand. 4 folio pages.

JAMES HUTTON to WILLIAM KNOX.

1774, November 22. At night. King's Road, Chelsea.
Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Hutton 22 Novr 1774, relative to the Conduct of the Virginians towards the Moravians.

ROBERT HAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, November 23. Shore Ditch.—On the subject of Judge Salter's effects, which he is sure were given up to the Board for his daughter, Mrs. Hayne. Schemes that have been carried on to wrong his wife.
Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Hayne 1774.

Enclosure :—

MARY HAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, November 23. Shoreditch.—Petition. Behaviour of Mr Cox concerning the will of her father, Richard Salter. Desires his Lordship will cause her property to be given up.
Original signed. 1 folio page.

MEETING of PEERS.

1774, November 23.—List of Peers invited to a meeting at Lord Rochford's. Arranged alphabetically.
3¾ folio pages.

CUTTING from the PUBLIC ADVERTISER.

1774, November 23.—No. 14,087. The Thoughts of a Traveller upon our American Disputes, beginning—"By what Fatality has it happened, that this Nation has seldom been exempt from a Plot, Insurrection, Rebellion, or Revolution beyond a Space of thirty Years?"
1⅔ printed columns.

[1774, November 24.]—Another cutting, not dated, but containing The Thoughts of a Traveller upon our American Disputes, continued from the previous day; and, on the back, An Observation on the Quebec Act, by Mr. Dickenson of Philadelphia, the celebrated Author of the Farmer's Letters.

1 strip.

WILLIAM SMITH to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1774, November 25. New York.—Resolution of his countrymen to appeal to the sword for the decision of the present controversy relating to taxes. Considers this was easy to be forseen from the spirit and commotions of 1766. Reasons why New York must be set down as ready to conspire with all the other colonies in every measure devised against the parliamentary claims. Plan concerted by the Leaders of the Committee of fifty-one constituted in May last. Determination in Maryland to tar and feather Governor Eden if he brought any tea; assurances he had to give. Sees no alternative but a civil war. His sentiments on the subject. Interview with Mr. White.

Autograph letter signed. 5¾ quarto pages. Seal.

SIR STANIER PORTEN to JOHN POWNALL.

1774, November 30. Wednesday. St. James's.—Lord Rochford's readiness to meet the Committee of His Majesty's servants to-morrow evening.

Autograph, third person. ¾ quarto page.

Endorsed by Pownall:—In consequence of this Note Mr Pownall has summoned a Cabinet for tomorrow Evening at Lord Rochford's Office.

[FROM the PUBLIC ADVERTISER.]

[1774, November.]—Newspaper cutting containing the Thoughts of a Traveller upon our American Disputes, signed Viator.

1 strip.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 1. Westminster.—Intends sending his appointment for a Deputy or Deputies to St. Augustine, but not without his Lordship's knowledge and approbation. Speaks of enclosing the establishment of his two assistants in the General Survey, which he intends to send to Mr. Purcell in America. Reasons for sending it to Lord Dartmouth.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

CHIEF JUSTICE DANIEL HORSMANDEN to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1774, December 3. New York.—Concludes this winter will be a very turbulent one. The Delegates have engaged in the non-importation, non-exportation and non-consumption scheme suggested by the Bostonians. Distress to which the people will be subjected. His sentiments. Stoppage of salaries of officers of Government. Esteems Sir William Johnson's death a public loss. Irreparable loss of Doctor Ogilvie.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅓ large folio pages. With seal.

Extract of the foregoing.

Granville Sharp to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, December 4. Old Jewry.—Hopes his Lordship will avoid having any hand in promoting or executing the present measures against Americans. Has carefully and impartially examined the nature of the pretensions on this side the water and their legality. In a short time he will lay before him proofs in favour of the much injured Americans. Had the warning he sent Lord North three years ago concerning the African slave trade and maintenance of slavery been regarded he believes the present misunderstanding would not have happened. His motive for so writing.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Sharp, 4 Decr 1774.

[Dr. Franklin.]

[1774, December 6.]—"Hints for Conversation upon the Subject of Terms that may probably produce a Durable Union between Great Britain and her Colonies." [This is neither signed nor dated but by reference to Sparks's Life of Doctor Franklin (Vol. 5, page 12,) it is found that these Hints were produced by him to David Barclay and Doctor Fothergill on the 6th December 1774.]
3⅞ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Hints.

Same as the foregoing but with corrections and interlineations by Lords Hyde and Dartmouth.
4 quarto pages.

William Smith to Governor William Tryon.

1774, December 6. New York.—Assembly called together by Colden for 10th proximo. Opinion on the subject. Bad effect it will have. Clauses to be adopted in addresses to the King. Wishes Tryon were present. Considers it of the highest moment, that America be taught that her Congress is not infallible. Health of Colonel Fanning. Tryon's successor takes his departure this day.
Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages. Seal.

Lieutenant Governor Cadwallader Colden to Governor William Tryon.

1774, December 7. New York.—Rejoices that Tryon will be there in the spring to take the reins of Government. The present state of the province is very much the same as when he left it. Proceedings of Congress disliked by a certain class of people. Thinks the non-importation association will only be kept in appearance. Is persuaded the Assembly summoned may do good; they cannot make matters much worse. Disapproves of Mr. Antill's application for the Surveyor General's office.

Letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Copy of the foregoing. 1¼ folio pages.

MR. W[HITE] to [GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON].

1774, December 7. New York.—Considers Smith has given a pretty good idea of the proceedings of Congress. Declaration of some gentlemen of the Congress Committee that they would act no longer nor carry into execution the Resolves of which they so much disapproved. Sanguine disposition of Delegates. Duane a violent supporter of Congress. The resolve against using tea goes hard against the smugglers. Lament of their High Mightinesses. His sentiments. Congress is confident that the effect of the idea of non-exportation will make Britain tremble. Is surprised Cruger is likely to be elected for Bristol. Considers it wrong to withdraw the troops from here.

Copy. Not signed. 5 folio pages.

Endorsed (in Governor Tryon's hand) :—Copy of M^r^ W. Letter.

[ ] to CHARLES WILLIAMOS.

1774, December 7. New York.—Desiring that James Savage's petition for a grant of land on the Westenhook may be dismissed.

Extract. 1⅔ folio pages.

Endorsed :—New York 7th dec^ber^ 1774 extract of a letter to M^r^ Williamos—relative to the Westenhook Patent.

The DUKE OF DORSET to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 8. London.—Recommends Captain Stanton, who desires to be employed, should active measures be used to bring the Americans to obedience.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—D. of Dorset 8 Dec^r^ 1774, rec^g^ Cap. Stanton.

Enclosure :—

CAPTAIN JOHN STANTON, 14th Regiment of Infantry, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 1. Dover.—Solicits his interest to obtain a majority in one of the regiments about to be raised in order to quell the rebellion. Expeditious mode of forming a corps.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

JAMES SAVAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 8. London.—Petition. Refers to a previous petition presented in September, describing the bounds and limits of certain land in Albany and New York. Distress of settlers on that land. Begs his Lordship to use his influence on their behalf.

Original signed. 4 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Petition of James Savage concer^{g} Settlers in N. York. Ex.

A. Gordon to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, December 9. Royal Hospital, Greenwich.—On the subject of the enclosure.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Rev^{d} M^{r} Gordon 9 Dec^{r} 1774 with a Petition for land in E. Florida.

Enclosure:—

The Reverend William Gordon to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, September 6. Mobile.—Memorial and Petition. Desires his Lordship will back his petition to the Lords of Trade, for recommendation to His Majesty for a mandamus for* 4,000 acres of land on the river Mobile.
Original signed. 1⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Petition of the Rev^{d} William Gordon.

* See his petition under date of 6 September.

John Crawfurd to [Lord Dartmouth].

1774, December 10. Grafton Street.—Applies, on behalf of his brother, for the Government of East Florida, vacant by the reported death of Colonel Tonyn.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—J. Crawfurd Esq^{r} 10 Dec^{r} 1774.

Mr. Watson to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, December 10. Garlick Hill.—Thanks him for the information concerning the detention of the New York packet. Speaks of enclosing sheets containing thoughts upon the dispute between Great Britain and her Colonies; desires they may not pass out of Dartmouth's hand.
Autograph, third person. ⅚ quarto page.

[Jonathan Sewall, Attorney General, Massachusetts,] to Governor Hutchinson.

1774, December 11.—Extract of a letter from Boston to Governor Thomas Hutchinson. Believes the greater part of his countrymen to be well meaning deluded people; despairs of them again becoming loyal subjects, until vigorous measures are taken to convince them of the impossibility of succeeding in a forcible opposition. Effect which a proclamation or manifesto would have. Presumes Martial Law will be next if there is sufficient force to execute it; at present they have no law.
1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter to Gov^{r} Hutchinson (already copied).

JOHN FLORRY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 14. Cleobury near Bewdley.—Reminds his Lordship of an application he made to him twenty years ago. Money he laid out in this parish eleven years since, for articles which go to America. Mode of taxing the Americans. Encloses plan. Cannon balls and muskets he has invented.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅝ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—J. Florry Cleobury 14 Dec^r^ 1774. Plan for America.

Enclosure :—

Plan for taxing Americans.

MS. Not signed. (In Florry's hand.) 2¾ folio pages.

EXCERPTA from some PRIVATE LETTERS to GOVERNOR HUTCHINSON.

1774, December 10–15.

General Gage, December 15, 1774.—Thinks the Continental Congress will advise the Provincial Congress to usurp the Government. Sends to Lord D[artmouth] a printed extract of a letter said to be a performance of Dr. Franklin, and written to Cushing. "I mention another letter to his Lordship dated in September which Cushing talked of before M^r^ Flucker and others as from D^r^ Franklin and told the contents of it. I have not mentioned the Dr's. name as I could not prove it upon him; but he's certainly capable of any mischief, and I believe the Author of the Disturbances in this Province, and, I may add now, of the Continent." Is told that the next meeting of the Congress may be earlier than February in order to nominate a governor, resume the old charter, and fly to arms immediately.

Lieutenant Governor Oliver, December 10.—Provincial Congress at Cambridge. Delegates dropping off. Intelligence that has leaked out. Associations forming.

Chief Justice Oliver, 14 December.—Attack upon a man for buying an ox from Councillor Thomas, and upon a constable for paying taxes. Act relative to town meetings.

Attorney General Jonathan Sewall, December 11.—For part duplicate see same date. Temper prevailing in this Kingdom. Public monies.

Solicitor General Samuel Quincey, December 12.—Remarks made by a Delegate. Effect of a non-consumption agreement.

Secretary Flucker, December 15.—Opposition of leaders from Boston. Movements of Sullivan, Adams and others.

Colonel Brown, December 10.—Resolution of the people to persist in their rebellious enterprise. Division among Members of Provincial Congress.

10¾ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Excerpta from some private Letters, addressed to Gov^r^ Hutchinson, from Boston in Dec^r^ 1774.

LORD HARDWICKE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 16.—Returns proceedings of the Congress; his regret that it is so violently disposed, but he expected no better. The only power reserved to the Legislature of Great Britain is regulating trade. No notice taken of the King in the whole transaction.

Autograph, third person. 1½ octavo pages.

Endorsed :—E. of Hardwicke 16 Dec^r 1774.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 18. Friday evening. [Should be 16, the 18th December was a Sunday.]—On the 16th there was a New York mail but not a syllable from General Gage. Letters from New York and Pennsylvania very barren of intelligence. Result of communicating contents of budget to Lord North. Arrival of dispatches this morning. Alarm and astonishment at the manner in which Gage writes, and the inactivity and irresolution of his conduct, steps to be taken in consequence. His Lordship desired to be in town. Pownall is at a loss to account for the strange conduct of General Gage, which seems devoid of sense and spirit.

P.S.—Mr. Quincey is a strenuous actor and writer in support of rebellion.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r Pownall 1774.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 17. America Square, Crutched Friars.—States the writer of the enclosed letter [not identified] to be Speaker of the House of Assembly of Maryland and one of the Congress Delegates. Pleasure the letter has afforded him. Reason for sending it to his Lordship. Molleson's regret concerning his letter to this gentleman. Death of the Collector of Customs for North Potomack in Maryland.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r Molleson, 17 Dec^r 1774.

JOHN HANSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 18. New York.—Sacrifice he has made for the public good. Requests the place of Ranger of Woods in America, now vacant.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—M^r Hanson, N. York 18 Dec^r 1774, desir^g the place of Ranger of the Woods.

JOHN BLACKBURNE to [ ].

1774, December [? 21] Wednesday, past 2 o'clock.—Resolution of the merchants and others concerned in the American commerce taken at their meeting this day. Petition to be drawn up stating the advantages of the trade to the Colonies, but interdicted from interfering with any political questions, or desiring any repeal of the laws.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r Blackburne Dec^r 1774.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 21. Westminster.—The sum allowed to him has fallen short of the estimate. Memorial he encloses. The vessel not commissioned. Letter he has written to Governor Tonyn. Orders he will be glad to receive with regard to his Lordship's territory in East Florida as yet not surveyed.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

Enclosure :—

MEMORIAL to LORD DARTMOUTH and to the BOARD OF TRADE.

Desires that a further sum may be allowed him for astronomical and surveying instruments necessary in his department.

Original signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—Memorial of Will^m Gerard De Brahm.

AMERICAN CONGRESS to the KING.

[1774, received December 21.]—Petition.* Laying their grievances before the throne.

Copy. 11¼ folio pages. [The original petition is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 278, fo. 471.]

Endorsed :—Petition of the American Congress to the King. Ex.

---

* For a Note from Mr. Pownall on the 20th with reference to the Petition, see Lord Dartmouth's MSS. Eleventh Report, Appendix, Part V., p. 372.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, Wednesday, 5 o'clock [qy. 21 December]. America Square.—A large meeting of the merchants and others concerned in the American trade has been held this day—a petition to the House of Commons is to be prepared and a meeting to take place to-morrow. As his present situation makes caution necessary, desires to call upon his Lordship upon a different day to that set apart for his Lordship's levee.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—M^r Molleson 1774.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 21. Wednesday evening.—A meeting of North American merchants on Friday next. Promises that nothing on his part shall be wanting to confine their deliberations to commercial objects alone.

Not autograph. In the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—M^r Molleson 21 Dec^r 1774.

ROBERT HUNTER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 21. Wednesday. Coleman Street.—Concerning the prohibition of gunpowder and arms to North America. Desires to know if merchants trading to Canada would be allowed to export the usual quantities of those articles under such restrictions as Government might think necessary. If they are not allowed, a great part of their other orders for the manufactures of this country, teas and other East India goods will not, he apprehends, be executed.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Hunter 21 Dec^{r} 1774.

RICHARD JACKSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 21.—On the subject of the enclosure. Is satisfied the writer is one of the most discreet and best intentioned among the delegates. Thinks it must have been written since the dissolution of Congress otherwise it has been stopped in the office in America for two months. Pronounces it to be a letter from America at an interesting juncture.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅚ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—R^{d} Jackson Esq 21 Dec^{r} 1774.

Enclosure :—

J[OSEPH] G[ALLOWAY] to R[ICHARD] J[ACKSON].

1774, August 10. Trevose, Bucks [in Pennsylvania].—His indifference with respect to the grant of Vandalia. Sentiments upon the interests of Great Britain and her colonies. Stands alone in his opinions. Measures that would have been advisable for the politicians to have pursued instead of passing the Stamp Act. Suggests that both Countries should retreat a little, and take other grounds. Disposition of the people. Congress of Delegates to take place in a few days at Philadelphia. At the earnest solicitations of the Assembly has consented to be one, but there is little prospect of his doing any good. Thanks him for his invitation to London.

Copy. 6⅔ folio pages.

*Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from J.G*1554*w*1*y to R. J. dated Trevose, Bucks, [in Pensylvania] Aug*st 10th 1774.

LIST OF LETTERS.

From Mr. Hunter, Mr. Molleson, Rd. Jackson etc. extending from 12 March 1773 to 21 December 1774. With a brief note of the contents of each.

2⅞ folio pages.

Endorsed :—List.

JOHN BLACKBURN to MR. BRUMMELL.

1774, December 22. Scotland Yard.—Movements to prevent a meeting in which it is suspected that the late Sheriff Lee and his party are concerned in order to counteract the good designs of His Majesty's Ministers by a petition to Parliament. Efforts of Blackburn to prevent such meeting. Desires him to inform Lord North. Advertisement about to be inserted in the paper of the following day calling a meeting for 4th January.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—22^{d} Dec^{r} 1774 M^{r} Blackburn to M^{r} Brummell.

MONSIEUR HOCQUART to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 22. a Paris, rue des Moulins butte, St. Roch.—Concerning his affairs pending before Council, one touching a seigneurie on Lake Champlain sold by him to the Seigneur Lotbiniere and the other concerning his post at the Gros Mecatinat.
Autograph letter signed. 1 page. French.

Endorsed:—Mons^r Hocquart R/ 7 Jan^y 1775.

Enclosure:—

> "Memoire" on the subject. Monsieur Hocquart had acted as Intendant in Canada from the year 1729.
> Printed. 3¼ quarto pages.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 24. Beckett.—"Our disputes with North America have not at present the foundation of Interest." Hints relative to the future Conduct of Administration with the Colonies.
Autograph letter signed. 6½ quarto pages.

The EARL OF DUNMORE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 24. Williamsburg.—The Associations first in part entered into by the Colony and adopted by the Continental Congress are now enforcing throughout the country with great vigour. A committee is chosen in every county to carry the Association of the Congress into execution. They inspect the trade and correspondence of any merchant, watch the conduct of any inhabitant, may send for, catechize, and stigmatize him if he does not appear to follow the laws of their Congress. Every city besides is arming an independent Company to protect their Committees and to be employed against Government should occasion require. As to the power of Government which Lord Dartmouth in his letter of November 11th directs should be exerted to counteract the dangerous measures pursuing here, it is entirely disregarded if not wholly overturned. Not a Justice of the Peace acts except as a Committee-man. Abolishing the Courts of Justice was the first step taken. The General Court is much the same, for the lawyers refuse to attend, nor would the people allow them. Interposition of Government in its present feeble state would only suffer the disgrace of a disappointment. But, he feels, every step taken by these infatuated people must defeat its own purpose. The non-importation and non-exportation agreements cannot fail in time to produce a scarcity which will ruin thousands of families, and as to manufactures here, the people of Virginia are not naturally industrious. The arbitrary proceedings of the Committees cannot likewise fail of raising quarrels and dissensions which will create partisans of Government. He is persuaded that this Colony by its own acts and deeds must be brought to see the necessity of dependence on the Mother Country and of embracing its authority.
Extract. 9¾ folio pages. [The signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 213, fo. 13.]

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from the Earl of Dunmore to the Earl of Dartmouth dated 24th Dec^r 1774.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, December [? 24]. Saturday, 6 o'clock. America Square.—Thanks his Lordship for his attention to his request. Report that Administration had determined to repeal the Acts and conciliate the differences. Letters received from America last night mention receipt of circular letters from his Lordship to all the Governors, requiring them to convene their Assemblies, and recommending them to lay their grievances before Parliament. Steps taken in consequence. Result of a meeting which he attended the previous evening. Petition drawn up.
Autograph letter signed. 2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Molleson Dec^r^ 1774.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 27.—On the subject of the enclosure.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—A. Serle with Thoughts on America. Ex.

Enclosure:—

Sketch of an Essay on adjusting our Disputes with the Colonies. Under the three headings of 1. Cunctation; 2. Treaty; 3. Compulsion.
In Serle's hand. 17 folio pages,

JOHN FLORRY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 29. Birmingham.—Friends are assisting him in publishing an answer to the letter directed to the people of England by the Americans. Considers the Americans would pay more regard to the merchants of England. Suggestion for a conference of the merchants of the seaport towns to agree upon a mode of taxation and settle rules of trade; this he thinks will bring them to a submission sooner than any other method. American representatives in the English Parliament should only be required to attend one year in seven. Wishes better laws were made for the recovery of debts due to the people of England in America.
Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Florry 29 Dec^r^ 1774.

THEOPHILUS HARDENBROOK to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1774, December 29.—Survey of the fireplace and chimney piece of the Council room at Fort George, New York, with plan of the fireplace.
Original signed. 1⅚ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Theop. Hardenburgh. Report on Survey of the Fire at Fort George on y^e^ 29 Dec^r^ 1774.

The REVEREND THOMAS RANKIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 29. Philadelphia.—Reasons for writing. Refers to a previous letter. Has seen his Lordship's letter to Mr. Fletcher in which he mentions Captain Webb. Effect of religious work in the Colonies. Desirability of having a Bishop for North America. Observations upon what has come under his cognizance in the present situation of affairs. Nothing to be heard in some of the provinces, but warlike preparations. Melancholy prospect in religious matters as regards the Indians. Refers to the battle fought between Lord Dunmore's rangers and the Indians near the Ohio.

Autograph letter signed. 3¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Rev. M^{r} Rankin Philadelphia Dec^{r} 1774.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 30. Friday, 3 o'clock.—Report that the American differences are settled, and Governor Pownall given as the author. Earnestly desires to know whether such report may be credited.

Not autograph. In the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—W^{m} Molleson Esq^{r} 30 Dec^{r} 1774.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, Thursday, 4 o'clock [December]. America Square.—Authentic intelligence brought from Philadelphia the 7th October received by the New York mail this day. Non-importation agreement resolved upon by Congress. Disposition of the people in New York, Pennsylvania and the southern colonies for moderate measure.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Molleson 1774.

VARIOUS PAPERS on MEASURES for AMERICA and AMERICAN BUSINESS generally.

N. D. [1774, qy. early in the year].—Paper beginning "If the measures proposed in respect to the Town and People of Boston are adopted it will be necessary they should be accompanied with every precaution that may prevent or defeat resistance. It is therefore further proposed,"—That the Battalions under orders for the relief in the spring should be sent out immediately. That the squadron in N^{o} America under the command of Admiral Montague should be reinforced with at least two ships. General Gage to be sent out with troops, and with instructions concerning the disposition of the whole force, to secure the effectual execution of the measures proposed. Instructions to the Admiral that no vessels load or unload in Boston Harbour without a particular authority from the Custom House.

Not signed. In Pownall's hand. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—further proposals.

N. D. [1774].—List of business for the Committee. Amongst the business to be discussed are reports of the Board of Trade relative to some extraordinary proceedings of the Assembly of New York in 1772, to various memorials and petitions of John Gordon, Major-General Bradstreet, Monsieur Hocquart, Lieutenant Campbell, John Calef, and others.

Not signed. 2⅛ folio pages.

Endorsed:—List of Committee Business.

N. D. [1774].—Paper concerning the trial of military officers or men, engaged in the fatal riots in the Colonies. That such military officers or men be sent home for trial.

Not signed. ⅔ quarto page.

N. D. [1774].—Paper endorsed "Propositions." It appears by the dispatches from General Gage and Admiral Graves dated in September, that at public meetings held in different parts of the Province resolutions had been passed by Delegates of Counties and Committees of Towns refusing compliance with the Acts of last Session relative to Massachusetts Bay; that the people were excited to oppose the execution of those laws; that representatives had been elected to meet in provincial Congress in Concord; etc., etc. It is therefore proposed that a proclamation be issued, compelling them to desist, when they shall be pardoned. Advisability of laying the papers before Parliament in the first instance to move for leave to bring in a Bill reciting the Acts of treason and rebellion. Steps to be taken with regard to Massachusetts Bay, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

4 folio pages.

N. D. [1774].—A Plan for allaying the present Complaints of the British American Colonies. And Plan of the Proportion of Representatives proposed to be allotted to the several British Islands and Provinces in America.

Not signed. 2 large folio pages.

N. D. [1774].—Plan for indemnifying the East India Company for the loss sustained on such of the teas sent to America as have been destroyed there or returned to Europe, and for reducing our North American Colonies to a proper sense of their duty, without the effusion of blood, and without expense to the Mother Country.

2½ pages.

Endorsed:—Plan For bringing the Americans to reason & proper subjection to the British Government, For indemnifying the East India Company for its present Loss, and for creating a Fund to defray all the necessary Expence.

N. D. [? 1774].—Resolutions, probably of the House of Commons, with reference to the restoration of order and Government in Massachusetts Bay. That the law officers be appointed and removed by the authority of the Governor without the consent of the Council or assistants. That power be vested in the Governor to apprehend rioters, etc. That the Lieutenant Governor and Secretary of the Colony shall be members of the Council without being elected. That no town meeting be called without the Governor's consent.

Copy. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Resolutions.

N. D. [1774].—Memorandum in Lord Dartmouth's hand: "how is the Town of Boston assessed? If the selectmen are not already empowered by law, direct them to call a Town meeting, & to levy the money upon the Town, or upon such particular Persons as they shall find to have been guilty of the destruction of the Teas."

⅓ quarto page.

N. D. [? 1774].—Colonel Dalrymple. Report of the state of Trade, presented soon after his return to England, to the first Lord of the Treasury and Board of Trade. "The acquisition of Continental Territorys and Sugar Islands in America to Great Britain & the loss of them to France must naturally occasion such a change in the course of Trade as to require new regulations."
Corrected Manuscript. 13 pages.

Endorsed:—State of American Trade, and Plan for a free port at Dominica by Col. Dalrymple.

N. D. [1774].—Memorandum of business, in Lord Dartmouth's hand, "Mr. Watson—compensation for tea duty in America; Dr. Calef—the 12 townships" etc., etc.
¾ folio page.

N. D. [? 1774].—Minutes in Lord Dartmouth's hand on American affairs. Mention made of the taking possession of the Castle of Boston. Supposes that the Governor of Rhode Island means to do his duty.
1 folio page.

N. D. [? 1774].—Regulations humbly submitted to the Earl of Dartmouth for the better preventing the smuggling of tea by the French and Dutch into our American Colonies and the West Indies.
Not signed. 3 pages.

Endorsed:—C—26. Thoughts on the Prevention of Smuggling in America.

Again Endorsed:—Cap^{n} Farndborgh's Remarks on the E. In. Trade.

N. D. [1774].—Paper beginning, "In order to judge of the propriety of the Measures which has been suggested, of opening a Channel of Communication and Consultation with America upon points that may lead to a Restoration of Harmony and good understanding by means of a Commission to be issued here, it will be necessary to consider 1st The Object of such a Commission, 2nd The Nature and Plan of it, as applying to that Object, 3rd The proposition to be brought forward in Negociation and Discussion as the Basis of Peace and Union."
8¾ folio pages draft form.

N. D. [1774].—Paper headed "Proposal"—"First. That immediate orders be sent to Governor Hutchinson directing that Himself and all other Officers, who are not obliged by Laws of the Colony to perform their Functions at Boston, do, without Delay . . . . . remove to such other place in the Colony" as Hutchinson shall think the least liable to be awed or influenced by the people of Boston, and that the General Court be held at such place. (2) Like orders to be sent to the Commissioners of Customs. (3) Instructions for the Attorney and Solicitor General.
2⅓ quarto pages.
Endorsed:—Proposal.

ELIAS DURNFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [? 1774]. Thursday noon. Bland Street.—Remarks on his plan to survey the province by dividing it into townships to be granted to certain persons.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Lieut. Gov^r Durnford with a plan for W. Florida.

JOHN GORDON to the BOARD OF TRADE.

N. D. [? 1774].—Sets forth a plan for the better collection of, and regulation in the receipt of, the quit rents and casual revenue in America.

Copy. Signed. 7 pages. [A duplicate of this is in the Public Record Office, Board of Trade, East Florida, Vol. 7, fo. 9.]

JOHN GORDON to LORD NORTH.

N. D. [? 1774].—Memorial. Refers to his memorial to the King desiring compensation in connection with the purchase of lands made by him and others in East Florida. Solicits his Lordship's protection and countenance.

Manuscript. 1 page.

Endorsed:—Copy of M^r Gordons intended memorial with his Quit rent scheme.

JOHN GORDON to LORD [NORTH].

N. D. [? 1774].—With the exception of the first paragraph is the same as his letter to the Board of Trade.

Letter signed. 11 pages.

Endorsed:—Quit rent & Casual Revenue Scheme.

[JOHN GORDON] to LORD NORTH.

N. D. [? 1774].—Marked "Copy of a letter intended for my Lord North in order to get the Quit rent introduced to his Lordship." On the justice of his case. Is aware of the impracticability of obtaining a compensation out of funds appropriated for other purposes but can point out a way by which the American revenue may be greatly increased. Has committed his thoughts on this subject to paper in order to lay them before his Lordship.

1¾ pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of M^r Gordon's intended letter with his Quit rent Scheme.

JOHN GORDON.

N. D. [? 1774].—Accompt of Mr. Gordon's purchases of lands in East Florida for himself and other British subjects.

⅓ folio page.

Endorsed:—N^o 4. M^r Gordon's Purchase E. Florida. Ex.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR JOSEPH GORHAM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [1774].—Memorial. Was employed from the year 1745, in the two last wars in North America, particularly at the sieges of Louisburg, Quebec and the Havannah. Sets forth his services. Result of his application for the Lieutenant Governorship of Halifax. His appointment as deputy superintendent of Indian affairs. His dismissal, and appointment to office as Lieutenant Governor of Placentia. Losses he sustained. Desires to be reinstated with regard to his salary.

Not signed. 2 large folio pages.

Endorsed:—To the Right Hon^ble^ the Earl of Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretarys of State, &c. &c. &c. The Memorial of Joseph Gorham, Lieu^t^ Governor of His Majestys Town and Garrison of Placentia.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL GORHAM.

N. D. [1774].—Minutes. Proposes that he be put on full pay as Lieutenant Colonel, and have the first vacancy that may occur in the American army. Desires he may be recommended for promotion. Conceives a corps may be raised under the denomination of Royal Defensible Americans. Reason for his brother, (a Colonel of militia, and one of the principal Magistrates in Barnstaple, Massachusetts Bay) being obliged to resign his posts.

On a separate piece of paper is added a question by Lord Dartmouth as to what might reasonably be done for the Memorialist and Pownall's opinion in answer that he should have an allowance as Lieutenant Governor of Placentia.

Not signed. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Lieut. Col^o^ Gorhams Minutes. Proposalls &c.

ROBERT HAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [1774].—On the subject of Judge Salter's will; property to which Mrs. Hayne is entitled. Hopes his Lordship will allow his wife to give in her claim agreeable to her father's will.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^rs^ Hayne. Ex.

Enclosures:—

MARY HAYNE to the KING.

Petition. Sets forth her claim to the property of Judge Salter, her father. Desires His Majesty to procure the will for her.

Original. Not autograph. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—M^rs^ Hayne's Petition.

JOHN SALTER, Lieutenant Colonel to the 1st Regiment of Foot Guards and Major General in the Army, to MRS. HAYNE.

1774, July 2. Cannon Row.—The property of the late Judge Salter, and his having been desired to claim it. His refusal.

Copy. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—A Coppy of General Salters Letter To M^rs^ Hayne.

GOVERNOR HUTCHINSON.

N. D. [? 1774 or 1775].—Paper endorsed "Hints from Governor Hutchinson" consisting of two forms of an oath to be taken by an inhabitant of any town in His Majesty's Dominions, (in America) of allegiance to the King.

In Governor Hutchinson's hand. 1¾ octavo pages.

[GOVERNOR HUTCHINSON.]

N. D. [? 1774 or 1775].—Heads of an Act and remarks thereon with the form of a declaration relinquishing all share or part in any association, confederacy or agreement for the non-importation of goods from Great Britain or for the non-exportation of goods to Great Britain &c.

In Governor Hutchinson's hand. 4 octavo pages.

LORD MARCHMONT.

1774.—Paper concerning America. The writer sets forth the precautions he considers are necessary to allay the present animosities, to remove all suspicion of hostile intentions and every defect in the original constitution of the Colonies. Considerations upon the land forces to be kept in the "old Colonies." Is convinced they cannot have the face to ask a different constitution from that of the mother country. Plan for making their judges independent.

Not signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—1774. L^{d} Marchmont.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

N. D. [1774].—Reasons for a salary for the Chief Justice of New Hampshire since the Chief Justices of all the other Royal provinces in America are now provided with stipends to the amount of £500 to £1,000 per annum.

4⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Reasons for Salary for Ch. Just. of New Hampshire.

NEW HAMPSHIRE and MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

N. D. [1774].—Memorandum relating to certain offices in these Provinces. Begins, "A Commission for the Secretaryship, but the Office not to be Enter'd upon till the present possessor's decease or voluntary resignation."

1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Mem. relative to certain Offices in New Hants & Mass. Bay.

ROYALIST MILITIA.

1774.—A Return of the New York Regiment of Militia whereof Leonard Lispenard Esquire is Colonel, Gerard G. Beekman, Lieutenant-Colonel, and Anthony Van Dam, Major. Signed Leonard Lispenard.

Original. ¾ large folio page.

Endorsed :—A Return of the New York Regiment of Militia 1774. Col° Lispenard.

N. D. [? 1774].—Return of the Regiment of Militia in Suffolk County, under Colonel Platt Conklin.

2 folio pages.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1774. Tuesday. Bushy Park.—Though General Gage's dispatches give ground for a reinforcement, they unfortunately demand such a one as the nation will not be able to furnish in less than a twelvemonth. Thinks it right that [Dartmouth] should bring the whole of his measures soon before the Cabinet, and North will reconsider his reasons dispassionately. Remarks upon the fresh difficulties of acting successfully with a land army. His wish to see some measure adopted which may prevent the bad effects which the too great appearance of lenity and concession may produce.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Lᵈ North 1774.

N. D. [1774].—Draft of an Act for the more effectual Security of the Kingdom of Great Britain and the Dominions thereunto belonging.

4¼ folio pages.

Endorsed (on a wrapper) :—Private. With Lord North's Compliments.

[JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH].

N. D. [? 1774]. Sunday evening.—Feels much anxiety on the following points,—final settlement of the arrangements for Quebec, state of Mosquito Shore, and dispatch of the "Scarborough" to General Gage with such orders as may be thought necessary or at least with intelligence of what has been done.

Autograph. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Memorandum from J. P.

JOHN POWNALL.

N. D. [1774].—Notes in the hand of John Pownall. Marked "To be added to the Minute." The army under General Gage to be reinforced by three regiments of infantry and one of light dragoons; reinforcement of marines to Admiral Graves. Bill to be moved for in Parliament to prohibit the associated Colonies from trading to any foreign ports, and from carrying on fishing in the American seas. There are also two slips of Memoranda by Lord Dartmouth.

1 folio page.

MR. RENSELAER.

N. D. [1774].—Paper endorsed "State of Mr. Renselaer's Title as well under the Patents of 1685 & 1704, as under the confirmations in 1717 & 1773."

10 pages.

GEORGE REYNOLDS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [1774].—Memorial. Desires to be appointed Chief Justice or Magistrate of such a court of Judicature as shall be established on the River Mississippi.

Original signed. 1¼ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—To the Right Honourable The Earl of Dartmouth The Memorial of George Reynolds Esq^{r}.

PROPOSALS by STEPHEN SAYRE.

N. D. [? 1774].—That every American colony should appoint one person, and the persons thus appointed meet at New York once a year, receive commissions and be formed into a Board of Trade to correspond with the Board of Trade here. Refers to the Indian trade and the settlement of boundary lines. The contributions of money from the colonies to be considered and organised by these commissioners, and their determinations, regulations, proposals &c. to be duly attended to and from time to time read in Parliament.

Signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Sayre's proposal.

OFFICE of SECRETARY of STATE.

N. D. [1774].—Two papers—Establishment of the Office of Secretary of State and Account of the Salaries, Allowances, and Annual Expence of the Office. The Salary of the Secretary of State is put down at £1,850 per annum with deduction of fees and land tax at 4*s.* £797 14*s:* Of the Under Secretaries John Pownall has £500 per ann. from the King with the fees of Under Secretary of State. A third paper contains a List of Messengers.

AMBROSE SERLE.

N. D. [? 1774].—Memorandum in the hand of Ambrose Serle. That the clause for enforcing the making good the damages to the India Company should be in a separate Bill, otherwise the whole might be deemed a Money Bill. That the ringleaders at the town-meeting should be declared incapable of holding any post of trust. An expedient should be thought of to enable the British subjects to recover their debts.

1 quarto page and 2 lines.

Endorsed:—Mem.

1774.—Paper endorsed, in the hand of Ambrose Serle, "Thoughts upon the Proceedings of the Congresses in 1774." It begins: "The Idea of subduing the New England Governments by a regular Plan of Military operation is in its nature absurd and improper—not practicable without an Army of 10,000 men or more."

4 folio pages.

DANIEL SHAW, late Captain in the 62nd Regiment, to the KING.

N. D. [? 1774–5.]—Proposal. To raise 300 men in 3 months time after his arrival in Scotland to serve in America or elsewhere.
¾ page.
Endorsed :—Capt. Shaw's Proposal.

DOCTOR JAMES SMITH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

N. D. [Beginning of 1774]. No. 3, Princes Court, Westminster.—It is with the utmost satisfaction the Americans see his Lordship at the head of the Board of Trade and Plantations. The colonies are daily undergoing a rapid change of circumstances. Submits the enclosed thoughts for his Lordship's consideration. "Many motives enjoin me to lay them at your Lordship's feet, that those who have the superior direction of affairs may be enabled to improve this vast dependant growing territory to the mutual peace, wealth and happiness of the whole Empire. If the contents of the enclosed sheets shall be favourably received, remedy evils or contribute to answer any salutary purpose they will give the highest satisfaction, to him, who has the honour to be, with the most profound respect. James Smith."
Autograph letter signed. 2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Dr Smith Inclosing Thoughts on the Dispute between G. Britain and her Colonies. C—I.

Enclosure :—

Thoughts upon the dispute between Great Britain and her Colonies. [A duplicate of this, sent on 4 July 1775, is stated to be by William Smith of New York. For the same paper with variations and omissions see infra 23 January 1775 under Brook Watson.]
Not autograph. 9¾ pages.

Endorsed :—Thoughts upon the Dispute between G. Britain and her Colonies. In a Letter from Dr Smith without Date. In C—1.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

1774.—List of the Members of His Majesty's Council for South Carolina.
Not signed. ⅔ folio page.

TEA.

N. D. [? 1774].—Amount of Teas exported by the United East India Company for Boston, per ships "Beaver," "Dartmouth," and "Eleanor." Prime cost and charges to England £7,192. 5. 1. Packing and cartage on exportation £54. 19. 2 etc. The total amounts to £7,532. 19. 3.
¼ page.
Endorsed :—Amount of Teas sent to Boston.
Again endorsed :—Ld Gower Mr Monk. Ex.

CAPTAIN VILLENEUFVE.

N. D. [? 1774].—Memorandum concerning Captain Gedeon Villeneufve, possibly from his widow. "He Sail^{d} from London in 1770 in the Ship Amelia to Pheladelpha in America and sometimes from thence to Lisbon."

Original. 1 quarto page.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774.—Letter not signed nor dated. "The Kings Stores should not be kept in the middle of a large Town and surrounded with wooden buildings." Considers the stores could be kept very securely on the Governor's Island and a few batteries on said Island would most effectually command the navigation of New York Harbour.

1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Anon. N. York 1774. King's Stores.

1774.—Volume entitled, "Transactions in America relative to the Boston Port Act, &c. in 1774," containing copies and abstracts of the correspondence between the Secretary of State and the various American Governors during that year. With an Appendix of some further letters and papers from General Gage, and an Index. [The original correspondence is in the Public Record Office.]

Bound in red morocco, gilt, 9¼" × 6¼". Pages 1–523.

The HONOURABLE OLIVER DELANCY to CAPTAIN OLIVER DELANCY, of the 17th Light Dragoons.

1775, January 4. New York.—The heats are very violent, and if the forcible Councils persist, forsees horrid carnage and immediate ruin to America. Fears if New York breaks out it will be more violent than any other province. Hopes moderate measures will be taken by Parliament towards America.

Extract certified by B. J. Johnson. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from the Hon^{ble} Oliver Delancey to Capt^{t} Delancey N. York 4 Jan^{y} 1775, respecting the Temper of People in N. York.

PIERRE ROUBAUD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, January 4. London.—Remarks on the importance of his enclosure.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page. French.

Endorsed:—London 4 Jan. 1775. Mons. Roubaud. Recd. the same day.

Enclosure:—

Pierre Roubaud. Memoire sur l'amerique. On the present state of the American colonies—their desire for independence etc.

Autograph. 10 large folio pages. French.

Endorsed:—Memoire sur l'amerique. In M^{r} Roubaud's of the 4 Jan. 1775. R/ Jan. 4, 1775.

Extract of a Letter to Mr. Williams.

1775, January 6. New York.—"In the ship Lady Gage, Capt. Messnard, were Imported 10 Chests of Arms, some Powder, &c.; they were Shipped by Mr. Haley in London, Addressed to Walter Franklin here & upon Account of some persons in Connecticut." These arms were seized by a Custom House officer, who was attacked by some Sons of Liberty for so doing. Details and proceedings in the town owing to a threat to assassinate the Collector who is much esteemed by the majority of people here.

1⅔ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter to Mr Williams, dated N. York, 6 Janry 1775.

[ ] to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, January 8.—Letter not signed, beginning "The misrepresentations which universally prevail in this country, respecting American matters induce me to address your lordship at a time, that I should suppose the smallest information respecting these colonies would be acceptable." Assures him that the principal and leading people of America are much better affected towards Britain than the late reports represent, and that the conduct of the eastern provinces is held in the utmost detestation by the others. Remarks on proceedings respecting measures taken by Bostonians in consequence of the tea riots. Promises further intelligence if Lord Dartmouth will assure him his letters shall be kept secret.

Original. 4 large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Z. Y. X. 8 Jany 1775.

Israel Mauduit to Lord North.

1775, January 9. Clemens Lane.—When appointed, will wait upon his Lordship concerning Mr. Ruggles.

Copy. In the third person. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—Copy of Note from Mr Mauduit to Lord North, 9th Jany 1775.

Wrapper endorsed:—Mr Mauduit's Extracts of Letters for Lord North. Jan. 1775.

Enclosures:—

Colonel Robinson [Robertson], Quarter Master General, America, to [Israel Mauduit].

1774, November 3. Boston.—Was summoned by General Gage in September to get cover for some troops. Narrates how he was stopped in providing quarters by an Edict issued by the Select Men and Committee of Correspondence and by the destruction of his materials. Under considerable difficulties he hopes however to have accomplished this work by next week. The four New England provinces are alike ill-disposed; are numerous, perhaps 60,000 are armed; the common wish the destruction of the army before the spring; their Congress has appointed three scoundrels, foolish fellows, generals, a committee to do the office of a governor and another to do that of the Judges. Advises stringent measures be taken with them and then other provinces will obey. Reminds him that his predictions last June or July are fulfilled and warns him against consequences that will ensue if his present advice is not acted upon.

Enclosures—cont.

Extract. $4\frac{1}{3}$ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from Col^o Robinson Q^r Master General in America. In M^r Mauduit's of 9^th Jan^y 1775.

BRIGADIER RUGGLES to ISRAEL MAUDUIT.

1774, October 16. Boston.—The friends of Government here have a full confidence in Lord North's measures, and that they will be quite sufficient to teach others their duty. Offers his services to enlist a number of the friends of Government for the present exigency if agreeable to his Lordship's wishes.

Extract. $1\frac{1}{2}$ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from Brigadier Ruggles to I. Mauduit. Boston 16^th Oct^r 1774. In M^r Mauduit's to L^d North of 9^th Jan^y 1775.

INTELLIGENCE from BOSTON.

1774, November 2.—Extract of a Letter from Boston by the St. Lawrence Schooner. Has sent some of the latest newspapers to show the progress made in rebellious designs. America is preparing for war and surprised at the apathy of Great Britain who may be assured that the longer the colonies are let alone the more difficult the contest will be. The desire for independence has spread over all the provinces, even parts of Nova Scotia are refractory. Only Canada is loyal and General Carleton has offered General Gage Canadians and Indians to assist if necessary.

$2\frac{1}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from Boston by the St. Laurence Schooner. In M^r Mauduit's to L^d North of 9^th Jan^y 1775.

LORD WILLIAM CAMPBELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 10. London.—Remarks on the decrease of the Governor of South Carolina's salary owing to the Proclamation prohibiting grants of land and also owing to the late unhappy differences. Desires to be informed how to lay this case before him.

Autograph letter signed. $1\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^d W^m Campbell 10 Jan^y 1775.

[? CORBYN] MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 10. Story's Gate, Westminster.—Sends two copies of a plan for his own and Lord North's perusal only.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Cor. Morris Esq^r with a plan for America 1775.

Enclosure :—

Two copies of a paper headed " A Systematical Plan Submitted for the Conduct of Great Britain towards her North American Colonies particularly in the present Juncture." " It is proposed 1mo That his Majesty's Forces be withdrawn from Boston and immediately take possession of Long Island." Proposes also the fortification of Long Island and Rhode Island, and separate Independent Governments to be immediately constituted there by the authority of the British Legislature. Remarks on these proposals giving reasons for the same. Suggestions concerning several other provinces and " Final Remark " on the whole.

3 large folio pages.

Endorsed (both copies) :—A Systematical Plan for the Conduct of Great Britain towards her North American Colonies.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 11. Cavendish Square.—Sends a paper received yesterday from General Gage. The writer was Lieutenant-Colonel of Royal Highlanders in the last war, now settled in some North American province.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—L^{d} Barrington Jan^{y} 1775 with a paper sent by Gen^{l} Gage.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 11. Cavendish Square.—Considers it proper he should see the enclosed and states that the transport mentioned therein has arrived.

Autograph letter in the third person. 4 lines.

Endorsed :—Lord Barrington 11th Jan^{ry} 1775, inclosing Extract of a Letter from Gen^{l} Gage, relative to the Supply of the Army with Necessaries.

Enclosure :—

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to the Secretary at War [LORD BARRINGTON].

1774, November 20. Boston.—" The Non-Importation Scheme having been adopted in the Colonies, & this Port shut up, it has been judged expedient to fall upon some method to get the troops supplied with the necessaries they will probably be in want of in the Spring of the Year :"—M^{r} Coffin having agreed to purchase at his own risk these necessaries if he could enter this port, Gage has ordered one of the transports to London to bring out the stores for the troops as this is allowable under the Boston Port Bill.

Extract. 1⅓ quarto pages.

MATTHEW BOULTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, January 12. Soho, near Birmingham.—Relates proceedings of a meeting of Birmingham merchants dealing with America, setting forth their distress and determination to petition Parliament for redress, notwithstanding remonstrances offered by Doctor Roebuck and himself against such an unwise action. Encloses queries respecting this, drawn up by Doctor Roebuck and himself after this meeting and seeks to show their commercial inconveniences are not so great as they represent.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

JAMES BURROW to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, January 12.—Hopes his Lordship will confer with His Majesty on the enclosed paper.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. ⅓ folio page.

Endorsed:—J. Burrow's Memorial to H. M. on American Affairs 12 Jan. 1775.

Enclosure:—

JAMES BURROW to the KING.

Memorial, dated January 1775, with a postscript dated 12 January. Submitting "cool dispassionate thoughts" on American affairs. These are followed by a draft of instructions suitable to be given to a viceroy proposed to be sent to America to settle the disputes with that country.

Original. 5⅔ large folio pages.

NATHANIEL WALKER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, January 12. Newman Street.—Has just arrived from New York. Assures him of the tranquillity of the provinces and contradicts from personal observation the accounts given in newspapers. The disturbances are entirely due to a few people from different provinces aiding the Bostonians. Reluctance shewn in giving help for the support of Boston. Seven vessels arrived at Bristol from America in the last few days laden with wheat and flour, and twenty more expected. The "Asia" and "Scarborough" men of war had arrived at Boston, as also the "Mercury" packet at York.

Autograph letter signed. (The signature is over a previously written name.) 2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr W——r's Account of American Affairs. 12 Jan. 1775.

MINUTE OF CABINET.

1775, January 13.—Held at Lord Rochford's office. Agreed to recommend to the King the reinforcement of General Gage's army from Ireland, and suggests the acceptance of Brigadier Ruggle's proposal to raise a corps of irregulars. The propriety of restricting the American commerce in consequence of the association of the General Congress. Advisability of sending Commissioners over to negotiate for union with the colonies for the mutual interest of both parties.

Draft. 1¼ folio page.

Endorsed:—Dt of Minute. Ex.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 13.—Letter signed Z Y X. Excuses himself from a personal interview. Informs him of the channel of his intelligence and the reasons for giving it. Considers a dutiful representation of the people and country necessary for his Lordship at this important juncture. Remarks on the disposition of the farmers. Seeks to show that the warlike preparations of the Bostonians are a delusion. Gives the general opinion concerning taxation, non-importation and troops.

Autograph letter signed. 6½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Z. Y. X. on American Affairs. 13th Janry 1775.

MATTHEW BOULTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, January 15. Soho.—Sends an advertisement forgotten to be enclosed in his last letter [of 12th], also another copy of his Queries, as the former one contained many errors. Assures him no branch of their manufactures will be so much affected by the Americans as the nail trade, and no part of the country will feel its effects so soon as his Lordship's own parish of Bromwich, from which place reliable information can easily be obtained.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto page.

Enclosures:—

Newspaper Cutting containing two notices dated Birmingham and Dudley 9th and 7th January 1775 calling a meeting of the Merchants, Factors and Manufacturers interested in the trade to America to consider the discouraging state of that trade and the propriety of petitioning Parliament.

1775, January 14. Birmingham.—Queries (12) on the propriety of Petitioning Parliament on the present interruption of American Commerce.
3¼ large folio pages.

MATTHEW BOULTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, January 17. Birmingham.—With autograph draft of proposed petition to the House of Commons by the town of Birmingham. Has attended the meeting of merchants and endeavoured to prevent them petitioning Parliament at present but without success, so he and several others in the town considered it their duty "to sign and to promote the signing of a petition which tended 1st to take off that stigma theirs would carry with it, and 2dly to promote Perminance in the execution of our Laws and consequently better security of their American Debts." Desires [Dartmouth's] opinion of this petition which is given at the end of the letter.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Boulton Jany 1775.

FLEET in NORTH AMERICA.

1775, January 17. Admiralty Office.—List of Ships and Vessels under the command of Vice-Admiral Samuel Graves.
2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Admty Office 17th Janry 1775. List of His Majts Ships and Vessels in North America under the Command of Vice Adl Graves, and of those proposed to be sent thither.

PIERRE ROUBAUD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, January 17. London.—Remarks on enclosure.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page. French.

Endorsed :—Londres 18 Jan^ry^ 1775 Mons^r^ Roubaud.

Enclosure :—

Pierre Roubaud. Second "Memoire sur l'amerique." Present state of America. Strength of the colonists. Best measures to be pursued at this critical juncture.
Autograph. 9⅔ folio pages. French.

Endorsed :—Memoire 2^d^ sur l'Amerique par Mon^r^ Roubaud. R/Jan. 18. 1775.

GOVERNOR THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 18. Boston.—Disposition of the people cooling down. Influence of the press, which has been more open to Government than usual. Hoped to have procured an Association in this town but they hesitate to make open declaration until assured of England's resolve to pursue her measures. Thinks if the most obnoxious of the leaders were seized and pardon proclaimed for others, Government would come off victorious with less opposition than expected a few months since. People concerned in the rash action against Fort William are terrified at their conduct and seek pardon.
Copy. 2½ folio pages. [The autograph signed letter is the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 130, fo. 143.]

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from the Hon^ble^ Governor Gage to the Earl of Dartmouth dated Boston 18^th^ Jan^y^ 1775. R/20^th^ Febr^y^.

ANDREW PEPP. SPARHAWK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 18. Wednesday.—Having been long employed in service connected with the American timber, states his conviction that the important duty of Surveyor General to the Crown for the northern district cannot be properly fulfilled by the Governor of New Hampshire, as each office requires the time and attention of a separate person. Destruction of timber will not be suppressed while deputies are sent to attend to the business.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Sparhawk 18 Jan^y^ 1775 American Timber.

SIR STANIER PORTEN to MR. POWNALL.

1775, January 19. Thursday morning, St. James's.—Sends a list of Peers invited by Lord Rochford to hear the King's speech at the opening of this session.
Autograph letter in the third person. ½ quarto page.

GRANVILLE SHARP to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 19. Old Jewry.—Has completed the work mentioned in a previous letter. Sends a copy of it. Hopes he will excuse it being sent unbound as he was anxious it should arrive before the House of Lords met tomorrow. Beseeches him not to assist in enforcing the present measures against America. Believes his book, founded on authorities and facts, if read, will convince him of the error of so doing. Has sent a second copy for Lord North's perusal if desirable.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr G. Sharpe 19 Jany 1775. American Measures.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 19. Bath.—Believes the Americans will not henceforth accept Parliamentary taxation in any form, or consume any British articles even if forced to receive them. Cannot agree with his Lordship's idea of holding out the olive branch in one hand and the rod of chastisement in the other. Half measures will not do, delays still more dangerous. Advises removal of stumbling blocks, or vigorous measures. Thanks for public recognition of Colonel Fanning's and Mr. Sauthier's services.

Autograph letter signed. 5½ quarto pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 19. Bath.—Sends letters from New York which are to be read with that caution expressed in the copy of a letter Lord Dartmouth kept back. Has heard by to-day's post from Captain Penderleath of the death of Mr. Benzel and Alexander Colden, which if true will make room for his friends.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

LIEUTENANT ROBERT TOMLINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 20. 9 o'clock, evening. New Round Court, No. 4, Strand —Details of conversation between English merchants and American and West Indian merchants who have lately petitioned Parliament, showing that such was only done to "preserve appearances, and to keep up a good understanding with their correspondents in America and the West Indies." Thought such an impartial, authentic and just account ought to be communicated to his Lordship as it differs so essentially from common report and the newspaper account of things.

Autograph letter signed. 2¼ quarto pages

Endorsed:—Lieut Tomlinson 20 Jany 1775 Mercht's Petition.

PETITION OF MERCHANTS.

[1775, January 23.]—Heads of the Petition from the Merchants, Traders and others, concerned in the North American Commerce, [presented to the House of Commons on this day]. That on the balance of the extensive commerce carried on with North America there is now due from the colonies to the city of London alone two millions sterling. That by the operation of various injurious Acts the minds of the people in the colonies are greatly disquieted, a total stop is put to the export trade, and that ruin and distress are before them. They crave an examination of the commercial policy previously maintained to the happiness of both countries and that healing remedies should be applied to establish the commerce between them on a permanent foundation.

1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Heads of the Amer^{n} Merch^{ts} Petition pres^{d} 23 Jan. 1775.

MAJOR PHILIP SKENE to LORD NORTH.

1775, January 23. No. 48, Margaret Street, Cavendish Square.—Has seen General Howe, and finds it not impossible to prevail on this brave officer to serve under General Gage, second in command. Highly commends Howe, having served with him in many dangers and found him unsurpassed in activity, bravery and experience and beloved by the troops. Considers Haldimand will be useful to head the Germans. Thinks Chelsea out-pensioners are more fit for immediate service than recruits and they would inspire and assist the young soldiers. Proposes reinforcements from Ireland. Commends Colonel Ord for past services. Reminds him of Edward Coulthurst recommended by Lady Shelburne to be Lieutenant in the Navy.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Maj^{r} Skene to Lord North.

BROOK WATSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 23. Garlick Hill.—Sends enclosure according to desire.

Original. 3 lines.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Watson's Thoughts on American Affairs. 23^{d} Jan^{ry} 1775.

Enclosure:—

Thoughts upon the Dispute between Great Britain and her Colonies "sent to Lord Dartmouth by His Lordships Devoted Hble Serv^{t} Brook Watson" 23 January 1775.

[This is a copy of William Smith's paper, with a few variations and some paragraphs omitted; see the end of 1774.]

In Watson's hand. 10 quarto pages.

JOHN GORDON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 24. Brompton Row.—Thanks for his attention to his affairs, thus enabling him to return to his family. Illness prevents him from personally attending to this business, so desires Mr. Elliot to ascertain when his reference and proposals can be laid before the Board of Trade and his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Gordon 24 Jan^{y} 1775.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 30. Cavendish Square.—Gives strength of the force available for the present year leaving 12,000 men in Ireland and a small force to assist the civil magistrate.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

State of the Force which may be collected in New England in 1775. Total 10,819, leaving 5,359 in England and 1,893 in Scotland.

1 folio page.

Endorsed:—State of the Force, wch may be collected in New England in 1775. From Lord Barrington.

MATTHEW BOULTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, January 30. Soho.—Relative to the petition sent by Birmingham to the House of Commons concerning commerce. Sends a counterbalance which he has had printed in to-day's paper, the petition having been much misrepresented and abused.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Boulton 30 Jan^y^ 1775.

Enclosure:—

Newspaper cutting headed Birmingham, January 30, consisting of an Extract of a Letter from London January 26 concerning their (Birmingham) petition and giving an exact copy to counterbalance the misrepresentations made.

JOHN MALCOM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 31. Westminster.—Desires him to read the enclosed papers and present them a second time to the King in hopes of obtaining some compensation for sufferings endured when Commissioner of Customs at Boston.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Enclosure:—

JOHN MALCOM, Custom House Officer in the Boston Government in North America, to the KING.

1775, January 12. Westminster.—Petition. Relates his military services in the last two American wars especially in connection with Governor Tryon. Has commanded twelve different merchant vessels to different parts of the world and received four commissions in His Majesty's Customs. Details his recent sufferings at Boston. Has been seven months in London waiting for compensation. Desires £150 and the employment sought for in the Customs and promised by Lord North.

Signed. 7 folio pages.

Endorsed:—John Malcom true Copy of His Petition gave to His Majesty the 12 Day of Jan^y^ 1775 this gave to Lord Dartmouth to Prefer for me to His Majesty &c.

Annexed:—

JOHN MALCOM to LORD NORTH.

1774, September 14. Westminster.—Desires various employments in the Customs at Falmouth, which he details, the salaries of Annexed—cont.

the whole amounting to £200. Shows the necessity and utility of such appointments and hopes soon to obtain them and return to his family in America.

Signed copy. 2⅔ quarto pages.

NEW YORK ASSEMBLY.

1775, January 31. Assembly Chamber.—Two Motions passed; the first put by Col. Livingston, the second by Mr. Delancey. That a loyal petition be presented to the King, and that a representation and remonstrance be sent to the House of Lords and the House of Commons.

Printed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—N. York Assembly.

LORD WILLIAM CAMPBELL, Governor of South Carolina, to the KING.

N. D. [? 1775, January].—Petition. Owing to the disturbances in the province no dependence can be placed on the Assembly for the £500 voted annually towards his salary; the discontinuing the granting of lands deprives him of £1000 and the stagnation of trade of about £700. Desires a fixed salary to be paid by Government.

Not signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—To the Kings most Excellent Majesty The Humble Petition of Lord William Campbell.

LORD DARTMOUTH.

N.D. [1775, January.]—Paper headed "Hints &c." being remarks on items 1—17 of Doctor Franklin's Hints for Conversation of 6 December 1774.

Autograph. Two copies.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, January.—Has settled with Lord North that extracts only of such of Lord Dartmouth's letters as accompanied the Acts of last year, should be laid before Parliament. Military arrangements to complete the regiments for America.

Autograph. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Pownall Jan^y^ 1775. Reinforcem^t^ for Gen. Gage.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N.D. [? 1775, January.] Friday midnight.—Signed Z. Y. X. The fourth letter. Encouraged by the approbation shown by his Lordship of his last two letters will continue to send information concerning American affairs. Remarks on the importation of wine and tea into the Colonies, the former from the Canaries, Madeira and Western Islands, Spain and Portugal, the latter from Holland. States tha Government is a great sufferer from this illicit trading. Desirability of preventing it. Informs him on good authority that a cargo of 10,000*l.* value consisting of tea, wine, oil, etc. has been lately landed in one night in a principal seaport town in North America. Is concerned to find the misrepresentations of persons in America have influenced some of the leaders in this Kingdom.

Autograph letter signed. 5 folio pages.

Endorsed :—Z. Y. X. on American Affairs.

Doctor John Calef to Sir Francis Bernard.

1775, February 1. Ipswich, New England.—Account of his visit, since his return from London, to Sagadahock, Deer Island and Fox Island, where he found great increase of settlers who now desire a separate Government. Introduces Mr. Parker who has several papers on the subject to show him. Details his persecutions on account of his loyalty to Government.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—D^{r} Calef Feb. 1 1775.

Doctor John Calef to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, February 1. Ipswich in New England.—If a confirmation of the Province grants to them should not take place at present, the people in the territory of Sagadahock desire a Resolve may be made securing their lands to them. As they are about 300 miles from the seat of Government they wish to be separated from Massachusetts Bay and formed into a separate government. Joseph Parker of London, his attorney, will communicate to his Lordship some papers respecting this country.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—D^{r} Calef. N. Engl^{d}. 1 Feb. 1775, respecting the Settlements in Sagadahoc, with sev^{l} Papers.

The "several Papers" here referred to are noted under their respective dates; they are :—

Doctor Calef to Sir Francis Bernard 1 February 1775.
Sir Francis Bernard to Lord Dartmouth 18 April 1775.
John Calef Memorial to the King. [? 1773].
List of the number of inhabitants settled on lands Eastwards of River Sagadahock. October 1773.
Petition of Settlers of Southern Fox Island 25 November 1772.
Authority to Doctor Calef to act as their agent 25 November 1772.
Petition of Fox Island to the King 9 October 1772.
Authority similar to the above ,, ,, ,,
,, ,, ,, ,, ,, ,, ,,
A general account of the country eastward of Sagadahock River Oct. 1772.

Lord Chatham's Bill.

[1775, February 1. Presented to the House of Lords and rejected.]—A Provisional Act for settling the Troubles in America and asserting the supreme Legislative Authority and superintending Power of Great Britain over the Colonies.

Manuscript. 7 large pages.

Endorsed :—Lord Chatham's Bill.

NEW YORK.

1775, February 1. London.—A paper endorsed "State of Case between Daniel, William & Rebecca Coxe, John T. Kempe & Grace his Wife and Robert Lettis Hooper and others relative to Lands in N. York." Signed by John Coxe.

7⅓ folio pages.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 3. Cavendish Square.—Major Generals Howe, Clinton, and Burgoyne are appointed to serve under General Gage and have received the King's orders in the most becoming manner.

Autograph letter in the third person. 6 lines.

Endorsed :—L^{d} Barrington 3 Feb^{y} 1775.

GEORGE PAYNE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 5.—Desires him to second his application to Lord North for some appointment in the American Plan.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—G. Payne Esq^{r} desiring employm^{t} in America.

DOCTOR JOHN FOTHERGILL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, [February] 6th instant. Harpur Street.—Regrets the failure of his negotiation owing to the Boston Port Bill and the Government of Massachusetts and Quebec Acts for "as a concession to pay a tax was the sine qua non on this side, so a rescinding of those Acts, or rather repealing them, is the term of reconciliation on the other." No permission had been given to him to raise hopes that the Acts would be repealed and nothing less would satisfy. If the whole of America were as sensible of the advantages of peace and as disposed to it as his Lordship, it would be soon accomplished, but the contrary is the case at present. If these Acts were repealed America would return to every just expression of duty. The party [Dr. Franklin] we conferred with would have no objection to petition for the restoration of peace, to offer on the part of Boston to pay the East India Company for the tea though at the risk of his own private fortune, and concert every means of a lasting and reciprocally beneficial union.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—D^{r} Fothergill 6 Feb^{y} 1775.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR WILLIAM BULL to WILLIAM KNOX.

1775, February 7. Charlestown.—Recommends to his notice the bearer of this, Mr. Johnston, Clerk of the Crown in South Carolina, who is well versed in American affairs. Fears Parliament is too sanguine concerning the likelihood of America acceding to its wishes, for she seems determined to persevere in her present plans unless the Boston and Revenue Acts are repealed. Remarks on provincial disputes.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

STEPHEN FULLER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 7.—Informs his Lordship that the West India Planters and Merchants have this day signed a Petition to the House of Lords. This petition is of the same tenor and purport as that to the House of Commons herein enclosed.

Autograph letter in the third person. ¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—St. Fuller Esq^r 7 Feb^y 1775.

Enclosure:—

The Planters of His Majesty's Sugar Colonies residing in Great Britain, and the Merchants of London trading to the said Colonies, Petition to the House of Commons. Inconveniences to commerce arising from the non-importation agreement of Congress. Hope measures will be taken to prevent further evils.

Not signed. 3½ large folio pagss.

DAVID INGERSOLL (of Great Barrington, Massachusetts Bay) to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N.D. [1775, February 7.]—Memorial. Personal sufferings owing to his loyalty. Annexes narrative giving details.

Original signed. 1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Memorial of David Ingersoll Esq^r.

Annexed:—

1775, February 7. London.—Narrative of David Ingersoll. Attack on his house at Great Barrington in the early morning of 2^d August last; was compelled by the mob to ride out fifteen miles to Canaan where under a Liberty pole he had to sign a declaration. Details his sufferings on account of his loyalty to Government, his escapes and application to Gen^l Gage for protection. Seeks compensation for his losses.

Autograph. 7 folio pages.

COLONEL W. DALRYMPLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 8. London.—Having been appointed Lieutenant Colonel to the 14th Regiment, asks how he can return to those troops he formerly commanded without some mark of favour for his past honourable situation. Fears the disgrace that will attend him if he goes without this public recognition of past services.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Col. Dalrymple 8 Feb^y 1775.

LORD HARDWICKE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775. February 8.—With a memorandum on a separate paper relative to the Bill on American affairs. Time to be given to the non-rebellious colonies to recede from their non-importation and non-exportation agreements. Objection to the meeting of the Continental Congress without leave of the Crown.

Autograph. 3¼ note pages.

Endorsed:—E. of Hardwicke 8 Feb. 1775.

RICHARD OSWALD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 9. Achincrue near Ayr.—Having been a merchant in London for 29 years offers his Lordship the enclosed sentiments on the state of American commerce. Remarks on American affairs in general.

Autograph letter signed. 6½ quarto pages. [Letter and enclosure reproduced in B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Endorsed :—Rich^{d} Oswald 9 Feb^{y} 1775.

On a wrapper is the following in Mr. Pownall's hand "The inclosed paper sets out awkwardly and the style is unpromising—but there is great knowledge of the Subject it treats of and a very uncommon precision and Acuteness in the reasoning & reflection upon the facts stated in respect to the Commerce & policy of Virginia. M^{r} Oswald is a merchant of great Esteem & Credit.—Your Lordships Uncle had a great Confidence in his Integrity & ability & I believe consulted him much in matter of Commercial policy. Will it not be proper to answer his Letter & to encourage him to go on in what he has so ably begun ?"

Enclosure :—

Richard Oswald. Thoughts on the State of America. Suggestions on sending over a private agent to Virginia to endeavour to detatch it from the other provinces in acceding or cordially co-operating with them in the second intended Congress. Commercial difficulties.

Autograph. 21½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Thoughts on the State of America.

PARLIAMENT to the KING.

Three drafts for the address of the Houses of Parliament, separately and jointly. Not dated, but by reference to the Journals of the House believed to be that presented 9 February 1775. Concerning the undutiful conduct of Americans and desiring the King to take speedy measures to bring them to obedience.

6⅓ pages.

Endorsed :—Dra^{t} of Address.

CAPTAIN JOHN STANTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 9. Dover.—Laments the dreadful consequences that must ensue from the approaching contest. Offers his services, asking for the rank of a Major and command of a corps of Rangers in New England composed of ten companies taken from the Regiments quartered in that province.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Cap. Stanton 9 Feb^{y} 1775. Ex.

JOHN BOYD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 10. Grafton Street.—Expresses his gratitude for attention shown to his application and would be obliged if the affair could be finished before he goes out of town.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—J. Boyd Esq^{r} 10 Feb^{y} 1775.

LORD HYDE to LORD HOWE.

1775, February 10. Grosvenor Street.—"I feel, my dear Lord, y^{r} friendship in taking much pains only from a word I dropped. I will not further trouble you now, but if I hear nothing to the contrary I will wait on you in my way to L^{d} Dartmouth's where I am to be at eleven this morning, & shall wait to receive y^{r} commands ab^{t} imparting y^{r} sentiments. "E^{r}, my dear Lord most cordially y^{r}
"Grosvenor Street, 10th Feb. 1775. HYDE."

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page. (The end of Lord Howe's letter of 29 June to Lord Hyde is written, apparently by mistake, on the back of this letter.)

JAMES ABERCROMBY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 13. Oxendon Street.—Recommending Mr. G. Corbin to be of the Council of Virginia.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

GOVERNOR PETER CHESTER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 13. Pensacola.—Sends by Mr. Hervey (son of the Bishop of Derry and nephew of the Earl of Bristol) some plants and tobacco grown in West Florida. Will be glad to be of any service to his Lordship.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Pensacola 13 Feb^{y} 1775. Gov^{r} Chester.

MAJOR-GENERAL WILLIAM HOWE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 13. Monday, 3 o'clock, Queen Street.—Since he had the honour of seeing His Lordship this morning, has been informed by Amherst of the state of the artillery now at Boston and considers it fully adequate to any service in America.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Maj. Gen. Howe 13 Feb^{y} 1775.

MAJOR PHILIP SKENE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 13, Monday evening. No. 50, Margaret Street.—Thanks for obtaining for him the Lieutenant Governorship of Crown Point and Ticonderoga and place vacant by Mr. Benzell's death. Will go to America as soon as possible and there seek to show his gratitude by zealous service.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Maj^{r} Skene 13 Feb^{y} 1775.

E. VANDERHORST to the REVEREND DR. SAMUEL COOPER, Boston, New England, per ship "Ann," Captain Forten, viâ Philadelphia.

1775, February 16. Bristol.—Writes again to beseech him to exert his influence to prevent the horrors of a civil war in New England as it appears to be the intention of Government by oppression force America to commit some act of hostility and thus justify their conduct. Seeks to show they had better bear the distress caused by non-importation etc. than give cause for war or the accusation of being called rebels. Hopes they will adopt Lord Chatham's plan of reconciliation.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Intercepted Letter from M^r^ Vanderhorst of Bristol to D^r^ Cooper of New England, dated Sept. 1775.

PLAN of CONCILIATION and UNION.

[1775, February 16].—"A Plan for a permanent Union between Great Britain and the Colonies" with Remarks. The plan begins "1st. The Tea distroy'd to be paid for: And in order that no time may be lost to begin the desirable Work of Conciliation, it is proposed that the Agent, in a Petition to the King should engage that the Tea distroy'd shall be paid for." [This paper is not signed nor dated but is found to be the same as that quoted in Sparks's Franklin, Vol. 5, p. 58, where Dr. Franklin in his Journal introduces it thus:—"I waited upon him [Mr. Barclay] the next morning, when he told me, that he had seen Lord Hyde, and had some further discourse with him on the Articles; that he thought himself now fully possessed of what would do in this business; that he therefore wished another meeting with me and Dr. Fothergill, when he would endeavour to bring prepared a draft conformable chiefly to what had been proposed and conceded on both sides, with some propositions of his own. I readily agreed to the meeting, which was to be on Thursday evening, February 16th.

We met accordingly, when M^r^ Barclay produced the following paper."]

6¼ quarto pages.

PHILIP STEPHENS to JOHN POWNALL.

1775, February 17. Admiralty.—Has been informed that the "Falcon," sloop, has been driven back by contrary winds to St. Helens. Mentions this in case further dispatches were intended to go by her.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Admty Office 17th Feb^y^ 1776. M^r^ Stephens. J.P.

PAUL WENTWORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 18. Poland Street.—Received yesterday about 12 o'clock a letter sent by an express which left Amsterdam last Monday, stating that three ships were in the Texel nearly ready to sail to America with warlike stores. Plan he has adopted to intercept them.

Autograph letter signed. 6 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—P. Wentworth Esq^r^ 18 Feb^y^ 1775, contain^g^ intelligence of vessels load^g^ in Holland for America.

The EARL OF HARDWICKE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 19. St. James's Square.—Is told that Lord North is to move some very material motion relative to America tomorrow. Wishes it may bring about the end desired.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—E. of Hardwicke 19 Feb^y^ 1775.

The Earl of Hardwicke to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, February 19. St. James's Square.—Thanks for the communication of the intended resolution, will return it as soon as possible. Fears it will not forward conciliation with the colonies.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—E. of Hardwicke 19 Feb^y 1775.

Sir James Adolphus Oughton to [Lord Dartmouth].

1775, February 20. Caroline Park.—Hearing that General Hodgson is dangerously ill asks him to interest Lord North on his behalf to obtain the Government of Fort George if a vacancy occurs, as he considers he has some natural claim to it.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^r Ad. Oughton Feb^y 1775.

House of Commons.

N. D. [1775, February 20].—Two drafts of a resolution of a Committee that it is their opinion that when any of the colonies are raising money to be disposed of by Parliament for the common defence of His Majesty's dominions, it will be proper to forbear in respect to such levying any duty or tax or to impose any further duty or tax excepting those expedient to impose for the regulation of commerce. Both drafts contain an interpolated paragraph in Dartmouth's hand.

(Not dated, but by reference to the Commons' Journal it is found to have been proposed 20 February and passed 27 February 1775.)

1½ pages each.

Endorsed:—Dra^t of Resolution.

Richard Oswald to [Lord Dartmouth].

1775, February 21. Achincrue in Airshire, N. B.—Remarks on the enclosures. Has replied to the first and endeavoured to engage his friend on the side of moderation. His Lordship may see this answer if desired before it is sent to America.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages. [Letter and enclosures reproduced in B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Enclosures:—

1775, January 4.—Extract of a letter from a friend in Charlestown [possibly Hy. Laurens] to Richard Oswald. On the 11*th instant there will be a meeting on this ground of Members elected in each district of the province,* 120 in the whole, to nominate delegates for the second Congress to be held at Philadelphia on 10 May next. The people are disposed to quietness and all the obedience that ought to be expected from them, provided they are reinstated in those rights and privileges they previously enjoyed. If this is denied, infinite trouble and distress must come to America and England. Personal losses from the present state of affairs. The disposition of South Carolina is contrary to that shown by the Grand Juries there.

Enclosures—cont.

2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Extract of a Letter From Charlestown 4 Janry. 1775.

1775, February 21.—Richard Oswald. Memorandum with respect to South Carolina. A very long and closely written paper. Commercial difficulties in that Province. Suggests suitable measures to be taken with it. Remarks on Georgia.
Autograph. 20½ quarto pages.

LORD DARTMOUTH to GOVERNOR FRANCIS LEGGE.

1775, February 22. Whitehall.—No. 12. Remarks on the Bill to restrain the trade and prohibit the fisheries of the four New England provinces, also on a resolution on the further consideration of the American papers. Hopes that the firmness shown by Britain to preserve the colonies in a state of dependence tempered with that indulgence respecting taxation now held out will convince the Americans of the error of their conduct and restore public tranquillity. Grants Tonge leave of absence as desired.
Duplicate letter signed. 3¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—No. 12. Lord Dartmouth's Letter Feb. 22^d 1775 duplicate.

RICHARD OSWALD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 22. Achincrue, Airshyre.—Sent, by yesterday's post, to his friend in London various papers—thinks his answer to his friend in Charlestown of some importance and has requested Mr. Herries to forward it to his Lordship without delay for his approbation. His own doubts of its propriety.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages. [Reproduced in B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

COLONEL JAMES ROBERTSON to [ ].

1775, February 22. New York.—Has selected the papers that accompany this, that his correspondent may see the resolves and preparations for rebellion in their genuine colours. True disposition of the people. Advises that the leaders of the present troubles be punished and then order may be restored. Lord Barrington to be informed that the troops are well quartered at Boston in spite of the opposition of all the provinces and beyond the expectation of friends.
Copy. 3⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from Col. James Robertson, dated New York, 22 Feb^ry 1775.

ISAAC ROYALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 22. Medford.—Sends copy of a letter written in the previous year in which he requested Lord Dartmouth to use his influence and interest in behalf of the distressed Colonies. They contend for the restoration of their charter and constitutional rights. Hostile preparations made by Gage through all the provinces will he fears produce fatal consequences. Desires his interposition at this critical juncture. Excuses himself from public service on account of ill-health.

Letter signed. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Medford N. Eng^{d} 1774 Anonymous, on Colony Affairs.

Enclosure:—

[ISAAC ROYALL] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, January 18. Medford, New England.—Having been for 30 years past in Assembly or Council, assures him of the loyalty of the people though they are zealous for their constitutional rights. Thinks if the Revenue Act were repealed and affairs part in the same situation as formerly, harmony would return between the two countries. Fears while animosities continue, France and Spain are triumphing and working secretly "in sowing and fomenting jealousies and divisions" between Britain and America.

Copy not signed. 3⅓ large folio pages.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 24. Cavendish Square.—The King seeming very desirous that General Gage should be directed to augment his force at Boston, desires him to confer with His Majesty respecting the regiments to be sent to assist Gage. Sends question he thinks should be decided by the Attorney and Solicitor General so that the military may know how to act towards the insurgents.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Barrington 24 Feb. 1775.

Enclosure:—

Question to be sent to the Attorney and Solicitor General for their decision, as to whether, in the present situation of Massachusetts, the troops may act, without direction from a civil magistrate, against persons unlawfully in arms in that province, Connecticut, Rhode Island and New Hampshire.

1½ quarto page.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

177[5], February 24.—Reports that the King's armed vessel the "Cherokee" ordered to attend him on the general surveys is floating in the river and despatching her rigging to sail as soon as ordered. Desires instructions. Remarks on his salary and the enclosed paper.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page. Seal.

Enclosure :—

1775, February 18.—Observations on the transit of Saturn.

HENRY WHITE to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1775, April [qy. should be February] 25. New York.—A vessel being now bound for Falmouth loaded with wheat by the writer he embraces the opportunity to send a sheet of the votes of the present sessions showing that the Assembly perseveres in discountenancing the measures of the Congress and refuses to send delegates there next May. The House is preparing the Petition to the King and Parliament, which he hopes will have a salutary effect on this country.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—Henry White New York 25 feb^{y} 1775. Rec^{d} 10 Ap^{l}, d^{o} Ans^{r}.

Enclosure :—

New York General Assembly. Pages 43–46 of the printed Journal of Proceedings, 17 to 21 February.

JOHN CAMBEL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 26. Brompton (Kent).—Mentions his introduction (by Governor Browne) to a Mr. Reynolds to whom he gave information respecting West Florida. Fears however from recent news that the Governor must have been greatly deceived in him and informs his Lordship of it to prevent imposition and exculpate himself from censure. Refers for his own character to several ordnance officers under whom he has served for fourteen years.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Eng^{r} Campbell concern^{g} M^{r} Reynholds.

RICHARD OSWALD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 27, Achincrue.—Apologizes for the untidiness of his enclosure. Thinks there is a defect in the present mode of ascertaining the value of our exports and imports. Suggests method to remedy this. Hopes something will be done with South Carolina as it is in fault and capable of doing much harm to other provinces.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages. [Letter and enclosure reproduced in B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Enclosure :—

Sketch of a supposititious examination at the bar of the House [of Commons], in Richard Oswald's hand. Explaining his commercial dealings with America. Remarks on their trade in general.

26½ folio pages.

The REVEREND SAMUEL PETERS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 27. Heralds Office.—Relates his distresses owing to persecution by the people in Connecticut, whose Governor and civil authority refused him the protection due to him. Desires some appointment either in England, or in America among the Indians, by which he may be able to support his motherless family. Remarks on the disturbances in Connecticut and Lord North's motion for taxation.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Rev. M^r^ Peters Feb^y^ 27, 1775.

JOSEPH GALLOWAY.

1775, February 28 / 1775, March 26.—Paper headed "Secret Intelligence"—being extracts of Joseph Galloway's letter to Governor William Franklin, Philadelphia 28 February, of Governor Franklin's answer, dated Perth Amboy 12 March, and of a further communication from Galloway 26 March, dated from Trevose his country seat in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. 28th. February :—The people of this Province (Pennsylvania) are altering their sentiments and conduct with amazing rapidity. On the previous Thursday and Friday he spoke his sentiments in the Assembly without reserve censuring and condemning the measures of the Congress in everything. He stood single and unsupported. The opposition was violent and indecent but 14 members came over to him and they managed to postpone the debate to gain time to oppose the motion for presenting an Address to the King. Sends his pamphlet containing a Plan of Accommodation. Answer, 12th March :—The Assembly of his Province was precipitately hurried into an express approbation of the measures of the Congress. Details of the proceeding. Discusses the pamphlet. Mr. Galloway, 26 March :—A full account of the debates in his Assembly. As a specimen of the insults he has received, relates that a box was left at his lodgings containing a halter and a threatening letter.

19¼ folio pages. [A copy of this is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 195, fo. 233.]

Endorsed :—Secret Intelligence. Correspondence between Gov^r^ Franklin & M^r^ Galloway in Feb. & March 1775.

SIR WILLIAM HAMILTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 28. Naples.—As it is reported that Lord Grantham will not stay long at Madrid, asks to be recommended to Lord North for that vacancy. Laments the sad state of American affairs, but admires his Lordship's firmness in the matter. Considers if there is war it will be owing to Lord Chatham's indiscreet action.

Autograph letter signed. 5 large folio pages.

Endorsed :—S^r^ W^m^ Hamilton Naples March 1775.

REMARKS on LORD CHATHAM'S SPEECH.

1775, February.—"Lord Chatham observed on the first Day of the Meeting, that the Papers could not contain anything that was not of public Notoriety:" General condition of the American provinces. Proceedings in Boston. Mr. Ruggles proposes to raise a regiment from amongst the friends of Government there. States the disposition of the majority in New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey, and the Southern Colonies respectively.

4½ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Remarks on Lord Chatham's Speech, &c. Feb. 1775.

WILLIAM HEY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

N. D. [1775, February]. Tuesday morning. Jermyn Street.—Recommending Captain Hamilton of the 19th regiment to the office of Superintendent of a post at Detroit.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Hey Feb^{y} 1775, rec^{g} Capt. Hamilton.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [? 1775, February].—Sends a letter from his friend Captain Balfour. Other letters from Boston also state the violences committed by the people there who are disclaiming allegiance and preparing for action in the spring. Thinks the only alternative left is either to put the laws in execution by force of arms, or withdraw the troops entirely with every loyal subject and stop all communication and commerce with other countries until they return to obedience. States what he considers would be the result of the latter measure.

Autograph letter signed. 2$\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

CAPTAIN THOMAS WEBB to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, March 1. New York.—Disposition of the people in America is more favourable than a few months ago. The measures of Congress being disapproved and rejected by the New York Assembly is one grand blow. Believes that if the King's standard were raised about three fourths of the people would join. It is suggested by some that shutting up the ports would soon bring them back to a proper obedience. The consequent indigence and poverty would lead them to break through the resolves of Congress. Intends publishing some facts, relative to their proceedings, in the form of an address to all the artificers and manufacturers in Great Britain showing that the true cause of the present disturbance is the restless spirit of independence. Has sent this pamphlet to Charles Wesley for revision. Encloses copy of a letter written to his brother.

Autograph letter signed. 2$\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Cap. Webb N. York. 1 M^{ch} 1775.

Enclosure :—

[CAPTAIN THOMAS WEBB] to his BROTHER.

Laments the present condition of America. Surprised at the measures of Congress especially the defiant attack on the British Constitution and assuming to themselves a power of legislation upon democratical and republican principles. Suggests measures to be taken by loyal subjects to show their allegiance.

Autograph copy. 4$\frac{1}{4}$ folio pages.

[HENRY WHITE] to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1775, March 1. New York.—Since his letter of a few days previous, relates the further proceedings of the Assembly with regard to the Congress to be held next May.

Autograph letter. With seal. 1$\frac{1}{3}$ folio pages.

SIR EGERTON LEIGH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 2.—Sends his memorial being unable to obtain access to his Lordship. Lord Gower recommended a memorial and promised to speak for him.
Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

MEMORIAL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

> 1775, March 2. Saville Row.—His late father was appointed Chief Justice of South Carolina in 1753. Relates his public services since 1755. Shows pecuniary losses since 1766 owing to the successful combinations of a powerful faction to whose insults he has also been subjected. His office as Surveyor General has been extinguished by the King's order respecting vacant lands and his health is much impaired by the climate. Seeks some office in any province north of Pennsylvania or other more suitable climate.
> Autograph, signed. 3 folio pages.
>
> Endorsed:—Memorial of S^{r} Egerton Leigh Bar$^{t.}$

1775, March 2.—New York Gazetteer or Connecticut, Hudson's River, New Jersey and Quebec Weekly Advertiser, No. 98.
Printed. 1 sheet = 4 pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 2. Saville Row.—Thanks for permission to remain in England till next May for the re-establishment of his health.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov. Tryon 2 March, 1775.

CIRCULAR to GOVERNORS.

1775, March [3]. Whitehall.—[Lord Dartmouth]. Circular to the Governors of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Governor and Company of Connecticut and the Governor and Company of Rhode Island. Sending copy of a resolution of the House of Commons of 27 February to the effect that if any of the Provinces propose to make provision for contributing to the common defence and for the support of the Government and the administration of justice, no tax, duty, or assessment shall be there levied except any duties it may be expedient to levy or impose for the regulation of Commerce. Lord Dartmouth enlarges on the justice and moderation of the resolution, and on the King's sentiments and desire for reconciliation.
15 folio pages. [Draft of this is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 279, fo. 89.]

Endorsed:—Draft of Circular inclos^{g} Resolution of H. of Commons March 1775. Ex.

COLONEL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, March 4. London.—Offers his services as Adjutant General for America should it be thought proper to make the appointment.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Col. Dalrymple 4 March 1775.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 4. Boston.—No. 25. Transmits a paper of intelligence of the "Machinations and projects of these People." Will tell him later on the source of this intelligence. Account of search for artillery at Salem by Lieutenant Colonel Leslie. Indian affairs in the northern district are in an uncertain situation but no answers have been received to recent letters.
Duplicate letter signed. 1¾ folio pages. [The originals of this and its enclosure are in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 130, fos. 233 and 237.]

Endorsed:—Duplicate of Gen^{l} Gage's Letter of 4th March, 1775.

Enclosure:—

> 1775, February 24 to March 4.—Paper headed Intelligence. The Committee of Safety appointed by the Congress, consisting of Hancock, Warren, Church, Heath and Geary, is to observe the motions of the army and to communicate all intelligence to Colonel Ward etc. Expresses to be sent round the country to collect the Minute Men to oppose the troops. A Committee of Supply has been appointed to purchase military stores to be deposited at Concord and Worcester. Gives detailed account of further measures intended to be pursued by the Congress.
> 6½ folio pages.

COLONEL JAMES ROBERTSON to [ ].

1775, March 4. New York.—Placed in a scene which becomes every hour more interesting, thinks a short account would entertain him. The design of the authors of the Congress was solely to unite all the colonies in a war against the mother country. Preparations making for war in New England. Disposition and proceedings at New York. Arrival of two ships from England, but were not allowed to unload their goods. Proceedings of the faction in regard to this.
Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

JOHN FENTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, March 5. Portsmouth.—Shews that the times are perilous and his situation becoming more difficult to maintain; hopes however with the assistance of his two fellow members in the General Assembly for the county of Grafton to keep that district loyal. Fears he may not succeed and as Government servants have no refuge but Castle William and Mary suggests that it be better fortified and will gladly assist in this work if agreeable to his Lordship.
Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

LORD TOWNSHEND to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 5. Portman Square.—Highly recommends the petitioner for his past services in America and proposes that one of the little Governments of Posts now being made there, be given him.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^d Townshend 6 M^{ch} 1775, with a memorial of B. Roche, Esq^r.

Enclosure:—

BOYLE ROCHE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 2.—Memorial. Relates his past 24 years' services. Refers to Sir J. Amherst, General Monckton, General Howe and General Keppel för his military character. Desires appointment to some post if agreeable to his Lordship.

Signed. 2¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—The Memorial of Boyle Roche Esq^r.

MAJOR [DAVID] HAY.

1775, March 6.—Memorandum concerning Major Hay. Details his services since 1745—that he had served thirty years in the Royal Regiment of Artillery. Is perfectly acquainted with the Indians and prays he may be appointed Governor of Fort Detroit on Lake Erie, as he knows that country well. States the services rendered by his grandfather and father to their country and the losses sustained by them in consequence of the treatment of the rebels.

3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mem^m concerning Major Hay.

[GOVERNOR JONATHAN TRUMBULL], on behalf of the Governor and Company of CONNECTICUT, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March [10]. Lebanon.—Expressing concern at the unhappy dissensions between the Colonies and Great Britain, the unfeigned loyalty and attachment of the colony but the unlimited powers lately claimed by the British Parliament have driven them to the borders of despair, their concern and anxiety at the situation of the town of Boston, and recommending its case, which in effect is that of all the colonies, to Lord Dartmouth's candid attention and benevolent interposition.

Not signed. 3 folio pages.

PAUL WENTWORTH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 11. Poland Street.—Contains intelligence concerning the measures of the Dutch Government with reference to vessels carrying powder to St. Eustatius.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—P. Wentworth Esq^r 11 M^{ch} 1775.

MAJOR ROGERS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, March 13.—Desiring that his commission as Major of Rangers be renewed, as without it he cannot take that rank in the army. Gives reasons that have prevented him making proper application before and considers he has more right to promotion than Lieutenant Colonel Gorham.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Majr Rogers 13 Mch 1775.

PATRICK STUART to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 13. London.—On account of his thirty years' service in the navy and his brother John's recommendation desires a promotion when opportunity offers.

Autograph letter signed. 2 large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Pat. Stuart 13 Mch 1775.

The REVEREND SAMUEL PETERS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 14. Heralds' Office.—States the measures proposed by the loyalists as desirable to be taken with regard to Connecticut and Rhode Island at the present time, to establish peace in those two colonies. Gives names of those friendly to Government there.

Autograph letter signed. 4 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Revd Mr Peters 14 Mch 1775.

JAMES PERRY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 15. Wolverhampton.—Is grieved to see the want of confidence between the Government and America and the discontent among English merchants. Shows the distressed situation of those engaged in the North American trade by the Prohibitory Act. Wishes the evil consequences could be mitigated by some power being invested in the respective Governors. Is still of opinion that force will never subdue America, but relaxation of laws and promised privileges may assist. Remarks on American shipping.

Autograph letter signed. 5½ folio pages. Seal.

WILLIAM LEE to JOSIAH QUINCEY, Junior, Boston.

1775, March 17. London.—Considers the enclosed should be published in all "yr" newspapers and communicated to those to whom it is addressed by every possible means. "It might be improved by introducing this sentiment, that the same principle which induces our Ministers to take the American money by violence from them, will in all probability soon operate on them to withhold the Soldiers poor pittance of pay." Dr. Franklin about to depart for Philadelphia. "You have the whole ministerial plan of despotism before you . . . . For my own part rather than submit to so infamous a system I would suffer every earthly evil & dye on the last mountain in America." Vote of £500 granted by Bill of Rights Society, for sufferers in Boston, and fishermen of New England.

Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Josiah Quincey landed at Marblehead and died a few days after.

Enclosures :—

Printed circular signed D. Smith. "Sir, You are desired to be at a Court of Common-Council at Guildhall on Tuesday next, being the 14*th Day of March,* 1775, at Ten o'Clock in the Forenoon. D. Smith. N.B.—To consider of a Petition to the House of Lords against an unjust and inhuman Bill, which has passed the House of Commons, intitled, 'A Bill to restrain the Trade and Commerce of the Province of Massachusett's Bay, &c.' The Lord Mayor will take the Chair at Eleven precisely." (At the foot in William Lee's writing)—"In consequence of this Summons, the Corporation drew up and presented a strong petition to the House of Lords, which with the resolution of the Bill of Rights Society shows the disposition of the people of London with respect to America more strongly than any thing I can say."

1 quarto page.

Printed address to the Soldiers signed "An Old Soldier" and beginning "Gentlemen, You are about to embark for America, to compel your Fellow Subjects there to submit to Popery and Slavery. It is the Glory of the British Soldier, that he is the Defender, not the Destroyer, of the Civil and Religious Rights of the People." Reminds them of James II., and of his seizure of the seven bishops. Assures them that the Americans in their efforts to obtain redress of their Grievances, are right before God and man, and that their honour as Gentlemen and soldiers forbids them to be the instruments of forcing chains upon their injured fellow subjects.

Note in William Lee's writing at the foot of document. "This has been sent to Ireland to be publish'd there.
London March 1775."

1 page.

NEW YORK GENERAL ASSEMBLY to the KING.

1775, March 25. Assembly Chambers, City of New York.—Petition. Signed, by order of the General Assembly, John Cruger, Speaker. Stating their grievances as to taxation, representation, and the various Acts imposing duties on articles of commerce, shutting the port of Boston, etc. etc, and desiring redress and such a system of Government confirmed by His Majesty as will ascertain and limit the authority claimed by the British legislature.

Original. 6¾ large pages. [A printed copy of this and the following to the Lords is in the Public Record Office, Board of Trade, New York, Vol. 109, No. 3.]

Copy of the foregoing.

NEW YORK GENERAL ASSEMBLY to the HOUSE OF LORDS.

1775, March 25. Assembly Chamber, City of New York.—Memorial. Signed by John Cruger, Speaker. While acknowledging themselves bound by ties of faith & allegiance to the King and considering themselves, with England, parts of one great empire, declare themselves entitled to equal rights and privileges with their fellow subjects in Great Britain. Enumerate their grievances, such as the duties levied without their consent, the Jurisdiction of the Admiralty Courts, the shutting of the Port of Boston, etc., and appeal to their Lordships to aid and concur in redressing these grievances and to remove all causes of dissension.

Original. 5¾ large pages.

Copy of the foregoing.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 28. Cavendish Square.—Desires that the Major Generals proceeding to America may take with them definite instructions respecting their conduct towards the insurgents in New England. Has the greatest confidence in General Gage and encloses extract of a letter received yesterday from him.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^d^ Barrington 28 March 1775.

Enclosure:—

[LIEUTENANT GENERAL GAGE] to [LORD BARRINGTON].

[1775, February 10].—Fears Lord Barrington flatters him in the approbation of his conduct. Has done his utmost to remove the prejudices of the people and baffle the projects of the hot-headed leaders of the opposition, and partly succeeded. Waits with impatience for further orders as offensive measures are becoming necessary and doubtless will be included in his next instructions.

Extract in Barrington's hand. 1 quarto page.

JOHN FENTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 29. Portsmouth, New Hampshire.—Since his letter of 5 March has heard that Captain Cochran (provincial officer of Castle William and Mary) has an appointment of ten shillings per day—does not wish to interfere with him, but would gladly serve in the establishment of that fort or any other employment. Gives his past military services as an excuse for the present intrusion on his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Fenton Portsmouth N. Hamp. 5. 29 M^ch^ 1775, respecting Capt. Cochran &c.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, March 29. On board the Britannia and Florida, St. John River.—No. 7. Private. Remarks on enclosures which are fees charged for running the three tracts of land belonging to his Lordship's family. Will give a full description of them when he returns to St. Augustine.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^r^ Tonyn.

Enclosures :—

EAST FLORIDA.

Frederick George Mulcaster. A/c of Fees for running a tract of 20,000 acres belonging to the Honourable Heneage Legge amounting to £88. 6. 7 the survey charged at 4/6 per hundred. Another for the Honourable Charles Legge for the same number of acres amounts to £87. 9. 3, and a third for the Honourable William Legge to £87. 6. 7.

Signed. ¾ folio page respectively.

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 20. St. Augustine.—N^o 6. Private. Gives his reasons for having made so urgent a request to the Board of Ordnance for stores—perceives his error and apologizes for it.

Duplicate autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages. [The original letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 245, fo. 115.]

[ ] to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

[1775], March 29. Wednesday.—Letter not signed nor addressed, possibly from a secretary. "Agreeable to the Advice wch your Lordship was pleased to Give me on the 8th February last I have repeatedly seen Sir George Savile":—Has been unsuccessful in his interview with Lord Rockingham respecting New Hampshire business. Observations respecting the secretaryship of New Hants; disputes with Governor Wentworth regarding Mr. Green and Mr. King who are seeking this office in consequence of the age and infirmities of Mr. Atkinson who now fills it.

3¼ folio pages.

*Endorsed :—*Case of M^r Green.

CABINET MINUTE.

1775, March 30.—In Lord Dartmouth's hand. It is agreed to recommend to the King that a Commission under the Great Seal be given to the Governor of the Massachusetts Bay. That Governor to be empowered to issue a Proclamation offering pardon to rebels who shall surrender within a certain time, except those concerned in the late Provincial Congress or who have made any attack on His Majesty's forts or ships.

Accompanying this is a memorandum also in Lord Dartmouth's hand, not dated, but endorsed "1775. Memorandum. From the King."—"The King was pleased to say that there is nothing he more earnestly desires than to remove the Jealousies and quiet the Apprehensions of his American Subjects & to see them reconciled to British Government upon principles that may secure the permanent peace and tranquility of the British Empire; that he considers it as his first duty to maintain & support the rights of the Constitution of Great Britain and that he shall always be ready to concur with his Parliament in taking such measures for these purposes, as the situation of America & the condition of his Subjects there may require."

1¼ quarto pages.

*Endorsed :—*Minute of Cabinet, 30th March, 1775.

THOMAS WHARTON to SAMUEL WHARTON.

1775, March 30. Philadelphia.—A report prevails here that the unhappy dispute between England and America will shortly be settled. Lord North has "declared himself not to have been the Author of those Acts relative to Boston, and that he will give up the Authors &c." Is assured the Americans will never be a happy people unless some constitutional line is drawn between Great Britain and them. "It will not be fifty years before we shall be at intestine wars among ourselves as this continent seems now to swarm with inhabitants."

Extract. Intercepted. ¾ folio page.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, March 30, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Thomas Wharton, to Samuel Wharton Esq^r.

THOMAS PARKER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, March 31. Lincolns Inn.—Suggests means of raising the proportion of the expenses of Government from the subjects in America and so obviate the difficulties that attend the present mode of taxation.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Tho. Parker 31 March 1775.

COLONEL PHILIP SKENE and the REVEREND JOHN VARDILL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, March.—Soliciting his attention to the case of the Presbyterian Churches of New York. Endorse the opinion of their fellow citizens of New York in their desire for the charters solicited by them, as they only ask these for toleration in religious matters. Shew how beneficial such would be, by quoting extracts from D^r Chandler to M^r Vardill, dated 27 September 1774 and 2 January 1775. It would be policy to grant this request as it would tend to allay the jealousies they entertain of the Church of England and lead them to co-operate more zealously in support of Government.

Letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Col. Skene & M^r Vardill March 1775.

INTELLIGENCE from AMERICA.

N. D. [1775, March].—Copy of an intercepted letter or part of a letter. Not signed, dated, nor addressed. "I was told by a Gentleman on whose Veracity I can entirely rely, that he was in company the Night before they went to the Provincial Congress with Mess^rs Hopkins & Sessions whom the Rhode Islanders sent to the Congress." These men are of opinion that it was impracticable to raise an Army as they lack money and resources and were in every sense totally unable to contend with Great Britain. M^r Hopkins was informed that M^r Dalton of Newbury had declared openly at the Congress against hostilities and was much distressed at the despairing appearance of the people at Salem. Humourous scenes enacted by the military actors. Remarks on the adjournment of the Connecticut Assembly. Starvation and ruin seem inevitable in America.

3 folio pages.

RESTRAINING ACT.

N. D. [1775, March.]—Draught of a Bill to restrain the Trade and Commerce of certain Provinces in North America therein mentioned to Great Britain, Ireland and the British Islands in the West Indies for a limited time.

36 pages.

LORD BARRINGTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, April 1. Cavendish Square.—Cannot make the enclosed any plainer so sends another copy. Is still of the opinion that the Habeas Corpus Act should be suspended in New England and persons taken up in America for high treason be brought to this country for trial.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Barrington 1 April 1775.

Enclosure:—

> Question as to whether, in the present situation of Massachusetts Bay the troops may act against persons in Arms, without any direction from a civil magistrate. [See 24 February].
>
> ½ quarto page.

HENRY CRUGER to HENRY CRUGER, JUNIOR.

1775, April 4. New York.—The Assembly is adjourned for a month to prevent the troublesome party from endeavouring to consider the proceedings of the Continental Congress. The legislature have passed this session a Bill entitled "An Act to regulate Elections for Representatives in the City and County of Albany," and it is hoped the King will give his assent. Cannot descant on political affairs for fear of letters miscarrying.

Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from Henry Cruger Esq^{r} to his Son Henry Cruger Esq^{r}.

ROBERT RAY to J. H. CHABANEL, Amsterdam.

1775, April 4 and 29. New York.—Addressed to the care of Chabanel, Uhthoff & Co. London, 29 April, preceded by copy of a previous letter of 4 April. The articles shipped for him on 1 November have arrived in the West Indies. Requests that the others ordered and unshipped may not be sent on any account as the port is shut up and all men are busy preparing for war. The people are united in New York and determined to die or be free. The sword is drawn at Boston between the King's troops and the inhabitants, 500 of the former being killed.

1½ folio pages. Intercepted.

Endorsed:—New York, April 29, 1775. Copy of a Letter from Robert Ray, to M^{r} J. H. Chabanel Amsterdam.

SIR JEFFERY AMHERST to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 5. Wednesday, 7 o'clock. Whitehall.—Sends the enclosed list to which may be added six light three-pounders ordered to be shipped for Boston. His Lordship will thus see that the artillery is more than the troops can use for the present service there.

Autograph letter. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—S^r^ Jeffery Amherst 5 April 1775.

Enclosure :—

List of the Artillery in North America.

In Sir Jeffery Amherst's hand. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—Artillery in North America 6 April 1775.

Lord Barrington to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, April 5. Cavendish Square.—This Bill will probably come up to the House of Lords today or tomorrow; it has met with no opposition in the House of Commons. The only part fresh to the Americans is the clause enclosed, and that is contained in an Act of Parliament now in force in Europe. The Admiralty have added a clause respecting the marines.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—L^d^ Barrington 5 April 1775. American Mutiny Act.

Enclosure :—

Clause of the American Mutiny Act.

5 folio pages and 2 lines.

Endorsed :—Clause For punishing Persons who shall persuade Soldiers to desert.

Sir George Collier to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, April 5. Southampton Street.—Desires to be re-imbursed £737 expended on public service. His circumstances will not permit him to make a present of it to Government. That they could not determine out of what fund it should come is no reason why Lords North and Hillsborough should not meet his demands. A twenty gun ship is just ordered to take the three generals to America and Captain Chads who commands her has been reimbursed £400 out of the contingencies of the army.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—S^r^ G. Collier 5 April 1775 inclos^g^ his Case.

Enclosure :—

1775, April.—Case for Lord Dartmouth's consideration. Details his services in connection with the taking of the Earl of Dunmore and family to New York in the "Tweed" man of war. Expenses incurred by delay. Dangers and difficulties experienced during November and December on the sea, and the return journey with Lady Bernard and family on board. Shows his just claims for £737 thus expended.

Autograph not signed. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed :—Case for L^d^ Dartmouth's consideration.

JOHN CRUGER, JAMES JAUNCEY, JACOB WALTON, and JAMES DELANCEY to EDMUND BURKE.

1775, April 5. New York.—"Your Letter of the 3d January was received while the House was sitting & immediately laid before them." Duplicates of the petition to the King, Memorial to the Lords and Representation and Remonstrance to the Commons are sent by this packet and it is hoped they will be attended to. Desires he will use his endeavours to get the two following Acts confirmed "An Act to regulate Elections for Representatives in General Assembly for the City & County of Albany," and an Act for the general Quiet of His Majesty's subjects in this Colony against all pretences of Concealment whatsoever." Hopes he will communicate by the first opportunity any measures likely to be pursued in regard to the Colonies.

Copy. Intercepted. $1\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed:—New York, April 5, 1775. Copy of a Letter from John Cruger, Jas Jauncey, Jacob Walton and James De Lancey to Edmund Burke Esqr.

1775, April 6.—Duplicate of the enclosure in Amherst's letter of the 5th. List of Artillery, etc.

The EARL OF GALLOWAY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, April 6. Charles Street, St. James's.—Having had repeated and authentic information of the distressed state of many of the poor emigrants in America, and as many are now anxious to return to their native country but are prevented by poverty he represented their sad condition to Lord Sandwich suggesting that the transports taking troops to Boston could bring these people back. His Lordship agreed to this proposal, provided Lord Dartmouth gave the necessary orders to the Governors of the respective provinces to make arrangements for the journey. Hopes this will meet with his Lordship's approbation.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—E. of Galloway Aprl 1775.

A. PEPPERRELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 9.—Draws his attention to the distressed situation of several friends to Government (especially Mr Ingersoll) as shown in the paper transmitted.

Autograph letter signed. $1\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A. Pepperell Esqr 9 April 1775, inclosing a Newspaper, giving Account of the Distress of Mr Ingersoll & others for their Attachment to Govt.

Enclosure:—

1775, February 23.—The Massachusetts Gazette and Boston Weekly News Letter, No. 3726.

1 printed sheet.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 10. Dartmouth St., Westminster.—Enumerates obstacles that will occur in laying out the province of East Florida in regular tracts to be sold for the crown. The expense will overbalance the value of the land. Doubts whether any advantage will arise therefrom and desires fresh orders on this subject before he sails.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ De Brahm 10 April 1775 concern^g^ sale of Lands in America.

[ARTHUR] LEE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 10. Monday. No. 2, Gordon Court, Temple.—Wishes to know when he can deliver into his Lordship's hands a petition from the Representatives of New Jersey which he has received in the absence of Doctor Franklin, to be presented to the King.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Lee 10 April 1775.

RICHARD JACKSON to JOHN POWNALL.

1775, April 11.—Returns, with his opinion, a Petition and Draught of a Charter of Incorporation desired for a college in some place in America.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—R^d^ Jackson Esq^r^ to M^r^ Pownall Ap^l^ 1775.

JOHN DRINKER to WILLIAM NEATE.

1775, April 12. Philadelphia.—Great confusion caused by the politics of the British Court, views of the Republican partisans and smugglers of America. Accounts received of Parliament declaring the Americans rebels and determining to enforce the penal Acts against Boston and restrict their commerce. Serious evils seem imminent.

Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, April 12, 1775. Extract of a Letter from John Drinker to William Neate.

GEORGE WILMOT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 13. Charing Cross.—Petition. Details his services since 1756 especially on board the sloop "Liberty" in July 1769. His sufferings from several mobs in consequence of his loyalty. Desires some relief for these distresses.

Autograph signed. 2¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Petition of George Wilmot of Boston.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, April [14]. Good Friday. Bushy Park.—"The green ribband is in great request." Will lay Lord Galloway's request before the King with others already received and make known his wishes thereon. Learns from his Lordship's letter of the arrival of two Boston sufferers Richardson and Wilmot. Does not begrudge them the £20 advanced, but the Civil List will not be able to bear much longer the numerous American demands made upon it.

Autograph letter signed N. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Lord North April 1775.

EBENEZER RICHARDSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 14. London.—Petition. Details his sufferings as an officer in the Customs at Boston. Imprisonment and cruelties experienced in several places for his loyalty, arrival in England in a distressed and destitute condition. Prays for assistance.

Signed. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Petition of Eb^r Richardson.

A "TRUE PROTESTANT" to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, April 15. Cork.—A vessel arrived from America brings intelligence of the arrival of three ships from Britain at New York with British manufactures but they were compelled to depart thence, shewing that even that city agreed to the Resolutions decided upon by the General Congress. New York province is preparing for war. Remarks on the expedition sent out by Britain to complete Gage's army. Surprise at the destructive measures taken by Parliament. Draws his attention to the defenceless state of Ireland when the troops ordered for America leave there, as she will then be unprotected against any attacks of France and Spain. Emigration of Protestants from north of Ireland greatly increased of late years so recruits for army not available from there. This part of the Kingdom however is swarmed with Papists who would soon flock to the French and Spanish colours if planted on this shore.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Anonymous from Cork, April 1775. Abuse.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 17. London.—States particulars concerning the case of the proprietors of lands under the Indian sales in April 1772. Desires him to solicit His Majesty for permission to carry these grants into execution as he cannot return to his Government and resist the application of the proprietors for confirmation thereof without injury, having previously promised that on the part of Government.

Letter signed. $2\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^r Tryon, London 17th April 1775, relative to the granting Patents for Lands purchased of the Indians.

GOVERNOR JOHN WENTWORTH to PAUL WENTWORTH, Poland Street, Soho.

1775, April 17. Portsmouth, New England.—The "Nautilus" arrived at Boston on the 14th instant. The Parliamentary proceedings of 20 February are by this time spread through New England; impossible to guess the result. The Armament at Boston has suffered from sickness and desertion. This town will suffer if the Bill to restrain the New England trade and fishery be executed. Will do his utmost to promote the acceptance of the terms proposed. Hears "Mr W. L." is the first man who has spoken discouraging insinuations against the vote.

Copy. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—Portsmouth, N. E. April 17, 1775. Copy of a Letter from J. Wentworth to Paul Wentworth Esqr Recd May 29, 1775.

Sir Francis Bernard to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, April 18. Aylesbury.—Observations on the desirability of erecting the territory of Sagadahoc into a separate government and placing it immediately under the King, especially as the inhabitants object to the Massachusetts government and that province is now in rebellion. The population of Sagadahoc is not fewer than 20,000 and would increase. Advantages that would accrue to Britain if this measure is adopted. It would be a resort for the persecuted royalists of New England, a place for the exercise of the fishery and for supplying goods now brought from the West Indies. Will gladly give his Lordship further information if needed on this subject.
Autograph letter signed. 7 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Sr Fred. Bernard. April 1775, respecting Sagadahoc.

Concord.

N. D. Paper endorsed :—"Intelligence respecting the Concord Skirmish" :—"On the 19th April Genl Gage dispatched 800 men under the command of Col. Smith, to seize some provisions & Artillery at Concord." Were attacked by the Provincial Militia and finally retreated to Lexington where they were joined by 1,000 men under Lord Percy. Details of killed and wounded.
1½ folio pages.

Return of Troops.

1775, April 19.—Return of the Army at Boston on this date, the Reinforcements afterwards sent out, and a Return dated 1 April of all the Forces under the Command of General Gage.
2 folio pages.

Governor William Tryon to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, April 19. Saville Row.—Transmits the enclosed according to directions.
Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Govr Tryon (without Date) respecting Lands located in N. York; with Papers.

Enclosures :—

1774, February 2. New York.—Ebenezer Jessup. Representation to Governor William Tryon. Gives an estimate of the expense attending the late Indian purchases and states his reasons for not being able to make them more exact. Assurances that all the proprietors highly esteem him and regret his leaving the province.

Enclosures—cont.

Autograph signed. 3¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Representation of Eben^r Jessup 1774 on Indian Purchases.

1774, April 6.—Ebenezer Jessup. "A List of the Names of the Principle Propriators in the Late Indian purchase of Joseph Totten and Stephen Crossfield, And the Lots as on the Map, that they and their Associates are Respectively Interested in." Addressed to Governor Tryon.

Autograph signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Names of the Principle Persons Interested in the Purchase of Totten and Crossfield, and Their Quantities of Land, &c. in each Township By Ebene^r Jessup. New York 6 Ap^l 1774.

A List of the Names of some of the principal Proprietors in the late Indian Purchase, as furnished with the assistance of Colonel Reid. [Drawn up by Governor Tryon—the names the same as in the foregoing.]

1¾ folio pages.

GOVERNOR JOSIAH MARTIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 20. Newbern, North Carolina.—No. 31. Remarks on the proceedings of the Assembly and also of the body of men calling themselves a Convention of Delegates as given in the enclosures. Is confident that firmness and perseverance on Britain's part will extinguish the democratic zeal in these colonies. The inhabitants of the Western Counties have given assurances of their loyalty to the King, having remembered correction they received for past insurrections from Governor Tryon.

Letter signed. 12 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Newburn, N^o Carolina, 20^th April 1775. Governor Martin (N^o 31). R/ 21^st June. 2 Inclosures. Ent^d.

Enclosures:—

1775, April 14.—North Carolina Gazette No. 319.

1 printed sheet.

1775, April 3–7.—Minutes of a General Meeting of Delegates of North Carolina in Convention. Relative to the association entered into by the General Congress at Philadelphia on 20 October 1774 which these delegates approve of and sign. Send their thanks to North Carolina representatives and receive a reply thereto. Resolution to collect Proclamation money to meet expenses incurred by delegates to the Continental Congress. Denounce the conduct of Macknight. Promise to further the measures recommended by the said Congress.

Printed. 4 folio pages.

Endorsed:—In Gov^r Martin's (No. 31) of 20 April 1775.

LORD DARTMOUTH to GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON.

1775, April [21]. Whitehall.—In consequence of the conversation with Governor Tryon the previous day respecting grants to Messrs. Totten, Crossfield, Van Renslaer, Low, Jessup and others, of lands purchased by them of the Indians in 1772, and being fully sensible of how important it is that His Majesty's faithful subjects in New York should be gratified in every reasonable request, he will submit to His Majesty that whenever the persons interested make application for such grants accompanied with a disavowal of all association to obstruct the importation or exportation of goods to and from Great Britain it may be advisable to comply with their request.
Copy. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Governor Tryon, dated April 1775.

CAPTAIN [WALTER SLOANE] LAURIE to his FATHER.

1775, April 21. Boston.—Substance of a Letter from Captain Laurie of the 43rd Regiment [to his father—see beginning of his letter dated 22 May]. Details of actions at Concord and Lexington. Losses on both sides. Intrepidity of English troops. Boston surrounded by Provincials, all communication cut off and he fears the troops will suffer in consequence from want of fresh provisions.
Copy. 2⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy Letter fr. Cap. Laurie 21 April 1775. Boston. on the Concord Skirmish.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 22. London.—Is delighted that his Lordship sees the importance at the present time of granting New York subjects all reasonable requests. Desires that he may be authorised to assure them that their difficulties will soon be settled satisfactorily.
Letter signed. 1½ folio pages.

MASSACHUSETTS COMMITTEE OF SAFETY to ASA LAWRENCE.

1775, April 24. Cambridge.—Notice, signed Joseph Warren, chairman. That a captain's commission will be granted to him as soon as he has finished enlisting 96 soldiers according to orders—he is allowed to nominate a Lieutenant and Ensign to serve under him.
Printed form filled in. ½ quarto page.

ALEXANDER DUNCAN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 28. Birchanger, Essex.—Regrets contents of enclosure as it clearly shows that America is preparing for war. Hopes his Lordship may be instrumental in advising measures to prevent such a calamity.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Duncan 28 April, inclosing a Letter rec^d^ from America, giving some Account of the State of Affairs.

Enclosure :—

JOSEPH SMITH to ALEXANDER DUNCAN.

1775, February 15. New Haven, Connecticut.—Apologises for non-delivery of letter written last year. Acknowledges his of the summer of 1773. Unhealthy state of New Haven. Alarming condition of affairs. Both sides preparing for war. Fears if the late Acts of Parliament are attempted to be put in execution by force, such event is inevitable. Stagnation of trade, and probable closing of the Courts of Justice as already done in Massachusetts and South Carolina.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD NORTH.

1775, April 28. London.—Applying for Assistance from the Treasury to answer exigencies before his departure to America.

Copy. 1 quarto page.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL JAMES PREVOST to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 30. Breda.—Begs the favour to deliver the enclosed letter to the King. Is well acquainted with the country and people of America from his long service there and would gladly fill any employment in the military or civil line. Asks for Lord North's patronage.

Letter signed. 3¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Breda. 30th April 1775. Lieut Genl Prevost. R/ May. Applying for a civil Employment in America.

Enclosure :—

LIEUTENANT GENERAL JAMES PREVOST to the KING.

1775, April 30. Breda.—Is anxious to "serve in any wise, in any rank & in any part of America" that may be thought proper. Will endeavour to show by faithful service his appreciation of many favours shown to him by His Majesty.

Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—To The King. Breda 30*th* April 1775. Lieut General Prevost.

Accompanying the above is :—

1775, April 30. Breda.—Copy of Lieutenant General Prevost's letter to Lord Barrington desiring to be recommended to the King for further service "notwithstanding his peculiar circumstances," and enclosing copy of his letter to the King.

DENNIS DE BERDT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [1775, April]. Wednesday evening, 9 o'clock.—Forwards the enclosed as they are the latest intelligence from America and may be acceptable for their importance though he is aware their contents are not pleasant.

Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Mr De Berdt 1775. respecting the Proceedings of the Committees at N. York in March 1775.

Enclosures :—

1775, March 18.—Extract of a letter from New York giving the Proceedings of the New York Committee in nominating deputies for a Provincial Convention to be held on 20 April to choose delegates for the General Congress at Philadelphia 10 May next. A postscript of 22 March relates the proceedings of the people against Robert and John Murray who had, contrary to the Non-Importation Association, unloaded goods from a ship arrived from London.
2¼ folio pages.

1775, March 17. New York.—Printed Paper signed "A son of Freedom" and headed "The following Letter was some Nights ago thrown in among the Sons of Liberty." Stating reasons why Robert and John Murray should leave the Province owing to their landing goods in a clandestine manner at New York.
1 long folio page.

1775, March 21. New York.—Robert and John Murray. Public Declaration. Regret the imprudent and unjustifiable action they have taken and promise if they remain in that city not to transact any trade or commerce whatsoever during the continuance of the Association which will be a breach of the same unless Congress should think fit to indulge them in that liberty. They are willing to deliver to other persons all consigned goods now in their possession and yield the profits of the commissions.
Printed. 1 quarto page.

QUAKERS to the KING.

N. D. [Qy. about April or May 1775].—Address and Petition. Asking that the sword may be stayed and other means tried to procure a firm and lasting union with the Americans. Amongst the signatures are John Fry, William Storrs Fry, Robert Howard, John Fothergill, Thomas and Robert Letchworth, etc., etc., 61 names in all.
Original. 1 sheet.

Endorsed :—Quakers Petition.

The EARL OF DUNMORE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 1. Williamsburg.—No. 26. Gives details of the insurrection of the people in consequence of his requesting Lieutenant Collins to remove some gunpowder from a magazine here to the "Fowey" man-of-war. Further disturbances expected. Has applied to General Gage for assistance, also to Admiral Graves for one of his large ships. Personal danger of himself and other Government officers. The necessity of maintaining the King's authority in this province by the presence and assistance of troops.
Letter signed. 7¾ large folio pages.

Endorsed :—Williamsburgh 1^st^ May 1775. Lord Dunmore. (N^o^ 26)
R/ June 24 1775. Ent^d^.

Extract of the foregoing.

RICHARD YATES to JOHN SARGENT.

1775, May 1. New York.—"The News of the Action arrived in Town on Sunday Morning the 23^d ult. and You may judge caused no little Tumult among the Inhabitants." Proceedings in the town in consequence. Arms of the city seized. The recent Acts for stopping the fishery have exasperated the Americans; the port is entirely blocked up by the people, who are in possession of the keys of the Custom House and no provisions will at any rate be allowed to go to Newfoundland either hence or from Philadelphia. Continental Congress meets on the 10th instant, and if the report is true that Parliament has blocked most of the ports, Congress will block up all and be much more united in their opposition than hitherto.

Extract. Intercepted. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—New York, May 1, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Richard Yates to John Sargent Esq^r.

NICHOLAS HOFFMAN to MESSRS. PERRY and HAYES, Bristol.

1775, May 2. New York.—"M^r Sherbrooke I dare say will give you a full Account of the confused State of this Continent All our Ports will be stopp'd either by Great Brittain or the People here, if the present unhappy Disturbances are not soon made up, for you may assure yourself that the Colonies mean to be more united than ever since the unhappy Affair last at Boston in which many Lives were lost." Associations are being handed round from house to house and signed in this and neighbouring provinces against oppressive Acts of Parliament. If England does not soon stop them Great Britain and America will both be ruined.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—New York, May 2, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Nicholas Hoffman, to $Mess^{rs}$ Perry & Hayes, Bristol.

JOHN SHAW, JUNR., to JOSEPH WHARTON, JUNR.

1775, May 2. Philadelphia.—The peaceful city of Philadelphia now looks like war. The different companies are practising twice a day and a determined spirit exhibited.

Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia May 2, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Jn^o Shaw Jun^r to M^r Joseph Wharton Jun^r.

THEOPHYLACT BACHE to MESSRS. LANE, SON, and FRASER.

1775, May 3. New York.—All supplies going from America for the fishery and commerce to Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, etc. were stopped 27th of last month. Personal losses to himself in being debarred from executing the large orders received from his friends.

Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—New York May 3, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Theophylact Bache to $Mess^{rs}$ Lane, Son & Fraser.

HENRY CRUGER, JUNIOR, to HENRY CRUGER.

1775, May 3. Westminster.—"Now Sir for a few Politics. Let me first observe that Colonel Skene to whom I gave such exalted Letters to You is by no Means the very great and consequential Man he will endeavour to make all believe." Gives what he considers a true estimate of Skene's character and the reasons for his intercourse with him. Prejudicial remarks concerning Governor Tryon returning to his government. Account of a conversation held between Tryon and a gentleman whom he informed he intended to patronise the Cruger family in New York. Despises his motives but intends to gain by his good offices.

Extract. Intercepted. 4¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Westminster, May 3, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Henry Cruger to Henry Cruger Esq^r at New York.

HENRY CRUGER to MESSRS. CRUGER and MALLARD.

1775, May 3. New York.—Enclosed newspapers not to be depended upon but Stephen Payne Galloway (who goes with his lady in this packet) will be able to give full accounts of all that has taken place. On the 28th ultimo all ships laden with provisions were stopped at this harbour, but as Philadelphia objected to such restrictions on trade the ports are again opened until the decision of Congress on 10 May. American troubles hourly increase. Fears for the safety of their vessels.

Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio page.

Endorsed:—N. York, May 3, 1775. Extract of a Letter from H. Cruger to Mess^rs Cruger and Mallard. Bristol.

HENRY CRUGER to PETER V. SCHAACK, New York.

1775, May 3. London.—"It will be no difficulty for Vardell and I unitedly to get for you the reversion in the Admiralty." Disposition of the opposition party in the House of Commons with regard to American affairs. Remarks on the selfish, crafty actions of M^r Burke and his reserved conduct towards the province for which he is agent.

Extract. Intercepted. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—London 3 May 1775. Extract of a Letter from H. Cruger to Peter Schaach.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 3. St. James's Street.—Hopes that the distress he feels from the present state of his family will excuse his repeated applications for assistance. [An autograph copy is amongst the Hutchinson letters in the British Museum, Eg. 2661, fo. 148, and is printed in his Correspondence, Vol. I., p. 437.]

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^r Hutchinson 3 May, 1775, relative to his own circumstances & some Provision for his Son.

AB. P. LOTT to ALEXANDER BAXTER.

1775, May 3. New York.—If affairs are not soon settled most of the merchants will become bankrupts. New England much in debt.
Extract. Intercepted. ⅓ folio page.

Endorsed:—New York May 3, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Ab. P. Lott to Alexan^r Baxter Esq^r.

PHILIP LOTT to GEORGE ELPHINSTONE, Copenhagen.

1775, May 3. New York.—No sale for this tea at present. If times change expects to consign a vessel to his house. Politics in great confusion here.
Copy. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—New York, May 3, 1775. Copy of a Letter from Philip Lott to M^r Geo. Elphinston.

ISAAC LOW to JOHN BLACKBURN, Merchant, London.

1775, May 3. New York.—The whole continent in the utmost confusion. Implores him to exert himself to procure a cessation of hostilities (if not redress of grievances) so that some treaty of accommodation may be set on foot to prevent the entire ruin of America.
Extract. Intercepted. ¾ folio page.

Endorsed:—New York, May 3, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Isaac Low to M^r John Blackburn.

LORD NORTH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 3. Downing Street.—Encloses Budget of today.
Not Autograph. In the third person. ½ quarto page.

Enclosure:—

Budget of that day's date.—Supply for the year 1775.
1½ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Supply & Ways & Means. 1775.

S. PINTARD to GEORGE SPENCER.

1775, May 3. New York.—"We have been in the greatest distress and Affliction here on the melancholy News from Boston of an Action between the Kings Troops and the Inhabitants." The colonies are now more united than ever—an association being circulated all over the country opposing the execution of the arbitrary and oppressive Acts of Parliament which they will never submit to. General Gage will find a large force to oppose him and though he may destroy towns, he cannot enforce obedience to Parliament. Americans want a Constitution upon the principles of liberty and are determined to have it. As fishery is prohibited, Philadelphia has stopped provisions to Newfoundland—several vessels being obliged to unload.
Extract. Intercepted. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—New York May 3, 1775. Extract of a Letter from M^r Pintard to M^r George Spencer.

SMITH RAMADGE to MESSRS. JOHNSTON AND CANNING.

1775, May 3. New York.—Since the recent action the people of New York have decided to stand or fall with the other provinces. Business at a stand still, port shut up by the mob several days but now re-opened; expects however that all the ports will be closed soon after the General Congress meets.

Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—New York May 3, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Smith Ramadge to Mess^{rs} Johnston & Canning.

[GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON] to LORD NORTH.

1775, May 3. London.—Desires he may be enabled to discharge the debts contracted in the preparations made for his Government. Purposes to be at Portsmouth tomorrow but waits his Lordship's pleasure so as to satisfy these demands though he will then be on demurrage £5 a day.

Copy. 1½ quarto pages.

ANTHONY VAN DAM to WILLIAM NEATE.

1775, May 3. New York.—"Our disorder is too great to write upon Mercantile Affairs, therefore shall not reply to your late favours." Resentment against the late Acts of Parliament. Total repeal of all those passed since 1763 must take place or the affections of America be lost. Reconciliation must be made speedily or dreadful consequences will ensue. All supply withheld from Newfoundland and the fisheries, and no provisions allowed to be carried to Boston. Entreats him to do his utmost to save America and Great Britain from ruin.

Copy. Intercepted. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—New York May 3. 1775. Copy of a Letter from Anth. Van Dam to William Neate Esq.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR CADWALLADER COLDEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 4. New York.—Introducing M^r Wilkins, a member of the Assembly of this province, as a gentleman of excellent character, good understanding, and zealous attachment to Government. For the latter reason he has met with much persecution and leaves for England today. He can give much intelligence of the state of affairs here as he is well acquainted with the political schemes of different parties.

Letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—L^t Gov^r Colden—1775. rec. M^r Wilkins.

JOHN CRUGER to EDMUND BURKE.

1775, May 4. New York.—"The melancholy Situation that this City and Colony is in is beyond expression since the receival of the Account from Boston of the Engagement between the King's Troops and the Provincials."—The cause of liberty has become general throughout America. The Governor and Council have fully represented the matter to His Majesty and doubtless it will soon be made public in England.

Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page.

Endorsed:—New York May 4, 1775. Extract of a Letter from John Cruger to Edm^d^ Burke Esq^r^.

JAMES RICHARDSON to ALEXANDER GORDON, Student of Physick, at Doctor George Skene's, Aberdeen.

1775, May 4. New York.—"The Number of Provincials killed is not so many as the Troops, which seems very probable from the circumstance of firing from cover." Dispute as to which side made the first attack in the late skirmish. All letters coming from that quarter by post are opened by the New Englanders, so true account of the action is difficult to obtain. Friends of Government in this city in danger and business suspended; port now re-opened and the whole city entered into an association to abide the measures recommended by the next Congress. All unanimous for the American cause.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—New York. 4 May 1775. Extract of a Letter from Ja^s^ Richardson to M^r^ Alex^r^ Gordon.

A. PEPPERRELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 5.—His reasons for seeking the appointment of naval officer of New Hampshire. Desires his Lordship to consider his situation and grant his request. Sails for America in about 10 days and will gladly be the bearer of any commands.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A. Pepperell Esq^r^.

COLONEL JOSEPH GORHAM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 8. No. 6 Buckingham Gate.—As it is decided he should enter the American service, he has endeavoured to settle his private affairs with his creditors. Present and future pecuniary difficulties. Remarks on his wife and children. Desires some appointment may be given to the former as housekeeper to one of the palaces.

Autograph letter signed. 2¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Col. Gorham 8 May 1775.

G. GREEN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, May 8.—Desires to be remembered for any vacancy that may occur in any province. Notwithstanding his preference for New Hampshire on account of numerous friends there, he is willing to forego that if appointment offers elsewhere. Will gladly work with another if so proposed by his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Green 8 May 1775 desiring an office.

CAPTAIN LAURIE to his FATHER.

1775, May 8. Boston.—Letter not signed nor addressed, probably from Captain Laurie of the 43rd to his father (see 22 May). Sends printed paper containing an account of the action on the 19th. English loss not so considerable as at first imagined. Lieutenant Hull of his company has since died of his wounds. Enemy's loss four times greater than theirs. Denies from personal observation that the troops first fired upon the people. Complains of cruelty shown by the enemy. All communication with the country is now cut off, and a large force gathered here from this and neighbouring provinces ready for action. The General's conduct has been to avoid extremities and use conciliatory measures. Proceedings of troops and engineers since 19th ultimo. Many persons have left the town with the General's permission. All communication with the country being cut off, fresh provisions are unavailable. Gives list of rebel Generals. Want of money and provisions will surely make them disperse soon. Help expected from Halifax for the English.

2½ large folio pages.

Endorsed :—8th May 1775. News from Boston. Anon.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 8. 8 o'clock p.m. On board the "Johana."—Expects to leave to-morrow. Thanks for past favours and hopes to merit future protection.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Portsmouth 8 May 1775. Govr Tryon.

EDMUND BURKE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 9. Tuesday evening. Westminster.—Fears he will be unable to find a Peer to deliver the New York Memorial to the House of Lords to-morrow as most of his friends therein are out of town,—will do his best, though otherwise engaged, but cannot promise success.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Ed. Burke Esqr. 9 May 1775. Ex.

ARTICLES of CONFEDERATION of the UNITED COLONIES.

1775, May 10.—Articles of Confederation and perpetual Union, entered into by the Delegates of the several Colonies of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, &c. in General Congress met at Philadelphia May 10th 1775.

Copy. 4 folio pages.

Endorsed :—America.

JOHN and PETER CHEVALIER to INGHAM FOSTER.

1775, May 13. Philadelphia.—Having enclosed in their last a paper relating some circumstances of a skirmish or running fight between the Regulars under General Gage and the Boston Provincials, now send this day's newspaper containing depositions showing that the Regulars were the aggressors. Inhabitants of Boston have suffered much the last twelve months from officers and soldiers. Unanimity prevails from the colonies of New England to South Carolina and people of all ranks are associating for the purposes of military action. Congress now sitting here but their deliberations will be kept secret for some time; measures recommended by them will doubtless be universally adopted. Shows how General Gage commenced hostilities in the late action.

Copy. Intercepted. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia May 13, 75. Copy of a Letter from Jn^o^ & Peter Chevalier to M^r^ Ingham Foster.

THOMAS WHARTON to SAMUEL WHARTON.

1775, May 13. Philadelphia.—Congress has met for three days but wait for delegates from Rhode Island before making propositions. On the 15th they go into Committee to consider ways and means to find men and money. Gives his opinion on this subject. Patrick Henry delayed in Virginia it is feared by fresh difficulties with Lord Dunmore. John Watts of the New York Council really gone to England to present to the King the true state of that Province as drawn up by the Governor and Council, showing the impossibility of subduing this continent as the people of New York as well as the other colonies are determined to oppose the measures of Parliament. Just heard that the Massachusetts people have set out to take possession of Ticonderoga and Crown Point. Consequences that have resulted by the mail from Boston being broken open.

Extract. Intercepted. 3⅔ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, May 13, 1775. Copy of a Letter from Thomas Wharton, to Samuel Wharton Esq^r^.

WITTING [Willing] MORRIS & Co. to THOMAS STONE Cornfactor, London.

1775, May 14. Philadelphia.—(The same paragraph to John Motteux Esq^r^) "You may depend that all Exports from these Colonies will certainly cease on or before the 10^th^ Sept^r^." It is almost certain this may happen on 20 July and probably much sooner; it will depend on Gage's operations. Congress keep their Councils so secret that definite information cannot be obtained.

Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia May 14, 75. Extract of a Letter from Witting Morris & Co. to M^r^ Tho^s^ Stone.

CHIEF JUSTICE FREDERICK SMYTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, May 15. New Jersey.—Commends the bearer, Captain Michael Kearney for his zealous services in the Royal Navy; his loyalty shown in recent riots has excited such a spirit of resentment and defiance against him that he has been compelled to leave the country. "In truth we are in a bad way." Will endeavour to fulfil his judicial duties with as much punctuality and resolution as possible, and hitherto the authority of the Courts of Justice there has been pretty well supported, but owing to the unhappy and dangerous spirit among the people, cannot promise that the authority of Government or laws will long prevail.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Ch. Just. of N. Jersey, 15 May 1775, recommending Capt. Kearney.

ALEXANDER INNES to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, May 16. Charles Town.—Proceedings of the [Assembly's] committee before and after the action of 19 April. Fears if Gage does not strike some successful blow within a few weeks there will be a total change of Government here. Disturbances caused by the contents of a letter from Mr. Lee in London proposing freedom to the slaves who desert and join the King's troops. Present condition of the Council. States what he thinks the new Governor should do on his arrival here. Advisability of stationing two regiments in Charles Town and frigates under an able officer in the harbour as people are very despondent. No official record of the Boston action has been received, but many erroneous statements are made thereon by the enemy and circulated.

Autograph letter signed. 7⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Innis Charles Town, 16 May 1775. American Affairs.

JOHN INMAN to RICHARD BENSON WALKER, Hodsdon.

1775, May 17. Boston.—"Dear Brother, I have delivered in Mrs Calahan's Care a Packet containing Copies of most of my Accounts, also a List of Debts due to and from me." There are threats of bombarding the town, so sends these papers for safety. About 3,500 people have moved into the country with their furniture, but Gage has prudently kept all the merchandise in town to restrain the madness of the country. Captain Hall with a reinforcement of marines has just arrived.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Boston, May 17, 1775. Extract of a Letter from John Inman, to Mr Richd Benson Walker.

GOVERNOR JOSIAH MARTIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 18. New Bern, North Carolina.—Separate. Remarks on the recent resolution of the House of Commons. The effect of the Propositions contained therein on the Americans will depend upon the light in which the Congress now sitting in Philadelphia considers them. Disposition of the people in different parts of his province. The pernicious influence of press and faction is more weighty than the measures of Parliament. Gives his reasons for not calling the Assembly at the present juncture.

Autograph letter signed. 7¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Separate, New Bern. 18 May, 1775. Govr Martin (Seperate.) R/ 23d Sept. 1775. Entd.

THOMAS WHARTON to SAMUEL WHARTON.

1775, May 20. Philadelphia.—Refers to some enclosed papers for news which shows that the hint he gave respecting Ticonderoga is verified. Congress has resolved to recommend the removal of all cannon and stores down to Fort Gage and there properly to fortify the pass. All trade with Newfoundland has been stopped. Doctor Franklin's proceedings in the Congress. Unanimity and firmness among the people on this continent.

Copy. Intercepted. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, May 20, 1775. Copy of a Letter from Thomas Wharton to Samuel Wharton Esq^{r}.

CAPTAIN LAURIE.

1775, May 22. Boston.—Letter not signed nor addressed, probably from Captain Laurie. "My Letters to my father of 21st April & 8th inst. I hope you will receive safe, and to them I refer you for the News of this country to that date." Shows the awkward and ridiculous situation they have been in since he last wrote by being blocked up in Boston, and not allowed to return the insults of the rebels. Supposes Gage has good reasons for being inactive, but personally he considers this forbearance and studied moderation will never answer the purpose desired. Encloses copy of a letter from Doctor Warren respecting release of Major Dunbar. Failure of expedition to one of the islands in consequence of the naval commander's neglectful conduct. Received intelligence that the people of Connecticut and Albany have taken fort Ticonderoga, also of seizure of the Earl of Dunmore in Virginia Damage caused by fire in this town.

2 large folio pages.

Endorsed:—22^{d} May—1775. News from Boston Anon.

Frederick, BISHOP OF DERRY, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 23. Derry.—Ascribes the rebellious spirit in the central provinces of America to the exportation from Ireland of nearly 33,000 fanatical and hungry republicans in the course of a few years. Land uncultivated; regrets that his own brethren have not laid the foundation of an exclusive cultivation of the island. Remarks on the progress of independency and a manifest increase among the inhabitants of a republican spirit. Believes it results greatly from the non-residence of the clergy who leave extensive and populous parishes to the care of an indigent curate, an ignorant priest and a factious dissenting minister.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Bishop of Derry 23 May 1775, respecting the Migrations from Ireland, and the Growth of Republicanism & Dissension from the Non-residence of the Clergy.

JOSEPH GOLDTHWAIT to JOHN BLACKBURN.

1775, May 24. Boston.—Directions for sending to America a quantity of coal and provisions much needed. The whole of the country is arming and in a state of rebellion. Requests everything sent out to be addressed to himself Barrack Master at Boston and that will ensure a free admittance.

Copy. Intercepted. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Boston, 24 May 1775. Copy of a Letter from Jo^{s} Goldthwait to John Blackburn Esq^{r}. Rec^{d} 26th June 1775.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL W. DALRYMPLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, May 29. Monday evening.—"Since I had the honor of seeing your Lordship this morning, I have made some inquiry into the affair that has lately passed near Boston." It appears from accounts given that the troops fulfilled their intention of destroying the stores collected at Concord, and the measures pursued by them appeared to be those of deliberation and sound military judgment. Hopes General Gage's despatch will confirm details given by troops themselves.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Lieut^{t} Col. Dalrymple 29 May 1775 on the Skirmish at Concord.

GOVERNOR THOMAS HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, May 29. 9 o'clock p.m.—Has no doubt the printed account from Boston is a very partial one. Expects Government will receive very different advices from General Gage. Seeks so justify the troops for their conduct in the action. The paper sent is published under the directions of Adams and the master of the ship belongs to one of the most incendiary families. P.S.—Captain Brown with the General's despatches sailed four days after the action.
Autograph letter signed. With seal (broken). 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^{r} Hutchinson 29 May 1775, on the Skirmish at Concord.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, May 29. Monday ½ past 4 p.m.—"I am this moment returned from the City but without seeing Captain Derby tho I pursued every means and had every assistance to find him out." Gives account of the Concord skirmish as received from Messrs. Lane and Fraser who are in connection with Captain Derby. Letters for Lord Dartmouth from General Gage are on board the "Sukey." Encloses paper reprinted from Salem newspaper and hopes his Lordship will speedily send it to the King.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Pownall, 29 May, 1775, inclosing Salem Newspaper, relating the Skirmish of Concord.

Enclosure :—

1775, May 29.—The London Evening Post Extraordinary (No. 8,296) consisting of an Article headed "From the Essex Gazette. Printed at Salem, in New England. Salem, April 25," being an account of the action at Concord. "Last Wednesday the 19*th of April, the Troops of his Britannick Majesty commenced Hostilities upon the People of this Province, attended with Circumstances of Cruelty not less brutal than what our venerable Ancestors received from the vilest Savages of the Wilderness,*" etc. A list of the provincials killed, wounded, and missing is added.
1 printed page.

COUNTESS GOWER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, May 30. Whitehall.—Commends to his kind consideration Captain Foy, and desires it may be made worth his while to remain in America as his services are most requisite to Lord Dunmore at the present time.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Countess Gower 30 May 1775, recom^{g} Capt^{n} Foy.

JONATHAN SEWALL to MAJOR GENERAL FREDERICK HALDIMAND.

1775, May 30. Boston.—In compliance with his request, reduces to writing the substance of some loose hints respecting the present very alarming state of public affairs in America, the cause of the disorders, and the remedies which alone seem to promise a radical cure. The hidden spring of this wonderful movement is the ancient republican spirit brought by the first emigrants and which the form of government in the New England colonies has cherished and kept alive. Considers the present calamities might have been prevented by a seasonable application to the cure, and may even now be stopped by a speedy exertion of British vigour and an attention of Parliamentary wisdom to the radical cause.

Autograph letter signed. 16 quarto pages.

Endorsed on wrapper:—Gen^{l} Haldimand Ex.

Copy of the foregoing.

LORD BARRINGTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 1. War Office.—"There are three officers named King in the Army, but none of them in Regiments serving in America."

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Vis. Barrington 1 June 1775 concerning the Names of King & Hawkshaw in the Army Lists.

COLONEL JAMES ROBERTSON to [ ].

1775, June 1. Boston.—Discovery of coal at Cape Breton—advisability of conveying it to Boston in consequence of the rebels cutting off all supplies of fuel from that place. Mr. Knulton Junior delivers this with proposals for his approval. Fears the garrison will be distressed for coal soon, though he has secured some in England.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Col^{o} Robertson Letter 1st June 1775.

THOMAS WHARTON to SAMUEL WHARTON.

1775, June 1. Philadelphia.—One of the Council of Antigua has informed him of the distress of the islands on the prospect of exportation being stopped to their ports. Congress has decided to petition the King for redress of grievances. It has already voted 10,000 men for the protection of Boston and directed New York to raise 3,000 for its particular safety. Surprise at the Doctor's silence at the Congress. Lord Dunmore having called his assembly has necessitated the absence of the president, the Virginia speaker. The people of Virginia much exasperated with Dunmore's conduct of late.

Copy. Intercepted. 3¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, June 1, 1775. Copy of a Letter from Mr Thomas Wharton to Samuel Wharton Esqr.

The Reverend Thomas Hatton to [Lord Dartmouth].

1775, June 3. Waters Upton, Shropshire.—Enclosing a letter from his nephew in New Jersey, relative to the temper, &c. of the Americans.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

John Hatton to the Reverend Thomas Hatton.

1775, February 17. New Jersey.—Private news. This country in a most disordered state, friends of Government very precariously situated and commerce stopped. States objections made by the Sons of Liberty to the measures of Parliament and the answers given by the Sons of Loyalty (of whom he is one) to show the true foundation of the present dispute. Details the recent obnoxious conduct of the Bostonians. Steps taken by the Quakers. The Sons of Faction grieved at the refusal of the New York Assembly to approve the proceedings of the Congress, and the merchants of that place in general threaten a total declension from the party.

Autograph letter signed. 7¾ folio pages.

Alexander Innes to [Lord Dartmouth].

1775, June 3, Saturday. Charles Town.—The Assembly met on the 1st instant and passed their Tax Bill, ordering certificates to be issued for about £140,000 currency. The Lieutenant Governor adjourned them to the 19th. He (Lieutenant Governor Bull) has received a letter from General Gage with an account of the action on the 19th April. The Provincial Congress is meeting in secret, but it is well-known they intend to frame an association, raise troops, and take the Government into their own hands. The Governor expected every hour and it is hoped his presence will aid the King's servants. Two frigates in this harbour would prevent much mischief. The "Tamar" lies some miles below the town and Capt. Thornborough, an old, good officer, has been confined to bed two months. As the Lieut. Gov. is constantly at his country house waiting with anxious impatience for the arrival of Lord William Campbell no requisition could be made to the Captain for any protection from insult. Refers him for further particulars to Captain Barbet Commissary of Stores in West Florida now on his way to England.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Innis Recd July 31, 1775.

JOHN PEMBERTON to JONATHAN WILKINSON, at Cockermouth.

1775, June 3. Philadelphia.—"It is a sorrowful time amongst us, little but Confusion and Disorder." Trials are daily increasing. Regrets that some of their youth have joined the populace and are training for war, but hopes by faithful endeavours they may be brought to see the inconsistency of their conduct.

Extract. Intercepted. ¾ folio page.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia 6th mo. 3d 1775. Extract of a Letter from Jno Pemberton to Jona Wilkinson.

JOHN PITCAIRN to LORD ADAM GORDON.

1775, June 3. Boston.—Will gladly do all in his power to serve Mr. Finnie, both for his own merit and Lord Adam's recommendation. For the present he has been appointed to one of their Grenadier Companies where he will have many opportunities to distinguish himself as they encamp in a few days.

Copy. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Boston June 3, 1775. Copy of a Letter from John Pitcairn to Lord Adam Gordon.

THOMAS FISHER to GEORGE LOGAN, at John and Robert Barclay's, London.

1775, June 5. Philadelphia.—The Congress is sitting and has prohibited the exportation of provisions to the fishing islands and coasts, and also to the British army and fleet. Troops have been provided for New England and New York. Gives names of officers appointed. The city bears a warlike appearance. Has been informed that about twenty of General Burgoyne's horse, put out to graze, have been taken by the provincials. Efforts will be made to disappoint the designs of the King's troops. Hopes a change in the Ministry or some other event may produce an alteration in the system of Colony Administration to the mutual benefit of both countries.

Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philada 6 mo. 5, 1775. Extract.

DOCTOR BENJAMIN FRANKLIN to THOMAS LIFE.

1775, June 5. Philadelphia.—Has received his favour of April 5 giving an account of the progress of his suit. Affairs are now so situated that he does not think he will ever return to England. General Gage having commenced hostilities with America and civil war now begun, which he has no chance of living to see the end of, being seventy years of age, it does not seem worth while to proceed in the appeal to the House of Lords. Desires him therefore to withdraw the petition and will settle his account.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, June 5, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Dr Benjamin Franklin to Thomas Life Esqr.

JOHN PENN to WILLIAM BAKER.

1775, June 5. Philadelphia.—"The Post brought me yesterday your Letter of the 5th of April, inclosing Mr Burke's & Mr Hartley's Resolutions, the Merchants Petition to The King, and the Bill restraining the Trade of the Five Middle Colonies, filled up, and a Clause added." Is persuaded that the part of the Bill respecting the three lower counties will not have the desired effect as they will be governed by the decisions of the Congress. Lord North's conciliatory resolution has been ill-received here. Since the late action all the provinces have applied themselves to military exercise. Gage is besieged in Boston by 9,000 men and his destruction would have been attempted were it not for the distress it would have brought upon the town. Remarks on armies preparing in Philadelphia, New England and New York. His own position very unpleasant.

Copy. Intercepted. 5 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, June 5, 1775. Copy of a Letter from Governor Penn, to William Baker Esqr.

SIR W. PEPPERRELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 6. Summer Street.

Autograph letter signed. 10 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Sr W. Pepperell 6th June, 1775, respecting his own Situation & the Situation of Affairs in America.

DISPOSITION of the COLONIES.

Copy of a letter unsigned and unaddressed dated Philadelphia 6 June 1775.—"The Unanimity of the confederate Colonies is every day increasing in Strength." Lord North's proposal will be referred by all the Assemblies to the Congress and no Colony will treat separately. It is intended to send one more petition from the Congress to give Britain another chance of recovering and retaining the affection and commerce of the Colonies. Fears there is not wisdom enough among them to seize this golden opportunity, but that violent methods will still be pursued towards America. Sees in the future her foreign trade stopped but her domestic flourishing and a few strongly fortified posts on the coast garrisoned by the British troops and supported by fleets, as Spain holds Ceuta and Oran, with the country all round their enemies.

Accompanied by a paper headed "A Counter Prophecy," beginning—"If the Spirit of Prophecy, as well as all the Wisdom and Virtue, be "not departed to America, and confined there by the Non-exportation "Decree it may be lawful even for an Englishman to deal in futurities." Britain will no longer brook the indignities of America but exert herself to humble the arrogance shown by her. States reasons for present measures and the ultimate consequences that will ensue to America from her rebellion. The contest is so unequal that if America has any wisdom or virtue she will endeavour to cement that union to which she owes her present freedom.

$4\frac{3}{4}$ and 3 folio pages respectively.

Endorsed.—Copy of a Letter from Philadelphia dated 6 June 1775. An Account of American Affairs &c. by an American.

EDMUND BURKE to the COMMITTEE of CORRESPONDENCE for the General Assembly at NEW YORK.

1775, June 7. Westminster.—On the introduction of their remonstrance to the House of Commons a dispute on the propriety of such a paper being presented took place and it was refused admittance. The Duke of Manchester presented it to the Lords where, after a long debate, it was also rejected. Has received no answer to the Petition to the King.

Extract. Intercepted. 3¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Westminster 7 June 1775. Extract of a Letter from Edm. Burke Esq^r to the Committee of New York.

GOVERNOR GUY CARLETON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 7. Postscript 8 June. Montreal.—No. 12. Intelligence received from General Gage; assistance desired by him. Arrival of Captain Hazen bringing an account of the landing at St. John's of Benedict Arnold with a number of armed men. Rebels in arms upon the Lakes. Their movements. Consternation in the towns and country. Indefensible state of Quebec. Caution and circumspection required on account of the tainted minds of the people by the cabals and intrigues. Communication stopped between this and the other provinces; money required. P.S.—June 8. Return of the enemy, who have taken post near to St. John's.

Copy. 7¼ folio pages. [The original signed letter is in the Public Record Office, Colonial Correspondence Quebec, Vol. 11, f. 56.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Gov^r Carleton to the Earl of Dartmouth dated Montreal 7^th and 8^th of June 1775 (N^o 12) R/ 29^th July.

Enclosures:—

COLONEL ETHAN ALLEN to JAMES MORRISON and the MERCHANTS that are friendly to the Cause of Liberty in MONTREAL.

1775, May 18.—Acquaints them that Lakes George and Champlain with the fortresses are now in the possession of the Colonies. The advance guard is now at St. John's and desires "immediate personal intercourse." Assistance as to provisions, ammunition, etc. is wanted and forthwith expected and they are desired, without further notice, to prepare these articles to the amount of £500 and deliver them instantaneously. His own instructions are not to injure or molest the Canadians or Indians—this to be communicated to them.

Copy. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Ethan Allen, stiling himself Commander of the Army, to M^r James Morrison & merchants friendly to the cause of Liberty, in Montreal, 18^th May 1775. In Gov^r Carleton's Letter of 7^th June No. 12. (1.)

BENEDICT ARNOLD to THOMAS WALKER.

1775, May 20. Ticonderoga.—Requesting him to give any assistance and advice that may be required to Capt. Nineham, [Nimham] who is going on an embassy to Cocknawaugho.

Copy. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Benedt Arnold to Mr Walker at Montreal; Dated Ticonderoga 20th May 1775. In Govr Carleton's Letter of the 7th June No. 12. (2.)

COLONEL ETHAN ALLEN to the "COUNCILLORS at KOCANAWAGO, pr favor of CAPTAIN NIMHAM."

1775, May 24. Crown Point, the head quarters of the army.—Recommending Captain Abraham Nimham of Stockbridge as Ambassador of Peace to the Indians. Hopes they will not fight for King George and against their friends and brothers in the Colonies. Desires their warriors will go and see him and help him fight the King's regular troops. Promises money, blankets, tomahawks, etc.

Copy. 2¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of Ethan Allen's Letter to the Councillors of Kocanawago Dated Crown Point 24th May 1775. In Govr Carleton's Letter of the 7th June No 12. (3.)

BENEDICT ARNOLD to THOMAS WALKER.

1775, May 24. Crown Point.—Asks to be advised from time to time of the number of troops with him, their movements, etc. Expects to be joined in a few days by 2000 more men.

Copy. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Benedt Arnold, to Mr Walker at Montreal. Dated Crown Point 24th May 1775. In Govr Carleton's Letter of the 7 June 1775 No 12. (4.)

MR. PHILIPS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 7.—Giving a sketch of a plan for the government of the American Provinces.

Autograph letter. In the third person. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Philips 1775. Ideas of Accomodation with America.

B. ROBERTS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 7. No 21, Tottenham Street, Rathbone Place.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B. Roberts 1775, on raising a Corps of Canadians.

WILLIAM STRAHAN to DOCTOR BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

1775, June 7. London.—Hopes the Congress consists of men disposed to promote a reconciliation with England, if so, he shall expect to see Franklin return with full powers to terminate all differences upon reasonable and solid terms.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—London, June 7, 1775. Extract of a Letter from William Strahan Esqr to Dr Franklin.

RICHARD YATES to MESSRS. SARGENTS, CHAMBERS, & CO.

1775, June 7. New York.—Has lately shipped a quantity of goods to his friends Nowlan and Leacocke in Madeira, and ordered them to remit Sargents Chambers & Co. the amount, which he imagines will be £2000. No alteration for the better in affairs here, but hopes they will be no sufferers thereby.

Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—New York June 7, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Rich^{d} Yates to Mess^{rs} Sargents Chambers & Co.

Acting LIEUTENANT H. DAWSON to the REVEREND MR. GOODRICKE, Aldborough, near Boroughbridge, Yorkshire.

1775, June 8. Boston Camp.—"Dear Uncle, Your apprehensions concerning the situation we were in, proved but too true." Hopes Boston now understands that the Americans are engaged in a general contest for supremacy. Trade is destroyed and the peasants are training for soldiers. Frequent skirmishes have taken place but the English are always victorious. Details of the affair on Noddles Island. The troops much encouraged by the arrival of the three Generals about a fortnight ago. Work is difficult and they are in want of fresh provisions.

Extract. Intercepted. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Boston Camp, June 8, 1775. Extract of a Letter from L^{t} Dawson to The Rev^{d} M^{r} Goodricke.

JOHN MORTON to THOMAS POWELL, Merchant, London.

1775, June 8. Philadelphia.—An entire stoppage to trade is expected on the 1st of the next month and preparations are being made for a civil war as the people are determined to support the cause of liberty. Petitions and remonstrances from London meet with the same fate as those from the colonies and are treated as of no consequence. General Gage is hemmed in by the provincials at Boston. Calling the Americans rebels has made them desperate and they now mean to act as such. Arrival of Major Skene Governor of Ticonderoga, Crown Point and the Lakes, but as these places have been taken possession of by New England men, he has no Government to go to, and is under a guard of American militia; it is expected he will be obliged to show his papers. Sincerely wishes reconciliation as the contest is horrible.

Copy. Intercepted. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philad^{a} 6MO. 8th 1775. Copy of a Letter from Jn^{o} Morton to Tho^{s} Powell.

PETER RENAUDET to INGHAM FOSTER.

1775, June 8. New York.—Deplores the unhappy contest between Britain and America and hopes soon to be in England again unless the ports should be shut. Account to-day from Boston of a skirmish on Hog and Noddle Islands, in which the regulars have lost over 150 men and the provincials only one killed and four wounded. Gage still shut up in Boston and limited to salt provisions. If affairs continue thus the Colonies will soon have 270,000 fighting men.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—New York June 8, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Peter Renaudet to M^{r} Ingham Foster.

LORD DRUMMOND to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 9. 10 o'clock evening. Whitehall.—Has just seen a letter dated Boston 21 April from a gentleman of some importance who has arrived there from Salem which place he quitted on account of the affair of the 19th; he states that the retreat by Lord Percy was deemed a piece of masterly officership in bringing off his men with so little loss through a severe and incessant fire for twenty miles; killed, wounded and missing between 80 and 100 including many officers. The provincials were endeavouring to cut off communication between the town and country and they are computed at 20,000. Lord Percy is in good health at General Gage's house.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Drummond 9th June 1775. Intelligence from Boston.

MESSRS. GIBSON and ASTON to MESSRS. JOHN and ROBERT BARCLAY, Merchants in London.

1775, June 9. Philadelphia.—Many skirmishes have happened about Boston, much to the disadvantage of the King's troops; the New Englanders are strengthening their acquisitions at Ticonderoga and Crown Point and they are masters of Lake Champlain, having taken all the vessels upon it. The country is now firmly united and preparing to contend for their liberties. Major Skene on his arrival found his Government taken from him by the Connecticut forces and himself a prisoner in Philadelphia. Still hope that the Ministry will stop their measures before it is too late to conquer America.

Extract. Intercepted. 1⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, June 9, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Mess^{rs} Gibson & Aston to Mess^{rs} Jn^{o} & Rob^{t} Barclay.

MORDECAI LEWIS to JOSEPH WOODS, Whitehart Court, Gracechurch Street.

1775, June 9. Philadelphia.—Fears if measures are not altered at home an accommodation will never take place between the two countries. Congress is endeavouring to raise men to furnish an army and they have appointed a Committee to draw up another Petition to the King, an Address to the People of England, one to the Assembly of Jamaica, and one to the People of Canada. Many desertions from the General's army. Military manœuvres in Philadelphia. Arrival and arrest of Colonel Skene, with seizure of his papers. Generals Howe, Burgoyne and Clinton have arrived at Boston. Acts of Parliament by no means affect them as they used to.

Extract. Intercepted. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philad^{a} June 9, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Mordecai Lewis to M^{r} Joseph Woods.

ALEXANDER INNES to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 10–13. Charles Town.—After the signing, by the Members of the Congress, of the association enclosed, it was carried round the town by a committee with orders to report all who refused to subscribe. Few dared refuse. Raising of troops and other military measures decided upon by the Provincial Congress. Several leading men here tremble at the lengths already gone and strive to check the torrent. Refers him to Captain Barbet for many particulars. Laments Admiral Graves's neglect of this province where smuggling goes on daily.

Autograph letter signed. 7 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Charles Town, 10th June, 1775. Mr Innis, Secry to Ld Wm Campbell (private). R/ 3rd August 1775. [And, on a wrapper,] 1 P.M. Read by the King.

Enclosures:—

1775, June 3, 4, and 6.—Newspaper cutting containing the Association subscribed to by the members of the South Carolina Provincial Congress 4 June. With Resolutions of the 3rd and 6th June.
1 printed strip 7½″ × 2½″.

List of officers for forces raised in South Carolina.
M.S. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Officers of the South Carolina fforces. In Mr. Innis's private Letter to Lord Dartmouth 10 June 1775.

ARTILLERY at BOSTON.

1775, June 10. Boston.—John Montresor, Commanding Engineer at Head Quarters. Memoranda of Cannon, Workmen, and Works lately carried on at Boston, sent to Major General Haldimand.
Signed by Montresor. 4 folio pages.

THOMAS WHARTON to SAMUEL WHARTON.

1775, June 10. Philadelphia.—Gives an account of Major Skene's arrival and the seizure of his papers. He and two other officers who came with him are prisoners at the City Tavern. Congress yet sitting but making slow progress. The New Yorkers making provision to support the Pass at Ticonderoga and hinder the Canadians, etc. from piercing their country. Desertions from Major Hamilton's corps. Advice given by the Continental Congress for the government of Massachusetts Bay. Preparation of another petition to the King declaring their willingness to grant money by the Assemblies but that they will not submit to Parliamentary taxation.
Copy. Intercepted. 4½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, June 10, 1775. Copy of a Letter from Thomas Wharton to Samuel Wharton Esqr.

LIEUTENANT JOCELYN FELTHAM of the 26th Regiment to [MAJOR-GENERAL HALDIMAND.]

1775, June 11 and a few lines on the 12th. New York.—Giving, by direction of Captain De La Place of the 26th, a detailed account of the surprising of the Fort of Ticonderoga on 10 May and the circumstances which followed it.
Autograph letter signed. 5½ folio pages.

Enclosures:—

CROWN POINT and TICONDEROGA.

1775, May [11] 2*d Thursday.*—Resolution of the General Assembly of Connecticut appointing a Committee to take care of and provide for the officers and soldiers taken at Crown Point and Ticonderoga and sent into this Colony.

Enclosures—cont.

1½ folio pages.

1775, May 10, 11.—Return of the garrison of Ticonderoga made prisoners in the Fort on the 10th May, and of the prisoners taken at Crown Point on the following day. With the total number of prisoners sent into New England from the two garrisons and those taken on both Lakes. Signed Jocelyn Feltham, Lieutenant 26th Regiment.
1½ folio pages.

A list of the names of officers, non-commissioned officers and soldiers and the places they were taken, i.e., Ticonderoga, Crown Point, Lake George and Lake Champlain.
1 large folio page.

A list of the persons chiefly concerned in taking the Forts of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, His Majesty's Sloop at St. Johns, and Fort George, with the names of the places in which some of them reside. Particulars concerning Benedict Arnold, Ethan Allen, who raised what he calls his Green Mountain Boys, Colonel Eston, John Brown, and the Rev. — Allen, Seth Warner, Baker and Romans, who took possession of Fort George and who is an excellent draughtsman, Elisha Phelps, Bird and Epaphras Bull.
2 folio pages.

1775, May 31. Hartford.—Pass to Lieutenants Arthur Wadman and Jocelyn Feltham from the Committee appointed by the Connecticut House of Assembly (Erastas Wollcott and seven others) allowing them to go to New Jersey and New York unmolested to see their friends.
Copy. 1 folio page.

JOSEPH GOLDTHWAIT to JOHN BLACKBURN.

1775, June 11. Boston.—"As to Politicks, I dont know what to say. We remain as in my last, still blockaded up." The Congress at Philadelphia has voted to make a million of money, and all the colonies to be jointly concerned in redeeming it, to carry on the war against the Government. Refusal to submit to any Acts of Supremacy or Taxation by Parliament. The New England Governments have issued Treasurers' notes for payment of the rebel soldiers and those who reject them are deemed enemies to their country.
Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page.

Endorsed:—Boston, 11 June 1775. Extract of a Letter from Mr Jos Goldthwait to Jno Blackburn Esqr.

ENOCH STORY to MESSRS. JOHN and ROBERT BARCLAY.

1775, June 11. Philadelphia.—The proceedings of the Continental Congress kept very secret. A sufficient reinforcement of the Connecticut people is supposed to be at Ticonderoga to keep possession of that fortress against any attempt of the regulars to retake it. Arrival of Captain McCulloch, Major Skene, Lieutenant Moncrief and others.

Skene and Moncrief detained as prisoners but now discharged on their parole of honour not to cross the Delaware or Schuylkill or go further than eight or ten miles north or south of the city. Nothing material was discovered by an examination of their papers.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Philad^a^ 11^th^ June 1775. Extract of a Letter from Enoch Story to Mess^rs^ Jn^o^ & Rob^t^ Barclay.

MAJOR GENERAL WILLIAM HOWE to GENERAL HARVEY.

1775, June 12 and 18.—"The Situation which The Enemy has taken in Forming the Blockade, is Judicious & Strong, being well Intrenched where The Situation Requires it, & with Cannon." His reasons for not attacking them, the needs of his army and refusal of the colonies to supply him. Intelligence scanty and only through rebels, so is ignorant of the doings in the neighbourhood. States his ideas of the measures desirable to be taken on Dorchester Neck and Roxbury and other places and the force required.

Extract. 5 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Extract from a Letter from Boston 12 June 1775. Gen. Howe to Gen^l^ Harvey.

Duplicate of the foregoing.

MAJOR GENERAL WILLIAM HOWE to LORD HOWE.

1775, June 12. Boston.—"In consequence of the defection at New York a Frigate has been sent to bring the 4 Regiments destined for that Province to this Port." The situation of the rebels for continuing the blockade of this town is exceedingly strong; gives particulars respecting their numbers, manner of fighting and position. Disadvantages under which the British troops labour. Details of the taking of Fort Ticonderoga. Gives his ideas of the measures able to be taken in their present situation, showing he has no great hopes of doing much this campaign with the present force. Is in great want of frigates and states the army required for the province of New York and the garrison of Boston and how to furnish the same.

Copy in Lord Howe's hand. 5⅔ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Gen^l^ Howe to Lord Howe.

BRIGADIER GENERAL JAMES ROBERTSON to [ ].

1775, June 13. Boston.—"A Gentleman lately sent to Philadelphia brought me the inclosed, which I consider as the best Intelligence he brought." The Congress here has struck money and is severe against those who refuse it. Mr. Burgoyne had a good share in framing the General's proclamation. People say there is more attention paid to style than to policy. The Irish transports with troops are arriving. "The Rebels lie round the Town and our Boats make it in a manner all land round us." Nothing less than a decisive victory will alter the face of affairs. Prescot sails to-morrow for Quebec.

Copy. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from B. Gen^l^ Robertson, dated Boston 13^th^ June, 1775, with a Letter addressed to him from Philadelphia of 25^th^ May.

Enclosure :—

[ ] to Brigadier General Robertson.

1775, May 25.—The affair at Lexington has given such ideas of New England prowess that the Americans will listen to no terms but such as they themselves shall dictate. Delegates from the New England colonies declare openly against any Law of Parliament binding them in any respect. Congress proceedings. "It was said, and I believe truly, that Dr. Franklin came out as an agent from Lord Chatham, to propose certain Terms, which he would push at home . . . We fear Lord Chatham: he is for having the supremacy acknowledged . . . . Lord North's Motion would be slavery." The taking of Ticonderoga has given great spirit to the Americans. New York has out-heroded Herod; its delegates are still the ablest in Congress. They hate the New Englanders. Strange and fabulous stories told of the provincials and the troops.

Copy. 3¾ folio pages.

Lieutenant Robert Tomlinson to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, June 13.—Fears in the present situation of American affairs many men will vent their odious and baneful spite against his Lordship. Is desirous of finding an antidote for their poison, and if facts are given him, he will readily exert all his powers to avert the pernicious consequences which evil surmising and artful falsehoods might occasion.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

*Endorsed :—*Lieut^t Tomlinson 13 June 1775.

Lieutenant J[ocelyn] F[eltham] to [Major General Frederick Haldimand].

1775, June 14. York.—Account of the seizure of Ensign Morland when sitting with him in his lodgings the previous night, by a party of more than twenty armed men, Mr. Broome and Mr. Sears being the principal, who sent him a prisoner to Hartford in Connecticut because of his alleged communication with Major Skene at Philadelphia.

Autograph letter signed. ¾ folio page.

*Endorsed :—*Letters from M^r Feltham concerning the taking of Ticonderoga &c. and other Matters for Gen^l Aldemand.

Cabinet Minute.

1775, June 15.—Held at Lord North's. Agreed :—To submit to His Majesty that the opinion of the meeting is to augment the force under General Gage, from Great Britain, Ireland and Canada. With a paper headed "Agenda" relative to New Jersey, the West Indies and St. John's.

In Lord Dartmouth's hand. 3½ quarto pages.

*Endorsed :—*Agenda.

Lieutenant Jocelyn Feltham to [Major General Frederick Haldimand].

1775, June 15. York.—One Angus McDonald late a Corporal in the 26th Regiment has been before the Congress now sitting in this place. He has been sent prisoner to Hartford, letters, it is said, having been given up by him ("but I rather imagine they have taken them") from Major Small and Captain McDonald.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

THOMAS WHARTON to SAMUEL WHARTON.

1775, June 15. Philadelphia.—Is intimately acquainted with the members of the Congress and is assured they wish for a re-establishment of peace and harmony between Britain and America but are determined to be prepared for the worst as they have voted men and money to carry on the war. The Connecticut people have seized stores belonging to the King near New York. Has been informed that Lord Dunmore has left the castle and taken refuge on board a man of war. Reports of the circumstances attending this action.

Copy. Intercepted. 3¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philad^a June 15, 1775. Copy of a Letter from M^r Tho^s Wharton to Sam^l Wharton Esq^r.

BUNKER'S HILL.

1775, June 17.—A sketch of the action between the British forces and the American provincials, on the heights of the peninsula of Charlestown.

Printed and coloured. 1 sheet.

1775, June 17.—A list of officers killed and wounded on Saturday 17 June 1775. Total army killed and wounded 1,041.

1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—List of the Killed and Wounded at Bunker's Hill. June 17, 1775.

JAMES HUTTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 19. King's Road, Chelsea, opposite Mrs. Hutchins's Farm.—Accounts from the Ohio shew the willingness of the Delaware Indians to receive the Gospel through the instrumentality of Captain White Eye. They also with their land to be secured to them by the King and for that purpose resolved to send this Captain to England. He comes with good recommendations and was to set out on 2 March for Pittsburg on his way to England. Hutton will be glad of an interview with his Lordship on this subject, as he hopes it will be properly treated because it greatly affects the missionaries' influence in their country.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed (on the back of his note of the 26th):—M^r Hutton concern^s White Eye. 19 June 1775.

LORD PERCY to [ ].

1775, June 19. Boston.—Informs him of the victory over the rebels by General Howe on the 17th instant after an obstinate engagement. Gives details of the great loss sustained by them though number not yet certainly known. Enemy's loss over 300. He was not personally engaged in the action being on duty in the lines that day, but his regiment is almost cut to pieces being one of the first to attack.

Copy. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from L^{d} Piercy. Boston June 19, 1775, relative to the Engagement on Bunkers Hill.

CABINET MINUTES.

1775, June 21.—Meeting held at Lord North's house. In Lord Dartmouth's hand. General Carleton is to raise 2000 Canadians to be employed as Light Infantry under Gage. Highlanders to be sent to America and Regiments from Gibraltar and Minorca to join them.

1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Minutes of Cabinet, 21 June 1775. Ex.

JOHN FLORRY to [LORD DARTMOUTH.]

1775, June 22. Cleobury near Bewdley.—Considers his bullets would be of great service in America at the present time. He has thought of a method of taking prisoners which he will disclose to his Lordship if there is any chance of a reasonable recompense being granted him.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—John Flory 22 June 1775, on his Invention of Bullets.

JAMES HUTTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 23. King's Road, Chelsea.—In order to save time on Monday communicates the substance of his letters and dispatches. Account of the disputes between the Shawenese and Delawares and reconciliation through the mediation of Captain White Eye. Their decision to receive the Gospel and desire to have their land confirmed to them; for the latter purpose the Captain is coming to England with recommendations from Lord Dunmore and others. Hopes he will be kindly treated and obtain his object.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

LORD HYDE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 23.—Not having yesterday had the honour and satisfaction of conversing with His Lordship, ventures to scratch out in the greatest hurry some ideas which his zeal would not let him suppress and which he hopes will concur with His Lordship's opinion.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

Ideas respecting America. On the top of this is written "An Appendix to a former importunity." In Lord Hyde's hand. "A great part of the nation, notwithstanding the workings & influence of opposition, is suspended in opinion on the outrages of America & on the proceedings of government." The press well employed is often of use. News received from Canada suggest that that province might be serviceable to check the rebels.

Enclosure—cont.

4½ folio pages.

CAPTAIN LAURIE to [ ].

1775, June 23. Camp on Charles Town Heights.

Copy. 2½ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Captⁿ Laurie Of the 43ᵈ Regimᵗ. With an Account of the Battle on Bunker's Hill, and his opinion respecting America.

[PAUL WENTWORTH] to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 24.—With reference to some 'tho'ts towards forming a plan of operations in America.' [Query: May this be the undated paper under Paul Wentworth's name placed at the end of this year, 'Ideas which may be woven into a plan' etc.]

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Anon. 24 June 1775. Sup. P. W—th Esqʳ.

Frederick, BISHOP OF DERRY, to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 25, Derry.—"A Vessel is this very moment arriv'd at our Quay in 28 days from Philadelphia & brings letters from thence": —These letters are replete with exultation on their success against the Fort of Ticonderoga. Congress is determined that all American ports should be shut on the 20ᵗʰ July and New York and North Carolina had determined not to avail themselves of the privilege granted them by Parliament. Universal armament in America and the colonies unanimous in defence of American freedom.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Bᵖ of Derry 25 June 1775, with a Note of Intelligence from America.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 25. Boston.—No. 33. Account of the storming of the battery raised by the rebels on Charlestown Point on the 17th instant. Sends a list of killed and wounded. The success of the day in a great measure to be attributed to Brigadier General Pigot.

Copy. 4¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Honᵇˡᵉ Lieuᵗ Genˡ Gage, to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated Boston 25ᵗʰ June 1775 (Nº 33) R/25th July.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 25.—No. 34. The last transport of the first embarkation from Ireland landed her troops at this port on the 19th instant, and 422 recruits &c. have arrived under the command of Major Bruce. Has heard that a motion was made in the Congress at Philadelphia for conciliatory measures with Great Britain; has also been informed that Lord Dunmore and his family have been compelled to take refuge on board the "Fowey" ship of war; doubts the first item, but thinks the latter authentic. There is scarcely a province that has not overthrown its Government and all power is lodged in the hands of Congresses and Committees; the people are so blind and "bigotted" that they cannot see they have exchanged liberty for tyranny. No advices received from Canada for three months past, though he has sent there for supplies of all kinds.

Copy. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from The Hon^ble^ Lieu^t^ Gen^l^ Gage, to The Earl of Dartmouth, dated Boston 25th June 1775. (N° 34.) R/ 25th July.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 25.—Private. Wishes that the success, so necessary, had not cost so dear. The number of killed and wounded is greater than they could afford to lose. The rebels are shown not to be the disorderly rabble too many have supposed. They have fortified all the heights and passes around the town. It will be perceived that the conquest of the country is not easy and can be effected only by time and perseverance and strong armies attacking it in various quarters and so dividing their forces. In all their wars against the French they have showed no such conduct, attention and perseverance as they do now. The people's minds are kept heated and inflamed and they do not see they have exchanged liberty for tyranny. No people were ever governed more absolutely than the American Provinces now are, and no reason can be given for their submission but that it is a tyranny they have erected themselves.

Copy. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Hon^ble^ Lieu^t^ Gen^l^ Gage, to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated Boston 25th June 1775. Private. R/ 25th July.

GOVERNOR GUY CARLETON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 26. Montreal.—No. 13. Martial law proclaimed and militia enrolled. Movements of the enemy. Letter he has received from General Gage, empowering him to draw for money, and putting all the upper posts under his immediate command. The effect ten or twelve thousand men would have here. Letters received from Colonel Guy Johnson at Fort Stanwix, who tells of important communication threatened from the Susquehannah and applies for provisions, ammunition, blankets, and a small body of troops necessary to encourage the Indians to persevere in the British interest.

Copy. 4 folio pages. [The original signed letter is in the Public Record Office, Colonial Correspondence, Quebec, Vol. 11, fo. 62.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Governor Carleton to the Earl of Dartmouth dated Montreal 26th June 1775. (N° 13.) R/ 29th July.

Enclosure :—

1775, June 24. Montreal.—State of His Majesty's Troops in the Province of Quebec commanded by His Excellency Major General Guy Carleton.

Copy. 3 large folio pages.

Endorsed :—From Copy in Gov^r Carleton's (N^o 13) of 26 June 1775.

ALEXANDER FRASER, Midshipman on the "Scarborough" Man-of-War, to [ ].

1775, June 26. Portsmouth, New Hampshire.—The battle previously mentioned by him has produced as yet no visible consequences though it is the general opinion the rebels are sick of the service as they are not able to cope with the troops. A reported division in the Continental Congress. Samuel Adams and John Hancock have been excepted from the pardon offered by General Gage's proclamation to all who shall lay down their arms; some have availed themselves of this offer but great numbers hesitate through fear of being taken in the attempt. Present distressed condition of the country. Insufficient force on the English side to reduce the rebels as every skirmish diminishes it while they are continually increasing in numbers. Unwarrantable acts of violence committed. They have robbed the different forts of the cannon and ammunition and forced the governor with his family to leave the town.

Extract. 2¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Extract of a Letter from M^r Frazer a Midshipman in the Navy at Portsmouth N. Hampshire, dated 26th June 1775. On the Skirmish at Bunker's Hill. Ex.

JAMES HUTTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 26, Monday.—Begs to know when Capt. White Eye arrives. If there were any of the messengers at whose house he and Montour could be lodged much mischief might be prevented. Suggests providing clothing, that they might not attract attention. These were the principal matters about which he had intended to speak to-day to his Lordship.

Note in the third person. 1 page.

SIR EGERTON LEIGH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 26. Saville Row.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed.—S^r Egerton Leigh 26 June 1775, proposing the Resignation of his Seat in the Council of S^o Carolina, if necessary.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 27, Tuesday. America Square.—Has several letters of consequence to communicate to his Lordship at a convenient opportunity. A ship of his arrived yesterday from America having spoken with seven sail of transports on 17 May bound for New York with troops and expected to arrive there about the 24th May.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—W. Molleson Esq^r^ 27 June 1775, inclosing the Proceedings of the Maryland Convention.

Enclosure:—

MARYLAND.

1775, April 24—3 May.—Printed Proceedings of a meeting of the Deputies of the Counties of Maryland held at Annapolis on the 24^th^ April and continued by adjournment from day to day to the 3^d^ of May.

2 folio pages.

MAJOR GAVIN COCHRANE to SIR ADOLPHUS OUGHTON.

1775, June 28. Duke's Court.—Seeing accounts in the newspapers that the people of New England have made themselves masters of Crown Point and Ticonderoga, where he commanded four years, offers some observations on their situation and condition. Their importance because commanding the communication between Canada and New York, also with the New England provinces. Describes the forts. The principal reason for having garrisons at these posts was to keep up the communication.

Autograph letter signed. 2¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Major Cochran to S^r^ Ad. Oughton 28^th^ June, 1775. Hints respecting Crown Point & Ticonderoga.

CONGRESS. RULES FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE TROOPS.

1775, June 30. Philadelphia.—Printed pamphlet entitled—Rules and Articles for the better Government of the Troops Raised or to be raised and kept in pay by and at the joint Expense of the Twelve United English Colonies of North America. Signed, by order of the Congress, John Hancock, President.

17 octavo pages, sewn.

GOVERNOR JOSIAH MARTIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 30. Fort Johnston, North Carolina,—No. 34. Details circumstances that have occurred in his province since his last letter, showing the spirit of the people, his own personal danger, assistance given by General Gage, and his removal from Newbern. States the measures necessary to be taken to restore order in the province. Proposal to raise a battalion of 1,000 Highlanders there. Refers to the enclosures. South Carolina Congress has sent recruiting parties into North Carolina. Believes that nothing short of the rod of correction will bring back the Americans to obedience. Remarks on the Council and M^r^ Dry Collector of Customs at Fort Johnston.

Duplicate letter signed. 16¾ large folio pages. [The original signed letter is in the Public Record Office, Series America and West Indies, Vol. 222, fo. 253.]

Endorsed:—North Carolina. Fort Johnston. 30 June 1773. Governor Martin. N^o^ 34 (Duplicate original not rec^d^.) R. Sept^r^ 10 1775 (3 Inclosures) Ent^d^.

Enclosures :—

North Carolina. Minutes of Council.

1775, June 25. Fort Johnston.—Address of the Governor relative to the audacious and dangerous proceedings in the province and inviting advice as to the measures to be adopted to support the King's rights. The condition of Fort Johnston being reported on, the Council advise applying to Genl. Gage and their opinion is that the meeting of the Assembly be postponed to a future day as from the example of the other colonies there is not any probability of their proceeding to business.

Copy certified by Josiah Martin. $3\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed :—In Gov^{r} Martin's of the 30 of June, 1775. N^{o} 34.

North Carolina.

N.D. [1775, May 31.]—Resolutions (20) of a Committee of the county of Mecklenburgh in North Carolina. Signed at Charlotte Town, by order of the Committee, Ephraim Brevard. Suspending all laws and commissions given by the Crown and proposing measures to establish a government for the province.

4 folio pages.

Endorsed :—In Gov^{r} Martins of the 30 of June, 1775. N^{o} 34.

[The third enclosure is not now with the letter.]

Intelligence.

[1775, June.]—Paper in John Pownall's hand, endorsed "Intelligence." Sir Stanier Porten has just been here to communicate the following Intelligence, viz. :—That 3 battalions of French, lately in garrison at Lisle, were ordered to be at Brest on the 22d of June to embark for the West Indies. Four more battalions from France to follow. The Spanish fleet sailed from Carthagena on the 23d June but on the 24th they were only three leagues from the coast, owing to the easterly winds. Monsieur Bulkeley and Count D'Estaing have requested of Monsieur de Muy to serve on board the Spanish Flota but have been refused on the ground that the Court of France does not know the object of its destination.

$1\frac{1}{2}$ quarto pages.

[Royal Highland Emigrants Regiment.]

N. D. [1775, June].—Letter not signed, dated, nor addressed; beginning—" Sir I hope your Excellency will have the goodness to pardon the liberty I take, in troubling you on a Subject, which has been revealed to me in Confidence, by my friend Major Small." Owing to the great influx of Highlanders into this province, proposes the enlisting of them into a brigade. Shows the desirability of such a step at the present juncture of affairs. Offers himself as commander of such a brigade if another is not destined for the post.

Copy. $3\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

VIRGINIA.

N. D. [1775, June].—Address of the Council of Virginia to all the good people of the Province. Can no longer forbear to express their abhorrence and detestation of the ungovernable spirit which misleads the once happy people of this country. Desire the consequences to be considered. The Council on this occasion wish to be looked upon not as a separate body of men, but as the watchful guardians of the rights of the people. Will heartily join with them in whatever means may be judged most salutary for enforcing obedience to the laws.

Copy. 1 page. [A printed broadside is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 213, fo. 427.]

Endorsed:—Address of Council of Virginia to the People.

EDWARD FISHER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 1. Mr. Chapman's, Cheap Street, Bath.—Quotes from a letter written on the 12th May by his brother John Fisher showing the confused state of affairs in America since the action of 19 April, and who as he is Collector of Customs at Salem and in personal danger from the populace, asks leave and opportunity to embark for England. Desires his Lordship to intercede with Lord North on his brother's behalf.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Fisher. Bath 1 July 1775. To Lord Dartmouth desiring Leave of Absence for his Brother.

IS. SEAGROVE to JOHN BLACKBURN.

1775, July 2. New York.—In consequence of England's rejecting the remonstrance and petition sent from the colonies to redress the grievances, the Americans are determined to defend their liberty by a vigorous opposition. Preparations for war. Non-importation stoutly adhered to and non-exportation daily expected. Not less than 2,000 lives have been lost since the 19th April. Saw the action at Lexington, which was a hot one. Not less than 1,500 fell in the attack on Breed's Hill; a general engagement may be hourly expected. Washington, Lee, Ward and Putnam are in command of the American army. It is said General Carleton is coming down from Canada with an army of Indians and French; a strong army is posted at Ticonderoga to intercept him. Wishes he were in England as he has no relish for civil war.

Copy. Intercepted. 3 folio pages and 2 lines.

Endorsed:—New York, July 2^d^ 1775. Copy of a Letter from I^s^ Seagrove to Jn^o^ Blackburn Esq^r^.

The REVEREND DOCTOR JOHN EWING to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 3. No. 25, Ludgate Street.—On the desirability of granting the request stated in the enclosed memorial.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—D^r^ Ewing 3^d^ July 1775, inclosing Petition to the King.

Enclosure :—

PETITION to the KING.

1775, July 3. London.—From the Reverend Doctor John Ewing and Doctor Hugh Williamson (two of the Trustees of the Academy of Newark in the County of Newcastle upon Delaware). Desiring a grant of a tract of land towards the establishment and support of their Seminary to assist in diffusing Christianity among parts now much neglected and strengthening and preserving their allegiance to the King at this critical time as well as in the future.

Original. Signed. (Both signatures in one hand, not Ewing's, probably D^r^ Williamson's.) 1 large folio page.

Endorsed :—D^r^ Ewing's Petition.

ALEXANDER INNES to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 3. Charles Town.—Remarks on the disposition and conduct of the people of this province. Had he known affairs would have come to this climax, and Lord William [Campbell] been deserted by those who ought to support him, he would not have ventured to undertake the task he has done, but till it can be more ably filled, he will endeavour to do his best therein.

Autograph letter signed. 3 folio pages.

*Endorsed :—*M^r^ Innes Charlestown 3 July 1775, respecting public Affairs in So. Carolina. M^r^ Innis Charlestown 3 July 1775.

LORD HYDE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 4.—" L^d^ Hyde presents his respects to L^d^ Dartmouth ; who will be convinced by the inclosed ideas how little his L^p^ lost by not being at home when L^d^ H. called at his door." Lord H——'s zeal renders him over officious but he begs his minutes may be confined to Lord Dartmouth and Lord North.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

*Endorsed :—*L^d^ Hyde 4 July 1775.

Enclosure :—

LORD HOWE to LORD HYDE.

1775, [June 29]. Thursday night, Grafton Street.—" As your wishes, my D^r^ Lord, will always have with me the force of commands, I give you upon paper as much as I can recollect of the substance of what I had the honor to state to your Lordship in the Drawing Room." Respecting the Bill expected to be offered the following day for restraining the Fishery and other export trade of Massachusetts Bay.

Autograph letter signed. 4¼ quarto pages. The end of this letter is written (apparently by mistake) on the back of one from Lord Hyde to Lord Howe of 10 February 1775.

DONALD MCLEAN to TIMOTHY BEVAN, Druggist, Lombard Street.

1775, July 4, New York.—" You cannot possibly form a proper Idea of the convulsed State of the Colonies at this very juncture,":—I is feared that the sinew of trade is already broken and only anarchy and confusion stare the land in the face.

Extract. Intercepted. $\frac{1}{2}$ folio page.

Endorsed:—New York July 4, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Don^{d} M^{c}Lean to M^{r} Timothy Bevan.

William Smith to Major-General Frederick Haldimand.

1775, July 4. New York.—" Sir, I have the Honor to inclose the MSS. you desired to peruse; and by the Absence of my best Clerk, am obliged to apologise for so bad a Copy." Leaves town early in the morning and wishes Haldimand an agreeable voyage.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

Thoughts upen the Dispute between Great Britain and her Colonies. Written in 1767. Beginning " They who speak of the Union between these Countries, barely as of Importance . . . . do not express themselves properly."

Copy. 8$\frac{1}{2}$ folio pages. [For a similar paper purporting to be by Brook Watson see above 23 January. See also at the end of 1774.]

Copy of the same endorsed:—Thoughts upon the Dispute between G. Britain & the Colonies, written by Mr. Wm. Smith of N. York in 1767.

14 pages.

A. Z. to the Reverend John Vardil[l].

1775, July 5. New York.—" It is said that a Motion has been made at the Continental Congress for an Independency, which occasioned very warm Debates." Captain John Hansen, who lately discovered some of the secrets of the French Cabinet, for which he received a pension of £500, has now it is said discovered that the English Ministry are in league with the Pretender, who must this year assert his right to the throne, or be for ever barred. This is supposed to be the reason of the present measures respecting America, that by drawing the forces out of Great Britain and Ireland those countries will be subject to the incursions of the Pretender. Of the Provincial Officers not one in ten have ever smelt gunpowder. Repeats sentiments declared by the people on the present state of affairs.

Extract. Intercepted. 2$\frac{1}{3}$ folio pages.

John Harris Cruger to Henry Cruger, Junior.

1775, July 5. New York.—" It is with the greatest Pleasure I communicate to you the honourable Mention that is made of you in your Support and Defence of our Assembly's Memorial and Remonstrance to the Lords." The treatment of this remonstrance has irritated and greatly vexed many of the moderate well-disposed people and will hasten on the scene of confusion, ruin and anarchy. Is anxious to hear the fate of their petition though despairs of a favourable reception. This city wears a warlike appearance. Has received no certain account of Bunker's Hill battle, only newspaper accounts.

Copy. Intercepted. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—New York, July 5, 1775. Copy of a Letter from John Harris Cruger Esq^r to Henry Cruger jun^r Esq^r.

MESSRS. MCFARRAN and DUNLAP to MESSRS. JOHNSTON and CANNING.

1775, July 5. New York.—"When Trade will be open again it is uncertain, for People here are determined not to give Way." Considers England cannot subdue them by land, but only destroy their towns by her men of war, and an army marching from under their cover will run a great risk of being massacred.

Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—New York, July 5, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Mess^rs M^cFarran & Dunlap to Mess^rs Johnston & Canning.

JOHN WEATHERHEAD to CHARLES WILLIAMOS ESQ., St. James's Place.

1775, July 5. New York.—"Mr. Skeene's promises must appear very highly contemptible to the Ministry, when they are informed that he is a Prisoner still in the Hands of the Philadelphians." His whole family have been dispersed and his effects destroyed by the very people he has been recommending to the favours of the Crown. Ethan Allen and Seth Warner are now parading the streets of New York, notwithstanding that £500 is offered by Act of Assembly for securing their persons. Considers a squadron of small ships of war and 4,000 good regular troops would soon strike terror into the Southern Colonies and "put to flight the rebellious scoundrels in this Province," providing the Admiral and General are active enterprising men.

Extract. Intercepted. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—New York, 5 July 1775. Extract of a Letter from John Weatherhead to Charles Williamos Esq^r.

JOHN BAYARD to JOHN SARGENT, Downing Street.

1775, July 6. Greenwich.—"Our Situation is as melanchollу and shocking as pen can describe it. Where it will end God alone knows." Anarchy and Blood will be the production of this dismal year unless Government should step in and send to this country proper persons to meet and treat with deputies from the different assemblies to settle the differences between the two countries.

Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page.

Endorsed:—Greenwich, 6 July 1775. Extract of a Letter from Jn^o Bayard to Jn^o Sargent Esq^r.

GOVERNOR JOSIAH MARTIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 6. Fort Johnston, North Carolina.—No. 35. Receipt of dispatches by Captain Tollemache. Disadvantages experienced by not being able to communicate with General Gage. No communication by sea yet established by the Admiral or General and all intercourse by land is cut off by the vigilance of the Committees. "A servant of mine, whom I had dispatched from hence to the Post Office at Wilmington for my letters three days ago, was stopped by the Committee at the little Town of Brunswick, who obliged him to swear, that he had no letters for me, before he was suffered to proceed." Regrets that his Lordship's dispatches had been previously opened by the mob at Charlestown as certified by Mr. Roupell, Deputy Post Master General there. Enumerates several letters by the "Sandwich" Packet that his Lordship may judge whether any have been suppressed. Introduces Mr. Schaw and refers his Lordship to him for information of this province. Thinks recent orders respecting the authority of Major and Brigadier-Generals will bear somewhat hard upon himself, though he will not fail to have them fulfilled.

Duplicate autograph letter signed. 5 large folio pages.

Endorsed:—North Carolina Fort Johnston. 6 July 1775. Gov^r^ Martin. N^o^ 35. (Duplicate origin^l^ not rec^d^.) Rec^d^ 10 Sept^r^ 1775. Ent^d^.

JOHN WILLIAMS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 6. No. 7, Furnival's Inn.—Appears to have been engaged in the customs in America. Begs his Lordship to interpose on his behalf with Lord North to "obtain the prayer of his petition."

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Williams 6 July, 1775, explaining his distressed Situation and enclosing a Petition.

WALTER and THOMAS BUCHANAN and Co. to Messrs. GEORGE and JOHN BUCHANAN, Glasgow.

1775, July 7 and 8. New York.—It has been decided to shut up the ports on the 10th September, unless something is done by the man-of-war to oblige them to alter their sentiments. Do not find that any other house here has any advice of this matter. Are convinced that the first vessel that is stopped going from America by virtue of the Restraining Act will cause all the ports to be shut, or if a man-of-war take any vessel loaded with provisions and carry her to Boston it will result in the same action.

Extract. Intercepted. 1½ folio pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 7. New York.—The idea of Parliamentary taxation is the heavy clog that keeps the Americans from vigorously supporting Government. Were this accommodated numbers would stand forth in its cause. Hopes his intended answer to the Corporation of this City will meet with his Lordship's approbation. Desires leave of absence by the next packet with discretionary leave to remain if affairs require his presence.

Autograph letter signed. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^r^ Tryon, 7^th^ July, 1775. On the Prospect of Affairs in N. York.

Same as the foregoing. A signed letter only.

Endorsed:—Opinion of the only Means of quieting the Americans.
1½ folio pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 7. New York.—In the delicate state of his health and public situation and it being very probable he may either be taken prisoner as a state hostage, or obliged to retire on board one of His Majesty's ships of war to avoid the insolence of an inflamed mob, humbly requests discretionary leave to return to England and that it may be sent by the next packet. He will make no hasty or improper use of such grace.

Duplicate letter signed. 1 folio page. [The autograph signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 185, fo. 423.]

Endorsed:—Gov^r^ Tryon, N. York, 7 July, 1775. Praying a discretionary Leave of Absence.
Again endorsed:—Gov^r^ Tryon July 1775.

BENJAMIN MOORE to the REVEREND DOCTOR COOPER at Dr. Thurloe's, Temple.

1775, July 8. King's College.—"Our Situation grows more & more distressing. The City is held in a constant Alarm." The Connecticut Troops about 1,800 are encamped near Mr. Elliott's. Various false rumours are constantly being spread concerning the movements of the troops. It has been suggested that the college be converted into a hospital and Doctor Clossy Physician General to the American army. Governor Tryon is viewed with a supercilious eye, though he behaves with much prudence and moderation. The Corporation were prohibited by the Provincial Congress from presenting their address to Governor Tryon.

Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio pages.

GOVERNOR THOMAS SHIRLEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 10. Dominica.—"M^r^ Robert Temple, who will have the honour of delivering this Letter to your Lordship; is a Gentleman lately arrived here from Boston in his way to England." Commends him to his Lordship's attention as one conversant with American affairs but who has been obliged to quit his home and family on account of service rendered to the King's troops in the skirmish of the 19th April.

Letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^r^ Shirley 10 July 1775.

LORD VISCOUNT TOWNSHEND to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 11. Portman Square.—Requests the loan of Captain Holland's plan of the town of Boston and its environs for a few days.

Original. Not autograph. In the third person. ⅓ quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^d^ Visc^t^ Townshend 11 July 1775, on the Subject of Ordnance Stores for America.

Enclosure :—

Account of Ordnance at Quebec and Montreal.
½ quarto page.

LORD VISCOUNT TOWNSHEND to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, July 11. Portman Square.—If more ordnance stores are required, suggests that they could be spared from Boston, as General Gage has more than he can possibly use for Quebec and Virginia. The artillery, small arms and stores are all ready for embarkation as ordered.

Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

LORD DUNMORE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 12. The "Fowey."—Mr. Corbin, Senior, is one of the most influential loyalists in the colony, and his son leaves America entirely on account of the disturbances, having found his life in danger because he would not join the provincials. He is well informed of the transactions in this colony.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—L^{d} Dunmore July 1775, recommending M^{r} Corbin of Virginia.

The DUKE OF CHANDOS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 13. Acrington.—Highly recommending Captain Shaw who has resided for several years past at Winchester, and whose two sons are now serving His Majesty at Boston under General Gage.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—D. of Chandos 13 July 1775, recommending Capt. Shaw.

COLONEL T. HOWARD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, July 14. White Hall.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Col^{l} Howard 14 July 1775, desiring a vacant Reg^{t} for his friend Gov^{r} Tryon.

CADWALLADER COLDEN, Junior, to the REVEREND DOCTOR MYLES COOPER.

1775, July 15. Coldengham.—"If any one has dared to put Pen to Paper to give you a State of Affairs in this Province since you left us it must fill your sympathetic Breast with the greatest anxiety to hear of the great Progress of——I know not what to call it, in so much that no one dare now print, write or speak a word in favour of Government." His life and property threatened till he was compelled to sign the Association Paper. Some who refused to do so tied hand and foot and sent down to the Provincial Congress. All Church men in this part of the country have appeared averse to the public measures and are consequently called Tories.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page. Is in a wrapper marked Communications from M^{r} Todd* Oct. 11.

---

* Secretary of the General Post Office.

GOVERNOR JOSIAH MARTIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 15. "Cruizer" Sloop of War, Cape Fear River, North Carolina.—No. 36. Gives account of Howe's victory at Bunker's Hill as received from the master of a vessel just arrived from Boston. Pernicious influence of printed papers circulated by rebels. Is eager for intelligence and supplies from General Gage; it is rumoured that the Committee at Wilmington have intercepted General Gage's letter to him. Captain Collets' just representations that he could not hold Fort Johnston with three or four men against a multitude have determined him to dismount the artillery and lay it under cover of the "Cruizer's" guns. The fort a contemptible thing. Cornelius Harnett, John Ashe, Robert Howes or Howe and Abner Nash are the persons who lead the revolt in his province and who he proposes should be proscribed the same as Samuel Adams and John Hancock in Massachusetts have been by the King's proclamation.

Autograph letter signed. 4½ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—North Carolina. Cruiser Sloop of War Cape Fear River. 15 July 1775. Gov^r Martin. (N^o 36.) R/ 10 Sept^r 1775. Ent^d.

JOHN GIBSON to MESSRS. JOHN AND ROBERT BARCLAY.

1775, July 18. Philadelphia.—General Gage by carrying the Trenches at Bunker's Hill has gained perhaps 1,000 acres of ground by the victory of the 17th but he is as closely besieged as before the arrival of troops from England and Ireland. The Continental Congress has announced the resolution of the country to defend itself against the arbitrary Acts of Parliament; it has taken the reins of Government, and implicit obedience is paid to its decrees. If no response is made to the last petition sent to the King, Independency will be looked forward to and a European Power asked for assistance if required. Harvest generally in; every kind of produce has yielded abundance this year.

Extract. Intercepted. 1½ folio pages.

GOVERNOR LORD WILLIAM CAMPBELL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, July 19, last part on 20^th. Charles Town.—No. 2. Detriment to the province by General Gage's neglect to send vessels for his assistance. Every hour he hears of vessels from the Dutch and French settlements arriving and smuggling cargoes in the neighbouring creeks. His reasons for not dissolving the Assembly. "The Assembly met the 10^th. The Papers inclosed contain every thing that has pass'd, & shows (sic) plainly the temper that reigns amongst them. When I received their Address I thought of dissolving them immediately, but I soon found that was what they wish'd; it would have furnished a fresh grievance, & an excuse for every violent, desperate, measure that might be adopted in their Committees, & Councils. They would have immediately said, that by a Dissolution at such a Crisis I had inflamed the minds of the people, weakned Goverment, & riot, anarchy, & confusion, could not fail of being the consequence. I have consider'd this matter with the greatest attention, I have consulted those few of the King's Servants that I could depend on, as well as the Council, & they are all of opinion I cannot fall on a more effectual method to embarass the faction, than suffering the Assembly to sit some little time longer, & putting it in their power to compleat the necessary business of the Province, if they chuse it, which I do not expect, as I am convinced they do not wish at present to have even the appearance of a Legislature. They are ripe for any violence, & I am determined whatever is done shall be acted before them; in fact it will be their own Deed, as the Assembly almost to a man are Members of the Congress, & Committee. No subterfuge should be left them; things are come to such a pass My Lord that the whole World ought to know—that the present measures proceed not from a mob fired by oppression but . . . are the result of a concerted plan, and firm determination of a powerful party, to establish an independancy, by Acts as unprovoked, as they are unjustifiable." . . . . . The Advices from the Continental Congress (a few resolutions excepted intended for the publick eye) are as carefully concealed as possible, but it is said that two millions of Dollars are to be raised immediately, & the proportion of this Province will be 56,000£ Ster^g. This with the enormous expence of y^e new Troops &c^a. will oblige them to raise a sum little short of 300,000£ Ster^g." The Carolina Committee and Council of Safety sit night and day; is told they are debating about seizing the King's officers and those few who have not signed the Association. "Your Lordship will easily conceive the distress of my present situation, & how very uncertain my personal safety is; but as I know my presence here embarasses them I am determined at all events to remain to the last extremity, & see what they dare do. To publish proclamations against their proceedings would be only giving them an opportunity of pouring fresh insults on Goverment, but could I only keep my ground till General Gage enables me to publish an Account of a severe correction given to the Massachusets People; & till the Admiral recollects the situation we must be in to the Southward, & sends us some little force; I am still in hopes our Heroes here might come to their sènses." Has received no communication from Lieutenant Governor Bull. Commends Mr. Wragge for his zeal and loyalty though he is threatened with banishment for it. Georgia has joined the General Association and appointed delegates to the Continental Congress. Gunpowder seized; the governor, Sir James Wright, dares not write. Hears that a posse of men is waiting to seize his dispatches from Mr. Innes as he carries them down to the packet, so will send to Capt. Thornborough for his boat in the night to convey Mr. Innes safely with them. Enumerates five papers sent in a packet with this letter.

Letter signed. 10 folio pages. Letter written in Innes's hand.

Endorsed:—Charles Town. 19th & 20th July, 1775. Lord W^m Campbell (N^o 2) R/. 23d Sept^r 1775. (10 Inclosures). Ent^d.

CHIEF JUSTICE W. HEY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, July 20. Quebec.—The confusion in the province. Three attempts made by the rebels by the way of Lake Champlain. Observations on the Canadians and their refusal to fight against the rebels. His own situation unpleasant but will stay until driven out by armed force, for though he may do little good by staying, he might do harm by leaving.

Autograph letter signed. 4 folio pages.

Endorsed on a wrapper:—Quebec. 20 July 1775. Chief Justice Hey relative to the State of Affairs in Quebec. (private) $\frac{m}{40}$. p^t 2. P.M. [and, in the King's hand] $\frac{m}{3}$. p^t 7. P.M.

SOAME JENYNS to [LORD DARTMOUTH.]

1775, July 20. Botisham.—Has been requested to recommend Mr. James Gifford who has served some years in the Army as Captain of a Company in General Keppel's Regiment, but now sold out and wishes to obtain some inferior Government or Lieutenant Government in America or the West Indies. Thinks he is suitable for it, as he has served six years in that country and seems well acquainted with most of the provinces.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—So. Jenyns Esq^r^ 20 July 1775, recommending M^r^ Gifford to a Governm^t^.

BENJAMIN HARRISON to GENERAL GEORGE WASHINGTON.

1775, July 21, 23 and 24. Philadelphia.—"Your fatigue and various kinds of trouble, I dare say are great; but they are not more than I expected, knowing the people you have to deal with by the sample we have here. . . . I wish, with all my heart, your troops were better, and your stores more complete. . . . The want of Engineers, I fear, is not to be supplied in America. Some folks here seemed much displeased at your report on that head. . . . Indeed, my friend, I do not know what to think of some of these men; they seem to be exceeding hearty in the cause, but still wish to keep every thing amongst themselves. Our President is quite of a different cast—noble, disinterested, and generous, to a very great degree. The Congress have given you the appointment of three Brigade Majors. . . . The military chest, I hope, will be supplied soon. . . . What has occasioned the delay in this article I know not, without an imitation of the Congress, in its slowness, is become fashionable. . . . The Governour . . . is still at Yorktown, with three men-of-war. He, Montague, and Foye, went the other day by water to his farm, and were within three or four minutes of being all taken by Captain Meredith, with seventy men from Hanover. . . . Meredith says his intentions were to carry his Lordship to Williamsburgh, to put him into the Palace, and promise him protection, to convince him and the world that no injury was intended him; however, as he missed his stroke, I daresay he will be charged with intending to murder him. We think the season too far advanced to send you any more men from the southward. . . . Georgia has come into the Union. . . . The debate about our remove was taken up yesterday, and determined in the negative. I proposed a Committee, but could not carry it. . . . I think it is high time there was an end of the Congress." Recommends Edmund Randolph as Washington's Secretary.

Copy. 6½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a letter from Benj^n^ Harrison (one of the Delegates at the Congress) to G. Washington, dated 21^st^ July, 1775.

LORD TOWNSHEND to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, July 21. Rainham.—A letter received from General Gage announces his satisfaction at the arrival of Engineer Page. Hopes others on their way will give equal pleasure. Mentions artillery now at the Tower which would be useful to General Gage and easily transported. Lord Dunmore's decision to embark. Has received a letter from North Carolina of 1st June describing the temper of the people there and the willingness of Highlanders to take up arms for the Government. Gunpowder has been shipped from St. Eustatius for America, and the island is full of British manufactures for the American merchants.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Townshend 21 July, 1775, respecting the Transportation of some Artillery.

WILLING MORRIS & CO. to MESSRS. HEYETT AND BARCLAY.

1775, July 21. Philadelphia.—Are restrained by Act of Parliament from shipping their grain to any foreign country and on the 10th September their exports are to cease by vote of Congress. If English crops are short the people there may feel the want of it and ardently wish for a reconciliation.

Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page.

[to LORD DARTMOUTH.]

1775, July 21.—Letter not signed, apparently to Lord Dartmouth. Proposes measures for the pacification of America and its restoration to order and obedience. An offer of accommodation after victory will come with greater weight and credit from the administration. Conveys his scheme to his Lordship previous to making it public and if objections are raised to its publication, such will be attended to if sent to the author by letter to G. L. at Stuart's Coffee house, New Bond Street.

4 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Plan of Accommodation. Anonymous.

[COLONEL CHRISTIE] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 22.—Reasons for taking immediate possession of New York:—

1. "Because the province in General is well affected, & great numbers of real Friends to His Majesty in the Town of New York who wish to promote the Public Tranquility, but are intimidated by a licentious Mob, as well as from the want of Troops under proper Orders, to afford them protection. Therefore it would now require about 2000 Men to recover and take possession of the place, and this force assisted by a determin'd Declaration made to the Town, that Hostilities, and a bombardment should ensue, in case of Insult or Resistance. The Landing to be effected in the North River, a little above the Town, where the Ground commands it, under the protection of a couple of Frigates, & as many Bomb Vessels, in which case there would be no opposition."

2. Because the place in question is strong from its natural situation (this is enlarged upon) and a frigate or small armed vessel if necessary could keep all this rich and extensive country in good order, and the whole easily defended; also, the "possessing New York will be establishing a Centrical and Winter Port for Vessels with Warlike or other Stores as may be found expedient to send from England."

3. Because opportunity would be given to recover the arms and stores of the King's which were violently seized, and the nations would be happy for the pretence to join and drive off the people who came from the neighbouring provinces of Connecticut at the instigation of certain turbulent and factious spirits in the province of New York.

4. "Because It is of the last Importance in all Countrys under the Calamity of a Civil War, to endeavour, if practicable, to form Provincial Battalions, or a Force raised from among themselves," &c.

5. Because the seeds of Disaffection & Rebellion were 1st sown in the town of New York the country being pretty free from it & depend[ing] so much upon the exportation of their grain . . . "It may almost be presumed, that the Skochry people, a numerous race or Industrious & Obedient Germans settled upon a Creek or River of that name, branching from the Mohock River above Schenectady, would take Arms to a man, for the King, upon the least Encouragement, as well as those Inhabitants of the Mohock River, all whom are extremely Robust, & esteemed the best Militia (Canadians excepted) in N. America."

6. Because of many German and Scotch wandering in New York waiting to settle there.

7. Query. Whether some one should not be sent over to receive and report complaints from inhabitants.

8. The possession of it is necessary to open communication with Boston.

9. Shows its necessity for the sake of other provinces in their fishery and trade.

Not signed, but in the same hand as the body of Colonel Christie's letter of 31 July. 2¾ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Col. Christie 22 July, 1775. Reasons for taking immediate Possession of N. York.

MARIA ELIZA KENWARD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, July 22. Saint Augustine.—Applies for assistance on behalf of her husband, storekeeper to the Ordnance of St. Augustine, who is ill through the intense heat of the climate here, and his affairs are so intricate that they do not allow of his leaving East Florida. Encloses copy of a letter written by Governor Tonyn on his behalf.

Autograph letter signed. 2¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^rs^ Kenward S^t^ Augustine 1775.

Enclosure:—

GOVERNOR PATRICK TONYN to SIR GREGORY PAGE, Baronet.

1775, April 23.—Reminding him of his duty as a wealthy relation to render assistance to M^r^ Kenward in this his time of need and whose character and reputation are warmly referred to.

Copy in M^rs^ Kenward's hand. 2½ folio pages.

J[OHN] A[DAMS] to MRS. ABIGAIL ADAMS, Braintree.

1775, July 24. Philadelphia.—To the care of Colonel Warren, favoured by Mr. Hitchborne. The postscript of this letter is:—"I wish I had given you a complete history, from the beginning to the end of the journey, of the behaviour of my compatriots. No mortal tale could equal it. I will tell you in future, but you shall keep it a secret—the fidgets, the whims, the caprice, the vanity, the superstition, the irritability of some of us is——"

Copy. Intercepted. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from J. A. [John Adams] to Mrs Abigail Adams. Philadelphia, 24th July, 1775.

[JOHN ADAMS] to the HONOURABLE JAMES WARREN.

1775, July 24. Philadelphia.—Favoured by Mr. Hitchborne. "This letter was anonymous but written in the same hand as that to Abigail Adams."

Copy. Intercepted. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from . . . . . to the Honble James Warren Esqr at Watertown. Philadelphia, 24th July, 1775.

Note.—These two letters and that of Harrison of the 21st were published in various American newspapers. They are reprinted by Peter Force in his American Archives, Fourth Series, Vol. II., columns 1717 and 1697.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 24. Boston.—No. 35. Has received from his Lordship extracts of his correspondence with Governor Martin respecting supplies. Had already sent ammunition which it appears has never reached him, nor has the letter which accompanied it. Transmits address to the King from the Council of Massachusetts, also list of the members; notwithstanding insult and oppression they have remained loyal to Government. Informs of the death of Eliakim Hutchinson, Judge of the Inferior Court, and of Mr. Cotton, Deputy Marshal.

Copy. 2⅓ folio pages. [The originals of this and the two following letters from General Gage are in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 130, fos. 435, 455 and 467.]

Endorsed:—Copy of Letter from Hon. Lieut Genl Gage, to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated Boston 24th July 1775.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 24. Boston.—Private. Lieutenant Colonel McLean is collecting a number of Highlanders from different provinces to form his corps. Observations on the corps of Lieutenant Colonel Gorham and Brigadier Ruggles. Difficulties of the King's friends owing to the want of cash and provisions, as the officer's bills are rejected and rebel privateers intercept their supplies. Proposes measures to suppress the rebellion. Lieutenant Colonel James delivers this dispatch with a drawing of this town and position of the two armies. Transmits copies of letters passed between Burgoyne and Lee which have been printed to reveal the true state of affairs to those who are being blinded by the leaders of the rebellion.

Copy. 3¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Honble Lt Genl Gage to the Earl of Dartmouth dated Boston 24th July 1775. Private.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 24. Boston.—Separate. Congress has taken the direction of the war upon itself. Washington and Lee have joined the Rebels near Boston. All supplies withheld from the British troops and friends of Government here, even fishing. The King's ships brought some relief. State of Fort William and Mary. Arrival of troops from Ireland. Disadvantageous situation of the King's troops in Boston. Is glad of the assistance of Major Generals Howe, Clinton and Burgoyne. Remarks on pamphlet published by the Continental Congress called "The Declaration of the United Colonies." Its contents replete with deceit and falsehood.

Copy. $3\frac{1}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from the Hon^ble^ Lieut Gen^l^ Gage to the Earl of Dartmouth dated Boston 24th of July 1775. (Separate) R/4th Sept^r^ by Col. James.

MAJOR-GENERAL JOHN BURGOYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 26. Boston.—Private affairs of consequence require his presence in England. Feels himself a mere military cipher in his present post, and pleads, upon the most zealous motives, for some more active part in this great service. Submits a plan* to visit in the course of the autumn the different colonies and obtain their sentiments relative to an accommodation. Since he formed the plan a circumstance has happened which makes him think no admittance would be granted to him. "M^r^ Lee late a half pay major in the King's service, & whose character I am persuaded is well known to your Lordship, lived with me formerly upon the footing of friendship. This gentleman your Lordship will have heard has accepted from the general Congress a commission of Major General in what is called the army of the united provinces, and he is now acting in that capacity under General Washington the commander-in-chief. A few days after his arrival at the neighbouring Camp I received two letters from him one dated Philadelphia June 7th for the delay of which he blames the person charged to convey it; the other dated July 5th the day on which it came to my hands.

It was my intention to transmit to your Lordship extracts of these letters stript of all stuff which is calculated merely for the meridien of New England. But finding since that the first letter was printed & reprinted in all the American papers, & concluding that by the same pains to circulate it, it will appear in the English ones, I give you a copy entire, together with my answer which at the request of M^r^ Gage & the army has been printed likewise, tho', for my own sake I would rather have avoided that measure." His ultimate view was to try Lee in a private conference but the Provincial Congress forbade Lee meeting him Thus his scheme for the autumn fails. Presses his entreaties to return to England

Autograph letter signed. 8 quarto pages.

Endorsed on wrapper :—Gen^l^ Burgoyne.

Enclosures :—

1775, June 7. Philadelphia.—Printed pamphlet entitled "A Letter from General Lee, to General Burgoyne, printed from

---

* This plan is fully given in his letter to Lord North of 14 June—see the Marquis of Abergavenny's MSS. (52), Tenth Report, Appendix Part VI.

Enclosures—cont.

the New York Gazetteer of July 6 to which is added, General Burgoyne's Answer, and A Copy of a Letter from General Lee, declining an Interview proposed by General Burgoyne. Boston; Printed and Sold at Draper's Printing-Office, in Newbury Street MDCCLXXV."

18 octavo pages.

1775, July 5. Cambridge.—Extract of a letter from General Lee to General Burgoyne, not printed. Regrets that Carleton is persuading the Indians to fight against the Colonies. States what he considers will be the consequences of such an action, especially in the event of commercial advantages being offered to France and Spain, who would accept them. Advises him to take measures according to this information.

1½ quarto pages.

Copy of the above letter with the second enclosure.

Endorsed:—Genl Burgoyne Boston, 26 July 1776 (sic) containing Hints relative to Lee's Information & Conduct, and desiring leave to return for the Winter.

G. Colman to General Lee.

1775, July 26. London.—Has duly honoured Lee's bills, but as the bonds are still in his (Lee's) hands will be glad of a line acknowledging that they are fully discharged. Commends Garton as an agent. Laments the daily news from America and hopes he will not take an active part in the rebellion.

Copy. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—London, July 26, 1775. Copy of a Letter from G. Colman, to General Lee.

Jonathan Garton to General Charles Lee.

1775, July 27. London.—Hopes soon to be able to sell the annuity. Mr Atkinson has promised to grant the money if General Lee will draw upon him [Garton] for £3,000. Promises to honour all other bills drawn upon him.

Copy of another letter to General Lee follows, from John Evans, dated Great Russel Street 2 August, to the effect that he has accepted two bills of exchange drawn by General Lee on Mr Garton in favour of Willing Morris and Company for £200 and £300 which when due are payable at Messrs Drummonds.

Copy. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—London, July 27, 1775. Copy of a Letter from J. Garton —& London August 2, 1775. Copy of a Letter from J. Evans to General Charles Lee.

Georgia.

1775, July 27. Savannah.—Printed extract from the Minutes of the Council of Safety Georgia. Eight resolutions as to regulations of troops. Marked at the foot in Governor Sir James Wright's hand:—Received this Paper Monday the 21st of August.

1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Resolutions of Com. of Safety of Georgia, 1775. 27 July.

JAMES TILGHMAN to the RIGHT HONOURABLE LADY JULIANA PENN, Spring Garden, London.

1775, July 27. Philadelphia.—Congress is making expensive preparations for offensive and defensive operations. A large army is near Boston very eager for action and possessing many advantages over the King's forces. Condition of General Gage's army. Hopes the petition to the King will produce a parliamentary commission to some persons of weight to come over and treat with the Americans from personal knowledge of affairs. Stagnation of trade; hopes for improvement when they receive powers to grant lands.

Copy. Intercepted. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Phil^a July 27, 1775. Copy of a Letter from M^r Ja^s Tilghman to Lady Juliana Penn.

AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE.

1775, July 28.—Paper in the hand of John Robinson, Secretary of the Treasury, headed "Minutes," and containing intelligence of American affairs obtained from Captain Breen or Been of the "Mary Ann" of New York. Gives names and particulars of vessels in Cape Nicola Mole, Hispaniola, in April last that were loading with military stores bound for America. Proceedings taken by Captain Been in consequence of this discovery. Captain Been informs of preparations being made on the lakes, and Provincials getting ready for the attack of Boston in the winter over the ice. Just before he left New York on 2 June a sloop arrived there with ammunition from Holland. Details of chase after her and her escape. Captain Been's quarrel with Shiers who seized the keys of the Custom House from the Collector. Force needed at New York to support friends to Government. Captain Henderson and Captain Young are buying up arms under false pretences. Captain Been is well known to Governor Tryon. Details of the rebellious proceedings of Lieutenant D. Campbell, Lieutenant Fleming, and Whittaker.

4½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Minutes—27^th July 1775. America—

LETTER to INGHAM FOSTER [from his brother].

1775, July 29 and August 5. Philadelphia.—Transactions of Congress; Franklin and two others are appointed to conciliate the Indians by large presents, etc. Five thousand men are on their march for Ticonderoga to be under the command of General Schuyler, who will act according to the motions of the administration and the exigency of affairs here. General Gage is fortifying himself at Boston where the Americans have drawn a line of circumvallation round him, of near fourteen miles in extent. The whole continent is determined to fight for their liberties. Service allotted to the militia. Congress adjourned till 5th September next. Reasons for Congress addressing the people of Ireland. Details of a conversation between Generals Gage and Howe on the present critical state of affairs. Franklin has accepted the post of Postmaster General. (August 5.) Vessel delayed, so gives present situation of armies as gathered from letters received last night from Mifflin, Read and others dated at Cambridge Camp. Reported resignation of General Gage by a deserter, who states that it was given out he had handed over his military command to Genl. Howe and acted only as civil governor.

Copy. Intercepted. 7 folio pages.

Endorsed :—Philad^a July 29, 1775. Copy of a Letter not signed to Ingham Foster.

Lord Townshend to [Lord Dartmouth].

1775, July 29. Rainham.—Regrets to hear Skene is in danger for want of stores. Congratulates him on the success of His Majesty's troops on the 17th June. Fears General Gage has much to do to establish himself in such healthy and commanding winter quarters as may maintain bis forces in a respectable footing. "Your Lordship is the best Judge how practicable it may be to possess" Long Island, New York and some part of the province of Connecticut by embarkations from hence if such can be spared. Great reinforcements are probably moving to General Putnam. Stress of the war will lie on the Light Infantry; this kind of regiment raised more easily than any other. Captain Montressor in a letter to Lord Townshend complains of want of engineers. Reason for desiring to see Captain Holland's map was only "to gratify my curiosity as to this cursed Height above Charles Town, which I was anxious about from y^e moment I heard the Rebells seized much artillery."

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

In wrapper endorsed :—Lord Townshend, 29th July, 1775. On the subject of Artillery for America.

H. Byrd to Sir Jeffery Amherst.

1775, July 30. Westover.—Impossible now to avoid a civil war. Has met with insults and given offence because of his refusal to command the army being raised by their Convention to oppose the King's troops. The Southern Colonists have been led to believe by false accounts that they are far superior to the power of Great Britain and by artful schemes have been deluded into rebellion. Requests he may not be considered one of the American traitors as he is ready to serve His Majesty and would be glad of an opportunity to convince the Virginians of their error and bring them back to loyalty and duty. Asks that an answer to this letter may be enclosed to General Gage and thence forwarded to him by water, if no ships are sent to this colony.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed on wrapper :—M^r Byrd to S^r Jeff. Amherst.

Governor Lord William Campbell to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, July 30. Charles Town.—No. 4. Arrival of packet. "In consequence of the directions I had before given to Capt. Thornborough he secured the Mail on board the King's Ship, & that night at 12 o'Clock, I went on board with the Dep^{y} Post M. Gen^{l}, open'd my own dispatches, & have taken the best care I could of those belonging to the neighbouring Governors." Preparations to fortify the town. Encloses a "waspish" message addressed to him by the Assembly on his refusal to adjourn them. The Association has been refused by many through the influence of Colonel Fletchal. The rebels most indefatigable in their efforts; the late defection of Georgia "brought about entirely by the People here" was a matter of amazing triumph to them. Remarks thereon and desirability of recovering that unlucky stroke.

In Secretary Innes's hand, signed by Lord William Campbell. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Charles Town, 30 July 1775. L^{d} W^{m} Campbell. (N^{o} 4.) R/ 23^{d} Sept. 1775. (1 Inclosure). Ent^{d}.

Enclosure:—

1775, July 24.—Copy of a message from the South Carolina Assembly to Lord William Campbell expressing their objection to be styled the Lower House of Assembly—they prefer to be termed the General, or the Commons House of Assembly. With the Governor's reply. That he is too distressed just now to enter into disputes about mere words and that he therefore returns their message with the words they think exceptionable omitted.

In Secretary Innes's hand, marked copy. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—for Lett^{r} N^{o} 4. Message from Assembly. Governor's Reply. In L$^{d.}$ W^{m} Campbells 30 July (N^{o} 4).

James Tilghman to William Baker.

1775, July 30. Philadelphia.—Advisability of settling a temporary line of jurisdiction to the westward owing to the arbitrary and violent proceedings of Lord Dunmore's officers. Has heard that Doctor Conelly (Lord Dunmore's chief instrument) is going to England with some Indian Chiefs of the Delaware tribe who seek for a confirmation of their lands. All things seem verging towards anarchy. Congress proceedings. Ammunition is being sent in by the French, Spaniards and Dutch. Hopes the petition from Congress to the King may have a salutary effect as he believes they only object to internal taxation. Interference with private as well as public correspondence.

Copy. Intercepted. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Phil^{a} July 30, 1775. Copy of a Letter from M^{r} Ja^{s} Tilghman to W^{m} Baker Esq^{r}.

Lord Viscount Barrington to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, July 31. War Office.—Directions concerning the five regiments mentioned in the margin of his letter, to embark from Ireland for North America.

Copy. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Lord Visc^{t} Barrington to the Earl of Dartmouth dated 31 July 1775. R/ same Day.

COLONEL G. CHRISTIE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 31. Leicester Square.—Believes he could be of great service to some General in America on account of his personal knowledge of that country from long service there. Asks to be appointed Quarter Master General to the Forces in North America. Enumerates his reasons for soliciting this favour.
Letter signed. 1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Col. Christie 31 July 1775, containing his Thoughts on carrying on the War in America.

[COLONEL G. CHRISTIE] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 31.—Memorandum. "To the Papers given the 18th & 22nd Inst^{t} a few additional Remarks are humbly Suggested. Viz. :—1st. To Garrison Boston in the Winter will require no less than 6000 Men." It will probably undergo a blockade if not taken by assault. Proposes measures to be adopted with regard to removing the fleet from Boston and making a descent on New York. Ticonderoga should be recovered and preparations made for Canadian service next spring.
Not signed, but is in the same hand as the body of the foregoing letter. 2¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Memorandum 31 July 1775.

CONGRESS.

1775, July 28 and 31 etc.—Paper containing extracts from the address of Congress to the people of Ireland, 28 July; from their Resolutions, 31 July, after the debate on the Resolution of the House of Commons the 20th February; and from their Declaration of the cause of taking up arms [6 July].
3 pages.

HENRY KELLY to MESSRS. KELLY and COMPANY.

1775, July 31. Chester Town.—"In America the order of Things seems to be inverted." Owing to present disturbances he would be happy to collect all that is due at the loss of 10 per cent. The measures of Government are exceedingly unfortunate and the error of their military proceedings patent to all. Thinks the troops will vacate Boston in the fall. Cannot think that General Gage has acted with the spirit becoming a commanding officer.
Extract. 1⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Chester Town July 31, 1775. Extract of a Letter from H^{y} Kelly to Mess^{rs} Kelly & C^{o}.

EDWARD STRATFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 31. Cheltenham, Gloucestershire.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Ed. Stratford Esq^{r} 31 July, 1775, offering to raise a Reg^{t} in the Service of Gov^{t} for America, upon certain Conditions.

WILLING MORRIS & CO. to MESSRS. JOHN MOTTEUX & CO.

1775, July 31. Postscript August 3. Philadelphia.—"You'll have seen by our late Letters we could not execute the fresh Orders of any Your Foreign Correspondents." The restraining Act now prohibits them from sending produce to any foreign markets. "Our Exchange is at 150 p. c. so that if Wheat came down to their Limits of 5/ to 5/6 Nothing could be done." Both wheat and flour have fallen since the 20th. People preparing to sow another crop notwithstanding the dull prospect before them; they are cheerfully disposed to submit to their fate and are united in a determination to sacrifice all things to preserve the liberties of their country. "You will hear a great deal of what you call bad news from this country, but here it is thought differently of, and we hope will be the means of bringing about a reconciliation on honest and equitable principles."

Extract. Intercepted. 1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia July 31, 1775. Extract of a Letter from Willing Morris & Co. to John Motteux Esq^r & Co.

HENRY CRUGER to JOHN CRUGER, New York.

1775, August 2. London.—"Dear Uncle, I hope this may find you in tollerable Health & Spirits, amidst the innumerable Troubles & Afflictions that beset you." Thinks the only way to make peace would be moderation, treaty, and a little concession on the part of the colonies. The King is said to be enraged at the defiance of the Congress. All is quiet here and likely to continue so in spite of the efforts of the merchants who will be ruined by the dispute. Private messages to friends.

Copy. Intercepted. 1⅔ folio pages.

HENRY CRUGER to JOHN HARRIS CRUGER.

1775, August 2. London.—Depression of his spirits. Apologies for neglect of correspondence with lady friends. "I would not, could not do a dishonourable thing, no not to possess the World's great mass of Vanity. I repeat I have twice as much in America as I am worth. Who then in such precarious circumstances would think of Matrimony?" This country enjoys the most perfect repose and were it not for the newspapers the people would hardly know there was a civil war in America The administration are making tremendous proposals for next summer's campaign, which doubtless will be carried out unless America makes some concession.

Copy. Intercepted. 1¾ folio pages.

JOHN HARRIS CRUGER to MOSES FRANKS.

1775, August 2, preceded by a previous letter of 28 July. New York.—Has just received an imperfect account of the confusion and uproar in England in consequence of the battle of Lexington and Concord. Refers him to newspapers and the bearer of this, William Laight, for intelligence, as he can tell more than it is safe for friends to write. Both armies are now strongly entrenched and fortified and an attack from either side will be attended with sad consequences. The enthusiasm of the Americans increases.

Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio pages.

LORD DARTMOUTH to LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS GAGE.

1775, August 2. Whitehall.—No. 22. Captain Chads arrived with his dispatch of 25 June giving an account of the action on the 17th. Remarks on the importance of this battle and communicates the King's grateful thanks to officers and men for their brave conduct under such disadvantageous circumstances, especially to Generals Howe and Clinton and to Colonel Pigot. Regrets their heavy losses. Requests him to make arrangements to return to England leaving General Howe in command. Mentions six enclosures.

Copy. 4⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to the Hon^ble^ Lieu^t^ General Gage. Dated Whitehall, 2 Aug^t^ 1775. (N^o^ 22).

Enclosures:—

LORD DARTMOUTH to GOVERNOR SIR GUY CARLETON.

1775, August 2. Whitehall.—N^o^ 23. Although Ticonderoga has been lost, trusts the measures decided on will have a good effect and inspire confidence. His Majesty hopes to have an army of 20,000 men in North America next spring. Leave granted to General Gage to return to England; command of the Army in the Colonies on the Atlantic in his absence to devolve upon Howe; but if in the course of the service the two armies should be joined the command of the whole would be with Carleton as the senior officer. Money about to be sent out, with additional supply of arms &c. and presents for the Indians.

Copy. 3 folio pages. [Draft of this letter is in the Public Record Office, Colonial Correspondence, Quebec, Vol. 11, fo. 61.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Gov^r^ Carleton dated Whitehall 2^d^ Aug^t^ 1775. By the Lizard Cap^t^ Hamilton.

LORD DARTMOUTH to MAJOR GENERAL HOWE.

1775, August 2. Whitehall.—Sending commission to act as Commander in Chief of the Colonies on the Atlantic Ocean, during General Gage's absence in England, the like commission being sent to General Carleton to command the forces in Canada.

Copy. 2 folio pages. [The duplicate signed letter is in the Royal Institution, American Manuscripts, Vol. 2, No. 1.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Major Gen^l^ Howe, dated 2^d^ August 1775.

1775, August 2. St. James's.—Copy of the Commissions from the King to Major General Howe and Sir Guy Carleton.

5⅔ folio pages.

LORD DARTMOUTH to LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE.

1775, August 2. Whitehall.—No. 23. In consequence of a letter from the Secretary at War, requests him to give orders for the disembarkation and disposal of the troops mentioned in that letter.

Copy. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to the Hon^ble^ Lieu^t^ Gen^l^ Gage dated 2^d^ of August 1775. (N^o^ 23.)

LORD DARTMOUTH to LIEUTENANT-GENERAL THOMAS GAGE.

1775, August 2. Whitehall.—Acquainting him of the augmentation of various regiments and the embarkation of others for America. "The steps which you say the rebels have taken for calling in the assistance of the Indians leave no room to hesitate upon the propriety of your pursuing the same measure." Encloses a letter to Colonel Johnson on the subject. Discusses various questions and propositions with regard to the method of pursuing the war.

Copy. 6 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Separate Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to the Hon^ble^ Lieu^t^ General Gage. Dated Whitehall 2^d^ August 1775. (Separate.)

Enclosure:—

LORD DARTMOUTH to COLONEL GUY JOHNSON.

1775, July 24. Whitehall.—As intelligence has been received that the rebels have excited the Indians to assist them, there is all the more urgent need to take such steps as may induce them to engage in His Majesty's service under such plan as shall be suggested to Colonel Johnson by General Gage to whom this letter is sent accompanied with a large assortment of presents for this object. As the matter is of great importance he requests him to use the utmost diligence and activity therein, but must leave details to his judgment.

Copy. 1¾ folio pages. [Draft of this letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 279, fo. 247.]

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Colonel Guy Johnson dated Whitehall 24th July 1775.

LORD DARTMOUTH to GOVERNOR FRANCIS LEGGE.

1775, August 2. Whitehall.—No. 18. The King approves of his conduct in requiring all persons coming from the New England colonies to take the oaths of allegiance to the King before being allowed to carry on the fishery. Desires him to do the same with regard to distressed persons seeking grants of land gratuitously at his hand.

Duplicate letter signed. 1⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Earl of Dartmouth's Letter 2^d^ August 1775. No. 18. (Duplicate.)

LORD DUNMORE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 2. "Otter" Sloop of War in Elizabeth River, Virginia.—Arrival of troops from St. Augustine, also dispatches from Governor Tonyn for his Lordship, which are very important.

Extract. 1¼ folio pages. [The duplicate signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 213, fo. 459.]

J. INGERSOLL to JONATHAN INGERSOLL, New Haven.

1775, August 2. London.—Is now suffering under the most humiliating news of a defeat of the Provincials by the King's troops. Supposes defeat is owing to the King's troops being better officered and more amply furnished with every implement of destruction used in war. Is eager to hear of some success over General Gage's army that may retrieve the late disgrace. Mentions what is reported to be the King's intentions for the future. Remarks on the commercial relations between England and America. Assures him America has no auxiliaries to depend upon. Has heard with delight of the bravery of the Americans in the late action.

Copy. Intercepted. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—London, Aug^{t} 2, 1775. Copy of a Letter from J. Ingersoll to Jon^{n} Ingersoll Esq^{r}.

WILLIAM STRAHAN to BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

1775, August 2. London.—Has heard with regret of the late battle at Boston as it widens the breach and renders all hope of reconciliation more difficult and distant. A civil war has commenced in earnest. Wishes some means could be found to stop it and settle differences without shedding more blood. Requests him to do his utmost towards this end. Great preparations being made here to furnish more troops and ships to America, and he thinks that country will have a hard time in seeking to overcome the same; victory on either side will be dearly bought. Hopes the address which Congress proposes to lay before the King will be worded in proper terms and that in next October he will come over with equitable proposals and be the means of restoring peace and unanimity to British subjects everywhere.

Copy. Intercepted. 3¾ folio pages.

JOSEPH SWIFT to MESSRS. JOHN AND ROBERT BARCLAY.

1775, August 2. Philadelphia.—Hopes that the claim which America makes, when rightly understood by the people of England, will be thought reasonable upon constitutional principles and the Parliament's right to tax America be given up. Is convinced that Great Britain will be the loser by the contest. Sends an order for goods to be sent if differences are settled.

Copy. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

ROBERT WATTS to The Honourable JOHN WATTS.

1775, August 2. New York.—Addressed to the care of Mr. Moses Franks. Has been impatiently expecting to hear of his arrival, but the June packet has not yet been seen. No fresh occurrence to report in the situation or politics of the town. The contractors must themselves do all that is necessary to supply provisions and money to the eastward.

Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 3. Secretary's Office.—"Our Shop to-day has received only the usual Communication from the Post Office & a private Letter to you from Charles Town of the 10 of June." Has written to Lords Townshend and Barrington in consequence of his Lordship's commands of yesterday. Major Maxwell is mortified and disappointed, offering to give up his majority. Is going to dine with the Virginia merchants. Fears for Ingersoll's fate if the original of his letter was at hand.

Autograph letter signed. 2¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Pownall 3 Aug.—75.

WILLING MORRIS and Co. to MESSRS. ERRECARTE DEL RIO and Co.

1775, August 3. Philadelphia.—"The 'Myrtilla,' Captain Caton, is now loading pretty briskly" with flour for Corunna, to be landed and reshipped at Falmouth, and will be dispatched as soon as possible. All exports have been stopped in Virginia except tobacco, but Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York will remain open until the 10th September. The ship will be recommended to George Casker Fox at Falmouth to assist the Captain there and all necessary instructions can be sent to him.

Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page.

POST OFFICE INTERCEPTIONS.

Wrapper endorsed as follows:—"August 3^d^ 1775. From M^r^ Todd (private & most secret). ½ p^t^ 11. A.M. [and, in the King's hand] 20^m^ p^t^ 2 P.M." The following copies of intercepted letters were within this wrapper. G. Colman to General Lee 26 July; Jonathan Garton to General Lee 27 July and John Evans to General Lee 2 August; Henry Cruger to John Cruger; Henry Cruger to John H. Cruger; William Strahan to Doctor Franklin; J. Ingersoll to Jonathan Ingersoll all of 2 August 1775.

JOHN GRAY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 4. 7, Orange Street, Leicester Fields.—Offers his Lordship a pamphlet; has marked in the margin the parts that tend to make his reasoning more full and conclusive. "I have endeavoured to overturn the doctrine about Free Gifts; & from the authentic documents of history, hitherto grossly overlooked by our historians, to establish the maxim that Public Supplies are necessary duties. I flatter myself I have put the case of Wales, of Chester, & of the Netherlands, so often absurdly appealed to, in quite a new light; and also the case of Ireland, which has hitherto been the great stumbling block in the argument with the Colonies." . . . . "It has ever been my system to make the Colonies feel la puissance foudroyant of Parliament by Political acts, which would have brought them upon their knees without a single soldier; & I still think that Government can act most powerfully by that Engine. The Colonies are vainly presumptuous of their own resources, therefore it will be in the highest degree mortifying & humiliating to them to feel" that such can vanish at the command of England. Suggests that premiums be given in every county to the farmers who should sow the greatest quantity of wheat. Denies the assertion that the colonists can better afford to lose 20 men than we can, & thinks it would have a good effect if a gratification were given to every survivor of the regiment that first entered the entrenchments at Bunker's Hill. Remarks on the Declaratory Act and further refers his Lordship to his pamphlet. (This pamphlet is not now with the letter.)

Autograph letter signed. 7½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—J. Gray. Aug. 4, 1775, respecting the Settlement of our Disputes with the Colonies.

J. INGERSALL [INGERSOLL] to JARED INGERSALL.

1775, August 5. Philadelphia.—The miniature picture is still on board ship, and the trunk which contains it must undergo the examination of the Committee of Inspection before he can have it. Times have become so critical that both of them must be careful what they write.

Copy. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page.

WILLIAM KNOX to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 5. Whitehall.—"My dear Lord, Some accounts have been received of your Lordships Friends in Watling Street which shew them to be persons deserving attention. We are promised particulars Tomorrow and when they are received they will be forwarded to your Lordship by a Messenger. There appears to be an intercourse of a nature which ought to be prevented, but I see no way of doing it without a Proclamation declaring the Rebellion." The Article from Philadelphia in the newspaper herewith transmitted has been received by Mr. Blackburn and other American merchants from private correspondents and so considered authentic. He agrees with the 1st proposition thereof respecting trade with America. The only letters for Lord Dartmouth from America are from Governor Wentworth at Fort William.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Knox. 5 Aug. —75.

The REVEREND ROBERT BOUCHER NICKOLLS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 5. London.—Relates his distresses and losses in America during the rebellion, on account of his loyalty. Would be glad of some appointment in Ireland.

Autograph letter signed. 3¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—The Rev^{d} M^{r} Nickolls 5 Aug. 1775 soliciting some Provision in the Church.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 5. Caroline Park.—Laments the loss of Abercrombie as he was a gallant good officer and a zealous steady friend. Denounces the conduct of the rebels and justifies that of Britain towards them. Future prospects very gloomy but justice authorises and necessity requires present measures. Suggests that if officers were not distinguished by their dress, some of their lives might be spared. Is glad to hear the Canadians are in motion, hopes they will be engaged as regulars in the King's service. Considers Lord Dunmore can ill be spared from his province just now. Would much like a visit from him [Lord Dartmouth].

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed(with another) :—S^r^ Ad. Oughton Aug. 5 & 24, 1775.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 5. Whitehall.—Considers Ingersoll's letter and that of Lee's correspondent deserve attention; thinks the original of the former should be detained and the latter narrowly watched. "The Lodgers at the Hotel in Watling Street have been watched & pumped by a discreet & proper person employed by Lord Rochford, they prove to be as stated in the Letter you left with me, ffrench officers from the West Indies, by the way of North America; they do not conceal that they have been in Putnam's Camp, but they speak of him and his troops in a most despicable Light, and say that but for their advice they would have made an Attempt that would have ruined them. If this be true I don't think we are much obliged to the Gentlemen. They further say that there is at least 200 able Officers & Engineers of all countrys now here endeavouring to get passages to North America. A few days ago the Society at the Hotel was increased by the addition of a french officer from France, who got out of his Chaise at Westminster Bridge took a Hackney Coach, and went both to the Spanish and ffrench Embassadours—in a few days we shall probably know more and be able to judge what is fit to be done." M^r^ Pownall thinks a Proclamation for suppressing the Rebellion ought to be issued soon.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Pownall 5 Aug—75.

WILLIAM PIERIE, 1st Lieutenant Royal Regiment of Artillery, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 5. No. 4, Little Titchfield Street, Cavendish Square, London.—Considers from long experience and acquaintance with America he could be of good service there. His plans, drawings and mode of operations of and for that country have been seen and approved of by Colonel Phillips, his talents are known to Lord Townshend and General Harvey and he is no stranger to Generals Gage and Howe. Has written a similar letter to Lord North.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Lieut^t^ Pierie 5 Aug. 1775, desiring to serve as an Engineer in America.

GEORGE BRYAN to HUGH WILLIAMSON, M.D.

1775, August 6. Philadelphia.—M^{r} Cox is returned from the Temple having left London on the 8th June but brought no intelligence from there. General Gage and his brother officers muster about 7000 men. Most of the wounded at Bunker's Hill have since died from sickness owing to want of suitable provisions. No attempt being made to break through their blockaders round Boston. Preparations made by their foes to prevent the Regulars taking any neighbouring island. Proceedings of both parties in Canada. A sloop of war the "Nautilus" is at Newcastle but the Captain needs help before he dare provoke hostilities. A good supply of gunpowder has arrived, and more is expected. Reported differences between General Gage, the Admiral and other officers.

Copy. Intercepted. 2¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Philadelphia, Aug^{t} 6, 1775. Copy of a Letter from George Bryan to D^{r} Hugh Williamson.

STEPHEN CERONIO to MESSRS. MARSH REEVE and Co.

1775, August 6. Philadelphia.—The restraining Act of Parliament took place on the 20th of last July and now they can only ship to England, Ireland and the West Indies until the 10th September next, when Congress will totally stop such exportation. Wishes for a solid and undisturbed peace. An excellent harvest gathered in, but regrets Britain cannot share it.

Copy. Intercepted. ¾ folio page.

J. G. to THOMAS CHARLES WILLIAMS.

1775, August 6. New York.—Addressed to the care of Mess^{rs} Williams Teb and Williams, London. The spirit of liberty is spreading, even the Germans have caught it. Philadelphia is perfecting in the military art and life and property are freely sacrificed. The only hope of reconciliation is from the strong disposition on Britain's part to heal the differences. No account from England since 1 June. Abraham Van Vleek has imprudently been concerned in shipping provisions to Nantucket contrary to the recommendation of Congress; he has published a most humiliating handbill and offered to give sloop and cargo to the poor to pass himself unmolested. Implores him to write nothing he would not like all the world to read.

Extract. Intercepted. 1⅓ folio pages.

IS. FOSTER to MAJOR ROBERT ROGERS.

1775, August 8. Clifford's Inn.—Communication between Carver and M^{r} Whitworth, the former expects to be appointed Superintendent of Indian affairs through the interest of the latter. Advises him to be careful in his letters to Whitworth, Carver and Dacosta for some things look suspicious in their affairs. Has tried to obtain from Atherton Captain Abbot's address but without success. "Whenever Atherton mentions your name it is with the greatest Disrespect & contempt." Carver and Dacosta have finished a new plan of Boston at the request of Whitworth. If any doubt exists of going upon the intended expedition, begs to be recommended to Mr Mitchell, Secretary of the East India Company, for an employment in that service.

Copy. Intercepted. 1¾ folio pages.

In wrapper marked "Secret from Mr T——d [Todd]."

WILLIAM MOLLESON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 10. America Square.—"This day, for the first time, I received a Letter from a Member of the Congress,":—This letter is written cautiously but gives assurances that something will be offered by Congress to bring about peace and harmony between the two countries and in the meantime prevent the further effusion of blood. Is unacquainted with the nature of these proposals but hopes they will be such as Britain can accept.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Wm Molleson Esqr 10 Aug. —75.

JOHN MOORE to MESSRS. DAVIS STRACHAN AND CO.

1775, August 10. New York —"I must be so candid, Gentlemen, as to tell you that this Bill of £400 inclosed is nearly my All." The miserable situation of the country compels him to commit to their hands as a place of safety this little pittance for further exigencies, as it is the means of support for a family which may soon be helpless.

Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page.

CHRISTOPHER STARBUCK AND CO. to GEORGE HAYLEY.

1775, August 10. Nantucket.—Recommends William Vassal as a man of honour and integrity and well acquainted with all public affairs in this country as well as the distressed state of this island.

Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

R. GORDON to [ ].

1775, August 12. Corke.—From intercourse with people from America and letters received from others, gives what he considers the exact state of affairs in that country, particularly at Boston on the 14th July, adding details of Bunker's Hill and the movements of both armies since that action, also why the troops are in need of provisions.

Copy. 4¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Gordon, Corke, 12 Augst 1775. Intelligence from America.

CAPTAIN E. LE CRAS to MR. LE CRAS, Merchant, London.

1775, August 13. Boston.—Is in a great hurry having received orders to go to Halifax to stop his leaks. Laments the deplorable state of affairs. Fears the rebels are beforehand with them in military preparations. Sickness and famine reducing their army; he personally is better off, and will take care to lay in a stock at Halifax in case of emergency. The rebels have many privateers at sea and have taken a Government schooner the "Diligent." Considers it will be hard work to conquer them by military force, suggests it could be easier done by leaving them to themselves and cutting off their trade from every place.

Extract. Intercepted. 2½ folio pages.

A. PEPPERRELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 13. Boston.—Doubts not he has received dispatches acquainting of the unhappy situation of General Gage and his army shut up in Boston, and surrounded by 20,000 rebels who are devastating with fire and sword the lives and property of all who oppose their measures. Sir William's property and his own have both been seized by them and devoted to their own use. It is believed that the town cannot be held much longer without more troops, as the army is much reduced by sickness. His personal discomfort from want of suitable food in the long and fatiguing passage of ten weeks without vegetables.
Autograph letter signed. 5 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A. Pepperell Esq^{r} 13 Augst 1775.

WALTER BARRELL to JOSEPH GREEN.

1775, August 14. Boston.—Addressed to the care of Messrs. Champion, Dickason and Company, Merchants in London. Has been in a very disagreeable state of frequent alarms in the night since his last. Relates some of the foolish proceedings of the rebels, especially in regard to setting fire to the Light-house. Has taken measures to preserve Green's house from destruction. Refers to two letters from John Adams to J. Warren and Mrs. Adams showing the desire of the Americans to be independent. Considering the uncertainty of war and the enthusiasm of the rebels, he questions whether Great Britain will overcome them either now or at all.
Extract. Intercepted. 2½ folio pages.

MARYLAND.

1775, July 26 to August 14.—Proceedings "At a meeting of the Delegates appointed by the several counties of the province of Maryland, at the city of Annapolis, on Wednesday the 26th of July 1775, and continued till the 14th day of August, in the same year.
Printed. 3½ large pages.

Endorsed:—Maryland Association 1775.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 15. Whitehall.—Has not yet heard anything more of Mr. Penn or of the petition he is said to bring. Is anxious to see this petition as he is much worried about the proclamation which he wished postponed till his Lordship's return to town, but Lord North desired to see the draft thereof to send to the Attorney and Solicitor General for revision, so sent it to Mr. Robinson who to-day returns it with the enclosed note. Intends giving the note and proclamation to Lord Suffolk to-morrow and proposing that publication thereof should be deferred until Mr. Penn's petition has been seen.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Pownall 15 Aug. —75.

Enclosure:—

The Attorney General [EDWARD THURLOW] to JOHN ROBINSON.

[1775, August 13]. Sunday morning.—Agrees with the measure proposed in the proclamation and sees no objection to its publication.

Copy. 1 quarto page.

TIMOTHY NEWMARCH to GOVERNOR TRAPAUD.

1775, August 17. St.' John's near Montreal.—They are now employed in fortifying this place, it is the Key of Canada, the enemy sometimes comes near them, but he does not think they will have sufficient courage to attack them. They (he and others) are building two schooners and a row galley, and when these are completed there will be an expedition up the Lake.

Extract. Intercepted. ⅓ folio page.

R. ROSS to ROBERT WOODGATE, Golden Square.

1775, August 17. Camp on the Heights of Charles Town.—Hopes the vacancies which have happened both in America and at home will entitle him to full pay as a Captain. Thinks England will never settle the war by pursuing the present measures, but by withdrawing her troops and stopping trade they (the Americans) might be reduced to reason and be glad to accept any terms offered them.

Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio pages.

T. WALKER to LIEUTENANT BEAZLEY, Dover.

1775, August 17. "Somerset" at Boston.—The English army is so reduced by sickness that it is unable to force and penetrate into the country where the enemy is well fortified in great numbers. Is glad of the opportunity of going to Halifax as much suffering is experienced at Boston from starvation and neglect. States the consequences he fears will result from present measures, and remarks on the disposition of the Americans.

Extract. Intercepted. 2¼ folio pages.

GOVERNOR LORD WILLIAM CAMPBELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 19, Charles Town.—No. 5. "We are now in such a situation I cannot attempt to send duplicates of my last letters, as I must be under the necessity of letting this Mail take its chance in a defenceless Packet Boat, for I cannot in our present State send the poor solitary, worm eaten Sloop we have got here, out of the Harbour, as I may now expect the next packet every day, & I am still in hopes of hearing from Gen^l Gage, and the Admiral soon. Your Lordship will I am afraid imagine I dwell too much, & too warmly on the wretched state we are left in here, but my zeal for the King's Service my thorough conviction of the ill consequences that has attended the total neglect of this Province, as well as Georgia, & N. Carolina, will not suffer me to remain silent. Since my arrival here, I have seen Georgia a Province at present, of the last consequence to the W. India Islands, warp'd from its duty by a very insignificant internal faction, aided by the people in this Province. The friends of Goverment here have been so sunk, so abandon'd to despair, for some time, that it is hardly possible to make them believe the British Nation is determined to assert their just rights over the Colonies, & it is to very little purpose I mention the great force to the Northward, when it is not in my power to produce a single line from either of the Commanders in that part of America, to enable me to contradict the numberless falsehoods which are every day propagated, & which does more mischief than I can express. This is a very disagreable subject for me to dwell on, but my Duty requires I should represent the true state of this Province, and of my unfortunate Vicinage of N. Carolina, & Georgia, which is equally neglected, equally abandon'd. Your Lordship will I am sure excuse my warmth when I acquaint you, that yesterday under colour of Law, they hanged & burned, an unfortunate wretch, a Free Negroe of considerable property, one of the most valuable, & useful men in his way, in the Province, on suspicion of instigating an Insurrection, for which I am convinced there was not the least ground. I could not save him My Lord! the very reflection Harrows my Soul! I have only the comfort to think I left no means untried to preserve him. They have now dipt their hands in Blood, God Almighty knows where it will end, but I am determined to remain till the last extremity in hopes to promote the King's Service, 'tho my familys being here, adds nct a little to my distress. Another Act of Barbarity, tho happily not of so tragical a Nature was committed a few days ago, on a poor man the Gunner of Fort Johnson, who for expressing his Loyalty was tarr'd, & feather'd 10 or 12 times, in different parts of the Town, & otherwise treated with great cruelty, stopping him at the doors of those Crown Officers who were most obnoxious; & the Mob so grossly insulted M^r^ Milligen in particular who is Surgeon to the Forts, & Garrisons in this Province, that he was under a necessity of taking refuge on board the King's Ship till the Packet Boat sails. I intend committing this Packet to the care of M^r^ Milligen who I hope will have the honor of delivering it to Your Lordship. I beg leave to introduce him as a most honourable, worthy man, who has lived many years in this Province beloved, and respected by all ranks, till his Zeal for the King's service in these unhappy times, made him obnoxious to the Mob. This Gentleman is perfectly acquainted with the state of the Province, & I can assure Your Lordship you may put entire confidence in his Honor & Veracity. I enclose with this a Letter I rec^d^ from Coll. Fletchal with my answer: sorry am I to find myself unable to protect, or assist the King's Loyal Subjects here, it is a cruel mortification. I also send my answer to an Address from a society of Quakers, in the back part of the Country; they consist of about 300 family's, & are warmly attached to Goverment. Your Lordship will likewise receive a Copy of an Oath tender'd to all those who refused to sign the Association, my own private Secretary not excepted, & a message I sent to the Assembly some days ago, with their answer, all which will plainly convince Your Lordship on what ticklish Ground we stand here. The Armed Vessel that was fitted out from this Port has seized a quantity of powder, part of it the property of His Maj^y^ on board a Ship lying off Augustine Bar in E. Florida, & carried it to Beaufort in this Province. Last sunday 30 of the Militia of this Town were sent to convey it here, & I am told that by one means or other, they have amass'd great quantities of warlike stores, ammunition particularly, which they can easily do, as there is no force by Sea, or Land to prevent them, & they allow Rice to be exported on no other terms, but paying in Arms, & Ammunition. The new raised Troops which are quarter'd in the Barracks may be near 800 consisting of Vagabonds & Thieves of all Countries, & the Charles Town Militia may be pretty near the same number. The Reg^{t} of Horse was to be raised in the back Country; but I am told the levies there have been much check'd by Fletchal, Robinson, & one Cunningham, mention'd by Coll. Fletchal in his letter, who is a very active man, & remarkably spirited. M^{r} Milligan will give Your Lordship a very particular account of these matters that have fallen within his knowledge, as he is sensible, and intelligent. As the fate of the Crown Officers is not determined by the Comm^{e}, if M^{r} Innes is forced from me, which I will endeavor by all means to prevent, he has offer'd at any risk, to endeavor an escape into the back Country, join Co^{l} Fletchal & endeavor to maintain his ground at Fort Charlotte, in concert with M^{r} Cameron the Dep^{y} Superintendent, but I will not now think of that Scheme. I have the Honor to be with the most perfect Regard, My Lord Your Lordship's most Obliged & most Obed^{t} H^{ble} Serv^{t} William Campbell.

"N.B.—I shall encourage the King's faithful Subjects as much as is in my power I can do no more. Some expence may be incurr'd by my Orders to Coll. Fletchal, I have no power to do it, but I cannot hesitate at such a juncture."

In the hand of Secretary Innes, signed by Lord William Campbell. 4 large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Charles Town. S^{o} Carolina 19th August 1775, Lord Will^{m} Campbell, (N^{o} 5). R/ 30th Sept^{r}. By M^{r} Milligen. (6 Inclosures.) Ent^{d}.

Enclosures:—

COLONEL THOMAS FLETCHALL to LORD WILLIAM CAMPBELL.

1775, July 19. Ninety-six District, Fairferest.—Per Major Joseph Robinson. Assures him of the loyalty of about 4,000 in that district. Seizure of stores at Fort Charlotte by James Mason, John Caldwell and others on behalf of Congress. Subsequent capture of these men and said stores by some of the King's troops. Desirability of protecting the frontiers from incursions of the enemy and Indians.

Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—[by Secretary Innes] for Letter N^{o} 5, N^{o} 1—Coll. Fletchal's Letter. [And, in another hand] (1) In Lord W^{m} Campbell's of 19th August 1775.

LORD WILLIAM CAMPBELL to COLONEL THOMAS FLETCHALL.

1775, August 1. Charles Town.—Sends thanks to those who recaptured the stores and rebels at Fort Charlotte. Authorises him to fortify that place by his own and Colonel Neale's regiments. Regrets he cannot send further support. Desires M^{r} Cameron Deputy Superintendent to assist him. Implores him to avoid giving offence and to do his utmost to preserve peace in his district.

Copy in Innes's hand. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—[by Secretary Innes] for Letter N^{o} 5 N^{o} 2. Governor's Answer to Coll. Fletchal's Letter. [And, in another hand] In Ld Wm Campbell's of 19*th August* 1775.

Enclosures—cont.

Lord William Campbell to the Quakers in the back country.

Answer to an address. Is pleased to receive assurances of their loyalty which he will represent to the King and endeavour to preserve to them their privileges.

Copy in the hand of Secretary Innes. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—[by Secretary Innes, for Lettr No 5 No 3.—Governors Answer to a Address sent from the Quakers in the back Country. [And, in another hand] In Lord Wm Campbell's of 19*th August* 1775.

Lord William Campbell to the Commons House of Assembly, South Carolina.

1775, August 15. Charles Town.—Message. Has been the spectator of outrages he little expected to have seen in this place. Refers to the Association and oath offered to officers of the Crown for signature. Deplores the cruelties practised in the town. Asks for their assistance in preserving order and enforcing the laws to ensure safety to property and lives.

In Secretary Innes's hand. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—[by Secretary Innes] for Lettr No 5. No 5.—Governor's Message to the Assembly. [And, in another hand] In Lord Wm Campbell's of 19*th August* 1775.

South Carolina.

1775, August 15.—Copy of the Oath tendered to those persons who have not signed the Association.

In Secretary Innes's hand. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—[by Secretary Innes] for Lettr No 5. No 4. Oath tender'd to those who had refused to sign the Association. [And, in another hand] In Lord Wm Campbell's of 19*th August* 1775.

Commons House of Assembly. Answer to the Governor.

1775, August 18.—Signed by Rawlins Lowndes, Speaker. Justifying the inhabitants of the colony for the measures taken to preserve their liberties in consequence of the oppression of the Ministry. They confess that the circumstances of last Saturday of which his Excellency so pathetically complains, amounted to an outrage but consider the punishment to the offender was not more severe than that often inflicted by the English on petty offenders. Will endeavour to promote his Lordship's personal safety.

Original. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—for Letter No 5. No 6 Assembly's Ansr to the Governor's Message. [And, in another hand] In Lord Wm Campbell's of 19*th August* 1775.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS GAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 19. Boston.—Would be glad if circumstances would permit of Colonel Grant's speedy return to Great Britain. Recommends the bearer Mr. Sewall, Attorney General of this Province, who has given him much assistance since his arrival here.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Gen. Gage, Aug. 19th 1775, rec. Mr Sewall.

JO. IRVING to SIR GEORGE COLLIER.

1775, August 20. "Somerset" at Boston.—"This Town still remains block'd up by Fifty Thousand Rebels who have fortifyed every Emminence near this Town, & for twenty Miles round it." "The Rebels in forty Whale Boats with 500 Men have burnt Cape Ann Light House as also Boston Light House, where they took a Party of 30 Marines and killed their officer . . . . Captain Linsey of the Falcon has miscarried in two Skirmishes," the one at Dartmouth near Rhode Island, the other at Cape Ann. Is in hopes of being ordered home though at present the ship is under orders to sail for Halifax. Privations of the troops; ten transports arrived with provisions. List of ships left at Boston. Advantages that would accrue to the English if they could possess Rhode Island Harbour and the town of Providence.

Copy. Intercepted. 3⅔ folio pages.

— GRAVES* to THOMAS GRAVES at Thaneke, near Plymouth.

1775, August 21. "Preston."—"I take this opportunity of writing to you by a Transport which carries home Mrs. Gage." Regrets to state that he fears the two commands do not draw together as well as is desirable for the sake of the service. Thinks his uncle pays too much attention to a parcel of sycophants, who are constantly about him; "Old Hartwell" and Le Cras have too much ear of him. His uncle is also in disrepute with the army. There has been a disagreeable affair between the Admiral and Mr. Halowell, Commissioner of Customs, which was tried by court-martial, the sentence being "An error in judgment for disobedience of orders and neglect of duty."

Copy. Intercepted. 1⅔ folio pages.

---

* The "Preston" had as 1st and 2nd lieutenants at this time Samuel and John Graves.

CHEVALIER DE MAROLLES DE LUCÉ to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 21. Paris.—Desiring to go to America.

Autograph letter signed. 1 large folio page. French.

Endorsed:—M. de Marolles de Lucie, Paris 21 Augst 1775. Soliciting a Commission in the British Artillery.

RICHARD PENN and [ARTHUR] LEE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 21. No. 2, Garden Court, Middle Temple.—Enclose copy of "an humble and earnest petition" from the Congress to the King. Propose to wait on his Lordship on Wednesday next with the original for his Lordship to present to His Majesty.

Original in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Penn & M^r^ Lee 21^st^ August 1775. With Petition from the Congress.

Enclosure:—

CONGRESS to the KING.

Petition. Representing that the union between the mother country and the colonies has been broken by a system of statutes and regulations made by His Majesty's ministers and enforced by hostile measures, and beseeching him to interpose with his royal authority and influence to procure them relief from that system and to direct some mode by which the applications of his faithful colonists may be improved into a happy and permanent reconciliation.

Copy. 7¼ quarto pages. [The original signed petition, delivered to Lord Dartmouth on the 1st September, is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 279, fo. 251.]

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 21.—Affairs in America appear to be as bad as possible. Has received a report of the defeat of the rebels on 14 July, but the enclosed copy of a letter from Corke seems to refute the intelligence. No news yet of Mr. Penn or his petition.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Pownall 21 Aug. 1775.

FRANCIS STUART to THOMAS CHEAP, Bedford Row.

1775, August 21. Quebec.—The evil influence over the Canadians of some villains here disaffected to Government. Need of re-inforcement of troops and of examples to be made of those who oppose Government. A Highland Volunteer Regiment is being raised to serve during the present disturbances. Fifteen hundred Indians are anxious to go down upon the Bostonian Rebels, but are forbidden. Considers the Americans deserve no clemency as they are more savage than the Indians. Wishes lenient measures had never been adopted towards them.

Extract. Intercepted. 2¼ folio pages.

DAVID BARCLAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, 8th mo: (August) 23d. Youngsbury, near Ware.—From a persuasion that Lord Dartmouth will not think it impertinent, is induced to intimate various opinions concerning the reception of the petition and the consequences that will result therefrom. He has received information on good authority that the Petition from the Congress was carried through by those who are heartily and most zealously inclined for conciliation, and every expression which could be considered exceptionable was studiously avoided. Others think it too humiliating. It is feared that if it meets with the same reception as former applications for redress, the effects will be to inflame the minds of those who yet remain moderate and make the breach irreparable. "They say, they have been told from high Authority, that if their Assemblies would petition separately, all their real Grievances should be redressed; but they say also, that from Authority nearly equal, they have been inform'd their Cause is prejudged, by calling their Greivances pretended & not real. They think from the Reception of the New York Memorial there is no disposition, on this Side, for Reconciliation, & if my Information is well grounded, which I have reason to believe it is, Nothing can exceed their Firmness and Unanimity; nor any thing be more affecting than the present Prospect." Dr. Smith's sermon shews the temper of the times and that it is not Dissenters only who are warm in the cause. Nothing but an anxious concern for the re-establishment of peace and tranquillity would have induced him to trouble Lord Dartmouth.

Autograph letter signed. 2¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Barclay, 23^d^ of August, 1775. On the Petition from the Congress and American Affairs.

AMERICAN ANECDOTES.

1775, August 23.—Nine remarks showing his sentiments on the American war. What ought to have been done and what can yet be done to subdue the rebellion. "Copies of this may be taken and used as accords the Author requests that the Original be shewen to no person whoever"

Original. Signed J. M. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—American Anecdotes. Aug^st^ 1775.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 23.—"My Lord, I know of nothing at present, but this hitherto invisible Petition, that can or ought to prevent you in any plan you may wish to pursue." Has heard that this petition is in the hands of Messrs. Burke, Lee and Bollan to whom the Congress consigned it, so expects his Lordship will be required in London in a day or two. Sends another draft of the proclamation showing the alterations it has undergone; it is supposed to pass the Council today. Transmits two letters for his signing.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Pownall 23 Aug. —75.

GAVIN COCHRANE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 24. Duke's Court, St. Martin's Lane.—"My Lord, Dining yesterday at A friends, there happened to be there a half pay Officer who had lately come from America; he had been prisoner with the Rebels At Crown Point, had made his escape And got to Canada, from whence he came home." This officer's name is Lieutenant Grant of the 42^{d} Regiment and he will introduce him to his Lordship if desired.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Cochrane 24 Aug. 1775, with Information of the Rebels' Proceedings at Lake Champlain.

LORD DARTMOUTH to RICHARD PENN and ARTHUR LEE.

1775, August 24. S^{l}.*—Has just received by post their note of the 21st instant which would have been sent to him by express if it had been known at his office that they had any commands for him. Will return to London in a day or two, and will not fail to inform them of his arrival.

Autograph, rough draft. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Copy of a note to M^{r} Penn & M^{r} Lee, Sand^{ll} 24 Aug. 1775.

* Sandwell, his Lordship's seat near Birmingham.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 24. Caroline Park.—"Am heartily glad that the Eyes of People begin to be open'd, and their Spirits roused. Nothing but the most wilfull and obstinate Blindness can prevent their seeing that the two Actions near Boston were the consequences of a long premeditated, regular, and well laid Plan; nor need any General, whom I have the Honour of knowing, be ashamed either of the Dispositions for Battle, or Blockade of the Town; which appear to me Masterly. Those who believe them to be the result of chance or hasty Resolutions are capable of believing anything. We hear much talk of conciliatory Proposals from the Congress, and Suspensions of Arms. The one must be fallacious, the other pernicious to the last degree: the Purport of both to gain time. The Congress I see have assumed the Republican Title; and, I doubt not, are pretty far advanced in their Plan of Government; the Winter may ripen it into a consistancy not easily to be dissolved. Their Army want to get in their Harvist, sow their Grounds, and prepare for the next campaign. Treating with Rebels, while they have Arms in their Hands, would demonstrate a Weakness in Government which no Victory could compensate for. If they are sincere let them lay down their Arms, and implore Pardon: if they refuse to do that they mean to deceive; and, though they may pretend to disclaim Independancy, they assume it in the strongest Manner, if they expect to treat upon equal Terms with a Sovereign against whom they are in actual Rebellion and a Nation whose Power and Authority they absolutely disclaim. No Terms which do not establish their Independance will be adhered to longer than suits their present necessities; and we shall find them much more formidable when we are next obliged to enter the Lists with them. At present we have it in our Power to reduce them by dint of Distress, and nothing else will make them submit."

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

LORD TOWNSHEND to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 24. Rainham.—A Norwich manufacturer has refused an order for a large exportation of goods to Norfolk, Virginia, as he was too busy with demands from Germany. Capture by the Americans of a ship from London laden with stores. "Our" ordnance ship has put into Portsmouth where it is hoped she has escaped the storm and found convoy.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Townshend 24 Aug. 1775, relative to a large Demand of Manufactures for Exportation from Norwich.

THOMAS JEFFERSON to [   ].

1775, August 25. Monticello.—" Dear Sir, I received your message by mr. Braxton & immediately gave him an order on the Treasurer for the money, which the Treasurer assured me should be answered on his return. I now send the bearer for the violin & such musick appurtaining to her as may be of no use to the young ladies. I believe you had no case to her, if so, be so good as to direct Watt Lenox to get from Prentis's some bags or other coarse woollen to wrap her in, & then to pack her securely in a wooden box.

I am sorry the situation of our country should render it not eligible to you to remain longer in it. I hope the returning wisdom of Great Britain will e'er long put an end to this unnatural contest. there may be people to whose tempers & dispositions Contention may be pleasing, & who may therefore wish a continuance of confusion, but to me it is of all states, but one, the most horrid my first wish is a restoration of our just rights; my second a return of the happy period when, consistently with duty, I may withdraw myself totally from the public stage & pass the rest of my days in domestic ease & tranquillity, banishing every desire of afterwards ever hearing what passes in the world, perhaps ardour for the latter may add considerably to the warmth of the former wish. looking with fondness towards a reconciliation with Great Britain, I cannot help hoping you may be able to contribute towards expediting this good work. I think it must be evident to yourself that the ministry have been deceived by their officers on this side the water who (for what purposes I cannot tell) have constantly represented the American opposition as that of a small faction; in which the body of the people took little part. this you can inform them of your own knolege to be untrue. they have taken it into their heads too that we are cowards & shall surrender at discretion to an armed force. the past & future operations of the war must confirm & undeceive them on that head. I wish they were thoroughly & minutely acquainted with every circumstance relative to America as it exists in truth. I am persuaded this would go far towards disposing them to reconciliation. even those in parliament who are called friends to America seem to know nothing of our real determinations. I observe they pronounced in the last parliament that the Congress of 1774 did not mean to insist vigorously on the terms they held out, but kept something in reserve to give up; & in fact that they would give up everything but the article of taxation. now the truth is far from this, as I can affirm, & put my honor to the assertion; & their continuance in this error may perhaps have very ill consequences. the Congress stated the lowest terms they thought possible to be accepted in order to convince the world they were not unreasonable. they gave up the monopoly & regulation of trade, & all the acts of parliament prior to 1764, leaving to British generosity to render these at some future time as easy to America as the interest of Britain would admit, but this was before blood was spilt. I cannot affirm, but have reason to think, these terms would not now be accepted. I wish no false sense of honor, no ignorance of our real intentions, no vain hope that partial concessions of right will be accepted may induce the ministry to trifle with accomodation till it shall be put even out of our own power ever to accomodate. if indeed Great Britain, disjoined from her colonies, be a match for the most potent nations of Europe with the colonies thrown into their scale, they may go on securely. but if they are not assured of this, it would be certainly unwise, by trying the event of another campaign, to risque our accepting a foreign aid which perhaps may not be obtainable but on a condition of everlasting avulsion from Great Britain. this would be thought a hard condition to those who still wish for reunion with their parent country. I am sincerely one of those, & would rather be in dependance on Great Britain, properly limited, than on any nation upon earth, or than on no nation. but I am one of those too who rather than submit to the right of legislating for us assumed by the British parliament, & which late experience has shewn they will so cruelly exercise, would lend my hand to sink the whole island in the ocean.

If undeceiving the minister as to matters of fact may change his dispositions, it will perhaps be in your power by assisting to do this, to render service to the whole empire, at the most critical time certainly that it has ever seen. whether Britain shall continue the head of the greatest empire on earth, or shall return to her original station in the political scale of Europe depends perhaps on the resolutions of the succeeding winter. god send they may be wise & salutary for us all!

I shall be glad to hear from you as often as you may be disposed to think of things here. you may be at liberty I expect to communicate some things consistently with your honor & the duties you will owe to a protecting nation. such a communication among individuals may be mutually beneficial to the contending parties. on this or any future occasion if I affirm to you any facts, your knolege of me will enable you to decide on their credibility; if I hazard opinions on the dispositions of men, or other speculative points, you can only know they are my opinions. My best wishes for your felicity attend you wherever you go, & believe me to be assuredly Your friend & serv^{t}.

P.S. my collection of classics & of books of parliamentary learning particularly is not so complete as I could wish. as you are going to the land of literature & of books you may be willing to dispose of some of yours here & replace them there in better editions. I should be willing to treat on this head with any body you may think proper to empower for that purpose."

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages. [Reproduced in B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Note.—Thomas Jefferson, as delegate from Virginia, had taken his seat in Congress on the 21st June previous. In the following year he was one of the committee who drew up the Declaration of Independence. Minister at Paris, 1784; President of the United States, 1801.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775. August 25. Caroline Park.—Sees with regret the obstinacy with which the Bostonians persist in refusing obedience to the British Legislature but sees at the same time the absolute necessity for persevering in those judicious measures which have been adopted to bring them to a sense of their duty. The smallest relaxation would now be fatal. Their spirits are kept up at present by their factious leaders and preachers, by the seditious papers and hopes of a change of measures "which our Opposition here flatters them with at the opening of a new Parliament. That they not only aspire at Independency, but flatter themselves with the Hopes of a Separate Sovereignty, has been long known, nor have they scrupled to avoid it. . . It is to our interest to nip those hopes in the bud; sensible men however fond of the idea must see the Absurdity of it, and that their Utopian State can never exist but in the interior wilds of that vast continent, while Britain is Master of the Fleet." Returns thanks for his interposition with Lord North "in behalf of our Chapple"; had mentioned in a former letter that the sum required for purchasing a pew in perpetuity and filling it up properly was £200; encloses receipt for whatever his L^dp^ may be so good as to bestow.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^r^ Adolphus Oughton 12 Aug. 1774 (sic). Sentiments on America &c.

PAUL WENTWORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 25. Poland Street.—He has authentic information that the adherents of Breakenridge and Hawley were actors in the seizure of Ticonderoga &c. He holds such conduct in detestation and though he was disposed to solicit their relief from the oppressive New York government he can no longer take any measures for their protection and wishes to withdraw all papers sent to the Board on their behalf.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Wentworth 25th August, 1775, respecting the People on the Back of N. Hampshire assisting the Rebels in the Seizure of Ticonderago.

WILLIAM TONGUE.

1775, August 29. No. 49 Prescott Street, Goodmansfields, London. —Memorial. That in the year 1759 the subscriber left England for New York, with a considerable cargo of merchandize. Recounts the losses he sustained in the opposition to the Stamp Act, and his different movements. Is author of "the Times delineated" said to be annexed [not here]. Necessity for his quitting the province to avoid being embroiled in the rebellion. His arrival at Georgia. Note received from the "Friends of America" there requesting his departure in seven days. Desires employment in the service of Government.

Original, signed. 3 pages.

Endorsed:—W^m^ Tongue's Memorial, R/ 29th August 1775, (with 3 Inclosures).

Enclosure:—

1775, June 7, 10 and 11. Savannah in Georgia.—Paper containing depositions and information dated 7 June against Joseph Habersham and others "The Friends of America in Georgia" for ordering Mess^rs^ Tongue, Law, White and Gumersall to quit the province in seven days or abide by the consequences. There is a copy of a Warrant issued by Anthony Stokes, Chief Justice 10 June against the said Habersham, and a request by William Tongue to waive the prosecution. To the whole is given a signed and sealed certificate by the Chief Justice dated 11 June.

Certified copies. 13½ pages.

Endorsed:—With M^r^ Tongue's Memorial of 29*^th^ August* 1775. (3) d^r^

Lieutenant D'Auvergne to Captain Phipps.

1775, August 30. "Asia." New York.—"Captain Wallace who commands at Rhode Island has detected some Letters from the Congress to General Washington and others." These letters show that Congress is aiming at total Independence from Great Britain and John Adams asks for assistance in certain measures to be undertaken by him in establishing a new Government. Express received from Boston where all was then quiet.

Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page.

Mrs. Wilkins to her husband Isaac Wilkins.

1775, August 30. Castle Hill.—"Colonel Lewis Morris is gone to the Ohio with Doctor Franklin & some other gentlemen of the Congress to try if they cannot prevail with the Indians to stand neuter in this unhappy dispute; he came to see me before he went & to assure me he was not the Author of the Humbug that drove you to England, as it is said he was."

Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

Governor Lord William Campbell to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, August 31. Charlestown.—Abstract of his letter No. 6. The situation and disposition of the province of S. Carolina.

4 folio pages. [The original signed letter with enclosures is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 229, fo. 445.]

Enclosures :—

1775, August 17. Charles Town.—Report of the Judges and Attorney General of South Carolina—Thomas Knox Gordon, Edward Savage, William Gregory, and James Simpson—on the case of Jerry, a free negro, under sentence of death. Addressed to Governor Lord William Campbell.

Copy. 3¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Report of the Judges in the Case of Jerry, a free Negro, condemned in So. Carolina, In Lord W^m^ Campbell's (N^o^ 6) of 31*^st^ August* 1775.

1775, June 16. South Carolina, Charles Town District.—Evidence given upon the trial of Jerry before John Coram, Justice of the Peace. This Jerry was executed on the charge of instigating an insurrection amongst the slaves.

Copy. 1¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Copy of the Evidence given upon the Trial of Jerry (a free Negro) and referred to in the Report of the Judges & Atty. Genl. In Lord W^m^ Campbell's (N^o^ 6) of 31*^st^ August* 1775.

JOHN EWING to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 31. No. 25, Ludgate Street.—Rejoices in the interest taken by His Majesty in the arts and sciences, especially astronomy. Suggests that astronomical observations could be more effectually and speedily accomplished by another Observatory at Philadelphia.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Rev. M^r^ Ewing 31 Aug. 1775.

[GOVERNOR FRANCIS LEGGE] to LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS GAGE.

1775, August 31. Halifax.—

Two copies not signed. 3¾ and 4 folio pages respectively. [The autograph signed letter is amongst the MSS. of Lord Dartmouth already reported upon. Eleventh Report, Appendix, Part V, p. 385.]

GOVERNOR JOSIAH MARTIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 31. "Cruizer" Sloop of War in Cape Fear River, North Carolina.—Private. Introducing the bearer Mr. Robert Hogg, a merchant of first consideration in the colony who has been compelled by popular clamour exercised towards him on account of his loyalty to leave the country. Recommends him as well fitted to represent to his Lordship the true state of this colony.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed :—Gov^r^ Martin, Aug 31, 1775, recom. M^r^ Hogg.

PROCLAMATION.

N. D. [1775, August.]—George III. Draft of Proclamation for suppressing Rebellion and Sedition.

2¾ folio pages.

Endorsed :—D^ft^ of Proclamation.

INFORMATION obtained from two FRENCH OFFICERS.

[1775, August.]—Paper not signed, dated nor addressed. Endorsed "Intelligence." "What I have been able to collect from the two French Officers by employing every art and all the Address I am Master of, amounts to what follows :—

" 1st. That they have been over great part of the American Continent, particularly at Philadelphia, at New York, Rhode Island, and New England, which with their stay in and about Boston, would have required more time to perform than the three Months they say they remained in America.

" 2d. That they are particularly acquainted with Putnam and Ward. —the first they represent to be a good natured Civil and brave old Soldier—but a head strong, ignorant and stupid General—Ward they hold indeed very cheap.

" That they were both in person at the Affair of Lexington, and from circumstances they cited, I am induced to think that they were present at the Affair of the 17th.

" 4. That they were courted by the Rebels to stay amongst them, and were offered forty Pounds ꝑ Month each, of pay—they say they did not think such Offers solid, nor did they like the paper Currency.

" 5. That there are at least 200 french amongst the Troops of the Rebels, who acted as Artillerists and Engineers, which numbers may be augmented since they came away.

" 6. That the Rebel Officers in general are perfectly ignorant of their business, and they esteem them men of very moderate, or rather mean parts,—but the private men are well trained to the handling of Arms, and remarkably well armed, particularly in the Articles of Firelocks and Bayonets.

" 7. That they saw the Fortifications on the Posts of Roxbury and Cambridge and also the Park of Artillery the Rebels have in the neighbourhood of the last place consisting of Canons, Mortars and Howitzers, concerning the quality of which they do not agree—Le Comte de Beauvouloir says,—they are equal in quality and Bore to those employed in Europe, and he only found them defective in the Article of the Carriages, which he said are of a bad Construction.—his friend the Engineer (whom I heard called Le Chev^{r} d'Ambroise) held the Artillery rather cheap in general, but perticularly the Mortars which are small.—they both agreed that the Rebels were in want of Ammunition, particularly of powder, and insinuated that they might be greatly distressed by being Canonaded from Posts well chosen and properly fortified.

" 8. That during their stay in America, Seven french Ships, masked under English Colours came into different ports with Ammunition &c. and that these Ships would have risked an Engagement rather than Submit to be visited by a small Ship of War, had they beeu met by one.

" 9. That the Americans expected French and Spanish Officers and Engineers, also Powder &c. to be carried over from time to time in small numbers and small quantities, not only by Ships directly from England & our West Indies, but by French and Spanish Ships from their Islands, such Ships to appear to be American property, and to be manned chiefly with American Sailors, that the European Courts may not be detected, should such Ships be taken.

" 10. That the common people in America have been worked up to a pitch of enthusiastick phrensy that is beyond conception, and such was their Confidence (when they came away) that they were convinced His Majesty's Troops would be entirely defeated, and driven on board the Ships in less than two Months, and indeed the Rebel Chiefs employed every Art to keep up their Spirit and enforce such Ideas, some of which they themselves were witness to, such as making their own people put on English Regimentals and come into the Camp in the Character of Officers and Soldiers deserting from His Majesty's Troops, and one Man personated a Member of Parliament.—but that the Chiefs begun to despond, and to reflect on the Consequences of their Rebellion, which in time might drive them to call in foreign Succours, which is the situation France and Spain look out for.

"11. Lastly, that it appears to them both, the Americans had no settled, regular, well digested plan, that there exists among their Chiefs more Jealousy than unanimity: that many of the Settlers, and mostly all the Commercial people of Substance, begun to be tired of the present situation, and that they (the two french Officers) thought it probable Government would fall on Methods to disunite them, which if employed with success, would necessarily facilitate a reconciliation.

"By stimulating the pride of Monsieur Le Comte de Beauvouloir in the moment that some Vin de Champagne produced the desired effect on his prudence, he told me that he had had two Audiences of Le Comte de Guines; that his Excellency had made him great offers of Service and had asked him twice to dinner, which for particular Reasons he had not profited of, but that his Brother (the Gentleman who lost his trunk and who returned to France on Saterday) dined with the Ambassador on Thursday, which prevented his dining with me, and being of the party to Greenwich. My Opinion is that the two french Officers are at this Instant in the Service of the Rebel Americans, and are paid by them; that they came over either with proposals to the Courts of France and Spain, or some other Commission in the American Interests, and that they intend to return to their Employers by means of some English Ship. They hinted to me that they were not alone of their kind in London. They mentioned a Spanish Officer in the Sea Service, who speaks English very well, and who Lodges at Lime House, and as we passed the Frigates and Transport Ships fitting out at Deptford, they told me they were intended for America, and appeared well informed of every particular relative to the affairs of America."

4⅔ folio pages. [The original of this, marked "Rec^{d} 6th August" is in the Public Record Office, America and West Indies, Vol. 670, fo. 35.]

LIEUTENANT COLONEL THOMAS JAMES.

N. D. [1775, August.]—Paper headed "Lieutenant Colonel James's Observations upon the present State of Affairs at Boston, and the absolute necessity of sending out immediately Troops, Ships of War, Sailors &ca. &ca. &ca. as undermentioned." "To bring this Rebellion to a happy Issue, the British Army must consist of 30,000 Effective Men, at least."

Not signed. 7½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Col. James's Propositions for reducing the Rebels.

[GOVERNOR LEGGE] to [ ].

N. D. [1775, August].—Letter not signed nor addressed, but in Gov. Legge's hand, beginning "Sir Your letter of the 3^{d} Instant is now before me, and I observe the Steps you have taken, on an Apprehension, that the parts around Windsor were in danger, from the Rebels at Machious." Commends caution in real danger but warns him against false alarms which are spread to disturb His Majesty's subjects. Militia will be ready for defence and he will do all in his power for the protection and safety of every good subject.

1 quarto page.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to SIR STANIER PORTEN.

1775, September 2. Whitehall.—"Having received repeated Information, that a traitorous Correspondence is suspected to be carried on with the Rebels in North America, by Letters conveyed thither in American Ships clearing out in Ballast from the different ports in this Kingdom" he sends a list of ships and suspected persons. Three letters which he also encloses were brought to him last night by the brother of Dorrett whose name is mentioned in the Information, and which he told him had been left at Princes Street Coffee House since the examination of Mrs. Leslie. The originals have been returned to Dorrett with directions to watch the person who may come to the Coffee House for them.

Draft. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed :—Drat to Sir Stanier Porten. 2d September 1775./. (seperate).

Wrapper endorsed :—2d Septr 1775. Drats (secret Intelligence) ½ pt M [and, in the King's hand] $\frac{m}{5}$ pt 4 P.M.

Enclosures :—

List of Ships and suspected persons on board destined for America. The list of ships begins with the "Neptune" Captain Collins, Philadelphia, the others are the "Fame," "Beaufort," and "Robert," and the names of suspected persons are Edward Searle, Major Wrixon, Captain Devereux, Captain Crawford and three foreigners supposed to be officers and Germans. These men are known to be disaffected to the Government and suspected of dangerous designs and are probably the bearers of letters.

M.S. Probably Copy. ⅔ folio page.

Minutes of Information given by Mr Taitt. "Mr Taitt, an eminent Upholsterer in New Street Hanover Square, called this Morning, August 30th*, upon Mr Pownall, and acquainted him, that a Friend of his (Mr Taitt's) had revealed to him a very extraordinary Circumstance of publick Intelligence." Alex. Dorrett is acquainted with Mrs Leslie of a Coffee House Leicester Fields who knew the Pretender and states that he is in Engld and that she has had an interview with him. Information respecting letters at her house. Account of interview held with Dorrett and Mrs Leslie at Lord Dartmouth's office on* 31 August.

10 folio pages.

1775, August 8.—Letter signed T. W. addressed to C. W. J. at Princes Street Coffee House, Princes Street, Leicester Fields.

Enclosures—cont.

As yet they have had no foreign letters but hope by the conveyance of their Friend in Milford Haven they will receive proper Instructions. The movements of His Highness are known only to M^rs Leslie.

Copy. Intercepted. 1⅓ folio pages.

Letter from Simon Dalton to C. W. J. "Sir I shall be glad to know your Orders as to what comes from Milford Haven." Hamilton wrote that Brown will have all ready in five Days. Hopes that things will be as faithfully obeyed in the other quarter as they are in this. Desires him to ask His Highness the particulars of their orders.

Copy. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

1775, August 18.—Letter from N. B. to M^r Statuvell (qy. Hatwell) to the care of M^rs Leslie. "Dear Friend I received yours and I make no doubt of the Widows punctuality, its only your fears that makes you apprehend the Seal being cracked is only your anxiety." Is now at the D. of N's who assures him the money is at a moment's warning and if his Highness had received the intelligence once of the landing at Milford Haven, the day will be their own. Has received a letter from D. of Q. and proposes her taking a house in the country. All is going on according to their wishes and she states "that George looks very sour mouthed especially at his regiments."

Copy. Intercepted. 1⅓ folio pages.

LORD DARTMOUTH to SIR STANIER PORTEN.

1775, September 2. Whitehall.—Since his separate letters of this morning, he has again seen Dorrett, who says Mrs. Leslie has told him that the person who calls for letters left in her care has carried them to a coffee house or hotel somewhere near Bow Church.

Draft. ¾ page.

RICHARD FORD and COMPANY to WALTER FRANKLIN, New York.

1775, September 2. London.—" We are sorry to see your Americans go from one state of Madness to another." They are taking great pains to destroy themselves, for such must result from their present conduct. The partner of their firm has been appointed British Consul at Baña. Notwithstanding the restrictions laid upon their commerce, any ship dispatched from New York to Falmouth for orders may proceed afterwards with her cargo to any European port.

Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page. In a wrapper marked—Secret from M^r T—d [Todd].

PRINCE DE MASSERANO to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 2. Great George Street.—Thanks him for a copy of orders sent to the Governor of West Florida respecting the Indians settled on Spanish territories. Will inform his court of his Lordship's endeavours to preserve harmony between the subjects of the two nations.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page. French. [A copy of this letter is in the archives at Alcalá de Henáres.]

Endorsed:—Le Prince de Masserano 2 Sep. 1775.

The Reverend George Panton to the Reverend Doctor Chandler.

1775, September 2. Trenton.—The people in general are beginning to think more seriously of the probable consequence of the dispute, but there is no relaxation in military preparations and the same unanimity prevails. He supposes England knows that the country is entirely out of her hands, and that no civil officer can exert any power unless directed by Congress.

Extract. Intercepted. ¾ folio page. [This, with other intercepted letters in this month, was found in a wrapper marked—Communications from Mr Todd Oct. 11.]

P[aul] W[entworth] to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, September 2. Saturday.

Autograph letter not signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr P. W—th Sepr 1775, proposing that the Lands West of Connecticut River may be declared extra-provincial. Ex.

Moses Franks to John Harris Cruger.

1775, September 4. Teddington.—Is uncertain how long communication will be allowed them. Has noted well his letter of 5 July on business in general, yet finds remittances come from Philadelphia, Virginia and even Boston, so hopes New York will not stand alone in forbearance. "What has private Faith, Credit, and confidential Trust to do with the publick Disagreement?" Asks him to apply this thought to someone whose name he will not mention as he knows all letters are opened. Private affairs. Has recently seen Mr. Penn with the petition from Congress.

Copy. Intercepted. 1½ folio pages. [This, with the following and several other intercepted letters in this month, was found in a wrapper marked—Secret from Mr T—d.]

Moses Franks to the Honourable Oliver de Lancey, New York.

1775, September 4. Teddington.—"I wish I could tell you anything agreable from this Side relative to the unhappy Differences between this Country and yours." Fears little more is left than a communication of good wishes as no proclamation can impede such or offence be taken from them. Government regrets "that there ever existed Spirits discordant enough to seek importance in confusion."

Extract. Intercepted. ⅔ folio page.

A. PEPPERRELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 4. Portsmouth.—Gives an account of the examination to which he was subjected on his arrival at Portsmouth and he is now confined in the town till matters are more settled. Disturbed state of the country, especially at Boston and Portsmouth. Could live peaceably here if he acted as deceitfully as some others do. Desires some appointment.

Autograph letter signed. 8 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A. Pepperell Esq^r 4 Sep^r 1775.

J. ROBERTSON to ISAAC WILKINS.

1775, September 4. Wt. Chester.—"My Friend S—y spent the Afternoon with me last Saturday, but seemed plaguily down in the Mouth." He fears lest the Provincial troops should make a conquest of all Canada where General Carleton is but weak in numbers. General Montgomery is gone from Ticonderoga with 2,400 men to attack St. Johns and is to be re-inforced with others. Schuyler is at Ticonderoga and two battalions of York soldiers have gone up commanded by Major Ritzmore and Major Zedwitz.

Extract. Intercepted. ¾ folio page.

[ ] to the REVEREND DOCTOR MYLES COOPER or to ISAAC WILKINS.

1775, September 4.—The writer wishes he were with them in England. Persecution of the Tories in America. Has heard that the Lord Mayor of London had obliged the King to declare that no more troops should be sent there, wishes none had been sent unless with a better commander. Presbyterians in New York petitioned for a charter and G——r has favoured their request. Seabury does not write, as it would be prejudicial to him if it were known he kept up correspondence with such Tories. Has advised him to follow Auch——-y's (Auchmuty's) example. Fears if some severe check is not soon given, officers of the Crown and friends of Government will be seized as hostages and afterwards either accommodation with Great Britain be settled or Independency proclaimed. Would like to know what they can expect from England so as personally to act accordingly.

Copy. Intercepted. 4⅔ folio pages.

GILBERT BARKLY to WILLIAM STRAHAN.

1775, September 5. Philadelphia.—"The Situation of Affairs in this Country is in the same inflamed manner it has been for some time past." The King's troops continue at Boston and the Provincials are strongly encamped near. It is expected they will keep on the defensive in hopes of some success attending the last petition to the King. Is well acquainted with many of the provincial members of the Congress and has assisted in composing the petition and if commissioners are appointed to settle differences hopes to be of further service. Asks that the enclosed may be forwarded to Grey Cooper.

Copy. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 5.—Signifying the King's approval of the orders contained in the draft of a letter to General Howe. Lieutenant-Colonel James who delivered a dispatch from General Gage, left Boston on 30 July when the Rebels were collecting their whole force and he thinks they mean an attack on Boston, which the Generals were preparing to prevent. "Disease has I find long prevailed in our Camp and desertion the Consequence of despair had begun to take place." Apologises for opening the private letter from General Burgoyne.
Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Pownall, Sept. 1775, relative to Dispatches rec^d from Boston, &c.

JOSHUA STEELE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 5. Margaret Street, Cavendish Square.—The enclosed plan has long been the subject of his thoughts as he foresaw the tempest. Had sounded some of the American Agents on the practicability of such a mode of Government eleven years ago and believes it would still be received with cordial sincerity. Assures his Lordship he is no less actuated by the Amor Patriæ, than by the concern he is under for his West Indian property which suffers from loss of the American markets.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Steele, 5^th Sept. 1775. With a Speculation for a new Constitution.

Enclosure:—

Plan for a new Constitution for America. In Steele's hand. Believes the present differences have arisen from the various constructions put upon the word Constitution. Traces its meaning from their history, and views it in various positions and at different periods. Propositions for the future government of America.
8 quarto pages.

WALTER and THOMAS BUCHANAN and CO. to GEORGE and JOHN BUCHANAN, Glasgow.

1775, September 6. New York.—The Snow "Peggy" is not arrived. They are informed she has goods for Georgia but expect she will not be allowed to land them as that state has come into the association of the rest of the provinces. Dreadful consequences will ensue if conciliatory measures are not soon agreed upon. Earnest wishes for a speedy reconciliation.
Extract. Intercepted. ¾ folio page.

T. B. CHANDLER to the REVEREND MR. INGLIS, New York.

1775, September 6. London.—No prospect of change of measures here. Stocks in a flourishing state and manufacturers fully employed. The newspapers abound with the most indecent reflexions upon Government and the grossest misrepresentations of facts. Shows how both sides have been deceived by false accounts. Thinks, now that things are better understood, it is time to negotiate. If no accommodation is made, more vigorous measures will be taken to reduce the Colonies as he has been assured that fifty millions of money can be raised to carry on the war if necessary.

Extract. Intercepted. 2¼ folio pages.

JOHN COXE to JAMES BOGLE FRENCH, Swithins Lane, London.

1775, September 6. Philadelphia.—This port will be shut up on the 10th of this month and the merchants are preparing to leave the harbour. The people are in good spirits and soldiers to a man, they are taking precautions to save the city, which is difficult to be got at, and will soon be out of the reach of a British Navy.
Copy. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

WILLIAM DONALDSON to PETER N. B. LIVINGSTON, New York.

1775, September 6. London.—He fears, by their having red wax over the black wafer, that his letters of 23 June have been opened ere they reached him. Is concerned at the present critical and alarming situation. Private intercourse is rendered precarious by such conduct as above and a proclamation which has lately been issued here.
Extract. Intercepted. ¾ folio page.

JACOB FRANKS to MOSES LEVY, Newport, Rhode Island.

1775, September 6. London.—The circumstances of the times and the late proclamation forbid his sending money to America; will therefore keep it for Levy's disposal unless he desires to put it into hands less scrupulous.
Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

ALEXANDER GILLON to EDWARD VAN HARTHALS.

1775, September 6. New York.—The Continental Congress which was to meet again yesterday will doubtless continue their spirited opposition tho' ready to accept any tolerable proposals. Wishes peace and prosperity might again be restored then England will feel the benefits of American trade. Sets out for Philadelphia to-morrow and hopes to go to Carolina the 15th of next month.
Extract. Intercepted. ¾ folio page. [This and the three foregoing were originally within wrappers marked as having been received from Mr Todd, Secretary to the Post Office.]

VICE-ADMIRAL GRAVES to PHILIP STEPHENS.

1775, September 6. Boston.—"Lieut. Grant's Letters contain very long Accounts of the People of Georgia's Proceedings in sending Delegates to the Congress, tumultuously assembling in the Cause of Liberty, threatening those who do not join them, and even vowing to destroy the St. John Schooner. But we are so accustomed to this Language and Treatment, that I will not trouble you with the relation of what Mr. Grant experienced at Savannah."
Extract. ½ folio page. [The signed letter is in the Public Record Office, series Admirals Despatches, North America, Vol. 6.]

WILLIAM STRAHAN to DOCTOR BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

1775, September 6. London.—Regrets to hear matters are thought to have gone too far for an accommodation and that things tend towards a separation. Consequences of such to America. Considers she will suffer more in a few years of contest than the amount of all the taxes the British Parliament would have imposed on her for a century. Has read the last petition to the King; it appears to be written in loose terms and after he (Franklin) was convinced that words and arguments were of no use. Thinks America has more reason to dread being enslaved by some of her own citizens than by the British Senate and that the contest will greatly endanger these very liberties they have taken up arms to defend.

Extract. Intercepted. (From M^r^ Todd.) 1½ folio pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 6. New York.—Private. Introduces Captain Foy, representing his persecution by the malignity of the times. Estimated strength of Provincials at Ticonderoga and reported future movements. Five hundred Indians have been at Albany to receive the presents sent them by the Continental Congress, it is thought they will preserve a neutrality. Guy Johnson forced to flee to Canada and Franklin rumoured as successor. Colonel Lewis Morris is gone to Pittsburgh to engage the Indians there. The enclosed letter he received from a person of credit, and has "communicated the contents to Governor Franklin and principal crown officers, which has embarrassed many in their resolutions."

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Gov^r^ Tryon 6 Sept^r^ 1775.

Enclosure :—

1775, August 22. Rhode Island.—Copy of a letter addressed to Governor Tryon. "You have doubtless heard ere now that the Continental Congress have agreed to secure all the Crown officers and friends to Government." These are to be held as hostages for the redemption of such of the Provincial officers as may be taken by the King's troops. Refers him to Captain Montagu for corroboration of this statement. A Council of War at the Camp have decided to seize his Excellency. The Provincial Generals and officers insist on these measures before engaging in a general battle. Preparations being made to attack Boston on the first intelligence of Britain's determination to continue the war. The temper of the times forbids saying more as he is chosen to convoy the needful to General Gage and this is the first intelligence received from camp for five weeks. A letter enclosed by Hugh Wallace to his kinsman Captain Wallace would find him.

2 quarto pages.

T—— S—— to The Hon. HENRY WHIT [qy. White].

1775, September 6. New York.—Proceedings taken by the Governor in consequence of Captain Vandeput's firing on the town. Accounts from the camp report all quiet there; both armies are strongly entrenched. The General is much distressed for provisions; the "King Fisher" has been at the Hook and taken two vessels bound to the West Indies which she sent to Boston. A sloop came down the river last week and sold her cargo to the Captain of a transport. This also has gone to Boston. The sloop was watched, pursued and burnt. Other persons who have furnished provisions to the army and navy have been taken and are now in close confinement in the jail of the city. The Governor has satisfied Congress respecting their suspicions of his correspondence with the General.

Copy. Intercepted. (From M^r^ Todd.) 3 folio pages.

J. WATTS, JUNIOR, to JOHN WATTS.

1775, September 6. New York.—"The two Armies at Cambridge are still within their Entrenchments." The American army is 20,000 strong and has encroached upon Gage's by taking possession of Plough Hill. Carleton is strongly entrenched with Regulars, Canadians and Indians at St. John's and busily engaged in building boats on the Lake. The Provincials have embarked there with the intention of destroying them. A Congress of Indians has been held at Albany, he believes, to recommend neutrality to them, which Colonel Johnson had all along desired.

Extract. Intercepted. (From M^r^ Todd.) 1 folio page.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL GEORGE CHRISTIE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 7. Leicester Square.—Asks to be made Commandant over a fresh battalion to be added to the 66th or Royal American Regiment intended for service in the West Indies. Will be ready for any service, in North America or elsewhere; has been thirty-one years an officer and is a very old Lieutenant Colonel.

Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^t^ Col^l^ Christie 7 Sep^r^ 1775.

Le CHEVALIER DE MAROLLES DE LUCÉ to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 7. Paris.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page. French.

Endorsed:—M. de Marolles de Lucie, 7 Sept. 1775, praying an Appointment in the Artillery employed in America.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

[1775], September 7. Thursday night.—Pressure of business in connection with the Secretary of States office and Board of Trade. Has transferred to Sir S. Porten all the information concerning Mrs. Leslie Remarks on Lieutenant Colonel James's intelligence of American affairs and his memorial. Sends private letter from Hey and confidential communication from General Harvey also copies and extracts of intercepted letters. Transmits for his signing a dispatch to General Howe on the subject of their expectations from Russia. A ship sails in five days for Providence.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

THOMAS WHARTON to SAMUEL WHARTON.

1775, September 8. Philadelphia.—The expedition mentioned in a previous letter abandoned as General Gage frustrated the scheme. Schuyler is penetrating Canada to seize stores there, taking 7 or 8,000 men with him, about 1,400 of whom were sent from Washington's army. Believes many Canadians and Indians are ready to join the Rebels. Powder arrived at Rhode Island from the French West Indies. The designs of No. 4 are clear and he evidently aims at independence. The letters from John Adams and others printed in the newspapers were intercepted by Gage. Hopes something will happen to prevent the independence so much desired by some but dreaded by others. To-morrow the ports are all closed. Encloses newspaper and plan of Boston.

Extract. Intercepted. $2\frac{2}{3}$ folio pages.

(In a wrapper endorsed—from Mr Todd (private) Ex [and, in pencil, in the King's hand] $\frac{m}{10}$ pt 6 P.M.)

COLONEL GEORGE MERCER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 9. Curzon Street.—His present distresses from not being re-imbursed the £1,100 paid out of his own pocket when employed as stamp distributor for Virginia.

Autograph letter signed. 6 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Col. Mercer, 9th Sept. 1775, representing his necessitous Circumstances, &c.

AN OFFICER in the EAST INDIA COMPANY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 9. London.—"The inclosed which I send for your perusal came to my hands by a mere Accident." Believes it sprang from an Association held recently at a tavern in or near Leicester Fields. A number of these bills have been circulated; fears evil consequences may result therefrom. Withholds his name from this letter as the most disinterested actions are liable to misconstruction.

$1\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed:—An Officer 1775—inclosing an inflammatory Publication.

Enclosure:—

Printed paper headed "Sidney's Exhortation, In a candid Appeal to every true Lover of God, his Country, and Himself." "Men and Britons, Friends and Countrymen, In Matters of the utmost importance, we are bound to use the greatest Caution, etc." Strong denunciations against Government for their repeated refusals to redress the American grievances. The author is personally resolved never to become a slave to such arbitrary measures and will not resign his liberty unless with his life.

1 page.

CHARLES SIMPSON, Town Clerk, to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 9. Lichfield.—The inclosed letter, directed to the Mayor of Lichfield, having been delivered by the postmaster to Mr. William Cotton, on being opened by him was found to contain proposals inconsistent with allegiance; so forwards it to his Lordship assuring him that every member of this "incorporation" is united in the warmest zeal for the honour and support of His Majesty, and will contribute by all possible means to suppress the present rebellion.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Town Clerk of Litchfield 9th Sep. 1775, inclosing Joel's Letter of Association, with the Disapprobation of the Corporation of Litchfield.

Enclosure :—

THOMAS JOEL to the MAYOR OF LICHFIELD.

1775, September 4. London.—" The present awful and calamitous situation of Great Britain and its Colonies cannot but alarm and grieve every true Friend to Liberty and his Country." In consequence of the present arbitrary administration many sincere friends to Liberty have formed an association for the honour of the King, the preservation of religion, the revival of trade etc. Asks for his co-operation in this matter.
Printed, with autograph signature. 1 folio page. With seal (broken) on wrapper.

CAPTAIN GEORGE VANDEPUT to SIR GEORGE VANDEPUT, Baronet.

1775, September 9. "Asia," New York.—Complains of neglect shown him in the present disagreeable situation. Gives details of an assault made by the mob to take away some cannon that were mounted upon a Battery near the River. "I was advised of their Intention, the night was very dark, and I ordered a Boat to lie near the Battery to make a Signal to me, in case they perceived them putting their Design in Execution; about Twelve the Signal was made & the Boat was immediately fired upon by a great many People from the Walls; on which in course I fired from the Ship, one man was killed in the Boat, & as I hear, there were three wounded on Shore, but none killed. They however got the guns off, indeed there was no difficulty in doing it, ... they had not more than forty or fifty yards to remove them to be out of the way of our Shot." This affair has stopped all communication with the town and more violence is expected. No improvement likely, from the indecision of Government. Wishes troops had never been sent as it has caused the whole colonies to unite. Georgia has sent delegates to Congress.
Copy. Intercepted. (From Mr Todd.) 3 folio pages.

JOHN WILSON to DOCTOR JAMES HUTCHINSON at Messrs. Barclay's.

1775, September 9. Philadelphia.—Recounting the preparations being carried on for the security of the city.
Extract. Intercepted. (From Mr Todd.) 1 folio page.

SERGEANT JOHN OSBALDESTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 10. Blackburn.—The enclosed was brought to him by the post some little while past. He cannot conceive from whom it has come. Has served His Majesty for five years as a sergeant in Colonel Haldimand's regiment and cannot think of forming such associations as are therein stated.

Letter signed. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—Serjt Osbaldeston. Blackburn 10th Sept. 1775, inclosing a printed Letter from Joel, Secretary of the Association.

Enclosure:—

1775, August 28. London.—Printed leaf, the same as that sent to the Mayor of Lichfield. See above under 9 September.

JAMES PERRY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 10. Wolverhampton.—Wishes English merchants could put an end to the unhappy disturbances in America but while contending parties distress and ruin trade and commerce such is impossible. Predicts ruin to the trade of both countries unless peace is soon restored. From personal acquaintance with America for thirty years believes there are many steady friends to Government who if a few causes of complaint were removed would return to allegiance. Thinks there is a path which may be pursued to bring about an honourable and lasting peace with America.
Autograph letter signed. 3⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Perry Wolverhampt 10 Sepr 1775.

SIR STANIER PORTEN to JOHN POWNALL.

1775, September 10. St. James's, Sunday afternoon.—Lord Rochford wishes the enclosed to be sent to Lord Dartmouth when occasion offers.
Autograph letter in the third person. ⅔ quarto page.

Enclosure:—

LORD ROCHFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 10. Sunday. St. James's.—Private. Sends extract of a letter he has received from General Burgoyne.
In Sir S. Porten's hand, in the third person. 3 lines.

Endorsed:—Ld Rochford Lett. fr. Gen. Burgoyne.

Enclosure:—

[GENERAL BURGOYNE] to the EARL OF ROCHFORD.

1775, July 26. Boston.—Private. "I am much afraid it will require a good deal more activity than we have yet shown to prevent famine in the Town, if not in the Army, when Winter approaches." Observations on Gage's inclination to evacuate Boston and its harbour and make himself master of New York for the winter. Advantages of the latter over the former, but the execution of the measure would demand great foresight, secrecy and other management, especially to protect the persons and property of the loyal inhabitants of Massachusetts. Personally he should like to possess both places if re-inforcements destined for America will admit of such. Certainly that army will need provisions to be sent from Britain as such cannot be obtained here. Commends the troops for their zeal and bravery under present hardships.

Enclosures—cont.

In Sir S. Porten's hand. 3¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter to the Earl of Rochford dated Boston 26 July 1775.

FRANCIS STUART to THOMAS CHEAP, Bedford Row, Bloomsbury.

1775, September 10. St. John's.—Has been at this place about a week under the command of Major Preston. Is busy at fortifications and when vessels are ready they are going up the Lakes in order to destroy the ships the Rebels have there. Cannot attempt to retake Crown Point and Ticonderoga for want of men to garrison them. Has the Light Infantry so is certain of being employed. Some of his men are prisoners with the rebels having been surprized with Capt. De La Place at Ticonderoga. Gives an account of an attack by the rebels whom they repulsed but are promised revenge later on. This place of the utmost consequence, being the key to Canada. With re-inforcements they do not fear another encounter.

Extract. Intercepted. 1¾ folio pages.

CHIEF JUSTICE WILLIAM HEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 11, continued on 17, 18 and 21. Quebec.—Is in an agony of mind not to be expressed. Fears this whole province will soon be in the hands of the enemy as there is nothing to oppose them but the works at St. John's and 500 men. Canadians will not help and Indians have given up for want of support. Carleton has only a small force with him, but they will sooner die than surrender. Sad state of the country for want of troops. Canadians and Indians have joined the rebels. 18 Sept. "A courier is just arrived with copies of some Circular Letters sent from the Rebels to the parishes on the south shore nearest their camp ordering them to furnish 50 men each armed with provisions for 4 days at their own expense on pain of military execution." This procedure has alarmed the Canadians. Thinks, if a respectable body of men could be got together and 500 were to march to St. John's, the rebels would break up and return to Ticonderoga, and, if not assisted by the Canadians, would abandon their design till the spring. Personal danger.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Ch. Just. Hey Quebec 21 Sept^{r} 1775.

J. INGERSOLL to JARED INGERSOLL, Inner Temple.

1775, September 11. Philadelphia.—Fears their communications will be decreased from the Maritime Regulations of Parliament on the one hand and the American Congress on the other, added to which letters are intercepted. Advises him to be prudent in his political conversation.

Copy. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 12. Caroline Park.—Considers it is fortunate that the defection in America has broken out at a time when England can exert her full force to suppress it. Recommends vigorous measures. Rejoices to see the Proclamation. The people of Glasgow are in high spirits, and several ships have arrived from Virginia laden with tobacco. The Commissioners of the Customs have ordered their officers to clear out no ships with more than the ordinary complement of seamen aboard, which will prevent the rebels getting any more recruits from this country.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^r^ Ad^s^ Oughton 12 Sept^r^ 1775.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 12. Tuesday night ½ past 11.—Urgency of public business demands his (Dartmouth's) return to town. The Board of Trade has had to consider the numerous applications made for leave to export gunpowder, arms and ammunition to all parts of the world.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Pownall. Sept 12. 1775. An Account of Office Business.

LORD D[ARTMOUTH] to [CHARLES SIMPSON].

1775, September 13.—In reply to his of the 9th instant. Thanks for expressions of loyalty and affection from the "incorporation" of Lichfield which shall be duly laid before the King.

Autograph draft signed D. 1½ pages note.

O. HULME to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 13. Charterhouse Square.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Hulme 13 Sept. 1775 respecting Reconciliation with the Colonies.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 13. Wednesday evening.—"My Cares of this day began with being awaked by an Express from Liverpoole." Respecting the enclosed papers and two other addresses from Manchester and Leicester. Despatches received by the mail give intelligence of the Rebels' designs upon Canada.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Liverpool.

Enclosures:—

FRANCIS GILDART, Town Clerk, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

September 11. Liverpool.—Desiring him to present the enclosed address from the Mayor, Common Council and Corporation of Liverpool to the King, at the earliest opportunity.

Copy. ¾ folio page.

Enclosures—cont.

1775, September 11.—Copy of the address to the King.
2¼ folio pages.

The King to John Pownall.

1775, September 13. 26 minutes past 6 P.M. Queen's House.—"Mr Pownall, An answer ought to be wrote to Mr Gildart acquainting him with my having very graciously received this mark of Duty and loyalty from the Corporation of Liverpool.
Autograph. 4 lines.

John Pownall to Francis Gildart.

1775, September 15. Whitehall.—Acknowledges the receipt of address from Mayor &c. of Liverpool and states that the same has been very graciously received by the King.
Copy. 1 folio page.

James Lorimer to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, September 15. Edinburgh.—He is the only child of the person whose inconsiderable but zealous services to his King are set forth in the enclosed memorial. Is anxious to serve his country if some employment could be given him among the troops now being levied for America.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Lorimer Edinburgh.

Enclosure :—

Paper headed—Memorial For James Lorimer late Merchant in Edinburgh. Recounts his services to his King and country when the rebels were in Edinburgh in 1745.
1½ folio pages.

William Gerard de Brahm to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, September 18. On board the "Cherokee" in Rebellion Road, Charlestown Harbour.—His discoveries during his voyage from England to America of a current from St. George's Channel to the Gulf of Mexico, and the no-variation line. His arrival after a severe hurricane at Charlestown where he heard of the war being carried on and danger attending the King's servants in the respective provinces. Interview on board the "Tamar" with Captain Innes, and later on with Mr. Edwards one of the Committee, who stated the reasons of the present rebellion. Circumstances attending the opening of the mail containing letters from his Lordship—the Governor coming out of his house was surrounded by six Carolina officers armed, who demanded the letters sent by Dartmouth, which the Governor refused; after the mail was opened, the Post Master, previously forbidden to go outside the town, was made prisoner to his house in future. Fort Johnson taken by Mott a Provincial Colonel. Remarks on his own ship the "Cherokee" that she cannot be made a fighting ship, nor is she even a tolerable sailer to be used for dispatches.

Autograph letter signed. 7 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ De Brahm Sep. 1775.

HENRY CALDWELL to the RIGHT HONOURABLE ISAAC BARRÉ.

1775, September 19, and postscript 20. Quebec.—Evil consequences of delaying to arm this province against incursions of the rebels; their position and proceedings during the last fortnight. Efforts to strengthen the militia and defend the city. Complains of personal neglect by Government. His useless efforts to enlist some on his side. Commends the conduct of the British militia here. Carleton has been joined by some who previously declared for the rebels. Reported death of Montgomery in an encounter with Indians.

Copy. Intercepted. 8½ folio pages.

GOVERNOR LORD WILLIAM CAMPBELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 19. On board the "Tamar" in Rebellion Road. —Abstract of letter No. 7. Gives an account of the necessity he was under, "from the Violences, Insults and Outrages offered to him and the other servants of Government," to retire on board H.M.S. "Tamar" in the harbour.

3 folio pages. [The signed letter, with enclosures, is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 229, fo. 477.]

Enclosure:—

1775, September 1. Charlestown.—Thomas Knox Gordon, Edward Savage, Charles Matthews Cosslett, John Fewtrell and William Gregory, Judges, Justices of South Carolina, J. Simpson, Attorney General, and James Trail C. C. P. to Lord William Campbell. Lay before him some late facts by which they are involved in their present difficult, dangerous and critical situation and the rule of conduct they apprehend they must adopt under the circumstances. Quote the Association they were asked to sign by order of the Provincial Congress; reasons for refusing it. Proceedings taken against them in consequence. Being now prisoners they have resolved to decline the execution of their respective offices until they can resume them with the powers and dignity becoming their office.

Copy. 9¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from the Judges &c. of South Carolina to Lord W^m^ Campbell, dated Charles Town, 1^st^ Sept. 1775. In Lord W^m^ Campbell's (N^o^ 7) of 19 Sept. 1775.

MESSRS. GREGORY and WOOLSEY to MESSRS. WILLIAM BAYNES and CO.

1775, September 19. Quebec.—"A large Party of New England People have been lately on the Frontier of our Province." Fears an invasion of the enemy because of lack of troops to protect them, only militia to depend upon. Narrow escape of the Governor from being taken prisoner by a party consisting of Canadians and New England people headed by an Englishman.

Extract. Intercepted. $\frac{2}{3}$ folio page.

Lord Rochford to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, September 19. St. James's.—Making a confidential communication of the enclosed paper.
In Sir Stanier Porten's hand, in the third person. 3 lines.

Enclosure :—

1775, August 22.—Extract of a Letter from a Person who has lived many years in France, been much connected with the Ministers there, and who is now come to reside in England, written to one of his friends in London. Information of a plan in contemplation by France and Spain towards America to be executed as soon as favourable circumstances offer and which will have fatal consequences to the trade of Great Britain. Shows assistance given in military stores to the rebels by France for seven years past from their West India Islands. The French agents freely dispersed throughout the provinces to inflame the minds of the people. Remarks on the intended attack by the French on the English Sugar Islands.
In Sir Stanier Porten's hand. 4½ folio pages.

Lieutenant Colonel Gabriel Christie to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, September 20. Leicester Square.—Encloses copy of a petition which Lord Barrington presented to the King on his behalf. Enforces his claims and desire for a fresh appointment. Has heard that the people are beginning to be discontented at the proceedings of the Continental Congress, particularly in New York. Is convinced they will soon get into the utmost confusion as they are feeling the heavy taxes in reality.
Letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

Lieutenant Colonel Gabriel Christie to the King.

Petition. States his services in Flanders, Great Britain and North America. Asks to be appointed Commandant of a new battalion to be added to the 60th or Royal American Regiment for service in the West Indies.
1 folio page.

William Grant to David Grant, Great Russel Street, Bloomsbury.

1775, September 20. Quebec.—The rebels have invaded with a considerable force this abandoned, defenceless province and are now encamped at Isle aux Noix, five leagues from Fort St. John's. Some of the Canadians have joined the rebels and the Indians are not to be depended upon; most of them have deserted the English. Martial appearance of this city. Is determined to remain loyal. Carleton is at Montreal and can only act on the defensive. Action between Generals Schuyler, Montgomery and a party of Indians. "We are endeavouring to put this place in the best posture of defence we can. But what can a handful of undisciplined Citizens do in a dismantled, extensive Fortification?" "Government from its Supremacy is become despicable."

Extract. Intercepted. 2¼ folio pages.

MOSES KIRKLAND to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 20. "Tamer," (sic) Rebellion Road, South Carolina. —"May it Please your Lordship Pardon my freedom in troubling your Lordship, with this Letter as it concerns Thousands of poor People, much distress'd by resolves of Congress's." Inflictions imposed on these inhabitants by the rebels in consequence of their refusing to sign the associations. Has been enabled by months of travel among them to procure 4,000 to avow their loyalty to the King. Personal sufferings in the past and present from persecution of the rebels. Has had to flee for his life to His Majesty's ship "Tamar," intends going to Boston by first opportunity to acquaint General Gage of his proceedings and ask for troops. Recommends measures for the improvement of the province.

Letter signed. 3¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—M. Kirkland S. Carolina Sept^{r} 1775.

C. LESLIE to WILLIAM BEARD, New York.

1775, September 20. London.—"The Time is arrived for the Stability or Destruction of this Empire." Believes that the people in America are grossly and wickedly deceived in their ideas of the state of this country, for instead of evils which are supposed to exist here, trade is brisk, peace and quietness reign, and public credit is higher than usual. Thinks the time is at hand when all the world will see and America feel the sentiments of the people of England on this great occasion.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

ISAAC W. CLARKE to JOHN SINGLETON COPLEY, London.

1775, September 21. Quebec.—General Carleton and others have done their utmost to rouse and enlist the Canadians but with little success. Troops scarce. Militia doing constant duty. Preparations being made to defend the city but fears the approach of a numerous foe.

Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio pages.

JONATHAN CLARKE to ELISHA HUTCHINSON.

1775, September 14 and 21. Quebec.—Is surprised at not hearing from him for a long while. Heard on arrival here of the taking of Ticonderoga and Crown Point. Canadians have been strangely tampered with by persons attached to the cause of the Provincials. Proceedings at St. John's fort. Business suspended at Montreal, most of the inhabitants having gone to join the army. Intends leaving this province as the rebels are expected to attack St. John's and the English are not strong enough to oppose them.

Extract. Intercepted. 3¼ folio pages. [The autograph signed letter is in the British Museum, Egerton Manuscripts, Vol. 2659, fo. 172.]

COLONEL ALLAN MACLEAN to JOHN POWNALL.

1775, September 21. Quebec.—Evil result of not procuring in time the assistance of the Indians to attack the rebels on their own frontiers which would have effectually prevented the province being attacked. Defenceless state of this province and inability to cope with rebels and Indians now united. Surprised at the leniency shown by the people at home towards "the villians of America." Is acting as military Governor of Quebec and defending that place as well as possible with the limited means at hand.

Copy. 3 folio pages.

J. PAINTER to WILLIAM HAYNES, Merchant, London.

1775, September 21. Quebec.—Has heard that one hundred and fifty Canadians have joined the rebels, but, as false reports are freely circulated, cannot vouch for the accuracy of such a statement. The warlike preparations here foretell danger.

Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

MESSRS. PATTERSON and GRANT to JOHN STRETTELL, London.

1775, September 21. Quebec.—Fears the New England men may become masters of the whole country as the Canadians do not oppose them. No troops to depend upon so only the militia to protect them, trade at an end, and most people owe their present misfortunes to the Governor, the Quebec Bill and its promoters.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

ROBERT QUICK to MESSRS. WOMBWELLS.

1775, September 21. Quebec.—"Mess^{rs} Davison and Lees have thought proper to stop me from discharging any more of my Cargo." Disturbances in the province by the Bostonians, who have marched a large army into it and taken some forts. Has heard that the rebels had invested St. John's and the King's troops were too few to hold out long. Merchant ships have been employed to defend the Lakes and River. The country seems quite in confusion.

Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

REAR-ADMIRAL SHULDHAM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 21. Craven Street.—Concerning the enclosed letter.

Autograph letter signed. ¾ quarto page.

Endorsed:—Adm^{l} Shuldham 21 Sep^{r} 1775.

Enclosure :—

REAR-ADMIRAL SHULDHAM to LORD NORTH.

1775, September 21. Craven Street.—Representing the difficulty there would be in getting a fleet of transports to Quebec at this advanced season of the year.
Copy. 1 page.

GEORGE WILMOT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 21. King's Arms, Charing Cross.—Relates his past labours and losses in America on account of his loyalty to Government. Refers him to Governor Hutchinson for details thereof. Asks for relief in his present distress.
Signed. 1 sheet.

Endorsed :—To the Right Honorable the Earl of Dartmouth.

WILLIAM LINDSAY to MESSRS. GRACE and KENNEDY.

1775, September 22. Quebec.—Troubles of the country in consequence of the Canada Bill and the encroachments of the provincial army. St. John's fort is being invested by a large body of the enemy's troops. Merchants and traders are doing garrison duty for want of troops and exerting themselves to the utmost to defend this town. "In an hour hence I mount Guard under a Captain's command consisting of Eighty Fellow Citizens, each taking it in his turn."
Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio pages.

GEORGE POWNALL, Secretary of the Province of Quebec, to [ ].

1775, September 22.—Gives an account of the battle between the rebels and Indians on the 6th in which it is said that General Schuyler commanded the former and that Montgomery was killed. Information since received of Indians making peace with the rebels and refusing to fight against them. Narrow escape of Carleton and Lord Pitt from being taken prisoners by some Canadians. Confusion great here. Mustering of militia under Cramahé's command. Colonel Maclean busy at fortifications. Complains of neglect on the part of Britain. Desirability of protecting this province by troops. Fears there has been another battle at St. John's.
Extract. 7 quarto pages.

WILLIAM LINDSAY to JOSEPH PARKER, Cheapside, London.

1775, September 25. Quebec.—"Matters in this Province get worse and worse." The enemy has got a footing in this country and they are busy fortifying themselves against their attacks.
Extract. Intercepted. ½ folio page.

EXTRACT of a LETTER from MONTREAL.

1775, September 25.—(On the other side of the paper is a note, dated No. 60, Mark Lane, Friday morning, in the third person, from Mr. Shoolbred to Mr. Serle sending him this extract, received yesterday from Quebec forwarded by his brother. Encounter with the rebels by General Carleton and citizens, in which Colonel Allen and his associates surrendered. "We lost one Common Man in the Field, and unfortunately Major Carden & Alexander Paterson were wounded, the former of whom died of his wound this morning, Paterson its thought will Recover, had it not been for the Sally we made yesterday, Montreal would this day have been in the hands of the Yankees, Allen enlisted the Canadians at 30 Coppers a day and promised them an Equal Share of the Plunder of Montreal with himself . . . He said the Canadians (150 in number) on our approach forsook him and that he never was given to understand that the People of Montreal would oppose his Entrance. However they are all now Safe on board the 'Gaspée.'"

1½ folio pages.

MESSRS. WATTS and MASKELYN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 28. Bristol.—In consequence of the enclosed summons an address has been produced, freely signed, and will soon be presented to the King. Rejoices to hear that Bradford, Trowbridge and Milksham intend doing the same. Acknowledges with thanks his Lordship's last letter.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mess^rs^ Watts & Maskelyne. Bristol, 28 Sep^r^ 1775

Enclosure:—

> 1775, September 25. Bristol.—Summons to the inhabitants to meet respecting an address to the King on the present conjuncture of affairs between Great Britain and America.
>
> Printed. 1 quarto page.

[ ] to LAMBERT CADWALADER, Philadelphia.

1775, September 28. London.—Supposes every letter undergoes some examination but will try the fate of this. Papers filled with the proceedings of the two armies in New England, but many false accounts given. Believes most of the independent gentlemen of this island are well-wishers to America, but through inaction are of little service to the cause of liberty and the oppressed.

Extract. Intercepted. 1½ folio pages.

1775, September 29.—A folio manuscript in a stiff paper cover, dated at the end but not signed. On the subject of American affairs in the present crisis.

90 pages.

GOVERNOR ROBERT EDEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 1. Annapolis.—Private. Sends proceedings of the 29th August, as severe weather attended the ship which carried former copies. Disturbances in the town caused by the seizure of the pilot boat by the "King-Fisher" and a publication in a Pennsylvania paper. Proceedings in Philadelphia. Supposed discoveries made in the intercepted letters from some members of the Congress which have fallen into General Gage's hands. Has prorogued the General Assembly to the 7th November next.

Autograph letter signed. 5½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Gov^r Eden Sep. Oct^r 1775. Ex.

Enclosures :—

MARYLAND.

1775, August 29.—Proceedings of Council. A true copy signed James Brooks, 30 September 1775.

5½ folio pages.

GOVERNOR ROBERT EDEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 9. Annapolis.—Private. Mentions items of intelligence given in his last of 27th ultimo. The Congress at Philadelphia is waiting an answer from the King to their late address, which if denied, manifestoes are to be sent to the sundry towns in Europe, inviting them to trade with the free American Colonies. Late violent proceedings have driven many men from this province to England. Introduces the Reverend Mr. Boucher (the bearer of this) as well qualified to give information on American affairs. Tomorrow is the last day of the ports remaining open. His Lordship's dispatches by the June packet were opened before he received them.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

EDWARD MONTAGU* to PEYTON RANDOLPH.

1775, October 2. London.—"As this is the last Mail which will be allowed to go from hence I am unwilling to loose the opportunity of bidding you a long farewell." Does not believe he is yet a rebel but understands his "Patriotism is not below Proof." Knows that the object of the Colonies is total independence, and if he were in power would grant it to them as the quickest way to ruin which their present actions are leading them to. "I read all your Prints from Charles Town to Boston, and find Truth in none and no other meaning but continuing the Delusion of the poor ignorant People, who must be sacrifised by Thousands to gratify the Pride and ambition of that damn'd Rascal John Adams. If your Designs are completed, and you should become a separate State I hope he will turn out another Cromwell.—He'll make a noble Protector tho' but an indifferent Malster.—His Letter to M^r Warren exhibits a true Picture of that Moderation and Tenderness which would prevail in him in the Exercise of Power.—If Gage does not raise him to a more exalted Station he wont be content with any Thing less from your hands than Stadtholder, but I hope you will be in no danger of that embarressment." Fears he (Randolph) will be driven to the Indians for protection unless the maritime towns become bomb-proof. "Such a Peal of Thunder is preparing for you that will shake even the Apalatian Mountains."

Copy. Intercepted. 3⅓ folio pages.

Note.—Montagu had been agent for the province of Virginia; Peyton Randolph of Virginia was President of Congress for a short time; he died on the 22nd of this month. Dict. of Amer. Biography.

JAMES PERRY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 2. Wolverhampton.—Quotes copy of letter just received from Boston showing state of affairs there. The dispositions of the Americans and English are too opposite to dwell in friendship together. England much benefited of late by the importation of grain and flour from America and he thinks the disputes might be settled by a change in taxation and the repeal of some acts not of great consequence. Proposes the appointment of a suitable mediator to go to America with authority to bring about a reconciliation.

Autograph letter signed. 4½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Perry Wolverhampton 2 Octr 1775.

TREASURY.

Abstract of proceedings at the Treasury, relative to North America, from the 1st day of January to the 2nd October 1775 with Abstract of Account of Monies paid and ordered to be paid in the year 1775 on Account of the Extraordinary expenses of the Army there.

17½ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Abstract of Proceedings at the Treasury relative to North America from 1st January 1775.

DR. J. B. CHANDLER to the REVEREND CHARLES INGLIS, New York.

1775, October 3. London.—" We are all here heartily desirous of an Accommodation." Remarks on the Plan of Pacification drawn up by Lords North and Dartmouth who are anxious for an amicable settlement. Neither the nation nor ministry are intimidated nor have they any doubt but the Colonies can be reduced sooner or later. No ministry was ever firmer than the present one, and if war must continue it will be with increased vigour. If America acts a reasonable part, she will immediately rescue herself from the military Government she has placed herself under and accept England's proposals, otherwise madness will have its perfect work and destruction follow.

Extract. Intercepted. 2¼ folio pages.

JOHN MAUNSELL to DOCTOR AUCHMUTY.

1775, October 3. London.—" I shall call on Your Brother, who is lately arrived from Boston, the Moment I am able." Has kept up a correspondence, since his arrival in England, with Vanshaake and laid before him a true state of things here as far as they relate to America; asks him to see these letters. If some conciliatory measures are not adopted on America's side and in a constitutional manner by her provincial Legislatures the sword must determine the controversy. Preparations being made for either event.

Extract. Intercepted. ¾ folio page.

JOHN MAUNSELL to PETER VANSCHAACK, New York.

1775, October 3. London.—Notifies the stoppage of packets to New York. Regrets to see the British constitution in America totally subverted. Gives his sentiments concerning the state and temper of the people in England. Preparations for war though conciliatory measures will be offered. Letters from members of Congress intercepted by General Gage are handed about and show a desire for independence. States what he thinks America should do to heal the differences. Asks him to exert his influence to restore peace.

Copy. Intercepted. 4¾ folio pages.

MOSES FRANKS to the HONOURABLE JOHN HARRIS CRUGER.

1775, October 4. London.—Packets to America now stopped. Earnest desires for peace.
Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

J. INGERSOLL to JARED INGERSOLL, Philadelphia.

1775, October 4. London.—Remarks on the circumstances of David Ingersoll. As this packet is the last that will be sent to America, and opportunities for correspondence will be seldom, asks that he may not be accused of negligence in the future, when it will be solely on account of the situation. Various propositions have been sent to the King from different English towns. Some letters from Colonel Harrison to General Washington and from Adams to his wife taken on the Rhode Island ferry have been published here and do not raise the character of Congress or their politics.
Copy. Intercepted. 2½ folio pages.

[EDWARD] MONTAGU to ANTHONY TODD.

1775, October 4. Gray's Inn.—"Presents his Comp^{ts} to M^{r} Todd begs leave to send him the inclosed,* which he wishes to go by the N. York Mail." The address of the said letter would justify inspection but hopes Mr. Todd will bear testimony for him that his correspondence is not treasonable.
Autograph letter in the third person. ½ quarto page.

* Probably his letter to Randolph of the 2nd inst.

WILLIAM STRAHAN to DOCTOR BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

1775, October 4. London.—Takes advantage of the last regular packet. Is concerned to see he has accepted the place of postmaster from the Congress. The desire of the Colonies for a separation is apparent to all from the violent proceedings taken against Government servants there. Fears he (Franklin) has carried things too far and is engaged in a most dangerous and difficult task. "I am still of opinion, that the Ministry of this Country was never disposed to fleece or oppress you, that this unnatural Civil War has been chiefly, if not wholly, occasioned by our wicked Factions at Home, whose Struggles for Places & Power have by degrees carried them such daring lengths as have induced & encouraged you to increase your Demands much beyond what you at first dreamt of." Has lately seen many worthy men who have been forced to abandon their homes to avoid confinement, confiscation of property and corporal punishment, and these give sad accounts of the miseries of anarchy in America. Is sorry to differ from him in this great political dispute. [Not in Sparks' nor Bigelow's Franklin.]
Copy. Intercepted. 4¾ folio pages.

WILLIAM STRAHAN to THOMAS WHARTON.

1775, October 4. London.—Refers him to Doctor Franklin's letter for information on the present dispute between England and her colonies. Is convinced that accommodation is now become impracticable and separation possible, though how far it will answer the intended purpose remains still to be seen. Parliament is about to meet, but fears differences will not be settled till much mischief is done on both sides. Thinks it strange matters should have gone so far, when it is plain that safety and prosperity depend on union.
Extract. Intercepted. 1 folio page.

HUGH WILLIAMSON to JOHN DICKENSON, Philadelphia.

1775, October 4. London.—"A powerful Army will certainly be sent to America next Summer." Petitions are coming up from the principal towns of England desiring coercive measures with America, which will lead to Parliament sending a large armament, and taking foreign troops into British pay. Knows America cannot be conquered but the land will be destroyed and then separated. Wishes other measures could have been adopted to prevent such effusion of blood.
Extract. Intercepted. 1¼ folio pages.

[ ] to RICHARD CARY.

1775, October 4. London.—"Alas my dear Sir, what Scenes have you lived to be Witness to." Is concerned to hear he was a sufferer by the destruction of Charles Town. Explains a paragraph in his letter to Mr. Curwen respecting the spirit of the people and asserts that there is no defection in him from the old principles of the family but that he will support their cause in public and private. Is censured for continuing his acquaintance with a certain Lord, but assures Cary his cause will not suffer thereby. Preparations being made to continue the war; 30,000 Russians are to be taken into British pay.
Copy. Intercepted. 2 folio pages.

[ ] to THOMAS QUIN.

1775, October 4. London.—Congratulations on his advancement from the regulating of watches to the commanding of a regiment in the Provincial Army. Justifies him in taking up the cause of liberty, but it is doubtful whether the Americans will be able to hold out against the forces destined for that country next spring; foreign troops are to be sent with orders to devastate their towns if they will not submit, and King and Parliament are determined to assert their rights. Does not sign this letter as it is reported letters for America are opened before they are sent but the handwriting will be known and he has sealed it four times with his mother's head.
Extract. Intercepted. 1½ folio pages.

MAJOR GENERAL WILLIAM HOWE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 6. Boston.—Private. Acknowledging letter of the 31st July. Hopes to merit the continuance of the confidence with which he isfavoured. Is gratified at the King's approbation of his conduct and the important trust reposed in him in the absence of General Gage.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Gen^{l} Howe Boston 6 Oct^{r} 1775.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 7, Saturday.—Details business he has transacted of late respecting the transportation of troops and discontinuance of packets to America. Lord North is preparing for the approaching campaign, which promises to be exciting. Remarks on business attending the application for leave to export gunpowder, arms and ammunition. Dispatches from Lord William Campbell report disturbances in South Carolina and need of assistance to subdue anarchy there.

Autograph letter signed. 5 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Pownall 7 Oct^{r} 1775.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, October 10. Boston.—Announces his arrival the previous day after a dangerous voyage. Will write more fully in a few days. Thinks the securing of this place will be the chief employment of the ensuing winter. Hopes for some mark of favor to save his honor and give him a decent provision.

Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed :—L^{t} Col^{l} Dalrymple 10 Oct^{r} 1775.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, October 11. America Square.—Proceedings of a faction amongst the North American Merchants which insisted on framing a petition to the King. His reasons for signing it, though he did not approve of it.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Molleson 11 Oct^{r} 1775.

DAVID INGERSOLL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 14. Croydon.—Representing the persecution and destruction of his property he has endured on account of his loyalty. Thanks for succour sent him some time since. Expects to die of famine. Would be glad of an interview if convenient.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Ingersoll 14 Oct^{r} 1775.

The REVEREND JOHN ERSKINE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, October 20. Edinburgh.—"I lately found the inclosed inflammatory paper in a volume of Dean Young's Sermons."

Circumstances respecting its discovery and reasons for sending it to his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev. J. Erskine 1775.

Enclosure:—

1774, February 16.—A printed paper signed "A South Briton." Deplores the increase of taxation during the last 84 years. Denounces the measures pursued by the Governors who, of late years, have coaxed the people to part with their money and give paper in return to keep up armies of placemen, permit men, custom house officers, pensioners and soldiers, by which their liberties are become barely nominal.

1 folio page.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL JOHN VAUGHAN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, October 22. "Harcourt" Transport off Milford Haven.—Detention of transports here owing to the "Harcourt" having met with much damage in a severe gale. The "Argo" has not yet appeared.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^{t} Col. Vaughan 22 Oct^{r} 1775.

POST OFFICE INTERCEPTIONS.

1775, October 23.—Wrapper endorsed in the King's hand. "Oct. 23, 1775, ½ p^{t} 5 P.M. $\frac{m}{20}$ p^{t} 6 P.M. from the Post Office. (Secret)." The letters at one time within this wrapper were chiefly the interceptions noted above on the 19th, 20th, 21st, and 22nd September.

CHARLES SIMPSON, Town Clerk to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 23. Lichfield.—Has been requested to transmit to his Lordship an address to the King in the confidence that he (Lord Dartmouth) would make their offers of service acceptable to His Majesty.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Litchfield 23^{d} Oct^{r} 1775. M^{r} Simpson Town Clerk. R/ 25th.

CAPTAIN HUGH BROMEDGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 24. "Savage" Sloop, St. John's, New Foundland.—Writes by request of Governor Montfort Browne of the Bahamas to announce that he left him at Pensacola on the 20th June last on his way to Brown's Clifts on the banks of the Mississippi. Expects his Excellency will inform him of the new passage over the Grand Bahama Banks and the short cut through the East Florida Keys, which is a very short passage from Providence to Pensacola, also of the discovery made by Bromedge of wood for sheathing boards for ships which may be stationed in the Bahamas and Pensacola. Gave orders for the "St. John" to go to Pensacola to take back Governor Browne to Providence. Sails tomorrow to convoy a transport with volunteers &c. for Admiral Graves's squadron and General Gage's regiments at Boston.

Letter signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—1775 Capt^{n} Bromedge New passage over the Bahama banks new wood for sheething boards.

W. HEY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, October 24. Quebec.—Mentions Lady Mary Carleton's departure. State of the province. Details of a successful incursion from the garrison of Montreal against a party of rebels. Circumstances improving but troops still needed. His own difficult position. Observations on Colonel Johnson.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Hey, Quebec 24 Oct^{r} 1775.

WILLIAM PARSONS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, October 25. Spring Garden Coffee House in Spring-gardens. —Was yesterday arrested for the only debt he owes in the kingdom. Refers to his brother a Captain in the 10th at Boston, wounded at Lexington and Charlestown. Is engaged in a vexatious lawsuit which has detained him longer in this country than he expected. Asks for a loan of £20 to extricate him from present difficulties.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

A RECIPE to cure the PREVALENT MALADY among the AMERICANS.

1775, October 26. Thursday morning.—A paper headed "A Recipe to cure the prevalent Malady among the North Americans, & to secure the friends of Goverment who continue Loyal among them." "Accompanying this is a printed leaf headed A Dissertation on Disputes between Great Britain and her Colonies." Both signed Analysis A. P.

Original. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed :—Analysis. America.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 26. Cavendish Square.—"On my arrival at the War Office last monday I found that five Regiments were to be sent from Ireland in the beginning of December." Hopes these troops are not bound to the Southward in North America as many dangers and difficulties would attend them there. Reminds him of the necessity of consulting able military men before taking decided steps in military matters.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—L^{d} Barrington 26 Oct^{r} 1775.

ROBERT HUNTER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 26. Coleman Street.—Has received letters from Quebec of the 25th September giving an account of a skirmish between the rebels and the garrison of St. Johns, which resulted in the defeat of the former, and Captain Hazen and one Tucker taken prisoners. Quebec fairly defended. General opinion that the rebels would retreat to Crown Point till the spring. The vessel met three transports from Boston in the River St. Lawrence.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Hunter 26 Octr 1775. Intelligence from Quebec.

JOHN KENWARD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 26. St. Augustine.—Requests his acceptance of two barrels of St. Augustine oranges "containing in both 1,000" shipped on board the Brigantine Betsy ; also two nonpareils, being the product of this province. Sir John Shaw has some excellent melon seed which he will share with Lord Dartmouth in exchange for some oranges.

In the third person. 1¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Kenward St. Augustine 26 Octr 1775.

ROBERT GORDON to SIR JOHN BLAQUIERE.

1775, October 27. Corke.—"I can assure you from good Authority that the Pensilvanians were very hard at Work on the 26 Augt and continued so on the 19th Sepr last." Fortifications being made at posts on the river side from Chester up to the town, artillery from New York and Philadelphia used for this purpose. A ship has arrived with a cargo of slaves and flax seed from Philadelphia, and the master thereof reports discontent at Philadelphia with the orders of Congress and taxes imposed, also by the severity of punishment inflicted on such as refuse to join the rebels. Printed papers are dispersed containing false accounts of England's conduct towards them.

Extract. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Extract of a Letter from Robert Gordon Esqr to Sir John Blaquiere dated Corke 27 Octr 1775, containing Intelligence from Philadelphia.

WILLIAM PARSONS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, October 27. Spring-garden Coffee House.—Sends enclosure as his Lordship was not at home when Mr. Mair called on him. Thanks for interposition to rescue him from present distress.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure :—

ARTHUR MAIR to WILLIAM PARSONS.

1775, October 27. Craig's Court.—Reason for not being able to call again on Lord Dartmouth. Quotes extract of a letter from W. Parsons' brother dated Boston 9 August, stating that he had not yet recovered the use of his right hand wounded at Charlestown, but this would be of no material consequence in his correspondence as he would have no occasion to draw on his brother till next spring and can use his left hand for signing letters.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Mr Parsons Octr 1775.

William Parsons to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, October 27. Spring-garden Coffee House.—Assures him all inquiries will be satisfactorily answered concerning himself as he abhors imposition. Lieutenant Winter takes this letter and upon his Lordship's decision depends all that is dear or valuable to man.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

John Waterhouse, Thomas Dyson and Z. Robert Barker to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, October 28. Halifax.—Tender an address to his Lordship from the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, Manufacturers and Land owners of this Town upon the unhappy disturbances with America, requesting such may be presented to the Throne. Informs him of a petition circulated in the neighbourhood and the class of people signing it under the influence of a few in opposition.
Letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Committee at Halifax 28 Oct^{r} 1775.

Lord Townshend to [Lord Dartmouth].

1775, October 29. Portman Square.—Promises him an exact statement of the artillery now in America of which the Ordnance has cognizance. In the absence of his secretary can only transmit what is at Halifax, but that will show what General Gage had near him. Hints for the use of pallisadoes in the present war.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Townshend 29 Oct^{r} 1775.

Lord Townshend to [Lord Dartmouth].

1775, October 29. Portman Square.—Captain Foy is acquainted with some points of the trade in America arising from the operation of Acts of Parliament, which are worth his Lordship's consideration.
Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Townshend 30 Oct^{r} 1775, recommending Capt. Foy.

Commodore George Mackenzie to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, October 30. "Ramillies," Chatham.—Has severely felt the indignity shewn him by the appointment of Sir Peter Parker to be second in command in America and Captain Morris his Captain. Repeats his desire to serve in that country or elsewhere, having forty years good character and being still capable of active service. Asks to be remembered.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Com. Mackenzie 30 Oct^{r} 1775.

William Knox.

Memorandum endorsed "received from S^{r} W. Meredith 30 Oct^{r} 1775." "Liverpool Merchants will fit out privateers & undertake to seize all American vessels trading to the Coast of Africa & elsewhere. Spanish trade."
In Knox's hand. 3½ lines.

LORD SANDWICH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 30. Admiralty.—Advisability of an interview and consultation with Sir Peter Parker, the Comptroller of the Navy and Sir Hugh Palliser as to what naval measures it will be practicable to take for the debarkation of the troops at Cape Fear.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^d^ Sandwich 30 Oct^r^ 1775.

ALEXANDER SCHAW to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 31. Orange Street.—Remarks on the navigation of rivers in North Carolina and settlements thereon. Governor Martin's conduct on his arrival won the people's confidence and esteem. Loyalty of highlanders. Proceedings of rebels. Plan of operations desirable to be carried on to subdue them. No apprehensions need be felt from South Carolina, and Virginia could be kept in check. Necessity of Governor Martin being at the head of everything done in that province.

Letter signed. 11¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:— M^r^ Shaw 31^st^ Oct^r^ 1775.

LORD CHANCELLOR [APSLEY] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, November 3, Friday evening.—On the supposition that the Address moved for would be in the House on Monday, asks for his Lordship's presence in the House on that day in time to deliver in the paper of which Lord Mansfield and himself desire copies. Will be glad to hear the sum of the news brought by Lord Pitt.

Autograph letter. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Lord Chancellor 3 Nov^r^ 1775.

LORD BARRINGTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 3. Cavendish Square.—"I beg leave to return you my best thanks for the News from Canada which you were so good as to send me last night." Will not fail to attend at Lord North's tomorrow. Concludes the Generals will be there also as they can give important and useful assistance, especially if permitted to stay during the discussion of the matter by the Cabinet. Personally, thinks they should be considered as Cabinet Council so long as military business is deliberated upon.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^d^ Barrington 3 Nov^r^ 1775.

EDWARD MONTAGU to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 3. Gray's Inn.—Reasons for forwarding an enclosed letter and means for its conveyance to America if approved of.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Ed. Montagu Esq^r^ 3 Nov^r^ 1775.

Enclosures :—

1775, November 3.—Paper submitted to Lord Dartmouth's consideration. "Excited by the Calls of sincerest Friendship & with silent but warmest Zeal for our bleeding Country," the writer asks what the Americans really mean, is it Independency, abolition of the Navigation Act or total repeal of those laws passed since 1762? Considers the first impossible but the latter might be obtained, though not by force of arms and rebellion. The best means to procure this object. Is well aware of the difficulties of his situation, but hopes he will endeavour to procure peace, so desirable at the present time.

In Edward Montagu's hand. 2⅔ quarto pages.

JONATHAN SIMPSON to [EDWARD MONTAGU].

1775, September 1 and 4. Halifax.—He would embark for England from this place, provided there was a good conveyance. Cannot return to Boston. Details the sufferings of the troops and loyal subjects in that town. Success of the rebels there. The British Flag and arms were never under more disgrace, though the troops do not lack courage as shown at Bunker's Hill. Considers Britain can never conquer America as all the colonies are united against her. If matters are not soon settled the colonies will be lost. Personal situation and proceedings of the rebels at Machias, the place to which he has banished himself. The British force is not sufficient to subdue America, and at the present rate she will soon lose her.

Letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

V.ADMIRAL LORD HOWE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 4.—Found the enclosed on his return that morning from His Lordship's house. Transmits it as it is of a public nature.

Autograph letter signed. 1¼ quarto pages.

*Endorsed :—*4 Nov^r^ 1775. Lord Howe with a Letter from Lord Hyde. Commission. America.

Enclosure :—

LORD HYDE to V.ADMIRAL LORD HOWE.

1775, November 2. Grosvenor Street.—Observations on the importance of the commission to be given him to negotiate with America. Suggestions for the future government of America.

Autograph letter signed. 9 folio pages.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 7.—Sends a note [not now with the letter]. Having opened the business to Lord Germain, is greatly perplexed how to extricate himself from present difficulty.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

*Endorsed :—*L^d^ North 7 Nov^r^ 1775.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 7.—Will be glad to see him this evening between nine and ten, thinks he has found an expedient which will remove present difficulties.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^{d} North 7 Nov^{r} 1775.

JOHN ROBINSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November [7]. Tuesday, 3 o'clock, P.M.—The returns of the army will be furnished to Mr. Pownall who will explain to His Lordship what has passed on the subject. Lord North agrees with Lord Barrington's sentiments if the Duke of Grafton only wants the establishment, but thinks the effectives ought not to be granted as the precedent would be bad and the information dangerous.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—J. Robinson, Esq^{r} Nov^{r} 1775.

JOHN ROBINSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 8. 15 minutes past 4 P.M. House of Commons.—Hopes His Lordship will agree to accept the Seals of one of the old Secretaries of State and so relieve Lord North of much anxiety.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Robinson Nov^{r} 1775.

JOHN ROBINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, November 8. Wednesday, 7 P.M. House of Commons.—Assures him Lord North and His Majesty both wish him to accept the Seal of Secretary of State though application is to be made to Lord W—th for that purpose.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

ALEXANDER SCHAW to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 8. Orange Street.—Listened with interest to the discussion held at His Lordship's office respecting the employment of troops destined for the southern provinces. Refers to opinions previously given on this subject. Probable effects that will follow the sending of troops to Charlestown. Necessity of conquering North Carolina first. Governor Martin thinks he could keep up his authority were it once re-established, without the assistance of regular troops. Has tried to shew His Lordship the advantages and disadvantages attending the proposed attempt in South and North Carolina.

Letter signed. 7⅔ folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Shaw 8 Nov^{r} 1775.

Enclosure:—

Rates of Pilotage established by Act of Assembly for Cape Fear River in North Carolina.

In the same hand as above letter. 1 folio page.

JOHN ROBINSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

[1775, November 9.] Thursday morning, ¼ past 9.—Lord North after the House last night said he could never think of pressing him to accept an office that would make him miserable. Lord North is to see Lord Weymouth this morning and it is hoped he will accept, and that he [Lord Dartmouth] will have the Privy Seal to-day.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

JOHN ROBINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, November 9. ½ past 2 P.M.—Lord Weymouth is to see the King for the purpose of settling his appointment and Lord Dartmouth's having the Privy Seal.

Autograph letter signed. ½ quarto page.

LORD NORTH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[1775, November 9.] Thursday evening. Downing Street.—Lord Weymouth has relinquished his claim to the Privy Seal and declared his willingness to accept the seals of either the Northern or Southern Department. Believes the King wishes Lord Dartmouth to receive the Seal as soon as possible. Lord Germain's writ must be issued and he return to the House.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

JOHN ROBINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[1775, November 9.] Thursday night, past 10 o'clock.—Lord Weymouth accepts the Southern department. The Privy Seal is ready to be delivered to His Lordship, and it only remains for him to fix the date of his resignation of his present office, which decision is necessary for all parties concerned in this business. Reasons for postponing such till Monday on Lord Dartmouth's account, but the advisability of settling it on Saturday with regard to Lord Germain.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

PETER LIVIUS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, November 10. Quebec.—Favoured per Mr. Davison. Arrival after a tedious, difficult and dangerous voyage of one hundred and twenty-six days. Found the province in great confusion; brought some distressed artificers and seamen from St. John's to this town and they have helped to defend it. Fears for the safety of Montreal and Quebec against an attack by the rebels. Hopes for speedy succour either by British troops or foreign ones in British pay. States reasons which he thinks will lead the Canadians to soon tire of the conduct of the rebels towards them and drive them back to the King's standard. Reminds His Lordship of his promise that he should succeed Mr. Hey and hopes arrangements will be made accordingly.

Autograph letter signed. 8½ quarto pages.

WILLIAM JACKSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 14. Ch. Ch. (?)—Congratulations on his being relieved from so troublesome a charge as that of the American colonies, and on his recent appointment. Family inquiries.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—W^{m} Jackson Esq^{r}, 14 Nov^{r} 1775.

HUGH FINLAY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 17. Quebec.—Reasons for not writing more frequently. Introduces the bearer of this letter, William Grant, Seigneur of St. Roc, who is well acquainted with all recent transactions here. The intentions of the rebels to seize all Government officers. Particular aversion shown towards him in his duties as Deputy Post Master General in succession to Doctor Franklin. Craves protection for himself and family. Necessity for early arrival of troops to save this town. Has been much disappointed in the Canadians, but many hundreds will stand by the Governor to the last.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Finlay 17 Nov^r^ 1775.

J[ONATHAN] W[ATSON] to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

[1775], November 17. Friday evening.—Informs him of the proceedings of some back woodsmen towards the Indians in Virginia which was the cause of the last Indian war quelled by Lord Dunmore and which cost 150,000*l.* at least. Apprehensions of another attack led him to suggest the division of that province into East and West Virginia. Measures that would subdue the rebellion.

Autograph letter signed J. W. 2 quarto pages.

A. V. to MRS. TOLVER.

1775, Novembre 22, Thursday [should be 23].—To be left at Mr. Yates's, Stationer, Canton Street, Haymarket. Is informed Count de Bonvouloir had set out for Philadelphia by one of the last boats, fully authorised by the Court of France. Gives other incidental information respecting this gentleman. Quotes part of a letter received from an Italian friend concerning officers from France and Germany going to join the rebels. France foments the rebellion secretly and many Canadians favour her. Felicitations on Lord Dartmouth's recent appointment.

French. Autograph letter signed A. V. 2½ folio pages. With seal (broken).

JONATHAN WATSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 24. Suffolk Street.—Desires if any Commissioners are sent to treat with the Americans his son may be one of them as his own age and health prevent him taking any active part. Congratulations upon His Lordship's recent appointment. His second son needs employment as a clerk. Fears Lord Dunmore reckons he can recover his authority with fewer troops than he (Watson) thinks possible. Is sure a fleet of transports would find difficulty in landing in Virginia till March. Refers to a plan for a tax at home which he will mention to His Lordship or Lord North if desired.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Watson of Virginia 1775.

CONGRESS.

Minutes and Resolution. Transmitted in an extract of a letter [from a New York delegate in Congress, James Duane, to the New York Convention] dated 28 November 1775, which letter has an additional note [of 11 December] naming several persons appointed 10 December to command the fortress in Hudson's River, and is accompanied by a Plan for Regulating Trade with the Indians on the Ohio and for keeping them in Peace with the Colonies. The Minutes of Congress refer to the safe conveyance to America of vessels laden with goods from France; the resolution, to Washington's instructions to apply to the four New England provinces for help to complete levies.

3½ pages.

Endorsed :—American.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, December 4.—"With that heart felt reverence wch goodness and greatness united, necessarily inspires, does a sincere friend of your soul importune for a few moments serious attention." Disapproves of present parliamentary measures towards America. Wishes Lord Dartmouth could yet be the means of bringing about a reconciliation. Reasons for withholding his name, and the way in which a reply addressed to Amynton would find him.

Original. 3⅛ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Anon. Decr 1775.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, December 7. Ship "Dutchess of Gordon" off New York.—Thanks him for obtaining the King's leave of absence for him to return to England. Severity of the climate prevents ships landing in that province. No revolution ever equalled what he has experienced there.

Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed :—Govr Tryon, 17th Decr 1775. On American Affairs, & his Necessity of quitting N. York.

Enclosure :—

Governor William Tryon. Address to the Inhabitants of New York. Sent to the Mayor with a note dated Ship "Dutchess of Gordon" New York Harbour, 4th December 1775 asking him to lay it before the Corporation.

Printed broadside headed New York, 6th December 1775.

A. V. to MRS. TOLVER.

1775, Decembre 9. Samedi.—The French Count of whom he has already spoken (see supra, November 22) left for Philadelphia last October in the "Charming Betsy," Captain John Farmer. Quotes a letter received from Montreal acquainting that commerce there is stopped by the rebels who are poisoning the minds of the people with false ideas of liberty. Notwithstanding this intelligence believes the greater part of the province will remain loyal.

Autograph letter signed A. V. French. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—A. V. to Mrs Tolver 1775.

JOHN CAMBEL, Lieutenant of Engineers, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, December 9.—Anticipates an interview with Lord Germain respecting West Florida and Governor Browne. Assures him he does not expect the smallest advantage and only seeks for a full, candid hearing and determination in the matter.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Eng^r Campbell 9 Dec^r 1775.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, December 9. Caroline Park.—Expresses his pleasure at Lord Dartmouth's recent appointment. Sentiments respecting His Lordship's character. Hopes the vigorous measures now carrying on will be effectual. Has heard that Captain Balfour is chosen for General Howe's Aide-de-camp. Surprise at receiving no news from Boston. General Scot's sudden death and Colonel Skene going to offer his services to Lord North as his successor in the county.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—S^r Ad. Oughton 9 Dec^r 1775.

CONNECTICUT.

1775, December 14.—Passed by General Court or Assembly held at New Haven. An Act for Restraining and Punishing Persons who are inimical to the Liberty of this and the rest of the United Colonies and for directing Proceedings therein.

2½ folio pages.

Endorsed :—America Ex.

MONSR. DE LOTBINIERE.

1775, December 15. Londres.—Precis de l'Affaire du Sieur de Lotbiniere pour ses deux seigneuries du Lac Champlain.

Printed. 2 copies. 3¼ pages. French.

Endorsed :—Precis de Mons^r de Lotbiniere 25 Dec^r 1775.

SIR GREY COOPER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, December 17. Parliament Street.

Letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—S^r Grey Cooper Dec^r 17, 1775, respecting the Clause of Amendment to the American Act, proposed by the Bristol Merchants.

BERNARD PAGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, December 20. Joppa.—A long letter apparently from a Minister of the Gospel giving a faithful account of the attitude of the people, and warning Lord Dartmouth that if he knew one half of what the writer knows of America, he would not persist, but be instantly for peace, or resign. (It is printed in Peter Force's American Archives, Series 4, Vol. 4, col. 358.)

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 3 large folio pages.

Endorsed :—B. Page Maryland 20 Dec^r 1775.

RHODE ISLAND.

[1775, December 25].—Form of Oath of Allegiance administered to the Inhabitants of Rhode Island by General Lee of the Rebel Army.
1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Oath administer^{d} by Gen^{l} Lee Rhode Island Gen^{l} Rebel Army America.

INTELLIGENCE from QUEBEC.

1775, December 25.—The "Elizabeth" store ship left Quebec the 22d of November to proceed to Boston but was driven off the coast of America by contrary winds. She has arrived at Portsmouth and the master, Lieutenant Parry, has come to town. A letter from Captain Hamilton of the "Lizard" to Admiral Graves says General Carleton was come to Quebec and a Council of War had resolved to defend the town to the utmost; strength of garrison there. The "Polly" came down the river with the "Elizabeth" having on board a deserter from the rebels and dispatches from Carleton. The rebels had not on the 22d November come down from the upper part of the river. About 500 belonging to Arnold had crossed and come under the walls of Quebec but dispersed when fired upon.
1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—25th Dec^{r} 1775. Intelligence from Quebec.

The REVEREND THOMAS RANKIN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, December 28. Philadelphia.—Reasons for laying before him an account of the situation of public affairs in these colonies. Is acquainted with several members of the Continental and Provincial Congresses, and they all seem to wish for the restoration of harmony and union between Great Britain and the colonies, upon such a foundation as would be honorable to the former and defend the liberties of the latter. Recommends mercy rather than justice in the present dispute. His sentiments on the natural disposition of Americans. Suggestions as to the manner of bringing about a reconciliation. Present disturbances very detrimental to the spread of religion.
Autograph letter signed. 3½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Rev^{d} M^{r} Rankin Philad^{a} Dec^{r} 1775.

CYRUS GRIFFIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, December 30. Grange Court, Cary Street, Lincoln's Inn.—Has frequently done himself the honour of waiting upon his Lordship but has never been so fortunate as to obtain a personal interview. Believes an accommodation with America can only be brought about by a plan similar to the enclosed. Distress of Americans from the present deplorable situation. Apology for troubling his Lordship with this.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—C. Griffin 30 Dec^{r} 1775, wth plan of reconciliation.

Enclosure:—

Plan of reconciliation between Great Britain and her Colonies. In Cyrus Griffin's hand. 4 quarto pages.

EARL OF SUFFOLK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, December 30. Duke Street, Westminster.—"The Busyness which requires our Meeting tomorrow has prevented me calling on you at Blackheath this morning. It is that which regards the foreign Troops. The Landgrave of Hesse has transmitted his Proposals for 12,000 men. The Prince of Orange those of the States for the Scotch Brigade—the latter are clogged with such conditions as I believe will be thought inadmissible. I don't foresee any Difficulty in the Hessian Transaction." Is sure nothing will be proposed likely to be disapproved of by his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—E. of Suffolk, 30 Dec^{r} 1775, on the Hessian & Dutch Troops.

INTELLIGENCE.

[1775, December].—Paper of Intelligence, not dated, beginning "The following is a Copy of what was written under a Bill of such Goods as was immediately to be procured, the List of the Goods I had not time to Copy but they were various sorts, Gunpowder, Lead, Flints &c. to the Amount of Twenty five Thousand pounds Sterling." The intelligence explains the method of purchasing and paying for goods in Holland and France, and narrates various proceedings in America.

Copy. 3 folio pages. [A duplicate of this was sent by Governor Tryon on the 5th January 1776 and is in the Public Record Office, series America and West Indies, Vol. 186, fo. 255.]

Endorsed:—America.

ACT to PREVENT ILLEGAL MEETINGS.

N.D. [1775].—An Act for the better preventing of illegal Meetings in any of His Majesty's Colonies in North America.

Draft. 1⅓ pages.

Endorsed;—dft of Act.

DENNIS DE BERDT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, Wednesday night, 7 o'clock.—The Petition drawn up by the deputed Committee of the meeting of American Merchants of last week was unanimously agreed to. Wishes it may be approved by the administration. Forwards another letter from his brother, Mr. Reed.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} De Berdt. 1775.

"Draft of COMMISSION with NOTES."

N. D. [1775].—Paper so endorsed. No names or dates given. It empowers to protect the loyalists and trade, and to restore peace and order.

8¼ large folio pages.

House of Commons to the King.

N. D. [1775].—Draft of an address, with alterations in Lord Dartmouth's hand. Expressing their astonishment that a rebellion at this time actually exists in Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island and Connecticut and their concern to see that it has been encouraged in several of the other colonies. Can never so far desert the trust reposed in them as to relinquish any part of the sovereign authority over all His Majesty's dominions, nor allow that any of them ought to be exempted from sharing in the common burdens necessary to the whole. When the colonies shall have made sufficient provision for the support of their respective civil governments, will in that case think the continuance of the laws for raising a revenue in America no longer necessary. Desire His Majesty to take most effectual measures to enforce obedience to the supreme legislature.
6½ pages.

Another similar draft.
9 folio pages.

House of Commons.

N. D. [? 1775].—Paper endorsed:—"Reason of the Commons for disagreeing with the Amendments made by the Lords in the Massachusets fishery Bill." The reason given is that by these Amendments the privilege of fishery would be taken away, by implication, from the colonies of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and others and the commanders of the ships of war be involved in perplexity in the execution of their duty.
1 page.

Memorandum by [Lord Dartmouth].

N.D. [? 1775].—To send directions to the Admiralty to reinforce the squadron in America with 600 marines and to prepare transports for their conveyance. To order three regiments of foot and two of light dragoons from Ireland. States how these can be replaced in Ireland.
Autograph. ⅔ folio page.

Endorsed:—Mem. for the Cabinet.

Lord Drummond.

N. D. [1775].—Paper by Lord D[rummon]d containing Hints that may lead to a permanent Reconciliation.
Autograph. 9½ folio pages, draft form.

Endorsed:—L. D^{d} Rec^{d} from L^{d} D—— d on Accommodation with America.

Note.—For a duplicate of this, dated 11 June 1775, see Lord Dartmouth's MSS. Eleventh Report, Appendix, Part V., p. 378.

Doctor John Fothergill to Lord Dartmouth.

1775, 12th instant. Harper Street.—"I scarcely know how to attempt to write, nor yet am wholly at ease to be silent on the present interesting situation of this Kingdom." Mentions circumstances which have given him an opportunity of being acquainted with America, amongst others the fact of his having corresponded with some of the most sensible people in most of the colonies for over thirty years. Discants on what is best to be done at the present juncture.

Autograph letter signed. 5 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—D^r Fothergill 1775 America.

EARL GOWER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775.—"I am much oblig'd to you for y^r attention to me in Sending me the account of our unconsequential victory at Boston, the Stroke was certainly necessary." Is afraid the only benefit derived is more security in future to the army and town of Boston and that preparations must be made for a further campaign and no time lost in taking measures.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Earl Gower—1775.

CAPTAIN ELIHU HALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775.—Upon the subject of his memorial and events upon which it is founded. Some lucrative post in any of the provinces may afford compensation for his great losses.

Autograph letter signed. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Cap. Elihu Hall, 1775.

MAJOR-GENERAL HOWE.

1775.—Plan of a Disposition according to which it is apprehended the Troops destined to Act under the Command of Lieutenant General Gage Commander in Chief, may be employed with the best effect in North America in the year 1775.

5½ folio pages.

Endorsed (in Lord Dartmouth's hand):—Plan rec^d from Maj. Gen^l Howe 1775.

LORD HYDE.

N. D. [1775].—Paper by [Lord Hyde]. Proposing measures for bringing the rebels back to their allegiance.

Draft in Lord Hyde's hand. 2¾ pages.

The REVEREND N. [?] MADAN to LORD D[ARTMOUTH].

1775, Wednesday. Woodcote End.—Death of Mr. Scawen. His heart is pained for the dear King. Believes there is no thinking man in all Massachusetts Bay or Great Britain who entertains a single doubt of the right of taxation. Remarks on the prevalent spirit of republican anarchy and the offering of terms of accommodation. No good can be expected if Government suffers itself to be deceived into a notion that the Acts of taxation are the causes of complaint. If the Americans cannot be subdued all is over. Apologises for saying so much upon a subject about which he hopes he understands but little.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev^{d} M^{r} Madan 1775.

HINTS from SIR ADOLPHUS OUGHTON.

N. D. [? 1775.]

Autograph MS. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Hints from S^{r} Ad^{s} Oughton relative to carrying on the War in America.

PARLIAMENT.

N. D. [1775].—Resolutions, apparently of a Parliamentary Committee. 1st. That it is their opinion that the King's subjects in all parts of the Dominions of His Majesty are one people equally entitled to all the personal rights and privileges of all Englishmen. 2d. That Great Britain is the head of the British Empire. 3d. That the Legislatures of the several American colonies do enjoy every privilege consistent with the principles of the constitution. 4th. That the American colonies have been raised to their present state of opulence and importance by the support of the Kingdom and ought to contribute to their respective civil establishments accordingly. 5th. That the sums raised are inadequate. 6th. When monies raised are sufficient, all taxes granted by authority of Parliament for raising an American revenue shall cease. 7th. Refers to commerce. 8th. Is a reconsideration of the laws by which the commerce is at present regulated.

Draft. 6⅔ pages.

[JOHN POWNALL.]

N. D. [1775].—Paper endorsed:—"Propositions for consideration; submitted by Mr. Pownall." Provisional powers to be granted in commission to General Gage. Proclamation for seizing and arresting any of the persons who fired on the King's troops on 19 April. The Army to be augmented. A general embargo upon all ships in the ports of New England. Governor Tryon to summon a meeting of the Council in New York to express to them the King's displeasure at their conduct. Fort at New York to be put in a position of defence.

2⅓ pages.

N. D. [1775].—Sketch, by Mr. Pownall, of a resolution for the House of Lords. To address the King that commissioners be authorised to enquire into the causes of the disorders and discontents at present existing in the American colonies.

In John Pownall's hand. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—proposition.

N. D. [1775].—Propositions. "That the Commission of Commander in Chief to General Gage be revoked." That Sir J. Amherst be appointed to the command of General Gage and the Commander in Chief be authorised to augment the establishment of different corps in America by levies there. That an Act be immediately passed for suspending for twelve months the execution of militia laws in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. Papers transmitted by General Gage to be immediately referred to the Attorney and Solicitor General for their opinion whether any acts committed do amount to high treason.

Draft. $2\frac{2}{3}$ pages.

Endorsed:—Propositions.

N. D. [1775].—Propositions by Mr. Pownall. Suggests the reduction of America (Quebec, Nova Scotia and the Floridas excepted) to obedience by the power of a naval force. Provision to be made for refugees. Towns which ought to be possessed by the King's troops are Boston, New York and Charles Town. A respectable force must be kept up in Canada. These propositions are submitted upon an idea of the propriety of desisting from all further plans of hostility in New England by internal operation.

Draft. $3\frac{1}{3}$ pages.

Endorsed:—Propositions, by M^{r} Pownall.

ROYALIST MILITIA.

N.D. [1774 or 1775.]—Colonel Jacob Blackwell. A Return of his regiment of militia in Queens County.

Original. 3 pages.

RICHARD SPEAIGHT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

N. D. [1775].—

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Rich^{d} Speaight of N. York, soliciting the Aid of Gov^{t} for his Losses by the Rebels.

CAPTAIN JOHN STANTON.

N. D. [1775].—Thoughts on what the Americans really are and what they hereafter may be.

Original, signed. 9 pages.

Endorsed:—Thoughts on America by Cap^{n} Stanton.

[MR. THOMSON.]

N. D. [1775].—Regulations humbly submitted to Lord North for the better preventing the smuggling of Tea, &c. by the French and Dutch into our American Colonies and the West Indies and for improving the East India Trade thither and considerations on the present state of our Trade with the Spaniards and Dutch in the East Indies. In a wrapper on which is written "M^{r} Thomson has the honour to present his respectful compliments to Lord Dartmouth and sends him the enclos'd Thursday."

Original in Mr. Thomson's hand. 3 pages.

Endorsed on wrapper:—M^{r} Thomson.

TRADE with AMERICA.

N. D. [1775].—Paper respecting trade and commerce with the American Colonies and directions to be given with regard to seizures by the Admiralty Court.

$4\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Abstract.

PAUL WENTWORTH.

[1775] Paper, not dated, in Paul Wentworth's hand, entitled "Ideas which may be woven into a plan, tending to promote a happy Issue to the present critical state of Affairs in America as they regard Great Britain." [See his letter of 24th June p. 319.].

22¼ pages. [The same paper is in Lord Auckland's collection, but not in Wentworth's hand.]

JOHN WILLIAMS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, Tuesday morning. No. 7, Furnival's Inn.—Encloses the paper containing several regulations for America which he submitted to Lord North in 1772. The third article is a very interesting part for Government.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Williams 1775. Cust. House Regulat^{ns} for America.

Enclosure:—

1772, June 4. London.—Regulations humbly submitted to the Right Honourable Lord North for the better securing the Duties upon Wine, Fruit, Oil and other Dutiable Goods in America, and likewise for preventing the Foreign Trade on that Continent.

Autograph, signed. 3⅔ folio pages.

Precis of American Correspondence during the year 1775. Fifteen papers under different endorsements stitched together with red silk and consisting of précis of the correspondence of Lord Dartmouth with General Gage; of the circular letters to the Governors; of the correspondence with the other Offices and the King's Servants; and of that with the Governors of the different provinces, Quebec, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Connecticut, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Plantations General and the Indian Agents.

275½ folio pages.

Precis of Correspondence with Lieutenant General Gage relative to proceedings in America in 1774 and 1775.

47½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Precis. Ex.

Volume bound in brown morocco, entitled "Massachuset's Bay 1775," and containing copies of correspondence between Lord Dartmouth and General Gage during that year.

325 pages. 9¼″ × 6″.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to MAJOR-GENERAL HOWE.

1776, January 5. Whitehall.—Announces the arrival of Major-General Burgoyne on 27 December. Approves reasons given for not removing from Boston. Will write more fully about Howe's plan of operation for the ensuing campaign. Discusses the means suggested to increase the force to what is necessary for that plan. Explains arrangements being made for that purpose and for supplying articles required. Steps are being taken to relieve Quebec. Hopes to send Carleton 10,000 men early in March. Merchandise in Boston to be put in store if it will not create any hazard in evacuating that town. Names vacancies to which he may post officers, and commissions he is authorised to grant.

Copy. 8½ pages. [The original letter is in the Royal Institution, American MSS., Vol. 2, No. 29.]

RATES OF POSTAGE.

1776, January 5. General Post Office, London.—A Table of the Rates of Postage in Great Britain and Ireland. The British Dominions in America are included in this table.

Printed. 1 page.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM FRANKLIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 7. Perth Amboy.—He entrusted letters by an express sent to him by Mr. Henry Kelly from New York. Information received last night of the capture of the man with the express, at Elizabeth Town, by order of Lord Stirling. Noise this affair will make; considers it probable congress will order both Mr. Skinner and himself to be seized. His determination to stand his ground. His uncertainty whether Mr. Kelly has been treacherous in this affair. Report that the French Ambassador in England knows everything that passes in the Privy Council; his communication with the Colony Agents there. De Berdt is supposed to have means of obtaining from the public offices copies of the Governors' letters.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Perth Amboy Jan^y 7, 1776 Gov^r Franklin. Packet intercepted by L^d. Sterling.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL G. CHRISTIE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 9. Leicester Square.—He desires to succeed to a vacancy in the 60th regiment, caused by the death of Lieutenant-General McKay. Considers his exertions in the new levies an additional pretension, and his sufferings in private matters from the Rebels last year make an augmentation to his finances necessary and salutary. Asks his Lordship's protection.

Letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^t Col. Christie 9 Jan^y 19 1776, to succeed Gen^l Prevost.

1776, January 10. The Constitutional Gazette (47).

Printed. 4 quarto pages.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL CHRISTIE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 13. Leicester Square.—He thanks his Lordship for his attempts to serve him. It is his duty to submit to His Majesty, who does not seem to think him entitled to a mark of Royal favor.

Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^t Co^l Christie 13 Jan^y 1776.

REVEREND THOMAS RANKIN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, January 15. Philadelphia.—Has long checked an impulse to give his Lordship a plain and impartial picture of matters in these Colonies. His sentiments concerning the present state of affairs in America. Considers that the former harmony might be restored without the effusion of any more blood. Expresses the desire of gentlemen of the Continental and Provincial Congresses, with whom he has conversed, for union honourable to the parent state and by which the wished-for liberties of the colonies could be secured. His experience shows that the people in general detest the thoughts of a Republican Government. Offers thoughts which may serve as preliminaries to the desired union; first, rescinding of the Acts of Parliament of the previous session; 2nd, an Act of indemnity for all past transactions; 3d, a cessation of arms; 4th, the ports opened by the Americans; 5th, a deputation from each assembly to settle measures with one sent by His Majesty and Parliament.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ folio pages. [Reproduced in B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Endorsed:—Rev. M^r^ Rankin Philadelphia Jan^y^ 1776.

JOHN POWNALL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, January 16.—He thinks he may now make sure of the object to which he has so long looked forward. Will consider himself unfortunate indeed if anything comes between the lip and the cup of comfort held out to him by his Lordship.

Autograph letter signed. ¾ quarto page.

Endorsed:—J. Pownall Esq^r^ 16 Jan^y^ 1776.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 23. Plantation Office.—Resignation of Mr. Pownall. Mr. Cumberland to be appointed Secretary to the Board, and Mr. Serle Clerk of the reports.

Autograph letter, third person. ⅓ quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^d^ G. Germain 23 J^y^ 1776.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 25.—With a Greek Inscription. Paper unsigned, beginning,—"The inclos'd ancient inscription waits on Lord Dartmouth, which was found in a Village no far from London." As the Greek inscription seems prophetical of our present disputes with America, and to hold forth the language she holds forth to the Mother Country, considers it may be worthy of the consideration of His Majesty and the Ministry. Explanation given to the said inscription by the Vicar of "our Parish."

1⅓ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Anon. 1776 Greek Inscription.

JOHN AMALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 26. Morden College, No. 7.—His interview with Pownall on the 12th instant, concerning the vessel locked up by the ice at Amsterdam, loaded by Hodgson for the rebel Hancock, and which when the navigation is restored will clear out at the Texell, with Dutch colours, bound to St. Eustatius. Pownall's answer on the subject. Wishes to deliver a plan which would effectually prevent such supplies going to the Provincials. "As their High Mightinesses have Issued a placart Prohibiting Furnishing the Americans with any Warlike Stores, Our Men of War and Cruisers should Detain & Bring up all such Vessells as have such articles on board, and I would advise paying the Dutchmen the Value of the Arms, for which we have presidents in the Rebellion In Scotland in the Reign of George primo." Advice on the subject. Hopes his hints may prove useful.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r Amall 1776.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR THOMAS OLIVER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 26. Boston.—Places before him the state of things here. The arrival of Gage and Burgoyne in England will afford every information prior to their departure. Since then a work has been begun by the rebels on the Cambridge shore. Dissensions in the enemy's army have now been got over. Account received of the attack on Quebec on the 1st of January. Thinks the Americans will resist to the utmost of their power; they are building ships of force, importing ammunition and warlike stores and casting cannon and shot. Letters of marque he has granted to armed vessels bound from Boston to the West Indies. The state of Boston; number of inhabitants, loyal and other. Desires to know how to dispose of the Council and other civil officers with their families should the place be abandoned.

Autograph letter signed. 4 large pages. [A duplicate original is in the Public Record Office, America and West Indies, Vol. 297, fo. 145.]

Endorsed :—Lieut^t Gov^r Oliver 26 Jany. 1776.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 26. London.—Letter not signed. By hints dropped in private company has gathered that a treasonable correspondence is intended to be held with America, by means of a liquid, the effect of which will not be legible until the paper is heated by fire. Hopes this information may lead to its discovery. He is ignorant to whom the letter will be directed, but imagines to some person in New Jersey.

Original. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Anon^s—1776 Arnett.

WILLIAM CRUDEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, February 20. Russel Street, Covent Garden.—Quotes from a letter received from his eldest son in North Carolina who testifies to the loyalty of more than one half of that province to Government, to the heat of those on the American side—they would accept no terms of Great Britain, but what they themselves choose, and who hopes the Ministry will pursue firm measures.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Rev^d M^r Cruden Feb. 1776 N. Carolina.

SIR JAMES JAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, February 22. No. 15, Cecil Street, Strand.—Particulars he offers to his Lordship's consideration, which seem likely to contribute towards an amicable accommodation. Some of the towns are likely to be destroyed by the Americans in their own defence. The destruction of New York on this principle is already determined upon. Desires these propositions may be considered merely as the outlines of pacification.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed :—S^r J. Jay 22 Feb^y 1776. Ex.

THOMAS DAVISON to JOHN ROBINSON.

1776, February 23. No. 30, Wimpole Street.—Accompanied by another letter dated 27 March and a calculation concerning the rum to be furnished for the use of the troops destined this year for Canada and the ports of America.

Copy. 2¾ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Copy of M^r Davisons Letters to M^r Robinson dated 20 Febry and 27 Mar 1776.

JOHN ROBINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, February 24.—Lord North has no objection to the publication proposed. He has directed M^r Robinson to speak to M^r Pownall on the subject of Captain Fenton's letters.

Autograph letter signed. ¾ quarto page.

Endorsed :—M^r Robinson 24 Feb. 1776 Cap Fenton.

Enclosures :—

CAPTAIN FENTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, February 20.—Encloses the answer [not here] he received to his card to Pownall respecting his appointment. He believes nothing will be done until Lord Germain is addressed upon the subject. Asks Dartmouth to continue his kind offices towards him, as the Bill of Exchange, promised by Lord North to be discharged, will be shortly due.

Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—20 Feb^y 1776 Capt^n Fenton to L^d Dartmouth On His Appointm^t & the payment of his Bill due the 29^th.

JOHN FENTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, February 23.—Thompson, Corner of Orange Street, Near Leicester Fields.—Bill of Exchange nearly due, Lord North has promised it shall be discharged. Asks Lord Dartmouth to let him know. Speaks of sending a letter from Governor Wentworth, presumes it to be a necessary step, as his intended appointment is not forwarding.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

WILLIAM MOLLESON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, February 28. America Square.—He expresses his sincere regret that his Lordship's benevolent intentions have been frustrated by designing men on the other side of the water. The disagreeable predicament of the Merchants trading to North America. Application made to Lord North for some future relief.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—W. Molleson Esq^{r} 28 Feby. 1776.

GOVERNOR FRANCIS LEGGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, March 18. Halifax.—No. 61. Duplicate. Probability of the reduction of this Province (Nova Scotia) by the Rebels in the spring. The efforts he is making to oppose their attempts. The last letters from General Howe inform him of the embarkation of 200 families from Boston for this place which will distress it greatly as provisions are not to be had on any account. Memorials he enclosed in his letter N° 58. Treasonable consultations of the inhabitants of Cumberland. Fourteen of them are supposed to have gone to New England, to invite the enemy into this province. His movements in consequence.

Letter signed. 4⅔ folio pages.

Endorsed :—N° 61 Duplicate.

DENNIS DE BERDT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, March 19.—He is concerned in a newly discovered whale fishery on the Coast of Brazil. A copy of the memorial for Lord North on behalf of himself and others accompanies this letter. Asks his Lordship's interest, that his humble claim may not be overlooked.

Letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} De Berdt 19 M^{ch} 1776. Whale fishery on the Coast of Brazil. Ex.

Enclosure :—

MEMORIAL to LORD NORTH.

Dennis de Berdt on behalf of himself and others. Petitions for such premium or bounty, immunities, and advantages, as shall be thought meet.

Unsigned. 3 folio pages.

SIR JAMES JAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, March. Dated Monday 10 o'clock. Cecil Street.—Although his Lordship was no longer in the American department, Sir James Jay thought he would be happy to devote a few moments to consider and facilitate measures which might spare the effusion of blood, and accommodate in a peaceful way the unhappy differences in America.

Autograph. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—S^{r} Ja^{s} Jay M^{ch} 1776.

[WILLIAM KNOX] to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, March.—" Wrath my dear Lord is gone forth and the plague will follow if some Aaron does not speedily make reconciliation":—Desires him to call upon certain parties, to propose an alteration in the Instructions. Suggests an alteration in the clause about the Delegates, which authorizes the convention. Considers the exceptionable clause should stand as it does, and that the Colonies are not to be restored to peace until all is done that is there required.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr K—— Mch 1776.

NOVA SCOTIA.

1776, April 17. Minute of a Council held at Halifax, Signed Richard Bulkeley.—Touching Sir Wm. Howe's representation setting forth the high demands made for the hire of buildings for His Majesty's troops and the inhabitants lately arrived in this province from Boston. Resolved that Messrs. Green, Bridge and Allan, together with quarter-masters appointed by the Commander in Chief, proceed to enquire into and report on the subject.

Original, signed. 1⅚ folio pages.

JOHN THORNTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, April 19. Clapham.—Requests his Lordship's patronage for Mr. Rowland. Hopes he will recommend Dartmouth College to Lord Howe and his brother, that if they give no just occasion of offence, they may not be wantonly hurt. Considers it too evident that we are only entering upon the horrors ensuing in America. Very small prospect of a happy conclusion.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—J. Thornton Esqr April 1776.

LORD SANDWICH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, April 24. Admiralty.—Enclosures he is sending on the subject of licenses granted from this office.

Autograph. Third person. 1 quarto page.

Enclosures:—

Paper endorsed, "Extract of the Prohibitory Act."
1½ folio pages.

1776, April. Admiralty Office.—Observations with respect to the Licenses granted from this Office for Ships to carry Stores and Provisions to North America, in persuance of a Clause in the Prohibitory Act.

Unsigned. 4¾ folio pages.

CAPTAIN HUGH BROMEDGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, April 30. "Savage" Sloop Off Sandy Hook, New York.—Refers to a previous letter, acquainting him of his having conveyed Governor Montfort Browne to Pensacola. Capture of that Governor and Mr. Babbidge, his secretary, at New Providence, whence they were conveyed to New London, Connecticut Government, by the rebel fleet. He himself had been called off that station to repair to Boston and on his arrival there he informed Admiral Graves and the General of an expedition fitting out by the rebels in Georgia to seize the King's magazine and stores at the capital of the Bahama Islands. The sailing of the "Falcon" to claim these stores for His Majesty; the refusal of the islanders and their admission of the Americans. Details of an attack made upon the "Savage," while near the shore at Staten Island covering the watering place for the troops, by some hundreds of riflemen of Lord Stirling's corps. By directing fire on them he kept them at bay. He is now under sailing orders with despatches from Captain Parker to Governor Tryon and to Admiral Shuldham and General Howe at Halifax.
Letter signed. 3¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Cap. Bromedge N. York, Apl. 1776.

Draft of a ROYAL COMMISSION.

[1776, April, end.]—Granting power to extend pardon to the rebels under certain conditions, and authority to protect those colonies to which peace, order and legal government are restored.
7¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Dra^t of Commission.

RUM CONTRACT.

1776, May 2.—Lords of The Treasury on behalf of the King. Articles of agreement with Richard Atkinson.
Copy. 2¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy London 2^d May 1776. Contract with R^d Atkinson Esq. to supply 100,000 Gall. Rum to the Army in America.

GEORGE GREEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, May 4. London.—Quotes from letters which have passed between himself and Lord Germain on the subject of his (Green's) dismissal. Declares his readiness to testify his loyalty to the King, and his abhorrence of all lawless and rebellious proceedings. Refers to Governor Hutchinson for a full account of himself and his conduct at Boston. His earnest wish to be employed in any manner which Lord Dartmouth could think proper in His Majesty's service.
Letter signed. 10 folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Green 4 May 1776.

INSTRUCTIONS [for LORD and GENERAL HOWE].

[1776, May 6.]—Draft of Royal Instructions to . . . . . . our Commissioners for enquiring into the State and Condition of Our Colonies and Plantations in North America, and for settling and composing the Disorders which have of late prevailed in some of the said Colonies and Plantations.

[Not dated. Believed to be a draft of the Instructions for Lord Howe and Sir William Howe.]

$29\frac{1}{3}$ pages.

Endorsed :—Drat. of Instructions.

ARCHIBALD NEILSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, May 7. 15 Orange St., Leicester fields, London.—States the office he held in North Carolina, as Deputy Auditor, to be of no avail to him in these times. His anxiety to join Governor Martin. Asks that he may be appointed Commissary of the troops who are to act in that Province. Craves Lord Dartmouth's assistance in the matter. If that appointment is not obtainable, he would be glad of anything else which would carry him out in employment to North Carolina.

Autograph letter signed. $2\frac{1}{2}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Neilson. 7 May 1776.

[JAMES] HUTTON.

1776, May 9.—Remarks. "A certain Person, who must for the present be nameless, believes it would not be impossible to keep off, for a time at least, the French breaking with us if even there was a Party formed or forming to induce that Court to do so" The "Æconomists," there, if any hope were held out of free trade between France and England, would prevail in the Cabinet. The nameless person has a friend who is the right-hand of a certain Mr. Turgot, who entrusts his confidences to Mr. Du Pont. Plan he proposes, not very coherently, to unite the two nations by mutual facilities of trade and so prevent a rupture. Refers to a letter he received from Du Pont, who knows the writer to be an ardent friend of peace.

Not signed, but in Mr. Hutton's hand. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Hutton. May 9, 1776.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, May 9. Portsmouth.—Has communicated to Lord Howe the part of Lord Dartmouth's letter which related to the papers. Asks Lord Dartmouth to post the papers to him (Serle). Refers to the final settlement of his Lordship's accounts with Mr. "P." is surprised he has not adjusted that matter before this time. Considers Mr. "B——n" a forward though ignorant man. Cautions Lord Dartmouth against him. His brother-in-law is Larpent. Recommends Mr. Wright to call upon Gibbons, one of the Treasury messengers, concerning his Lordship's allowances. Serle has employed him for Mr. Harris.

Autograph letter signed. $3\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Serle 9 May, 1776.

PETER LIVIUS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, May 11. Quebec.—Preservation of this city by His Majesty's loyal subjects. Arrival of the "Isis," "Surprise," and "Martin," with a few troops. Acknowledges his Lordship's condescension and favours. Hopes his behaviour on his arrival, and in the defence of the town since, will not make his Lordship ashamed of his kindness to him.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r Livius Quebec May 1776.

L. GUERRY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, May 14. Quebec.—Happy arrival of succours from England. Congratulations upon the success in the defence of Quebec. Effect upon the rebels caused by the arrival of ships. Hopes to go to London, as soon as the troubles are happily ended. Asks His Lordship's protection.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L. Guerry Quebec. May 1776.

WILLIAM GORDON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, May 15. Quebec.—Reasons for troubling his Lordship with his journal of the siege. Desires him to send it on to Mr. Pennant at Winnington. Believes that the preservation of this place will be the means of speedily settling all the American disputes. Commending the behaviour of the garrison. Application for a seat in the Legislative Council of the Province.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—W. Gordon Quebec May 1776.

EDWARD SNEYD to MONTFORT BROWN[E].

1776, May 27. Windham.—Accepts his offers of assistance. The intelligence of his enlargement was unexpected. Is happy Babbage's situation is likely to be improved. Remarks about a Mr. Ervin. His hopes of getting leave to go with Colonel Fitch to see one Godfrey Mabben. Has sent a draft of 30*l.* upon his uncle. Encloses letter of advice.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Letter Edw^d Sneyd Esq^r 27 May 1776.

ADMIRALTY LICENSES.

1776, May 30.—Minutes of a meeting of His Majesty's confidential servants at the Admiralty. Minute concerning Admiralty licences for the conveyance of stores to the army and navy in North America.

1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Min. of Cab^t 30 May 1776.

GEORGE GREEN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, June 4. London.—Reminds his Lordship of his dreadful situation and of his promise to mention his unhappy case to Lord North. His sufferings in the cause of Government. His submission to his loss of office. Determination with regard to his future conduct.

Letter signed. ¾ folio page.

Endorsed:—M^r Green 4 June 1776.

INTELLIGENCE from QUEBEC.

1776, June 10. Whitehall.—Information of the arrival of His Majesty's ships "Isis," "Surprise," and "Martin," at Quebec May 6. Landing of 200 men. Their march out to attack the besiegers who were soon found to be in precipitate retreat. Recapture of the Gaspée. Movements of the enemy. Further arrival of troops. Troops under Burgoyne, a little below the Island of Coudre. No assault attempted by the rebels upon Quebec, after that of 31 December.

$2\frac{1}{3}$ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Intelligence from Quebec rec^{d} 10 June 1776.

EDWARD SNEYD to MONTFORT BROWN[E].

1776, Sunday June 16 continued on Sunday 27 (sic). Windham.—Thanking him for the money. Wishes he were with him. Effect such an application would have upon the Windham people. He has written to Mr. Shaw and Colonel Fitch about the brig's books. Desires Browne to write about them. Encloses a list of bills belonging to Mr. Page. Sends congratulations due on 4 June, from all. Asks him to speak to Colonel Dyer about his wish to join him.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Letter Edward Sneyd Esq. 27 June 1776. T. Barrett P.S.

EDWARD SNEYD to HIS EXCELLENCY GOVERNOR BROWN[E] at Middletown.

1776, June 26. Windham.—Per favour of Captain Ledlie. Tillidge has begun Browne's picture. Sneyd expects to convey it. Colonel Dyer's wish to get leave for him from Governor Trumbull. Captain Ledlie expects Governor Browne at Hartford. A colt given to him by a Mr. Mabben. Hopes he is better. Wonders at Ledlie's haste to depart from Windham.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Letter. Edw^{d} Sneyd Esq^{r} 26 June 1776. Tho^{s} Barrett P: S:

DENNIS DE BERDT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, July 1. London.—Quotes from a letter received,—"In an intercepted letter of Governor Franklin's some time ago to Lord Dartmouth there was an account of your being chosen Agent, and that your Merit was procuring by some unfair means copy's of his Letters and transmitting them to this Country. That he understood you had some share of his Lordship's confidence which you abused, and therefore cautioned him against you." Declares the accusation to be false, and refutes the charge.

Letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} De Berdt, 1 July 1776.

WILLIAM SANFORD HUTCHINSON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, July 1.—His father's services cause him to expect every favour from Government. Assurances from his Lordship and Lord North.

Sets forth his position. Loss sustained by his father, upon whom he totally depends. Hopes that Government will relieve him in his distress.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr W. Hutchinson 1 July 1776.

INTELLIGENCE from GENERAL HOWE.

1776, July 5. Whitehall.—Despatches received from General Howe by Capt. Duddingstone dated 7 and 8 June. News of the embarkation of troops, waiting to proceed to Sandy Hook. The General's opinion of the advisability of making a landing upon Sandy Hook. His intended movements to gain information of the state of the rebel army, and to be in readiness to receive the Hessians, in case of their arrival before the fleet from Halifax. Capture of the "Hope" ordnance storeship, in Boston Bay. The master suspected of treachery. Arrival of Highlanders at Halifax.

2 folio pages.

Endorsed :—Intelligence from Genl. Howe arrived 5 July, 1776.

1776, May 10—July 11.—Extracts from the Boston and New Hampshire Newspapers.

Printed. 1 large folio page.

WILLIAM POLLOCK to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, July 19. Whitehall.—Sends for his signature a receipt for Secret Service from 10 October to 10 November 1775. Also encloses a warrant for salary for same time, and a debenture for patent salary from 10 October 1774 to 10 November 1775. What remains to be issued. Fees received. No public accounts from America since his Lordship left London. Private letters state that the fleet had sailed from Halifax on June 10, all well.

Letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Pollock 19 July 1776.

J. KEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, July 22. Swansea, Glamorganshire.—Refers to previous intelligence sent. Conversation he held with a gentleman at an inn on the 18th instant. His inclination to send to some public newspaper certain texts, for the benefit of every good man in America who has been seduced from his duty and allegiance to the King. Asks his Lordship's opinion. Quotes from the King's speech of 23 May.

Autograph letter signed. 6½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—J. Key, 1776. America.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, July 25. New York Harbour, Off Staten Island.—Arrival off Staten Island. Ships they fell in with near Newfoundland and Halifax. Capture of four English transports conveying troops, with Colonel Campbell their Commander. Good health of the Army. Their ardour to attack the enemy. Efforts of the "Phœnix," and "Rose" men-of-war to force a passage up Hudson's River, and to keep it open for Burgoyne's troops, which, with 1,000 Indians, are expected to come down from Albany. Lord Howe's arrival. Panic of the enemy. Impatience of the army for the arrival of Hessians and other reinforcements. Fears for New York. Disposition of the people. Flag of truce sent by Lord Howe addressed to "George Washington Esq. &c. &c." not received. Arrival of Mr. William Temple at Congress, with letters from home concealed in his clothes. Escape of the noted Major Rogers from Philadelphia; he has joined the army under General Howe. Lieutenant Sneyd a prisoner in Connecticut. Opposition to the decrees of Congress by the people of Berkshire County. Imprisonment of Mr. Stanley's son; his escape, and recapture. Mr. Percy continues a very violent agitator.

Autograph letter signed. 9 quarto pages. [Reproduced in B. F. Stevens's Facsimiles of Manuscripts in European Archives relating to America.]

Enclosure:—

> "Extract of a confidential Letter to Governor Tryon, dated 1st June, 1776. [From Massachuset's Bay.]" Confusion which has arisen from a late Act of the General Assembly, (Test Act,) to be signed by the Inhabitants of the Province before they were allowed to vote in the choice of Representatives for the ensuing year. Those who refused to subscribe to it, were to be disarmed and disqualified from holding any Office in the rebellious Government. Quotes the Act. Opinion concerning it. Disposition of the people. Appearance of another Act. Independence the favourite topic of conversation.
>
> In Serle's hand. $2\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

MONTFORT BROWNE to GENERAL HOWE.

1776, August 2. Middletown, Connecticut.—No. 2. Refers to his letter of the previous day [not found] on the subject of his being brought to this colony as a prisoner. The plan meditated for forming a brigade for His Majesty's service to consist of 4,000 men is nearly carried into execution. They will be ready for embarkation as soon as the ships appear in the Sound for them. Has 1,000 head of cattle and some hundreds of fat hogs. Has also engaged 1,000 fine negroes, mostly belonging to friends to Government, and some hay and sheep, all which he proposes shipping at Nursing Island. Arrangements he has made with the two pilots. Would like a guard sent to defend the pass for the embarkation. Desires his letters (in his absence) may be sent to Major Hierlihy. Enclosure. Ill-treatment of various British prisoners—Gov. Skene, Capt. McKay and the Mayor of Albany. The Churches of England are all shut up because praying for the King and Royal Family is prohibited. Apprehensions of being detected writing to his Excellency.

Copy. $5\frac{1}{4}$ pages.

Enclosure:—

> [1776, July 10.]—Printed advertisement by Montfort Browne to encourage settlers on his lands on the Mississippi and Mobile, with an autograph copy of his letter to his brigade containing offers of land, dated 10*th July* 1776. At the end is this note :—

Enclosure—cont.

"P.S. My Lord. This printed advertisement has Effectually answer'd every purpose. M. Browne."
2 octavo pages.

General Putnam to Major Moncrieffe.

1776, August 7. New York.—Sends his daughter. If he does not like her he can send her back and she will be taken care of and provided with a Whig husband. Asks for news of Mr. Berron; his lady is much distressed to know.

Copy. 1 octavo page. Third person. In Serle's hand.

Endorsed :—Copy of a Letter from Gen^l Putnam to Major Moncrieffe, when he sent the Major's Daughter from New York by a Flag of Truce.

Ambrose Serle to Lord Dartmouth.

1776, August 12. Off Staten Island.—Destruction by the rebels of the only five mortars possessed by them when they besieged Boston. Distress of the people of the country for want of clothing and other articles of importation. Their army unhealthy; small pox rages round Boston and the army at New York prefers to force every fourth man on Long Island rather than receive auxiliaries from Massachusetts. The affair at Charlestown has given them fresh spirits. Lee expected here daily with all the people he can muster from Philadelphia, etc. "It has been a great distress to us, that the great Fleet has been so late in its Arrival; and it has afforded every Advantage to the Rebels. . . . As to Lee himself, he is very much sunk in the Opinion of his best Friends among his own Party. There is something so eccentric in the man's Temper, and such a Vacancy of Principle, that it is impossible for all his Talents, which have been much enlarged upon, to support a Reputation here or anywhere." Flying reports concerning General Burgoyne. Speaks of enclosing two or three newspapers. Arrival of Sir Peter Parker's fleet, with Lord Cornwallis, General Clinton, and 2,900 men. Hotham's fleet now sailing into the harbour.

Autograph letter signed. 5 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Advices from General Howe.

1776, August 15. Also Advices from Montreal dated 13 August.—Meeting off Sandy Hook of the two fleets under convoy of Commodore Hotham and the "Repulse." Health of the Guards and Hessians; nineteen only lost on the passage. The camp equipage had all arrived. Arrival of Clinton, Cornwallis, Lord Dunmore, and Lord William Campbell on the 14th with Sir Peter Parker and his fleet. Arrival also of the Highlanders. Disembarkation of the Hessians on Staten Island to refresh; the Guards declined. Operations apprehended to commence on the 21st. The Rebels, it is expected, will defend New York. 13 August:—The army will be ready in three weeks to cross the lakes. "Our naval force will consist of two vessels of 12 and 14 guns each, a gondola . . . of 4 guns, several rafts or floating batteries with the heavy artillery and a number of batteaux with a four-pounder in each bow." Reports of the evacuation of Crown Point by the enemy, but it is supposed they intend making a stand at Ticonderoga. Activity of Burgoyne. Carleton expected from Quebec to take the command.

Unsigned. 2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Advices from Gen. Howe Aug. 1776.

JAMES BURROW to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, August 19. Salisbury Street, Strand, London.—Authentic papers he is sending relative to America. "The day we arrived in Town, His Excellency (Gov^r Legge) went to Court where the King received him with every mark of attention and affability ; my Lord George was also very polite . . ." The Petition of the House of Assembly contains a free declaration of their loyalty to the King, but respecting the Governor they return thanks for his recall to examine into his conduct on the complaint of the people. Mr. Burrows expresses his surprise at the petition being received (coming from people detected in most shameful practices) and does not believe it was unanimous, the carrying it being a "managed point by the party themselves." Expenses to which the Governor has been put ; but does not doubt he will meet with that support, restitution and commendation he so justly deserves. Speaks of enclosing a paper published in Nova Scotia ; a certain Mr. Hutchinson was very instrumental in drawing it up. Sends also the famous declaration of their being free and independent states.
Autograph letter signed. 3¾ quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

> Calculation of the daily expenses of the Rebel Army. 9,000 men in pay in Canada, 8,000 men in pay in Virginia, etc., total 69,000 and cost £11,479.5. On the third page is an Order of Battle for the British troops commanded by Earl Percy.
> Unsigned. 2¼ folio pages.

EDWARD SNEYD to GOVERNOR BROWN[E].

1776, August 19. Windham Gaol.—Probability of Mrs. Browne's arrival in England. All in good spirits (tho' locked up again) at news of a cartel being established for an exchange of prisoners. Intends when he gets out, which he hopes will be shortly, to shift his quarters. Colonel Dyer out of town. Trusts Browne has escaped all disorders incident to the Northern parts of America. Windham people same as usual. He will shortly want some money.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Letter Edw^d Sneyd Esq^r 19 August 1776. Tho^s Barrett P.S.

WILLIAM KNOX to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, August 22.—Hoped to have been able to send Lord Dartmouth a more pleasing account of our Southern Expedition than is contained in the enclosed precis. The troops have not suffered from the climate "which I dreaded more than the fire of the Rebels, tho' that has done no small execution on board the ships. Not a man on the Quarter Deck of Sir Peter Parker's ship at the beginning of the Attack that was not either killed or wounded before the end of it. The worst consequence of this failure will be the shewing the rebels where their strength lies and how they may foil us again in the winter tho' our strength be greater." All hopes now fixed on General Howe.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

1776, August.—Advices received from Sir Peter Parker and Lieutenant General Clinton by the Ranger Sloop. Landing of General Clinton with the troops on Long Island. Dispositions made by the fleet and army on June 28 at Charlestown. Position taken up by Sir Peter Parker opposite the fort on Sullivan's Island. Movements of the enemy. Proposition by Clinton to ford a creek between Sullivan's and Long Islands which was judged an imprudent one for want of boats and because of a march through a swamp in the face of the rebel army. The ships drawn off from the attack when night came on ; 201 killed and wounded in the action. Slight wounds received by Sir Peter Parker and Lord William Campbell. Troops preparing to re-embark on July 8. The Fleet expected to sail to join Howe in a few days. The " Actæon " of 28 guns having run aground was burnt by her own people. Troops healthy.

Unsigned. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Intelligence from America Aug. 1776.

INTELLIGENCE from AMERICA.

1776, August.—Disembarkation of Howe on Staten Island on 3rd and 4th July. Flight of the enemy on the approach of the ships. The General's intentions to wait till joined by the fleet from England or by Clinton from the south. Tryon's assurances of the intentions of many of the inhabitants of New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut to declare for Government when troops come to their assistance. Intelligence concerning Clinton at Charlestown contained in a newspaper of 3 July. Refusal of the fort to surrender to him. Lee's arrival there with 1,500 men from North Carolina.

Unsigned. 1½ folio pages.

*Endorsed :—*Intelligence from America Aug. 1776.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, September 5. Off the City of New York.—The object of his letter is to show how the Guards and Hessians have been employed. Deferential treatment of the Hessian General and other Commanders. Pleasing impression it has made. Movements of the "Phœnix" and "Rose" in defiance of the rebel batteries, on 18 August. Conveyance of troops to Long Island, without the least opposition on 22 August. Opening of the scene on the 27th. Relates what passed under his observation. Lord Stirling and General Sullivan with about 90 officers are among the prisoners. Evacuation of Long Island. Desperate situation of the people. Loss sustained by them in this battle. Remarks on the adage of the Americans, "If Great Britain cannot conquer us, she cannot govern us." Possession taken of Governor's Island September 2d by a detachment of Hessians. His excursion upon Long Island. He expected to have had the honour of congratulating his Lordship on the entire possession of New York City and Island.

Autograph letter signed. 10 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

EDWARD SNEYD to JAMES BABBIDGE, Secretary to Governor Browne.

1776, September 11. Windham Gaol.—Desires him to negotiate some bills of exchange which he is sending.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Letter Edward Sneyd Esq^r^ 11 Sep^r^ 1776. Tho^s^ Barrett Pr. Sec^y^.

EDWARD SNEYD to GOVERNOR BROWNE.

1776, September 11. Windham Gaol.—He is still in gaol. States his inability to give a reason for his imprisonment. His disagreeable situation. He never will enjoy liberty in this country. He is sensible of Colonel Dyer's good offices. Regrets his affairs oblige him to be so much absent. Hopes he will find New Haven and his (Sneyd's) element kind to him. Message to Mr. Ervin.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Letter Edward Sneyd Esq^r^ 11 Sept^r^ 1776. T. Barrett P. S.

EDWARD ABBOTT, Lieutenant Governor of St. Vincennes to. [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, September 16. Montreal.—He must winter at Detroit the waters being too low for continuing his route to Fort St. Vincennes. Expressing gratitude for favours conferred by his Lordship. Mr. Hunter, the bearer of this, can inform him of the situation of affairs in this country. His opinion that the employment of Indians after the commencement of hostilities would have prevented much bloodshed. Fears it will require another campaign to bring His Majesty's rebellious subjects to their duty.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Lieut^t^ Abbott Montreal 16 Sept^r^ 1776.

EDWARD BURROW to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, September 21. Custom House, Port Glasgow.—Previous intelligence he has sent relating to the trade of the Americans. Enclosure. Draws his attention to an extract therein of a letter from London of 9 April. Surely the Americans have friends in London, very vigilant in watching the movements of administration and transmitting advice of it.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—M^r^ Burrow P^t^ Glasgow 1776 America.

Enclosure :—

[1776, August.]—The Virginia Gazette. (Part only.)
Printed. 4 quarto pages.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, September 25. New York.—Congratulations upon the entire possession of New York City. Employment of the fleet on 7 September. Opening of a battery by the Engineers, against a strong post of the rebels on the opposite shore. Arrival of Captain Wilkinson from Quebec, in the "Pearl" with good news, and about 500 prisoners. Capture of two islands in the East River by our troops. Deserters daily coming over. Details the movements of the ships. Joy of the people in New York, on their release from the tyranny of the rebels. Stand made by the enemy behind the redoubt of their great work towards Kingsbridge but they were repulsed by the Light Infantry, Grenadiers and Highlanders. Numbers of Irish emigrants in the rebel army. Hopes concerning Burgoyne and his troops. Frigates sent against Powley's Hook. Both fleet and army are well supplied with fresh provisions and vegetables from the recovered territories. Wishes for the second embarkation of the Hessians. The town set on fire on the 20th instant.

Autograph letter signed. 8 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, November 7. New York.—Transcribes from his diary the material circumstances that have come to his knowledge since his last letter. Exchange of prisoners effected by which General Prescot and Governor Browne are exchanged for General Sullivan and Lord Stirling. Advance upon Powley's Hook 27 September. Arrival of the "Daphne" with 12 transports, having on board General Burgoyne's Light-horse. Descent made upon West Chester County. Movements of our troops and fleet. Five million dollars voted by Congress to carry on the war. Quarrel between the Pennsylvania Assembly and the Provincial Convention. Congress is in no great harmony among its members. General Carleton's success upon Lake Champlain. News of the capture of many of our trading vessels. Congratulations upon the success of affairs. Hopes another campaign will teach the Americans a lesson.

Autograph letter signed. 7 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—Mr Serle Valuable F.R.D.

[AMBROSE SERLE] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, November 8. New York.—Religion has operated as much as any other cause to the general distraction. The active and unbecoming part taken in these controversies by preachers of all denominations. Considers the great source of this religious contention and disorder lies in the deficient constitution of our colonial policy. Enumerates several clergymen who have been active in disseminating their views. Looks upon the war very much as a religious one.

Autograph letter unsigned. 4 quarto pp. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

ADVERTISEMENT.

Printed Paper beginning "On Saturday, November 9, 1776; will be published in One Sheet and Half folio, Price Three Pence, to be continued Weekly Number I. of a New Political Paper, intitled The Fall of Britain By Theophilus Stephens, John Williams, and Charles Thompson, Esqrs." "As anonymous writers deserve but little credit with the public, we have given our names to the world at full length, regardless of danger, even at this time when Tyranny has usurped the place of Liberty." What they intend to prove in the series of papers about to be issued.

1 quarto page.

The DUKE OF RICHMOND to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, November 17. Goodwood.—Letter he has received from Lord Dartmouth and others of 8 November, requiring him to cause diligent search to be made for all straggling seamen, and to secure those fit for His Majesty's Service, within his Lieutenancy. Considers this measure liable to strong legal objections. Does not think it right to take any part towards carrying it into execution.
Letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Duke of Richmond 17 Nov^{r} 1776.

MONTFORT BROWNE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, November 20. Flushing, Long Island.—Recounts the distress he has experienced and the circumstances relative thereto, since his letter written in March. His attitude and movements on the demand made by the American commodore Hopkins, in behalf of the Continental Congress, of all the King's powder and stores at New Providence. Aid given to the enemy by the people. His imprisonment and conveyance to the American continent. Encounter and engagement between His Majesty's Ship "Glasgow" and the rebel fleet. Spirited behaviour of Captain Howe. The writer exchanged for Lord Stirling. Behaviour of the inhabitants of the Bahama Islands.
Autograph letter signed. 4 pages.

MONTFORT BROWNE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1776, November 21. Flushing, Long Island.—No. 2. Speaks of enclosing copy of his letter to General Howe dated August 1. When that letter was conveyed to the General, he had actually 3437 picked men enlisted and ready at three days' notice to embark at Guildford, Stratford, Norwalk, Nursing Island, etc. Many of them were English, Irish, Scots and Germans, all true friends to Government. Inability of the Admiral to afford him the assistance he required for the embarkation. Proclamation issued by Governor Trumbull and subsequent dwindling away of his brigade. Temporary appointments given to his officers. Speaks also of enclosing the restraining act. Sentiments of a preacher lately in Connecticut. Has requested his wife to endeavour to procure the King's leave for him to return to England.
Autograph letter signed. 2¾ pages.

Enclosure:—

PROCLAMATION by GOVERNOR TRUMBULL.

1776, June 18. Council Chamber in Hartford.—Urging them to raise a large additional number of militia and able men for defence against the soon expected attack and invasion by England. Ministers of the Gospel in this Colony directed and desired to publish this proclamation in their several churches and congregations.
Printed. 1 page.

GENERAL CARLETON to JOHN ROBINSON.

1776, November 25.—Proportions of rum which have been received fall short of what their Lordships designed for this army. It is too late now to make any contract here for a supply of the article against the next campaign. Necessity of their Lordships being informed.

Extract. ⅔ folio page.

Endorsed:—Extract of a Letter from Genl Carleton dated 25th Novr 1776.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, November 26. New York.—The impression of despondency made upon the enemy is too powerful for the machinations of Congress to remove. Some of the rebels give out that they will never consent to any terms of composition. His opinion that Great Britain can only regain her dominion and keep it when retained by the sword. Influence of the newspapers of the Colonies. Encloses newspapers. An Indian secretly making his way to prepare his people for the next year and to convey intelligence of our affairs to General Carleton. Information about Joseph Read of Philadelphia from an officer of Government who represents him as an able man but full of chicane, intrigue, and duplicity. Supply of provisions for the Army and Navy by the incursions into the Jerseys etc. It does not seem a sanguine opinion that the heart of the Rebellion is really broken. Considers it requires no prophetic spirit to pronounce that the desire for independence will break out again in the course of years.

Autograph letter signed. 5 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, November 28. New York.—Letter he writes on behalf of Governor Tryon, who when he left England in 1775 understood that "a Warrant for the Augmentation of his Salary as Governor was then as good as settled;" but neither he nor his agent has heard of it since that time. Governor Tryon has explained the difficulties of his position.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

AMERICAN PRISONERS.

1776, November 30. Admiralty.—Admiralty Minute. Considered what to do with the Rebel Prisoners brought home in the "Pallas." Resolved to submit to His Majesty that the Admiralty be directed to keep the prisoners in custody until further orders. Expediency of proposing to Parliament a Bill to suspend the Habeas Corpus Act so far as it may be construed to extend to rebels taken during the present rebellion.

Copy 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Minute. Novemr 30th 1776. (Copy.)

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, December 3. New York.—Circumstance mentioned to him by Mr. White, which conveys the opinion of the rebels. Mr. Putnam speaking upon American affairs at the house of Mr. Kay in the Jerseys had said that they think their cause is ruined as their army is disbanding because the term is expiring and they consider they cannot get another. Congratulations on the increasing success of His Majesty's troops in New Jersey. Little or no loss sustained by Cornwallis in this pursuit. A strong party forming in Philadelphia. Doctor Franklin has had the address to get off, on the pretence of negotiating a Treaty with the Court of France.

Autograph letter signed. $2\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed :—M^r^ Serle, Nov. Dec^r^ 1777 (sic).

ADVICE from AMERICA.

1776, December 28. Whitehall.—That Mr. Bernard, brother to the shipbuilder at Deptford of that name, a planter in Tobago, having been captured and taken into Lynn in Boston Bay, and lately arrived from there, states that before his departure he met a Postman going from Boston to Falmouth in Canso Bay sent from General Lee with the news of the capture of Fort Washington on the 16th November. Positions of Washington and Lee. Confirmation of the news received by Bernard from the wife of a principal Quaker merchant in Lynn. The day he sailed he was told that the Town Committee had been ordered to draft every fourth man to send to the army but there appeared a general disinclination to the service.

Unsigned. $1\frac{3}{4}$ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Advice from America rec^d^ 28 Dec^r^ 1776.

[ ] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, December 30. Stephens Green, Dublin.—Signed "A faithful Friend To the House of Hanover." "Slight not this advice, even a moment; the papists in the Southerns parts of this Kingdom are amassing Arms and Powder." Landing of eight foreigners, who dined at the Titular Archbishop of Cashell's. Declaration of an invasion taking place in the spring. Bull expected by the papists, absolving them from their allegiance. Their designs are to take advantage of the distress to which we are brought by the rebels in North America. Desires this letter to be acknowledged in the London Chronicle, when Lord Dartmouth shall continue to receive information. Perhaps later he will disclose his name. Declares himself to be "a man of Estate and SOME consequence in this Kingdom." Wording of the advertisement. No time to be lost in guarding against this system. This letter may be placed before His Majesty.

Autograph letter signed. $3\frac{1}{2}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Anon : Dublin 30 Dec^r^ 1776.

DR. JOHN FOTHERGILL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776.—Writes on behalf of Israel Morris, the son of a Magistrate in New Jersey, who desires leave to return to America, and has been refused because he would not acknowledge the sovereignty of the British legislature over America. He declares he is friendly to the King and does not intend to be active in the present circumstances. The treatment appears to Dr. Fothergill ungenerous and impolitic. Asks Lord Dartmouth to appoint an interview with Morris.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—D^r^ Fothergill 1776.

THOMAS PITT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[? 1776.]—A saddler named Bray wishes to be named to Alderman Horley, that he may avail himself of a letter from Colonel Gorham now in America, for the furnishing accoutrements to his battalion. Pitt has given him orders to make them as useless as possible "that the poor dear Americans struggling in the great cause of Liberty may have no reason to complain of him or me." Asks his assistance in the furtherance of this business "and your Petitioner will never fail to oppose you tooth and nail."

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Thos Pitt Esqr rec. Mr Bray.

CAPT. WILLIAMOS.

N. D. [1776.]—Plan. With reference to the resolutions lately entered into by the House of Commons to suspend the right of taxing America whenever the Colonies themselves grant a proportionable supply towards bearing their part of the Mother Country's burden, proposes a Bill to be brought in immediately to appoint a temporary commission to go to America to meet their assemblies separately, and explain to them these resolutions which are liable otherwise to be grossly misrepresented and perverted. Suggests measures to be taken by this commission. Considers that such steps would remove the prejudices the Americans now labour under.

Unsigned. 4 folio pages.

Endorsed :—American Plan. Cap. Williamos.

CONSIDERATIONS on the AMERICAN REBELLION.

N. D. [1776.]—A long paper of considerations on the situation of Great Britain with reference to the present American rebellion. It is headed with a quotation from Livy "Ea charitas patriæ esse debet, ut tam ignominiâ eam, quam morte nostrâ, si opus sit, servemus."

22½ pages.

LIVE STOCK for use of the TROOPS in AMERICA.

1776.—A List of the Vessels taken up to carry Live Stock to North America for the use of His Majesty's Forces there in 1776.

⅓ folio page.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, January 1. New York.—His time exceedingly taken up in making out pardons for rebels who are coming in for them by hundreds. Congratulates his Lordship on the repeated successes of "our short Campaign." General sentiment at New York is that the power of the rebellion is nearly broken and beyond any apparent probability of resource or recovery; this intelligence gained from intercepted letters and other channels. Hopes for the possession of Philadelphia early in the spring. "The ships &c. in that harbour will be an Acquisition to us, if we can save them; but their Destruction will be an irreparable Loss to the Rebels." Ships under Hopkins blocked up in Rhode Island. The remains of Congress gone to Baltimore. "The Difference in the Appearance of the King's Affairs and especially the Resolution in the Professions of many Persons in this Country are both very great." General Lee behaves since his captivity with the meanness of spirit expected of him.

Autograph letter signed. $2\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

GOVERNOR WILLIAM TRYON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, January 5. King's Bridge District.—Earnestly solicits leave to return to his native country; "The Shadow of my Government does not remain to me, nor am I consulted in any thing relative thereto, therefore can never revive that Influence I flattered myself I once had in it." Has asked for a regiment, and permission to sell his commission in the Guards to Lord Rawdon and to resign his Government. Mr. Barrett by whom he sends this has been greatly disappointed in his expectations here.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

CABINET MINUTE.

1777, January 10. Lord George Germain's Office.—"Lord George Germain read General Howe's demand of men for the next Campaign." Proposal to submit to His Majesty the advisability of taking into his pay about 4,000 German troops, which number will complete the 35,000 rank and file which the General proposes for his operations.

$1\frac{1}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Minute 10 Jan^y 1777.

The LONDON CHRONICLE.

1777, January 9—11.—No. 3136. Containing an Appeal to the unprejudiced, or a vindication of the measures of Government with respect to America.

8 printed pages.

MESSRS. MURE, SON and ATKINSON to GENERAL SIR WILLIAM HOWE.

1777, January 14.—Marked No. 2. Orders given to their agents in Jamaica to execute General Howe's commands with reference to the supply of rum for the ensuing year. Instructions sent to Loring to engage for the delivery of such quantities as he may require, and they beg His Excellency's directions may be speedily given that the success of their purchases in Jamaica may be assured.

Extract. $1\frac{1}{4}$ folio pages.

MESSRS. MURE, SON and ATKINSON to JOSHUA LORING JUNR. at New York.

1777, January 14. London.—Marked No. 3. Same subject.

Extract. $1\frac{1}{8}$ folio pages.

THOMAS VIVIAN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, January 16. Cornwood.—Hopes that His Majesty's arms may be blessed so far as to enable him to give the Colonies a new constitution. Fears the negroes may be overlooked. Suggests abolition of slavery.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev^{d} M^{r} Vivians Jan^{y} 1777 American Slavery.

MR. GORDON to MESSRS. MUIR [MURE] SON and ATKINSON.

1777, January 21. Cork.—"A ship is just arrived from Rhode Island with 126 Passengers Sailors & 26 Captains of Ships that were taken by the Rebels." Account they bring of the taking possession of Rhode Island by General Clinton who arrived with Sir Peter Parker on the 10th December last.

Extract. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Advices from Cork, 21 Jan^{y} 1777.

JONATHAN WATSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, January 29. Bath.—Learns from the newspapers of Lord North's intended proposals to the House of Commons for the effectual security of America. Refers to a former private memorial and a pamphlet in answer to Dr. Price; did not sign them for fear his house in Virginia should be burnt. Opinion on dividing Virginia into two provinces.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Watson 29 Jan^{y} 1777. .

INTELLIGENCE.

1777, January, received.—Arrival of Captain Drummond, Aide-de-Camp to General Clinton, with a letter from the General containing an account of his landing on Rhode Island on the 8th December. News sent to the Admiralty by Sir Peter Parker concerning the Continental squadron commanded by Hopkins.

¾ folio page.

Endorsed:—Advice fr. America rec. Jan^{y} 1777.

1777, February 24. Whitehall.—Intelligence received in dispatches from General Howe. Detailed account of the movements of Lord Cornwallis. General Lee taken prisoner by Colonel Harcourt. Forage and provisions taken by the King's troops in the Jerseys.

3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Advices from N. York rec^{d} 24 Feb^{y} 1777.

CABINET MINUTE.

1777, February 25.—"Lord Howe having desired to be strengthened with Six Sail of Ships of the Line," Submitted to the King whether it may not be sufficient to send 1 ship of 74 guns, 4 of 64, and 1 of 50; and Sir William Howe to be directed to send Major General Lee prisoner to England. Also submitted that General Burgoyne should be again employed in Canada.

⅜ page.

Endorsed:—Minute of Cabinet 25th Febry. 1777.

JOHN ROBINSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, March 2, 50/m. p. 10 P.M. Parliament Street.—Upon looking into the papers of Sir Robert Herries considers them of so extraordinary a nature, and the proposition so decidedly against the principle and letter of the restraining Act that he troubles his Lordship with the subject.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure :—

> "Some Observations on Sir Robert Herries' Plan which strike Mr Robinson from the cursory reading which He was able to give it last night." Sir R. Herries assumes the necessity to obtain tobacco, first, for the French market in order to prevent that trade from getting into another channel so as not to be able to recover it upon the restoration of peace. and, secondly, in order to supply the necessary consumption at home ; upon a thorough investigation of these allegations neither of them will be found to be warranted, for as to the first Great Britain may suffer a temporary loss of that trade during the present disturbances, yet doubtless upon the restoration of Peace it will revert to Gt. Britain, for the Farmers General will buy at the cheapest market, which is the Brit : colonies. Shews how the second proposition would be equally futile and cannot be carried out without opening a communication of trade with the rebels in Maryland or Virginia in direct violation of the Restraining Act, and what is more alarming still, the circulation of specie and bills, which would give them a real and substantial credit over all Europe and enable them to purchase and pay for all stores &c., and consequently support them in the war.
>
> 4 pages.

JOHN ROBINSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, March 3. Monday near 1° P.M. Downing Street.—Has seen Knox and finds he has received orders to write an official letter to Lord Howe and General Howe recommending the agent of Sir Robert Herries to their protection, and also to write to the Admiralty to desire a passage for the agent on board the first man-of-war. Surprise and disappointment expressed by Knox and D'Oyly. Lord North's opinion against it as told by Sir Grey Cooper.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Robinson 3 March 1777. Sr R. H.

RICHARD ATKINSON to J. ROBINSON.

1777, March 7. London.

Copy. 1 page.

Endorsed :—London 7. March 1776. Copy of Proposals of Richd Atkinson Esqr for furnishing Jamaica Rum to the Troops in North America.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, March 20. New York.—Received on the 9th instant his Lordship's letter of 30 December last. Several skirmishes have taken place between our foraging parties and those of the rebels. Inhuman behaviour of the latter. Hopes that upon the descent of the Northern army the affair will soon be over and the country restored to peace. Contagious disorder prevailing among the enemy; loss they have sustained. Paper dollars issued by Congress. Famine expected. Health and spirits of our troops. Encloses Congress Note as a curiosity. Mr. Sneyd's death. Mr. Piercy. His weariness of this country, and his useless situation.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Enclosure:—

> Three dollar Bill No. 27,532. Signed William Webb and T. Leech. Philadelphia. Printed by Hall and Sellers 1776. This Bill entitles the Bearer to receive Three Spanish milled Dollars, or the Value thereof in Gold or Silver, according to a Resolution of Congress, passed at Philadelphia, May 9, 1776.
> 3″ × 3¾″.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, March 25. New York.—Concerning the enclosure. Mr. Galloway's intention of visiting England for the first time, after the next campaign. Considers nobody could be consulted with more advantage to the public, and nobody, with less view to his own, separate from the public. He has intimated his desire that his thoughts upon the momentous crisis might be communicated to Lord Dartmouth and to Lord North if Dartmouth approves them.

Autograph letter signed. 2¼ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Enclosure:—

J. GALLOWAY to RICHARD JACKSON.

> 1777, March 20.—"I am yet at New York endeavouring to be of Service to those entrusted with the great Work of reclaiming my Countrymen from their Delusion." Efforts he has made; has reason to believe his information has not been entirely useless or inacceptable. Sentiments upon the present rebellion. Advises Parliament to pursue certain measures for the re-establishment of peace.
> Autograph signed copy. 9 quarto pages.

1777, March 25.—Sketch of Peek's Kill Town and Bay up the North River showing the Expedition sent there to destroy the Rebels Provisions and Stores 25th March 1777. Note in Mr. Serle's hand—"This Sketch was given me by Lieut. Durnford of the Engineers, who conducted the whole Conflagration."

1 folio page. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

GOVERNOR MONTFORT BROWNE.

[1777, March].—Note apparently to Lord Dartmouth, not dated, serving as a wrapper to the papers enclosed. "Gov^r Browne has importuned me to trouble Your Lordship with the inclosed Copy of General Howe's public Thanks to Him for his Conduct in some late Enterprises. The Rebels are all in Distraction at and about Boston, quarrelling with each other."

Original, not signed.

Enclosures :—

J. Patterson, Adjutant General, to Lieutenant Colonel Innes, Inspector General of the Provincial Troops in America.

1777, March 20. New York.—Requesting him to acquaint Governor Browne that the Commander in Chief has expressed pleasure at the report made of the Governor's corps; he has no doubt of their being of very great service in the course of this campaign.

Copy. 1 quarto page.

Newspaper cutting consisting of a notice of an attack on a party of the rebels at Brunx River with special mention of the spirited conduct of Governor Browne's corps.

Montfort Browne to [Lord Dartmouth].

1777, April 1. Head Quarters, Flushing, Long Island.—Announcing that the King has not only been pleased to approve of his plan for raising a brigade but has granted licence for his return to England. Is sending intelligence to the Commander in Chief at New York, concerning his brigade. Capture by the rebels of 70 or 80 of his friends; recounts his unsuccessful efforts to release them. Capture of Mr. Richards, a violent rebel. Eulogising his men. Promotion promised to him by General Howe; desires the King will make him a Major General in America. Congratulations on the success of His Majesty's arms.

Letter signed. 4¾ pages.

Endorsed :—Gov^r^ Browne Long Isl^d^ 1^st^ April 1777.

Enclosure :—

J. Patterson, Adjutant General, to Colonel Innes, Inspector General of all the New raised Corps.

1777, March 20. Head Quarters, New York.—Same as above.

Copy. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Copy of General Howes Comp^t^ to Gov^r^ Browne upon the report of his Brigade.

Rum Contract.

1777, April 1.—Paper endorsed :—Copy of Contract between D. Chamier Esq^r^ Commiss^y^ Gen^l^ & Jos. Loring Esq. Agent to Mess^rs^ Mure Son & Atkinson for furnish^g^ Rum to the Army in America. 1^st^ April 1777. N^o^ 1.

2 folio pages.

Ambrose Serle to Lord Dartmouth.

1777, April 3. New York.—On the enclosure. Rapid decline of the rebel force. Everybody considers the "Rebellion is dying apace."

Intelligence received from Franklin concerning France. Hopes a perfect submission will ensue before the end of the year.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pp. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—A. Serle Esq. M^{ch}—April—1777 Ex.

Enclosure:—

JOSEPH GALLOWAY to [RICHARD JACKSON].

1777, March 28. New York.—Additional thoughts on the subject of establishing a permanent union between Great Britain and the Colonies.

Autograph copy signed. 5½ quarto pages.

GENERAL HOWE to JOHN ROBINSON.

1777, April 5.—Concerning the contract for rum to be supplied to the troops in North America.

Extract. 1½ folio pages.

LIEUTENANT JOHN CARTWRIGHT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, April 10. Oxenden Street.—Writes upon the principles and policy of the proposals he has offered for consideration. Believes the Americans must become our rivals in naval dominion if we persist in the war. Concerning restrictions upon their trade in favour of Great Britain. Considers peace and a "Confederacy on equal and independent terms ought to be the sole object of our present views."

Autograph letter signed. 3⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Lieut^{t} Cartwright 1777 America.

The NEW YORK GAZETTE AND WEEKLY MERCURY.

1777, April 14.—No. 1329. Containing, amongst other items, a Narrative or Journal of Dr. John F. D. Smith Captain and Surgeon in the Queen's Royal Rangers, who was taken prisoner by the rebels in November 1775 and lately escaped from them.

1 printed sheet.

The ROYAL AMERICAN GAZETTE.

1777, April 17.—No. XIV.

1 printed sheet.

The NEW YORK GAZETTE and WEEKLY MERCURY.

1777, April 21.—No. 1330. Amongst other items:—Continuation of Dr. John F. D. Smyth's (sic) Narrative 28 March 1777.

1 printed sheet.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, April 25. New York.—Embarkation of four or five regiments to proceed on a secret expedition to Connecticut. News expected every moment. Departure of Canadian officers and gentlemen for Quebec. Rebels are beginning to be disheartened Peaceful state of Long Island.

Recommends Great Britain to give up this country at once, and treat it as a foreign State, or to bring it into a very close connexion with itself. Further suggestions for the interest of the Mother Country. Sets forth the capabilities of Mr. Galloway. Pleasure evinced by His Majesty's loyal subjects at the suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act.

Autograph letter signed. 3⅔ quarto pp. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

AMBROSE SERLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, April 25. New York.—On the enclosure. Thinks the Resolutions express the political distress and extremity of their framers. Dissolution of the new government of Pennsylvania. Numbers of people daily coming in with their arms. Attack upon our advanced guards by a party of rebels, who were nearly all killed or taken prisoners.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Enclosure :—

1777, April 14 and 15.—Congress resolutions, for the safety of the State of Pennsylvania.

Printed. 1 folio page.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, May 1. New York.—Summary account of an enterprise effected by His Majesty's troops under Governor Tryon and Sir William Erskine in the colony of Connecticut. Loss sustained by the rebels, death of two of their Generals, Wooster and Silliman. Movement of the armies in the Jersies.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

1777, May 8. New York.—"A Brief Inquiry Into The Causes of the Rebellion in America: With A short Sketch of the Methods most likely To secure the future Peace of the Colonies, And Their Dependence on Great Britain. The whole founded on unquestionable Facts. By a Real Friend to the British Constitution. Ne quid falsi dicere audeat, ne quid veri non audeat. CICERO."

51¾ quarto pages, in cover.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, May 20. New York.—Progress of the army retarded on account of the military stores which are required. Positive accounts among the rebels of the Northern army being at or near Ticonderoga. Blow sustained by the rebels on account of the destruction of their magazines. Strength of Washington's army; dejection of that General. Confession of the rebels of their inability to defend Philadelphia. His reasons for thinking this rebellion will be crushed in the course of the present campaign.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Enclosures :—

1775, May 5.—New York Gazette and Weekly Mercury. *N*º 1332.

Two copies.

DANIEL WEIR to JOHN ROBINSON.

1777, May 20. New York.—Concerning the contract for rum with the agents of Messrs. Mure Son and Atkinson.
Extract. ⅔ folio page.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, June 5. New York.—On the subject of Dr. Price's second pamphlet, in which he mentions a Declaration prepared by the Congress in June 1775 containing an offer &c. to Great Britain. Denial made by Mr. Andrew Allen of such a declaration.
Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—M^{r} Serle N. York 5 June 1777.

J. MARRIOTT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, June 6. College of Advocates, Doctors Commons.—On the enclosure. Observations on the condemnation and distribution of seizures in the American Admiralty Courts at Halifax and in the Islands which will result in a flood of appealed causes to the King in Council.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—D^{r} Marriott June 1777. Ex.

Enclosure:—

> 1777, May 31. College of Advocates, Doctors Commons.—James Marriott, Memorial to the King. Setting forth the King's right to condemn the ships and goods of his enemies, taken by His Majesty's own ships of war. Complains that this right has been violated and an attempt is now being made to violate it in the case of the Commanders of the "Squirrel" and "Maidstone" captors of the ship "Nightingale" in an appeal from the sentence of the Vice Admiralty Court in the Plantations.
> Original, signed. 2½ pages.

J. ROBINSON to RICHARD OLIVER.

1777, June 6.—A like letter to Beeston Long and Richard Neave.
Copy. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—6 June 1777. Copy of a Letter from John Robinson Esq^{r} Rich^{d} Oliver Esq^{r} & others relat to M^{r} Atkinson's Rum Contract.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, June 11. New York.—"I have the Honor to inclose to Your Lordship two Publications, [not now with the letter] circulated by the Rebels. One of them, the Crisis, is written by a M^{r} Paine, who was brought over hither, some years ago by D^{r} Franklin, and has been chiefly employed by him in one Pursuit or other ever since. He was a Grub Street Writer in London, when he fell into the Doctor's Way; and, by falling into his Principles, was enabled by him to emerge from Obscurity, and to meet with considerable Attention in this Country. He has nothing to lose, but everything to hope, from the Establishment of the present rebellious System." Mr. Serle continues by announcing their intended movements against the rebels, who at present are encamped about Bound Brook. The Anspach troops have arrived. He considers the rebellion will be underfoot, when the English are in possession of Pennsylvania.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed :—Mr Serle. N. York 11 June 1777.

MESSRS. MURE SON and ATKINSON to [the LORDS of TREASURY].

1777, June 24.

Copy. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed :—24 June 1777. Copy of a Letter from Messs Mure Son & Atkinson on their Rum Contract.

[AMBROSE] SERLE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, June 24. New York.—Departure of the army from the Jersies, after vainly endeavouring to bring Washington to an action from the rocks and hills where he has posted himself with about 9000 men. No intelligence that can be depended on has been received about the Northern army and very much of our success depends upon its speedy descent.

Autograph letter not signed. 1⅔ quarto pp. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed :—Mr Serle N. York 24 June 1777.

RUM for the TROOPS.

1777, July 7. New York.—Certificate by Sir William Howe for the Lords of the Treasury.

Copy. ⅘ folio page.

Endorsed :—7th July 1777. Certificate for Rum ℘ Sloop General Howe from Jamaica for Acct of Mure Son & Atkinson. 97 Casks —Galls 10404.

WILLIAM GORDON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, July 15.—Preceded by a copy of a previous letter dated 30 June thanking him for the attention paid to his memorial; he has had a mandamus granted to him in consequence appointing him officer of the Clerk of the Crown and of the Common Pleas in Quebec; has received a letter from Mr Knox; desires leave to go to England. The later letter is simply in corroboration of the first and soliciting his Lordship's interest.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Quebec 1777.

COLONEL PHILIP SKENE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, July 15. Skenesborough.—Every encomium is due to General Burgoyne "as an officer and a civilian, his plans are as well formed, as executed, and with great œconemy." The rebel force is at Fort Edward and consists of 7,000 men, Putman (sic), St. Clair, Nixon and Fellows are with Schuyler; "as Genls the men want confidence in their officers, and their officers in their men." The country comes in fast to Burgoyne's manifesto. He, Skene, has been appointed Commissioner and is to set out immediately for Castleton to receive the submission of the different inhabitants. General Phillips has gone to Ticonderoga to pass to Lake George. "The General himself will advance to Fort Ann so soon as his Plans are ripe for execution, and so down to Saratoga and Still Water, where the Rebells talk of standing, at present they are in great confusion, this wooden country is of such a Nature, that it is impossible for the General to fix the Rebells in a body therefore the Duty must be done by Detachment." Brigadier Fraser's corps is "to be much honoured, they beat the Rebells in their Own Strength of the Woods." Sir Guy Carleton gives every assistance and is on the best footing with General Burgoyne. The Indians are "under the greatest Order" and the Inhabitants are free from plunderers.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed :—Col Skeene July 1777.

LETTERS concerning the RUM CONTRACT.

1777, July 16. London.—Report of Beeston Long, Richard Neave, R. Glover and William Crichton to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury on Mr Atkinson's rum contract.

Copy. 5 folio pages.

1777, July 17. London.—Richard Atkinson to Beeston Long, Richard Neave, Richard Glover and William Crichton, referees. With their Minute in answer dated 18 July 1777.

Copy. 1½ folio pages.

1777, July 21. London.—Richard Atkinson to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury on the report of the referees.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

1777, July 23. London.—Mure Son and Atkinson to the Lords of the Treasury.

Copy. 4 folio pages.

INTELLIGENCE FROM AMERICA.

1777, July.—"Captain Nunn sailed from Quebec on the 4th June ——. General Burgoyne arrived in the Apollo on the 6th May ——." Movements of Generals Carleton and Burgoyne. Health of the troops. No naval force belonging to the rebels upon Lake Champlain. No certain accounts of the enemy's force at Ticonderoga had been received at Quebec. Movements of Colonel St. Leger. Arrival of the "Tartar" man of war with her convoy from New York 27th May. Shipping intelligence.

2¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Intelligence from America July 1777.

JOHN ROBINSON to ROBERT GORDON.

1777, August 2.—Five months provisions for 8,000 men to be sent to New York as a supply for the troops under General Burgoyne.

Copy. ½ page.

CAPTAIN PEARSON [to the ADMIRALTY].

1777, August 12. Off Quebec.—Postscript to Captain Pearson's letter. "By the last Accounts from General Burgoyne dated 2^d August, they were incamped at and near Fort Edward" which place the rebel army had abandoned a few days before and were retiring to Saratoga. General Arnold commands their Northern Army; he has with him 12 pieces of brass cannon. Health of Burgoyne and his troops. Intended march on the 5th to attack the enemy.

⅔ quarto page. [The original signed letter is in the Public Record Office, Admiralty, Captains' Letters P. Vol. 27.]

INTELLIGENCE from NEW YORK.

1777, August 18. Whitehall.—Details of the movements of our army against the enemy as reported by Colonel Ogilvie, who has just arrived from New York. Repulse of the enemy at Piscattery. Capture of General Prescott by the rebels from his own house at Rhode Island. Movements of Captain Loring, master of the "Lady Gage" transport; intelligence he brings concerning the capture of Ticonderoga by General Burgoyne. Report spread by General Washington with regard to the retreat of Sir William Howe from Middlebush. General Putnam at Albany with 1,000 of the New England troops.

3½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Intelligence from N. York, 18 Aug. 1777.

BEESTON LONG, RICHARD NEAVE, RICHARD GLOVER, and WILLIAM CRICHTON to the LORDS of the TREASURY.

1777, August 21. London.—Further report on Mr. Atkinson's rum contract.

Copy. 2 folio pages.

JAMES GARDINER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, August 29.—Desires he will place before Lord Germain the memorial of his services. Reasons for troubling his Lordship on this occasion. Entreats his protection.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Cap. Gardner Aug. 1777.

Enclosure:—

James Gardiner, Memorial to Lord George Germaine. Sets forth his services, and his having been wounded in the action at Long Island on the 27th August 1776. Desires recommendation to His Majesty's notice.

Not signed. 1 large folio page.

[AMBROSE SERLE] to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, August 30. Elk River in Maryland.—Departure of the General from New York on the 9th June to join his forces. March towards the enemy. Return of the army to Brunswick, thence to Amboy and Staten Island. Chagrin and discontent of the army at this retreat. Embarkation of troops on 9 July at Staten Island for the present expedition. Recounts their voyage. Deplorable circumstances of the enemy. The favorable turn affairs have taken, with regard to the English. Hopes to be able by the next conveyance to transmit more agreeable news.

Autograph letter not signed. 4 quarto pp. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

PHILIP SKENE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, August 30. Camp at Saratoga.—Details of his tour with Lieutenant Colonel Baum to try the affections of the country, to disconcert the councils of the enemy, to mount a regiment of "Reedhesel" Dragoons, and to procure a large supply of horses, cattle and carriages for the army. Encounter with a superior force of the enemy Lieutenant Colonel Baum should not have detached from his party and so weakened his post, which ought to have acted on the defensive till the reinforcement arrived. Manifesto held out by General Burgoyne, inviting the inhabitants to return to their duty, and take the oath of allegiance. Burgoyne is unluckily circumstanced, not having heard from General Howe or any army on the North River to open the communication. Schuyler is sent for to the Congress with Sinclair. The army is in good health and spirits.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed :—1777.

TRANSPORTS.

N. D. [? 1777, August].—Paper endorsed "Lord Effingham's Motion with Remarks thereon." "That there be laid before this House the Names & Tonnage of all the Transports employed by the Treasury since the 1st of Septr 1775 distinguishing the Freight ℘ Ton."

2 folio pages.

N. D. [1777, August].—A paper containing particulars desired by the House relative to the Transport Service; with remarks thereon in 2 columns.

9½ folio pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, September 6. St. Malo.—While at Charlestown was not deprived of the benefit of employing his time as Surveyor General to His Majesty. Astronomical observations. Banishment inflicted upon him for having refused to abjure His Majesty. Recounts his having been forced to sea in an American ship the "Hancock and Adams" commanded by Samuel Smith, in company with another American ship the "Lincoln" alias "Marshal." Further astronomical observations. His arrival at Nantes. Conversation he held with five French politicians, one an associate of Mr. Le Sevre, negociants and correspondents with the American Congress. Two Bostonian corsairs, Wikes (Wickes) and Nicolson, after having made many prizes, had been chased into this port. Preparation of frigates to carry troops to America. Interest aken by the French King in the American Revolution.

Autograph letter signed. 8 large folio pages.

RUM for the TROOPS.

1777, September 6. Head Quarters, Pencader.—Certificate by Sir William Howe. With memorandum of the rum shipped for the use of His Majesty's forces.

2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Read 10th Feby 1778 In D. Weir's Letter of 21st Octr 1777.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, September 10. Chesapeak Bay.—Takes the liberty to enclose a sensible manuscript [not now with the letter] upon the politico-ecclesiastical affairs of America, written by the Reverend Mr Inglis rector of New York, and which has been written for the information of those who are concerned in the Government of the State. Character of the author. Waits for a safe opportunity of transmitting the document.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅔ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—Mr Serle 10 Sepr 1777.

PHILIP SKENE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, September 23. From the Great Fly near Still Water on Hudson's River about one mile and a half from the Rebel army under Gates, Arnold, Stark Poor, Nixon, Lennard, Paterson and Morgan.—Writes in the woods on the march from Saratoga. Disposition of the columns. Attack by a corps of riflemen who were repulsed by Brigadier Frazer's corps; a general action ensued which lasted from "half an hour after four until Night when the whole Enemy gave way" leaving five or six hundred on the ground to be buried. He writes that the army is in high health and spirits and with no doubt of speedy success but will not speak more particularly in case this should fall into the enemy's hands.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—Col. Skeene 1777.

INTELLIGENCE from AMERICA.

1777, September 25. Whitehall.—General Burgoyne's arrival at Hudson's River 30 July from Skeensborough. Fatiguing march, the rebels having felled trees across the road. About 300 prisoners taken. Movements of the enemy; stand they intend to make at Saratoga.

¾ folio page.

Endorsed:—Intelligence from America Aug. Sep. 1777.

MESSRS. PERRY and HAYES to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, September 25. Bristol.—Soliciting his Lordship's interest in their favour. Desiring licence may be granted to them to ship and discharge goods at New York. Loss they have sustained, owing to the rebellion. Distressed position of Mr Sherbrooke, their partner.

Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Perry & Hayes. 1777.

VICTUALLERS and STORESHIPS.

1775, October 1—1777, September 30.—No. 1. An Account of the expense of the Freight of Victuallers and Store Ships hired to carry Provisions and Stores to North America for the use of His Majesty's forces there from the 1st of October 1775 to the 30th of September 1777 made out in pursuance of an Order of the House of Commons of the 26th of November 1777.

2 large folio pages.

BROOK WATSON to WILLIAM KNOX.

1777, October 6. Monday 2 o'clock, Margate.—Arrival of Captain Blackburn, a Barbadoes planter, at Broadstairs. News he brings from Sandy Hook of the movements of General Sir William Howe at Baltimore and Philadelphia, where Washington had marched with his army. An express from Burgoyne to Clinton of his having passed Albany. Clinton's preparations for an expedition. On 21 August General Sullivan landed with about 4000 men on Staten Island. Their repulse and loss. Further movements of the enemy.

Extract. 1 quarto page. [The autograph signed letter is in the Public Record Office, Series Domestic, George III., Vol. 16, fo. 68.]

PHILADELPHIA.

1777, October 9.—An Account of the Number of Houses, Inhabitants, etc. in the City of Philadelphia, the Northern Liberties, and District of Southwark, when the King's Army took Possession. Note at foot of document.—" This Estimate was taken under the Direction of Mr. Galloway and other principal Inhabitants, and dated October 9th 1777."

1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Number of Houses, Inhabitants, &c. in Philadelphia, 9th October, 1777.

JOHN ROBINSON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, October 20.—Acknowledges receipt of his Lordship's letter with one enclosed from Messrs Perry and Hayes of Bristol. Declares no licences have been granted for the shipping and discharge of goods at New York since granting licences was stopped. Explains the way in which he imagines this trade has been carried on. Believes Messrs Perry and Hayes are right in what they assert. States the impossibility of Government giving any aid to this trade.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Robinson 1777. Licences to Amer.

WILLIAM KNOX to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, October 28. 9 at night. Whitehall.—News received from Sir William Howe dated 30 August, giving movements of the fleet and disembarkation of troops. Washington at Philadelphia with about 15,000 men; Howe's proposal of moving towards him the following day.

In the third person. ¾ quarto page.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, October 28. Off Newcastle upon the Delaware.—His inability to send positive information to his Lordship. Help received from the people in the countries upon the Delaware. Insurrection for the King has begun near Lewis Town. Distress of the people; paper bills issued by the Congress increase the public misery. Sends a newspaper. Treatment received by the Quakers. He is not charmed by the present appearance of our affairs.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

JOHN ROBINSON to MR. GORDON.

1777, October 29.—No. 1. Provisions to be supplied for the army under General Burgoyne. Orders for victualling ships to proceed with all expedition for the River Delaware.

Extract. 1⅛ folio pages.

1777, October 30.—No. 2. Transmits copy of a letter which has been sent to the several contractors directing them to prepare a further supply of provisions for three months for the forces in America.

Copy. ½ folio page.

Enclosure :—

JOHN ROBINSON to MESSRS. NESBITT DRUMMOND and FRANKS.

1777, October 31. Treasury Chambers.

Copy. 1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed :—31 *Oct*r 1777. *Copy of Letter of Requisition from M*r Robinson to the Several Contractors to deliver the fourth Quarters Provisions. N.B. A like letter sent to John Henniker ; William James ; John Amyand ; Anthony Bacon ; J. Durand ; & Robert Mayne.

SIR GUY CARLETON to LORD G[EORGE] G[ERMAIN].

1777, November 6. Quebec.—Return of officers from General Burgoyne's army who confirmed the reports of their misfortune. Arrival of Captain Craig from Albany with dispatches from General Burgoyne to Lord Germain. Letter from Brigadier Powell stating his intentions to abandon his post and return to Canada. Speaks of enclosing letters etc. Purposes sending to England all from Europe who by the Convention cannot serve here. His impatience at the non-arrival of his successor since Lord Germain has manifested to all the world that he would no longer trust him to execute the duties of his appointment. The disadvantages under which he labours.

Copy. 3⅔ quarto pages. [The original signed letter is in the Public Record Office, Series Colonial Correspondence, Quebec, Vol. 14, fo. 109.]

ROBERT GORDON, Commissary at Cork, to JOHN ROBINSON.

1777, November 6. Corke.—No. 6. He has now only two ships loading with provisions ordered by Mr. Atkinson. Reasons for the delay. All possible expedition will be used, and when ready they will be dispatched to General Howe at Philadelphia.

Extract. $\frac{2}{3}$ folio page.

INTELLIGENCE.

1777, November 11.—Extract of a letter from New York. Complains that General H[owe]'s conduct since he has had command of the army has been a heap of blunders and ridiculous delays; that he has always been jealous of the superior military capacity of Burgoyne and Clinton, and has now made a sacrifice of the former by disabling the latter from making any diversion in his favour having left him barely enough troops to defend Kingsbridge, New York, and Staten Island. Others assert the contrary, and blame Carleton. Declares Washington's army to be stronger in consequence of General Burgoyne's affair, and that we cannot send over less than 20,000 more troops, as early in the spring as possible. Public opinion of the necessity of changing the Commander in Chief.

$3\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

JOHN CRUDEN to . . . .

1777, November 14.—Extract of a letter from John Cruden dated from New York. His distress with regard to General Burgoyne's fate. Considers that had General Howe taken possession of North River, in May, June, or July last, the face of affairs would have been different. Advisability of General Howe keeping his ground at Philadelphia, to prevent supplies from reaching the New England Governments from Pennsylvania. The trade that has been carried on in the two Carolinas since November is amazing. On the arrival of a reinforcement under Genl. Robertson, Clinton made a spirited effort to form a junction with the now captive army though the only benefit was that the surrender was admitted on better terms.

$1\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

The EARL of HARDWICKE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, November 19. Richmond.—As the state of his health makes it not advisable for him to attend the first day of the Session, desires he will accept his proxy. Wishes that some encouragement could be thrown out either on the side of Parliament or of Administration to ideas of accommodation, being convinced that the longer this unhappy quarrel subsists, it will be productive of greater inconveniences. Further sentiments on this subject.

Autograph letter signed. $1\frac{3}{4}$ quarto pages.

The EARL OF HARDWICKE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, November 21. At night. Richmond.—Expresses his sentiments with regard to the rebellion. Lord Chatham was indeed fruitless in pretending that Government had no share in engaging the Indians on our side in the last war; Lord Amherst could have spoken fully to that point.

Autograph letter signed. $1\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—E. of Hardwick Nov^{r} 1777, concern' his Proxy.

Daniel Wier, Commissary General, to Sir William Howe.

1777, November 27. Philadelphia.—Submitting, after examination of the papers sent to him respecting the settlement of the price of rum contracted for with Messrs. Mure Son and Atkinson, that in the present situation of the country the quantity of rum requisite could only be obtained by contract, and intimating that the report of the referees, as competent judges, may be fully accepted, as only in London could the entire charges attending such contracts be ascertained with precision.

Copy. 3 folio pages. [The signed letter is in the Royal Institution, American MSS. Vol. 2, No. 100.]

Endorsed :—Philadelphia 27 Nov. 1776. Copy of Letter from Dan^{l} Wier Esq^{r} to Genl. Howe on Atkinson's Rum Contract.

John Cruden to . . . .

1777, November 29. Philadelphia.—Extract of a letter. Division among the Generals and men in the rebel army. Dissatisfaction shown by Congress with the terms given by Gates to General Burgoyne. Position of the enemy. State of our troops. Arrival of Lord Cornwallis from the Jersies with nearly 7,000 men. Considers the position of Europe depends upon our conquest over America, which must not be allowed to become independent.

1⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Rev. M^{r} Cruden June 1778 (sic).

Sir William Howe to Mr. Robinson.

1777, November 30. Philadelphia.—Speaks of enclosing Mr. Wier's report with regard to the last contract for rum with Messrs. Mure Son and Atkinson.

Extract. 1 folio page.

The London Gazette Extraordinary.

1777, December 2.—Containing extracts of letters from various Generals in America and returns of the killed, wounded and missing in the engagements at Brandywine 11 September, German Town 4 October, and the expedition up the North River and storming of Forts Clinton and Montgomery 6 October.

Printed. 12 folio pages.

Joseph Galloway to Lord Dartmouth.

1777, December 3. Philadelphia.—Is pleased that his sentiments have met with his Lordship's approbation. Want of time prevents him giving a particular account of the state of the country. Reasons for believing that the rebellion in the middle Colonies is in its last languishing stage. State of Congress affairs will prevent them raising another army of any consequence.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Enclosure :—

Prices of Necessaries out of the British Lines in America.
Original. ¾ quarto page.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, December 3. "Eagle" off Chester upon Delaware.—Details of the death of Mr. Sneyd. Winter quarters for troops at Philadelphia. Lord Howe with ships at Rhode Island. Has forwarded to Mr. Galloway his lordship's letter and is happy in forming a friendly correspondence with him. State of the enemy. Rumour of a proposal made by Washington to Congress, previous to Burgoyne's affair. Washington and Congress at variance upon the "dismission" of a General Stevens. Believes that the reason which retains thousands in support of the rebellion is the persuasion that Britain will treat America as a conquered country. Has just heard that the reports concerning Washington are without foundation.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed :—M^r^ Serle America.

JOSEPH GALLOWAY to RICHARD JACKSON, "Council to the Board of Trade, London."

1777, December 12. Philadelphia.—Apologises for the brevity of this letter. Speaks of enclosing a letter for Lord Dartmouth. Present temper of the Americans who are heartily sick of the rebellion.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

WILLIAM STRINGER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, December 12. Philadelphia.—Providential escape of his (Stringer's) last letter from falling into the hands of Congress. Troops in possession of Philadelphia. Refers his Lordship to the bearer of this letter, Rev. Mr. Duché, for a particular account of the state of affairs here; Mr. Duché's appointment as Chaplain to the Congress; his reasons for leaving them; his conduct and loyalty.

Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed :—Rev. M^{r} Stringer Philad^{a} Dec^{r} 1777.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL THOMAS MORDAUNT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [1777, December] 14. Sunday.—The King has consented to his retirement from the service; understands Mr. Legge will profit by the regimental succession. Thanks his Lordship for his interest with regard to his concerns on this occasion, and trusts he may long retain his good opinion.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—L^{t} Col. Mordaunt 15 Dec^{r} —77.

The LONDON GAZETTE.

1777, December 13 to 16.—No. 11831. Containing the correspondence between General Burgoyne and Major General Gates of the American army and the Articles of Convention of 16 October.

8 printed folio pages.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777, December 20 and 1778, January 2. Caroline Park.—Sentiments upon the present troubles in America. Considers we might be able to recover America if Carleton and Howe are able to maintain Canada and New York until the spring. Arrival of ships in the Clyde from New York; accounts they bring of General Clinton's return from his expedition; departure of Sir William Wallace from New York; General Burgoyne's capitulation. 2nd January.—Ideas concerning the present state of public affairs. Troops wanted to augment the corps in America. Recruiting prevented on account of the new levies. German troops under Burgoyne expected in Britain; observes that the quartering of them without an Act of Parliament for that purpose may be attended with some difficulty.

Autograph letter signed. 6 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Sr Ad. Oughton Decr 1777 Jany 1778.

INTELLIGENCE.

1777, December 24, off Mud Island, Delaware River, and 1778, January 20, New York.—Extract of a letter from J. or I. C. Considers it strange that the British Army should have done so little. Interview he has had with his friend Capt. John Linzee on the "Pearl," who has satisfied him concerning the naval operations in the Delaware. Remarks that it is not a common thing for refugees to receive civilities from those in office; his opinion on the subject; those who have persevered in their loyalty are neglected, not being thought worthy of consideration. There are in North Carolina more Friends to Government than in the whole city of Philadelphia. Clamour caused by the paper currency. Sentiments upon the rebellion; lenity thrown away on this people. Expressions of loyalty.

2⅓ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a letter from I. C. To His Father.

MAJ. GEN. WILLIAM TRYON to GENERAL BROWNE.

1777, December 31. Head Quarters, Morrisses House.—Thanks to Browne's corps for their zeal for His Majesty's service, at a time when scarcity of materials has prevented any accommodation being prepared for their winter quarters.

Copy. ⅓ quarto page.

Endorsed:—M. General Tryon's Order's of thanks to His Excellency General Browne & Corps—31t Decemr 1777 Thos Barrett Aid-de-Camp. Ex.

THOMAS CROWLEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N.D. [? 1777]. No. 49, Gracechurch Street.—Sets forth the work undertaken by John Daniel Hammerer to instruct and civilize the Indians at the back of South Carolina; his cash being now exhausted, desires he may be assisted from the funds under his Lordship's direction.

Letter signed. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Mr Crowley on behalf of Mr Hammerer at Long Canes in S. Carolina.

WILLIAM KNOX to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1777.—"The unfortunate Author of Four American Tracts which your Lordship is already possessed of" sends copy of the dedication which is to be prefixed to the volume to be presented to Lord North (which is really an account of the profit and loss sustained by him by his writings in support of the authority of the supreme legislature over the Colonies and of the measures of administration in maintenance thereof).

Autograph letter in the third person. ½ quarto page.

Endorsed:—Mr Knox 1777.

Enclosure:—

[William Knox] to Lord North.

With an Account of his profit and loss by his writings.

Autograph copy. 5 large folio pages.

[William Knox] to [Lord Dartmouth].

N.D. [1777 or 8.]—Sending the enclosed Considerations. "The Second part will be ready when the Writer's Bill is paid." Lord North has a copy of this "which it is hoped will overturn all his Ideas of patching up matters with the Colonies."

Autograph. ½ quarto page.

Enclosure:—

Considerations on the great Question, what is to be done with America? Part first.

Heading and endorsement in William Knox's hand. 33 folio pages.

Considerations on the great Question.—What is to be done with America? Part second.

A few sentences in Knox's hand, apparently corrections. 48¼ folio pages.

Rum Contract.

N.D. [1777.]—Observations on the Contract made by the Agents of Messrs. Mure Son and Atkinson for supplying His Majesty's Forces with Rum.

7 folio pages.

Stores and Provisions.

1778, January 1.—An Account of what has been done by the Treasury Board in freighting Ships to Convey Provisions and Stores to America.

16 folio pages.

Endorsed:—An Account of the Proceedings of the Treasury in freighting Ships.

1775, November, to 1778, January 1.—Paper Endorsed:—No 2. A particular Account of the Name & Tonnage of each Ship of which a General Account is Given in No 1.

6 large folio pages.

1778, January 1. London.—Paper Endorsed:—N° 3. A List of Ships remaining in the service on 1st Jany 1778 Shewing how each Ship was employed according to the then latest Advices, and also Shewing some subsequent Variations.

3¾ folio pages.

The London Gazette Extraordinary.

1778, January 9.—Containing extracts of letters from General Sir William Howe and returns of the killed and wounded in the different ships employed at Fort Island, 15 November 1777, and of the ordnance and stores captured at Mud Island and Red Bank Forts 16 and 22 November.

Printed. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Ex.

Ambrose Serle to Lord Dartmouth.

1778, January 10. "Eagle" off Newport in Rhode Island.—His arrival in Newport on the 2d instant. The last information received before their departure from the Delaware, was that the General had gone out with 8,000 men to forage; post formed by the rebels at Wilmington of 3,000 men to cut off supplies. Enclosure. Galloway's appointment as Superintendent of all civil affairs in Pennsylvania. His fitness for the appointment. No fear for the safety of the town owing to its fortifications. Difficulty about Burgoyne will be best explained by the public despatches. Departure of troops from Philadelphia for New York. Their intended movements. Public libraries at Philadelphia. Departure of Mr. Duché for England; considers him a "tolerable Sample of American Confidence and Duplicity."

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—Mr Serle 10 Jany 1778.

Enclosure:—

Joseph Galloway to [Ambrose Serle].

1777, December 15.—"Washington, with his miscreant Troop, is on the other Side of Schuylkill, on very strong Ground." State of the rebel army. An early campaign and vigorous measures would put an end to the rebellion in the middle colonies. Is confident the power of Congress would cease if the American army were dispersed.

Extract. 1 quarto page.

Messrs. Mure Son and Atkinson to [the Lords of the Treasury].

1778, January 12. London.

Copy. 3 folio pages. [A copy of this paper, with others, was laid before the House of Commons 23 March 1778.]

Endorsed:—London 12th Jany 1778. Copy of Messrs Mure Son & Atkinson's Letter on their Rum Contract & pressing the Settlement.

Enclosures :—

1778, January 12. London.—N° 1. State of Rum arrived and taken referred to by our Letter of this date to the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury.
Copy. 1 folio page.

[1778, January 12].—N° 2. Estimate of the Referees, and alteration made by difference of insurance.
⅔ folio page.

SIR JOSEPH YORKE to LORD H[OW]E.

1778, January 13.—"There is not a word of truth about the States of Hesse those Countries are only afraid you should send back their Troops." Recommends him to keep up the Hessian troops and to repair their losses. Declaration made by the Emperor at the Diet that he never objected to any princes furnishing troops to Great Britain.
Extract. 1 quarto page.

MONTFORT BROWNE to LORD DARTMOUTH per Captain Barrett.

1778, January 20. Camp at Kingsbridge.—The inducements which prompted him to take an active part in the rebellion were his zeal, duty and love for king and country. Corps raised by him. His intended movements so soon as the avenues to and from Connecticut are opened. Influence he maintains over his men. Conduct of Mr. Innes. Recommends his aide-de-camp, Captain Barrett. Considers there has been misconduct somewhere, or the Northern Army could not have fallen so ignominiously. Daring acts committed by the Colonists. Desires leave of absence and promotion. Sets forth the hardships to which he is subjected. Gallant behaviour of Captain Hayt.
Letter signed. 9 folio pages.

Enclosures :—

1778, January 20. Camp at Kingsbridge.—A duplicate signed copy of Brigadier General Montfort Browne's letter to Lord George Germain. Considerations concerning the present Rebellion. Advisability of employing Provincial Forces. Sets forth the situation of the inhabitants of the country.
5¾ folio pages.

1778, January 20. *Camp at Kingsbridge.—Signed duplicate of another letter to Lord George Germain. Hears of intentions to raise brigades in this country; offers his services to raise two battalions. Obstacles he has met with owing to the conduct of M*r Innes. Recommends Captain Barrett, his aide-de-camp, whom he has dispatched to England. Has been refused leave of absence. Expresses his disgust.
3 folio pages.

Richard Atkinson for Company and self, to the Lords of the Treasury.

1778, January 22. London.
Copy. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—Copy of a Letter from Mess^s^ Mure & C^o^ relative to their rum Contract. Jan^y^ 22^d^ 1778.

[Joseph Galloway] to Lord Dartmouth.

1778, January 23. Philadelphia.—A multiplicity of engagements have incessantly crowded upon him ever since his arrival in the city. Remarks on the enclosed papers. Expense of the rebellion. Congress recruits its army by coercion. Sentiments concerning the state of affairs in America. Situation and state of Washington's army. Thinks advantage should be taken of the present depression of the rebels, and measures be quick, sudden and rapid. Effect of the Hessian defeat at Trenton; it prevented the province of Pennsylvania from submitting to the British Government, raised Washington's army to near 10,000 and laid the foundation of a train of evils. A Postscript of January 31 gives an account received from Fort Pitt.
Original. Not signed. 11½ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles. Letter and enclosures.]

Enclosures:—

1778, January.—Paper endorsed:—State of America.—with respect to the number of Inhabitants in General, and of Pennsylvania in particular.
¾ folio page.

1778, January 1.—A/c of the General Property of the thirteen United States of America with the Continental Congress.
½ large folio page.

1777, December 31.—General Account of Congress with the United States and Pennsylvania in particular.
3⅔ folio pages.

An Estimate of the difference in Price of the Necessaries of Life before the commencement of the Rebellion and the present time, with Depreciation of the Continental Currency.
¾ folio page.

1778, January 1, 6, and 19.—New Account of Pennsylvania with the Continental Congress.
Not signed. 1⅔ folio pages.

Endorsed:—A State of y^e^ Public Debt of Pennsylvania incurred by the present re^b^ellion.

1777, August 24. Sunday morning.—The Line of March and Disposition of that part of the Continental Army under the immediate Command of General Washington when they passed through Philadelphia on Sunday Morning the 24^th^ August 1777.
Not signed. ¾ quarto page.

Enclosures—cont.

1777, October 9. Philadelphia.—Paper endorsed :—An Account of the Number of Houses &c. with the number of Inhabitants remaining in Philadelphia, and its invirons when Sir William Howe K B took possession of the City.
Copy. 1 folio page.

Paper endorsed :— Schedule of the Provincial Assesment in Pennsylvania with an account of the different Species of Taxable property in the Year 1773.
Not signed. 1 folio page.

Paper endorsed :—An Aggregate, and Valuation of the Exports from the port of Philadelphia ; From January the 5th 1771 to January the 5th 1774, each Year being distinguished.
½ strip.

Richard Atkinson for Company and self to the Lords of the Treasury.

1778, January 24. London.
Autograph letter signed. 3 folio pages.

Endorsed :—London 24th Janry 1778. Richd Atkinson Esqr on his Rum Contract.

John Pownall to Lord Dartmouth.

1778, January 31.—Opinion of various persons upon the impracticability of an army from Canada penetrating into the New England Colonies or to Albany, if opposed by the people of the Country in arms against them. Encloses extracts of letters from Lord Loudoun confirming his statements as he believes they may be of use in stating the grounds on which General Burgoyne's expedition was undertaken. Remarks upon the employment of Indians acting with our army. Had intended to send the enclosures to Lord North but fears he has given offence by frequently troubling him on American affairs. Asks whether there is any prospect of a peaceful conclusion of the war.
Autograph letter signed. 5¾ quarto pages.

Enclosures :—

1760, February 23. New York.—Extract of a letter from Sir Jeffery Amherst to Sir William Johnson. In John Pownall's hand. Having received His Majesty's commands for the operations of the ensuing campaign, asks him to use his influence in order to bring as many Indians into the field as he can prevail upon to join His Majesty's arms, and to have them ready as early as possible to act in conjunction with his trooops.
Extract. 1½ quarto pages.

1776 [should be 1756], August 1 and 29, and October 3. Albany.—Extracts of three letters from Lord Loudoun to Mr Fox in 1756. In John Pownall's hand. 1*st Aug. Is endeavouring to arrange troops to cover the country. Does not* consider a defensive war in this part of it will do. 29th August. Cannot see any method to prevent French troops laying waste a considerable part of the country, should they come to Crown Point. 3rd October. Impossibility of supporting a defensive war for another year.

Enclosures—cont.

2 quarto pages.

JOHN ROBINSON to ROBERT GORDON.

1778, January 31. London.—Directing him to dispatch victuallers to Philadelphia.

Copy. ⅔ folio page.

ROBERT GORDON, Commissary, to JOHN ROBINSON.

1778, February 8. Corke.—Concerning the fleet loading with provisions for Philadelphia.

Copy. ¾ folio page.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1778, February 10. New Norfolk Street, Grosvenor Square.—States how he has been deprived of his ship. Astronomical observations he has made at Charlestown. Desire of John Edwards, former agent of de Brahm, to return to his allegiance. Attack upon Sullivan's Island. His detention as a prisoner. Unsuccessful application to Lord Howe to send his ship as a flag of truce. Enclosure. Sentiments upon the present rebellion. Opinion with regard to the conquering of America. Neglect practised towards the Indians.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ large folio pages.

Enclosure :—

1776, December 11.—[William] de Brahm. Circular addressed to " Christians & Friends, in particular to Mess^rs^ Jn^o^ Edwards and W^m^ Parker." The paper begins :—" It is Time and high time, I be permited to depart this Place." He recalls the religious character previously displayed by the Carolinians; gives his reasons for choosing Charlestown for establishing the Office entrusted to his care. Deprecates the change displayed by the people to him in his detention as a prisoner. Sets before them their disobedience and rebellion and desires they will let him depart.

Copy. 3 large folio pages.

Endorsed :—M^r^ de Brahm's Letter to His Agents in Charlestown South Carolina.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, February 10. Downing Street.—" I find, what I have suspected, that the greater number of opinions whom I have consulted, lean to a declaration by Parliament that we will not tax, than to the repeal of the acts." Both measures they say are equally mortifying, but the former is more likely to induce the Americans to enter into a treaty with Great Britain, besides, if an expectation of a reciprocal contribution from them is held out, and that point recommended to the Commissioners, the latter measure is more consistent with his (North's) conciliatory proposition. Has applied to the Lords of the Cabinet to desire them to meet here tomorrow to take their opinion on this point, and desires him to be here before the hour appointed, viz. 11 o'clock.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—Lord North 10 Feb. 1778.

RUM CONTRACT.

1778, read February 10.—Paper endorsed:—Calculation referred to in the Observations on the Rum Contract.

Not signed. 2 quarto pages.

1776, January 21—1778, February 10. Treasury Chambers, Whitehall.—Paper endorsed:—Copies of Treasury Minutes relating to Mure & C^o's Rum Contract.

13½ folio pages.

LORD BATHURST to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, February 13.—Thinking the two letters of the 4th February to Sir William Howe and Sir Henry Clinton fatal to the affairs of this country, it was impossible for him to continue longer in the confidential cabinet. Expressions of regard and esteem.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^d Bathurst Feb^y 1778.

LORD HARDWICKE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, February (n. d. but written before his letter dated 17th). St. James's Square.—"Critical as the present Conjuncture is, with regard to the Danger of a Union between our Colonys & France," he wishes the terms of accommodation we hold out may be made as palatable and efficacious as possible. Suggests whether it would not be proper to repeal some of the hostile laws made against the Colonies, not directly, but eventually, in favour of such provinces as should return to their allegiance, and renounce Independence by a given time. Considers the departure of the Commissioners should not be delayed. Laments that conciliatory ideas were not proposed before matters were so far advanced with the French Court. Apologises for this freedom. Suggests that Gates might be made useful.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

LORD HARDWICKE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, February 17.—Flatters himself there was nothing improper in the manner, and does not think that the matter of his last letter was so futile as not to deserve some notice. Is sensible that advice obtruded unasked and unsolicited, is often unacceptable, rarely successful.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

William Cruden to Lord Dartmouth.

1778, February 21. Crown Court, Covent Garden.—Has received the enclosed letter from his son only this evening. It contains several hints, which if duly prosecuted might show that the blame of our miscarriages lies, not at the door of Administration at home, but hard by the head quarters in Philadelphia. Intends calling on Monday morning.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure :—

John Cruden, Junr., to the Reverend Mr. Cruden.

1778, January 28. New York.—Return of M^r Cornell and family from Newbern in North Carolina. "J. London went with him from here in the Flag of Truce with a view of getting some of his property out of that Country, from whom I received a letter" dated 26 December. Persecution of friends of Government continues. Distress which prevails in New York. Virginia and Maryland supplied with goods from North Carolina into which province an amazing quantity of goods is brought. Is sure of the good that would result if Lord Howe would grant letters of marque to the merchants of this town. The rebel army " have received every necessary in that roundabout way, and the insignificance of the place (Occraook) prevents Lord Howe from Landing Vessels to cruize there . . . . all the Tobb^s of James River in Virginia is shipped from it now" . . . Some gentlemen of Virginia and Carolina who applied to Lord Howe to send vessels there, explained to him the service they would render as well as the profit that would arise to themselves. His Lordship's words were :—' Will you never give these poor people an opportunity of comeing in.'— " If such measures are to bring them in farewell America it will never be my Country." All the resources of the rebels should be cut off by allowing them no trade to the southward and no privateers to the northward. Information received from Mr. Tucker of Virginia, of 2,700 men being voted in Congress for the ensuing Campaign. Sentiments concerning the enlisting in the rebel army. Is anxious to hear the result of Parliament in learning the dreadful state of General Burgoyne's captivity. Intended departure for Philadelphia. Enclosure.

Autograph letter signed. 4¾ folio pages.

Endorsed :—American

Enclosure :—

North Carolina Confiscation Act. Forfeiting the land, tenements and moveable property of persons, who were absent from this State and every part of the United States on the 4th July 1776, who are still absent; or who have aided the enemies of the United States. Instructions with certain provisions for the restoration of such property.

In J. Cruden's hand. 2 folio pages.

COMMISSARY ROBERT GORDON to JOHN ROBINSON.

1778, February 22. Cork.—Sends return of eight cargoes of provisions and stores for the use of the troops under Sir William Howe at Philadelphia.

Copy. ¾ page.

Endorsed:—N° 8 Copy of a Letter from M^{r} Gordon dated 22^{d} Feb^{y} 1778. Advises that the Mersey's Fleet was ready to sail the first fair Wind. N° 8.

T. WEBB to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1778, March 3.—That in his efforts to facilitate the success of His Majesty's arms he had not escaped the vigilance and activity of the rebels and had been apprehended by order of the Congress last April and transported to the back parts of Pennsylvania. The propriety of this step they founded on his holding a civil appointment under his Majesty as Barrack Master of Albany. His exchange effected by Lord and Genl. Howe. Desires an appointment in an Independent Company in Great Britain.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅚ folio pages.

Endorsed:—T. Webb. Amer^{a} M^{ch} 1778.

J. GALLOWAY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, March 4. Philadelphia.—Details of General Washington's intended movements; his winter quarters fixed at Valley Forge on the Schuylkill 22 miles from Philadelphia, "with design to cover and command the supplies of the peninsula between Delaware and Chesapeak, to have easy access to the Jerseys and keep up the communication with the Eastern provinces, to secure his retreat over the Susquehanna and until then to cut off supplies from the city." The quarters for his men are newly-built huts or loghouses, very uncomfortable; cavalry and horses destitute of cover during severe weather; men nearly naked and both men and horses often reduced to the greatest distress from want of provision and forage, in consequence of which his army is diminished by disease and desertion. The loss of Philadelphia has deprived them of supplies, nine-tenths having previously come from there. Petition of the people of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, the Delaware and Maryland to be supported with His Majesty's troops. Considerations with regard to recruiting the army. Hostilities committed by the Indians since October last. "Unpolitic" measures pursued by Congress concerning their troops. Is of opinion that if proper measures are pursued the rebellion may soon be ended by the force now here and those intended by Parliament to be sent; advises that the Loyalists be allowed to take up arms and assist the Government as they can be safely trusted and will secure the country as the army leaves it, with very little assistance. Critical importance of an early campaign.

Letter signed; last part autograph. 10¾ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—M^{r} Galloway Philadelphia M^{ch} 1778.

Enclosure:—

(Title Page). "Father Abraham's Pocket Almanac For the Year 1778; Being the Third Year of the Independence of America. Fitted to the Use of Pennsylvania and the Neighbouring States. Containing (Besides a Number of useful Lists, &c.) The Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union Between the States of America, As proposed by Congress to the Legislatures of the different States. Lancaster: Printed By John Dunlap, In Queen Street."

31 pages 5″ × 3″.

Endorsed:—For M^rs Gillespie, From her Affectionate S.B.

The REVEREND WILLIAM STRINGER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, March 6. Philadelphia.—Sends this by Mr. Rankin, who has had the management of Mr. Wesley's affairs. Rankin has been a good deal persecuted by the enemy and made his escape with much difficulty. He himself is the only minister in Philadelphia who has acted consistent with his oath of allegiance to the King and his duty as a clergyman; trials he has encountered from his congregation in consequence. Has presented a memorial to Sir William Howe asking to be appointed chaplain to a newly raised regiment. Distressing state of the province. Thoughts of returning to England.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev^d M^r Stringer Philadelphia M^ch 6, 1778.

WILLIAM CRUDEN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, March 10. Crown Court.—Result of his conversation with refugees from America. News from Mr. London of the distress prevailing at Philadelphia and desire of the people for peace. "A Mr. Ingersoul from Pensylvania by the way of France assures that the tidings will be welcome and adds None here know how many lives have been lost thro' cold and hunger as well as the sword. One of the Livingstones from New York writes his brother that if Parliam^t repeal the Obnoxious Acts all will be well; Britain and her Colonies will again unite & tho' the Congress should oppose, the people will overrule them therein." Considers if the proposal of treating should be rejected by Congress, that the Carolinas with Georgia would be found the weakest links in the whole chain.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev. M^r Cruden March 1778.

RICHARD OSWALD to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, March 12.—On the subject of M^r Laurens's letter to him, written soon after the former's return to Charlestown in January 1775, which he considers deserves some notice, as the writer is now President of Congress, and his letter seems to express a sensible attachment to the interests of this country, notwithstanding his declared intention of taking part in the proposed opposition to the measures of Government. It must be owned appearances are against him since he has himself gone into the worst of the two extremes he condemns. Reasons for enclosing the letter [not found]. Eulogising the conduct of that gentleman with whom he has corresponded for more than twenty-one years. Refers to conversations he had with him in 1773 and 1774. When he went to Carolina in 1774 he left three sons in England at school and soon after sent over his two daughters. They are now living in the country some distance from London.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed :—M^r Oswald 12 M^ch —78.

ROBERT GORDON to JOHN ROBINSON.

1778, March 15. Corke.—Asks if he may send five ships, laden with provisions, away to Philadelphia, instead of waiting for the others.

Copy. 1 folio page.

ROYAL MESSAGE [to the HOUSE OF LORDS].

N.D. [1778, March 17.]—Draft. Announcing officially the news of the treaty between France and the revolted colonies. A copy of the Declaration delivered by the French Ambassador to Lord Weymouth is to be laid before the House of Commons and in consequence of this offensive communication from France, the King desires orders to be sent to his ambassador to withdraw from that Court. His Majesty further announces his determination to repel every insult and attack, and to maintain and uphold the power and reputation of this country.

2⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Dra^t of Message. E.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to the LORDS of the ADMIRALTY.

1778, March 21. Whitehall.—Orders to instruct the Commander in Chief of His Majesty's ships in North America to co-operate with and assist the Commander in Chief of the Army to carry into execution the instructions for the employment and distribution of the troops under his command.

Copy. 1 folio page. [The signed originals of this and the following are in the Public Record Office, Admiralty, Secretary of State's Letters, Vol. 50.]

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to the EARL OF SANDWICH.

1778, March 21. Whitehall.—Instructions to be given to the Admiral for the assistance he is to render in the proposed attack upon the Island of St. Lucia.

Copy. 1½ folio pages.

Enclosures :—

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to SIR HENRY CLINTON.

1778, March 21. Whitehall.—Most secret. Expressing the King's indignation at the offensive proceedings of the French Court; his intentions to vindicate the injured rights of his people by an immediate attack upon the French possessions in the West Indies. Sends instructions for the force at New York Necessity of concealing the purpose of the expedition. Recruits for the service.

Enclosures—cont.

Copy. 3¼ folio pages. [The signed letter is in the Royal Institution, American MSS., Vol. 7.]

1778, March 21.—Extract from the King's Secret Instructions to Sir Henry Clinton for an immediate attack upon St. Lucia.

1¾ folio pages.

JOHN ROBINSON to ROBERT GORDON.

1778, March 21. Treasury Chambers, Whitehall.—Expressing the surprize of the Board at not having received advices of the sailing of the last division of the fleet, and urging its immediate dispatch.

⅔ folio page.

J. GALLOWAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1778, March 24. Philadelphia.—Account of General Washington's army at the Valley Forge on Schuylkill. Endeavours of the enemy to recruit its numbers. Calculation showing that the fighting men in America at the beginning of the rebellion did not much exceed 400,000. Plan of Congress to draft the Militia into the regular service; his opinion on the subject. Numbers daily flying to this city for protection. Is confident the reduction of America is not, nor ever has been, a very difficult matter.

On the wrapper is a note by Mr Galloway apologising for sending the enclosed papers in a rough state.

Autograph letter signed. 4 folio pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Enclosures :—

1778, March 25. Philadelphia.—An Account of the Number of Deserted Soldiers, Galleymen &c. from the Rebel Army and fleet, who have come into Philadelphia and taken the Oath of Allegiance, with a particular account of the Places in which they were Born.

¾ folio page.

Sketch of the position of General Washington's camp at Schuylkill.

Original. 1 folio page.

ROBERT GORDON to JOHN ROBINSON.

1778, March 29. Corke.—Respecting the delay of the last division of the fleet with the fourth quarter's provisions.

Extract. 1¼ folio pages.

COMMISSIONERS FOR PEACE.

N.D. [1778, about March].—Ideas for Instructions to the Commissioners. This is a rough draft in the hand of William Knox, not dated but apparently drawn up early in 1778 for the Commissioners (Lord Carlisle, Sir H. Clinton, William Eden and Governor Johnstone) who were appointed to restore peace to America and sailed in April of that year. On another piece of paper is a Memorandum in Lord Dartmouth's hand.

3 folio pages.

Endorsed:—America.

Robert Gordon [to John Robinson].

1778, April 1. Cork.—Advising that the fourth Quarter's provisions will sail the first fair wind and inclosing Return of the "British Queen's" fleet.

Extract. ⅓ folio page.

Sir James Adolphus Oughton to Lord Dartmouth.

1778, April 11. Caroline Park.—Ideas on the critical state of our public affairs. Is glad his Lordship approves of the receipt of Sir T. C's papers. Mortification that the 10th Dragoons are not going to Scotland this summer.

Autograph letter signed. 2¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^{r} Ad^{s} Oughton 14 Ap^{r} 1778.

Enclosure:—

Verses on the gloomy state of affairs in 1757.

Intelligence.

1778, April 26. Whitehall.—Paper endorsed:—Account from America. Arrival of Lieutenant Colonel Dyer from Philadelphia with dispatches from Sir William Howe dated 5 March, in which he mentions the report of a revolt in Canada. Intended disposition of rebel troops under the command of the Marquis de la Fayette. Enemy at Valley Forge; sufferings they have sustained. Believes every means will be used to delay the departure of the troops under the Convention of Saratoga for Great Britain; exorbitant demands made by Congress against them. Efforts made by the writer to remove the difficulties. Agreement made with Washington for the appointment of Commissioners to meet at German Town on the 10th March.

3⅙ quarto pages.

Thomas Macknight to Lord Dartmouth.

1778, April 27. No. 87 Strand.—Desires justice from Government on account of the claim he had made to Lord Dartmouth. Memorial sent to Lord North. His loss of two vessels. Sets forth his grievances, and his efforts in the cause of the King. Recounts his services.

Autograph letter signed. 6 folio pages.

Lord North to Lord Dartmouth.

1778, May 8. Friday night 10 o'clock. Downing Street.—Sending the enclosed.

Not autograph. In the third person. ⅓ quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^{d} North May 8, 1778.

Enclosure :—

LORD NORTH to the EARL OF SANDWICH.

1778, May 8. Downing Street.—Private. Opinion of Lords Weymouth, Germain, Gower, and Dartmouth that nothing contained in the letter and papers sent by Admiral Duff will justify a change in the destination of Byron's fleet. They continue to think that every dispatch should be used to send the fleet off to North America unless accounts are received of the arrival of the Toulon fleet at Cadiz and either that it continues there or sails to a different quarter of the globe. Remarks upon the apparent intention of Spain to assist D'Estaing with a squadron in his expedition to North America.

Copy. 2 quarto pages.

ROBERT HOGG to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1778, May 11. No. 49, Threadneedle Street.—Has received letters from North Carolina, enclosing copies of a law made in that province forfeiting the property of all who do not return by October next. Has sometimes thought it would be prudent to proceed to New York and there wait the issue of the terms sent out by the Commissioners and, in case of cessation of hostilities, to endeavour to get to North Carolina, and try to bring away some of his estate. His perplexed and distressing circumstances owing to the prevailing opinion that the object of the Commissioners will not be obtained.

Letter signed. 1 large folio page.

Endorsed:—R. Hogg May 1778.

Enclosure :—

1777, December 28.—An Act For confiscating the property of all such persons, as are inimical to the United States, and of such persons as shall not in a certain time therein mentioned, appear and submit to this State, whether they shall be received as Citizens thereof, and of such persons as shall so appear, and shall not be admitted as Citizens; and for other purposes therein mentioned.

Printed. 1 large folio page.

A. PEPPERRELL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, May 15. Craven Street, Strand.—Places before his Lordship the circumstances of his loss, sustained in carrying supplies to His Majesty's Garrisons at New York. Refers to the particulars of his imprisonment in New Hants. and his application to Congress for leave to quit America, which was granted to him. His purchase of a vessel and capture by His Majesty's Ship "Greyhound." His vessel and cargo disposed of at New York without trial. His application to Lords North and Germain. Desires his assistance.

Autograph letter signed. 7 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A Pepperell Esq^{r} May 1778.

Enclosures:—

CAPTAIN JOHN LECHE to the HONOURABLE COLONEL HARCOURT, Queen's Light Dragoons.

1776, October 29. Salem.—He and Mr. Lewis had been made prisoners of war on the 22nd ultimo. Is sending this by Pepperrell, " a brother of Sir William Pepperrell, who did us the honor to call for any commands we might have to New York. As I find there is an express Act of Parliament to confiscate all American property without distinction; I can do no less than recommend him . . . . . lest he may be taken by some of our Frigates before he reaches New York, and his property condemned indiscriminately . . . ." when his only view and aim in leaving this country is to get to the navy, and to serve the general cause of his King. Desires Colonel Harcourt's interest to get them exchanged.

Copy. 2 quarto pages.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL ARCHIBALD CAMPBELL, 71st Regiment, to A. PEPPERRELL.

1776, October 30. Reading.—Sympathizes with him in the great distress he has incurred by the frenzy of the times. Opinion concerning the late Act of Parliament confiscating every species of property laid hold of in American ships. Does not entertain a thought that he will suffer loss by falling into the hands of His Majesty's cruizers. Is persuaded he will meet with that reception to which his loyalty entitles him.

3¾ quarto pages.

MAJOR-GENERAL JAMES GRANT to LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

1778, May 24. Philadelphia.—Sir Henry Clinton has honoured him with the command of a corps of troops to be sent from New York to the West Indies, but as he has not yet received his instructions ventures only on a private letter. He took possession of the place of their destination last war. It was reckoned the most sickly island in the West Indies and it will have a deleterious effect upon his troops. Hopes his efforts will be crowned with success, but he does not wish to be tied down to a particular spot. His expenses during the American war have always exceeded his military appointments. Desires he may be put on the same footing with other officers who have commanded in America and the West Indies.

Copy. 1⅔ pages. [The original letter is in the Public Record Office, Series America and West Indies, Vol. 150, fo. 1.]

ROBERT GORDON to JOHN ROBINSON.

1778, May 29. Cork.—" Our six Sail of Victuallers are ready under Orders at the Harbour's Mouth waiting for a Wind to go to Philadelphia."

Extract. ¼ folio page.

ROBERT GORDON to JOHN ROBINSON.

1778, May 30. Cork.—"I have the Honor to send you inclosed a Return of Provisions Shipped by me in Six Ships now ready to sail for Philadelphia."

Extract. ⅓ folio page.

Endorsed:—N° 12 Corke May 30th 1778. Extract of a Letter from Mr Gordon inclosing—Returns of the Cargoes of the Sibella's Fleet.

PRECIS of ORDERS to MR. GORDON.

1777, August 2—1778, June 4.—Relative to dispatching the Supplies of provisions to America.

2 folio pages.

JOHN ROBINSON to ROBERT GORDON.

1778, June 4.—Acknowledging his letter of the 29 May, giving information concerning the victuallers. Instructions to complete the loading of the ships, and to get them ready to sail at a moment's notice. Supplies for New York.

Extract. 1½ folio pages.

LORD BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1778, June 8. War Office.—Acquainting him of the appointment of Mr Thornton as Ensign in the 12th Regiment of Foot, commanded by Sir Henry Clinton.

Not autograph. In the third person. ½ quarto page.

Endorsed:—Ld Barrington 8 June 1778, Ensn Thornton. Ex.

J. GALLOWAY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, June 17. Philadelphia.—Reason for sending a duplicate of his letter of March 4. Position and strength of General Washington's army. Change of disposition of people in favour of Government. He could have raised 10,000 men on the side of the King in two months after the removal of Washington's army over the Susquehanna.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—Mr J. Galloway Philada 17 June 1778.

Enclosures:—

1778, March 4. Philadelphia.—Signed copy of his letter of this date.
8 folio pages.

Reasons against abandoning the City of Philadelphia and the Province of Pennsylvania.
6¼ folio pages.

Proposal for covering and reducing the Country as the British Army shall pass through it.
3½ folio pages.

Enclosures—cont.

A View of the present Strength of America in Respect of Her Number of fighting Men.
2⅓ folio pages.

LORD HOWE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1778, June 19. Eagle, Delaware.—Mr. Serle undertakes the care of the papers Lord Dartmouth furnished Lord Howe with, regarding Lord Dartmouth's correspondence when in the American Department. Renews his grateful acknowledgements for that beneficial communication.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—L^d^ Howe June 19, 1778.

J. GALLOWAY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, June 21. Delaware Bay.—Sends this by Mr. Serle who is furnished with a great knowledge of American affairs and the civil and military state of the country.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—M^r^ Galloway 21 June 1778.

EDWARD NEWENHAM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, July 3. Barrack Street.—Quotes from a letter he has just read, concerning an intended attack against our West India Settlements. "Unpolitical" state of the Ministry; how he baffled them with regard to the repeal of the test act which he carried by 103 to 74. Hopes the Bill if it returns will return in its pristine state, if it does not, fears it will not be agreeable to the majority of the King's real friends, and a foundation for everlasting dissensions will be originated. His private opinion is, that it was absurd, impolitic and ill-timed to touch on that dangerous ground; the repeal of the Irish Popery laws without Government was sure of a large majority.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, July 17. Bushy Park.—"Last night intelligence was received from Dunkirk that France had declared war." A letter from Calais was intercepted with an account that orders had come from Versailles to take, burn, sink and destroy all English ships. Meeting of the Cabinet ordered by Lord Weymouth. Question to be submitted to the Council.

Autograph letter signed "N." 2 quarto pages. [See Stevens's Facsimiles.]

Endorsed:—L^d^ North 17 July 1778. Dec. of War.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to the LORDS of the ADMIRALTY.

1778, July 29. Whitehall.—Instructions for the Commander in Chief of His Majesty's ships in the Leeward Islands to co-operate with the Commander in Chief of the Troops there, in carrying into execution any attempts proper to be made upon the French possessions in the West Indies.

Copy. 1 folio page.

Enclosure :—

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to MAJOR GENERAL GRANT.

1778, July 29. Whitehall.—Secret. Is informed by Genl. Clinton of his appointment to command the expedition for the reduction of the Island of St. Lucia. Strength of the French garrisons in Martinico and Guadaloupe; Lord Germain's opinion on the subject. To use his discretion concerning the employment of troops. Concerning provisions, etc.
Copy. 3 folio pages.

THOMAS DANFORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, August 25. No. 1, Pall Mall.—Thanks his Lordship for his kindness in acknowledging his Memorial. Explains the principles of his proposed application. His employment as Registrar of the Admiralty brought him no salary. Represents his present situation as due to neglecting to make himself known as an Officer of the Crown. His services during the war. A Mr. Francis Johonnot (brother to the Captain Johnson twice brought prisoner to England and who effected his escape by bribing the sentinel) has just left Nantz (sic) for America, with recommendations from the American Agents at Paris.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—M^{r} Danforth Aug. 1778.

THOMAS DANFORTH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1778, August.—Describes his situation, being the younger of the two sons of the late president of the Council of Massachusetts Bay. His visit to England in 1774, and return to Boston where, in the autumn, arrived the East India Company's tea; the province thrown into confusion ; effect upon business; position of his father; his death; imprisonment of his brother. Recounts his services. Thirty gentlemen from Boston prepared and signed a petition to Parliament which he also signed and they were allowed £100 each per annum but he desires further assistance.
Autograph letter signed. 4½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Tho^{s} Danforth Esq^{r} Aug. 1778.

INTELLIGENCE from AMERICA.

1778, September.—" Captain Venture of the Brig Hannah sailed from New York 1st Aug^{t}." Lord Howe's preparations to sail with certain ships. D'Estaing's departure from Sandy Hook on the 22 July. Capture of an American letter-of-marque by Captain Venture on the 9th August; information he obtained from prisoners on board. Howe's intentions against D'Estaing.
2 folio pages.

WILLIAM KNOX to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, October 14. Whitehall.—Announcing the arrival of D'Estaing off Rhode Island 29 July. Lord Howe's movements. Landing of Sullivan and Lafayette at Rhode Island. Lord Howe's pursuit of D'Estaing to Boston, where he blockaded him. Clinton's departure with 4,000 men to the relief of Rhode Island on 29 August. Declaration published by Congress against Governor Johnstone, who has published another " declining to act."

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ folio pages.

Endorsed :—American Intelligence 14 Oct^r 1778.

The EARL OF SUFFOLK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1778, October 14. St. James's.—Sends the copy of a letter and paper which have been transmitted by Lord Grantham, the consideration of which is postponed until the 22nd instant, when he desires his Lordship's attendance.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—E. of Suffolk 14 Oct^r 1778. Ex.

Enclosures :—

LORD GRANTHAM to LORD VISCOUNT WEYMOUTH.

1778, September 28. San Ildefonso.—Received 11 October. Relating his conferences with Count de Floridablanca respecting the re-establishment of peace between France and England.

Copy. 2½ folio pages. [The autograph signed letter is in the Public Record Office, Spain, Vol. 344.]

English translation of a Paper delivered by Count de Florida Blanca to Lord Grantham containing an offer from the Spanish King to mediate between England and France. The best method to be followed is that both these Courts submit to Spain the points each would mean to secure by a treaty. In the negotiation is to be comprehended the mode of agreement with the colonies, without which the desired tranquillity could not be secured.

2⅛ folio pages. [The original Spanish is in the Public Record Office same as above.]

Endorsed :—In Lord Grantham's № 56.

WILLIAM CRUDEN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, October 19. Crown Court.—Hopes his Lordship will benefit by his visit to Bath. Enclosed remarks are the result of his son's observations, and partly communicated by a very loyal friend from North Carolina. Mentions his son's departure with a flag of truce to visit his uncle, now a prisoner among the rebels.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Rev^d M^r Cruden Oct^r 1778. America.

Enclosure :—

1778, August 15 and 17.—Intelligence from America. "The Camp of General Washington at White Plains consists of Eighteen Brigades," etc. La Fayette's movements. General Mifflin's quarrel with Congress. General Lee's cause espoused by the New England troops. Accusation brought by General Arnold against General Gates. His opinion with regard to Colonel Butler's plan—that if it had been adopted at the commencement of the present contest a period would have been put to the rebellion ere then. Col. Butler only carries a blanket, he trusts to the country for provisions, takes care to have no enemy in his rear and burns as he goes. State and disposition of North and South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, the Jersies, New York and Connecticut.

Not signed. 4 quarto pages.

The EARL OF SUFFOLK to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, October 28. Duke Street, Westminster.—The Determination taken was to accept in proper Terms the Mediation as far as immediately relates to Great Britain and France, and to express our readiness to restore peace and harmony with France if that power withdraws support and assistance to the colonies. Sends the result and substance of the deliberations. Arrival of five India ships.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—E. of Suffolk Oct^{r} 28 1778.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1778, October 31. Bushy Park.—Thought Lord Suffolk's messenger would have brought him to town; supposes he knows the business upon which he was summoned. Mediation offered by the King of Spain. Lord North does not think it probable that peace will continue with Spain two months longer. Considers it a cruel reflection that so little has been done with our fleets and armies this year. Gloomy prospect. Glimmering of an alliance with Russia and Prussia. Has just heard that a fleet of French and American frigates with a small body of troops attacked Dominica in the beginning of September. Vice Adml. Barrington at Barbadoes. "You have read in the Gazette that Lord Howe is returned and has left D'Estaing at Boston. By Governor Johnstone's account there would be some probability of a speedy reconciliation with the Americans, if there was not an apprehension that the claim of independence would be admitted, and the forces withdrawn. It will soon be known that neither of these measures will take place, but as our troops can not be re-inforced, I am afraid we can not hope for much success in that quarter."

Autograph letter signed "N." 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Lord North—1778.

CAPTAIN JAMES AYSCOUGH.

N. D. [? 1778].—Memorial. Entered the navy in 1745. In 1769 raised 1800 volunteers for the navy; for this was appointed to the command of the "Swan" which was, by his own desire, stationed at North America. Has been unable to meet expenses incurred in the cause of Government and therefore hopes for a more lucrative appointment or pecuniary assistance.

Signed. 2 pages.

Endorsed :—N° 26, Memorial of Capt. James Ayscough.

[LORD NORTH.]

N. D. [? 1778].—Remarks submitted in Answer to the Observations communicated by Lord Dartmouth on the "Motions made some Time ago for Papers and the Difficulty of making them out in any reasonable Time."

In Lord North's hand. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed :—L^{d} Dartmouth.

1778.—Paper headed "First Division for Philadelphia."

½ folio page.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to SIR HENRY CLINTON.

1779, January 23. Whitehall.—(Secret and Confidential). Has received and laid before the King letters received by Colonel Stewart and by Lord Carlisle and Mr. Eden. Meetings have been arranged with the Commissioners and their opinions heard on every important point respecting the mode of conduct to be pursued toward the revolted provinces, the result of all which, with regard to Sir Henry's command, Lord Germain proceeds to state.—It is most earnestly wished that "M^{r}" Washington may be brought to a general and decisive action at the opening of the campaign, but if not, it is imagined that with an army of 12,000 men Sir Henry might force him to seek safety in the Highlands of New York or the Jerseys, and leave the Inhabitants of the open country to follow what the Commissioners represent to be their inclinations, and renounce the authority of Congress and return to the King's allegiance; thus Civil Government might be re-established in New York. It is also intended that two corps assisted by a naval force should act on the coast of New England and in the Chesapeake and a diversion be made on the side of Canada. Lord Germain then enumerates the reinforcements to be sent out and the supplies with instructions as to the employment of the various forces.

Copy. 9¾ pages. [The quadruplicate signed letter is in the Royal Institution, American MSS., Vol. 10.]

RICHARD LEVER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1779, April 14. Lothbury.—Remarks upon the enclosed petition. Propositions made by him to Lords Weymouth and North to settle the business. Trusts that relief may be granted to him.

Autograph letter signed. 2¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Lever 1780 (sic.) concern^{g} Spain taking Ships.

Enclosures :—

1779, April 14. Lothbury.—Richard Lever. Petition to Lord Dartmouth. Recounts the commerce carried on by him to West Florida and the Mississippi. Seizure made by the Governor of

Enclosures—cont.

New Orleans. Losses he has sustained. Ineffectual applications made for restoration and relief. Prays for letters of request to enable him to be reimbursed for his losses.

Original signed. 2½ large folio pages.

Printed papers containing the Case of the Seizure of the British Vessels by the Spaniards in the River Mississippi, and copy of a letter from Thomas Lloyd to Governor Bernardo de Galvez, dated 4 May 1777, demanding release of prisoners.

2¼ folio pages.

THOMAS MACKNIGHT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1779, June 8. No. 67, Strand, London.—Begs his perusal of the enclosures; desires him to recommend his case to Lord North.

Autograph letter signed. 1 folio page.

⁄ Endorsed :—M^r Macnight June 1779.

Enclosures :—

1779, April 28. Copt Hall Court.—Account of the value of the ship "Belville" and her Cargo and of the Sloop lost in the service of Government with copy of a certificate signed Antho: Bacon.

Copy. 1⅔ folio pages.

Thomas Macknight. Petition to the Lords of the Treasury. His loyalty having rendered him obnoxious to the Rebels in America he was obliged in October 1775 to leave North Carolina to avoid assassination. Seizure of a ship of his by the rebels, in December of that year. Recounts the subsequent capture of this vessel by one of His Majesty's ships of war, her first detention having prevented her beginning her voyage till after the Prohibitory Act took place. Other losses he has sustained. Prays reparation for them, and that their Lordships will grant redress, instead of allowing him to suffer by the effect of British laws.

Copy. 2½ folio pages.

W. RAWLINGS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

N. D. [1779, June or July].—Trusts we shall yet be enabled to overcome the machinations of enemies at home and abroad. Desirability of having an honest man at the head of this port; recommends Mr. William Billing as Collector, Mr. Phillips having died the previous day. If Billing is appointed "I shall soon see the nest of smugglers at Newhey demolished and the pirates that have so long infested our coast and in the last week taken 27 vessels no longer harboured there." Embarkation of Frenchmen on board an Irish wherry, Thorn, master; next day another party came, but too late; apprehends they are lurking and secreted by the smugglers. Received last week a letter from Lord Shuldham at Plymouth, who has sent round the "Swallow" ship-of-war; has despatched Bellany to pilot her where she may find the wherries. Has secured a Spanish vessel, a prize to the "Black Prince," put the Lieutenant of the pirate and three of her men in irons, and sent them to Falmouth. The lieutenant says he is an American and produces a commission signed by Franklin, but it is a common thing for these cutters to hold three commissions, one from Franklin, one from France, and one from England; the villians thus escape with impunity.

Autograph letter signed. 3¾ quarto pages.

W. RAWLINGS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1779, July 31. Padstow.—Thanks him for the relief from the depredations of the pirates. Hopes Thorn will be taken on his return to Newhey; he carried off nineteen prisoners from there a fortnight ago. Application of one Day for the post as Collector, states him to have been a smuggler. Strongly recommends Mr. Billing.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

TAYLOR PENNY to PHILIP STEPHENS.

1779, August 14. "Marlborough" at Sea.—Details of his having been chased towards the Lands' End by French and Spanish ships.

Copy. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Marlborough 14th Aug. 1779, Capt. Penny. Copy. Ex.

W. RAWLINGS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1779, August 15. Padstow.—"On Thursday last we had a most respectable county meeting at Bodmyn when an address to the King on the present situation of affairs was unanimously voted." Trade of the county in a most deplorable state and a greater quantity of pilchards was hardly ever known on the coast. A paper stuck up in the market-place exhibiting complaints against Samuel Martyn of Newhey. Information received from the Supervisor of Truro, concerning smuggling at that town; believes it to be the cargo of the "Black Prince." Details concerning the smuggling. Necessity for Sloops of War on the coast.

Autograph letter signed. 6 quarto pages.

W. RAWLINGS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1779, [about August].—In consequence of the information conveyed to the sloop-of-war by Mr. Billing, the smuggling armed cutter was chased, taken, and carried to Bristol; his sentiments on the subject of smuggling. Arrival of Martyn the Newhey officer who brings an account that the cutter had discharged her cargo of brandy and tea before she was taken.

Autograph letter signed. 2¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Rawlings. 1779. Smuggling.

SIR DAVID LINDSAY to LORD AMHERST.

1779, August 21. Plymouth.—"In my last of the 19th I informed your Lordship of my intention of sending the Prisoners to Exeter." Proposes to keep the American prisoners here. Trusts the steps he has taken will meet with the King's approbation.

Copy. 2½ folio pages.

Copies of seven other letters which passed between Lord Amherst and Sir David Lindsay from July to September 1779, relative to the steps to be taken to prevent the enemy landing in Devonshire, and the defence of the county, and Lord Lindsay's request to be relieved of the command of the Western part of the Kingdom.

BRY. BROUGHTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1779, September 3.—Delay of Mr. Downing's appointment. Pursuit of Sir Charles Hardy's fleet by the French and Spanish. Hardy's intentions.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

BRY. BROUGHTON to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1779, September 7.—Announcing an action between Byron and D'Estaing; fears we have been worsted; difficulty of obtaining information. Grand fleet still at Spithead. Paul Jones and his little fleet on the Limerick coast.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1779, October 25. Waldersham.—Lord Gower's retirement from the Council. Stormont has accepted the Seals of Secretary of State. Offers Lord Dartmouth the post of President of the Council. Intends writing to Lord Lewisham. Ireland is running the same course with America. Apprehensions concerning the movements of D'Estaing. Glimmering of hope from Russia, where Sir James Harris shows himself a capital minister.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed on wrapper:—L^{d} North 25 Oct. 1779.

Autograph copy of Lord Dartmouth's answer, not dated, saying that after having taken some hours to consider the offer, he begs to decline.

1⅓ quarto pages.

PARLIAMENT.

[1779, November 25.]—Drafts, not dated, of the King's Speech to the Houses of Parliament, of the Motion for an Address of thanks in reply, and of the Lords' Address.

9 pages in all.

In these last two months are about half-a-dozen papers, statements, etc., with reference to the troops, stores, and defence of Plymouth and the adjacent coast in anticipation of a threatened attack by the combined fleets of France and Spain.

LIEUTENANT T. G. BARRETTE, 23rd Regiment, to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1779, December 16. Brooklyn Heights.—Enclosing copy of a former letter. Desires he may be promoted. Speaks of enclosing papers, which will show the gallant defence of our army at Savannnah. Troops in this garrison are under orders for embarkation. Asks for letters to Lord Cornwallis and Governor Tryon.

Autograph letter signed. 4 folio pages.

Enclosure:—

THOMAS BARRETT, Ensign 70th Regiment, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1779, August 24. New York.—Reasons for his long silence Disappointment with regard to his promotion. His choice of a regiment. Quotes from a letter by Major General Mathews who commanded the expedition, and who, after giving an account of the success of His Majesty's arms in Virginia, recommends Barrett. Appointment as Ensign granted to him by General Tryon. Appointment he desires in the foot guards. Losses he has sustained. Refers him for further intelligence to Captain Watkins.

Duplicate. Original sent by Captain Watkins of the Guards. Copy. 6½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Letter Copy to the Earl of Dartmouth, N. York 24 Aug^t 1779. N.B. This person afterward was thought to behave ill—to the Gov^r & M^rs Browne.

Précis of Correspondence in the American Department 1779. With two tables of Troops at New York and Rhode Island, the latter dated 1st September 1779.

68⅓ pages.

S[OAME] JENYNS.

N. D. [1779].—Verses on the Dean of Gloucester's plan to relinquish the American Colonies. They begin,

> "Who first contrived the Pin
> To Loose Mad Horses from the chaise > And Save the Necks within."

2 quarto pages.

The EARL OF SANDWICH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1780, January 3. Monday Morning. Blackheath.—"Captain Fielding has fallen in with the Dutch Convoy under the command of Admiral Byland." He is now on his way to Spithead with the Dutch Admiral, and two other men-of-war, and seven or eight merchant ships loaded with naval stores for Brest.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

*Endorsed:—*L^d Sandwich 3 Jan^y 1780.

The DUKE OF RICHMOND to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1780, January 8. Goodwood.—Desires to advertise a County Meeting for the 20th instant. Refers him to letters printed in the Lewes Journal and in most of the London evening papers, for the particulars of the transactions. Hopes he will stand justified in his Lordship's opinion for thinking that the country should have an opportunity of consulting upon the present situation of public affairs. His ideas upon the subject. Solicits his presence at Lewes on the 20th instant.

Letter signed. $1\frac{2}{3}$ folio pages.

Endorsed:—D. of Richmond 8 Jan^{y} 1780.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1780, January 19. Maidenhead Thicket.—His thoughts upon America never fail to give him pain; considers his sentiments upon that country are peculiar. Thinks that if the terms offered at Philadelphia in 1778 were conceded, that the most pernicious consequences would result to this country from that event. Anxieties for his country and family.

Autograph letter signed. $2\frac{3}{4}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Serle Jan^{y} 1780.

COUNT HAXTHAUSEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1780, April 7. Schleswic.—Introduces Count Moltke, who intends to become a volunteer upon one of our fleets, to help subdue our enemies, be they Spanish or French. He is accompanied by his nephew, Baron Wedell. His hopes for peace. Asks for his Lordship's picture.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Count Haxthausen 1780.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1780, June 10. Maidenhead Thicket.—A report in circulation that Lord Dartmouth had said to a Mr. Newton "That if Government could succeed in suppressing the American Rebellion, its next object would be, entirely to reduce the Dissenters." Effect of such a report. Remarks concerning His Majesty's religious views. The very arts which were practised to inflame America, are practising here. Suggestions for the suppression of these false reports.

Autograph letter signed. $3\frac{1}{2}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Serle 10 June 1780 M^{r} Ashburner &c.

The DUKE OF MANCHESTER to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1780, June 26. Tystree Camp.—Writes on behalf of his brother Lord Charles Montagu, who upon his removal from the Government of South Carolina, made application for employment. Losses he sustained in the Colonies. Considers it cruel that a man of his rank, capable and willing to serve his country, either in a military or civil capacity, should be totally refused, and forced to seek refuge in another.

Autograph letter signed. $3\frac{2}{3}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—D. of Manchester June 1780 L^{d} Cha^{s} Montagu.

SAMUEL HOPKINS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1780, July 24. Cork.—The land he was about to rent at Morley belonging to his Lordship has been withheld, owing to the persuasions of a Captain Elmsall and one Bywater. States these two men to be rebels to Government. He was in America at the breaking out of the war. Information he has previously given to Lords Dartmouth and North. Asks for redress.

Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed:—S. Hopkins July 1780 Morley.

INTELLIGENCE.

1780, September 25. Whitehall.—Brigadier General Dalrymple arrived this afternoon having left Rhode Island September 1st. French and Spanish fleets at St. Domingo 30 July. Capture of some of the spring Quebec fleet by rebel privateers. Rowley's movements. Great cordiality between the Rhode Island Assembly and Count de Rochambeau. Lafayette is near Washington and commands the light corps distant two miles from Paulus Hook about 3,000 strong. Washington has twelve brigades about 12,000 men, and there are 1,500 at West Point under Arnold. Clinton means to stand his ground on or near New York. Cornwallis's letters from Charles Town go down to 10 August; some of his detachments had been checked from an imprudent zeal in the officers to push forward. Repulse of Rawdon at Lynche's Creek by Gates. Proclamation by La Fayette that Canada is the object of attack. Arrival of Clinton's reinforcements in Canada. Departure of Cornwallis from Charles Town August 13.

3 folio pages.

WILLIAM GERARD DE BRAHM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D. [? 1780].—Reasons for sending his commission as provincial surveyor. He is conscious how it will appear at the time of the Great Trial. His interview with Mr. Robinson, who assured him that the proof he (de Brahm) had given, would take off all the blame which Governor Grant's accusation had brought against him. Recommends himself to Lord Dartmouth's protection.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ folio pages.

Enclosure:—

1764, June 13. St. James's.—The King's Commission to William de Brahm, Constituting him Surveyor General of East Florida.

Original Sign Manual of the King. 1 skin parchment.

Endorsed:—2 King's Commission William de Brahm Esq^r to be Surveyor General of Lands in the Province of East Florida, Ent^d at the Treasury—T. T. Ent^d at the Aud^r Genls Office this 14*^th June* 1764 by David Balfour Ent^d in the Office of the Lords Commiss^rs for Trade & Plantations J. Pownall. [In 3 different handwritings, the last of which is Pownall's.]

RICHARD OSWALD.

1781, April 10.—A paper headed, "The Plan proposed in February altered, and contracted within a narrower compass." "The Papers of February were intended to shew that it is in the power of Russia to make a compleat Conquest of the Spanish Settlements on the South Seas." Russia's power over that of Spain; necessity of the former making a perpetual alliance with England. Plan to be introduced to the contemplation of the Russian Court. Oswald proposes that we should only desire to take a body of their troops into our pay on the same footing as those we have from the Princes in Germany, to be employed in the defence of our Colonies in North America. Effect our connection with Russia would have on all our operations.

Autograph, not signed. 37⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed on a wrapper :—9th April 1781. Mr Os——d RO.

THOMAS MACKNIGHT to the LORDS of the TREASURY.

[Not dated, query about May 1781.]—Petition, accompanied by copy of testimonials from Lord Dartmouth and Lord George Germain 4 June 1781, and copies of letters from Governor Martin 6 July 1776 and the Earl of Dunmore 29 May 1777.

3½ large folio pages.

LORD STORMONT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1781, June 11. St. James's.—As the business is of great importance, does not wish to deliver the papers until he has had his Lordship's opinion.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Ld Stormont 11 June 1781.

LORD NORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1781, June 14. Downing Street.—Last meeting of cabinet held at Lord Hillsborough's; next one to be at Lord Germain's. On the consideration of Governor Morris's bills at the board. If Governor Browne has sent a Memorial to the Treasury, it will come under consideration. The Scotch pension list already burdened but will try to find room for Mrs. Inglis. Remarks concerning Lord Dartmouth's Shropshire friend.

Autograph letter signed "N." 4⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Ld North June 14, 1781.

THOMAS MACKNIGHT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1781, July 19. Kensington Gore.—Loss he sustained by the resentment of Congress, who seized and sold his estate in America; reward bestowed upon him by the laws of Great Britain under which that part of his property which escaped from the Rebels, was captured and condemned. These facts are fully proved by the testimony of the Governors of North Carolina and Virginia. Inadequate grant of an allowance from the Lords of the Treasury. The Petition he presented to Lord North, with its accompanying testimonials, has not been granted. Asks for an audience with Lord Dartmouth.

Autograph letter signed. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed :—Ex.

THOMAS MACKNIGHT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1781, July 24. Kensington Gore.—Detailed reasons which led him to petition in the manner he did to Lord North, for support rather than compensation. Amount of claim (about £4000). Lord North's determination concerning the petition; his mortification. Interview with Lord North. Leaves it to his Lordship's consideration, whether he will help him to procure relief.

Autograph letter signed. 8 large folio pages.

NAVAL INQUIRY.

N. D. [1781].—Paper relative to naval proceedings in America, at the time of Cornwallis's defeat, as obtained from letters and papers whose names are given in the margin. At the end of the document is:—"N.B. The Papers marked thus × do not come within the Order of the House, and will not therefore be presented unless moved for on Monday next, which will probably be the case."

19⅓ folio pages.

[W. G.] DE BRAHM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1782, July 22. Topsham.—On the subject of the enclosure. His intention to come to town and learn whether he continues in, or has been discharged from His Majesty's service. Represents himself as having been left without support since 1779. Dreads to reassume the Surveyor's office in St. Augustine. Desires his Commission as Surveyor for East Florida and account of surveys may be remitted to him. Recommends to his Lordship's benevolence a clergyman in distress.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} De Brahm 1782.

Enclosure:—

A Biblical pamphlet entitled "The Watchman" founded on Isaiah xxi. 8.

WILLIAM SMITH to GOVERNOR SKENE.

1782, December 20. New York.—Refers to the success at Gibraltar. Lord North's observation that Smith was almost alone in not abandoning to despair upon the instructions to Mr. Grenville. "You are not always to suppose that the Loyalists of this place speak the minds of that Great Body of faithfull subjects in all parts of the continent." They perceived that the Rebel party drew no comfort from the Commissioners' letter "and concluded as I did, that this came from their Friends in Your Cabinet; and it was natural to hope the best of Lord Shelburne"; considers he acted wisely. "And now if any man doubts the practicability of recovering the Provinces, he must be utterly ignorant both of their Condition and temper." The consternation into which the Loyalists have been thrown by the instructions, has abated the dread of revenge. He has not the least doubt of immediate peace here if there was complete authority to agree upon a settlement clogged with no condition of future approbation to be obtained. Taxes laid on by the Congress for the year 1782 received in November last, and only show 7,853,305 of 8,000,000.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—American.

J[OHN] WENTWORTH to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1783, February 12. Hammersmith.—Recommending Mr. Simon, an Indian, educated at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire, and lately arrived from America, as a deserving object of that laudable institution to which his Lordship has extended his benevolent protection. That gentleman was employed for two years as a schoolmaster to the Stockbridge Indians, and afterwards as a missionary to the Oneidas; he is now reduced to real indigence.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—J. Wentworth Esq^r Feb 1783. Mr. Simon.

THOMAS MACKNIGHT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1783, March 13.—Is now advised to send a petition to Parliament as enclosed, to desire payment of the money advanced by him in the public service on the request of Government and compensation for his vessels. Reasons for sending his case and claim to Lord Dartmouth; asks him to recommend it to the attention of Lord Lewisham.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :— M^r M^cKnight 1783.

Enclosure :—

Thomas Macknight. Memorial [to Parliament], with copies of Testimonials from Lord George Germain and Lord Dartmouth, that from Lord George Germain dated 4 June 1781. Steps taken by the Memorialist, under the direction of Government for opposing the violent measures of the Convention. Recounts in detail his services. Failure of previous applications he has made for compensation for his losses. Refers to testimonials of Lords Germain and Dartmouth and desires redress.

Printed. 2½ folio pages.

Endorsed :— The Memorial of Thomas Macknight.

WILLIAM CRUDEN to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1783, July 4. Crown Court, Russel Street.—Reasons for not having called upon his Lordship for so long a time. Shortly expects the pleasure of welcoming his eldest son to Britain after an absence of eight years. Enclosure.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—Rev. M^r Cruden 1783.

Enclosure :—

Extracts of letters from John and James Cruden to [W. Cruden], in William Cruden's hand. Knows he can be of use to his country; he would not have felt his present distress, had he > considered his own interest, and neglected that of his King and cause. . . . . . James Cruden writes, " We have advice from England till April the change of Ministry I hope will avert some of those evils which the peace portended:"—Policy which prevails in these American States and deplorable situation to which they are reduced. Picture of anarchy and misrule. Determination of all to gratify their resentment at the expense of public faith by refusing compliance with the treaty of peace as far as regards the Loyalists and their property.

Enclosure—cont.

>
> 1¼ quarto pages.

PHILIP SKENE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1783, August 27. Chelsea, five fields.—" Permit me to apologize for the Liberty, I thus take in enclosing the Copy of a Memorial which I presented to Lord North through the hands of M^r^ Nepean a few days before his Lordship left Town. The foundation of my Claim originating with your Lordship, I was necessarily obliged to Ground my Pretensions of right in the Manner the Memorial sets forth, had I not been otherwise encouraged under your Lordships assurance that you would take an Opportunity of mentioning the facts in my behalf to his Lordship. Give me leave now my Lord to solicit of You that favor (not that I entertain the Shadow of a doubt of his Lordships readiness to befriend me) but for the additional Weight of Your Lordships Sanction, must give to the justness of my demand; The loss I have sustained in my income in loosing the appointment of inspector of the Woods, the total confiscation of my Estate in America (through my Evil Genius Lord Shelburne) myself and Son under a Bill of Attainder which leaves me very little prospect of any future recovery of the same, are the powerfull Arguments, that enforce my application, for those Arrears which other resources hitherto made of little Account; I hope Your Lord^p^ with (sic) consider it in that point of View, and kindly Aid me in Your Friendly Assistance, as it is now become a very Arduous task (sustaining such losses) to find a means of affording myself and family the necessary Supplies of Life."

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Col^l^ Skene Aug 1783.

Enclosure :—

> Colonel Philip Skene. Memorial to Lord North. His appointment as Lieutenant Governor and Commandant of Crown Point and Ticonderoga. His arrival at Philadelphia ; seizure and imprisonment by Congress. Recounts his following General Burgoyne in his expeditions. Losses he has sustained. Asks for payment of sums due to him as Lieutenant Governor of Crown Point etc. from 28 January 1775 to the present time.
>
> Not signed. 2 folio pages.

[ADMIRAL] R. DIGBY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1783, October 1, with additional paragraph on the 6th. New York. —Has just received a letter from Sir Charles Middleton concerning his (Dartmouth's) son, who is a very fine young man. Has placed him with Captain Keats; intended leaving him acting-lieutenant of the "Bonetta" and to have desired the Admiralty to leave her in this country; considers he is in the best way of making himself perfect in his profession. 6 Oct.—Return of the "Bonetta;" desires his Lordship will apply that she may not be relieved.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅓ quarto pages.

JONATHAN TRUMBULL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1783, October 1. Lebanon.—Refers to letters written by him, in his previous official capacity, to Dartmouth at the beginning of those troubles which brought on a war between Great Britain and America. Particularly mentions one of March 1775 and regrets that his suggestions were not followed. Recommends Mr. Temple, who is going to England; he and Dr. Franklin were the only Crown officers of rank who were dismissed from very lucrative and honourable employments for their attachment to America, or rather for not falling in with the other Crown officers in the misrepresentations which so fatally deceived Great Britain. Dr. Franklin has been employed and amply honoured and rewarded and would not accept, if offered, any reparation. Mr. Temple is therefore singular in his sufferings; he had been Lieut.-Governor of one province, had a seat at the council-board in five others, was surveyor-general of the royal revenue in America, and Surveyor General of Customs. Writes this not only for Temple's sake but to show that he also wishes oblivion to past injuries and a lasting return of friendship and commerce between the two nations. Sends this by his son who returns to England to improve his natural turn to the pencil, which his countryman the celebrated Mr. West considers worthy of cultivation.

Letter signed. 3½ folio pages.

Note.—Trumbull was the only royal governor who joined the American cause; he retained his post fourteen years; died in 1785.

[ADMIRAL] ROBERT DIGBY to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1783, October 28. New York.—Has thought it advisable to appoint Mr. Legge as Acting Lieutenant, if his Lordship has interest enough to keep the "Bonetta" upon this station until he has served his time. Should he think otherwise, it will be extremely easy to send for him home next summer.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

ADMIRAL ROBERT DIGBY to SIR CHARLES MIDDLETON.

1783, October 30. N[ew] Y[ork].—Hopes to leave here the first week in December. Writes to tell him what he has done with respect to Mr. Legge. Hopes Middleton and Dartmouth will contrive to keep the "Bonetta" out here, until Mr. Legge has served his time.

Autograph letter signed R.D. 2⅓ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Adm^{l} Digby Oct^{r} 28 (sic) 1783.

MONTFORT BROWNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1783, December 3. Crooms Hill.—Regrets he was unable to see his Lordship when he called. Sets forth the persecution and malevolence to which he has been subjected. Expresses his mortification that Colonel Fanning's and some other regiments had been put upon the British Establishment, and his had been passed over.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ folio pages.

Enclosure:—

WELBORE ELLIS to SIR GUY CARLETON.

1782, March 20. Whitehall.—States that His Majesty's orders for Brigadier General Browne to come to England were positive and peremptory, and did not allow him to wait for leave from the Commander in Chief of His Majesty's Forces in America; neither was it the King's intention that he should be deprived of those emoluments of which he was in possession as a military officer.

Copy. 1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Gov^r Browne Dec^r 1783.

J. CRUDEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1784, October 28. St. Mary's River, East Florida.—Intelligence he has received of a serious and important nature which demands the attention of those who love their country. His eagerness to support Pitt. Has a plan for restoring America to England. "America shall yet be ours, but the House of Brunswick do not deserve the sovereignty of it." Boasts of his descent. Recounts his efforts to carry into execution a certain plan which was divulged by some one to General Tonyn. His movements in consequence. British property at stake in this province; offers his services.

Autograph letter signed. 4 large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Earl Dartmouth E. Florida M^{r} Cruden Nov^{r} 1784.

REV. JOHN VARDILL to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1784, November 9. No. 22, Norton Street, Portland Row.—The Commissioners have left it to him (Vardill) to apply to his Lordship for a certificate of his loyalty and services, or to subpœna him as evidence on his case. Recalls to his recollection his introduction in 1774 by General Gage; details his movements in the cause of loyalty in New York. "I take the liberty also of assuring your L^{dp} that I am not at present concern'd in the wild Scheme projected by the mad Ambition of some of our Clergy of being consecrated Bishops by the nonjuring Bishops in Scotland. One of them, Dr. Seabury, intended to be, & I suppose was yesterday made Bishop of Connecticut at Aberdeen."

Autograph letter signed. 2¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Rev. M^{r} Vardill 9 Nov^{r} 1784.

PAPERS TO WHICH NO DEFINITE DATE COULD BE READILY ATTACHED, BUT PROBABLY BETWEEN 1772 AND 1784.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to LADY . . . .

On the subject of the objections of Mr. Russen to go to America after being advanced by the Bishop for that express purpose.
Autograph. 2⅓ quarto pages.

Paper in Lord Dartmouth's hand beginning "Dissentient." "1° Because it is avowed in the Debate that the words of the Address intend to convey an absolute promise & Engagement, w^{ch} we think unprecedented in an address upon a message of this nature, & highly unbecoming an house of Parliament to make":—2ndly. Because it is a high indignity to this House to insist upon words which bind down its future proceedings and preclude the freedom of debate and power of rejection. 3rdly. Because they disagree with the argument that they bind themselves only to comply with His Majesty's request for whenever the bill comes they must consent to it as it is, or amend, or totally reject it.
3 quarto pages.
Endorsed:—Prot.

Paper in Lord Dartmouth's hand headed "For Cabinet" consisting of brief memoranda of various business. "Proposal of Gen^l Carleton for a Citadel at Quebec. African Co's memorial . . . . Fortifications at Placentia . . . Stopping Grants in N. York." The second page is headed 'For the King's pleasure.' "Reports to be sent . . . Continuance of detachment at Kaskaskias . . . Allowance to M^{rs} Roman—Hutchinson Letters . . . 2000 to Leeward Islands . . . Morris from St. Vincents . . . Rum Soldiers."

DELAWARE RIVER.

Pen and ink sketch showing the three branches called the Mohawk, Pakacktan and Fish kill.
1 small sheet.

EAST FLORIDA.

Paper beginning "A solution of the following plain questions is expected by the non-addressers. What sum has been annually given by Parliament for the Contingent Expenses of this Province, as the Application is wholly invisible? Whether the Indians have not with Impunity committed many outrages & are daily seducing away & openly protecting our slaves," etc., etc.
1 page and 2½ lines.

A Map of East Florida from Surveys made since the last Peace, adapted to Dr. Stork's History of that Country, by Thomas Jefferys, Geographer to the King.
1 printed sheet.
Endorsed:—A Survey of East Florida.

Plan for the settlement of East Florida, drawn up by Mr. William Stork.

3 pages.

Endorsed:—plan for the settlement of East Florida.

Note on back of document:—"The within Contents is drawn up by M^r^ W^m^ Stork at M^r^ Atkinsons in Hunts Court St. Martins Lane.
He lately came from East Florida."

East Florida. Provincial Litany beginning—

"O God of nature potent friend of all Hear oh Hear thy peoples ardent Call ffrom Grants Return w^th^ pow^r^ Invested ffrom Debts & Dues & bills protested Good Lord deliver us.'

1¾ note pages.

EMIGRATION.

Thoughts on the means of preventing the emigration of people from this country to America, the principal cause of which appears to arise from the difficulty small farmers and labourers find in gaining a subsistence for themselves and their families.

2 pages.

Endorsed:—Thoughts on the Method to prevent Emigrants to America.

[WILLIAM KNOX.]

Memorandum concerning Mr. Mease.

Autograph. 5½ lines on a slip of paper.

Endorsed:—A. 44. M^r^ Mease recom^d^ by M^r^ Adderley a Mem. v. Cor. p. 8. Ent^d^.

Plan for lands in New York. "To Apply to the Crown for a Licence to purchase from the Indians within the Limits of the Province of New York 500,000 Acres of Land to be granted when the consent of the Indians shall be obtained exempt from Quit Rents for 20 years on the payment into the Exchequer of the sum of £2,000 Sterling. The Grant to be divided into Five Shares, each share containing 100,000 Acres."

Autograph. 1 page.

Endorsed:—M^r^ K——x's plan for Lands in N. York.

Paper on the state of religion in America by William Knox Necessity of providing for the subsistence of the Clergy of the Church of England in America. Suggests queries to be sent to the different Governors to ascertain what is wanted in that respect in their provinces.

Autograph. 5⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Knox on the State of Religion in America. Ex.

Lieutenants John Lees and William Scott and ten others, to the King.

Petition. Desire a grant of 5,000 acres of land to each of them, free of quit rent, in either of the provinces of New York or New Hampshire.

⅔ quarto page.

Endorsed:—To the Kings most Excellent Majesty
The Humble Petition of Lieut^{s} Lees, Scott &c^{s}.

Isaac Levy to [Lord Dartmouth].

June 13. Lancaster Court, Charing Cross.—Takes the liberty to enclose a Memorial which he intends to lay before the Lords of Trade, and desires to see his Lordship on the matter.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Levy.

Enclosure:—

Memorial to the Board of Trade. Has a scheme of commerce to propose by which Great Britain and America will be greatly benefited. Requires £2,000 from Government to start it, which shall be repaid.

½ quarto page.

Daniel Little to the Reverends—Stevens, Lyman, and Lancton.

Postscript of a letter. Has obtained from good authority the "number of families from the westernmost extent of the province on the shore up to the western side of Penobscot Bay." Gives list of families in different districts, and remarks on their houses and state of soil. Amongst them are about 70 or 80 Penobscot Indians. 5 November. Wells.—Arrived at Marblehead October 27, thence to this place, where he found his family well.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅓ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—State of Families on Penobscot. To the Rev^{d} Mess^{rs} Stevens Lyman & Lancton Trustees to the Care of a Missionary under an App^{t} of y^{e} Gen^{l} Court.

Massachusetts Bay.

List of names belonging to Boston, Charles Town and Cambridge, Marble Head, Salem and Newberry.

1 quarto page.

New York.

State of Facts in support of the Secretary of New York's claim to the office of Register of the Prerogative or Court of Ordinary. "The office of Secretary was created by Patent from King William and Queen Mary when they established a Royal Government in New York in the first year of their Reign Anno 1688."

3 pages.

NOUVELLE FRANCE.

Carte de la Nouvelle France, où se voit le cours des Grandes Rivieres de S. Laurens et de Mississippi Aujourd'hui St. Louis, Aux environs des-quelles se trouvent les Etats, Pais, Nations, Peuples etc. de la Floride, de la Louisiane, de la Virginie, de la Marie-Lande, de la Pensilvanie, du Nouveau Jersay, de la Nouvelle Yorck, de la Nouvelle Angleterre, de L'Acadie du Canada, des Esquimaux, des Hurons, des Iroquois, des Illinois etc. Et de la Grande Ile de Terre Neuve: Dressée sur les Memoires les plus Nouveaux recueillis pour l'Establissement de la Compagnie Françoise Occident

1 printed sheet.

Endorsed:—North America.

PLANTS AND TREES.

A Catalogue of Trees, Flowering Shrubs, Ferns, Gales, Mountainous and Bogg Plants collected in the different provinces of North America by William Young.

1 printed page.

POTOMACK RIVER.

Paper endorsed "Computation of Carriage from Potomack to the new Government. It is proposed by Mr Ballendine, that the Locks in the River Potomack, shall always have four feet Water in them."

2¾ pages.

JOHN POWNALL.

Memorandum in John Pownall's hand. The papers relative to Africa are ready to be laid before the House. Remarks on the possession of Sagadahoc. Barbadoes Act.

2½ quarto pages.

PROPRIETARY GOVERNMENTS.

Copy of An Act for reuniting the Proprietary Governments in America to the Crown.

3⅔ pages.

QUIT RENTS.

Heads of a Plan for improving His Majesty's Revenue of Quit Rents in America.

7½ pages.

ST. AUGUSTINE.

Two Plans of the Court House.

Original, pen and ink. 1 folio and 1 quarto.

Endorsed:—Plans of the Court House &c. St. Augustine No. 7. Plan & Elevation of the Court House at St. Augustine TIMBER.

Proposal for procuring a constant supply of timber from His Majesty's North American territories.

1⅓ pages.

WASHINGTON PEDIGREE.

Showing the relationship of General George Washington with the Dartmouth family.

1 folio page.

Endorsed:—Washington Pedigree.

Octavo manuscript volume bound in red morocco containing a List of offices, Officers, how appointed, salary, and how paid in the provinces of Quebec, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, St. John's, New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, New York, New Jersey, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, East and West Florida, Bermuda, Jamaica, Barbadoes, Bahamas, Leeward Islands, Grenada, Dominica, Premiscuous offices and Senegambia.

72 pages.

Two volumes containing indexes to some of the Dartmouth MSS., only partly filled up.

A folio volume bound in calf containing under the three divisions of "Governors in America," "Law Offices," and "Miscellanies," names of persons recommended for these posts, by whom recommended, and, on interleaved pages, the dates and references to the letters of recommendation.

MARQUIS DE CHARTIER DE LOTBINIERE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1790, Avril 5. New York.—His two Seigneuries situated at the head of Lake Champlain have been incorporated in the Province of New York. Has stayed away so long from Canada on account of his bad relations with Lord Dorchester.

Autograph letter signed. 3 pages. French.

Endorsed:—M^r Lotbiniere New York 1790.

Sir Guy Carleton, K.B., long Governor of Canada, was created Baron Dorchester in 1786.

W. LEGGE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1798, June 21. Bodmin.—Asks for a trifling annuity on account of his impoverished state.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 2 quarto pages.

Enclosure:—

> 1761, July 25. Trois Rivieres.—Francis Legge to his brother Dick. Sends this by Commissary Pitcher who goes to New York. Has placed his will (leaving everything to Dick) in the hands of James De Lancey who is to send it to him. Pleasure at his (Dick's) promotion. Has been encamped at Trois Rivieres since 28th June with five companies under his command.
>
> Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

3 pag

DR. JOHN WHEELOCK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1801, May 1. Dartmouth College.—Gives an account of the progress of Dartmouth College. Two sons of Captain Brant the famous chief of the Six Nations are in it. Recommends Mr. Joseph Nancrede who brings this dispatch to London.

Autograph letter signed. $3\frac{1}{4}$ quarto pages.

SAMUEL PETERS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1807, March 21. New York.—Informing him of a grant of land of 3000 or 4000 acres west of Lake Champlain made to Major Francis Legge in 1764. According to existing laws the land is not lost to the grantee, and he or his heirs may sell the same. The Honourable Stephen Thorn of Grenville New York State is willing to pay a fair price for it.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—1807 March Peters, N. York grant of Land.

Copy of a poem by Reginald Heber on the death of Mr. Pitt. From "Europe."*

"And thou, bright star of Europe's darkest hour,
Whose words were wisdom, & whose counsels power,
Whom Earth applauded thro' her peopled shores;
Alas! whom Earth too early lost deplores."

1 quarto page.

On the back is—"My dear Bob"—and an initial.

---

* "Europe" was published in 1812.

[WILLIAM WOOD] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1826, November 20. New York.—Unsuccessful attempt to find the portrait of the Earl of Dartmouth, founder of the College of Dartmouth. Asks if he has another portrait or a copy which he will present to the College.

Autograph letter. 1 quarto page. With seal.

Endorsed:—New York.

Enclosure:—

1826, August 19. Dartmouth College.—Letter from Professor Daniel Oliver to the Editor of the Rockingham Gazette and one [from Mr Wood] to the Portsmouth Prints dated New York 26 July. Both letters upon the subject of a full length portrait of the Earl of Dartmouth, by Copley, supposed to have been in Dartmouth College, and their inability to find the same.

2 pages.

WILLIAM WOOD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1827, October 1. No. 39 South Street, New York.—Concerning the portrait of the Earl of Dartmouth. "be assured noble Sir the donation of the Head of your Grandfather will be highly acceptable to that Institution, and shall be immediately forwarded on arrival to New Hampshire." Invites him to take a trip to the States.

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—W^m Wood with a parcel of News Papers.

William Wood to Lord Dartmouth, Sandwell, Birmingham, per Packet.

1827, October 15. New York.—"Sir I have the honour to inclose a letter from the President of the Dartmouth College with a print of the day and remain" etc.
Autograph letter signed. ½ quarto page.

Enclosure:—

1827, October 1. Dartmouth College.—D^r Bennet Tyler to William Wood, 39 South Street, New York. Thanking him for the trouble he has taken in obtaining a portrait of the Founder of the College. Satisfaction of the Offiecrs at receiving it.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

William Wood, Agent for the Portrait, to Lord Dartmouth, Astley Castle, Coventry, per Packet Chelsea.

1828, February 20. New York.—"I have the honour to inclose a letter recd. from General Morton President of the Corporation of this City, and the next packet will probably (under charge of the captains) bring to the Earl of Dartmouth, the Book of the Erie Canal the projector of which, Governor of the State, De Witt Clinton breathed his last, on the day this vol^{me} was voted to your Grace."
Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

J. Morton to Mr. Wood.

1828, February 11. New York.—"It gives me pleasure to inform you, that your wish, that a copy of Coldens Memoir on the completion of the great Erie Canal should be presented to the Earl of Dartmouth, will be accomplished." "We shall have it handsomely bound & with a suitable inscription."
Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1¾ quarto pages.

William Wood to Lord Dartmouth.

1828, October 20. New York.—Per packet "Cambrian" from New York, Captain Griswold. "Our Country is divided about equally in its wishes, towards the two Presidential candidates, Messrs. Adams, and Jackson." "we observe Great Britain is still agitated with the Catholick question." Several illustrious European travellers are visiting the States.—"we still wait, with pleasure, for the hour when the Portrait of that liberal ancesstor of your Family, will arrive."
Autograph letter signed. With seal. 2½ quarto pages.

Enclosures :—

1828, February 16. New York.—Newspaper cutting. Orders for the First Division of the New York State Artillery. "The Major-General has the melancholy duty of announcing to the corps the death of the late Commander-in-Chief, His Excellency De Witt Clinton. He departed this life at Albany on Monday the 11*th inst." Mourning Orders to the Company by order of Maj. General Morton. William D. Henderson, Aid-de-Camp.*

1828, February 25.—Newspaper cutting containing, amongst other items, a paragraph headed "Courtesy." On application being made to Lord Dartmouth for a portrait of his Grandfather to replace the lost one belonging to Dartmouth College, "the Earl very promptly and handsomely replied, that he had only a single portrait of his grandfather, which, of course, he could not part with; but that he would have a copy of it taken by the first painter in the kingdom, (Sir Thomas Lawrence, we presume,) and present it to the College, with great pleasure."

William Wood to Lord Dartmouth.

1829, May 16. No. 39, South Street, New York.—Per ship Hudson, Captain Champlin. "The Author of the Life of Clinton, has presented me a Copy, of that work, for the Earl of Dartmouth, wh he is requested to accept,—Governor Clinton has filled a large space in the affairs of our country, for many years, and has left us covered with fame, if not—glory. . . . the good people of this City are delighted that our Mother has settled the Catholic claims so nobly—so honorably to herself."

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page.

William Wood to Lord Dartmouth.

1829, July 4 and 6. No. 39, South Street, New York.—Per Packet Napoleon, via Liverpool. Acknowledges receipt of the painting of the late Earl of Dartmouth. Requests of the Corporation to have it in the Hall of Justice upon the national anniversary. After some deliberation he ventured to permit it to stand in its case, beside the portraits of Washington, Franklin, and a goodly number of their citizens. Desire for the painting to be exhibited in the Academy.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 3 quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

John Trumbull to William Wood.

1829, July 4.—"I have just seen at the City Hall the fine portrait of the late Earl of Dartmouth, which I understood was to remain there only for the day:"—"permit me to beg that it may be placed for a few days in the Gallery of the Academy of the fine Arts."

Autograph letter signed. With seal. ½ octavo page.

WILLIAM WOOD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1829, July 15. 39, South Street, New York.—Informs him that the Portrait has been sent to the College, via the Connecticut River. This morning a young painter brought the writer an excellent half-length of the picture. Thought of sending it to London. Presses Lord Dartmouth to visit the States.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 2¼ quarto pages.

WILLIAM WOOD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1830, June. 39, South Street, New York.—Acknowledges receipt of His Lordship's favor of 22d April. "The Colonial trade with your West India Islands is about to be opened again with the U. S. which circumstance gives much pleasure to our Merchants." "We have rec^d the first Vol^m of Moores Life & of 'Byron's'." Remarks upon Byron and his parents. Believes Dartmouth's Grandfather figured on the American side during the "first part of the Rebellion"; asks if he has "any memos that will throw light upon the subject." "I am desired to say by our Recorder, (of the Corporation,) that they would be received here, with pleasure, & interest should time & op^ty permit, I hope they will reach this side of the Atlantic."

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 2½ quarto pages.

1830, June 10.—Newspaper Cutting from the New York Journal of Commerce dated Wednesday morning June 9, containing remarks upon Lord Dartmouth's generosity in presenting a painting of his Grandfather to Dartmouth College, and a letter from Lord Dartmouth to [William Wood] dated Berkley Square, 22d April, 1830. Pasted on a sheet of paper and addressed to Lord Dartmouth with a note from Mr. Wood:—"Your Lordships Letter to the Corporation has been received by that Body with pleasure, truly, your Lordships Serv^t &c. W^m Wood, New York June 10^th 1830.

DR. NATHAN LORD, President, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1830, July 1. Dartmouth College, Hanover, New Hampshire.—Transmits vote of the trustees thanking him for the Portrait of his Grandfather. Has been informed by his predecessor in office that documents, relative to the severe contest the College had sustained with the Legislature of New Hampshire in defence of its chartered rights and to the ultimate favourable decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, had been forwarded to his Lordship. The effects of the controversy, however, paralyzing to the institution. Its losses and law expenses soon brought it to a state of almost hopeless insolvency. Successful result of subscriptions, which will relieve its embarrassments. Deficiency in the Library particularly in the departments of natural science and English literature, and great inconvenience is felt from the want of permanent instruction in the modern languages of Europe.

Autograph letter signed. 6 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—D^r Lord.

WILLIAM WOOD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1830, July 16. New York.—"Mr Wood has the pleasure to enclose a Letter, & to write that a package of Books is on board the Packet Cambria for the Earl of Dartmouth."

Original, in the third person. With seal.

½ quarto page.

Enclosure :—

SAMUEL L. KNAPP to WILLIAM WOOD, Brooklyn.

1830, July 14. New York.—Understands he is well acquainted "with the present Earl of Dartmouth, whose ancestor was the munificent patron of my Alma Mater Dartmouth College, and it is said, that the living Peer is worthy of his lineal honors." Requests him to send to Lord Dartmouth, "Lectures on American literature" whose author "begun & finished the work in hours stolen from professional duties and those which should have been devoted to rest."

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

LORD DARTMOUTH to DR. LORD.

N.D. Possibly 6 September 1830.—"Sir, I beg to assure you that I am extremely gratified by the vote of the Trustees of Dartmouth College communicated to me in your letter of the 1st of July." Is pleased at the successful efforts of the College to defend its chartered rights, also in raising subscriptions. Offers to give an Encyclopædia which he has understood would have been presented by his grandfather had not his connection with the institution been put a stop to by political events. Will furnish other volumes if he has a memorandum of what will be most acceptable.

Autograph rough draft. 4 quarto pages.

DR. NATHAN LORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1831, April 30. Dartmouth College, Hanover, New Hampshire.—Acknowledging receipt of Lord Dartmouth's letter of 6th September. Thanks him for his kind sentiments towards the College. Gratification of the Trustees at his proposal to send over some new books for the library. Encouragement given to the Trustees by the increased number of students.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 4 quarto pages.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to [DR. LORD].

1831, November 29. Sandwell.—Pleasure afforded him at the success and encouragement given to the Trustees of Dartmouth College. "I was much gratified also by the manner in which my offer of a few volumes to the College, in lieu of those which had been destined by my Grandfather for its use, was accepted by yourself & the Trustees." The case of volumes is shipped in London by the "Columbia" for New York.

Autograph rough draft. 3 quarto pages.

[LORD DARTMOUTH] to [WILLIAM WOOD].

1831, November 29. Sandwell.—Acknowledges receipt of books by the Columbia Packet viz.:—Mr. Knapp's "Lectures on American Literature" and Dr. Robertson's "Sketches of Public characters." "I hope you will not consider me as trespassing unwarrantably on your kindness if I request you, once again to assist me in conveying my sentiments to those whose addresses you are better acquainted with than I can be, and to make my best acknowledgements to D^r Robertson and M^r Knapp for the attention which they have been good enough to shew me in presenting me with their very interesting production."

Autograph rough draft. 2½ quarto pages.

WILLIAM L. STONE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1839, March 30. New York.—"At the request of M^r William Wood, a personal friend, residing in the interior of the State of New York, I have the honor to transmit to your Lordship a copy of a work recently published, of which I am the author, illustrating the border history of the war of the American Revolution, and other events connected with the life of Joseph Brant, the celebrated Mohawk warrior, distinguished for his bravery and attachment to the British Crown."

Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^r Stone New York.

LORD DARTMOUTH to [WILLIAM L. STONE].

1839, May 15. London.—Acknowledges receipt of his letter of the 30th March, and thanks him for his Life of Joseph Brant, remarks upon the engravings, etc.

Autograph rough draft. 2 quarto pages.

PART II.

LETTERS AND PAPERS RELATING TO THE WEST INDIES.

[The endorsements to the following being in most cases merely a repetition of the names and dates, are here omitted except when they contain any discrepancy in date or any additional information.]

ANTIGUA.

1765, December 20.—Copy of a letter from Antigua. "This Island being the only one submissive to the Stamp Act is in eminent danger of being ruined by Famine for want of Provisions from N° America & undone for want of Stores to make Sugar & Rum Casks, ... it will be well worth your while or any Merchants to hire a Ship & to load her with grey Pease and Beans & you need not fear a Charter at a moderate Freight, since your Friends here can easily load her."

1¾ quarto pages.

[1766, May.]—Note, undated, touching the solicitation of Colonel Douglas for the Government of the Leeward or Caribbee Islands Governor Thomas being about to return to England on account of his health.

1 quarto page and 2 lines.

Endorsed :—Col. Douglass.

LT.-GOV. VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, March 26. Antigua.—Asking his Lordship to appoint him to succeed Sir William Young or Governor Laybourn [Leyborne]. His father served the Crown for nearly forty years in the army with singular honour and reputation.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

SIR RALPH PAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 26. Antigua.—Recommending Mr. Lyons, who has practised many years at the bar at Antigua, with the most acknowledged abilities and unblemished reputation, but who was a few months ago appointed Chief Justice of Dominica by Sir William Young.

Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

JOHN LYONS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 29. Antigua.—On account of impaired health must give up practising as a lawyer. Asks to be recommended to some light post, where his knowledge of law would be valuable to him.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

WILLIAM MACKINNON to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, October 8.—Intends residing in Antigua where he is a considerable proprietor, and wishes to become a Member of the Council; begs his Lordship's countenance of this application.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Mr W. Mackinnon. 7 Oct. 1773.

Enclosure:—

NATHANIEL GILBERT, Speaker, [of Assembly of Antigua] to WILLIAM MACKINNON.

1765, December 13.—Thanks for his long and faithful services as a member.
Copy. 2¼ pages.

SAMUEL MARTIN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, November 7. Marshalswick near St. Albans, Herts.—In Behalf of Mr. Byam to be Judge of the Admty. at Antigua.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

C. F. GREVILLE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, January 3.—Recommending Mr. Wm. Mackinnon.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, February 23. Antigua.—Acknowledges his Lordship's letter of the 1st December previous, signifying the King's pleasure that he should repair to the Island of St. Vincent to enquire into the health and situation of His Majesty's troops stationed there. His embarkation for that Island (several times arranged) has been prevented by the illness of Mrs. Morris, but hopes to start in a few days in a Government sloop. Owing to fever he is unable to embark in the little coaster which sails for St. Vincent that night.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Val. Morris Esq Antigua 23 Feby 1774 relative to his Visit to St. Vincents.

SIR RALPH PAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, July 19. Antigua.—Thanks for a letter of the 28th October previous and for approbation of his conduct.
Private. Autograph letter signed. 2¾ large folio pages.

A duplicate of the same.

JAMES HUTTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 23. King's Road, Chelsea.—Private. Describes the spread of Christianity among the negroes of Antigua, and the want of funds for carrying on the work. Non-registration of the deeds with regard to the possessions in St. John, on account of the death of the Revd. Mr. Isles founder of the Mission.

Autograph letter signed. Seal removed. 3 quarto pages.

JAMES HUTTON (Secretary of the Unitas Fratrum) to the LORDS OF TRADE.

1774, August 23.—Memorial. Praying for a grant of land at or near Falmouth, Antigua, to build a chapel and mission house, and for a burying ground.

Autograph, signed. 1¾ pages. In addressed wrapper. With seal.

VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 20. Antigua.—"While I lament my own, & the nation's loss by your Lordship at so critical a time quitting the post you lately held, permit me to congratulate you on your release from the extreme fatigue" etc. Wishes to be reimbursed the money he has spent on the repairs of the Government House. Has been unable to go to St. Vincent owing to his wife's illness.

Autograph letter signed. 2 large folio pages.

SIR RALPH PAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 7. Antigua.—His visit to England on account of Lady Payne's health. Mr. Nugent spent ten days at Antigua before proceeding to Tortola. "I dare persuade myself that he will acquit himself of the Commission with which his Majesty hath honour'd him, with Reputation." The people among whom he is to live are neither the most tractable or pleasant in a political Light, nor the most sociable or amiable in a convivial one . . . . he shall not want the Interposition of my auxiliary authority for the Support of his own in the Virgin Islands, and I will exert every Endeavour in my Power to render his Residence in them, easy and comfortable to Him."

Autograph letter signed. 3½ pages.

Endorsed:—S^{r} Ralph Payne Antigua 7th Feb. 1775. On his Leave of Absence.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, October 4. Antigua.—Acknowledges receipt of letters of 5 July and 2 August. Pleasure at his Lordship's approbation of his endeavours to furnish a true state of St. Vincent. Attitude of the Caribs as regards the Articles of Peace and ceded lands. His fears of trouble from them justified by their recent conduct.

Autograph letter signed. 13 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Lieut^{t} Gov^{r} Morris Aug. 1775.

1775.—Memoranda of Subjects on which Sir Ralph Payne has had the Honour of Speaking to the Earl of Dartmouth and which his Lordship has been pleased to promise to take under his Consideration.

M.S. 6¾ pages.

Endorsed:—Mem. from S^{r} R. Payne, respecting the Affairs of his Government. 1775. Ex.

BAHAMAS.

Petition of John Green.

1764, June 6, Wednesday.—Addressed to Governor William Shirley and the Honourable Gentlemen of His Majesty's Council constituting a Court of Chancery. Copy certified by P. Brown Reg. Can. 7 August 1772. Has been unsuccessful in getting security. Prays that his equity may not be hurt.

1 page.

Endorsed:—filed 6th June 1764. P. Brown Reg. Green to The Court.

Petition of John Green.

1765, February 13.—To the same. Copy also certified by P. Brown, 6 August 1772. His case of the dismissal of two bills filed against Gould and Massey, on the ground that they were not signed. The Governor exacted a "Pistole for his Fiat" as it is called, but would never have any motion about it after—no loan or ordinance to support such exactions. . . . . "Hoping to save expences I lost a Pistole more in submiting to the imposition . . . . the dismission may appear to be want of security for Costs, but the Judges to me talked on the heads here handled. As things are so secret it is probable at a private consultation they altered their intended proceedings & assigned a new cause of dismission. They are capable of anything."

2½ pages.

Endorsed:—John Greens Petition to the Court, filed this 13th Feby 1765 Philip Brown Regr.

Andrew Symmer to Lord [Dartmouth].

1765, August 12. London.—Since the last peace he has been employed about Inagua and Turks Island, and from observations he made, Mr. Gambier, who commanded at Providence in the absence of Mr. Shirley, gave him a Commission to take possession of Inagua, which, before he could do so, was seized by the French by orders of D'Estaing the French Governor of St. Domingo, who immediately gave up possession on seeing Symmer's Commission saying "He never would dispute His Britannick Majesties Right to these Islands."

Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Enclosure:—

Andrew Symmer to Lord Dartmouth.

Remarks on Inagua and Turks Island. "Turks Island and Inagua, are the Southernmost of the Bahama and Lucayos Islands . . . The Importance of their Situation to the French appears from their repeated Attempts to get Possession of them which if they had effected, would not only have secured their own Trade, but would likewise have had our Jamaica Trade at their Command. . . . The great Quantity of Salt, capable of being made on Turks Island is an Object which cannot be, too much attended to, on account of our Fisheries. . . . The other Conveniences attending a Settlement from their Neighbourhood to the Rich & Opulent Islands of Porto Rico, Hispaniola & Cuba, I shall not point out."

Enclosure—cont.

Autograph, signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

JOHN GREEN to the COURT of CHANCERY.

1766, April 23.—Petition. Copy certified by Philip Brown 7 August 1772. Praying to be permitted to leave these Islands where he has for several years been confined by a Ne exeat.

3½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—In Chancery. John Green To the Court. Petition filed 23^d^ April 1766 P. Brown Reg: Can:

THOMAS SHIRLEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 3. New Providence.

Letter signed. 1½ pages.

Endorsed:—B. 1. Gov^r^ Shirley 3 Nov^r^ 1772, desiring Removal to a better Government.

JOSEPH GREEN (Linen Draper in Wine Street) to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 20. Bristol.—With reference to his brother in the West Indies.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Enclosures:—

Copy of his petition to the Earl of Hillsborough on behalf of his brother John Green of New Providence.

10 quarto pages.

1771, November 31. New Providence. From my false imprisonment.—" Copy, or nearly so, of M^r^ William Taylor's second letter to Joseph Green on his own and John Green's false imprisonment and ill treatment."

16¾ quarto pages.

Manuscript Pamphlet headed:—View of the Dungeon in which John Green Esq^r^ then a Member of the lower House of Assembly was confined near eleven Months for a Contempt of Chancery, and he all the Time so sick and weak as to be scarce able to sit up right. From the rough draft of a Petition to Governor Shirley dated 10 November 1767, delivered 23^rd^ December.

10 small quarto pages.

The above are in a wrapper Endorsed:—N^o^ 1. Letter of 20^th^ Feb. 1773. from M^r^ Green of Bristol—with Copies of a Petition, and Papers which were delivered to Lord Hillsboro & by his Lordship sent to the Governor of the Bahamas on the 4^th^ Dec^r^ 1771.

JOSEPH GREEN to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, March 6. Bristol.—Same subject.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

BARLOW TRECOTHICK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, May 30. Addington Surry.—Recommending Mr. Shirley to the Government of Dominica, Sir William Young having resigned.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—A—14. M^r^ Trecothick, Addington, Surry, 30^th^ May 1773, for Gov^r^ Shirley.

JOSEPH GREEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 7. Bristol.
Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed .—A—16 M^r^ Green Bristol 7 June 1773 in behalf of his Brother at Providence, Bahamas.

JOSEPH GREEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 7. Bristol.—Has received a large packet of papers from his brother bearing on his case. Is convinced New Providence affairs want searching into.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Enclosures :—

JOHN GREEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, April 17. New Providence.—The injustice of one man holding several offices in the Island—all the appointments worth having being held by Mr. Stirling, Mr. Pratt, and Mr. Hutchinson the Governor's nephew. "We want a great change of Men & Measures; & in nothing more so, than the uncertainty & omission of facts in order to contest illegallities, which are designedly supprest."
2¾ quarto pages.

JOHN GREEN to the COURT OF CHANCERY.

1764, April 25.—Petition, with several memoranda on the back. Copy, certified by Philip Brown. 1½ large folio pages.

*Endorsed:—*25 April 1764 Petition to take off the Ne Exiat but never heard after a Copy served altho' several times mentioned in Court.

Another petition to the same.
8 folio pages.

JOHN GREEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, April 1. New Providence.—Recounting his troubles and bad treatment, "has had the misfortune to suffer severely from the mis-rule of this Colony."
32 quarto pages.

THOMAS DUNN to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, March 18. Dulwich.—Sends the following.
Autograph letter signed. ¾ qvarto page.

Enclosures :—

Manuscript Pamphlet sewn in stiff pink covers, " Case of John Green Esq^{r} as extracted from his Letters."
22½ pages, small quarto.

N.D. Petition of John Green to Governor Shirley and the Council.
3¼ folio pages.

1767, March 3.—Oath concerning the seizure of M^{r} Green's goods by the Marshal Philip Brown, with notes on the back. John Green Defendant and James Rigby Plaintiff. Commenced February 1764.
1½ quarto pages.

1776, January 29. Presented and read in Court. Petition of John Green to Governor Shirley and the Court of Chancery. With memoranda on the back.
2⅛ quarto pages.
Endorsed :—This Petition is remarkable, & deserves Attention N^{o} 6.

Manuscript Pamphlet sewn in stiff pink covers—" New Providence Transactions as extracted from Jn^{o} Green Esq^{rs} Letters."
26½ quarto pages.

GOVERNOR BROWNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, May 16. Greenwich.—Hopes His Lordship will seriously consider the enclosure.

Autograph letter. In the third person. ⅓ folio page.

*Endorsed :—*Gov^{r} Browne 16 May 1774 conc^{g} a Vessel for the use of the Bahamas.

Enclosure :—

[LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR] JOHN GAMBIER to GOVERNOR BROWNE.

1774, May 13. Queen Ann Street.—Advantages to be gained by the Governor of the Bahamas having a vessel under his command.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

MONTFORT BROWNE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, May 19. Charlotte Street.

Autograph letter signed. 1¼ quarto pages.

*Endorsed :—*Gov^{r} Browne 19 May 1774, concer^{g} administra^{n} of Justice in the Bahama Islands.

JOSEPH GREEN to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, August 27. Bristol.—With reasons against the Chancery Decree.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

GOVERNOR MONTFORT BROWNE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, October 24. Providence.—Private. Safe arrival in Providence 22nd September. Reception by Governor Shirley and the inhabitants. Disposition of the people. Distress for the want of a Chief Justice, "for neither Law nor Justice has been administered here for some years;" Begs his Lordship to send a qualified person in case Mr. Attwood refuses his offer. Desires leave to go to West Florida to settle his affairs.
Autograph letter signed. 3¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^r^ Browne Private 14 (sic) Oct^r^ 1774 +

CHIEF JUSTICE THOMAS ATTWOOD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, February 1.
Autograph letter signed. 3½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Ch. Justice Atwood, 1st Feb^ry^ 1775 respecting his own Affairs and Gov^r^ Browne at the Bahamas.

JOSEPH GREEN to MR. SECRETARY POWNALL.

1775, April 6. Bristol.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Green of Bristol 6th April 1775, relative to his Brother's Imprisonment in the Bahamas. M^r^ Secretary Pownall.

Enclosure:—

JOHN GREEN to JOSEPH GREEN.

1774, December 8, and 1775, February 5. New Providence. From a Felon's Dungeon.—Blaming his brother for his tardiness in seeking relief for him.
4 large folio pages.

JOSEPH GREEN to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, April 20. Bristol.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Green Bristol, 20th April, 1775, relative to his Brothers Imprisonment in the W. Indies.

CHARLOTTE (MRS.) BROWNE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, June ye 8th. New Providence. Government House.—Recommending Captain Green to his Lordship's notice. "Capt Green must do justice to your Lordship, which if he do's the favorable impression he must give the People of this Colony of your Lordship will be such as will make me inexpressibly happy to hear; likewise flatter myself it will give them a more partial turn in our favor which hitherto they have not had."
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

AMBROSE SERLE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, December 2.—Explaining the case of D. McCarthy who possesses the secret for the manufacture of Artificial stone.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

D. McCARTHY to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, November 29.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.
Endorsed : — Mr M^c^Carthy, concerning a bond from Gov^r^ Browne.

THOMAS ATWOOD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, March 29. Nassau, New Providence.—Sends duplicate of his former letter and enclosures, whereby His Lordship will easily perceive that the words and actions of the people do not in the least correspond. " They treat the Governor with contempt." " By the Incident that has lately happen'd there is too great Reason to suspect that the place has been sold to the Rebels."
Autograph letter signed. 2¾ quarto pages.

JOSEPH GREEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, July 13. Bristol.—Encloses a letter from his brother shewing the abuses and mis-government in the Island of New Providence.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

JOHN GREEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, May 7. New Providence.—Has pointed out in previous letters certain actions of the Governor and sundry officers, " thereby continuing the infamous character all Nations round have justly entertained of New Providence from bad Rulers." States other circumstances which are misrepresented in dispatches sent home, and which shew the Governor and Council to be in league with the Rebels.
4 folio pages.

MONTFORT BROWNE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1779, August 4. New Providence.—Pleasure afforded him in gaining his Lordship's approbation of his conduct. Sir William Howe's apparent surprise and pleasure at his raising a brigade which has always distinguished itself. " I lament exceedingly, My Lord, the necessity I am under in declaring to your Lordship, that since my arrival at my Government I have been in a second Hell. . . . The servants of the Crown who are all engaged in carrying on an extensive & lucrative trade with the rebellious Colonys are now become the principall Abettors." Unhealthy state of New Providence.
Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Papers by Andrew Symmer.

1780.—On Turks Island. "The American Trade hath suffered more interruption, this War from any other in the West Indies, for which I need only appeal to the Admirals Gayton & Sir Peter Parker. But its greatest Value arises from the immense Quantity of Salt which is now made on those Islands, which are capable of supplying all North America with that important Article." The enemies chiefly to be dreaded are the Spanish and French Piccaroons belonging to the Island of St. Domingo. Sets forth the force it would be necessary to have there to keep them in subjection and the inhabitants and salt rakers in allegiance to the Mother Country.
Autograph, signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

N. D.—Queries in relation to Turks Island and Inagua. Beginning : —"The Situation of Turks Island & Inagua Command the Passage of all French Vessells bound to the North or West Parts of Hispaniola and all North American Vessells bound to Hispaniola or Jamaica."
In Symmer's hand, not signed. 1½ quarto pages.

N. D.—Descriptive Account of the Bahama Islands. "The Buccaneers first settled them on account of their vicinity to the Spanish settlements, who were at that time the only Power, which had an American Trade worth attending to." Points out the importance of salt-making on Turks Island. "All the Vessells from North America bound to Jamaica pass thro' Turks Channell, and the Caiques, which is exceeding Safe." Sets forth the large trade that could be carried on with these Islands.
Autograph, signed. 8 quarto pages.

N. D.—To Lord Dartmouth. An account of the Bahama Islands. Several of the Keys and Islands are capable of growing cotton and indigo. Cotton has been tried at Providence, and found to be of superior quality to that grown in Jamaica. Proposal that the Crown should grant lands to proprietors on condition that they cultivated and brought them to a certain state of culture within a specified term of years.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

BARBADOES.

The word is spelt Barbados or Barbadoes indifferently. We have followed the document in each case.

Barbados Council and General Assembly to the King.

N. D. [1766, May.]—Address. Speaking in high terms of the satisfaction Governor Charles Pinfold has given to all classes during the period he has held Office—a "ffree and faithfull Tribute of Applause which our Duty and his Desert alone conspire to draw from us at its closing Scene."
Original, signed. 1 large page.

JOHN WALTER to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1772, August ye 23. Farley Hill near Reading.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Walter 23d Augst 1772, recommending Mr Cobham. Mr Walter. Counsellor in Barbadoes.

GEORGE WALKER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, August 26. Bentinck Street, Cavendish Square.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Mr Walker 25 Augst 1772, recommending Mr Cobham to be a Councillor in Barbados. Mr Walker. Counsellor in Barbados. Ex.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1772, October 15. London.—Is laid up with a fever. Believes there are no letters of importance received at the Office during his absence except one from Barbadoes announcing the death of Governor Spry of a putrid fever. Wishes to be appointed to that Government himself.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

EDWARD HAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 16. James Street, Westminster.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B 35. Honble Mr Hay 16 Oct. 1772, desiring to be appointed Govr of Barbados.

The ARCHBISHOP OF YORK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 22. Brodsworth.—Recommending his brother Mr. Edward Hay for the Government of Barbados.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

LORD TYRAWLEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 24. Isleworth.
Original, in the third person. ½ folio page.

Endorsed:—A 38 Lord Tyrawley 24 Oct. 1772, recommending his Son for a Government in America.

Enclosure:—

Lieutenant Colonel Charles O'Hara, Memorial to The King. Setting forth his twenty years' service. Praying to be appointed to the Government of Barbadoes.
1 folio page.

EDWARD HAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, Fryday, October 30. James Street.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Honble Mr Hay, 30 Oct. 1772. Thanks for his Appointmt to the Govt of Barbados. Honble Mr Hay 30 Octr 1772.

The ARCHBISHOP OF YORK to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 2. Brodsworth.—Thanks for appointing his brother to the Government of Barbados.
Autograph letter signed. ¾ quarto page.

W. S. CLARKE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 4. West Bromwich.—Recommending his brother in Barbadoes to his Lordship's notice, to be mentioned to the new Governor, in case of a vacancy occurring which he might be fitted to hold.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

SAMUEL ESTWICK (Assistant Agent for Barbados) to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 9. Portman Square.
Autograph letter signed. 3¾ folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Estwick 9 Nov^r^ 1772, respecting the Impropriety of a Lieut. Gov^r^ for Barbados.

[1772.]—Printed paper headed "The Case of Joseph Keeling, Esq.; Relative to His Claim to a Large Estate in the Island of Barbados."
2½ folio pages.

[1772.]—Memorandum respecting Mr. Keeling's Affairs.
Draft in Lord Dartmouth's hand. 2 small quarto pages.

EDWARD HAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 14. James Street, Westminster.—Thanks Lord Dartmouth for speaking to Lord Sandwich about a ship to convey him to his Government; that he will go by the merchant ship "Favourite Betsey" Joseph Lee, Master, which will be at Gravesend by March 10.
Autograph letter in the third person. 1 quarto page.

NOTE by GOVERNOR HAY.

[? 1773, February].—Relative to a ship to convey him to his Government.
Autograph. 2 pages.

GOVERNOR HAY to GEORGE WALKER.

1773, September 7. Barbados.—His dealings with the Council. Low state of the Island owing to the landed proprietors leaving their estates to managers, or letting them go to ruin entirely. The Island wants encouragement. "An Act similar to that in favour of Jamaica & Dominica, would be of great advantage to it."
Autograph letter signed. 7 quarto pages.

GOVERNOR HAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, February 8. Barbados.
Autograph letter signed. 3½ pages.

Endorsed:—Gov^r Hay Barbadoes 8 Feb^y 1774, desiring the Collectorship of the Port of Bridge Town for his Son.

GOVERNOR HAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, June 27. Barbados.—Private. Recommendation of Mr. Hugh Cairnes. Settlement of Mr. Clarke's affairs. Mr. Jordan's proposed resignation in the Council. Destruction among the sugar-canes by the vermin general throughout the West India Islands.
Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

GEORGE WALKER to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, Thursday, July 20. Cavendish Square.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—G. Walker Esq^r 20 July 1775, relative to the forfeited Bonds of the Merchants of Barbados.

GOVERNOR HAY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, June 7. Barbados.—On His Lordship recommending M^r Fitzherbert to be the Agent of Barbados.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Gov^r Hay, 7 June 1777. G. R.

N. D.—Paper endorsed:—Extract from the Commission to the Governor of Barbadoes. In case of the death or absence of the Governor, and there be no Lieutenant Governor or Commander in Chief appointed, the eldest councillor to assume the duties of same.
⅔ page.

N. D.—Queries by the Bishop of London on Instruction 55 arising on account of the petition of "the Parishioners of St Lucy to deprive M^r Harris their Rector" for immorality.
Original. 3 quarto pages.

LORD SEAFORTH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1801, December 29. Pilgrim.—Wishes to be at the head of the commission coming out to survey and sell the Carribbee Lands; asks his Lordship to help him to that post.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Duplicate of the foregoing, with an extra paragraph concerning his property in Guiana.
2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—1802. L^d Seaforth Pilgrim Barbadoes Dec. 29. Original sent by the D. of Cumberland Packet 29th Dec^r 1801.

BERMUDAS.

1766, January 31.—Memorandum of minutes, possibly of the Board of Trade, relative to the trade of the Islands.
1 quarto page.

Robert Nettleton to Lord Dartmouth.

1766, May 1. Leadenhall Street.—Praying his Lordship's recommendation for some provision for Mr. Popple.
Letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

Henry Popple to Lord Dartmouth.

> Memorial. Is the son of Governor Alured Popple of Bermuda, deceased. Sets forth his case, prays his Lordship to take it into his consideration, and to recommend him for some provision.
> 1 page.

Lionel Chalmers.

1773, May 18.—Account of Whales. The species which frequent the Bermuda Islands, their season for breeding, the quantity of oil furnished by them, the manner of capturing them, the danger to which ships are exposed on meeting a company of them, etc. Sent to his friend Dr. Fothergill.
Copy. 9¾ pages.

Henry Boldero to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, March 7. Lombard Street.—Transmitting papers relative to the recovery of a debt at Bermuda.
Letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Within this is a memorandum or statement of these papers and the amount of the bond given by Messrs. Thomas and Robert Hunt, late of St. James's Westminster, then resident in Bermuda.
2 quarto pages.

Mr. Leonard, Chief Justice of Bermuda, to Lord Dartmouth.

1783, May 22. No. 14, Stafford Row, Buckingham Gate.
Autograph letter in the third person. 1½ quarto pages.

Enclosures :—

> Facts of the State, Inhabitants, and Customs Revenue of the Island of Bermuda.
> Original. 1¼ pages.

> Memorial to Lord North. "That there is no Salary annexed to the Office he has the honor to hold, and that all the Emoluments arising from it do not exceed £30 ꝑ annum"; "Humbly prays that such a Salary may be annexed to the Office of Chief Justice of Bermuda, as shall be sufficient to support the dignity of his Majesty's Commission."

Enclosures—cont.

Signed duplicate. 2½ pages.

DOMINICA.

HENRY GUINAND to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1766, April 14. Little St. Hellens.—Sending the reflections that have occurred to him relative to a free port at Dominica.

Autograph letter signed. ¾ quarto page.

Enclosure :—

Paper endorsed :—M^r^ Guinand's Plan of a free Port.

6¾ pages.

N. D.—Mr. Dinwiddie's plan for a Free port at Dominica. A True Copy taken this 28 Decr. 1768. Campll. Dalrymple.

2¾ folio pages.

N. D.—The chief points of the foregoing.

2 pages.

N. D.—Paper endorsed :—Col. Dalrymple's plan for a free port at Dominica.

2⅓ folio pages.

N. D.—Regulations under which it is proposed to open the Island of Dominica as a free port in order to extend and improve the British American trade and to support and increase the manufactures of Great Britain.

M.S. 1¼ folio pages.

Endorsed :—Free Port.

The EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH to the LORDS of the ADMIRALTY.

1768, June 21. Whitehall.—Transports for the 62d Regiment to return to Ireland.

Copy. ¾ page.

The EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH to LORD VISCOUNT BARRINGTON.

1768, June 21. Whitehall.—The same subject.

Copy. ¾ page.

MERCHANTS to the KING.

1772, October 19. Lond^o^.—Petition of the Proprietors of Lands, Merchants, Traders and others concerned in His Majesty's Island of Dominica who are now resident in or about London. That a battalion might be stationed at Dominica for its protection.

Copy. $2\frac{1}{2}$ quarto pages.

OLIVER NUGENT to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1772, December 15. Bury Street, St. James's.—Remarks upon the enclosed paper.

Letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

1772, December 15. Bury Street, St. James's.—Observations On the present State of the Island of Dominica; pointing out the Alterations in the Political Arrangement necessary to promote the Welfare of the People and the Interest of the Crown in that Settlement.

Original, signed. 8 large pages.

*Endorsed :—N*º 1. *M*r Nugent's Observations on the present State of Dominica, (with his Letters of 15 *Dec*r 1772 and 28*th* Feb. 1773).

THOMAS ATWOOD to LORD BRUCE.

1773, January 13.—Has been superseded by Mr. Hall who is not fit to fill the post of Chief Assistant Judge. Prays to be restored to his position, which he understands will give general satisfaction in the Island.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

MR. NUGENT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 28. Bury Street, St. James's.—Wishes to know if his "Observations" met with his Lordship's approbation. Intends soon returning to the West Indies, and asks if his Lordship has any commands to charge him with.

Autograph letter in the third person. $\frac{1}{2}$ quarto page.

JOHN SHEPHERD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 8. No. 13, Cambden Street, Islington.—Asking to be appointed chaplain to the Garrison of Dominica. Is well acquainted with that Island and some of the principal Inhabitants.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page.

LORD BRUCE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, March 30. Seamore Place.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

*Endorsed :—*Nº 2 Ld Bruce 30 March 1773, recommending Mr Atwood.

Enclosure :—

THOMAS ATWOOD to LORD BRUCE.

Acquainting him with the death of Mr. Hall and praying his influence to secure him the vacant post.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page.

JAMES BOGLE FRENCH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, April 8. Swithins Lane.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A.—9. Ja. French Esq^{r} 8 April 1773, recommending M^{r} Lyons to be Ch. Just. of Dominica.

LUCIUS FERDINAND CARY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 15. Lower Grosvenor Street.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—B—18. Hon. M^{r} Cary 15 Sept^{r} 1773. For the Government of Dominica.

[JOHN LYONS] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D.—Concerning the enclosed.
Incomplete. 4 quarto pages.

Enclosure:—

1773, May 13, passed the Assembly.—An Act for settling a Salary on John Lyons Esquire Chief Justice of and in this Island during his continuance in the said Office and actual Residence in the said Island.
Copy certified by John Gay. 1¼ large pages.

DANIEL SHAW, Captain of the 62d to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, October 15. Winchester.—Praying to be appointed Governor of Dominica.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

WILLIAM FITZHERBERT to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, October 16. Somerset House.—The same request.
Autograph letter signed. ¾ quarto page.

EDWARD LEWIS to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, November 2. Stratton Street.—In behalf of Mr. Martin of Grenada for the Government of Dominica.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

EARL HARCOURT to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, January 1. Dublin Castle.—Recommending Mr. Hewitt either for the Receivership or Government.
Autograph letter signed. 3¾ quarto pages.

ADMIRAL WILLIAM PARRY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, May 13. "Chatham," in Prince Rupert's Bay, Dominica.—Geographical account of Dominica, more particularly of Prince Rupert's Bay and Roseau.
Letter signed. 3 folio pages.

J. Wilson, Chief Justice of Dominica, to Lord [ ].

1774, October 30. Roseau.—Describing the business of the Department over which he presides. No fixed salary attached to it. Prays for recompense.
Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Sir Lawrence Dundas to Lord [Dartmouth].

1775, June 25. Moor Park, Herts.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—S^r^ Law^r^ Dundas 25 June 1775, rec. Lt. Col. Bruce to be Gov^r^ of Dominica.

William Knox to [? the Secretary of the Treasury].

1779, April 30. Whitehall.—Concerning the salary of Governor Shirley of Dominica.
Copy. 2 folio pages.

Endorsed :—Gov^r^ Shirley.

N. D.—Extract of a letter from Mr. Shirley to Mr. Cumberland.
⅓ folio page.

Endorsed :—Pedigree of Governor Shirley &c &c &c &c.

[1403—1774].—A Table of the Descent of the Shirley Family.
2 large folio pages.

GRENADA.

W. Lindon to Abram Rawlinson, Senr.

1766, February 12. Grenada.—His arrival in Grenada on the 13th January and cool reception by the Governor. He (the Governor) "pays little or no Regard to His Majesty's Orders."
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Governor William L. Leyborne to Thomas Townsend.

1772, July 24. Grenada.—Suspending him from his office of Councillor on account of his conduct at the Council meeting of 23 July.
Copy. ⅔ page.

Governor William L. Leyborne to the Earl of Hillsborough.

1772, July 25. Grenada.—No. 25. Acknowledging receipt of despatches Nos. 6 and 7. Will observe His Majesty's pleasure respecting the yellow Caribbs of St. Vincent and make particular enquiry into Captain Higginson's claim upon the Deputy Vendue Master.
Copy. 1 folio page.

The EARL OF ROCHFORD to GOVERNOR LEYBORNE.

1772, October 1. Whitehall.—To return immediately to Grenada (owing to the disturbed state of the same,) and to leave the command of the expedition against the Charibs as well as the execution of His Majesty's orders concerning the 32d Regiment to Mr. Dalrymple who will receive the rank of Major General.
Copy. 2 pages.

The REVEREND JOHN BOTHAM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 12. Abbey Yard, Bath.—Praying an appointment for his son in Grenada.
Letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Rev^{d} M^{r} Botham 12 Augst 1772 for his Son at Grenada.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM L. LEYBORNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 27. Grenada.—Introducing Sir Francis Laurent a gentleman of considerable property in the Island.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

GENERAL ROBERT MELVILL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, January 7. In the offing of Madeira.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Gen^{l} Melvill, 7th Jan^{ry} 1773. Respecting a Memorial.

GENERAL ROBERT MELVILL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, December 24. Great Pulteney Street.—Asking that all dispatch may be made concerning the payment of the claim due to him. Annexed is a copy of his note to Lord North of the previous day requesting an audience concerning a memorial which was sent to Lord Dartmouth while he (Melville) was abroad.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

D'HERMAND DE CLERY, avocat au Parlement de Paris et aux conseils du Roy, to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, Avril 28. Rue Jacob, a Paris.—Sends the following and asks a reply.
Autograph letter signed. With seal. French. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure :—

1774, Avril.—Memorial on behalf of M. le Chevalier Des Baratz, signed D'Hermand de Clery, to Lord Dartmouth. Claiming his Lordship's protection for this gentleman, who went to live in Grenada when it was under the rule of the King of France.
Original, signed. 4 pages. French.

HENRY WILMOT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 11. Bloomsbury Square.

Letter signed. With seal. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Hen. Wilmot Esq^{r} 11th Augst 1774. M^{r} Horne Att^{y} Gen^{l} of Grenada.

WILLIAM SNELL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 26. Austin Friers.

Letter signed. 2 large folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} W^{m} Snell Austin Friars 26 Aug. 1774. Stating objections to a Law of Grenada for the Recovery of debts.

1774, November 5. London.—Memorandum, not dated. Grenada Bill—Mr. Montagu Agent attends with Mr. Mansfield Council—Grenada planters and merchants attend. With a paper dated 5 November headed and endorsed "Reasons against the Grenada Bill now depending before the Right Honorable the Lords of Trade."

2 pages.

BEESTON LONG (Chairman) to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 4.—Thanks his Lordship on behalf of the West India Merchants for the part he has taken in disallowing the Grenada Act.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

BENJAMIN DUHAMET, curé de St. George representant Les nouveaux Sujets du quartier, to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, ce 11 fev^{r} a la ville St. George, Grenade.—Thanking him for his attention to the petition presented to him last October concerning the lands of their church.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page. French.

WILLIAM MACINTOSH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, April 17. Grenada.—Has cause to believe the death of General Leyborne "will create a suspension in those measures particularly which it may have been the views of Government to effectuate." In spite of the distresses in the country caused by the failure of credit in the commercial line, he believes the new Islands would have quietly granted a duty to His Majesty and his successors equal to the revenue raised by the $4\frac{1}{2}\,^{0}/_{0}$. The sooner a new Governor is appointed the happier it will be for His Majesty's service and the Inhabitants. "Gov^{r} Leyborne had just attain'd a true Idea of the Constitution & people, and was entering into measures to effect a reformation, when the Colony received a severe shock by his death."

Autograph letter signed. $3\frac{3}{4}$ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Macintosh Grenada 17 April 1775, respecting Grenada Affairs.

COMTE DE GUINES to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, Mai 27. Paris.—Introducing M. Le Comte who wishes to see certain papers in his Lordship's department concerning an important affair conducted in England.
Autograph letter signed. French. 1 small quarto page.

GEORGE MERCER to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 14. Curzon Street.
Letter signed. 2 quarto pages.
Endorsed:—Col. Mercer 1775, desiring Gov^t^ of Grenada.

THOMAS HARLEY to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 16. Aldersgate Street.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.
Endorsed:—R^t^ H. Tho^s^ Harley 16 June 1775, recom^g^ M^r^ Martin for Gov. of Grenada.

ROBERT YOUNG to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, July 6. Harrowgate.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.
Endorsed:—M^r^ Young 6^th^ July 1775, soliciting the Gov^t^ of Grenada for his Brother in the room of M^r^ Leyborne.

SIR GEORGE MACARTNEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, July. Sunday night. Charles Street B.S.
Autograph letter signed. ¾ quarto page.
Endorsed:—S^r^ G. Macartney July 1775, requesting the Governm^t^ of Grenada.

WILLIAM HEWITT to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 1. Craven Hill.—Some months back he was unsuccessful in obtaining the Receivership of Moneys arising from the sale of lands in the ceded islands; prays for the Government of Grenada.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

REV. J. FOUNTAINE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 20. Marybone.
Autograph letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.
Endorsed:—Rev^d^ M^r^ Fountaine Aug. 1775, desiring a Place for his Son.

WILLIAM HEWITT to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 21. Craven Hill near Kensington.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.
Endorsed:—M^r^ Hewitt Aug. 1775, soliciting the Government of Grenada.

ROBERT YOUNG to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 21. Crescent, London.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.
Endorsed:—M^{r} Young Aug. 1775, recommending his Brother to succeed to the Gov^{t} of Grenada.

LADY JANE MACARTNEY to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 25. Charles Street.—Soliciting the Government of Grenada for her husband.
Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

COMTE DE GUINES to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, Août 30. Londres.—Asking his Lordship for a letter of recommendation for M. Vaihant to take to the Governor of Grenada, he having business matters to settle there.
Autograph letter signed. 2 small quarto pages. French.
Endorsed:—French Ambassador.

COMTE DE GUINES to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, Août 31. Londres.—Thanking him for his kindness in granting his requests.
Autograph letter signed. 1 small quarto page. French.

W. LUCAS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D.—Concerning a dispute that occurred in 1774 respecting Mr. Corsar's seat in the Council.
Letter signed. 4 folio pages.

MERCHANTS to the KING.

N. D.—Petition of British Planters and Merchants, Proprietors of Lands in the Island of Grenada or concerned in the Trade thereof. Setting forth the discontinuance of the terms held out to induce them to reside in that and other Islands ceded at the Treaty of Paris of 1763, and praying the restoration of the said original constitution conformable to the royal proclamation and letters patent under the sanction of which they were induced to become settlers and purchasers in the Island.
1⅘ folio pages.

N. D.—State of Grenada. Case. Quoted here is the speech of Thomas Townsend to the Council 23rd July 1772 for which he was suspended (see Governor Leyborne's letter of 24 July of that year).
7¼ large folio pages stitched.

N. D.—Papers endorsed, "Extract from the Commission to the Gov^{r} of the Grenades." Touching the provision for the carrying on of the Government in case of the death or absence of the Governor.
1½ folio pages.

N. D.—Paper endorsed "Grenada," and beginning,—"The Islands of Grenada, St. Vincent and Tobago, tho' all under one Governor General, are nevertheless each of them separate and distinct Governments." "In each Island where the Governor General is not resident the Administration of Government devolves upon the Lieutenant Governor, who has a Commission from the King; and where neither the Gov^r^ General nor the Lieu^t^ Governor are Resident, the Administration devolves upon the President of the Council." Thus it is seen that in case the Lieutenant Governor is absent from an Island where the Governor does not reside, the full power devolves on the principal Councillor, who receives his instructions from the Governor General, but has not the power to increase or diminish them. Comments upon the evil of this rule, especially when it occurs in an Island where the King's troops are stationed, though in the present state of the constitution it is unavoidable.
2½ folio pages.

Draft of the foregoing.

GUADALOUPE.

ELIZABETH TOLVER, a native of GUADALOUPE, to the KING.

N. D.—Petition. Praying recompense from the Government for discovering a plot of the French inhabitants to massacre His Majesty's forces and subjects in the Island of Guadaloupe in one night. With recommendation of members of the 62nd, 63rd, and 65th Regiments, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and the Earl of Hillsborough.
2¾ folio pages.

ELIZABETH TOLVER to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1772, September. London. At M^rs^ Crafford, Arundel Street, Panton's Square in the Top Hay Market.
Letter signed. 3½ folio pages. French.

Enclosure:—

Copy of the above petition to the King and of one to Lord Hillsborough.

JAMAICA.

1724, May 18.—Paper endorsed, "Extract of a Report of S^r^ Philip Yorke and S^r^ Clement Weary, His Majesty's Attorney & Solicitor General, dated 18 May 1724." "As to the Revenue it does not appear to us that any will subsist after the Determination of the present Revenue Act, besides the Rents reserved upon the Grants of Lands, Licenses for selling strong Liquors, and the casual Revenue of Fines, Forfeitures and Escheats." The power of levying new taxes rests on the question whether Jamaica be considered a colony of English subjects, or as a conquered country.
3 pages.

1756, December 27.—Minutes. Touching Jamaica papers and questions of resolutions as to riots and authority.
Rough draft. 1 page.

[About 1763].—Remarks on the Spanish Trade at Jamaica from the breaking out of the war with Spain in 1739 when the Assiento Contract was stop'd to the present time.

8½ pages.

Endorsed:—Spanish Trade.

Second part of the foregoing.
13⅔ pages.

LORDS of the PRIVY COUNCIL to the GOVERNOR of JAMAICA [William Henry Lyttleton].

1765, March 19.—Expressing the King's approval of the Governor's conduct, and his displeasure at several resolutions passed by the late House of Assembly, in support of certain pretended Privileges.

Extract. 1½ pages.

MRS. SARAH EWER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1766, March 26. Hatton Garden.—Concerning the collection of debts due to her in Jamaica. "Mr. Barrett notwithstanding his repeated Promises to my Attorney's in Jamaica as by the Enclosed Abstract from their Letters,) now denies to pay his Father's Debts, in consequence of which it is thought necessary to file a Bill in Chancery to make him discover to what Purpose his Fathers Effects were Apply'd."

Letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure:—

1762, February 27—1764, March 10. Kingston.—Abstracts from Messrs Dwarris and McLean's letters to Mrs Sarah Ewer.
2½ quarto pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM HENRY LITTLETON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1766, May 1. Jamaica.—Thanks for granting him leave of absence. Misconduct of Lieutenant Colonel Musgrave; thinks he ought to be brought to a General Court Martial.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅓ quarto pages.

1766, May 1. Jamaica.—Duplicate original of the above.

SIR ROBERT MURRAY KEITH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 10. London.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A 52. Sir Robert M. Keith. London, Sept. 10, 1772, recommending his Brother Sr Basil. v. Cor. p. 1—2. Entd Sr Robt Keith Sr B. K.

Enclosure :—

ROBERT KEITH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 3. Hermitage near Edinburgh. Asking his Lordship's influence in behalf of his son Sir Basil Keith.

Autograph letter signed. 2⅕ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—Mr Keith, Hermitage near Edinburgh, Sept. 3d 1772, v. Cor. p. 1 & 3, Ent.

1772, September 14. Sandwell.—Drafts of Lord Dartmouth's answers to these two letters. That Sir Basil will be among the first he will wish to recommend to the King and that he hopes at some future time to be able to give him a post as Governor.

Autograph. 1¾ pages and ½ page respectively.

MR. SWINEY to MR. HORSEFALL.

1772, September 29. Pontefract.

Autograph, in the third person. 2½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—29 Septr 1772 Mr Swinney to Mr Horsefall respectg His Sons at Jamaica R/ from Ld Dartmouth.

LORD ROCHFORD to LIEUTENANT-GENERAL GAGE.

1772, October 7. Whitehall.—The first battalion of Royal Americans is to relieve the 36th Regiment at Jamaica.

Draft. ¾ page.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

[Early in 1773].—Announcing the death of Sir Willam Trelawney on the 18th (sic) December and his burial the next day.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

MESSRS. ROSE and STEPHEN FULLER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 21. Gerrard Street.—Begging the honour of a private audience on the subject of a successor to Sir William Trelawney. Mr. Frederic Vane's name was mentioned the previous day at a meeting of several of the gentlemen of Jamaica as a proper person to succeed him, and they believe his appointment would give general satisfaction.

Original, in the third person. 1 quarto page.

WILLIAM DE GREY to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, February 26.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—A—4. Lord Chief Justice De Grey. Feb. 26, 1773, recommending Col. Dalling v. Answ. Cor. p. 11.

Enclosure :—

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR JOHN DALLING to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1772, December ye 13.—Acquainting him of the death of Sir William Trelawney on the 11*th, and begging to be retained at his post in the Government.*

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 11. Caroline Park.—Sir Basil Keith's appointment to the Government of Jamaica has given general satisfaction. Seamen's riots in Glasgow. "Poor Sir Basil is, I am sure, too full to tell any part of what he feels; (in proof of which I enclose you his Letter to his Father)."

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

Enclosure :—

SIR BASIL KEITH to ROBERT KEITH.

9 o'clock, Friday evening. Announcing his appointment.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

ROBERT KEITH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 11. Hermitage.—Expresses his agreeable surprise on being acquainted of his son's appointment to the Government of Jamaica. Thanks. "I never doubted of his being soon provided for in the way he so much wished, but the Government of Jamaica was an object so very considerable that my hopes, nay even my wishes never reached so far."

Autograph letter signed. 2¼ quarto pages.

SIR ROBERT MURRAY KEITH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, March 27. Vienna.—Private. "Will your Lordship permit me to say of my Brother that I know him to be active, ingenuous, and disinterested? He loves his Duty and he feels the extent of it."

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed :—S^r^ Rob^t^ Keith Vienna 27 M^ch^ 1773. With Thanks for conferring the Gov^t^ of Jamaica on his Brother.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR JOHN DALLING to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, April 3. Jamaica.—Has received an intimation from Sir Basil Keith that His Majesty had been pleased to appoint him Governor of the Island. Is at a loss to express his sense of Lord Dartmouth's attention to his (Dalling's) interest in assuring him that no unusual expedition (sic) should deprive him of his present situation. Is disappointed at hearing that Sir Basil Keith intends leaving England in October as he had hoped to remain in administration the usual time allowed to all Lieutenant Governors. His Lordship's letter had revived those hopes, and he has the firmest reliance on the assurance there given.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR JOHN DALLING to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, May ye 1st. Jamaica.—"I am very nearly made miserable by having succeeded to that, for which many years have been dedicated, not that I look'd anxiously to keep the government of this Island, at the same time, my Lord, I own that I expected to be indulg'd with the same span of time, which has ever been given to the most insignificant of my Brethren, this expectation has been overset from the immediate appointment of another Gov^r I still hope but in part, for I look up to your Lordship in particular, and flatter myself that altho' there has been so immediate an appointment yet that Capt^n Keith will not be allow'd to leave England so soon as he intimates, (in Oct^r next)" . . . "in short, my Lord I am absolutely ruin'd."

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

SIR GEORGE BRYDGES RODNEY to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, May 3. Jamaica.—Acknowledgment of the polite manner in which he has been told of the King's intention of bestowing the government upon another person. Humbly submits to His Majesty's pleasure. Offers his services while he has the honour of commanding in these seas.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR JOHN DALLING to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, June ye 12th. Jamaica.—Asking to be created a Baronet of England.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

OLYMPIA WEBB to [ ].

1773, July 24 ? [mutilated].—Craving protection for Mr. Webb who is in Jamaica, having purchased estates there.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—M^{rs} Webb from E. F. Stanhope Esq.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, September 14. London.—Recounts the arrangements which were made for him to proceed to Jamaica about the middle of October; surprise and disappointment at the "Squirrell" not being ready to depart at the specified time; asks if he may take a passage in a merchant ship as he wishes to get to Jamaica before the Assembly rises. "Coll^l Dalling will by that time have had his full twelve months in the Government . . . If I go in the Squirell I cannot expect to be at Jamaica before the middle of February." If his stay in England is prolonged it will much prejudice his private fortune.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed :—N^o 4. S^r Bas. Keith Sep^r 14, 1773. On his Passage to Jamaica.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, September 29. London.—Will take his passage to Jamaica in a merchant ship as the "Squirrell" will be so long getting ready.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, November 25. Falmouth.—Has been waiting at Falmouth since the 6th for the "Dawkins," the ship to convey him to Jamaica. As the wind is favourable he hopes to sail this day.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

BRYAN EDWARDS.

1773, December 20. Jamaica.—Thoughts on the Spanish Assiento Contract. The King of Spain having granted the Spanish Assiento Company permission to remove their principal factory to the Havannah and to purchase slaves from the neighbouring Colonies and convey them in Spanish vessels to their own settlements, it occurs to the writer that from the vicinity of Jamaica to the Spanish Settlements where negroes are most demanded a large trade might be established there, providing the slaves could be purchased in sufficient numbers and under as advantageous terms as in the other British Plantations. "I consider the renewal of the free port Law, for another Year, a fortunate Circumstance for the Island of Jamaica, as the Spanish traders will for their own Sakes, most certainly prefer those ports in which their Safety is founded on Law, to places where their preservation depends only on the weak and precarious Tenure of Connivance and favor." Suggests that instead of renewing the Free Port Act, the Navigation Act should be moderated in regard to Spain only, in admitting all their vessels to every British Port, on condition that they do not break bulk while there. Should this occur, the increased number of slaves purchased by the British on the Coast of Guinea will necessitate an increase of at least twenty vessels, also an increase of flour and other provisions for the extra slaves, which will employ at least 15 or 20 more vessels from North America, thus increasing the trade not only of Great Britain but of the whole of her Colonies, preventing the several Plantations from repining "at that illiberal preference which they say is now shown to Jamaica" and "which would soon open a golden fountain flowing through the Colonies to Great Britain, enriching like the Nile the Territories through which it flows."

Signed. 2½ large folio pages.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, January 9. King's House, Spanish Town, Jamaica.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—S^r Basil Keith Jamaica 9 Jan. 1774 informing of his Arrival at Jamaica.

SIR BASIL KEITH to MR. POWNALL.

1774, February 19. Jamaica.—"What with Business, Parade, & Ceremony my time has been entirely taken up since my arrival in this Island." Returns his best thanks for all favours; and begs the continuance of his friendship and kindness. "You'll see by my public Letter* that a most disagreable, and unexpected matter has happen'd on my outset in Government." Trusts his superiors will approve of his conduct on the occasion especially as he believes his Majesty's service will not suffer by the steps taken. "The more I consider of the matter, the more I think the words of the intend'd act were misconstrued." Doubts not but that he will have some instruction or opinion sent to him in order that he may act in the best manner for the King's service and the peace of the community. "If you can further me such Assistance it will be doing me a Service that no lenth of time or distance shall ever make me forget."

---

* This public despatch is in the Public Record Office, Colonial Correspondence, Jamaica, Vol. 11.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

EDWARD STANLEY to JOHN POWNALL.

1774, March 23. Custom House, London.

Letter signed. 1¼ folio pages.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Stanley to M^r^ Pownal w^th^ account of Cotton imported from & Linen exported to Jamaica.

Enclosures:—

1774, March 23. Custom House, London.—An Account of the Quantity of Wool Cotton Imported into England from the Island of Jamaica from Christmas 1763 to Christmas 1766, and from Christmas 1768 to Christmas 1770. Signed by John Tomkyns Assistant Inspector General.

Original. ¾ large folio page.

An Account of the Quantity of British Linens Exported from England to Jamaica for the same period. Signed as above.

Original. 1 large folio page.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, March 23. Jamaica.—M^r^ Knill's short stay in Jamaica prevents Sir Basil shewing him any particular attention as Lord Dartmouth wished. "He has executed his Commission here to the satisfaction of everybody; and I believe to the great advantage of the Crown; and with the greatest Credit to himself; you'il find him a most intelligent Man; well able to give you information to every question you may please to put to him relative to this Island."

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

STEPHEN FULLER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, April 21. Southampton Street, Bloomsbury.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Ste^n^ Fuller Esq^r^ 21 April 1774. Inclos^g^ copy of a Letter concer^g^ the Free Ports of Jamaica.

Enclosure:—

1774, January 4.—Paper by Bryan Edwards (same as above under 20 December 1773).

Copy. 3½ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—The Hon^ble^ Bryan Edwards Esq^r^ of the Council of Jamaica dated 4^th^ Jan^y^ 1774, under Cover to Stephen Fuller Esq^r^ Agent for Jamaica.

The EARL OF NORTHAMPTON to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, May 3. London.—Asking for a Government in the West Indies or on the Continent of America for Sir George Rodney, who is to be immediately superseded in the command at Jamaica by Admiral Gayton and is only waiting his arrival there.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

1774, May 18.—Prayer of the Jamaica Petition. "The two Regiments at Jamaica to be augmented to 1000 men each. "One Regiment of 1000 men to be added." "N.B. Mr Fuller finds upon conversing with the Gentlemen lately arrived from Jamaica that the Cannon in general in all the small Forts are in very bad condition, and the carriages decayed & fallen to pieces."

1 quarto page.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, May 29. Jamaica.—With pleasure gives Colonel Dalling a letter of introduction to his Lordship as he (Dalling) requested. "His Abilities, and long residence here, well qualify him to give your Lordship every kind of information relative to this very important Settlement, the Strenth of its Neighbours, and I am very sorry to say its own weakness." Will make the inquiries Lord Dartmouth desires about the office in Chancery and report thereon.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Sr Bas. Keith Jam. 29 May 1774, relative to Col. Dalling, the Island of Jamaica, Office in Chancery, &c.

SIR G. B. RODNEY to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, June 1. Jamaica.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Sr Geo. Rodney. Jamaica 1 July 1774 relative to obtaining a Govt.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, June 11. Jamaica.—Has made a particular inquiry respecting the office of Examiner in Chancery, and finds there are eleven of these in ordinary and twenty-two extraordinary in the different parishes of the Island, therefore little profit can accrue from such an appointment, and such an officer would be unacceptable to the Master in Chancery.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

STEPHEN FULLER to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, June 17. Southampton Street, Bloomsbury.

Autograph letter signed. 1¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—St. Fuller Esqr June 17 1774, with Intelligence of Quiet in Jamaica.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, September 2. Jamaica.—"Your private Letter of the 3d of June is wrote in a stile so delicate, & friendly as doubly adds to the repeated obligations you lay me under. . . . I will continue to pursue the only acceptable mode of shewing my gratitude to you; which is by convincing the people over whom I have the Honour to preside; that you have sent them an honest man, zealously attach'd to his Majesty & ever anxious for their prosperity & happiness." Is much distressed by the death of his secretary Captain Robertson.

Autograph letter signed. 2½ quarto pages.

STEPHEN FULLER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, October 7. The Office Whitehall.—The "Seaford" of twenty guns and one hundred and thirty men being ordered home, hopes Lord Dartmouth will order another ship to be sent out in her room.

Autograph letter in the third person. ½ page.

Endorsed:—Note from the Agent of Jamaica.

COLONEL W. DALRYMPLE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, November 3. London.—Lays a memorial and account before his Lordship [not here]. The poor man concerned has "been most unjustly dealt with by the Island."

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Col. Dalrymple 3 Nov^{r} 1774 with a Memorial of W. Walker.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, November 19. Jamaica.—If Government sends a further assistance of troops to Jamaica as desired by the legislative petition, asks that he may be appointed Colonel of the Regiment with the usual pay and perquisites. Justifies his request by shewing that the Governor's salary has decreased fully one third during the last twenty years, and how expensive a country Jamaica is to live in.

Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

CHARLES NETHERCOTE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 29. Hull.—Thanks for mentioning his name to Sir Basil Keith.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

SIR BASIL KEITH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, June 12. Jamaica.—His gratitude for the repeated marks of friendship and kindness shewn to him by his Lordship. His efforts to prove worthy of the protection afforded. Refers his Lordship to his public letter for the general defence he has endeavoured to make for his conduct. "From the very extraordinary Nature of the Petition I cannot be surpriz'd at the great offence it has given to His Majesty, and the Legislative Authority of Great Britain." He expects and dreads the consequences. "I have all the Laws now before me that I have assented to since I came to the Administration, yet I cannot guess at the other improper ones your Lordship mentions to have pass'd the Assembly: and I trust no further proof of my misconduct will be found." Attempts to vindicate himself with regard to the delay in transmitting the laws as they pass. He has been blamed for giving his assent to the Additional Duty Bill without a suspending Clause. Unsuccessful searches he has made for a precedent in the shape of an annual money bill carrying a suspending clause. Desires his Lordship to enquire of Sir William Trelawney (who is on his way to England) the history of the petition, and the necessity of the Additional Duty Bill.

Autograph letter signed. 8 quarto pages.

1775, June 12. Jamaica.—Duplicate original of the foregoing.

Memorial for Francis Douglas.

[1775].—Sets forth the dissatisfaction caused by Robert Hodgson, Superintendent of the Mosquito Shore; representations made in consequence to Sir William Trelawney Governor of Jamaica and to the Earl of Dartmouth. Sir Basil Keith ordered to make strict inquiries into these complaints. Francis Douglas recommended as a proper person to hold the post, should Mr. Hodgson be removed.

$1\frac{1}{3}$ pages.

1780.—Paper endorsed, "Precis 1780. Applications for assistance from the Island of Jamaica from 1773 to 1779." In margin:—"This Precis was drawn up for Lord George Germain's Use, and refers to Inclosures which were too voluminous to be Copied in time but the Contents of them are abridged, and stated in this Paper.—Lord Stormont will have the originals, the most material of them are here inserted and referred to Alphabetically."

Stitched with red silk. $13\frac{3}{4}$ pages.

Accompanied by the following:—

A. Extract of a letter from Sir Basil Keith to Lord Dartmouth dated Jamaica 11 June 1774, concerning ordnance stores for Jamaica.

B. Paper endorsed, "Ordnance. In M^r^ Boddington's to M^r^ de Grey 17^th^ Dec^r^ 1779," and, again, "B. Jamaica, no supply of ordnance and Stores from 1747 to 1777 May be Relied upon. I have Compared the Estimates to Parliament & Orders which agree. J. Boddington."

C. Light artillery wanted for the Island of Jamaica. (Enclosure in Sir Basil Keith's letter of 11 June 74 above.)

D. Forces at Jamaica during the last war.

E. Totals of the latest Returns of the Forces at Jamaica. November 1779.

F. Comparative View of the Naval Force stationed at Jamaica during the last and present war.

G. Copy of a letter from several of the Merchants &c. of Jamaica—Sir John Taylor, M. Goulbourn, Sir John Wedderburn & 45 others to their Chairman, Chaloner Arcedeckne Esq. dated London, 7 February 1780, expressing their reasons for dissenting from the petition.

H. Extracts from the Jamaica correspondence from 1756 to 1763 concerning the French and English squadrons.

I. Copy of a letter from Lord George Germain to Stephen Fuller. Whitehall 13 December 1779. "To acquaint the Jamaica Planters and Merchants, that The King, and all His Majesty's Confidential Servants continue to have the fullest impressions of the very great value and importance of Jamaica, and therefore they may be assured, that no Attention will be wanting to its Security and the protection of its Trade."

THOMAS PALMER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1802, Tuesday, June. Madeira, on board the "Phœnix."—To know what his Lordship will have done with his wine supposing it should arrive while he is absent from town.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

SIR PHILIP MUSGRAVE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

N. D.—Desires Lord Dartmouth to recommend his Brother (Lieut. Colonel of Lord Adam Gordon's Regiment in Jamaica) to the Governor.
Autograph, in the third person. ½ quarto page, a piece torn off.

N. D.—Charles Williamos, Collector of Customs at the port of Lucea in Jamaica. Memorial to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury. Went to that place in 1768. Difficulties in establishing a Custom House owing to the adverse temper of the people. Owing to his bad treatment his health has suffered. Prays to be removed from Jamaica and to be granted further leave of absence till he can be appointed to another office.
3 large folio pages.

N. D.—Considerations on the State of the Smuggling trade in the Island of Jamaica, and regulations proposed to Stop it.
6⅓ pages.

N. D.—Considerations on the Free Port Act in Jamaica.
5½ pages.

N. D.—Memorandum relative to the Free Port Act of Jamaica.
3⅔ pages.

N. D.—Further Considerations relative to the free ports in the Island.
2⅔ large folio pages.

N. D.—Memorandum. "M^{r} Radcliffe, M^{r} Tipping and M^{r} Hilton of Manchester, M^{r} Turner an Agent at M^{r} Beans Essex Street."
⅓ quarto page.

ST. CHRISTOPHER.

SIR RALPH PAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 14. St. Christopher's.—Sends by the "General Payne" a turtle, wine and snuff for his Lordship. Lady Payne sends Lady Dartmouth a box of sweetmeats and pickles of the country. Forwards a case of views of the different islands, also a turtle for the King.
Autograph letter signed. 2½ pages.

SIR RALPH PAYNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, August 30. St. Christopher.—Called at Nevis for the purpose of making Mr. Robinson "perfectly easy, with Respect to all Points of Militia Duty," but found he had previously embarked for the continent of America. Mr. Robinson on his return to these Islands, will encounter no trouble, "on Occasion of any Service in the Militia."
Duplicate autograph letter signed. 1½ pages.

1774, October 10. St. Christopher.—The same to the same. Private. Reasons for desiring leave of absence.
Autograph letter signed. 4 pages.

Duplicate original of the foregoing. 3½ pp.

The DUCHESS OF ANCASTER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

[1774–5.] Thursday.—Sends the enclosed.
Original note in the third person. ⅓ quarto page.

Enclosure :—

> N. D.—Richard Hawkshaw Losack, Lieutenant General of all His Majesty's Leeward Charibbee Islands. Petition to the Queen. States that he was given his present appointment by Earl Shelburne in 1767*; the duties he undertook; that he is and has been without any salary or emolument belonging to his post as Lieutenant General. Hears that he may be required to go to the Leeward Islands immediately, to take the place of Sir Ralph Payne who is soon expected in England. Prays for a salary to be annexed to his post.*
> Signed. 2¾ pages.

[1774–5.]—Paper endorsed, "Mem concern^{g} M^{r} Gorham and M^{r} Losack."
1 quarto page and 3 lines.

JAMES DOUGLAS to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1775, July 11. Hook near Titchfield, Hants.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.
Endorsed :—L^{t} Col. Douglas July 1775, soliciting to succeed S^{r} Ralph Payne, in case of his vacating his Gov^{t}.

The REVEREND M. MADAN to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, September 26. Woodcote End.
Letter signed. 1 quarto page.
Endorsed :—Rev^{d} M^{r} Madan Sept^{r} 75. M^{r} Robinson's letter.

Enclosure :—

JOHN ROBINSON to the REVEREND MR. MADAN.

> 1775, September 25. N^{o} 9 Adelphi.—Hearing that M^{r} Gamon, the Collector of Basseterre, has resigned and returned to England, he asks M^{r} Madan if it is true, and begs him to use his influence with Lord Dartmouth to obtain the post for him.
> Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

SIR RALPH PAYNE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, October 31. Charles Street, St. James's.—Sends an address which he had previously mentioned, "with M^{r} Rawlins's remarkable Animadversion upon it."

Autograph letter signed. 1¼ quarto pages.

Enclosure:—

> 1775, June 9.—Newspaper cutting. A letter from Stedman Rawlins to M^{r} Tyson. "Sir, In the address delivered to the General on board the Deal Castle last Friday, I find that the authors and penners have wantonly taken liberties with the characters of several Gentlemen in this Island." Declares the authors and "penners of such address, a set of medling Rascals."
>
> 14 lines.

WILLIAM PAYNE GEORGES to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, October 31 (sic). Welbeck Street.—Two years previously he was appointed by the constituent branches of the legislature of St. Christopher, their agent in London, at a salary of two hundred pounds yearly. Understands this Act has been lying before the Council without any report. His suffering in consequence. Prays his Lordship to intercede in his behalf.

Autograph letter signed. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—W. P. Georges Esq^{r}. 31 Oct^{r} 1775.

ST. CROIX.

N. D.—The Case of a considerable Number of British and American Merchants, and of the British Inhabitants and Proprietors of the Island of Santa Cruz, addressed to the Honourable the Commons of Great Britain in Parliament assembled.

Printed. 2½ folio pages.

STEPHEN SAYRE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

N. D.—Giving a detailed account of the produce and trade of the Island.

Autograph letter signed. 2¾ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Island of St. Croix.

SANTO DOMINGO.

SIR STANIER PORTEN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, Friday, December 30. St. James's.—Encloses papers relating to the "Hawk," an English sloop arrested for illegal trading in the Spanish Island of St^{o} Domingo.

Autograph letter in the third person. ¾ quarto page.

Enclosures :—

1772, September 3. St. Ildephonso.—Extract of a letter from Lord Grantham to the Earl of Rochford. No. 36. Sending a precis of the evidence.

½ page.

1772, August 30. St. Ildefonso.—Copy of a translated letter from the Marquis de Grimaldi to Lord Grantham. Account of what happened on the Island of St^o Domingo to the "Hawke" sloop, Daniel Frisby, Captain.

1¾ pages.

1772, March 26. St. Domingo.—Translated copy of a letter from Don Joseph Solano to Don Julian de Arriaga, No. 34, containing information on the same incidents.

3¾ pages.

Translation of the proceedings at St^o Domingo. On Saona Island under the Government of Sto Domingo, several English were discovered with huts under pretence of carrying on turtle fishery, and their trade having several armed vessels, carrying it to such an excess that they came in with them as if they had been in British Dominions, orders were given by the Governor to Captain Don Lorenzo Daniel to go to Saona, take up as many as he should find in huts there, and not to suffer any Captain or men of the crews to escape. The English vessel in question was seen coming from the Island, and as when fired upon she held out no colours, she was secured and taken from La Cathalina to St^o Domingo. She was afterwards released, being condemned to pay costs.

6 pages.

1773, January 21. Madrid.—Extract of a letter from Lord Grantham to the Earl of Rochford. Fears he cannot obtain satisfaction for the owners of the "Hawke" as the report made by the Governor of St^o Domingo differs widely from that of M^r Sullivan, who went from New York to that island to obtain redress, and it appears the steps taken against the vessel were quite legal.

1 page.

ST. VINCENT.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM L. LEYBORNE to the EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH.

1772, July 30. St. Vincent.—No. 26. Arrived at the island 28 July. Incursions of the Charibbs to St. Lucia and Martinico more frequent and in greater numbers; they appear determined not to submit to the King's government. Arrival of six companies of the 68th Regiment, want of accommodation for them. Has appointed Captain George Chamberlaine of the 70th Regiment Quarter Master General.

Copy. 4¾ pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM L. LEYBORNE to the EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH.

1772, September 12. St. Vincent.—No. 30. Arrival of the 14th Regiment under Lieutenant Colonel Dalrymple from Boston. Has issued a proclamation to the Charibbs setting forth the King's offers, to them in case they will peaceably submit. Disposition of the inhabitants towards them. Cannot depend on any information he receives from the windward, but has good reason to believe the Charibbs meet with no encouragement from the Governor of Martinico.

Duplicate letter signed. 2½ pages.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 21. Whitehall.—Sees plainly by Governor Leyborne's letter that the expedition against the Charibbs will be an expensive and tedious business. Some representation ought to be made to the French Court with regard to the assistance they receive from the Island of St. Lucia. Formal declaration of the Duke of York's marriage. Fall in India stocks.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 23. Whitehall.—Understands the 6th Regiment of foot is to embark at Plymouth to relieve the 32d at St. Vincent; suggests that the 32d should be retained after the arrival of the 6th on account of the unsettled state of the country with the Charibbs.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

JOHN POWNALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, Friday evening September 25.—" I now send your Lordship for your signing every Letter that appears to me to be necessary upon the business now on our Table." Sir R. Payne is ordered to send some field pieces from Antigua to St. Vincent. Death of Mr. Sharpe member for Callington.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

LORD DARTMOUTH to LORD VISCOUNT BARRINGTON.

1772, September 27. Whitehall.—Concerning tents for the 6th regiment ordered to embark at Plymouth for the relief of the 32d doing duty in the ceded islands.

Copy. ¾ page.

The EARL OF ROCHFORD to the LORDS of the ADMIRALTY.

1772, October 1. Whitehall.—On account of the state of affairs in Grenada Governor Leyborne is to return from St. Vincent; command of the expedition against the Charibs is to be given to Major General Dalrymple. Their Lordships to acquaint Vice Admiral Parry of these matters.

Copy. ¾ page.

The EARL OF ROCHFORD to MAJOR GENERAL DALRYMPLE.

1772, October 1. Whitehall.—Acquainting him that he has been raised to the rank and pay of Major General, and that he is to take command of the troops in the expedition against the Charibbs. If he thinks necessary he is to detain the 32nd Regiment for his use. Not to miss any opportunity in sending Lord Dartmouth the fullest particulars of his proceedings.

Copy. 2 pages.

The EARL OF SUFFOLK to the LORDS of the ADMIRALTY.

1772, October 2. Whitehall.—If the stores and camp necessaries ordered for the 6th Regiment of foot under orders for St. Vincent cannot be received on the ships with the troops, their Lordships are to charter another vessel for the conveyance of them.

Copy. 1½ pages.

The EARL OF SUFFOLK to LORD VISCOUNT BARRINGTON.

1772, October 2. Whitehall.—The 6th Regiment of foot to embark as soon as the transports are ready to receive it.

Copy. ½ page.

Duplicate of the foregoing.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM L. LEYBORNE to the EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH.

1772, October 9. St. Vincent.—No. 34. In consequence of his Proclamation the Charibs held several Consultations, and sent to him promising to behave well if they were left in possession of their lands. As this could not be done the troops were sent into their country; in the several attacks three English and eight Charibs have been killed. Is glad to see the safe arrival of Major Mackenzie and the 31st Regiment. Fears the reduction of the Charibs will be a work of time, "for they Possess a country very inaccessible, and seem to have a knowledge how to avail themselves of this Advantage." With the Council's advice he has formed a company of "Voluntiers," out of the militia. Has ordered a supply of rum for the use of the troops. Asks his Lordship to obtain the baggage and tonnage money applied for by the Officers, as the service upon which the troops are engaged is a very severe one. Orders given by Admiral Parry to the Commanding Officers here to assist with marines and sailors should they be wanted.

Duplicate letter signed. 4½ pages.

Enclosure:—

GOVERNOR WILLIAM L. LEYBORNE to LORD VISCOUNT BARRINGTON, Secretary at War.

1772, October 9. St. Vincent.—Sends his Lordship a state of the troops on duty in the island together with a general and field return, and a return of arms, accoutrements and clothing of His Majesty's 14th Regiment.

Copy. 1 page.

GRANVILLE SHARP to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, October 10. Old Jewry.—Hears from a friend just returned from the ceded Islands that a body of His Majesty's troops is to be sent to St. Vincent to act against the Caribbees. Informs Lord Dartmouth that the climate will be disastrous to the British, and that there will be great difficulties in pursuing the Indians in the mountains and woods. Discusses the justice of the campaign.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 4 quarto pages.

GRANVILLE SHARP to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, Friday, November 27. Old Jewry.—"My Lord, Having accidentally seen a Letter addressed to your Lordship in the Publick Advertiser of Wednesday last, on the same subject as my private letter of the 10th ult° I beg leave to assure your Lordship, that I am no way concerned in that publication, nor have the least knowledge of the Author." Shews further the injustice of the campaign against the Caribbs.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

LORD VISCOUNT BARRINGTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1772, December 8. War Office.—Respecting the Botanic Garden at St. Vincent.

Copy. 1½ pages.

MINUTE OF CABINET.

1772, December 8.—"Lord D. read to the meeting two letters from Gov^{r} Leyborne concerning the progress he had made in the execution of the expedition against the Charibbs." Lord Dartmouth to instruct Colonel Dalrymple not to proceed to extremities, "if the state of the service shall admit of any treaty."

In Lord Dartmouth's hand. 2¼ quarto pages.

LORD DARTMOUTH to MAJOR GENERAL DALRYMPLE.

1772, December 9. Whitehall.—"It has been very satisfactory to His Majesty upon this occasion to find that Gov^{r} Leyborne has with great Prudence & Propriety, taken every Step that would give Facility to such Operations as may, under these Circumstances, become necessary." Hopes further bloodshed may be avoided, and that hostilities will have ceased before this letter reaches its destination.

Copy. 3 pages.

VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1772, December 24.—Thanks for his appointment of Lieutenant Governor.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

MAJOR GENERAL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to LORD VISCOUNT BARRINGTON.

1772, December 26. St. Vincents.—Sends an account of the progress of the expedition against the Charibbs. Fears if they are driven from the coast to the mountains the nature of the war will be changed and spun out to a great length. Is obliged to detain the 50th Regiment from Jamaica on account of losses by the war and climate. "To conclude, there is great reason to believe that the Reduction of the Savages will be a work of Time, & attended with great Expence."

Copy. 1⅓ pages.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM L. LEYBORNE to the EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH.

[? 1772].—Left everything perfectly quiet at St. Vincent, and every arrangement made in case the Charibs should take any hostile steps. The heavy rains have prevented a full House from assembling. "There appears no longer any Opposition to Government but what arises from Mr Burke's Friends." . . . "The Act respecting the Maroon Slaves has been attended with every Salutary Effect." States why Mr. Townshend was suspended from the Council.

Copy. 3 pages.

MAJOR GENERAL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, February 22. St. Vincent.—Announcing the total reduction of the Charibbs. Entreats his Lordship to lay before His Majesty the activity, bravery and patience of the troops employed on this service. The enemy's loss was great, nearly all their chiefs being either killed or wounded.

Copy. 1¾ pages.

Endorsed:—N° 5 Copy of a Letter from Major General Dalrymple to the Earl of Dartmouth. Dated St. Vincent 22d February 1773.

Killed & wounded	abt 150.
Dyed of desease	abt 110.
Sick	abt 400.

DAINES BARRINGTON, MARMADUKE TUNSTALL and WILLIAM HUDSON (Committee of the Royal Society) to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, March 1. Crane Court.

Letter signed. Barrington's autograph. 1⅔ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—Comttee of Roy1 Society 1 March 1773. Relative to the procuring the indigenous Insects & Plants of the Island of St. Vincent.

Enclosure:—

Note of information wanted. "It is desired that the Trunks of the largest Trees, of different sorts, in the Indigenous Woods of St. Vincent's be measured, & also their height ascertained," &c.

Original. 1 quarto page.

Apparently accompanying this is a printed sheet headed:—"Short Directions For Collecting, preserving, and transporting Specimens of Natural Productions."

4 quarto pages.

ADAM WOOD to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, April 5. Great Titchfield Street.—Quotes from a letter of Major Mackenzie of the 31st Regiment dated Grand Sable St. Vincent 14th January, "I am still working the way to accomplish a Junction with General Dalrymple's Army." On the 12th instant Colonel Walsh was kidnapped by the Charibs and barbarously murdered.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

ADAM WOOD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, Tuesday, April 6. Great Titchfield Street.—Nine of the Charib Chiefs have met General Dalrymple and have surrendered on behalf of themselves and all the Charibs in the Island.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

COLONEL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, April 21. London.—Has received letters from the island confirming suspicions "of a very dangerous disposition in the Planters towards the Charibs. . . . Such folly and wickedness must produce the worst effects, and I doubt not something very cruel & improper will be done by the people of St. Vincents."
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

DR. M. MATY (Secretary to the Royal Society) to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, April 21. London.—With the thanks of the Royal Society for his obliging answer to their application with regard to the island, for his promise of recommendation, and for the King's assurance that directions would be given to the different governors to aid the Society's plan of making a collection of the natural productions of the American colonies.
Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

COLONEL WILLIAM DALRYMPLE to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, June 5. London.—Sends the enclosed.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Enclosure :—

1773, February 27. St. Vincents.—Copy of his letter to Lieutenant Colonel Cane, 32^{d} Regiment, or the Officer for the time being Commanding His Majesty's troops at St. Vincents. That as peace is concluded with the Charibs he is returning to Europe. The Lieut.-Col. is to direct such additions to be made to the usual expenses as he shall think necessary. Governor Leyborne will communicate with him.
1¾ quarto pages.

G. HILLOCK to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, August 21. Saint Vincent.—Has sold his Commission in the 32d Regiment to pay his debts, and has nothing to live upon; asks his Lordship to assist him to some employment.
Autograph letter signed. 4¼ quarto pages.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 6. St. Vincents.—The new post established at Bayabou for the troops has proved advantageous in everyway. Is happy to acquaint his Lordship that the Legislature of the Island has adopted most of the ideas recommended by him for the act to prevent the further augmentation of the runaway negroes.
Autograph letter signed. 3⅓ quarto pages.

Duplicate of the foregoing.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, January 20. Saint Vincent.—Forwards a letter addressed to Lord North but, doubting the propriety of such an act, leaves it unsealed to be sent or suppressed as Lord Dartmouth pleases. An application has been received from a French gentleman of Martinico, Le Chevalier de St. Maurice Givran, to be naturalized.
Copy, signed. 1 page.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 16. St. Vincents.
Autograph letter signed. 4 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—L^t^ Gov^r^ Morris. April 1775, soliciting to succeed Gov^r^ Leyborne.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 21. St. Vincents.—Writes "just to say, that fresh information leaves me not the least reason to doubt of Bigô the Charib chief's profound dissimulation, & insincerity, & of his real unfriendly inclinations towards his Majesty's Government." Thinks a Charib war should not be risked if it can be avoided and his conduct will be dictated by his idea of the fitness of a general pacific, yet resolute and firm system. The letter continues with details of the capture of negroes.
Autograph letter signed. 6 quarto pages.

HENRY WILMOT to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1775, June 13. Bloomsbury Square.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—M^r^ Wilmot, 1775, inclos. lett^r^ from Val Morris Esq^r^.

Enclosure :—

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to HENRY WILMOT.

1775, April 16.—Per the "Thomas & Sally" Captain Isaac Smith. Notifying the death of Governor Leyborne at 7 o'clock that morning; asks him to make application to Lord Dartmouth for him (Morris) to succeed to the Government.
Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to the LORDS of the TREASURY.

1775, June 20. Saint Vincent.—Petition. Points out the expenses of living there, that although his salary is £600 a year, he is a great loser. Prays to have some small " Spots of Land " in the island granted to him.
Signed. 1¾ large folio pages.

ABOAN FITZMAURICE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 29. No. 4 Common Side King's bench.—Sets forth his claim, as next of kin, to the property of his brother the late Ulysses Fitzmaurice, the right being transferred by an act passed in the last Session; his arrest and imprisonment in consequence of having borrowed on the credit of his claims; asks for assistance by the agency of the Legislature either in an act of insolvency, or a repeal of the power vested in the trustees.
Autograph letter signed. 1¾ pages.

GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1776, June 10.—Thanks him for using his influence on his behalf. Expresses his regret at his Lordship giving up office to Lord Germain. That he will continue to keep him informed of the affairs of his government.
Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, October 20. Government House, St. Vincent.—Vindicating his conduct. Asks his Lordship to continue his protection to a man who " finds himself misrepresented, and forged Official Attestation made use of against him to stamp authority to false facts."
Duplicate letter signed. 2 large folio pages.

Enclosure :—

1777, Saturday October 11. Kingstown.—Saint Vincent. Minutes of Council, with W. Taylor's Certificate that they are a true copy. Sworn before Valentine Morris 16 October 1777. Certified by Valentine Morris. Shewing the unjustifiable and irregular conduct of Mr Crooke, on which Governor Morris > was obliged to suspend him; also the conduct of the great demagogue Mr Campbell, the head of the Opposition Party.

Enclosure—cont.

> Certified second copy. 2⅔ large folio pages.

GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH, Lord Privy Seal.

1777, October 23. Saint Vincent.—Concerning the confirmation of the appointment of Mr Malloun to be Judge of the Admiralty.
Letter signed. ⅔ large folio page.

Enclosure:—

> 1777, October 23. St. Vincent.—Copy of his letter to the Lords of the Treasury. Remarks on his appointment of Robert Malloun, to be Judge of the Admiralty of St. Vincent, on its being made a separate Government from Grenada.
> Quadruplicate, signed. 2¼ large folio pages.

GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, November 18. Saint Vincent.—Explaining the cause of his quarrels with the Colony. Sends home papers bearing upon the subject, which he hopes his Lordship will carefully study, and judge him leniently.
Letter signed. 1¾ large folio pages.

Enclosure:—

> Particulars of instructions, thought absolutely requisite and requested to be sent out to Governor Morris.
> 1⅔ large pages.

Duplicate of the foregoing letter and enclosure.

GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, November 20. Saint Vincent.—Vindicating his conduct with regard to the complaints made by this Island to the Lords of the Treasury of the Governor making improper grants of land to improper persons.
Letter signed. 3 large folio pages.

GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1777, December 4. Saint Vincent.—Sends to his brother Wilmot papers referring to his dispute with the Assembly, to vindicate his conduct and show the injustice done him.
Letter signed. Autograph Postscript. 3 large folio pages.

Enclosure :—

Duplicate of his letter of 20 November to Lord Dartmouth.

With this is the following, probably transmitted by the brother referred to :—

1777, November 20. St. Vincent.—The same to Lord George Germain. Same subject.
Copy. 4 large folio pages.

GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1778, March 31. St. Vincent.—Thanks him for the trouble he has taken respecting the complaints made of his conduct to the Boards of Trade and Treasury. Suggests fresh methods of granting lands in the island.

Autograph letter signed. 9 quarto pages.

GOVERNOR VALENTINE MORRIS to the LORDS of the TREASURY.

N. D.—Petition. Was appointed Governor 11th March 1776. That their Lordships agreed to pay him a salary of £1200 a year out of the revenue of 4½ °/₀ arising in the Island. If the Assembly refuse the grant he will be much inconvenienced. Prays that his salary may be granted from some other source.

1⅔ pages.

TOBAGO.

1774, April 7. Tobago.—Address and Petition to The King from the Council and Assembly, Thomas Fairholme, Speaker, Charles Ashwell, D. Secretary. The number of slaves being greatly in excess of the white people they are in danger of an insurrection which they have no means to quell. Pray that the Island may be put into an immediate state of defence, that the number of troops may be increased, and that they may be supplied with the means of making public roads, buildings and churches.

Copy. 5⅔ folio pages.

Endorsed: —Copy of Address and Petition of the Council & Assembly of Tobago to The King. R/ 27 Aug. 1774 from Govʳ Leyborne/. Ex.

VIRGIN ISLANDS. TORTOLA.

RICHARD BROWNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, December 2. Tortola.—Asks that he may be appointed Lieutenant Governor in the room of Lieutenant Governor Alexander Home deceased.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

William Payne Georges to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, April 18. Welbeck Street.—Expresses a few "loose Thoughts which have occurred to him upon the Subject of the Tortola Negotiation with the Court of Spain."

Autograph letter signed. 2¼ large folio pages.

WEST INDIES. GENERAL.

1764.—Essay on the Translation of Plants from the East to the West Indies. By Dr. Walker.

Manuscript. 46 pages.

Joseph Smith Speer to Lord Dartmouth.

1765, November 6. Gerrard Street, Soho.—On his arrival in England he met his creditors who immediately put him in prison. Attributes his misfortune to being obliged to spend his money in doing the duty he was ordered on to the Spaniards, and which he has not charged in his accounts. He has served in the West Indies and on the "Musketoe" Shore for twenty-one years. Hopes when his Lordship settles the affairs of the "Musketoe" Shore, he will provide for him in such a manner as he considers his services to his King and Country may deserve.

Autograph letter signed. 1¼ large folio pages.

Endorsed:—Lieut. Speer 5th Novr 1765. Stating his Distresses & praying Relief.

Captain Joseph Smith Speer to Lord Dartmouth.

[1765].—Memorial. Has served both in the army and navy for upwards of twenty-nine years without intermission. Petitions for such relief and promotion as His Majesty shall think proper. Copies of certificates are annexed proving his services.

6½ pages.

[1765], Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, November 26 to 29.—Minutes, probably of the Board of Trade, beginning "Read Letter from Governor Melville inclosing address of the Inhabitants of Grenada praying an Assembly."

1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Board Minutes Novr 26 & 28, 29. Grenada, Quebec, Gordon.

[1765], Thursday, December 5 and 6.—Minutes beginning "Read draft of Repret on Governor Shirley's Letters, and Mr Symmer's memorial concerning settlement and Fortification of Bahama Islands."

2½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Minutes Decr 5 & 6 Symmer, Grenada, Senegamb., Sr W. Codrington, N. Jersey, Bermuda, Barbados.

Francis Gildart, Town Clerk, to Lord Dartmouth.

1766, July 6. Liverpool.—That the Corporation of Liverpool has granted Lord Dartmouth the freedom of the town, for the part he has taken in obtaining an Act of Parliament for establishing free ports in the West Indies.

Autograph letter signed. With seal. 1 quarto page.

A draft of Lord Dartmouth's reply follows, acknowledging the honour.

Earl of Hillsborough to the Earl of Shelburne.

1768, June 15. Whitehall.—The 62d Regiment detained in the ceded Islands is to return to Cork.

Copy. ¾ page.

1772, July 14. 4½ per Cent. Office.—An Account of the Nett Produce of the four and a half per cent Duty for Five Years last past distinguishing each Year and each Island. Signed John Barnes Husband.

1 double page.

Lord Barrington to Lord Dartmouth.

1772, September 23. War Office.—Exchange of Regiments in the West Indies, America, and at home.

Letter signed. 1 page.

Endorsed:—L^{d} Barrington Relief for this year. Military.

[1772, after September].—Paper endorsed:—Mem^{m} Cabinet.

1½ folio pages.

The Earl of Rochford to Sir Ralph Payne.

1772, October 1. Whitehall.—Relief of troops in the West Indies.

Copy. 1 page.

Lord Clare to Lord [Dartmouth].

1772, November 12. Bath.

Autograph letter signed. 2 quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A 47. Lord Viscount Clare, Bath, Nov^{r} 12th 1772, with a Letter from M^{r} Dunning, recommending M^{r} Iles, v. Cor. p. 8, —7. Ent^{d}.

Enclosure:—

John Dunning to Lord [Clare].

1772, November 9. Putney Park.—On behalf of M^{r} Iles who wishes to be Attorney General of the Leeward Isles.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

1773, March 11.—[Minutes of Cabinet].

1 small quarto page.

JOSEPH SMITH SPEER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 30. Bridge Street, Westminister.—Has completed the large chart of the West Indies for the Public Offices, also a smaller one for navigation purposes, begs an audience to submit the whole to His Majesty's inspection.

Letter signed. 1¾ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—C—15. Cap. Speer, June 30, 1773, on American Surveys.

HECTOR MUNRO to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 28. Novar.

Autograph letter signed. 1½ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—A—22. H. Munro Esq^{r} 30 July 1773, in behalf of M^{r} James Bailly, to be Comm^{r} for Sale of Lands in Ceded Islands.

LORD LIFFORD to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1773, October 21. Dublin.—Praying an appointment in the West Indies or America for his brother Mr. Hewitt who is one of the Commissioners for the Sale of Lands in the Ceded Islands.

Autograph letter signed. 3 quarto pages.

WILLIAM MACINTOSH to LORD [DARTMOUTH].

1774, May 4. Red Lyon Square.—Has lately returned from Holland where he had an opportunity of obtaining much information concerning the British, Dutch and Portuguese trade on the coast of Africa. As he understands matters concerning this trade are likely to be agitated in Parliament, he offers his Lordship such information as he is possessed of. Having resided a long time in the ceded islands, he can give his Lordship information concerning them if he will grant him an audience.

Autograph letter signed. 1¼ quarto pages.

Endorsed:—M^{r} Mackintosh 4 May 1774 respecting an audience upon the West India Concerns.

1768, September 16 to 1774, May 20.—Captain Speer's Expenses for "Drawing, Engraving, Printing & Publishing a General Chart of the West Indies."

Signed. 1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Cap^{t} Speers Acc^{t} which he desired might be deliver'd your Lordship.

1774, September 7.—Card on which is written—"M^{r} Long, Sir James Cockburn, M^{r} Maitland and M^{r} Hankey wait on Lord Dartmouth, from the West India Merchants, with the Extracts of the Minutes of their yesterday's Meeting, and entreat his Lordship's immediate Attention to their Request." The Minutes accompany this card. The merchants represent that it would be a dangerous precedent for the other colonies, to confirm an "Act passed the 6th June last, in the Island of Grenada, entitled An Act to explain and amend an Act entitled An Act for re-establishing Courts of Common Pleas, Error, King's Bench and Grand-Sessions, and for the compelling the Specific Performance of Money-Contracts and an equitable Performance of other Contracts and for the better regulating and settling due Methods for the Administration of Justice, and limiting a Time for executing Executions out of the Court of Chancery and other Courts in this Island, and more effectual Support of Credit."

1½ folio pages.

Endorsed:—Minute of a meeting of West India Merchants 6 Sep^r 1774.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to the LORDS of the ADMIRALTY.

1778, November 21. Whitehall.—Their Lordships to give orders for transports to be provided to carry 400 recruits and 16 Commissioned Officers to the West Indies.

Draft. ¾ page.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to LORD TOWNSEND, Master General of the Ordnance.

1778, December 7. Whitehall.—His Lordship to order travelling carriages with limbers, ammunition-boxes and elevating screws, guns, mortars, ropes etc. to be got ready for the West Indies.

Draft. 1⅓ pages.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN to the LORDS of the ADMIRALTY.

1778, December 8.—Their Lordships to order transports to convey 90 recruits to the West Indies in addition to the 400 already destined for that station.

Copy. ¾ page.

BRY: BROUGHTON to LORD [ ].

1779, September 10.—Arrival of Admiral Barrington in town, who gives a different account of the West Indian engagement from that which has been understood. "We have had rather the best of it." On Adm^l Byron's approach the whole French fleet, amounting to 26 sail of the line, came out of S^t George's Harbour, Grenada. Byron immediately gave the order for chase and for close action. Barrington, who led the van, came up with the fastest sailing ships and began the engagement with seven. He drove the "Languedoc" out of the line twice and cleared her decks, as did the "Boyne" by the next largest French ship; on this the French, having the advantage of the little wind there was, edged away. Rowley who was left with three ships to take care of the transports was ordered to intercept them and in attempting it received the fire of the whole French line. They however got away, Byron not being able to get up so as to bring on a general engagement. "Our loss is 180 killed & 146 wounded.—The French is said to be much greater, 3 Captains, 18 Lieutenants & upwards of 2000 men being said to be killed & wounded. Our fleet is gone to Antigua to refit & the French to Martinico. Barrington gives great praise to Byron."

Autograph letter signed. 3⅔ quarto pages.

HENRY BOTHAM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1788, March 21. No. 66 Bond Street.—Sends his Lordship a paper of remarks which will prove that the sugar estates can be worked cheaper by freemen than by slaves.

Autograph letter signed. 1 quarto page.

Endorsed:—Henry Botham Esq^r^ March 1788 concern^g^ the employm^t^ of Slaves West Indies.

Enclosure:—

1788, March 17. London.—Remarks. As he has been for two years in the English and French West Indies and since conducted sugar estates in the East Indies, he thinks he may be able to give some useful information concerning the employment of slaves and freemen on the same, before the abolition of the slave trade is agitated in Parliament. Describes the working of a large sugar estate carried on near Batavia on which freemen only are employed, and points out where the advantges accrue from employing the same instead of slaves.

Signed. 3⅛ pages.

PART III.

CANADA, LABRADOR, NEWFOUNDLAND, NOVA SCOTIA, ISLAND OF SAINT JOHN.

The calendar of this portion of Lord Dartmouth's manuscripts, being pages 545 to 606, is supplied by Mr. Douglas Brymner, LL.D., F.R.S.C., archivist at Ottawa, Canada.

LETTERS AND PAPERS RELATING TO CANADA.

1757, April 4. Montreal.—Montcalm to Berryer, Minister of Marine. (A translation.) By a few contraband articles properly disposed of, the English dispatches are brought to him regularly, some of which open to him the greatest secrets of the English state. His (Montcalm's) correspondent appears to have been a Mr. J——, who says that the reason they (the French ?) know so little is, that their Governors are French nobility who are enemies to trade. Referring to the disposition of the Colonists (in New England), Mr. J—— says: "Take my word you may manage 'em; they entirely act according to their own interests." . . . . . Montcalm continues: "I can venture to assure you from knowledge and will show it you in another letter, that England will be the first victim of her Colonies." He then advises that as the Colonies have all sorts of manufactures the French should not interfere with them; "leave therefore Canada to be despoiled by them; give them every assistance in their manufactures to make a general commerce over all the English Colonies. If Canada was to be ceded, it would not be an irreparable Loss. As I suppose the Court would not give up the Fishery, the Source of Riches, therefore it would be necessary to have Louisbourg or some neighbouring Isle for that purpose, and to bring our merchandizes too for the English; and this little Port (or Post) would be as favourable to us, as Canada would be unfavourable to the English." (A note says: "This advice of Montcalm's made the French at the Peace insist on the Isles of St. Pierre and Miquelon.")

1758, October 1. Montreal.—Montcalm to Berryer. (A translation.) Bougainville is carrying the account of the defeat of Abercromby. His time is given up to fighting in summer and thinking in winter. "With a little policy I am satisfied the Governors of Canada would be able to carry to old England more rude Blows in the Bosom of Peace than we can do in War time. These Colonies are so little cemented to the Mother Country, that if I thought it expedient for our interest, I could get one Part of them now to sign a Neutrality; but this is not a proper time to distinguish them by so public a mark of Disaffection." The letter continues that the Colonies have always objected to fortifications, on the ground that there was nothing to fear from Europe, but in reality because they knew that forts and garrisons were the surest means to keep them in subjection. He is clear that the erection of a fort or anything that interfered with them would lead to sedition. They do not object to back settlement forts as they protect from Indians, are garrisoned by themselves and supported by convoys which could be cut off. "The several advices I receive daily assure me, England will one day lose her Colonies. As to the English Colonies one essential point should be known: it is, that they are never taxed—they keep that to themselves. An enormous fault this in the Policy of the Mother Country. She should have taxed them from the Foundation. I have certain Advice, that all the Colonies would take Fire at being taxed now."

1759, August 24. Quebec.—Montcalm to de Molé, first president of the Parliament of Paris. (A translation). Is here (Quebec) after standing a three months' bombardment from Wolfe, who can never succeed, so long as he attacks from the other bank. The campaign cannot last a month, on account of the terrible autumn winds, which are totally against the Fleet. Quebec must be taken by a coup de main. "The English have nothing to do but make a Descent on the Bank where this City is situated without Fortifications or Defence. Mr. Wolfe (if he understands his business) has nothing to do but bear the first Fire—advance fast upon my Army—stop at his Discharge—my Canadians without Discipline, at the sound of the Drum &c., will get into Disorder and fly—such is my deplorable situation." He believes he will not survive the loss of the Colony, the only thing that remains is to die with honour. "But in this I console myself, that the loss of this Colony, this Defeat will one day be of more Service to my Country than a Victory; And that the Conqueror in aggrandizing himself will find a Tomb even in that. The English must breathe the Air of Freedom, and these Americans more so; And the Children of these are not degenerated from the Republican Principles of their Parents. Their maxim is to obey as little as possible and when their Interests are touched they will revolt. Can England send one or two hundred thousand Men to oppose them at this distance?" The Northern parts and sea might be kept in obedience by the shipping, but who would conquer the interior parts? "Besides, on a general Revolt, the Enemies to England in Europe will aid the Revolters." If the English conquer they will have the conquered become English, forgetting differences of race, &c. Is clear that his ideas will be accomplished in less than ten years after the Conquest of Canada, but shall, as ordered act for its preservation.

These three letters occupy 6¼ quarto pages.

1763, November 3.—Extract from instructions to Murray, Lieut. Governor of Quebec, to transmit to the Lords of Trade a report of all occurrences and to one of the principal Secretaries of State such occurrences as are to be communicated directly to the King.

½ quarto page.

1764, March 6. Quebec.—Commission by Murray to Jean Baptiste De Bergere Rigauville Vere Major and Commandant of the Provincial battalion to be raised for the campaign against the Indian Nations (the Pontiac war).

1 foolscap page.

1764, September 17. Quebec.—"An ordinance for regulating and establishing the Courts of Judicature, Justices of the Peace, Quarter Sessions, Bailiffs and other matters relative to the Distribution of Justice in this Province."

10½ foolscap pages.

1764, September 20. Quebec.—Ordinance for ratifying and confirming the decrees of the several courts of justice, established prior to establishment of Civil Government throughout this Province, upon the 10th day of August, 1764.
5 foolscap pages.

1764, October 16. Quebec.—Presentment of the Grand Jury of Quebec, containing a representation against the admission as jurors of Roman Catholics.
8 foolscap pages.

A paper (undated) explaining the motive of the representation to be made to prevent cases between two Protestants from being tried before Roman Catholic jurors, but that it was never meant to remove any Roman Catholic from holding any office or filling any public employment.
1½ quarto pages.

Demand (in French) of the French jurors, dated 26th October, for a translation of the two deliberations of the Grand Jury on 16th October and pointing out which part of the presentment they had signed. A reference to the presentment shows that they signed the part before the article respecting French jurors to which they object.
9½ foolscap pages.

1764.—Instructions to Murray, that the miscontruction of the proclamation of 7th October, 1763, be removed and that in making provision for the due and impartial administration of justice that there shall extend to all "subjects in general the protection and benefit of the British laws and constitution in all cases where their Lives and Liberties are concerned" but "shall not operate to take away from the Native Inhabitants the Benefit of their own Laws and Customs in leases where Titles to Land and the modes of Descent, Alienation and Settlement are in Question, nor to preclude them from that share in the Administration of Judicature, which both in Reason and Justice they are intitled to in common with the rest of Our Subjects." The proposed instructions with notes of alterations suggested.
21 foolscap pages. [The instructions as finally sent are in the Colonial Office].

Another draught of the instructions contains nineteen and a half pages, each one half of the page, equal to nine and three quarter pages foolscap.

1764.—Paper endorsed: "Draught of an Instruction to the Gov. of Quebec, concerg the establishment of Courts of Judicature." Addressed to Murray.
20¼ half pages foolscap.

Another endorsed: "Extracts from the Commission and Instructions to the Governor of Quebec relative to the Establishments of Courts of Judicature." Murray's name occurs in the body of the document.
8½ foolscap pages.

1765.—Various dates.—A collection of copies of letters unsigned but evidently from Thomas Walker, who was attacked in his own house in Montreal, and partly from a friend of his on the subject of the trial, at which those accused of the outrage were acquitted. The letters are dated 20th February, 8th and 24th April, 30th May, 7th, 22nd, 25th and 27th June, all in 1765. The Governor (Murray) is charged with gross partiality and the military officers with behaving in a most outrageous manner towards the inhabitants. The State papers show that five officers were arrested, John Frazer, St. Luc la Corne, John Campbell, Daniel Disney, Simon Evans and one merchant, Joseph Howard. The bills were laid before the Grand Jury in March, 1767, and, with the exception of that against Disney, thrown out, but Disney was acquitted by the petit jury.
5¾ foolscap pages.

1765, February 4. New York.—Gage to Rigauville (in French). His pleasure that the Canadian corps had returned to Montreal before the bad weather. His satisfaction with the services and good conduct of the corps and his thanks to him and his officers for their conduct.
¾ foolscap page.

1765, June 10. Lincoln's Inn.—Opinion of Counsel by the Attorney General (Norton) and Solicitor General (de Grey), on the status of Roman Catholics in countries ceded to the Crown in America. "We have taken Mr. Pownall's Letter into our Consideration, and are humbly of Opinion, that His Majesty's Roman Catholick subjects residing in the Countries ceded to His Majesty in America by the Definitive Treaty of Paris, are not subject, in those Colonies, to the Incapacities, disabilities and Penalties, to which Roman Catholicks in this Kingdom are subject by the Laws thereof."
1¼ foolscap pages.

Enclosure :—

Enclosed is an opinion of Counsel, dated 18*th October* 1705, signed by Edward Northey, in respect to the Province of Maryland, that the charter to Lord Baltimore does not give power to do anything contrary to the ecclesiastical laws of England. On the general question whether the Laws of England are in force in the Plantations against Romish priests by the statute of 27 Elizabeth, Counsel states that that extended to all the dominions the Queen had when it was made but it is doubted whether it is extended to dominions acquired after, as the Plantations have been, but the Statute 11 William (III.) to the same effect, "extends to the Plantations, they being Dominions belonging to the Realm of England, and extends to all Priests, foreigners as well as natives." Romish Priests or Jesuits, if aliens, may be turned out of Maryland, if not made denizens or naturalised, but native born subjects cannot, they may be proceeded against by the last mentioned law.
3¾ foolscap pages.

Also enclosed, rough jottings for instructions to the Governor of Quebec, apparently in consequence of the opinion of the Attorney and Solicitor General.
3 half pages quarto and ½ foolscap.

There is a second copy of the opinion of the Attorney and Solicitor General.

1765, July 20. London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). Congratulates His Lordship on his appointment of premier lord dans le bureau des plantations (President of the Board of Trade). Is a jesuit of the College of Quebec, who has been ill treated. From his familiarity with Montcalm and his residence among the Indians he is thoroughly acquainted with the country, so that he has been employed by Murray to reduce this knowledge to writing and to proceed to London to give the minister full information respecting Canada, especially in regard to the clergy, hoping that the Court as a reward for his fidelity would grant him subsistence were it only from the Jesuit properties, to which it seems he has some right and in this sense Murray had written to Hillsborough, who had given him hopes which had not been realised. He had handed Lord Hillsborough some of his papers, from the notes which he had he could with some trouble prepare a clean statement for presentation to His Lordship (Dartmouth). Asks for an audience and liberty to lay certain papers before him. He had long desired to have an employment in His Lordship's house as French tutor to his son, but although he had used various means he had not been able to secure sufficient influence. Hopes for other employment as he knows all parts of Canada and can give all necessary information and prays for his recommendation to the Governor of Quebec.
3 quarto pages.

1765, August 17. London.—D. (Dartmouth) to Roubaud (in French). If he has proposals to make to the Board of Trade in name of the Governor of Quebec, he will be received with all respect. Has not time either for an interview or to examine his papers. When Murray shall have given notice to the Board of the commission with which he has charged him (Roubaud) he would find him (Dartmouth) ready to testify his sentiments.
1 quarto page.

1765, August 24. London.—Cramahé to Dartmouth. Murray had sent him to give an account of the state of Quebec so as to assist in the framing of instructions for his guidance. The Canadians have been alarmed, first, on account of their religion, second, with regard to the administration of justice in a language unknown to them, and the sudden introduction of laws of which they have no idea, and of lawyers not knowing a word of their language. Regulations are wanted on the following: Ecclesiastical affairs, administration of justice and revenues. Under the first are described the various classes, the three vicars general, with the powers of bishops, with the exception of ordaining, confirming and consecrating oils; the chapter; the clergy, regulars and seculars, the nuns. The Jesuits having been expelled from France and Portugal, thinks they cannot be surprised if they are removed from Quebec; proposes limitation to the admission of novices to the Recollets and nunneries. The necessity for prudence in selecting a protestant clergy, two at Quebec, two at Montreal, and one at Trois Rivières would be sufficient. The constitution of the courts of justice; all lawyers should understand French. The various classes of revenue described. List of civil offices with salaries of the officers. State of the public buildings. Respecting Indians and the presents that might be given them.
15 foolscap pages.

1765, August 31. Lincoln's Inn.—Fowler Walker to Dartmouth. Sends letter, copies of which had been sent to Lords Bute, Halifax and Hillsborough by the writer (name not given) for the redress of the insupportable grievances of the inhabitants of Quebec. The copy sent to Bute was from the belief that Murray was patronised and protected by him. Seven charges are stated to be contained in the letter against Murray, but they are not given, reference as to their nature being made to the letter, which is not here. Walker states that he has been appointed agent for the complainants, but whether these were new or old subjects does not appear.

3 quarto pages.

The letter is endorsed: "With another letter complaining against Gen^{l} Murray, Gov^{r} of Quebec."

1765, September 27. Quebec.—Levesque, Lemoine and Porlier, to Henry Guinand, merchant, London (in French). As he has been informed by his correspondents and others who have been recommended to him from Canada, they will not enlarge on the past. They have submitted with pleasure to the new government and have received favours from it they never enjoyed under the French government, but temporal benefits are wanting. France spent annually for military and other political purposes from ten to twelve million livres, which distributed gave a spring to industry, which the country, still poor, required; it was like sowing seed which increased double or treble, and the country gained strength, which without the first germ would have remained inactive. Their new masters had changed this and instead of spreading riches they exact a heavy burden, which they cannot bear; there is only one resource, to supply by an extended and free trade the want of assistance from their new country and [the burden of] the rules which it imposes on us. The merchants of England are considered the first in the world and consequently the most enlightened, so that they can see what is most suitable and useful, but owing to their distance objects appear in a different light. Trade dies out, the necessary, indeed indispensable, articles cannot be obtained and their own produce of which they make use cannot form the means of payment. Sad situation! No more money is sent and none can be procured by their produce; the Colony, then, overwhelmed with debts which it cannot pay will become a useless member. From the bankruptcy of so many firms, established for four or five years, it is evident that the country is not sufficient of itself, but requires for some time either assistance or encouragement to trade as an equivalent. They complain that instead of cheap, wholesome wine they formerly obtained from France, they can only procure a strong, unwholesome wine at an onerous rate; that their wheat is charged on arrival in England with a heavy duty, whereas properly managed the import of this wheat would make England the granary of Europe and enable the Canadians to trade with advantage and to settle the debts they are obliged to contract for necessaries. Advocates the change of laws which may have become unsuitable, should they stand in the way of helping Canada. Call attention to the desire of the Roman Catholics for a superior and of the Protestants for a minister of their own faith; the good that would result. Urge him (Guinand) to take their cause in hand.

4 foolscap pages.

1765, October 17. Lincoln's Inn.—Fowler Walker to Dartmouth(?). Calls attention to the doubts as to the legislative powers exercised by Murray and his Council; he holds that they are not invested with any legal authority to ordain laws and ordinances for the public peace and welfare and good government of the province, notwithstanding they have taken upon themselves so to do. Although the King on the conquest of Canada had the right to place by the royal prerogative the legislative power in the Governor and Council solely, yet he had abridged his power by the terms of the proclamation of 1763, of which he quotes a section containing the provision for legislation, which is, "We have also given power to the said Governors with the Consent of our said Councils and the representatives of the people . . . . to make, constitute and ordain laws &c. . . . . . . and untill such assemblies can be called as aforesaid, all persons inhabiting in or resorting to our said Colonies may confide in our royal protection for the enjoyment of the benefit of the laws of our realm of England." The Governor and Council are, therefore, given power in the meantime to constitute courts of judicature to hear and determine causes as near as may be agreeable to the laws of England with the right of appeal. Should his Majesty's ministers be of opinion that the Governor and Council are at present invested with a legislative power, that would " necessarily be attended with a most indecent and detestable conclusion, namely, that his Majesty's subjects, under the circumstances above mentioned, could not safely confide in his royal protection, for the enjoyment of the laws of his realm of England, notwithstanding his royal word and gracious assurances given them to the contrary." He points out the inconveniences that would arise from the sudden enforcement of the laws of England "upon a people whose genius and education, whose Religion and manners, are so widely different from those of the people for whom these laws were compiled," and as " these inconveniences cannot now be prevented consistently with the honour of the Crown and the rights of the people, without the sanction of a general assembly," urges that one should be called, the difficulties in the way being left for removal to the wisdom of his Majesty's Councils.

5¼ foolscap pages, closely written.

1765, November 4. Quebec.—François Joseph Cugnet for the heirs of Bissot, Joliet &c. to the Lords of Trade (in French), praying that the heirs be confirmed in the property on the main land of Mingan, the island of Anticosti, the island and islets of Mingan as far as Spanish Bay (Ance des Espagnols) commonly called Labrador or Baye Phelippeaux, sending the Act of Notoriety in place of the title which has been lost, fearing the effect of orders and regulations issued by Hugh Palliser, Governor of Newfoundland, respecting the coast of Labrador, and the islands of Anticosti and Madeline (the Magdalen Islands), which had been inserted in the Quebec Gazette of 31st October last, fears increased by a frigate with vessels furnished with passports for St. Modet and other ports, which had always belonged to the trade. Their hopes of success from the declaration by the King since the conquest, that the Canadians would be retained in their property.

1 foolscap page.

1765, November 15.—Additional instructions to Murray in reference to ordinance enacted on the 17th September, 1764, that a new ordinance is to be enacted, declaring that all the King's subjects in the Province of Quebec are entitled to be impanelled and to sit and act as jurors in all cases civil and criminal. Further that in all cases between British born subjects, the juries are to be composed of British born subjects only; in all causes between Canadians, the juries are to be Canadians only; in cases between British born subjects and Canadians, the juries are to consist of one half of each. Canadians are also authorised to practise in the Courts &c. [The date in a list of documents is 17th February, 1766, but this appears to be doubtful; as by the report of the Attorney and Solicitor General of 14th April, 1766, the date of the additional instruction is given as 15th November, 1765, as above.]

2¼ foolscap pages.

1765, November 22. St. James's.—Order-in-Council that instructions are to be sent to Murray to exert himself to apprehend the principal offenders [in the attack on Thomas Walker], and to have them tried in the vicinage and by a jury from the vicinage of where the offence was committed. The report of the Committee of the Privy Council on the power of the Governor to issue commission for the trial of offenders in all the districts of the Province of Quebec.
1½ foolscap pages.

1765, December 28. Quebec.—Canadians of Quebec to Daniel Vialars, merchant, London (in French). Protest against the statement in the Pennsylvanian Journal, that petitions had been presented by the French inhabitants of Quebec as well as by the English, complaining loudly of oppressive and arbitrary proceedings of a certain Governor in America. They formally disavow the statement, esteeming themselves happy in living under the orders of the Hon. James Murray, whom they wish to see retained amongst them.
3 foolscap pages, one of these consists of signatures.

1765 (?).—Case for opinion of Counsel as to the validity of the title of Gabriel Christie to lands acquired from Senneville, through Cartier, his assignee, whose rights he purchased, at the instance of Seneville's heirs, the first grant to Boisclerc having been annulled and the proper formalities to confirm the second not having been complied with. (Undated; the last date in the body of the document is 8th September 1764.)
5½ pages.

1765 (?).—Unsigned letter complaining of the oppression exercised by Murray, of his illegal seizure of the goods of merchants and of the furs of the traders among the Indians &c. [The date is given from the reference to Cramahé being in London, which was in 1765. The merchants and traders of Quebec sent a petition for Murray's recall, supported by one from the merchants of London engaged in the trade to Canada, which were sent to Murray by Halifax on the 10th of June, 1765. Murray was recalled in 1766.]
12 foolscap pages.

1766, April 14, London.—Report from the Attorney and Solicitor General, Yorke and de Grey, relative to "the Civil Government of the Province of Quebec." It is endorsed 13th May 1766, but that is the date at which it was read at the Committee of the Privy Council. They had received for consideration and report memorials and petitions from British and French subjects in Canada, complaining of several of the ordinances and proceedings of the Governor and Council of Quebec. The "principal sources of the disorders have been 1st. The attempt to carry on the administrations of justice without the aid of the Natives, not merely in new forms, but totally in an unknown tongue, by which means the partys understood nothing of what was pleaded or determined having neither Canadian Advocates or Sollicitors to Conduct their Causes between Canadians only, nor Canadian Jurors to give Verdicts, even in Causes between Canadians only, nor Judges conversant in the French Language to declare the Law, and to pronounce Judgement; this must cause the Real mischiefs of Ignorance, oppression and Corruption, or else what is almost equal in Government to the mischiefs themselves, the suspicion and imputation of them.

"The second and great source of disorders was the Alarm taken at the Construction put upon his Majesty's Proclamation of Oct^{r} 7th 1763, as if it were his Royal Intentions by his Judges and officers in that Country, at once to abolish all the Usages and Customs of Canada, with the rough hand of A Conqueror rather than with the true spirit of a Lawful Sovereign, and not so much to extend the protection and Benefit of his English Laws to His new Subjects, by securing their Lives, Libertys and propertys with more certainty than in former times; as to impose new unnecessary and arbitrary Rules, especially in the Titles to Land, and in the Modes of Descent, Alienation and settlement, which tend to confound and subvert rights instead of supporting them."

The first had been rectified by the order made by their Lordships on 15th November last (1765) to Murray by an additional instruction, which provides an adequate remedy. The Lords of Trade have applied themselves with great care, ability and judgment to suggest remedies for the second evil. The plan criticised in detail. By the first article, a Court of Chancery, to be also a Court of Appeal, is "very rightly meant to invest the Governor and Council with two different jurisdictions, one as a Court of Equity, the other as a Court of Error." The second article proposing a Superior Court of ordinary jurisdiction is approved of. In addition to the provision that the judges are required to be conversant in the French language "and that one of them particularly should be knowing in the French usages," they recommend that they be instructed to confer sometimes with the Canadian lawyers most respected for learning, &c., who may prove of the greatest assistance. In regard to fixing the terms for the sitting of the Superior Court, it is recommended that these be settled by local circumstances. The fourth article proposes that four sessions of assize, oyer and terminer, and gaol delivery be held at Quebec, with like special commissions once or oftener in the year at Trois Rivières and Montreal. The law officers represent that it is unnecessary to lay down any particular rules for holding four sessions at Quebec. It would be better to hold the circuit courts at Trois Rivières and Montreal twice a year after the manner of the Courts of Great Sessions established in Wales by Henry VIII., and by the Circuit Courts settled for Scotland in the late reign (George II.). They approve of the distribution of the Province, as proposed by the fifth article, into the three districts of which Quebec, Montreal, and Trois Rivières shall be the captial towns, but in respect to the annual appointment of a Sheriff, they suggest that the term of office be longer, owing to the difficulty of procuring English and Protestant sheriffs, especially at Trois Rivières, where the annual sheriff of Quebec might fill the office with a deputy. In that case the sheriff might be annual at Quebec and the same at Montreal. Objections are made to the proposal in the sixth article that the justices of the peace of the three districts, should in quarter sessions have jurisdiction in suits to the value of ten pounds. Such cases they think should be tried in Quebec. The power given to two justices in suits up to forty shillings, and suggest that it would be popular with the new subjects if one or two Canadians were appointed justices. In respect to the proposition in the seventh article, that in all cases where rights and claims are founded on events prior to the Conquest of Canada the Courts are to be governed by the French usages and customs which had hitherto prevailed in respect to such property, they extend the principle to all cases, holding that " there is not a maxim of the Common Law more certain than that a Conquered people retain their Antient Customs till the Conqueror shall declare new Laws." Canada being long settled and the laws established as well as local customs, they are of opinion that the judges would answer all the ends of their trust if they model their conduct on the following general rules. 1. In regard to personal actions and wrongs, the substantial maxims of law and justice are everywhere the same, so that the judges cannot err if in such cases they look to these substantial maxims. 2. In regard to suits affecting real property, the introduction of English laws would cause great confusion, local laws and customs should, therefore, be followed. English judges, with the help of Canadian lawyers, would soon instruct themselves in these. 3. In suits before the Governor and Council as a Court of Equity the same general rules will apply. 4. In criminal cases English law should apply. Its certainty and lenity are the benefits intended by the royal proclamation. 5. In rules of process and the practice of the Courts, the Judges with the Attorney General of Quebec should be instructed to prepare a plan adapted to the jurisdiction of the different Courts; the forms of procedure should be as simple, easy, and as summary and expeditious as may consist with the advancement of right and protection of innocence.

17 foolscap pages.

1766, April 27. London.—H. S. Conway to Dartmouth. Asks that Carleton, appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Canada, be allowed to see the instructions to Murray and other material papers.
1 quarto page.

1766, May, 5. London.—Grant to Dartmouth. Recommends the appointment to the Council of Quebec, of William Grant.
1 loosely written quarto page.

1766, December 20. Quebec.—The nuns of the General Hospital (in French). Memorial, with account and orders authorising the supply, for payment of firewood purchased on account of the sick soldiers cared for in the hospital. The papers are certified copies.
7 foolscap pages.

1766.—List of documents relating to the Province of Quebec. These are placed at their respective dates.
1¼ foolscap pages.

1767, May 13. Grosvenor Square.—Rockingham to Dartmouth. Asks him to attend a meeting to arrange the time and mode of bringing up the Quebec affair in the House of Lords. Those at the meeting were to be the D. of R. (Duke of Richmond), Duke of N. (Newcastle), Lord Hardwicke, Charles Yorke and himself (Dartmouth).

1 quarto page.

1767, May 17.—"Memorial from a considerable number of His Majesty's new subjects in the Province of Quebec, complaining of the Constitution lately established." This is the title endorsed. There is no date; that here given follows the endorsed title.
6 foolscap pages.

1767, May 27. Whitehall.—Richmond to Dartmouth. The Quebec papers laid before the House by Shelburne. Asks him to attend a meeting to consider the motions or resolutions it may be proper to form.
1 quarto page.

1768, February 20. Whitehall.—Hillsborough to Barrington. The 8th regiment to be embarked for Quebec as soon as the transports are ready.
7 lines.

1768, August 20.—Plan (coloured) of the seigniories of Chateauguay, St. Louis (Caughnawaga) and Sallade on the south side of the St. Lawrence.
4 foolscap pages.

1768.—"Copy of a commission for the curate and minister of the parish of Quebec" (Anglican). "1768."
1¼ foolscap pages.

1769, March 15.—"Present Council of Quebec," and new councillors proposed. Undated. The list, with the proposed councillors appears to have been sent in a letter from Carleton to Hillsborough of this date.
1 foolscap page.

1770, November 5. Montreal.—Certificate (in French) that Jean Dumas had fulfilled the duties of a justice of the peace irreproachably till the first February last.
1 foolscap page.

1772, February 8. Near Petworth.—N. Turner to Dartmouth. Represents his case, having been Provost Marshal of Quebec, which office was abolished on the appointment of sheriffs. Prays for the payment of arrears of salary and that, as the recompense for his resignation of the patent he holds, his son should be appointed to office at 300*l.* a year. The transactions in reference to his claim by the Boards of Trade and Treasury.
4 quarto pages.

1772, August 7 (?) London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (undated; in French). Would have sent his letter sooner but waited for certificate from Murray, which is enclosed. States that from his office as Jesuit missonary to the Indians he had been able to rescue 150 officers and soldiers from their hands whom they had intended to burn.

His other services. Enclosed is Murray's certificate that he had sent Roubaud with information to the Secretary of State and that when he left Quebec the Jesuits had agreed to pay him an annuity. (Murray's certificate is dated 30th July, 1772.) The above date is calculated from the time occupied in the transmission of Murray's certificate.
2 pages of letter, ¾ page certificate, quarto.

1772, August 27. Papplewick.—Fred. Montagu to Dartmouth. Is unable to visit him (Dartmouth) on account of illness. A metrical "Inscription for the monument of General Wolfe" is enclosed.
2 pages for the letter and 1 for inscription, both quarto.

1772, September (?)—John Campbell, memorial for the office of Indian superintendent. Undated. [The Duke of Argyll, writing from Inverary on 30th October, 1772, recommends Campbell to be appointed to "the office which he solicits." The office is not named but the memorial is probably that referred to by the Duke.]
1 foolscap page.

1772, October 5. Bigna Park.—N. Turner to Dartmouth. Congratulates His Lordship on being appointed Secretary of State for America, which will give him power to carry into execution the recommendation (? recdn.) of sheriff in Quebec; it has been a detriment to him and his son, for whom the office was intended. (The phraseology is obscure.) Intreats that the case be recommended to His Majesty, and his son provided for on his (Turner's) resigning his patent.
1 quarto page.

1772, October 30. Inverary.—Argyll to Dartmouth. Recommends Capt. John Campbell as being properly qualified for the office he solicits in Quebec.
1¼ quarto pages.

1772, November 18. London.—J. C. Roberts to Dartmouth. Represents the distressed situation to which he has been reduced, owing to the delay in deciding on the resumption of his patent office of Secretary of the Province of Quebec and the indemnification he was to receive for his resignation.
4 quarto pages.

1772, December 6.—"Abstract of such of the Regulations proposed in M^r^ Solicitor Gen^l's^ Report as it may be expedient to establish by Act of Parliament." The abstract provides that the Governor and Council may make and ordain ordinances for the public peace &c.; a majority of the members must be present and such ordinances can only be passed at meetings specially called for the purpose. No ordinances affecting life or limb, or imposing taxes or by which the laws of England, or customs of Canada directed by the Act to be used, may be altered or varied until approved by His Majesty and signified by order-in-Council. Copies of ordinances to be transmitted to Lords of Trade to be laid before Parliament. All subjects in the Province of Quebec may freely profess their religion. "That it shall and may be lawful to and for any Person or Persons who shall be licenced by the Governor of the Province to ordain Priests and Deacons, and also to grant Licences for Marriages as has been formerly used, but not to exercise any other ecclesiastical Jurisdiction or Authority." Crimes and misdemeanours to be tried by the laws of England. No person to suffer death for theft where the value of the thing taken shall be less than five pounds; where the offender is entitled to benefit of clergy he shall only be fined or imprisoned or bound to his good behaviour. After the verdict is given no charge shall be arrested upon any objection of informality. Laws respecting real property of His Majesty's Canadian subjects, and in cases of intestacy to be tried by the laws in force on the 13th September, 1759, but this not to apply to lands granted or to be granted in common soccage. At and after the age of 25, persons may change their tenures of land into free and common soccage. Wills &c. executed under the law prevailing on the 15th September, 1759. In marriages heretofore contracted the laws in force on the same date to regulate the distribution of personal property, but the laws of England to apply in the case of marriages after a date left blank.

5 foolscap pages.

1772, December 6.—"Abstract of such of the Regulations as the provincial Legislature of Quebec may carry into execution." The appointment of clergy where there is and there is not a lay patron. In the latter case "the Governor shall nominate and licence some person, being a Priest born in Canada or the British dominions or resident in Canada for the space of five years." Every priest shall receive his accustomed dues; he may be removed by the Governor on complaint. No Protestant to be compelled to pay tithes; these may be sued for by the Receiver General to be applied for the support of Protestant divines. Seigniories &c. held by the Jesuits on 15th September, 1759, to be vested in the Crown. How homage is to be paid. No sale of land after the money is paid to be rescinded by the lord or by the nearest relation of the vendor, claiming the right of pre-emption. The Governor to appoint Commissioners for the trial of small causes with right of appeal in cases above twelve pounds. The terms for holding the Superior Court and the creation of Circuit Courts. [There are two dates here the 13th and 15th; the capitulation of Quebec was signed on the 18th September, 1759, by Saunders, Admiral George Townsend, the chief officer in command of the troops, and De Ramezay.]
6¼ foolscap pages.

1772, December 18. London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). Robinson, to whom he was directed to apply, says he had no orders from Lord North respecting him (Roubaud); this forgetfulness is natural with so many cares as Lord North has; can only rely on His Lordship (Dartmouth). The promises by Shelburne to have him (Roubaud) paid, but on his resignation the promises were not kept, &c.
3 quarto pages.

1772, December 26. Parliament Street.—Robinson to Roubaud. North is out of town and has left no order for the payment of money to him (Roubaud). When he was paid the last to meet his debts he was told he must live on his pension; cannot, therefore, pay anything further without an express order.
1 quarto page.

1772, December 27. London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). His deplorable situation. Sends copy of Robinson's letter that when Lord North sent him £30 sterling, he was told he must live thenceforth on his pension. But this he had never enjoyed. Had written to Murray of the kindness he had received from him (Dartmouth) which Murray had regarded as such good news that he had informed all his friends. Should be vexed, therefore, if Murray comes to London that he should learn of Robinson's letter, as he (Murray) believes that it is sufficient to be considered one of his friends to be treated with refusals &c. by subordinates in the Government offices. None of the family (of Murray) has been at the Court for four years. It would be easy to bring them back if they were treated like Carleton, who although he had seen no service, as Murray had done, was able to obtain well paid offices for his friends. His wretched condition whilst waiting for the interview he had been promised. A copy of his letter to Robinson (in English) is enclosed.

The letter, 2½ pages, the copy, 1 page, quarto.

1772 (?).—Endorsed: "Draught of Commission to Capt. Campbell." He was appointed Major Commandant of the Indians. See letter from Duke of Argyll, 30th October, 1772.

1¾ foolscap pages.

1772.—"Memoire touchant la Conduite ambitieuse & violente de Jean Olivier Briand, Evêque, par Tolérance, des Catholiques-Romains, présenté à la Cour de LONDRES." Printed and undated; for the date see end of third paragraph in second page. The memoire denounces the Bishop for his tyranny and assumption of power and for his persecution of the memorialist Louis Lotbinière, priest.

7¾ quarto pages. There are two copies.

1773, January 2. London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). Repetition of his requests for assistance, his debts and misery.

2½ quarto pages.

1773, January 6, London.—Memorial by Roubaud (in French) to North praying for relief. A copy of Murray's certificate is enclosed.

5¾ pages, certificate ¾ foolscap page.

1773, January 7. Inner Temple.—Maseres to Dartmouth. Had sent two papers in August last relating to the Province of Quebec, one the draught of an Act for settling the laws of the Province, the other a draught for settling the affairs of religion there. The first has the approbation of Sir Eardley Wilmot, the second he thinks well of. Sends two more papers on Quebec and remarks by de Lotbinière, although they are very severe on him.

3 quarto pages.

1773, January 12. Newman Street.—Memorial of Nicholas Turner, Provost Marshal of Quebec. Represents the ruinous state of the gaol, from which prisoners can easily escape. He has been sued for the escape of a debtor for £1360, at a cost for defence of £117. 3. 0 for which he prays the repayment. An account of the disbursements is enclosed.

Memorial 1½ pages, account 1 page, both foolscap.

1773, January 25. Berkeley Square.—Sir Charles Frederick to Townshend. Had received note that Dartmouth had called a meeting to determine concerning the proposed fortifications at Quebec and Newfoundland, reported to the Board [of Ordnance] and desiring to know what steps had been taken. No propositions or report had been made respecting fortifications at Quebec, nor any reference from the Secretary of State. In regard to St. John's Newfoundland an order had been signified to the Board in March 1772, to erect a battery at the mouth of the harbour and place a boom there. Lieut. Pringle has made a report on this which with all the plans respecting the island he will bring to the meeting. [Sir Charles Frederick was Surveyor General of the Ordnance from 1750.]

1½ foolscap pages.

1773, February 4.—Memorial of James Hugh's (Hughes), Town Major of Quebec, for the restoration to the family and coheirs of Bruagh (Brouague ?) a seigniory on the north side of the St. Lawrence, granted to him by the King of France in 1721, from which he was dispossessed at the conquest. The memorial is undated; it is endorsed as received on the date given above.

2 foolscap pages.

1773, February 7, London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). Had not been admitted to an audience, his feelings at this exclusion. His wretched state. Having been drawn from his College, he cannot return to the Jesuits; a living death would be the price of his admission to the Church of England. Appeals for assistance.

4¼ quarto pages.

1773, March 1. London.—Memorial of George Allsopp, for payment of the fees due to him on account of Government, between the 22nd of April, 1768, and the 24th June, 1772.

2¼ foolscap pages.

1773, March 17. London.—George Walker and Hugh Montgomerie to Carleton. Transmit memorial from settlers in Quebec stating the abuses in respect to the fishery from Bay Verte to Bay Chaleur and on to Gaspey (Gaspé) in the Province of Quebec and requesting that some of His Majesty's cruisers be stationed on the coast for the protection of the fishery.

2½ foolscap pages.

1773, March 29.—Maseres to Dartmouth. Desires His Lordship's acceptance of the copy of a new draught of an Act for settling the laws of the Province of Quebec to obviate complaints of some things in the former draught.

¾ quarto page.

1773, March 31.—"A few remarks on the Province of Quebec," with a plan of the town of Quebec. This appears to be the first copy, roughly written. It is endorsed "Lt. Marr's papers, 56 pages with a plan March 31st 1773." A clean copy has the title "Remarks on the Province of Quebec," and is endorsed "Lieut. Marr's Remarks upon Quebec during his residence from 1768 to 1772," but the plan does not accompany it. (Marr was in command of the Royal Engineers at Quebec for some years, but appears to have been superseded in 1777 by Carleton and in July 1778, he complains of being treated as a cypher, Twiss, a junior officer having been put over his head. In August of 1778 he obtained leave of absence, but remained in charge of the local works at Quebec till the end of the summer of 1779). The remarks are thus divided: 1. Boundaries of the Province, taken from the Proclamation of 7th October, 1763. 2. River St. Lawrence. 3. Seigniories and subdivisions. 4. Conditions of vassalage. 5. Manner of taking and dividing the land. 6. Consequences of the foregoing manner of divisions. 7. Antient laws of succession to lands. 8. Changes which have happened under the English Government. 9. Nature of the soil and Canadian Improvements in Husbandry. 10. Timber &c. 11. Pipe staves. 12. Exports from Canada &c. 13. Disposition & Temper of the Canadians. 14. The Canadians indolent & the causes thereof. 15. Project for raising hemp. 16 has no title; this section gives the relative populations &c. 17 suggests building churches for Protestants in Quebec, Montreal and Three Rivers, and the class of ministers who should be settled in them; the desire for a House of Assembly by the old subjects; the inconveniences of granting it owing to the aggressive spirit of English speaking Protestants; the want of education among the Canadians and the probability that the Roman Catholic clergy would seek to be represented on account of their landed properties. Fortifications. General Remarks. Quebec, Montreal, Chambly, Dechambault.

The rough copy contains 55½ pages, besides the plan, the clean copy 78¼, both foolscap. The difference arises from the writing, the two copies being identical.

1773, March 31.—Memorial of Nicholas Turner that E. W. Gray, his deputy at Montreal, had accounted for the fees to June, 1768, but has since refused to do so. Asks that the Attorney General of Quebec may be ordered to compel him to account for and remit the fees.
½ foolscap page.

1773, April 15. Piccadilly.—Chartier de Lotbiniere to Dartmouth (in French). Had been working continuously to satisfy His Lordship's desires and would yesterday have sent part of his work had it been possible. He has touched on some of the causes in the Courts which had attracted his attention, stating their judgments, believing it to be necessary to convince those who may not yet be sufficiently so, of the necessity that the country should have principles of law which cannot be abused. Has suppressed the most monstrous facts of the actions to their close, feeling that the honest people of England had more than sufficient trouble in considering the little he had said. It will be new neither to His Lordship nor to Lord North to whom he had already related the whole and even more, and which have been entered in the statement he had made to him (Dartmouth). He had also informed Lord Hillsborough, who, in spite of his surprised and inquisitive air, he (Lotbiniere) was convinced had been informed of the whole before. As it is impossible to obtain leisure on His Lordship's reception day (jour de lever), asks for a private audience.
1¼ quarto pages.

1773, May 12.—Maurice Morgan to Dartmouth. His mission to Quebec to report on the state of the judicature in that Province; the inadequacy of the allowance for his expenses and asks for additional payment.
4 quarto pages.

On a wrapper is endorsed "Mr. Mau. Morgan, 12 May, 1773, soliciting a reward from Government for his services at Quebec."

1773, May 20. London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). His claims against the Jesuits, certified by Murray; they refuse to pay and to recompense him. Government has added to his pension, but having entered on engagements on the faith of this he is now twice as deeply involved as he was before. Repeats the account of his services, &c.
3 foolscap pages.

1773, May 29.—Richard Manser to Dartmouth. Appeals for employment to relieve his necessitous state.
2¼ quarto pages.

1773, June 6. Beauport, near Battle, Sussex.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). Has been desired by Murray to send another petition for which no great success is anticipated owing to causes which he can only communicate verbally. The danger he runs of being arrested in Murray's house, who owes him a safe conduct back to the college from which he drew him to send him to the King, and in honour should solicit and obtain from His Lordship a safe conduct to the Jesuits, which though hard would be less so than to perish in a London prison. States that the two Captains Mackay, of whom one received £1,000 for land not worth £50 and the younger is Surveyor of Woods, are both in Paris soliciting employment from the French Court &c. His fears of an execution on his furniture if he is not assisted.
2 foolscap pages.

A memorial (in French) to North is enclosed (1½ pages) and certificate by Murray (1 page) both foolscap.

1773, June 18. Beauport, near Battle, Sussex.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). The silence in reference to his last request forebodes a refusal. The promises made to him of a sufficient pension, on account of the saving in connection with the paper money of Canada, have not been kept, whilst other men without any claim enjoy the favours of Government. His treatment will not encourage the new subjects to offer their services. Repeats the account of his wretched condition.
3 quarto pages.

1773, June 22. Quebec.—Cramahé to Dartmouth. Hopes that the consideration of the constitution for Quebec may soon be brought to a conclusion. To gain the affection of Canadian subjects they should be granted all possible freedom and indulgence in their religion. Recommends the appointment of a Roman Catholic Bishop and the allowance for a coadjutor, to consecrate the clergy &c. and to do away with the necessity of the Bishops crossing the seas for their own consecration, and meeting with these who are not friendly to British interests.
1¾ foolscap pages.

1773, July 3. Bristol.—Bishop of Bristol to Dartmouth, strongly recommending the case of Gregory, late of Quebec, for relief.
1 quarto page.

1773, August 4.—Lord Chancellor to Dartmouth. Sends papers relating to Canada, which will, he believes, enable His Lordship to form a plan of Government for Canada. [The date may either be the 4th or 7th, the figure being badly made.]
½ quarto page.

1773, August 11. Paris.—Chartier de Lotbiniere to Dartmouth (in French). Offers to take charge of His Lordship's son and to meet him at Dieppe; suggests that he need only take one servant and not take the title of Lord, as that would greatly influence the expense. He would not be the less considered and would see equally good company. Assures His Lordship that he will guard him as he had done his own son, &c. [Lord Lewisham, the son in question, was not quite eighteen years old at this time.]
2 quarto pages.

1773, August 11. Inner Temple.—Maseres to Dartmouth. Asks for a sinecure office in one of the Provinces, on account of his services in Quebec. The office of Provost Marshal of Barbados is now vacant. His disappointment at losing an Indian judgeship, which he was obliged to refuse, as the Lord Chancellor insisted on giving priority in the Commission to a junior at the bar.
4 quarto pages and five lines.

1773, August 26. Inner Temple.—Maseres to Dartmouth. Has received information through Pownall that the office of Provost Marshal at Barbados had been granted in reversion. Asks that the same favour may be extended to him for another office. The desire on the part of Lord North, Lord Mansfield, and the Lord Chancellor to settle the constitution of the Province of Quebec by legislation.
3 quarto pages.

1773, September 4. Montreal.—Memorial (in French) of Joseph Fleury, represents the letting of his house for a barrack in Montreal and its destruction by fire and praying for reimbursement. Represents also the advances he made to Montcalm of grain and money for the use of the French troops for which he cannot get payment from the French Government.
6¾ foolscap pages.

1773, September 11. Beauport near Battle.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). Is still with Murray and would have waited in silence the efforts of his friends with North, but for the bull for the dissolution of the Jesuits, which affects his interests as well as those of the public. The extent of the orders in the bull described. Accounts should be taken at once, since if the bull is received without the consequent orders of Government the Jesuits would leave the college, divide the funds and property, so that the King would lose a large sum and he (Roubaud) be deprived of his share. Asks for an interview on the subject. Rose Fuller, member for Rye drove him to a horse race at Lewes, where he had an interview with the Duke of Richmond at the ball, details of which he would give at his first visit. He is still a fugitive, separated from his family, and hopes that this opportunity will be taken to end his calamities.

2 foolscap pages.

A letter to Pownall of same date is enclosed, begging him to read the letter addressed to Dartmouth and to use his influence to have him recalled to London and to have his affairs settled, so as to put an end to his misfortunes.

1 foolscap page. A separate wrapper states that the letter was read by the King.

1773, October 18 (?). London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth. Memorial (in French), "sur l'etat present des jesuites en Canada." Had a few days before sent to the King what he believed to be an unanswerable proof of the necessity that Government should decide with respect to the Jesuits, the order having been abolished by the Pope and their properties, therefore, escheated to the Crown as had been the case in other States, although from motives of humanity they had granted the members an alimentary pension. The King would, no doubt, act with the same generosity towards the Jesuits of Canada, who were almost all in the decline of life, too old to be banished from their country and several not fit to provide for their own subsistence. To enable Government to decide what should be a proper allowance gives a list of their seigniorial and other properties, their college and other buildings, &c. In the society are three orders, the only true Jesuits being the professed; the brothers and non-professed were not understood to be of the order and could be dismissed at pleasure. When the treaty of peace was concluded they were forbidden by the Court to receive novices (nouveaux sujets) but they had the brothers, a kind of servants, not wearing the ecclesiastical soutane, taught a few words of Latin and made priests. These should not be admitted to the new fabrique; there are two of them living—Fathers Macquet and Cazeau. Gives the names and ages of the true professed who are nine in number, including himself. Suggests that to relieve the burden of paying the pension for a long time, the Bishop should be ordered to place the Jesuits in the vacant charges which are numerous in Canada, and which would furnish a larger amount for the decent subsistence of the priests than the value of the pension.

The memoire is undated. The memoire to the King, mentioned in the first paragraph as having been sent a few days before, was dated 11th October 1773.

6¼ quarto pages.

1773, November 28. La Haye.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). The unexpected arrival of his wife and consequent increase of his expenses. Cannot pay his tavern bills which would be a disgrace to the office he holds of Secretary to the Embassy. Reiterates his claims on the Jesuits, &c.

2½ quarto pages.

1773, December 21. La Haye.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). Had expended £3,000 sterling to redeem English prisoners; had enriched the state by a million sterling on account of the paper money of Canada (dans l'affaire des papiers du Canada); had served England faithfully for 13 years; the King had thanked Murray for sending him to London, and when he was deposed, the Jesuits had agreed to pay him a pension of 120 guineas a year, ratified and guaranteed by the Governor. For five years these claims were totally abandoned, and the Jesuits imitating the conduct of Government had ceased after a year, to pay the pension. His wretched state of poverty; asks for payment of his pension from the Jesuits with arrears, enlarging on his claims.

2 quarto pages.

1773.—"Avertissement. Doit être incessamment publiée par souscription, Lettre Canadienne et Sauvage, Dediée à Milord N. (North) par Mr. Roubaud, nouveau sujet de sa Majesté, et Membre de l'Eglise D'Angleterre, ci-devant Missionnaire Jesuite chés les Sauvages."
Printed. 4 quarto pages.

1773.—List of British proprietors of lands in the Province of Quebec in 1773.
1 foolscap page.

1773 (?)—Memorial by Rigauville to Carleton for a pension for his services when in command of the Canadian Corps. [Carleton was in London in 1773. Before leaving for Quebec in the summer of 1774, he recommended Rigauville for a pension of 200*l.*] The memorial is undated.
½ page large sheet of parchment.

1774, January 8.—Note from Maseres, with extracts from Le Brun, a French Canadian lawyer and Dumas, the latter dated 7th January, approving of Maseres' plan for settling the laws of the Province of Quebec.
5 quarto pages.

1774, February 4. Hague.—Joseph Yorke to Dartmouth, Roubaud, recommended to his care, had taken refuge here after his wife's elopement, but she has traced him out and joined him. The increased expense this has caused. Had not hesitated to assist him; his pension is small and although he acts prudently, he cannot avoid incurring debts. From his services he does not deserve to be given up or to die in prison. Asks instructions if he is to leave Roubaud and his wife to take their chance of returning to London. A postscript says:—"I could not refuse Mr. Roubaud the leave he asked to trouble your Lordship with a renewal of his lamentations."
3 quarto pages.

1774, February 11. St. James's Square.—Dartmouth to Yorke. In consideration of his difficulties rather than deserts, he had obtained assistance from the Treasury for Roubaud. Although he had promised to make no further solicitation, he would once more endeavour to preserve him from the ruin caused by his own indiscretions. His pension, though small, should suffice and he has besides had sums given to him to pay his debts; his extravagant pretensions. Roubaud is to send an account of his present debts and he shall hope to satisfy the most clamorous.
2½ quarto pages.

1774, March 2.—Wedderburn to Dartmouth. Is doubtful if he has succeeded in expressing the alterations required in the Quebec bill; his objection to parts of the bill and alterations strengthened. His objection to French law in criminal cases, which Chief Justice Hey assures him would be as little agreeable to the French as to the English speaking inhabitants, and the French make very good jurymen. Sees no objection to the adoption of the criminal law of England, which might afterwards be modified in accordance with the circumstances of Canada. Remarks on the method of appointing to the Council. Objections to the definition of the state of the laws, the proclamation, commissions, &c., being annulled, and it is difficult to understand what is meant, a clause of the bill declaring "that His Majesty's subjects in Canada shall enjoy their Laws and Customs beneficially, as if the Proclamation had not been made and as is consistent with their allegiance and subjection to the Crown and Parliament of Great Britain." These words, Chief Justice Hey thinks, will much perplex the Canadian. "Is his Religion lawfull, or tolerated or unlawful. Are the rights of succession, of marriage, of contract, that have accrued since 1764 and been enjoyed according to the law of England rescinded, for the Act is in some measure declaratory as to the sense of the Proclamation. What is to be the condition of the English Canadian? Is he or is he not included in the description of His Majesty's subjects of and in Canada? He thinks it would be much better to express clearly what rights shall be restored to the Canadian, and that he would be better satisfied with a less extensive and a more certain Provision for him." He (Wedderburn) thinks the objections weighty, and that it would be easy to adapt a bill to the idea they suggest.

4 foolscap pages.

1774, March 11. Hague.—Yorke to Dartmouth. His Lordship having taken Roubaud's affairs in hand, he (Yorke) shall wait further directions. Leave of absence obtained for Ensign Selkirk Stewart.

1 quarto page.

1774, April 5. Paris.—Duc de Nivernois to Dartmouth (in French)· Recommends the case of a French surgeon, settled for some time in Canada, but now in France to settle his affairs. He will on his way to Canada present this letter. Begs that the surgeon's request may be granted.

1¼ quarto pages.

One of two copies of an unsigned and undated memorial is endorsed, "Letter from a French surgeon, recommended by the Duke de Nivernois." The memoralist appears to be the surgeon mentioned in the preceding letter. The application is to be appointed visiting surgeon to the two hospitals in Quebec now in charge of the nuns, who act as doctors and surgeons to the best of their power.

Each paper is foolscap of 2½ pages.

1774, April 20. London.—Pierce Sinnott to Pownall. Encloses memorial to be presented to Dartmouth, praying for an increase to his salary as Lieutenant Governor of Niagara, the present salary being insufficient.

1½ foolscap pages.

The memorial is enclosed. 1 foolscap page.

1774, April 26. Fleet Street.—Charles Wray to Dartmouth. For leave of absence to Kneller, Attorney-General of Quebec, owing to the precarious state of his father's health and the danger of losing his inheritance should his father die without seeing him.
2 quarto pages.

1774, April 28.—Mansfield to Dartmouth. Suggests two alterations in the Quebec Act. One relative to the Supremacy. "I mean it to avoid what Lord North and yr Ldp. seemed very desirous of avoiding, the necessity of the Canadian gentlemen taking the Oath of Supremacy. The other relates to the Right of Tithes, &c., depending on the man's professing the Popish Religion, any man who denies professing it will be excused. They should pay to the Priest till the time is ripe for their paying to the Minister of some other Religion."
1¼ quarto pages.

1774, April 30.—Knox to Dartmouth. Sends a memorandum of Hillsborough's and Carleton's sentiments on the Quebec Bill.
2 quarto pages.

1774, April 30. Inner Temple.—Maseres to Dartmouth. Sends additional extracts of letters containing favourable opinions of his memoire on Canada. The evidence of the favour with which his plan for settling the laws of Quebec has been received by all classes, including the priests, shows that they regard it as beneficial.
4¼ quarto pages.

1774, May 1.—Dartmouth to Hillsborough. His objections to the Quebec bill have been laid before the Cabinet, which holds that the extension of the Province to the Ohio and Mississippi is an essential and very useful part of the bill. His objection to allowing a change of tenure has been agreed to and the clause struck out.
1 foolscap page.

1774, May 1.—Dartmouth to Mansfield. The first objection—that relative to the Supremacy,—has been agreed to by the Cabinet. The other—relative to tithes—is unnecessary, as His Majesty intends to make immediate provision for a Protestant clergy. The clause relating to the free exercise of religion has been made declaratory, which will remove doubts and prevent any ill consequences in other parts of His Majesty's dominions.
1 foolscap page.

1774, May 15.—Lord Chancellor (Apsley) to Dartmouth. Suggests caution in respect to giving the right to try mercantile cases by a jury as the revenue might be affected by the extension of the right. The note is undated; the above date is that of the endorsement.
1 quarto page.

1774, May —.—Lord Chancellor to Dartmouth. Presumes the Quebec bill will be returned to the Lords on Tuesday, with many amendments. Suggests that the bill be printed and the amendments considered on Friday. Date endorsed; the bill did not, however, pass the Commons till the 13th June.
1 quarto page.

1774, June 13.—Robinson to Dartmouth. Transmits the Quebec Act complete as it passed the House of Commons this day.
½ quarto page.

1774.—"Bill, (with emendations;) intituled An Act for making more effectual Provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec, in North America. (1774)."
8½ foolscap pages. Printed.

1774.—Two draughts entitled: An Act for making more effectual Provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and for removing Doubts which have arisen relative to the Laws and Constitution of the said Province since the Proclamation of 7 October 1763.
14¾ and 16¼ pages respectively.

Draught not dated, probably 1774.—An Act to remove the Doubts which have arisen relative to the Laws and Government of the Province of Quebec, since His Majesty's Royal Proclamation of the seventh day of October 1763.
Two copies, one 19 the other 20 pages, the longer being a little more loosely written.

Draught probably 1774.—An Act for granting for a limited time therein ment^{d}, Powers of Legislation to the Governor and Council of His Majesty's Province of Quebec for the time being.
8 foolscap pages.

1774 (?) Preamble of the above.
2 foolscap pages.

1774 (?)—"A memorandum of things necessary for establishing Laws & Government in the Province of Quebec, either by Act of Parliament, Order of the King in Council, or by the proposed Council at Quebec."
Endorsed:—"Memorandum respecting Quebec and its Civil Constitution."
2½ half foolscap pages.

1774 (?).—Apparently a proposed clause (A) in the Quebec Act, respecting the oath to be taken by Roman Catholics.
2¼ foolscap pages.

1774 (?).—Proposed clause of Quebec Act for the purpose of regulating trade, &c.
¾ foolscap page.

1774 (?).—A proposed clause that the change in the Constitution is not to affect any titles, &c. to lands.
½ foolscap page.

1774 (?).—Endorsed:—"Opinion on the Gov^{t}. & Laws of Quebec." There is neither date nor signature.
1 foolscap page.

1774 (?).—"Queries relative to the Government of Quebec for consideration in case the Bill passes in its present shape." The queries relate to Limits, General Government and Courts of Justice, Religion. Suggests that the Governor and Chief Justice prepare the following bills:—(1). For establishing Courts of Justice and regulating their proceedings. (2.) For the better regulation of the ecclesiastical affairs of Quebec. (3.) For regulating the trade with the Indians and preventing unlawful settlements in the interior country. (4.) For regulating the fisheries on the Coast of Labrador. (5.) For the more effectual administration of justice and government in the several subordinate districts in the interior Country.
5¼ half pages, foolscap.

1774 (?).—Endorsed: "Notes of alterations in the Quebec bill."
2 foolscap pages.

1774 (?).—Suggestions without title, date, or signature apparently respecting the Quebec Act, 1774.
4 foolscap pages.

1774 (?).—Endorsed: "Paper relative to the extension of the limits of Quebec." No doubt suggestions for the boundaries described in the Quebec Act, 1774.
6¼ foolscap pages.

1774 (?)—W. K. (Knox) to Dartmouth (?). Remarks on clauses apparently contained in the Quebec Act, 1774.
1¼ quarto pages.

1774 (?).—"Hillsborough's objections to the Quebec bill in its present form."
6½ quarto pages.

1774 (?).—A fragment, apparently notes on the Quebec Act.
1 foolscap page.

1774.—"Heads of a Plan for the Establishment of Ecclesiastical Affairs in the Province of Quebec." This appears to be the suggestions on the subject embodied in the Quebec Act, 1774.
10½ foolscap pages.

A paper endorsed "Minutes of Quebec Instructions." Seems to be of the same date.
1 foolscap page.

Another paper, endorsed "Epitome of the proposed Ordinance for establishing Courts of Justice in the Province of Quebec" is apparently of the same date. The title at the head of the paper is "From the Ordinances."
11 foolscap pages.

1774 (?).—Chartier de Lotbiniere, tant en son nom, qu'au nom des Canadiens: "Choses indispensables à considérer, et à déterminer fixement si le Bill présénté pour la Province de Quebec a lieu." A criticism on various clauses of the Quebec Act, 1774.

4 quarto pages.

1774 (?)—"The case of the British Merchants trading to Quebec and others of his Majesty's natural born subjects, who have been induced to venture their property in the said Province in the Faith of his Majesty's Proclamation, and other Promises solemnly given." A remonstrance against the establishing of French law in respect to property; if this is to be enacted ask that the operation may be suspended till they can withdraw their effects. Urge the establishment of a House of Assembly, &c.
10½ foolscap pages.
Printed.

1774, June 17. College of Advocates, Doctors Commons.—Marriott to Dartmouth. Applies for a living for Rev. George Marriott, who is willing to go to the Colonies. His services.
2 quarto pages.

1774, July 13. Warwick Castle.—C. Greville to Dartmouth. Had come to town expecting a meeting of the Board; complains of the neglect of the Secretary in not giving notice of adjournments.
2½ quarto pages.

1774, July 17.—Pownall to Dartmouth. Governor Hutchinson has been presented to the Queen under the wing of Suffolk. Has conversed with Hey about the Quebec Act; Hey prefers his (Pownall's) plan to his own but he (Pownall) thinks Hey's is best; anything that falls short of, goes beyond or halts between either will be improper. Carleton gone; has left a list of persons proper for Councillors, which is enclosed. He (Pownall) is going to Margate, but is not sure where he shall fix his residence. North says that Roubaud is to have 300*l.* but must wait till it is convenient to the Treasury to issue it.
1 foolscap page.

1774, August 1. New York Coffee House.—Merchants in the Quebec trade complain of the absence of the Chief Justice from Quebec, so that no business can be done in the Court of King's Bench, Quebec. The French law takes effect on the 1st of May next, and merchants who gave credit under the English law should have an opportunity of being heard before the alteration takes place.
1½ quarto pages.

1774, September 4. Montreal.—F. Martin to —— (in French). Had obtained observations on plan of the Act, differing from those of Cugnet. The Act having passed without amendment returns the papers to the person from whom he obtained them. Carleton expected with full power to enforce the Act; time will tell the result. Hopes he has spoken favourably of him (Martin). The power of the justices of peace having been destroyed by the last ordinance, had taken the precaution to obtain certificates of his conduct in that office and hopes for some small employment or pension.
1½ foolscap pages.

1774, October 10. Valburg.—Roubaud to Pownall (in French). Had received his pension from his banker, to whom he had given an order on the Treasury. The conduct of his wife had obliged him to do this to avoid scandal, as she had her Ganymede with her for a year. She goes to London next week, may God go with her; she will probably be accompanied by her young man (gars) and they will no doubt try to entangle his affairs so as to prevent his return to London. If his business is not settled before their arrival he does not know when it will be and asks that Lord Dartmouth be informed of the facts. If his agent gives him favourable news, the Ambassador thinks he should set out, and on the assurance of the benefit promised by the Treasury he may borrow money to pay his creditors. His position with a wife openly in company with her lover; it is ruining his purse, his health and his honour here and he may besides be useful in London.

1¾ quarto pages.

1774, November 22. Hague.—Yorke to Dartmouth. No money having been remitted to satisfy the wants of Roubaud, he must leave without paying his debts, which although not considerable are still a considerable sum for one who has nothing. Owes him a certificate for his discreet and prudent behaviour in spite of the provocation of a wife from whom he has prudently separated. Should he receive the gratification he expects, hopes that enough will be sent to pay his debts.

1 quarto page.

1775, January 12.—Louis de Lotbinière, priest of the order of Malta to Maseres (in French). Congratulates him on his promotion &c., and trusts from his merit he may receive a still higher office. Complains of the conduct towards him of Bishop Briand, for which he can obtain no redress and hopes to obtain lay employment if he cannot be employed ecclesiastically. Undated, received on the date above. The original and copy are both in the bundle.

Original 4 pages, the copy 5½ pages. The different space occupied is that the original is in a small, the copy in a large loose hand.

1775, February 18. London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). Urges his claims for a pension and that on his being officially informed of its being granted, he could borrow money in London on an order being given to repay it in Quebec. An order had been given to the Jesuits to pay him, which they had refused on the ground that he had become a player, although at the time of the accusation he only knew a few words of English. He makes his wife an allowance of 50*l.*, and has only three or four guineas left, when this is spent he will be forced to beg at St. James's, in a court suit presented to him by the King; asks leave to solicit a public subscription, &c.

2 quarto pages.

1775, February 21. Old Bond Street.—Charles Thompson to Dartmouth. Recommends Captain Sinclair for employment in Canada. [This is probably the Capt. Sinclair who was afterwards Lieut.-Governor of Michilimakinak, but he did not arrive to take office there till 5th October, 1779.]

1 quarto page.

1775, March 1. London.—Roubaud to Dartmouth (in French). Fearing the letter he wrote with petition may have been mislaid, sends the substance of the petition. It is a further application for the payment of the pension which, he alleges, was due to him by the Jesuits. The memorial (enclosed) repeats the statement of his redeeming the lives of British officers and soldiers from the hands of the Indians who had them bound to a stake ready to be burned. Reiterates his other services &c.
The letter 1½ pages, the memorial 2 pages, both foolscap.

1775, March 9. London House.—Bishop of London to Dartmouth. Has admitted Lewis Guerry into orders, and whenever he has His Majesty's appointment shall give him a licence. The changes that may be necessary in the form of appointment.
2 quarto pages.

1775, March 15. Dublin Castle.—Harcourt to Dartmouth. Introduces and recommends Captain Hamilton for employment in Canada. [Hamilton was appointed Governor of Detroit, and taken prisoner at Vincennes on his expedition against the Illinois Country].
2 quarto pages.

1775, July 5. Montreal.—Carleton to Dartmouth. Recommends Grant, a half-pay officer, who had settled on Lake Champlain and was driven off by the banditti, suggests his being employed in the raising of new levies.
2 quarto pages.

1775, August 17. London.—George Green to Pownall. Had been offered the position of naval officer of all Canada on certain conditions. His earnest desire to obtain a patent, but the doubts of the Secretary of State whether it could be granted was referred to him (Pownall) for advice, and beseeches his interest for securing the place in an ample manner.
3¼ quarto pages.

1775.—List of appointments in Quebec.
1 foolscap page.

1775 (?)—Memorial by Roubaud (in French) to Dartmouth. A repetition of previous statements of his services and his claims against the Jesuits. Undated. [Dartmouth was Colonial Secretary from 1772 to 1776.] In the last paragraph of the memorial Roubaud gives an account of a series of letters written to Montcalm by an English gentleman, with whom Montcalm was intimate, copies of which had been handed to the King by General Green. These letters appear to be those attributed to Montcalm.
5 foolscap pages.

1775 (?)—Memorial of Gregory late Chief Justice of Quebec for an examination into the grounds of his dismissal from that office, and for such relief as his case merits.
1¼ foolscap pages.

1775 (?)—Memorial of James Babbidge, a reduced lieutenant of the late 78th regiment, stating his services at Louisbourg &c and praying for employment.
1¼ quarto pages.

1775 (?)—Memorial of Matthew Brettingham, junior, that Nicholas Turner, who had been appointed Provost Marshal of Quebec had made an agreement to allow him 100*l.* a year out of that office. Prays that the allowance asked for by Turner, on condition of resigning his patent, may be granted so that he could carry out the agreement.
1 foolscap page.

1775 (?)—Memorial of John Christopher Roberts, praying for an annuity in lieu of the emoluments he had in his offices, of which he had been deprived by the late Act (Quebec Act). [Roberts was Secretary, Clerk of the Council, Commissary General of Stores and Provisions and Clerk of the Enrolments.]
1 foolscap page.

1775 (?)—Entitled: "From the Instructions," Undated, but from their nature the extracts appear to be from the instructions prepared for Carleton after the passage of the Quebec Act in 1774.
4½ foolscap pages.

1775 (?).—"Estimate of the expense of the Civil Establishment of the Province of Quebec and its Dependencies." Probably prepared after the passing of the Quebec Act of 1774.
1¼ foolscap pages.

1776, May 14. Quebec.—Carleton to Dartmouth. Will not trouble his Lordship with remarks. Is pleased that Alves, appointed waiter and searcher in the Customs, is under his Lordship's protection. There is a duplicate.
1 quarto page.

1776 (?).—Hey to Dartmouth. Had called with the draught of an ordinance for establishing Courts of Justice in Quebec and throughout the Province. His dissatisfaction with his own attempt.
1 quarto page.

1776 (?).—Notes, apparently by Carleton, of pensions to be allowed and claims to be settled in Quebec.
1½ foolscap pages.

1776 (?).—List of the civil offices in Quebec, with the authority in whom is vested the appointments. No date; endorsed, "Memo. for Quebec."
1 quarto page, and a scrap of paper with a list of names.

1777, June 30. Quebec.—W. Gordon to Dartmouth. Thanks for the attention paid to his memorial. Mandamus to hold the offices of Clerk of the Crown and Common Pleas not received till 20th May, owing to the detention of the vessel at Halifax. Knox's letter of 27th March that he could not hold the office of Clerk of the Common Pleas as well as Clerk of the Crown received on the 2nd of June, so that he had not used the mandamus, nor had he intended to do so, as it would have deprived a worthy man of his subsistence. The office he holds yields £100 a year, without perquisites, on which he cannot live, but Carleton has added to his salary, which he trusts may be approved of. His services during the siege of 1775; owing to disease then contracted asks for leave of absence.

3 quarto pages.

1777 (?).—Roubaud, memorial addressed "Au Roi." One of many memorials on the subject of his services and his claims on the Jesuits for a pension. The words "Quand le Général Murray, me deputa à Londres il y a prés de douze ans" fix the date nearly.
1½ foolscap pages.

1780, February. Marshalsea Prison.—Henry Hutchinson to Dartmouth. Appeals for assistance to relieve him from imprisonment for debt, from which he had been released under the Insolvency Act, but rearrested on account of small debts contracted for his subsistence in prison. (1 foolscap page.) The letter is undated, but it encloses a certificate from the turnkey, referred to in the letter, dated 12th February 1780, apparently a few days before the letter was written. There are also certificates of his services. These certificates are all on scraps of paper.

1792, July 3. Montreal.—Chartier de Lotbiniere to Dartmouth (in French). Complains of his unfortunate position in consequence of the marriage of his son with a woman at Three Rivers, who has succeeded in ruining the family. Begs that the case may be laid before the King and his Ministers. Transmits a letter which he requests may be sent to France.
3 quarto pages.

The answer (in French) placed with it is undated. The matter cannot be laid before the King, and he is not connected with the Ministry. Suggests writing to the Secretary of State.
1½ quarto pages.

No date.—"Catalogue of trees, shrubs, flowers and herbs, discovered in Canada, in North America, by John Wright, Gardiner and Surveyor of His Majesty's Gardens, in the City of Quebec," &c. The list gives the names of 584 varieties.
A large poster sheet. Printed.

No date.—Endorsed, "Mons^r Lotbinière."—A note of boundaries of seigniories, on the St. Lawrence and Ottawa, apparently with the object of obtaining the grant of vacant land, or if that cannot be granted to have a lot of land (terrain) reserved in East Florida.
1 quarto page.

LABRADOR.

1772, February.—A printed statement in relation to the missions of the Brethren (Moravians) among the Esquimaux.
4 octavo pages.

1772, November 4. Nain.—Braasen to Hutton, secretary. The title is: "A Letter from the little Congregation in Nain in Terra Labrador to the Society for the furtherance of the Gospel among the heathen." Gives an account of their proceedings among the Esquimaux and the success of their mission.
3 foolscap pages.

Endorsed :—Mr. Hutton, Chelsea, [who was secretary for the Brethren or Moravians, and the copy here was addressed to Dartmouth].

1772, November 30. Whitehall.—Report of Lords of Trade on the claims of Hocquart to the fishing post of the Gros Mecatinat, on the coast of Labrador. Report the grant to Bissot in 1662, of a tract of land "from the River aux Œufs in the mouth of the River S^t Lawrence to Phelippeaux Bay near the Straights of Belle Isle," under the denomination of the Main Land of Mingan. In 1679, all the islands on the coast within the described limits were granted to Joliet and Lalande. It is within these limits that Gros Mecatinat, claimed by Hocquart, is situated, containing, according to description, four leagues in front and four in depth, with all the isles and islets adjoining. The proprietors making no use of the post for a fishery, Hocquart in 1739, being then intendant, granted a lease of it for nine years to Pomereau, but the post being a part of the seigniory of the Main Land and Isles of Mingan, three per cent. of all the profits was reserved for the proprietors. Death of Pomereau, extension of the lease for three years to his widow; her refusal to pay an increased rent induced the proprietors to take it into their own hands, but Bigot, then intendant, refused them possession, on the alleged ground of prejudicing the rights of the Crown. Tachet, employed by the proprietors, went to France and obtained for them the promise of the post, but Hocquart by his influence at the Court of France obtained a grant of Gros Mecatina for life, on the reservation of three per cent to the proprietors and leased it to Tachet, who held the post as lessee from Hocquart from 1754 to 1759, when the country was conquered. Cannot recommend that Hocquart be confirmed in possession of Gros Mecatina, his title not warranting this, and may prejudice the claim of the grantees, which they would no doubt prosecute before the Courts in Quebec, should the coast of Labrador be reannexed to Quebec, having been improvidently made a part of the Government of Newfoundland by the proclamation of 1763. Even if Hocquart's claim had been valid, he had not taken advantage of the fourth article of the Treaty of Paris, either by continuing his residence in Canada as a British subject, or by selling his estates to His Majesty's subjects within the delay prescribed by the treaty.
7½ foolscap pages. There are two copies of the report.

An undated memorandum giving a note of the grants on the coast of Labrador from 1662, appears to belong to the preceding papers.
1 foolscap page.

1772, December 2. Lindsey House, Chelsea.—John Wollin to ———. Reports that the missionaries on the coast of Labrador are well, cheerful and on good terms with the Esquimaux. The improvement in the conduct of those who came to Newfoundland in June, on their way to trade in the Bay of Chaleur. It is hoped "that the murders and disturbances which formerly sometimes occurred, will for the future cease."
1 quarto page.

1773, January 5. Lindsey House, Chelsea.—Hutton to Dartmouth. After making a summary of the material passages relating to Labrador, had found he had forgotten to speak of the proposal of Mikak, the Esquimaux woman, to return to England with her new husband and son to get a new boat &c. The objection by Government for many reasons, "to the savage apparitions" in England, so that the return of Mikak was prevented by the missionaries. The envy of the other Esquimaux of the presents received by Mikak which are spoiled and good for nothing as she had to hide them. The bad effect on her own mind of the visit, and the licentiousness she indulged in. The evil influence on the Esquimaux of the example shown them when in England. The sight of the ships has sufficiently proved the force of the nation and the good conduct of the sailors, restrained by Palliser and Byron, has had all the good effect wished for without other inconveniences.
3 foolscap pages.

This letter accompanied an undated paper with the title:

"The Brethren's Society for the furtherance of the Gospel among the heathen, Humbly present the following brief account of the Brethren's Mission & Settlement in Esquimaux Bay on the Coast of Labrador during the first year of the Missionaries abode there, to the Right Hon^{ble} the Earl of Dartmouth, one of his Majesty's principle Secretaries of State & to The Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations."
12 foolscap pages.

A private letter from Hutton, dated the 6th January, gives what he calls in another letter of the same date (not marked private) "A view of the internal and spiritual course of the mission within itself." This view speaks of the fourteen people living "together as a Family devoted to God: having every one of them the same views and the same Taste & are together as a sort of Religious House, have their Morning and Evening Prayer, meetings for reading the Scriptures and singing Hymns & Liturgies every day" &c. &c. The manner of communicating Christian teaching to the Esquimaux is also given.
6 quarto pages.

1773, January 6. Lindsey House, Chelsea.—Hutton to Dartmouth. Apologises for the delay in transmitting the summary of the proceedings of the Brethren among the Esquimaux, owing to the difficulty of having it properly copied. This being the anniversary of the homage paid by the wise men from the East to the Saviour, [Twelfth Day] the Society is holding a meeting to rejoice together at the hope of an increase of believing Gentiles. The articles of the Society, printed and bound, had been sent by La Trobe to Hillsborough to be presented to the King. If no opportunity had offered for this presentation shall have another copy prepared. Thanks for the favours so readily granted by Government. The good effects of the labours of the Brethren must be a pleasing reflection to those who have assisted. The satisfaction of the Society at his (Dartmouth's) appointment, knowing that His Lordship will feel peculiar joy in being in a position to gratify his desire to forward the work of the Brethren. A summary at the end of the letter shows that 98 Brethren and 46 sisters were engaged in different parts of the world as missionaries, twelve Brethren and three sisters being in Labrador. "All these," he says "are volunteers, who try to maintain themselves by the labour of their hands, with as little expense as possible."

5 quarto pages.

1773, January 13.—Lieut. Cartwright to Dartmouth. His objections to vesting the Government of Labrador in the Governor of Canada, instead of in the Governor of Newfoundland. The propriety of having the property in the fisheries of Labrador granted to individuals, although not allowed in Newfoundland. The reasons for and against given in parallel columns, respectively entitled: "Labrador continuing united with Newfoundland," and "Labrador supposed to be annexed to the Province of Canada." [George Cartwright, the author of this paper, spent many years in Labrador and published the journals of his proceedings, with illustrations of the scenery, &c.]

6 foolscap pages.

1773, February 13. Bath.—Lord Clare to Dartmouth. Recommends Noble and Pinson for a grant of a district on the Labrador Coast. If admitted to an interview Pinson could give His Lordship information about the coast that might be of advantage to the public.

1 quarto page.

1773, March 9. Whitehall.—Dartmouth to Shuldham. Instructs him that all engaged or to engage in seal and salmon fishery on the Labrador Coast and who have taken or shall take possession of any river or bays of Labrador or to the north of the Straight of Belle Isle, making permanent establishments to carry on the fisheries are to be protected, provided they annually fit out from Great Britain one or more ship or ships to be employed in the cod fishery on the coast of Labrador. The proprietors are to claim no greater extent of the shore than is necessary in proportion to the number of the ships and men they employ. Not signed.

Endorsed:—"Copy of a Letter from the Earl of Dartmouth to Gov^{r} Shuldham."

2 foolscap pages.

1773, August 12. Paris.—Hocquart to Dartmouth (in French). His claim to be the proprietor of Le Gros Mecatina is resisted by Cugnet, on the ground that it has become his by his marriage with the daughter of La Fontaine, the proprietor. La Fontaine when the property was sold by auction to Madame Montesson, from whom he (Hocquart) acquired it, had exercised his right of tiercement (a right under the feudal law by which the proprietor could demand a third more than the highest offer) and instead of 4,600 livres bid by Madame Montesson had demanded and been paid 6,133·06 sous, as appears by a copy of the transaction signed by Bigot (the intendant) and by La Fontaine.

2 foolscap pages.

The account of the transaction (in French) is enclosed.
1½ foolscap pages.

1773, November 4. Lindsey House, Chelsea.—La Trobe to Dartmouth. Return of Brother and Sister Layritz from Nain, to which place they had gone in Spring. The dangers they had encountered on the voyage from St. John's Newfoundland in a sloop of 30 tons, the voyage occupying nine weeks, "being drove into Bays and among islands by contrary winds. They were graciously preserved in storms among floating Ice and were turned back by a field of Ice of vast dimensions. They were twice surrounded by numbers of the most savage Esquimeaux, who have been used to murder and rapine, but the hand of God not only preserved them, but B^r Layritz went among them, and preached to them, which B^r Beck interpreted, they were very attentive." Safe arrival at Nain and welcome from the Brethren and Sisters and from the Esquimaux. All the people healthy and happy. Visit of some of the Missionaries to the North, reaching to 60° latitude. Hopeful prospects. Had called on His Lordship but was unable to see him. Layritz desired to make a verbal report &c.

3 quarto pages.

1773.—Three papers of jottings on Palliser's regulations respecting Labrador. They relate, apparently, to the consideration of the reannexing of Labrador to Quebec, and refer entirely to Labrador, although two are endorsed Newfoundland.

1 foolscap page, 1¼ and 4 quarto pages respectively.

1773.—"Proposal for a further exploration of the country of Labrador; humbly addressed to the Right Honourable the Earl of Dartmouth, by Lieutenant Roger Curtis of His Majesty's sloop the Otter one of Commodore Shuldham's squadron." Curtis, afterwards Sir Roger, who died in 1816 an admiral of the red, reports having made a survey but gives no date, According to the MSS. of the Moravians, this was in 1773; as in a report in the Moravian mission office, 7 Furnival's Inn, a copy of one noted as being sent by Curtis either to the Admiralty or Governor Shuldham, that is the year in which the survey was made. But the official log book and muster roll show that Curtis was on board of the "Otter" lying at Pitt's Harbour Chateau, now Headley Harbour, all the summer of 1773, so that the two statements are entirely irreconcileable, although the report in the Moravian Mission office is very explicit as to his proceedings at the Mission station. It is impossible now to determine. Either the muster roll was improperly kept or Curtis did not make the survey, which, in view of the details he gives, it is not possible to believe. He was paid off from the "Otter" on the 27th November, 1773, and remained on half-pay till commissioned in the "Chatham" on the 6th August 1775. The year 1773 appears to be the date of the proposal.

10½ small quarto pages.

1774, January 13, Coleman Street.—Robert Hunter to Dartmouth. The growth of the fishery. Asks for protection to the holders of the fishing posts, who are liable to disturbance should the vessels sent out annually, as required by the regulations, be late in arriving on the coast. Asks for copy of the regulations to be sent to his friends to prevent misunderstanding between them and the officers of His Majesty's ships.

2½ quarto pages.

1774, March 1. London.—George Cartwright to Dartmouth. A sealing and salmon post on Seal Island and the River Charles had been taken possession of by him and his partner, the partnership expiring in 1773. That Andrew Pinson unlawfully seized on the post in 1772, and still retained possession when he (Cartwright) arrived on the coast in August, 1773, Shuldham having given him permission to fish there for the season on account of his (Cartwright's) late arrival, so that the fishing should not be lost for the season. Prays for such remedy as may be considered just.

3 foolscap pages.

1774, September 12. Charles Harbour.—Cartwright to Dartmouth. Has not been able to meet with any fossils worthy of acceptance. Sends a tree cut down by the beaver and gives a sketch of the habits of the animal. The decline of the fisheries in 1770, on account of the uncertain tenure of the posts. The only firm that continued was that of Noble and Pinson, who by sending out their vessels early hoped to be able to seize all the best posts by getting first on the coast. The murder of a crew by the Indians had deterred them from extending their fishery further than Bad Bay, about a mile from the block-house at Chateau; that and Seal Island, were the only sealing posts without the Straights of Belle Isle in possession of the English when he came and they had not one salmon post. His operations during 1771. Seizure of his post by Pinson in 1772, owing to the non-arrival of his (Cartwright's) vessel, she having been cast away on Fogo Island; had, therefore, established new posts. The advantage of the new regulations for the security of property, but Noble and Pinson still held possession of his posts until dispossessed of two of them by the Governor, who had not, however, restored him Seal Island, to which he has a better title than they (Noble and Pinson). Finds that the coast is annexed to Quebec, and that the Canadians are to be reinstated in all their former possessions. The disadvantage of this to the traders who may be dispossessed by old, unheard of grants, never made use of. Requests to have all that part of the coast between Cape Charles and Cape St. Lewis, and the islands within those limits. No Esquimaux have come this summer; the indulgence shown by Government to the Moravians has enabled them to engross the trade of these people, to his no small loss and disappointment, as £300 of goods are in hand not saleable any where else. Return of a boat from Sandwich Bay, where she left the furriers in possession of the Salmon river; there was no sign of any Europeans having dwelt there; it is much frequented by the Nescanpick Indians, who are good furriers and have traded with the Canadians for many years. One family had visited him from whom furs to the amount of £50 had been bought. Proposes to take a cruise to the northward, to visit the Indians and find out proper places for summer sealing and for whale fishing.

8 quarto pages.

1774, December 3. King's Road, Chelsea.—Hutton to Dartmouth. Reports the wreck of the sloop sent northward to look out for a missionary settlement; two of the missionaries, Brasen and Lehman, drowned, the rest saved, but without provisions or tools, and had lost their boat. Some biscuits and blankets driven ashore, and the broken boat with her sides stove in. With the blankets, and with the fur from their waistcoats, breeches, and boots they succeeded in keeping her afloat with seven persons till they reached Nain.

2½ quarto pages.

1774, December 4.—Hutton to Dartmouth. In breaking the news to Mrs. Brasen of her husband being drowned on the 15th of September, she said his corpse had appeared to her on that night, with a wound across his nose. That was the time, the letter continues, of his being drowned. When the corpses were brought from the scene of the wreck, "all Nain saw the wound on the Nose of Mr. Brâsen." The good qualities of Brasen, whom they all miss.

2 quarto pages.

1774, December 12.—List (unsigned) "of the fishing posts occupied by the British merchants who carry on business without the Streights of Belleisle." The list gives the names of those engaged in the cod fisheries, and of the "Seeling" posts.

Endorsed:—Mr. Cartwright, Labradore 12 Dec. 1774.

2 quarto pages.

1775, January 10. Island of Jersey.—Mr. Corbett, Lieut.-Governor of Jersey, to Dartmouth. A company of merchants on the island fitted out a vessel in 1767, with 50 men for the fishery in Labrador, but abandoned it with a loss in 1769. In 1773, they were induced by Derby to enter again on the trade, but are alarmed at the report that Labrador is annexed to Quebec, and that all their posts will be taken possession of. The importance of this trade to the Island of Jersey; asks for information to quiet the minds of the merchants.

2¼ quarto pages.

1775, September 14. Sandwich Bay.—Cartwright to Dartmouth. The failure of the fisheries last winter. The security of possession has, however, encouraged the adventurers to prepare with vigour for the prosecution of the trade. Next year, if no new regulations prejudicial to their interests are issued, every branch of the fishery will be increased nearly one fourth. The season was late this year for cod fishing, but a good one at last. Gives details of the preparations for salmon fishing. His partners are discouraged but he will carry on the business himself. He shall not disturb the Moravians. Will follow His Lordship's advice and not extend his business too fast. Should Custom House officers be introduced asks to be appointed Collector. Would not encourage any meeting of adventurers respecting the bill for Canada. Had sent answers to Parker, which would probably be laid before His Lordship. His (Cartwright's) proposed regulations for the Labrador coast are, he thinks, best for the nation and for the adventurers. The tree cut by the beavers had, by mistake, been sent to John Hunter, the surgeon; sends a larger tree, stag's head, &c. On one of the rivers of the bay is a cataract 16 feet high which stops the ascent of the salmon; the pool below is full of them attracting many black and white bears; the offal they leave on the rocks attracts wolves, foxes and other carnivorous animals, so that the country is full of them.

5 quarto pages.

1777.—"Memorandum concerning the Sealing and Salmon fishing Posts of Geo. Cartwright Esq. on the Coast of Labrador." The paper is undated, but is endorsed: "Capt. Cartwright's memorandum concerning his Salmon fisheries in Labrador, 1777." The statements are repetitions of the state of the fisheries and complaints of the power given to the Governor to decide whether any adventurer possesses more of the shore than is reasonable, as being extended to regulate the number of posts. He says: "If he be possessed of more salmon posts than others, it has been by risking more money in real discoveries and adventures, in taking more pains, encountering more difficulties and dangers, in suffering more crosses, failures, and disappointments than others. He has done all this under that hope and confidence of protection from Government which every honest and industrious subject has a right to expect," &c. He continues: "The Coast of Labrador is now indebted to him 8,000*l.*, besides his indefategable labours for seven years." (The time stated in the last extract proves the date—1777—to be correct, as he began operations in 1770.)

3¼ foolscap pages.

1783, February 3. Marnham, near Twyford.—Cartwright to Dartmouth. Sends copy of Memorandum on Labrador; applies to be made Governor and hopes, from his knowledge acquired in Derbyshire, to discover veins worthy of attention.

1¼ quarto pages.

The paper enclosed, transmitted to Shelburne with a letter dated 27th January, 1783, gives his (Cartwright's) views as to the regulations that should be made for the fisheries at Labrador. In the memorandum the difficulties of obtaining legal decisions in consequence of the transfer from Newfoundland to the jurisdiction of Quebec are pointed out for which cause crimes of all kinds constantly go unpunished, of which he gives instances. The resort to St. John's, Newfoundland, for justice would not be much better, owing to the loss of their trade that would be caused to litigants, &c., by going there. The precarious tenure of property, even under the provisions of the proclamation of 1773. But this partial security had encouraged him to explore to the northward, where he discovered valuable salmon rivers, and put a stop to the thefts and murders committed by the Esquimaux, amongst whom he lived. The stoppage to trade caused by the war, the whole coast having been plundered by the "Minerva" privateer from Boston. His plan to cure the evils is to erect Labrador into a Government of its own, with the necessary officials (enumerated). Suggests a code of laws, including security of property for the discoverer of valuable posts, the reservation of timber, the admission free of duty of all fish oils, skins, &c.

6¼ foolscap pages.

1784 (?).—Unsigned and undated memorandum, calling attention to the outrages committed by the people of New England on the fisheries on the Newfoundland and Labrador Coasts.

5 foolscap pages.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

1759, December 27.—Paper not signed. An argument for the exclusion of the French from the fishery of Newfoundland, as the best means to prevent the training of sailors for their navy. "It is very evident that the fishing trade is of more consequence to our Naval force than any other Single Trade whatever . . . . and I doubt not it will appear that entirely excluding the French from the fishing Trade in those parts will be the most certain Insurance that can be made for a lasting Peace."
1¾ quarto pages.

1764, 1765, 1766.—Rough departmental jottings (four papers) respecting arrangements for Newfoundland, with calculations as to the produce of the French fishing, numbers of men, &c.
4 quarto pages.

1772, October 25. Harbour Grace.—Rev. Mr. Coughlan to Dartmouth. Had met with little success as a missionary; four or five souls had gone to glory, some are walking in the fear of the Lord, some are preaching from house to house. The state of his health impaired by the severity of the climate. The bitter hostility of the merchants; not being able to starve him out, they formed a design to poison him. Is there any hope of his obtaining a living from the Society or the Bishop of London?
2¼ quarto pages.

1773, January 23. St. James's Square.—Dartmouth to Townshend Sends copies of letters from the Governor of Newfoundland, with his report on the fortifications at Placentia and St. John's. Desires a personal conference before any official step is taken. Sends also papers respecting Carleton's propositions for a citadel at Quebec.
1¼ foolscap pages.

Enclosures:—

Report from Shuldham, dated 2*nd December* 1772, of the ruinous state of the fortifications of St. John's.
2 foolscap pages.

Shuldham to Hillsborough, 30*th September* 1772, report in minute detail, of the state of the defences of Placentia; the necessity of having a secure rendezvous for the people engaged in the shore fishery. Recommends the erection of a few batteries, to co-operate with the ships of war on the station, which alone might not answer for defence, as should they be called elsewhere, one armed sloop, with a few men, could, in the absence of the ships, burn the magazine and stores and at one blow destroy the fishery of twenty harbours for at least one year. Recommends moveable fortifications [that is ships] as the proper defence instead of extensive forts, &c. on the different bays of the island.
12 foolscap pages.

1773, January 24.—Townshend's answer that he will see His Lordship on Tuesday evening to confer about the fortifications.
Rough copy. 1½ quarto pages.

Sir Charles Frederick to Townshend, 25th January 1773. No reference has been made to the Board of Ordnance respecting the fortifications of Quebec. For St. John's, orders were given in March 1772, for a battery to be erected and a boom placed across the mouth of the harbour; all other projected works to be laid aside, Lieut. Pringle is to bring his proposals, plans, &c. to the Board, which will enable His Lordship to answer whatever questions Dartmouth may propose.
1 quarto page.

Observations on the proposed defences, undated, but which apparently refer to the preceding letter.

1773, January 26. Ordnance.—Board of Ordnance to Townshend. Pringle's plans for the defence of St. John's approved of, and, with His Lordship's approbation, orders shall be given to him to proceed to St. John's to carry them on with all possible dispatch. The boom ordered to protect the mouth of the harbour is in the Naval Department and orders must, therefore, be sent to the Admiralty to have it prepared.
1½ foolscap pages.

Note from Townshend to Dartmouth apologising for not waiting on him at the time appointed and making another appointment. Undated, endorsed 5th February 1773.
1 quarto page.

Dartmouth to Townshend, February. — 1773, refers the Board of Ordnance to the instructions formerly given respecting the defensive works at St. John's. Should it appear on consideration that they are inadequate, the Board is to report what alterations or additions may be necessary. With respect to Placentia, such additional defensive works may be erected as the Board may consider necessary, provided the Board has full information, otherwise a decision must be deferred till such information is obtained.
4¼ foolscap pages. There are two copies.

1773, February 17. Portman Square.—Townshend to Dartmouth. The Board of Ordnance and himself will lose no time respecting the defences of St. John's and Placentia.
1½ quarto pages.

1774, October 25. Montreal, Kent.—Sir Jeff. Amherst to Dartmouth. In event of the death of Bradstreet, requests that his brother may succeed him in the Government of St. John's, Newfoundland. The letter is endorsed: "Requesting the appointment of Gov. of St. John's for his Brother," [which is apt to mislead, the application being for Newfoundland. Bradstreet died in 1774.]
3 quarto pages.

1774, December 5. Bath.—Colonel Amherst to Dartmouth. Thanks for having laid before the King the application of Sir Jeff. Amherst for his (Col. Amherst's) appointment to the Lieut. Government of St. John's (Newfoundland).
1 quarto page.

1775, April 22. "Centaur," Portsmouth.—Arthur Hayne to Dartmouth. Encloses a plan for encouraging the Newfoundland fishery. His proposal, as summarised in the letter is that two days should be set apart every week for the use of fish as an article of food, and the argument is that all attempts by legislation to reduce the cost of grain and meat being ineffectual, the reduction could be managed by his plan. In closing the letter, he says:—"All luxury, my Lord, of the Flesh kind; not only heightens the Price of Provisions; but tend to the industry, and the maintenance of a very few People; Whereas, all extravagance and luxury in the Article of Fish; were we to dress it Ten Thousand Ways—consume—Waste—destroy—fling it to the Vultures, or the Birds of Prey; We should but so much the more answer the wise ends and Purposes of Government; and contribute to the maintenance of a greater number of People."
2¼ foolscap pages.

The plan enclosed enters into elaborate calculations as to the quantity of fish that would be consumed, the number of ships, sailors &c. required; the saving in provisions, the vessels required to carry this saving to a foreign market &c.
2¼ foolscap pages.

1778, April 30.—Germain to Admiralty. Sends copy of instructions to Vice-Admiral Montagu, as Governor of Newfoundland, to take possession of Miquelon and St. Pierre, that similar instructions be sent by the Admiralty to Montagu, in his capacity of commander of His Majesty's ships.
¾ foolscap page.

1778, May 1. Whitehall.—Knox to Montagu. Sends him Germain's secret instructions.
½ foolscap page.

Copy of instructions enclosed, ordering an attack on the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, in consequence of the hostile attitude of France.
2¼ foolscap pages.

No date.—Memorial of Joseph Gorham to be continued as deputy agent of Indian affairs.
2 foolscap pages.

No date.—Memorial from Joseph Gorham for reimbursement for the losses he had sustained.
3 foolscap pages.

NOVA SCOTIA.

1760, February 16. Audley Square.—General Townshend to Gorham. Offers of service, when it is in his power.
1 quarto page.

1764, July 11. Dearham.—Townshend to Halifax. Introduces and recommends Gorham to be appointed Lieut. Governor of Nova Scotia.

1 foolscap page.

1766, March 10.—Memorial of McNutt to Lords of Trade. That he has now 12,000 settlers ready to enter upon lands. The terms settled by the Board in 1763 and confirmed by His Majesty were, that they should have liberty to choose their own representatives and town officers annually by ballot and in giving evidence those who shall choose may be permitted to hold up their hand instead of any other form. Applies for a charter for a city he intends to build at Cape Sable. He has been employed in surveying parts of Nova Scotia at a cost of £1,400. Has a vessel waiting at Liverpool and has three other vessels with whale boats which will remain unemployed till he returns to America; asks, therefore, for a speedy decision.

1½ foolscap pages.

1766, April 17.—Memorial of McNutt to the Lords of Trade. States the obstacles to the settlements he proposed to make in Nova Scotia, which frustrated his attempts, so that he returned to London to lay the case of himself and associates before their Lordships. States, as in previous petition, the privileges asked for by the settlers.

Undated. 14½ large foolscap pages.

Endorsed:—"Copy of memorial of Col. Alexander McNutt to the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, delivered April 17, 1766." Notes on the petition follow, dated 25th April.

1766, April 28.—Paper endorsed:—"Heads of proposals for introducing settlers." The title is:—"Heads of proposals offered by Colonel Alexander McNutt for introducing settlers into Nova Scotia."

2¼ foolscap pages.

1766, May 1. Devonshire Street.—Alexander Hay to Dartmouth. His services during the rebellion of 1745, when he was the means of saving the life of the Duke of Cumberland. His losses, on account of his zeal for the King's service, which compelled him to fly from Scotland and come to London to the protection of the Duke of Cumberland. Desires to settle lands in Nova Scotia. Recommends Francis White, a chairman to Lady Dartmouth, for employment in the Customs.

2½ foolscap pages.

1766, May 6.—Paper endorsed:—"Proposals delivered to the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations." The proposals are from McNutt, who suggests that if it be desired to postpone a settlement of the privileges asked for by him till the wishes of the people interested are known, he should be authorised to collect and transmit their sentiments.

1 foolscap page.

1766, May 16.—Paper endorsed:—"Reasons ag^t the reservation of timber." It prevents the clearing of land by the farmers and acts against the fishing industry, as the fisherman could not use enough to build a fishing vessel, and the settlers are entirely at the mercy of informers, ready to swear anything. To the farmers it makes little difference what kind of timber is reserved, whether "white pine, gopher, or shittim wood." The reasons are given in by McNutt acting as agent for the settlers, who also apply for two ports of entry and discharge, one at Jerusalem, the other at Pictou, as it is a great loss to the owners of ships to be obliged to go to Halifax and a much greater loss to the settlers. The obstacles the reservation places in the way of ship building to the advantage of Archangel where fir ships are built annually for British and Irish account. The effect of the reservation is to drive the farmer to cut down the young trees before they reach the prohibited girth. The caution to be observed in making such reservations; those who have no intention to settle will accept lands on any terms, but the settlers must be more careful.

4 foolscap pages.

1766, May 26.—Hints by McNutt to Dartmouth for his consideration, "as Heads of some of the articles of Instructions to the Gov^r of Nova Scotia." The hints are to give McNutt leave to survey and lay out townships anywhere not already under actual settlement, the grants to be made out to McNutt and his nominees, the fees for each township not to exceed £20.

1 quarto page.

1766, June 23.—Thomas Day to Dartmouth. Applies for a situation; is willing to go anywhere.

1 quarto page.

Endorsed :—"M^r Day of Nova Scotia."

1769, August 5. Whitehall.—Hillsborough to Sir W. Johnson. Asks him to continue Gorham in his office of deputy agent for Indian affairs in Nova Scotia, and to promote him if continued.

1 quarto page.

1772.—Paper endorsed: "The memorial of Cha^s N. G. Jadis, Esq. requesting a Reparation from Government of some Losses and Damage sustained by him from the Indians in Gage Township in 1771." The memorial represents his services, his settlement in Gagetown, the destruction by fire of his house and effects, the fire being deliberately set by the Indians. Depositions and other documents relative to the fire are enclosed.

The memorial 2¼ foolscap pages, the other papers about 8 foolscap pages, although written on different sizes of paper.

1772, August 28. Lambeth Marsh.—Jadis to Dartmouth. Calls attention to his losses and distresses; his memorial and case have been laid before the Lords of Trade. Unless speedy relief be granted will be cast into prison.

Enclosed is his case, giving an account of his birth, services, and the destruction by the Indians of his house and effects. A certificate of his conduct as an officer and gentleman, signed by Col. Clavering of the 52nd regiment, Guy Carleton, John Burgoyne and Philip Skene, each of the two latter signs as "late Major to the 52nd regiment," that being the regiment in which Jadis served.

The letter 2 pages, and the case 9 pages, both quarto.

1772, September 4. Shirburn Castle.—Macclesfield to Dartmouth (?) Recommends Tonge for the appoinment of Naval Officer at Halifax, vacant or likely to be so.
2 quarto pages.

1772, September 8.—Estimate of the number of families in the town of Louisbourg. At the end of the list is the quantity of fish shipped from Cape Breton, distinguishing the places where shipped. The name of the head of each family is given in the list.
4 foolscap pages.

1772, September 9. Sandwell.—Dartmouth to Lord W. Campbell. Acknowledges receipt of letter; on his return to town shall inquire into the situation of the Province of Nova Scotia.
1 quarto page.

1772, September 11.—Mrs. Jadis, apparently to Lady Dartmouth. Sends copy of the case of her husband, now before the Lords of Trade. Acknowledges the great kindness they have received from Lady Mary Hill.
1 quarto page.

1772, September 12. Main au Dieu (sic).—Proclamation by Governor Campbell, to prohibit the illicit taking of coal from Cape Breton.
2 foolscap pages.

1772, October 27. Canso.—Memorial of the principal merchants, inhabitants and traders of Canso, stating the great services to the fishery and trade rendered by Jonathan Binney, praying that a salary be granted to him, and that he be continued as first magistrate and Deputy Collector of Customs. There are seventy-four signatures, a copy.
2 foolscap pages.

1772, October 29. Halifax.—Mrs. Gould, apparently to Lady Dartmouth. On behalf of her husband, that he be confirmed as Naval Officer.
2 quarto pages.

1772, November 10. Placentia.—Joseph Gorham to Dartmouth, Applies for a situation to enable him to settle the claims against him on account of the losses he had sustained in respect to his lands in Nova Scotia.
2 quarto pages.

A copy of a recommendation from Townshend to Granby, dated 19th June 1769 is enclosed.
2¼ quarto pages.

1772, December 12. Clapham.—John Thornton to Dartmouth. Agrees in the propriety of refusing the application of James Fenton's brother.
1 quarto page.

1772, December 13. Shirburn Castle. Macclesfield to Dartmouth. Acknowledges receipt of letter stating that Tonge is appointed Naval Officer at Halifax.

1 quarto page.

1773, March 31.—Jadis to Dartmouth. Calls attention to the prevalence of smuggling, of which Major Ville (Maugerville) is the centre, connived at by the magistrate and collector, both offices held by one person; the great loss to the revenue; the destruction of timber, &c.

3 foolscap pages.

Endorsed:—"Thoughts on the means to prevent Smuggling in the River St. John, in the Bay of Fundy."

Enclosure:—

> A letter, dated Maugerville, 18*th October* 1771, is enclosed from Israel Perley to Jadis, accusing the magistrate (Peabody) of abusing his office as judge and referring to the information Jadis has of Peabody's conduct respecting the duty on liquors, &c.
>
> 3 quarto pages.

1773, August 18. St. James's.—Rochford to Dartmouth. Had laid Legge's request before the King as being entirely contrary to the established rule in the army.

1½ quarto pages.

There is a rough draught apparently of this request, unsigned and undated.

1 foolscap page.

Another document, unsigned and undated, respecting the conflicting claims for pay in the 55th regiment between Legge and Duncan. The writer was apparently acting on behalf of Duncan.

1¼ foolscap pages.

1773, August 24. Halifax.—Lord W. Campbell to Dartmouth (private). Previous to receiving the order to grant no more lands, he had allotted a small tract of about 400 acres to his little boy as a reminder hereafter that he had been born in the Province. Hopes that this will not be considered an infringement on His Majesty's mandate.

1½ quarto pages.

1773, September 8. Parliament Street.—Meyrick to Dartmouth. Legge's commission as Lieut.-Colonel of the 55th regiment was left in Dublin, sent to Rochford and cancelled. The only way to preserve Legge's rank is by a brevet commission as Lieut.-Colonel in the army.

½ quarto page.

1773, September 13. Parliament Street.—Meyrick to Dartmouth. Suggests for consideration whether a brevet to Legge as Lieut. Colonel in the army would interfere with the King's intention not to allow a Governor of a Province to hold a commission in a regiment. Tryon, Shirley, &c., hold their rank in the army.

½ quarto page.

1773, October 22. Halifax.—Morris to Campbell. In accordance with orders reports on the lands to be reserved for timber. Cape Breton contains principally forest lands. The desirability of black birch, used for shipbuilding and wharves, very durable and not attacked by worms; black spruce is best for shipping and for masts for small vessels, but would serve for topmasts for the largest vessels. There is some pine, but the heavy gales on the coast cause shakes in the butts, from 10 to 20 feet up, above that they have often 40 to 60 feet fit for plank. Recommends that the whole island be reserved. The other is a tract of land on the St. John River above the settlements, to extend for 150 miles with a breadth of 25 miles on each side of the river. There are quantities of pine, oak, black birch, black spruce and other useful timber.

2½ quarto pages.

1773, December 9. Southampton.—Mauger to Pownall. The sad condition of Nova Scotia described in a letter from Butler, lately received. With the exception of Hopson, all the Governors deserved a halter rather than a government. Should Lord William Campbell, the late Governor, be so imprudent as to bring charges against Butler, trusts that before any decision is come to, he (Mauger) may be heard in defence. Recommends that James Monk, going to Nova Scotia, be appointed to the Council.

2 quarto pages.

1774, January 2. Shirburn Castle.—Macclesfield to Dartmouth. Transmits a memorial by Tonge to Legge. Tonge's appointment not having been agreeable to the late Governor (Campbell), his representations may not be absolutely free from partiality. Asks for a fair consideration of Tonge's case.

1½ quarto pages.

The memorial undated is enclosed. It complains that whilst preparing to regulate the office, to appoint deputies and to fix the fees, &c., he had been prevented by Campbell on the ground that he had mistaken the terms of his commission, which only appointed him to Halifax, with no power to appoint deputies or receive fees. Enters into details and submits the case to Legge's consideration.

3¼ foolscap pages.

1774, January 4. Halifax.—Legge to Dartmouth. Is afraid Meyrick has been importuning His Lordship too much in respect to the continuance of his rank. Shall write Meyrick not to trouble His Lordship more on that head; is perfectly satisfied and happy in his present situation. The mildness of the winter. Only money to make roads is wanted to make this one of the most flourishing provinces in North America; £500 a year well laid out for four years would be the making of the Province.

2 quarto pages.

1774, February 5. Whitehall.—Dartmouth to the Governor of Nova Scotia (Circular). Instructions sent respecting the disposal of land.

1½ foolscap pages.

1774, February 5. Whitehall.—Dartmouth to Legge. Tonge's memorial has been considered. He is entitled to appoint deputies and to collect fees, but as the high salary was fixed before fees were allowed, if fees are collected the salary is to be discontinued. The East India Company have sent orders to their agents should the landing of tea be prohibited in the other Colonies, it is to be sent to Halifax. He is to afford the agents protection, although he is not apprehensive respecting the conduct of the people of Nova Scotia.

2 foolscap pages.

1774, February 15. Halifax.—A state of all the fees received by the judge and register of probate, since the fees were established by law being two years and a half.

2 foolscap pages.

1774, April 6. London.—Barré to Pownall (?) Requests, at the instance of Captain Gualy, that a situation may be found for Woodmass and his spouse, whom he may remember as Nancy Gualy.

2 quarto pages.

1773, [should be 1774], June 3. London.—Lord W. Campbell to Dartmouth. Gibbons is the author of the political remarks left with His Lordship. He lives in Halifax, is a good man and worthy of patronage.

The letter is correctly endorsed June 3, 1774.

½ quarto page.

1774, June 28.—Proceedings of Quarter Sessions dismissing a special jury illegally summoned to try the case of an information laid by Samuel Storr against Samuel Willoughby, John Chipman, Amos Bill and ——— Chipman (the Christian name of the latter is illegible, the paper being worn into a hole). The nature of the complaint is not given.

1 foolscap page.

1774, July 15. Halifax.—John Fenton to Dartmouth. His disappointment in the amount of income he expected to have when appointed Provost Marshal; asks to be removed as he cannot subsist on his place as it now stands. The importance of the office and the mischief that could be caused by a weak or wicked man.

1 foolscap page.

1774, August 18. London.—Lord W. Campbell to Dartmouth. Recommends Gibbons to succeed Duport as chief justice of St. John's Island.

1 quarto page.

1774, August 31. Halifax.—Gibbons to Lord W. Campbell. Sends an essay on the administration of justice in Nova Scotia of which many complaints have been made. Asks that the case be presented to the Minister in order to obtain a remedy.

1 demy page.

The document attached is entitled: "A Review of the past and present state of the Administration of Justice in Nova Scotia, shewing the deviations therein from the Mode of Jurisprudence in England the present and future bad consequences thereof to His Majesty's Government, and subjects in this Province, with a Plan humbly proposed for the Reformation of the same." An essay on the subject indicated in the title. His plan is to revoke the commissions of the Supreme and inferior Courts of Common Pleas and to erect two superior courts of general Provincial jurisdiction, one to be similar to the Court of King's Bench in England, the other with the powers of the two Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer at Westminster.

15¾ demy pages.

1774, October 28. Council Chambers.—Address of the Council of Nova Scotia to Legge. In answer to a charge by the Assembly that the Council, in its legislative capacity, had acted in a manner detrimental and obstructive to the welfare of the Province. This charge is an attempt to make the Council responsible [to the Assembly] for its reasoning and opinions and, therefore, unconstitutional, so that their answer out of respect to the Governor must not be taken as a precedent. It explains the course taken by the Council in reference to the taxes embodied in the bill sent up by the Assembly, to the principles of which the Council could not assent, for reasons given.

6 foolscap pages.

1774, November 11. Halifax.—Report of a Committee on the accounts of the Treasurer, submitted to the Council.

12½ foolscap pages.

1774, November 29. Halifax.—Gibbons to Dartmouth. Asking for any situation that may be vacant in Nova Scotia, specifying the offices of Solicitor-General, Provost Marshal and Receiver General of quit rents.

4 quarto pages.

1774, November 29. Halifax.—Legge to Dartmouth. On account of the unsatisfactory discharge of the duties of Secretary, has appointed Alexander Morris first clerk in that office. Dissatisfaction of Bulkeley, the Secretary, who had appointed his son to that position, and, he understands, is writing to his friends to get the appointment of Morris set aside: asks that it be confirmed, so as to secure regularity in the discharge of the duties. All the public law business put into the hands of Monk, Solicitor General, who has acquitted himself satisfactorily. There is also a duplicate, dated 2nd December.

3 foolscap pages.

1774, December 4. Halifax.—Monk to Dartmouth. Owing to the utfitness of the present Attorney General all the public law business has been put into his (Monk's) hands. Applies for the office on Nesbitt's superannuation, to whom he will cheerfully render one half of the salary during his life.

3 quarto pages.

1774.—Estimate by the House of Assembly for the civil establishment of Nova Scotia.
1 foolscap page.

1774 (?).—Address of the Assembly to Legge. That they will take steps to secure the public credit, but owing to the length of the session interfering with their private affairs and the severity of the season few of the members are present.
1½ foolscap pages.

1774 (?).—"State of L^{t} Colonel Gorham's affairs." His debts and the causes thereof, praying for relief.
2¼ quarto pages.

1774 (?). ——— to ——— (Dartmouth ?). Gives an account of the growth of the public debt of Nova Scotia and how it was caused by a series of dealings in respect to bounties &c., in which Francklin, the Lieut. Governor and his associates are charged with being concerned. The letter is not signed, but is in the handwriting of Gibbons.
8¼ quarto pages.

1774 (?).—"List of Staff Officers in the old Department of N. Scotia and Garrison of Louisbourg."
1 foolscap page.

A rough jotting is enclosed of names and apparently of salaries attached to each.

1775, January 10. Halifax.—Legge to Dartmouth. Had reported that the public records of receipts and payments in the hands of the late Treasurer had been suppressed; for the purpose of concealing some undue measures practised by a party here. The first Assembly was composed of persons solely under the influence of Mauger, then resident and now member for Poole. The means they adopted for securing power by squandering the money in the Treasury and the money borrowed on useless works, bounties &c., threatening the Governor and members of Council, many of them being officers of Government, with a refusal to vote their salaries, and, the members being traders, by keeping these members in debt; by granting to the distillers duties to exclude West Indian produce and through the influence of Mauger to fill the Council with their supporters so as to prevent any check on the Assembly. They have so monopolised the trade, that the Governor cannot introduce any measure for the public good, that is opposed to their interest, without complaint.
7 foolscap pages.

A representation by members of Assembly (unsigned and undated) to Legge enclosed, in support of Legge's statements.
2½ demy pages.

A cover loose, but which appears to have been used to cover these papers, is endorsed:—"Papers relative to the Cabal formed against Gov. Legge in N. Scotia."

1775, January 12. Clapham.—John Thornton to Dartmouth. Sends extract from letter from Fenton of Halifax, and asking that he (Fenton) be appointed Receiver of the quit rents.
1 quarto page.

The extract from letter dated Halifax 18th November, 1774, is enclosed. It complains of his hard situation as Provost Marshal, the salary attached having been withdrawn and the income dependent on fees fixed by the Assembly, many of whom are emigrants from New England, who have brought the same principles as exist there and are determined, being a majority of the Assembly, to give the Governor and all the officers under him all the uneasiness in their power. The addition to his income of the salary (£50 or £60) of Receiver of quit rents would enable him to live.
4 quarto pages.

1775, January 17. London.—Lord W. Campbell to Dartmouth. John Shoolbred has communicated the contents of a memorial to be presented to His Lordship for lands on the river Rustigush (Restigouche) and asking for testimony as to the utility of his settlement in the Bay of Chaleurs and the expense and industry with which it has been carried on. "This I can do in the fullest manner ; the settlement was begun during my Government of the Province, & from every account I have had, it promised to be very beneficial to the Trade & Manufactures of this Kingdom, & I think the Proprietors very deserving of every Encouragement."
1 quarto page.

The memorial (undated) is enclosed.
2½ large foolscap pages.

An undated paper entitled: "A short account of the Bay of Chaleur," stating its position, settlements, inhabitants and suggesting that religious instruction should be given to the Indians, who desire it. The country, he says, cannot be settled with good men without religious ordinances. This paper is probably of the same date as the memorial.
3 foolscap pages.

1775, January 27. Whitehall.—Dartmouth to Legge. His dispatches received and laid before the King and the Board of Trade. Their Lordships agree that the ability of the subject should be the measure of taxation and believe the proposition of the Assembly to tax indiscriminately lands cleared or uncleared is improper ; he is not to give his assent to a bill of this nature. The proposal to extend the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court into some of the populous counties requires further consideration, although it does not seem to be liable to any material objection. It would have been an advantage to have had Chief Justice Belcher's opinion on it. An increase to the number of representatives should be made by legislation and not by instruction. His Majesty permits him to give his assent to a bill to give two additional members to the county and two to the town of Halifax and to reduce the quorum to nine, including the Speaker. His execution of the King's instructions for the sale of land approved of ; the remuneration for survey is to be so much per hundred acres, in proportion to the trouble, but that must be left to his discretion and the amount charged against the sales of land.

The ready compliance of the Assembly respecting a law for the reservation of lands has been graciously received. Will be happy if he can suggest any means for stopping the dangerous correspondence of the Acadians on Cape Breton with St. Pierre and Miquelon without further harsh measures towards those unhappy and infatuated people. Means to be taken to stop the taking away of coal from Cape Breton, except such as is required for the troops.

4 foolscap pages.

1775, February 10. Cavendish Square.—Barrington to Dartmouth. Returns Belcher's memorials and other papers respecting his claim to the moiety of the Governor's salary, of which six months had been paid by order of the War Office to Governor Ellis, appointed Governor on the death of Lawrence. Green had been paid under exactly similar circumstances in obedience to the spirit rather than to the letter of instructions. Belcher's is a hard case, and there being no military fund available recommends it to his Lordship's consideration.

2 quarto pages.

Belcher's memorials, one to Dartmouth (one page and three quarters), the other to the King (one page), both dated at Halifax, 5th December 1774, on foolscap. Copies of letters from the War Office, one from Barrington, 22nd May 1773 (one page foolscap), the other from Townshend, 26th July 1772 (one page foolscap).

1775, February 24. Whitehall.—Dartmouth to Legge. A clause in the Act to prevent waste and destruction to pines, &c., on reserved lands is represented to be prejudicial to the fishermen of Louisbourg; desires that this shall be remedied. To grant every reasonable indulgence to Laurence Kavanagh in the fishery he carries on from Louisbourg.

2 foolscap pages.

1775, March 18. Throgmorton Street.—Thomas Legge to Dartmouth. Asks leave to have the box containing papers, &c., returned. Shall do nothing more about the memorial he had intended to present respecting sheriffs for Nova Scotia, more especially as the inhabitants had held meeting to make resolutions in favour of their rebellious neighbours. Wishes he could forget he ever set foot on that continent which has been so injurious to his circumstances. Makes no claim but would be thankful to accept an office.

2 quarto pages.

1775, July 1. Halifax.—Annual account of the Orphan's House for the year ending on the 1st of July.

2 foolscap pages.

1775, July 8. Halifax.—Address from the Legislative Council to the King. Expressing their loyalty and attachment.

2 foolscap pages.

1775, July 31. Halifax.—Legge to Dartmouth. Gives an account of the proceedings of an inveterate party in Nova Scotia on which he had already reported, and the difficulties that may be caused owing to the unhappy state of affairs in America. The agitation caused by the leader and his partisans has delayed public business. The Assembly, acting with them, has sat for six weeks and done nothing, giving every opposition to him (Legge), led by a select party of members who have taken offence at being removed from the office of justices of the peace for exciting disturbances; these with debtors to Government formed the majority. The loyal addresses were prepared before the combination. Day, a member, who had resided for some time in Philadelphia and imbibed republican principles, is one of the agent victuallers of the army and assisted by Tonge, the Naval Officer, framed a petition to the King for lessening the power of the Governor, Council and officers of Government, to throw the whole weight of power into the hands of the Assembly. The bait held out to keep up a majority was that the debtors should be exculpated and every man's pocket filled with money; 20,000*l.* were to be emitted in paper by establishing a loan office, but no provision was made for taxes to meet the Treasury notes, of which 20,000*l.* were outstanding; the bill was rejected by the Council, causing great violence in the Assembly. Binney's affair made use of to increase the excitement. Laments that in so critical a time several officers of Government should by their conduct tend to make the Assembly absolute.

4 foolscap pages.

1775, August 18. Halifax.—Legge to Dartmouth. Recommends his Lordship to acquire for four or five of his sons 20,000 acres each, which would increase in value by the formation of settlements.
1½ foolscap pages. There are two copies of this letter.

1775, October 12. Halifax.—Ellis to Legge. Hears that a fleet is to winter at Halifax, if so some of the ships may be unprovided with chaplains. Asks for his (Legge's) influence to procure such an appointment.
1 quarto page.

1775, October 23. Council Chamber.—Address of the Legislative Council to Legge on the opening of the Legislature, testifying their zealous attachment to the King and their abhorrence of the daring spirit of rebellion. Shall do all in their power to frustrate any attempt to disturb the peaceful state of the Province.
2 foolscap pages.

An address of the Assembly, unsigned and undated, is of the same date. It is contained in the journals of Assembly of that date.
1½ foolscap pages.

1775, October 24. Dover Street.—C. Wintringham to Dartmouth. Sends packet from Monk and another from the author, who trusts that secrecy will be observed, as otherwise he would have a distressing life in Nova Scotia.
½ quarto page.

1775, November 2. Halifax.—Gorham to Legge. The resolution of Council that he should engage and form two or more companies of Indians and Acadians having been desired by His Excellency to be deferred or dropped, prays him to reconsider the matter in Council so as to exculpate him (Gorham) as he stands in the Council book accountable for the immediate prosecution of the measure. From the distressed situation of the Indians from the want of ammunition and provisions, the measure is an object requiring immediate attention.

1 foolscap page.

1775, November. Adelphi.—Burrow to Dartmouth. Had attended Lord [George] Germain, but had no opportunity to state the case. Asks if half an hour's interview can be obtained with Germain at his house. In a postscript he says the abolition of the office of inspector would be a triumph to Francklin and an injury to the Province, as he and his party boasted of the influence they possessed.
2 quarto pages.

1775, December 5. Yarmouth.—Report to Legge of an attack by two armed vessels from New England and some of the inhabitants carried off. Advice and protection are asked for.
2 foolscap pages.

1776, January 1. Halifax.—Petition of several members of the Council. It is signed by Jonathan Belcher, Henry Newton, Jonathan Binney, Arthur Gould and John Butler. Protest their fidelity and that they had formed an association to support and maintain with their lives and fortunes His Majesty's person, Crown and dignity, and to oppose attempts to seduce the inhabitants from their loyalty. Complain of the conduct of Legge since he became Governor, of which instances are given, and pray for relief.
7 foolscap pages.

Another petition to the same effect, from the principal gentlemen and inhabitants of Nova Scotia, is dated 2nd January. The two petitions are nearly identical.

1776, January 2. Halifax.—Francklin to Dartmouth. Has held the Commission of Lieut.-Governor for nearly ten years, and discharged his duty to the satisfaction of the King and his ministers. Had a right to expect attention and confidence from Legge, but on the contrary had been met with slight, neglect and sometimes rudeness. Has been silent but as it is asserted that Legge has made representations highly injurious to the character of the officers of Government and charges them and the inhabitants with being disaffected, he (Francklin) now asserts that such representations are totally untrue and without foundation, although it is true that Legge has by his conduct lost the confidence and affection of the King's best subjects. Had come to town to pay his respects to Commodore Arbuthnot and General Massey, but as he has no post in the military establishment of the colony, he can be of little assistance.
4 quarto pages.

1776, January 2. Halifax.—Arthur Gould to Dartmouth. Complains that Legge refuses to sign bills for the office rent and "fire money," always hitherto paid quarterly, to the great distress of the officers entitled to the allowance.
3 quarto pages.

1776, January 3. Truro.—Representation and petition of the inhabitants of Truro against the Act for raising the militia and the Act for imposing a tax for its support.
4 quarto pages.

Another (undated) to the same effect from the County of Cumberland, entering into greater detail. It is endorsed 1775.
4 demy pages.

Another from Onslow to the same effect is endorsed 3rd October 1776, but this appears to be an error, as Legge left Nova Scotia in May of that year.
2 foolscap pages.

1776.—"Notes and observations upon the state of Nova Scotia in the year 1775, and the Petitions and Remonstrances against carrying certain Acts into execution, then judged by the Legislature necessary for putting the Province in the best state of Defence that the then circumstances of the People would then possibly admit and the Obvious Motives which actuated the Petitioners in their Opposition." It is chiefly taken up with a criticism of the address from Cumberland, as a type of the others, which, it is contended, shows their sympathy with the rebels and their intention to oppose the execution of the Militia Act. There is neither date nor signature; the handwriting is that of Gibbons.
8¾ foolscap pages.

1776, January 10. Halifax.—"Return of officers for garrison allowance of His Majesty's Loyal Regiment of Nova Scotia Volunteers." The names of the officers, with the dates of their commissions are given.
1 foolscap page.

1776, February 7. Halifax.—"State of His Excellency Governor Legge's Conduct and Proceedings with respect to Lieutenant Constable of His Majesty's Royal Fensible American Regiment of Foot." The offer of a company in Legge's regiment withdrawn in consequence of charges against Constable; the document contains an examination, correspondence, &c., on the subject.
19¼ foolscap pages.

1776, February 27. Planta. Office.—Cumberland to Legge. Had tendered Meyrick, his (Legge's) agent, his salary, but as Legge is expected shortly to return Meyrick thinks it better to retain the money till his arrival.
1 quarto page.

1776, February 27 Whitehall.—Lords of Trade to Legge. In consequence of complaints against him he is to prepare for his defence; the complainants are to have access to the necessary papers, &c., and he is to return to London. The charges, evidence, &c., to be exchanged between him and the complainants, and copies of the whole sent to their Lordships.
2¾ foolscap pages.

A letter from Cumberland to Dartmouth forwarding the letter is enclosed.

1¾ quarto pages.

1776, February 27. Whitehall.—Knox to Legge. An immediate inquiry to be made into the occasion of the uneasiness and discontent said to prevail in Nova Scotia; letters from Germain and Lords of Trade will show what is expected of him. It will be a satisfaction to him to find that the Government in his absence will not be in the hands of a person whom he considers an adversary and connected with those who wish to render his government uneasy. Thanks for his attention to Ellis.

2 quarto pages.

1776, February 27. Adelphi.—Burrow to Dartmouth. His brother being willing to resign in his favour his office of Collector of Customs, asks his Lordship's influence to obtain the consent of North to the transfer. The letter is dated "Tuesday noon." The subject is stated in letter to Legge, dated 28th February, which was a Wednesday.

2½ foolscap page.

1776, February 28. London.—Burrow to Legge. Dispatches received. Soon after his (Legge's) dispatches were received, Binney and Tonge arrived with a whole cargo of complaints, memorials, &c., which they had left no engine unmoved to give effect to. His exertions to counteract them, and had presented to the Lords of Trade his (Legge's) letters, and that of Morris; with these and the assistance of Dartmouth a conviction was forced [on the Lords of Trade], which he was afraid had not at first been intended. States the plan of Legge's recall to lay the state of the colony before the King, a course not unusual, and by such order the full pay continues, which is not the case on leave of absence being granted. On his arrival the Lords of Trade are to examine into all the complaints; what documents he should have prepared to explain the position of affairs. Care has been taken that the proceedings carry no stain on him (Legge). The dismissal of the head of the party has disconcerted his (Legge's) opponents. Arbuthnot is to be Lieut.-Governor; has no doubt that he (Legge), if he chooses, will be back in October with a reputation that will attend him through life. The complaints have been managed with great art and every one who could be prevailed on has been induced to write something disagreeable, which occasioned a prejudice not easy to break through, which was shared by Germain who succeeded Dartmouth. The change in Germain's opinions on the case, but the difficulties of his position should any mishap befall the Province were no notice taken of the complaints. He (Burrow) has no doubt matters will be cleared up and the character of the complainants exposed, when the Province will flourish for at present it is neither worth governing nor living in. Should it be his own choice not to return after his character is cleared, he will receive marks of His Majesty's approbation in the military line. Cumberland professes great friendship and would not deliver the petition sent by the five Councillors; Monk cannot be too severe on Belcher. Binney and Tonge cut ridiculous figures at the Board and will receive no countenance from the Secretary of State or the first Lord of the Treasury and the "valiant Col." [Tonge] is now flying to the Board of Ordnance to be appointed an engineer and to fortify Cumberland; had dedicated time to prevent this. What papers should be brought over. Monk to be cautioned not to write so much; Cumberland hinted that he was not his (Legge's) friend. His own private arrangements and his desire that his wife, now in Nova Scotia, should join him in London.

8 foolscap pages.

A table of fees (undated) established to be taken by the Governor is enclosed in the preceding letter.
1 foolscap page.

1776, February.—Burrow to Dartmouth. Has learned that Tonge is taken by the hand by the Board of Ordnance and to be sent as engineer to Cumberland county, where Francklin has influence and which was the first place to oppose the Militia Act. Tonge's bad character, Binney's inability to establish before the Board of Trade the charges against Legge.
4 quarto pages.

1776, March 2. London.—Burrow to Dartmouth. That he has been tracing the author of an anonymous letter and believes that it was written by Butler and handed to the printer by a man in disguise. He (Burrow) and his brother will call on Monday respecting the offer of the latter to resign in his (Burrow's) favour. Dated only "Saturday." For conjectural date see letter from Burrow of 27th February.
4 foolscap half pages.

1776, March 4. London.—Burrow to Dartmouth. Had been informed that Legge is to be recalled to answer the complaints against him. Hopes that Binney and Tonge who are applying for reward will not be listened to.
3 foolscap pages.

1776, March 7. Cornwallis.—Chipman to Henry Denny Denson. Encloses affidavits from Captain Ferrel and Lieutenants Green and Pinco respecting the threats of Samuel Willoughby to stop recruiting for Legge's regiment. The affidavits of same date are with the note.
In all 2½ quarto pages.

1776, March 8. Halifax.—The Governor reported to the Council that the Lieut. Governor had informed him 300 men in the townships of Windsor, Newport, Falmouth, Horton and Cornwallis and 200 men in Cobequid and Cumberland were ready to enrol themselves for the defence of the Province and asked for advice. The Council was of opinion he should proceed to the enrolment.
1½ foolscap pages.

1776, March 8. London.—Burrow to Legge. Had written him on the 27th (the letter referred to is dated the 28th February). Refers to his public and private dispatches. Dartmouth is determined that the matter shall be searched to the bottom. Germain's opinions of the people are now different from those he held. Anonymous letter received full of invective, apparently from the distiller; believes he has destroyed any effect it might have had. Has hopes of success in the proposal to succeed his brother; hopes for the arrival of Mrs. Burrow, &c. P.S.—9th March.

The success of the Government and weakness of the Opposition; 22,000 foreign troops engaged for America, with a fleet of 70 sail under Howe; is in hopes this year will see an end of the contest. Report that Carleton is recalled and Burgoyne to take his place. Other military news, &c.

4 foolscap half pages.

1776, April 11. Halifax.—Proceedings of a court of inquiry held in the Loyal Regiment Nova Scotian Volunteers. A dispute between two of the officers at roll call.

3½ foolscap pages and 1 page respectively.

1776, May 6. Halifax.—"Distribution of subsistence to the Commission and Staff Officers of His Majesty's Loyal Regiment of Nova Scotia Volunteers." The names and allowances of the officers are given in detail, with the amount on the credit side of bills drawn.

2 foolscap pages.

1776, May 6. Halifax.—Distribution of 61 days' subsistence to His Majesty's Loyal Regiment N. S. Volunteers. There are two accounts, one to 24th April, the other to 24th June, but both dated 6th May.

Each 2 foolscap pages.

Same date. Contingent expenses for the same regiment.

1 foolscap page.

1776, June 1. Halifax.—Binney to Legge. His grateful sense of favours received. Gossip respecting officers, &c. Mentions that Queen Anne had attended every day at the trial of Dr. Sacheverell. (This appears to be intended to meet the charge against Legge of attending during a trial, and thus influencing the decision of the Court).

2 quarto pages.

1776, June (?).—"The Reply of Francis Legge, Esquire, Governor of the Province of Nova Scotia, to the Petitions presented to His Majesty against him." Part of the proceedings before the Lords of Trade, whose report on the investigation is dated 25th July 1776. There are two copies of the "Reply," both of which are undated.

One is 12½, the other 9½, foolscap pages, but the difference consists in the writing, the contents being the same.

1776, June.—"The case of the Defaulters of Government in the Province of Nova Scotia, and particularly Jonathan Binney, Esq., fairly Stated and Candidly examin'd being Governor Legge's Defence of his Conduct from the Imputations and Charges brought against him in these respects." Apparently one of the documents laid before the Lords of Trade during the investigation into Legge's conduct.

11¾ foolscap pages.

1776, June (?).—Paper endorsed: "Copy of a paper presented to the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations by Jonathan Binney, Esq." The charges against Legge and statements in support of them are in parallel columns.

2½ foolscap pages.

1776, July.—Memorial of Legge to the Treasury for repayment of his expenditure as Governor, for expenses of his coming to London in obedience to orders and the cost of his living there, and praying that an order be obtained for the payment of £1,550 for his reimbursement.

1 foolscap page.

1776, July 25. Whitehall.—Report of the Board of Trade on the complaints against Legge. These are summarized under four heads. The recommendation is in these words:—"That your Governor through the Course of his Administration hath been wanting in that Gracious and Conciliating Deportment which the delicacy of the times and the Tempers of Men under agitation & alarm more particularly demanded, for want of which those upright intentions which he carried with him into Government became in great part fruitless and abortive and so general a ferment and dissatisfaction spread through the Province, that it became necessary for your Majesty to call him home to answer to the complaints exhibited against him." These complaints and observations are now before His Majesty, "and though we trust they will upon examination be found to furnish no such serious and well grounded matter of misconduct, as to cause your Majesty to withdraw your Royal favour and confidence from Mr. Legge upon future occasions," yet seeing the satisfaction his recall has given, they cannot think "it will be for your Majesty's service, that Mr. Legge should be allowed (for the present at least) to return to Nova Scotia for the purpose of reassuming the administration of that Government."

13½ foolscap pages. There are also two incomplete copies of this report, one the beginning the other the end of it.

1776, September 5. Salisbury Street.—Burrow to Dartmouth. Owing to the "abdication" of officers of the Customs in Nova Scotia begs that he may be recommended for employment there should his brother's proposal to resign in his favour not be thought proper. Monk appointed Attorney-General in Quebec, to make room, he thinks, for Brenton to succeed to that office in Nova Scotia.

2 quarto pages.

1776 (?).—Memorial from Binney for a salary.

½ quarto page.

1778.—Legge to Dartmouth. Reminding His Lordship of the memorial presented upwards of two years previous for payment of the expenses he had incurred as Governor and in consequence of his recall and asking for His Lordship's influence to have payment made. Undated. The memorial referred to was written in July 1776.

1½ foolscap pages.

1802, June 1. London.—Printed acknowledgment of subscriptions, books, &c., for the library of King's College, Nova Scotia, and appeal for further assistance.

3 printed foolscap pages.

N. D.—Memorial from William Shirreff for the pay of his late father, appointed Judge-Advocate of the forces at Annapolis Royal in 1718, without salary. And on the recommendation of a Board of General Officers a new commission was issued in 1730 with a salary attached; the arrears of which amount to £2,774 sterling. (In the body of the memorial it is stated that Shirreff, the memorialist, has served for 25 years. His first commission, so far as can be traced, was given the 25th of June 1755, so that the possible date of the memorial is 1780.

3 foolscap pages.

> An extract from the report of a Board of General Officers, on the petition of William Shirreff of 10*th July* 1730, is enclosed.
> 2 foolscap pages.

No date.—" A plan for settling a Township to consist of one Hundred thousand acres, with an Estimate of the Expence." The amount to be settled, reserved, &c. is shown to be 20,000 acres, leaving 80,000 to be disposed of by the proprietors.
1 foolscap page.

No date.—List of His Majesty's Council, Halifax, Nova Scotia.
¾ quarto page.

No date.—Burrow to Dartmouth. Sends letters received from Legge. The warmth of sentiment they breathe ; the desperate state of the faction which opposes him &c.
2 foolscap pages.

No date.—Memorial of McNutt respecting settlements and grants of land.
4 foolscap pages.

ISLAND of St. JOHN.

1763 and 1764.—Lord Egmont's proposals for settling the island, for the whole of which he asks a grant, with other documents from proposed associates, &c. There are two parts, printed, each 32 pages octavo. The first part contains the proposed laws, the names of the associates, &c. The second part, correspondence, reports of the Lords of Trade and other papers respecting the settlement.

1768.—Jotting on a slip of paper of 20,000 acres in St. John Island originally granted to John Dickeson, and on his death to David Dickeson.

1772, August 27. Dublin.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Sends memorial from Samuel Smith, agent for St. John's, praying for roads on the island, and for a detachment of troops to assist in public works.
1½ quarto pages.

A memorial corresponding to that described in the letter is dated 30th December 1772, and follows the preceding letter.

1772 (?) Petition of Michael Swan for payment of a bill granted to him by Callbeck, Attorney-General of St. John's Island for money advanced, Callbeck being protected by his position from suits that might otherwise be brought against him.

1½ foolscap pages.

1773, May 13. London.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Encloses proposal for peopling the island of St. John.
½ quarto page.

> Enclosed:—A printed proposal from Emanuel Lutterloh to furnish 4,000 families as tenants and settlers on estates in the island.
> Printed. 2 foolscap pages.

1773, May 20. Litchfield.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Suggests his purchasing a lot of land in the island. Christie has offered to sell his lot, offers to act as agent for the purchase and management, without charge. The revenue to be expected from the investment.
1½ quarto pages.

1773, August 28. Dublin.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Sends forms of power of attorney and lease respecting lands in St. John's island, to serve as a model for His Lordship's lands in Florida. Sir Charles Saunders has offered to sell him (Desbrisay) his lands in St. John's Island, which he offers to transfer to His Lordship for the same price as that to be paid to Sir Charles, and to resume possession should the purchase not be advantageous to His Lordship.
2 quarto pages.

> Enclosed:—Form of a Power of Attorney (1 page foolscap, printed); Form of lease (1 page large parchment, printed).

1773, September 24.—Charlotte town.—Memorial of Chief Justice Duport, Callbeck, Attorney General, Allanby, Provost Marshal and John Budd, Clerk of the Crown, represents that the island was constituted a separate Government from Nova Scotia, on the agreement of the proprietors to pay such quit rent as would meet the charges. That this quit rent has not been paid, so that there is no fund to pay their salaries, from which cause they have suffered great distress, having filled their respective offices for four years without remuneration. Memorialists pray that their salaries be secured to them in such manner as shall seem best to His Majesty.
1¾ foolscap pages.

1773, November 22. Dublin.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Has withdrawn his advertisement for tenants for his lands in St. John's Island in consequence of His Lordship's displeasure. Had not attempted to obtain tenants except with the leave of the proprietors and encloses note from Lord Hertford's agent in proof of this.
1½ quarto pages.

> The note is enclosed.
> 1 quarto page.

1773 (?)—Memorials of the proprietors showing the disadvantages arising from the want of a proper survey of the island by retarding settlement, &c., praying that a resident surveyor should be appointed and nominating John Robinson for the office.

1 foolscap page.

1773 (?)—" Suggestions concerning the Island of St. John in North America." The salaries of the officers were to be paid out of the quit rents; this has not been done, and they wish Government to pay them, the proprietors complain that the quit rents are too high. Suggests that an Assembly be called which could pass a law to authorise the sale of lands for the payment of quit rents. The Governor complains of the insufficiency of his salary, and has presented, or will present, a petition to the Treasury for relief. The cause of the extraordinary expense is the accommodation of strangers, there being no hotel in the capital, and the expense will increase should an Assembly be called. The sum of 500*l.* wanted for making roads. The Naval Officer has no salary; until the trade would warrant the imposition of fees, he should be paid a salary.
1½ foolscap pages.

A loose jotting appears to relate to the preceding document. The Assembly was first called in 1773, so that the date of this document cannot be later than that year.
1 foolscap page.

1774, February 12. Dublin.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Would have been in London before, but for an attack of scarlet fever. To assist His Lordship in the disposal of his lands in East Florida, encloses his terms and conditions for the sale of his lands in St. John's Island and Lutterloh's proposals for tenanting the same. The seller for 20,000 acres will have £10,000 in five years and the purchaser by advancing £2,102 will have £2,000 for ever. Since he has been forbidden to take tenants from the United Kingdom, has adopted this method of settling his lands.
3 quarto pages.

> Lutterloh's proposals enclosed are the same as those sent on 13*th May* 1773, with the addition of a certificate of his position. Proposals by Desbrisay, also enclosed, for selling and tenanting lot 31, showing the cost to the purchaser and returns.
> 2 foolscap pages. Printed.

1774, March 15. Barrington to Pownall. Encloses an application from Adair, surgeon, to be laid before Dartmouth.
1 quarto page.

> An application (undated) from Adair is enclosed, applying for a small spot of ground near Georgetown, a quarter of a mile from his lot, to be used for erecting fish stages.
> 1 quarto page.

1774, March 31. Berners Street.—General Worge to Dartmouth. Complains that land sold by him to Desbrisay had been disposed of by the latter in such manner as to defeat the claims he had in it for payment of mortgage.
2 quarto pages.

1774, May 1. Piccadilly.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Has settled with General Worge to that gentleman's satisfaction. Thanks for the recommendation he expects for the salary of £200 as Lieutenant Governor, but presses for a decision.
2 quarto pages.

1774, May 11. London.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Transmits resignation of the Rev. Mr. Caulfield. Will be thankful should his son be chosen to succeed as Governor's chaplain.
1 quarto page.

The resignation by Caulfield is enclosed, dated Dublin, 12*th April.*
½ quarto page.

1774, May 15.—Memorial of Desbrisay for the appointment of his son to be Governor's chaplain of St. John's. The date is endorsed.
1 quarto page.

1774, August 6. London.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Encloses certificate in favour of his son, signed by the Bishop of Waterford and others. Should his son be recommended for the office of chaplain, it shall be acknowledged with gratitude.
1 quarto page.

The certificate is enclosed.
½ quarto page.

1774, December 10. Somerset House.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Sends description of two lots of land made by Clarke, a Quaker, who went to settle on St. John's Island. Again recommends His Lordship to purchase the two lots as an investment.
1½ quarto pages.

A short description in tabular form is enclosed.
¼ quarto page.

1774, December.—Earl of Warwick to Dartmouth. Encloses a request for the appointment of Peter Stewart to be Chief Justice of St. John's Island.
1 quarto page.

The request to Warwick enclosed.
1½ quarto pages.

1775, June 15. Hon. John Yorke to Dartmouth. Reminds His Lordship of a promise Desbrisay believes was made him on the application of Sir Joseph Yorke.
1 quarto page.

Copy of the answer is placed with this, that such promotion shall be made as his qualifications may seem to warrant.
1 quarto page.

1775, June 21. Somerset House.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth, applies to be appointed to Granada or any other Government. Encloses memorial.
1 quarto page.

> The memorial, of same date, enclosed, offers to raise a battalion of 500 men for service in America.
> 1 foolscap page.

1775, July 18. Dublin.—Lord Ligonier to Desbrisay. Is unable to assist him with Dartmouth, not being acquainted with His Lordship. Recommends him to apply to Sir Joseph Yorke.
1 quarto page.

1775, July 24. Charlottetown.—Thomas Wright to Dartmouth. Governor Patterson has a memorial to present on his (Wright's) behalf, relative to his situation as chief surveyor of the island; the injury he and his family would sustain by removal, the expense he has incurred, &c. It is endorsed "Nova Scotia" through error.
1 foolscap page.

1775, July 27. Somerset House.—Desbrisay to Dartmouth. Has been informed by Callbeck that Patterson does not intend to leave the island this year. That means a loss to him (Desbrisay) of half the Governor's salary and perquisites, and with no salary attached to his office of Lieutenant Governor and personal fortune, it would be miserable to go to a desolate island; asks leave, therefore, to remain for a year in hope of obtaining a Government or he would raise a battalion of 500 men at his own expense, on condition of being appointed to the command, naming his own officers to be selected from half pay. Is unhappy that Lord Ligonier is not acquainted with His Lordship; encloses his letter (see 18th July).
2 quarto pages.

1775 (?).—Memorial by Desbrisay for a salary to him as Lieutenant Governor. There are two copies.
1 foolscap page.

1775 (?).—Memorial of Desbrisay offering to raise a Company to consist of a Captain, three lieutenants and one hundred men to be employed for seven years in making public roads, he to be captain without pay and to select the three lieutenants.
1 foolscap page.

1775 (?).—C. Greville to Dartmouth (?). The training of Peter Stewart in the profession of law; he is a large landed proprietor in St. John's Island, has expended a considerable sum in the cultivation of his property and has sent out nearly 200 people who have been settled above two years. Apologises for mentioning Stewart after having recommended Grant. If appointed, Government will not have a more proper person in its pay from his qualifications, which are detailed. [The letter is without date or address. It was written in answer to inquiries as to Stewart's fitness for the office. Lord Dartmouth was Colonial Secretary from August, 1772, to January, 1776; Stewart was appointed Chief Justice in 1775, which is most probably the date of the letter.]

1776, March 20. Leicester Square.—Patterson to Dartmouth. His confidence in His Lordship's kindness to preserve him and his family from ruin. All his business is stopped at the Treasury and it appears as if it would rest there or be determined against him. Asks for His Lordship's mediation and will call to explain more fully.
2 quarto pages.

1776. "Observations on the Island of St. John in the Gulf of St. Lawrence; chiefly setting forth the advantages that must arise from the settlement of it to Great Britain, and offering some Reasons why at the juncture it may prove particularly advantageous to give it extraordinary encouragement, &c." From the situation of the island it can never be a manufacturing country but must always "tempt the inhabitants to run into trade and the fishery." The ill-treatment of the inhabitants and especially the Indians by the New Englanders, who obtained the furs of the latter by giving them rum and a bad imitation of wine. The advantage to Great Britain of trade carried on from St. John's instead of from New England, especially during the present state of the Colonies. If Government held out encouragement, many loyal people from New England would fly there for safety. The error in the first establishment of a separate Government in 1769, providing for the salaries of the officials from quit rents, as in nearly seven years these did not amount to as much as would pay them for a year and a half. Proposes that the island should be put on a footing similar to the other American Colonies, giving the officers salaries sufficient to support their respective ranks. The paper is endorsed, "Gov. Patterson's Observations on the Island of St. John." It was probably written in London.
9½ foolscap pages.

Undated. "A Description of the Island of St. John, in the Gulph of St. Lawrence, North America." The description is in a bound MS. volume, the information given in tabular form, with note of the quality of the land in each lot, the boundaries of which are given, a list of proprietors being at the end.
42 small quarto pages.

INDEX.

A.

"A. Z.," letter signed, 326.
Aaron, a negro, declaration of, 85.
Abbot, captain, 350.
Abbott, Edward, lieutenant-governor of St. Vincennes, 426.
  letter from, 119.
Abeel, John, grant of land to, 2.
Abercrombie :
  general James, 545.
  lieutenant-colonel James, death of, 349.
Abercromby, James, letters from, 203, 269.
Aberdeen, 483.
Abergavenny, Marq. of, MSS. of, xii.
Abraham, Father, his almanack, 460.
Acadians, 593.
Achincrue, Ayrshire, 268, 271, 272, 274.
Acrington, 330.
Acton, Middlesex, letter dated from, 203.
Acts of Parliament :
  American Act, 51.
  Barbadoes Act, 487.
  Billeting Act, 50.
  for changing the Council of Massachusetts, 227.
  confiscating property in American ships, 465.
  Declaratory Act, 51, 199, 348.
  for establishing free ports in the West Indies, 541.
  Habeas Corpus Act, 285.
  —— Bill to suspend the, 429.
  —— suspension of the, 438.
  imposing duty on tea, 114.
  Insolvency Act, 573. making it death to destroy any of the King's ships, stores, &c., and authorising the trial in Great Britain, 156.
  Mutiny Act, 286.
  Navigation Act, 398, 522.
  for the preservation of His Majesty's dockyards, 86.
  for restraining and preventing several unwarrantable combinations and undertakings in America, 50.
  for the better preventing of illegal meetings in any of His Majesty's Colonies in North America, 405.
Acts of Parliament—cont.
  Prohibitory Act, 280, 416, 472.
  Quebec Act, 235, 266, 385, 566, 567, 568, 569, 572.
  Restraining Act, 285, 328, 343, 350, 428, 434.
  Revenue Acts, 85, 187, 266, 273.
  —— likely to be repealed, 191.
  —— repeal of the, proposed, 30.
  for re-uniting the proprietory governments in America to the Crown, 487.
  (a provisional) for settling the troubles in America and asserting the supreme legislative authority and superintending power of Great Britain over the Colonies, 265.
  Sugar Act, 12, 24.
  for securing the dependency of the Colonies, 38, 39.
  with reference to seizure of bullion in America, 51.
  Stamp Act, iii, iv, 12, 15, 18–28, 30–6, 45, 51, 52, 65, 203, 242, 364, 495.
  —— petition against, 13.
  —— repeal of the, 23, 24, 34, 37, 39–44, 46, 47. arbitrary, 331.
  associations against, 295, 297.
  cause of much discontent in America, 18.
  disadvantages arising to America by the several, 35.
  mentioned, 16, 33, 44, 50, 111, 223, 293, 312.
  those passed since 1763 to be repealed, 51.
  resentment against, 298.
  of supremacy or taxation, refusal to submit to, 314.
  of Trade and Navigation, 29.
Adair, —, surgeon, applies for a grant of land, 603.
Adams :
  [John or Samuel], 216, 239, 304.
  —— of powerful wrangling abilities, 222.
  John, intercepted letters of, 335, 336, 390; referred to, 352, 364, 376, 388.
  —— Mrs. Abigail, letter to, 335, 352.
  John, mate of sloop "Liberty," 119.
  [John Quincy], 490.
  Joseph, petition of, 119.
  Samuel, vii, 35, 63.
  —— complains of the injustice of the Stamp Act, 27.

- Adams—cont.
  - Samuel, excepted from pardon, 321, 331.
  - —— letters from, 24, 27.
  - captain Thomas, kindness of, 119.
- Adderley, Mr., 485.
- Addington, 500.
- Admiralty, the, 84, 86, 158, 197, 228, 259, 270, 286, 296, 397, 419, 433, 434, 442, 467, 468, 482, 577, 582, 583.
  - directions to be sent to, 81.
  - letter to, concerning the burning of the "Gaspee," to be recalled, 88.
  - letters to, 59, 62, 84, 136, 232, 461, 509, 531, 532, 543.
  - licenses, 416, 419.
  - minute of, 429.
  - to reinforce the squadron in America, 406.
  - courts of (Vice Admiralty) in America, 409.
  - —— in West Florida, 211.
  - —— Judge of, in St. Vincent, 538.
- Africa :
  - importation of slaves to Virginia from, 113, 121.
  - memorial of merchants trading to, 121.
  - papers relating to, 487.
  - trade with, 57, 542.
  - transportation of troops to the colonies in, 141.
- African Company :
  - memorial of, 484.
  - slave trade, 236.
- Alamance, plan of the camp and battle of, 157.
- Alarm, the, 176, 177.
- Albany, 285, 375, 422, 442, 445, 446, 455, 459, 491.
  - barrack master of, 459.
  - county, 120, 200, 205, 285, 303.
  - Indians receive presents at, 374.
  - mayor of, ill-treatment of, 422.
- Alcalá de Henáres, 370.
- Aldborough, 311.
- Alice, Rev. J., solicits assistance with regard to a Pennsylvania Act, 104.
- Allan, —, of Nova Scotia, 416.
- Allanby, —, provost marshal, memorial of, 602.
- Alleghany Mountains, proposed establishment of a colony west of the, 75.
- Allen :
  - Rev. —, 314.
  - Andrew, 439.
  - B., desires an appointment, 230.
  - Colonel Ethan, 314.
  - —— his letter to merchants of Montreal, 309.
  - —— his letter to the Indians, 310.
  - —— reward offered for his capture, 327.
  - —— surrender of, 387.
  - J., 230.
  - James, of Philadelphia, 7.
  - William, 138.
- Alligany. See Alleghany.
- Allison, Dr., his scheme, 50.
- Allsopp, George, memorial of, 559.
- Almon, J., 51.
- Alnwick, 89.
- Alnwick Castle, 221.
- Alves, —, searcher in the Customs, 572.
- Amall, John, letter from, 412, 413.
- Amboy. See Perth Amboy.
- Ambroise, Le Chevalier d', 366.
- America (term most generally applied to the English colonies in North America), passim, 1–488.
  - accommodation with, impracticable, 391.
  - arming, and in rebellion, 303.
  - articles of confederation of, 300, 460.
  - artillery in, 286, 287.
  - —— for, 340.
  - associations in, 243.
  - —— handed round against oppressive Acts of Parliament, 295, 297.
  - bank in, proposed, 46, 185.
  - bishop for, suggested, 224, 245.
  - —— consecration of, in Scotland, by non-juring bishops, 483.
  - cannot be conquered, 391.
  - church government in, 50.
  - coal and provisions needed in, 303.
  - coinage for, plan of, 204.
  - committees of correspondence started in, 156, 169.
  - —— all power lodged in congresses and, 320.
  - Commons' resolution on tumults and insurrections in, 35.
  - confusion and disorder in, 307, 297.
  - consequences of separation, 374.
  - copper mine in, 220.
  - corn from, imported to England, 149.
  - crown officers in, 482.
  - —— fees of, 125.
  - —— to be seized, 374.
  - customs in, 138.
  - —— commissioners of, 152. See also Commissioners of Customs.
  - —— regulations, 410.
  - deacons and priests for, 40.
  - debts of the various provinces of, 33.
  - —— due to England and English merchants, 22, 29, 244, 259, 261.
  - declaration of the united colonies, 337.
  - deplorable situation of, after the peace, 481.
  - difficulty in, lies in exasperation of both sides, 166.
  - emigration to, 181.
  - —— distressed state of emigrants, 287.
  - —— to be prevented, 485.
  - —— European Protestants as emigrants, 93.
  - —— from Ireland to, 303.
  - —— Scotch families desire to emigrate to, 96.
  - —— spirit of, prevailing in Europe, 181.
  - Estaing's expedition to, 464.

America—cont.
flour and grain exported to England from, 389.
foreign officers seek to go to, 349.
forts and troops in, instructions concerning, 61.
France and Spain, plan of, towards, 383.
French agents in, 383.
French support to, 470.
—— treaty with, 457, 461.
—— West Indies send stores to, 383.
—— war in America alluded to, 52, 95, 249.
duke of Gloucester's plan to relinquish, 475.
hints for carrying on the war in, 408.
—— on the produce and manufactures of, 22.
hostilities with, said to be commenced by Gage, 307.
illegal meetings in, to be prevented, 405.
illicit trading in, 264–5. independence of, alluded to, 18, 137, 150, 256, 276, 326, 331–2, 352, 360–1, 363–4, 371, 376, 388, 398 422, 448, 457, 470. influence of the press in, 302, 331, 363, 429.
inhabitants of, computed, 26.
lands in, disposal of, 153.
—— grants of, 173, 187, 225.
—— purchase and sale of, 103, 288.
—— to be cultivated, 189.
licenses for, 445.
Lords' protest on affairs of, 70.
magistrates in, form of declaration, 203.
manufactures of, 5.
—— in, to be prevented or discouraged, 40, 137, 189.
merchants concerned in. See London merchants.
military stores supplied to, 228, 241.
—— by French and Spanish ships, 366.
—— by Holland and France, 405.
—— from Hispaniola, 339.
—— from St. Eustatius, 334.
natives of, [in London], petition of, 205.
non-importation agreements. See Non-importation.
office of ranger of the woods in, 240.
offices and officers in, list of, 488.
—— candidates and recommendations for, 488.
ordnance stores for, 329, 330.
packets to, stopped, 390, 392.
pardon and protection offered to, 417.
partial concessions not to be accepted by, 362.
persecution of Tories in, 371.
plans of accommodation or schemes of reconciliation:
—— Mr. Fuller's plan of accommodation, 30.

America—cont.
plans of accommodation or schemes of reconciliation—cont.
—— Amor Patriæ on an expedient to reconcile the mistake over the Stamp Act, 34.
—— —— on the crisis, 196.
—— scheme for union by representation in Parliament, 51.
—— thoughts on American complaints, 190.
—— "An opinion," 193.
—— Samuel Lee's plan for a British and American reconciliation, 221.
—— Ambrose Serle's sketch of an essay on adjusting the disputes, 244.
—— plan for allaying present complaints, 246.
—— paper on the consideration of measures suggested, 247.
—— Lord Marchmont on the subject, 250.
—— Mr. Sayre's proposals, 252.
—— Dr. Smith's thoughts on the dispute, 253, 326.
—— the same sent by Brook Watson, 262.
—— a systematical plan submitted by Corbyn Morris, 257.
—— Mr. Burrow's "cool dispassionate thoughts," 258.
—— Mr. Barclay's plan for a permanent union, 270.
—— Mr. Philips' ideas of accommodation, 310.
—— Lord Hyde's ideas respecting, 318.
—— measures for pacification, 334.
—— Mr. Steele's plan for a new constitution, 372.
—— MS. of 90 pages on American affairs, 387.
—— Lord Hyde's suggestions for future government, 398.
—— Cyrus Griffin, plan of reconciliation, 404.
—— paper by Lord Drummond on accommodation, 406.
—— paper by Lord Hyde, 407.
—— captain Stanton's thoughts, 409.
—— Paul Wentworth's ideas which may be woven into a plan, &c., 410.
—— Rev. Thomas Rankin's proferred preliminaries, 412.
—— considerations, 431.
—— Joseph Galloway's additional thoughts . . . for union, 437.
—— a brief inquiry into the causes of the rebellion, &c., 438.
—— considerations on the great question, "What is to be done with America?" 451. plants and trees, catalogue of, 487.
—— suitable for cultivation in, 150.
—— &c., collected by the Royal Society, 163, 164.

America—cont.
- ports of, closed, 295, 328.
  - —— vessels bound from, to be captured, 196.
- post office in, establishment of, 205.
- preparations for war in, 256, 292, 324, 351, 370.
- quit rents in, 487. See also Quit rents.
- raising of men in, for mutual defence, 3, 9, 11.
- rank and precedence in, 11.
  - —— of foreign officers serving in, 134, 135.
- recommended by the King to the serious attention of Parliament, 69.
- religion of, 205, 216, 224, 245.
- representation of, in English Parliament, 244.
- revenue of, 11, 119, 133, 168, 187.
  - —— of quit rent in, 487.
- right of Parliament to make laws binding in, 169.
- roads in, captain Legge's proposal, 346.
- ruin of, foretold, 254, 295, 297.
- sale for produce of, in West Indies, 69.
- separate parliament for, suggested, 68.
- ships in the Texel bound for, with warlike stores, 270.
- sinecures in, 132.
- smugglers of, 288.
- starvation and ruin in, seem inevitable, 284.
- strength of, in fighting men, 467.
- system for a commonwealth in, ripening fast, 158.
- taxation of. See Taxation.
- tea proceedings. See Tea.
- threat of accepting foreign aid, 331, 362.
- timber from, 487.
  - —— destruction of, 260.
- trade of. See American Trade also Trade.
- united against England, 308, 319, 370, 398.
- vine and olive in, cultivation of, 50, 97.
- war in, occasioned by factions at home, 390.
- western coasts of, plan for discovering, 64.
  - —— parts of, proposed expedition through to Asia, 184.

"American, An," letter signed, 164.

American :
- agents in Paris (Franklin, Deane, and Lee), 468.
- anecdotes, paper entitled, 359.
- army, the, 329, 440.
  - —— deserters from, 462.
  - —— daily expense of, 424.
  - —— divisions in, 448, 452.
  - —— French in, number of, 366.

American—cont.
- Army, French and German officers go to join, 401.
  - —— Irish emigrants in, 427.
  - —— numbers of, 462.
  - —— rules for, 322.
  - —— sickness in, 423.
  - —— strength of, 375.
  - —— sufferings of, 463.
  - —— supplies for, 458.
  - —— winter quarters of, 459.
  - —— See also Washington and his army.
- department, précis of correspondence in the, 475.
  - —— seals of the, 87.
- frigates, 470.
- merchant, conditions upon which the, is supplied with tea, 131.
- merchants. See London, merchants trading to America.
- militia, 290, 311, 462.
- prisoners brought to England, 429.
- privateers, 351.
  - —— at Plymouth, 473.
- seas, fishing in, to be prohibited to Americans, 251.
- ships and shipping, 368, 396, 280.
- trade, 5, 12, 16, 17, 20, 23, 25, 28, 29, 32, 33, 40, 58, 69, 89, 119, 193, 213, 243, 258, 259, 261, 274, 280, 353, 373, 378, 396, 409, 426, 437, 504, 509, 522.
  - —— laws to be revised, 39.
  - —— regulations for, 410.
  - —— See also Trade.
- Traveller, the, 64.

Americans, the :
- agree not to receive stamps, 30.
- capture a ship from London, 361.
- desire of, for separation evident, 390.
- destroy tea, 183. See also Tea.
- determined on vigorous opposition, 324.
  - —— to fight for liberty, 339.
- disheartened, 437.
- disposed to quietness if reinstated in rights and privileges, 271.
- distress of, 404, 423.
  - —— loyal inhabitants, 384.
- enthusiasm of, 344, 352, 367.
- exasperated by Acts for stopping the fishery, 295.
- exchange liberty for tyranny, 320.
- intend to offer free trade to all nations, 129.
- invade Canada, 383.
- invest St. John's, 385-6.
- in want of ammunition, 366.
- much injured, 236.
- New Providence, governor and council in league with, 503.
- pardon offered to, 283.
- pleased at Lord Dartmouth's appointment as Secretary of State, 129.
- prejudiced against Scotchmen and Irishmen in office, 129.

Americans, the—cont.
  prohibited from fishery, 297. See also Newfoundland Fishery.
  rejoice at repeal of Stamp Act, 41.
  shut the door against relief for their complaints, 197.
  States-General prohibit supplies of stores to, 413. supplied with military stores by France and other countries, 228, 241, 334, 339, 366, 383, 402, 405, 470.
  tired of the rebellion, 449.
  traitorous correspondence carried on with, 368.
  unanimity of, 308, 319, 370, 398. want a constitution on principles of liberty, 297.
  will listen to no terms but their own, 316, 413.
  zealous for constitutional right, 273.
"Americanus," letter signed, 141.
Amherst:
  colonel, letter from, 582.
  Lord, 447, 473, 474.
  Sir Jeffery, 11, 146, 202, 269, 279, 408, 455.
  —— letters from, 225, 226, 285, 287, 582.
  —— letter to, 340.
Amit, R., 80.
Ammunition from Holland, 339.
"Amor Patriæ," paper signed, 34, 38, 189, 196, 372.
Amsterdam, 230, 232, 233, 270, 285. vessel at, with stores for America, 413.
Amyand, John, 446.
"Analysis, A. P.," papers signed, 394.
Ancaster, duchess of, xiv.
  letter from, 528.
Annapolis, 86, 215, 223, 322, 352, 387, 388, 600.
Anne, Queen, 3, 599.
  picture of, destroyed, 215.
Anonymous letters, 7, 88, 103, 104, 129, 132, 149, 196, 199, 200, 220, 254, 273, 289, 319, 334, 402, 412, 413, 430.
Anspach troops, 440.
Anticosti, island of, 551.
Antigua, 121, 131, 531, 543.
  christianity among the negroes of, 496.
  council of, 305.
  death of the lieutenant-governor of, 95.
  in danger of famine, 495.
  letters and papers relating to, 495–7.
  submissive to Stamp Act, 495.
Antill, Mr., 237.
Apalatian Mountains, the, 388.
Apocalipsin, essay upon the, 183.
Appii Forum, township of, 117.
Apsley, Lord Chancellor, 201, 397, 562, 566.
Aranjuez, 163.
Arbre Croche, speech dated at, 68.
Arbuthnot, commodore, 595, 597.
Arcedeckne, Chaloner, 526.
Archangel, 585.
Argyll, Duke of, 556, 558. desires the removal of his brother, 130.
  letter from, 162.
Argyll House, 130.
Army, the. See British Forces.
Arnaut, M., 125.
Arnett, 413.
Arnold, general Benedict, 314, 404, 442, 444, 470, 477.
  landing of, at St. John's, 309.
  letters from, 309, 310.
Arnott, Matthew Robert, 208.
Arriaga, Don Julian de, letter to, 530.
Articles of Confederation of the United States, 300.
Artillery:
  in North America, 269, 286, 287, 396.
  seizure of, 340.
  wanted for Jamaica, 526.
Ascension:
  Isle of, 227.
  smuggling vessel at the, 230.
Ashburner, Mr., 476.
Ashe, John, 331.
Ashley, —, 4.
Ashwell, Charles, 539.
Asia, proposed expedition to the north-east parts of, 184.
Assiento Contract, the, 518, 522.
Astley Castle, Coventry, 490.
Aston. See Gibson and Aston.
Athanor, a new invented copper, 151.
Atherstone, near Coventry, Warwickshire, 89, 204.
Atherton, —, 350.
Atkin, Rev. Thomas, letter from, 114.
Atkins, captain, desires an appointment, 201.
Atkinson, Richard, 338, 441, 446, 485. contract with, 417.
  ill-health of, 283.
  letter from, 434.
Attorney and Solicitor General. See Thurlow and Wedderburn.
Attwood:
  Chief Justice Thomas, 218, 502.
  —— letters from, 503, 510.
  —— recommended, 510.
  Thomas Bridgen, letter from, 199.
Aubry, Mr., 58.
Auchmuty:
  Robert, commission to, 92.
  —— instructions to, 94.
  Samuel, D.D., 219, 371.
  —— letter to, 389.
Auckland, Lord, MSS. of, ix.
Auditor of the Plantations, 5.
Augusta, 43.
  Indian Congress at, 7.
Augustine Bar. See St. Augustine.
Auvergne, lieutenant D', letter from, 364.
Aylesbury, 69, 180, 191, 212, 290.
Ayr, 268.
Ayscough, captain James, memorial of, 470, 471.

B.

- B. N., letter signed, 369.
- Babbage. See Babbidge.
- Babbidge, James .419.
  - capture of, 417.
  - letter to, 426.
  - memorial from, 572.
- Bache, Theophylact, letter from, 295.
- Bacon :
  - Anthony, 446, 472.
  - Nathaniel, 1.
- Bad Bay, 578.
- Bagly, Josiah :
  - death of, 122.
  - lands seized, 122.
- Bahamas, the, 393, 394, 417, 488.
  - administration of justice in, 501.
  - British consul at, 369.
  - defence of, 68.
  - fortification of, 540.
  - growth of cotton and indigo in, 504.
  - inhabitants of, 428.
  - letters and papers relating to, 498–504.
  - trade of, 57.
- Bailly, James, 542.
- Baker, William, 308, 314, 341.
- Balfour :
  - captain, 276.
  - —— appointment of, 403.
  - David, 477.
- Ballandine, Mr., 487.
- Ballymote, 217, 219.
- Baltimore, Lord, 548.
- Baltimore, 432, 445.
- Banbury, Lord North, M.P. for, iii.
- Bancroft, History of America, iii, vii, x.
- Banyar, Goldsbrow, 3, 9, 33, 154, 200.
- Barbadoes (Barbados), 104, 119, 121, 445, 470, 488, 540, 562.
  - Act, the, 487.
  - commission to the governor of, 507.
  - Council and General Assembly, 504.
  - four-and-a-half per cent. duty from, 5.
  - letters and papers relating to, 504–7.
  - merchants of, 507.
  - trade of, 57.
- Barbet, captain, 306, 313.
- Barclay :
  - David, vii, 138, 236, 270, 358, 359.
  - Messrs. John and Robert, 307, 377.
  - —— letters to, 312, 314, 315, 331, 346.
- Barker :
  - James, junr., 8.
  - Z. Robert, 396.
- Barkly, Gilbert, letter from, 371.
- Barnstaple, resignation of a magistrate of, 249.
- Barons, Benjamin, 203.
- Barré, Right Hon. Isaac, 382, 589.
- Barrell, Walter, 352.
- Barrett :
  - Mr., 518.
  - Thomas, ensign, aide-de-camp, &c., 420, 424, 432, 450, 453, 475.
  - —— letter from, 475.
- Barrette, lieutenant T. G., 474.
- Barrington :
  - Hon. Daines, 142, 150.
  - letters from, 163, 164, 534.
  - Lord, 136, 228, 243, 263, 266, 272, 293, 305, 347, 383, 399, 509, 555, 603.
  - —— letters from, 94, 134, 145, 202, 209, 257, 262, 273, 282, 285, 286, 341, 394, 397, 466, 533, 541, 593.
  - —— letters to, 59, 282, 531–3.
  - —— memorial to, 54.
  - —— refuses to accept Mr. Wooldridge's resignation, 82.
  - vice-admiral, 470, 543.
- Basingstoke, 173.
- Basset :
  - captain Henry, arrives at Detroit with troops, 98.
  - —— desires an appointment, 95; a lieutenant-governorship, 98.
  - —— letters from, 95, 98, 152.
  - Mrs., death of, 152.
- Basseterre, 528.
- Batavia, sugar estate near, 544.
- Bath, 115, 127, 148, 176, 228, 233, 261, 324, 433, 469, 541, 576, 582.
  - Abbey Yard, letter dated from, 513.
  - Cheap Street, letter dated from, 324.
- Bath, Lord, xiv.
- Bathurst, Lord, 457.
- Battle, Sussex, 561–2.
- Baum, lieutenant-colonel, 443.
- Baxter, Alexander, 297.
- Bayabou, 536.
- Bayard :
  - John, 327.
  - Samuel, 189,
  - William, 188, 228.
- Baynes, William, 382.
- Baynton, Wharton, and Morgan, Messrs., letters from, 21, 57.
- Beans, Mr., 527.
- Beard, William, 384.
- Beath, John, 101.
- Beattie, Dr., xvi, 202, 203.
  - his attack on Hume, 200.
  - Forbes' Life of, xvi.
- Beaufort, 354.
- Beaumont, Mr., tobacco seized from, 198.
- Beauport, near Battle, Sussex, 561, 562.
- Beauvouloir, Comte de. See Bonvouloir.
- Beazley, lieutenant, 353.
- Beck, —, 577.
- Beckett, letter dated from, 243.
- Beckett, Ann, 176.
- Beckman, lieutenant-colonel Gerard G., 250.
- Bedford party, the, 56.
- Belcher, Jonathan, chief justice, 592, 593, 595, 597.

Bellamy, —, 472.
Belle Isle, 574, 576, 578, 579.
Belle Ville, 232.
Bellomont, Earl of, 3.
Bennet, Mr., 230.
Benzel, Mr., death of, 261, 269.
Bercher, Daniel, 139, 140, 149, 159, 168.
  letters from, 142, 143, 167, 170.
  letters to, 143, 144, 167, 170.
Berdt. See De Berdt.
Berkeley, Rev. Dr. G., 158.
Berkshire county, 231, 422.
Bermuda, 33, 488, 508, 509, 540. customs revenue of, 508.
  inhabitants of, 508.
  trade of, 57, 508.
  whales frequenting, 508.
Bermudez, Don Pedro, 70.
Bernard:
  governor Sir Francis, 14, 30, 31, 37, 69, 76, 173, 204, 212.
  —— addresses to, 43.
  —— applies for an appointment for each of his two sons, 180.
  —— comments upon the votes of the Assembly, 25.
  —— grievances against, 168.
  —— leaves America, 69.
  —— letters from, 11, 16, 24, 25, 69, 191, 265, 290.
  —— letters to, 63, 265.
  —— odium against, 176.
  —— his services, 180.
  —— his speeches to General Assembly and Council, 23, 39.
  Lady, 286.
  Mr.. 430.
Berron, Mr., 423.
Berry, Sir John, letter from Charles II. to, 1.
Berryer, Minister of Marine, letters to, 545, 546.
Bethany, colony of, 120.
Bevan, Timothy, druggist, 325, 326.
Bewdley, 239, 318.
Bigna Park, 556.
Bigô, Charib Chief, insincerity of, 536.
Bigot, intendant, 574, 577.
Bill, Amos, 589.
Bill:
  Boston Port Bill, 198, 199, 202, 204–6, 254, 257, 266.
  for the encouragement of trade, 4.
  Indemnity Bill, 202.
  for prohibiting the trade and fishery of the associated colonies, 251, 272, 281, 285, 325.
  Quebec Bill, 565, 566.
  for the relief of deserters, 127.
  for restraining and prohibiting unwarrantable combinations, &c., in America, 50.
  for restraining the trade of the Five Middle Colonies, 308.
  for securing the dependency of the Colonies, 38.
  for the more effectual security of Great Britain and her dominions, 251.
Bill—cont.
  to suspend the Habeas Corpus Act, 429.
  See also Acts of Parliament.
Bill of Rights Society, 280, 281.
Billing, William, recommended for an appointment, 472, 473.
Billopps, Christopher, 196.
Binney, Jonathan, 586, 594, 597–9.
  memorials from, 595, 600.
Birchanger, Essex, 292.
Bird, —, 314.
Birmingham:
  letters dated from, 28, 32, 244, 257, 259, 263.
  merchants of, interested in American trade, 28, 257, 259.
  —— letter from, 32.
  Sandwell Hall near, letters dated from, 174, 360, 490. See also Sandwell.
  Soho near, letters dated from, 257, 259, 263.
Bishops for America, 2, 224, 245, 483.
Bissot, —, 551.
  grant of land to, 574.
Blackburn, 377, 378.
  captain, 445.
  John, 348.
  —— letters from, 223, 240, 242.
  —— letters to, 297, 303, 314, 324.
Blackheath, 129, 132, 405, 475.
Blackwell, colonel Jacob, 409.
  memorial from, 138.
Blane, captain Archibald:
  bravery of, 94.
  desires an appointment, 94.
  his services in North America, 95.
  letters to, 94, 96.
  memorial from, 95.
Blaquiere, Sir John, 395.
Bleecker, Jan. Janse, grant of land to, 2.
Blissett, David, letter from, 90.
Bloomer, Mr. 218.
Blyth, F., 51.
Board of Ordnance, 58, 283.
  letter from, 582.
Board of Trade, iii, v, 5, 10, 13, 14, 16, 21, 22, 25, 29, 31, 40, 75, 87, 103, 121–3, 136, 150, 153, 172, 177, 225, 238, 245, 247, 248, 253, 262, 375, 449, 508, 514, 539, 540, 546, 549, 551, 553, 555, 556, 574, 575, 584–6, 592, 596–601. applications to, for leave to export gunpowder, &c., 380.
  journals of, 4, 142.
  letters from, 4, 128.
  letters to, 3, 11, 14–17, 25.
  memorials to, 77, 82, 83, 106, 173, 241, 486.
  minutes of, 105, 107.
  object to a settlement at Detroit, 53.
  reports from, 108, 109, 130, 151, 159. representations to the King, 74, 105.
  questions the character and administration of governor Wentworth, 115.
  suggested for New York, 252.

Boddington, Mr. J., 526.
Bodmin (Bodmyn), 473, 488.
Boisclerc, 552.
Boldero, Henry, 508.
Bollan, William, 359.
  complains of his dismissal, 84.
  letters from, 39, 40, 42–44, 80, 114, 151, 167.
  memorial and petitions from, 84, 185, 191, 195.
  receives no recompense for his service, 84.
  recommended by Sir G. Savile, 42.
  upon the duty imposed on tea, 114.
Bonhole, J. James, 168.
Bonvouloir, Comte de, 366, 367, 401, 402.
Boone, governor Thomas, 11, 33.
  letter from, 88.
  memorial from, 13.
Booth. See Neale, Ligon, and.
Boothbay, 101.
Bordeaux, 227.
Boroughbridge, 311.
Bosomworth, Thomas, his claim to lands in Georgia, 9.
Bosomworth lands, 9, 10.
Boston, x, 12, 22, 30, 60, 64, 76, 112, 160, 161, 193, 197, 199, 204, 206, 229, 232, 233, 234, 239, 245, 247, 257, 258, 266, 275, 279, 280, 292, 298, 300, 304, 305, 306, 308, 328, 329, 331, 335, 339, 346, 350, 351, 364, 366, 367, 370, 371, 372, 375, 378, 384, 388, 389, 395, 403, 404, 409, 410, 413, 417, 468, 470, 486, 531, 580. action between the King's troops and the Provincials, 297–300, 360, 407.
  Acts relative to, 225, 284.
  arms sent to, 286.
  army at, 339, 394.
  —— desertion of soldiers, 112, 289, 372.
  —— distress of the, 352, 357, 375, 379, 398.
  —— to be augmented, 273.
  artillery at, 125, 269, 313. assessment of the town of, 246.
  assessors, the, 83.
  Bay, 421, 430.
  blockade of, 315.
  Board, the, 154.
  camp at, 229, 311.
  Castle William on Castle Island at, 72, 102, 187, 193.
  —— regiments for, 24, 86.
  —— to be secured, 209, 247.
  Commissioners of Customs at. See Commissioners of Customs.
  Committee of Correspondence at, 115, 255. condition of the rebels in, 436.
  customs house at, 263.
  —— removal of the, 206.
  —— removal of the officers of the, 214.
  destruction of tea at, 182–4, 194, 208, 214, 220, 255.
Boston—cont.
  disease among the troops, 372.
  disorders at the town of, 63, 198, 371.
  disposition of the people of, 114, 199, 212, 222, 260, 306.
  distress of the people, 423.
  embarkation of families from, for Halifax, 415.
  fortifications in and about, 231.
  government of, 209.
  governor of, opinion of the people concerning the, 191.
  —— salary of, 187.
  harbour of, 197, 211, 245.
  letters published at, 170.
  letters dated from, 11, 16, 22, 24, 25, 26, 27, 35, 43, 45, 62, 63, 72, 73, 78, 85, 102, 110, 124, 129, 138, 143, 151, 158, 174, 178, 182, 191, 205, 212, 226, 230, 255, 257, 292, 303, 305, 307, 312, 313, 314, 315, 317, 319, 336, 337, 351, 352, 353, 357, 373, 378, 391, 392, 413.
  —— Newbury Street in, 338.
  lighthouse destroyed by fire, 352, 357.
  mail from, broken open, 301.
  "massacre" in, 72.
  measures for removing fleet from, 342.
  measures to be adopted towards the ringleaders in, 201.
  meetings of the inhabitants of, 72, 110, 185, 229.
  merchandise to be stored at, 411.
  merchants of, 54.
  military insulted at, 112.
  naval office at, 180.
  notification posted in, 193.
  ordnance at, 330.
  outrages committed in, 196, 276.
  penal Acts enforced against, 288.
  people of, disturbances due to the, 258.
  —— fear the consequences of their behaviour, 192.
  —— obstinacy of the, 363.
  —— raise funds to compensate the company for teas destroyed, 192.
  —— warlike preparations of the, 259.
  persons guilty of treason to be arrested, 198.
  plan of, 329, 350, 376.
  Port Bill, 198, 199, 204–6, 233, 254, 257, 266. port, shutting of, 216, 257, 282.
  preparations to attack, 374.
  provincials at, 297–300, 311.
  —— encamped near, 371.
  publicly condemns violent proceedings, 35.
  quietness and contrition at, 207.
  return of troops to, 290.
  riots, 197.
  scarcity of coal at, 305.
  seditious newspapers of, 111.

Boston—cont.
  select men of, 255.
  ships of war and marines to be sent to, 228.
  sickness of troops in, 352.
  skirmish at, 285.
  small-pox rages round, 423.
  soldiers ordered to, 212.
  starvation and neglect at, 353.
  tea to be paid for, 231.
  teas sent to, 253.
  threats to bombard, 302.
  troops conveyed to, 62, 287.
  —— quartered at, 272.
  —— removal of, desired, 63, 72, 102.
  —— and inhabitants go to Halifax, 416.
  vote of inhabitants of, 78.
Botetourt, Lord, 135.
Botham :
  Henry, 544.
  Rev. John, 513.
Botisham, 333.
Boucher, Rev. Mr., 388.
Bougainville, —, 545.
Boulton, Matthew, 257, 259, 263.
Bound Brook, 440.
Bouquet, colonel Henry, 94.
Bowdoin, James, Pemberton and Warren, joint letter of, 72.
Bowen, Samuel, 36, 37, 42.
Bowler, Medcalf, 65.
Boyd, John, 268.
Boyle, 217, 219.
Braasen. See Brasen, Mr.
Bradford, 387.
Bradley, William, his plan for a coinage for America, 204.
Bradstreet, major-general John, 153, 245.
  death of, 582.
  grant of land to, 136.
  petitions of, 120, 159.
Braintree, 335.
Brandywine, engagement at, 448.
Brant, captain Joseph, 489. life of, 494.
Brasen (Braasen) :
  Mr., missionary, drowned, 579.
  Mrs., 579.
Brattle, William :
  chosen moderator, 21, 47.
  letter from, 43.
Braxton, Mr., 361.
Bray, Mr., 431.
Brazil, whale fishery on the coast of, 415.
Breakenridge, —, 363.
Breda, 293.
Breed's Hill, attack at, 324.
Breen (Been), captain, 339.
Brenton, —, 600.
Brest, 323, 475.
Brettingham, Matthew, memorial of, 572.
Brevard, Ephraim, 323.
Briand, Jean Olivier, bishop, 558, 570.
Brickdale, Matthew, 207.
Bridge, —, 416.
Bridge Town, port of, 507.
Bridgen, —, 17.
Brighthelmstone, 89.
Bristol, 229, 237, 445, 473. arrival of vessels at, 258.
  letters dated from, 227, 387, 444, 499–503, 562.
  merchants of, 403.
  Bishop of, 562.
  Earl of, 269.
Britain, The Fall of, paper entitled, 427.
Britain. See Great Britain.
British forces employed in America, or the army in America, 208, 331, 340, 346, 533, 534. arrival of, causes concern, 55.
  —— at New York, 423.
  at Boston, reduced by sickness, 353.
  —— labour under disadvantages, 315, 337.
  augmentation of, 316, 345.
  do little, 450, 470.
  evacuate Boston, 416.
  expenses of, 389.
  Highlanders to be sent to, 318.
  —— arrive at Halifax, 421.
  —— arrive at New York, 423. insufficient, 315, 321, 398. live stock for, 431.
  massacre, so-called, by, 72.
  numbers of, required, 367, 432, 447. ordered for, from Ireland, 289. plan of action for, 407.
  progress of, retarded, for want of stores, 438.
  proposal to raise men to serve in, 253.
  regiments, relief of, 59, 62, 84, 97, 98, 134, 136, 141, 541.
  35th regiment in West Florida destroyed by the climate, 58.
  64th regiment at Castle William, 86.
  reinforcements necessary for, 379.
  removal of, desired, 63, 72, 102.
  rum for. See under Rum.
  supplies for, 257.
  supplies withheld from, 337.
  to be sent out, 245, 264, 341, 344–6, 391, 392.
  stationed in the Illinois country, 55, 57.
British navy, North Carolina the "reservoir" for materials, 213.
British squadron in America, 259.
  frigates and transports fitting out for, 367.
  supplies to, 429.
  to be reinforced, 245, 228, 406.
"Brittannicus," paper signed, 193.
Broadstairs, 445.
Brodsworth, 505, 506.
Broeck, colonel Petrus Ten, 206.
Bromedge :
  captain Hugh, 394.
  —— letter from, 417.
Brompton (Kent), 274.
Bromwich, 259.
Brookland, 195.
Brooklyn, 493.

- Brooklyn Heights, letter dated from, 474.
- Brooks, James, 388.
- Broome, Mr., 316.
- Broughton, Rev. Bryan, xiv.
  - letters from, 474, 543.
- Brown :
  - —, 369.
  - Mr., recommended for an appointment, 199.
  - captain, 85, 304.
  - colonel, 239.
  - —— memorial from, 126.
  - major Arthur, 54.
  - John, 314.
  - Jonas, desires an appointment for his son, 149.
  - Philip, marshal, 498–501.
  - Thomas, desires an appointment, 149.
  - William, comptroller and searcher, 109.
- Browne :
  - governor Montfort, 212, 225, 274, 393, 394, 402, 450, 475, 478, 483.
  - —— advertisement by, 423.
  - —— allowance to, 111.
  - —— bond from, 503.
  - —— capture of, 417.
  - —— corps raised by, 436, 453.
  - —— desires an appointment in North America, 106, 180.
  - —— his estates injured, 180.
  - —— his offers of land on the Mississippi, 126.
  - —— his sufferings and losses, 106.
  - —— imprisonment of, 422, 424, 426–8.
  - —— letters from, 180, 218, 422, 435, 453, 482, 501–3.
  - —— letters to, 106, 419, 420, 424, 450, 501.
  - —— memorial from, 106.
  - —— picture of, 420.
  - Mrs., 424, 475, 502.
  - Richard, desires an appointment, 539.
- Brown's Clifts, 393.
- Bruagh (Brouague ?), 559.
- Bruce :
  - captain, 183, 191.
  - major, 320.
  - lieutenant-colonel, recommended for an appointment, 512.
  - Lord, letter to, 510.
- Brühl, count, 201.
- Brummell, Mr., 242.
- Brunswick, N.C., 17, 328.
- —— (N.J.) See New Brunswick.
- Brunx River, skirmish at, 436.
- Bryan, George, 65.
  - letter from, 350.
- Brymner, Mr. Douglas, archivist at Ottawa, i, xvii, 545.
- Buccaneers, 504.
- Buchan, Earl of, 185.
- Buchanan :
  - George and John, Messrs., 328, 372.
  - Walter and Thomas, Messrs., 328, 372.
- Bucks, Pennsylvania, 242, 275.
- Budd, John, clerk of the Crown, Nova Scotia, memorial from, 602.
- Bulkeley :
  - Mons., 323.
  - Richard, secretary of Nova Scotia, 416, 590.
- Bull :
  - Epaphras, 314.
  - lieutenant-governor William, 76, 188, 194, 306, 332.
  - —— letters from, 41, 266.
  - Mr., 162.
- Bullets, invention of, 318.
- Bullion :
  - in foreign bottoms, 29.
  - seizure of, 51.
  - to be imported into the Colonies, 24.
- Bungay, Suffolk, 199.
- —— Earsham, near, 224.
- Bunker's Hill, battle of, 317–9, 321, 327, 331, 348, 350, 351, 398.
- Burden, Joseph, 65.
- Burdet (Burdett), Sir Charles, desires a more lucrative employment, 160, 212.
- Burgoyne, major-general, 266, 307, 312, 315, 336–8, 372, 423, 424, 427, 433, 440–2, 444–50, 452, 481, 585, 599.
  - arrival at Boston, 312, 410.
  - arrival in England, 413.
  - captivity of, 458.
  - correspondence with general Lee, 337–8.
  - expedition undertaken by, 455.
  - fate of, 447.
  - letters from, 218, 337, 378.
  - letters to, 337, 338.
  - manifesto of, 441, 443.
  - troops under the command of, 420, 422, 450. See also Troops of Convention.
- Burgwin, Mr., 180.
- Burke, Edmund, 296, 308, 359, 534.
  - letters from, 300, 309.
  - letters to, 287, 298, 299.
  - speech of, at Bristol, 229.
- Burlington, N. Jersey, 160.
- Burnett, Mr., 132.
- Burrow :
  - Edward, 426.
  - James, letters from, 258, 424, 595, 597, 598, 600, 601.
  - —— memorial from, 258.
  - Mrs., 598.
- Burton, William, petition for a grant of land, 18.
- Bushwick, 196.
- Bushy Park, letters dated from, 86, 221, 251, 288, 467, 470.
- Bute, Lord, 57, 550.
- Butler :
  - colonel, 470.
  - John, of Nova Scotia, 588, 598.
  - —— signs petition, 595.
- Byam, Mr., 496.
- Byland, admiral, 475.
- Byrd, H., letter from, 340.

- Byron:
  - admiral, 464, 575.
    - —— action with D'Estaing, 474, 543.
  - Lord, Life of, 492.
- Bywater, —, 477.

C.

- C., J. or I., extract of a letter from, 450.
- Cabinet, the, 97, 99.
  - measures to be brought before, 251.
  - summoned, 235, 467.
- Cabinet minutes, 61, 67, 81, 85, 88, 107, 114, 121, 192, 195, 198–200, 202, 208, 227, 228, 258, 283, 316, 318, 432, 433, 484, 541.
- Cadiz, 464.
- Cadwallader, Lambert, letter to, 387.
- "Cæsariensis," article signed, 18.
- Caiques, the, 504.
- Cairnes, Hugh, 507.
- Calahan, Mrs., 302.
- Calais, 467.
- Caldwell:
  - captain Henry, complains of neglect, 382.
    - —— letters from, 192, 382.
    - —— offers his services, 192.
  - John, capture of, 355.
- Calef, Dr. John, 245, 247.
  - appointed as an agent, 99, 108.
  - letter from, 265.
  - memorials from, 103, 185, 265.
  - travels of, 265.
- Callbeck, attorney-general of St. John's, 601, 602, 605.
- Callendar, Robert, 21.
- Callington, 531.
- Cambel, engineer John, 106, 218.
  - letters from, 274, 402.
  - memorial from, 215.
- Cambridge, Massachusetts, 413, 486.
  - force at, 375.
  - fortifications of, 366.
  - letters dated from, 292, 338, 340.
  - provincial congress held at, 239.
  - town meeting held at, 21.
- Camden, Lord, xiii.
- Cameron, Alexander, commissary for Indian affairs, 14, 355.
  - letters from, 14, 15.
- Campan, Jacques, petition of, 80.
- Campbell:
  - lieutenant-colonel Archibald, 465.
  - lieutenant D., rebellious proceedings of, 339.
  - captain John, desires an appointment, 209.
    - —— appointment of, 558.
    - —— memorial from, 556.
  - John, 548.
- Campbell—cont.
  - Lord William, 130, 181, 245, 306, 313, 325, 586, 588.
    - —— arrival of, at New York, 423.
    - —— assistance desired by, 392.
    - —— complains of general Gage's neglect, 331.
    - —— desires a fixed salary, 264.
    - —— desires leave to visit England, 162.
    - —— insults and outrages offered to, 382.
    - —— letters from, 207, 209, 256, 331, 340, 341, 353, 355, 356, 364, 365, 382, 587, 589, 593.
    - —— letters to, 355, 382.
    - —— petition from, 264.
    - —— wounded, 425.
  - Mr., conduct of, 538.
  - colonel, capture of, 421.
  - Dr., letter to, 36, 37.
- Canaan, 267.
- Canada, 47, 67, 85, 128, 156, 192, 243, 309, 319, 320, 322, 324, 342, 350, 353, 360, 371, 374, 376, 397, 409, 414, 424, 433, 446, 450, 455, 471, 477, 488.
  - address to the people of, 312.
  - Bill, the, 586.
  - cession of, 121.
  - correspondence and papers relating to, 545–74.
  - expedition against, 123.
  - forces to be sent to Gage from, 316.
  - Jesuits in, 555, 557, 559, 561–4, 570, 571.
  - merchants trading to, 241.
  - paper money of, 561, 563.
  - rebels' designs upon, 380.
  - reported revolt in, 463.
  - trade of, 550.
  - trees, shrubs, &c., in, 573.
  - war for reduction of, 112, 113. See also Quebec.
- Canadians, 309, 313, 386, 400, 437.
  - administration of justice for, 551, 552, 553, 554, 557, 565.
  - character of, 560.
  - employment of, against the Americans, 310, 318, 349, 384.
  - favour France, 401.
  - forsake Ethan Allen, 387.
  - good militia, 335.
  - influenced by disaffected persons, 358.
  - join the Americans, 376, 379, 383, 385.
  - offered to general Gage, 256.
  - refuse to fight the Americans, 332.
  - with general Carleton, 375.
- Canaries, the, 264.
- Cane, lieutenant-colonel, letter to, 535.
- Canning. See Johnston and Canning, Messrs.
- Canso Bay, 430.
  - memorial from inhabitants of, 586.
- Canterbury, letter dated from, 158.
- Canterbury, archbishop of, xiv.
- Cape Ann, 357.
  - lighthouse destroyed by fire, 357.

Cape Breton, 67, 586, 588, 593. discovery of coal at, 305.
Cape Charles, 578.
Cape Fear, debarkation of troops at, 397.
Cape Fear River, 331, 365, 399.
Cape Florida :
  Lord Dartmouth's lands at, 142, 151, 161.
  Society for settling Lord Dartmouth's lands, 139–41, 143, 144, 149, 159, 160, 161, 162, 166–8, 170, 171.
  —— ends in smoke, 181,
Cape Nicola Mole, 339.
Cape Sable, 584.
Cape St. Lewis, 578.
Carden, major, death of, 387.
Caribbee Islands, 495. commission to sell the land, 507.
Caribs, Charibs, Charibbs, 497, 512, 536. expedition against the, 97, 513, 531–4.
  incursions of the, 530.
  murder colonel Walsh, 535.
  peace concluded with, 535.
  proclamation issued to, 531. promise of subjection from, 532.
  reduction of, 534, 535.
Carleton :
  general Sir Guy, 233, 310, 321, 324, 371, 375, 379, 382, 383, 384, 411, 429, 447, 450, 554, 555, 558, 560, 566, 569, 573, 585, 599.
  —— appointed lieutenant-governor of Canada, 554.
  —— arrives at Quebec, 233, 404.
  —— assists Burgoyne, 441.
  —— encounter with the Americans under Ethan Allen, 387.
  —— leaves England, 569.
  —— letters from, 309, 320, 429, 446, 571, 572.
  —— letters to, 80, 344, 483, 559.
  —— memorial to, 564.
  —— narrow escape of, 386.
  —— offers troops to general Gage, 256.
  —— persuades the Indians to fight against the Americans, 338.
  —— proposals for citadel at Quebec, 484, 581.
  —— success on Lake Champlain, 427.
  —— to raise Canadians for general Gage, 318.
  —— See also Dorchester, Lord.
  Lady Mary, leaves Quebec, 394.
Carlisle, 94, 225.
Carlisle, Lord, commissioner for peace, 463, 471.
Carolina or the Carolinas, 4, 13, 37, 127, 373, 447.
  a lawless set of men on the frontiers of, 45.
  culture of silk in, 46.
  order in council for bringing a scire facias to resume the charter, 5.
  North, 17, 45, 140, 180, 213, 214, 277, 291, 302, 319, 322, 327, 331, 334, Carolina or the Carolinas—cont.
    353, 354, 365, 399, 410, 418, 425, 450, 458, 460, 464, 469, 470, 472, 478, 488.
  North, audacious proceedings in, 323.
  —— Assembly of, 291.
  —— —— address from, 213.
  —— —— resolution of, 184.
  —— concerning the non-importation association, 76.
  —— Confiscation Act, 458, 464.
  —— convention of delegates, 291.
  —— council of, 323.
  —— Courts of Justice, 213.
  —— expedition against the Regulators, 157.
  —— goods supplied to, 458.
  —— Highlanders in, 322, 323, 334, 397.
  —— loyalty of half the inhabitants of, 413.
  —— navigation of rivers, and settlements thereon, 397.
  —— trade of, 57.
  South, 11, 33, 44, 50, 52, 65, 92, 104, 129, 145, 149, 154, 172, 176, 179, 181, 182, 194, 203, 253, 256, 266, 272, 274, 277, 313, 321, 322, 325, 356, 365, 382, 384, 397, 399, 410, 456, 460, 461, 470, 476, 488.
  —— Agent for—Ch. Garth, iv.
  —— Assembly of, 31, 36, 188, 219, 331, 341, 356.
  —— —— pass Tax Bill, 306.
  —— attempts to instruct and civilize the Indians, 450.
  —— Circuit Court Act, 83, 186.
  —— climate and soil, 44.
  —— closing of courts of justice in, 293.
  —— commercial difficulties in, 272.
  —— concerning the non-importation association, 76.
  —— Council, 83, 155, 162, 179.
  —— —— of Safety, 332.
  —— disposition of the inhabitants of, 364.
  —— distressed situation of Government and affairs in, 155.
  —— disturbances in, 207, 392.
  —— forces raised in, 313.
  —— government of, 148, 162.
  —— inhabitants preparing for war, 301.
  —— justices of, 382.
  —— proceeding concerning Powell the printer, 188.
  —— Provincial Congress, 306, 312, 313, 382.
  —— public treasury of, 119, 188.
  —— repairing of forts in, 43.
  —— silk culture of, 28, 29.
  —— smuggling in, 313, 331.
  —— threatened subversion of Government in, 302, 306.
  —— trade of, 57.
Caroline Park, letters dated from, 200, 202, 271, 349, 360, 363, 380, 403, 449, 463, 520.

Carthagena, Spanish fleet sailed from, 323.
Cartier, —, 552.
Cartwright, lieutenant George :
    applies for a governorship, 580.
    letters from, 576, 578, 579, 580.
    memorandum concerning the fisheries in Labrador, 580.
Cartwright, lieutenant John, 146, 437.
Carver, —, 350.
    Jonathan, 137.
Cary :
    Lucius Ferdinand, 175, 511.
    Richard, 63.
    —— letter to, 391.
Casco Bay, 204, 207.
Cashell, titular archbishop of, 430.
Castle Hill, letter dated from, 364.
Castle Island. See Boston.
Castle William. See Boston.
Castle William and Mary, 278.
Castleton, 441.
Cathalina, La. See St. Catherines Islands.
Catherington, letters dated from, 161, 180.
Catherwood, Mr., 202.
Caton, captain, 347.
Caulfield, Rev. Mr., resignation of, 604.
Cawthorne, Joseph, 128.
Cazeau, Father, jesuit, 563.
Ceronio, Stephen, 350.
Ceuta, 308.
Chabanel, J. H., 285.
    —— Uhthoff & Co., 285.
Chads, captain, 286, 344.
Chaleurs, bay of, 559, 575, 592.
Chalmers, Lionel, 508.
Chamberlain, Theophilus, 16.
Chamberlaine, captain George, appointment of, 530.
Chambers, captain, 194.
    See Sargents, Chambers, & Co.
Chambly, 560.
Chamier, D., 436.
Champion, Dickason, & Co., merchants, 352.
Champlain Lake, 243.
Champlin, captain, 491.
Chandler :
    Dr. Samuel, 38.
    Thomas B., D.D., 219, 284.
    —— letters from, 372, 389.
    —— letter to, 370.
Chandos, Duke of, 330.
Chaplin, Lady Elizabeth, petition from, 176.
Chapman, Mr., 144, 324.
Charibs. See Caribs.
Charles II. :
    charter of, 19.
    commission from, 1.
Charles, Mr., agent for New York, 19.
Charles Harbour, letter dated from, 578.
Charles River, 578.
Charlestown :
    (Massachusetts Bay), 317, 319, 394, 395, 486.
    —— letters dated from, 24, 35, 353.
    —— destruction of, 391.
Charlestown—cont.
    (Massachusetts Bay), Point, battery on, stormed, 319.
    (South Carolina), 14, 43, 45, 176, 271, 272, 347, 381, 409, 423, 425, 456, 477.
    —— arrival of troops at, 425.
    —— cruelties practised in, 356.
    —— disposition of the people, 325.
    —— hurricane at, 381.
    —— letters dated from, 36, 41, 165, 203, 266, 302, 306, 312, 313, 325, 331, 340, 353, 355, 356, 364, 365, 382, 388.
    —— militia of, 355.
    —— preparation to fortify, 341.
    —— produce of, 50.
    —— regiments and frigates to be stationed at, 302.
    —— sending of troops to, 399.
Charlotte county, 105, 205.
    town, 323.
    —— letters dated from, 602, 605.
Chase and Lord's History of Dartmouth College, 12.
Chateau, 577, 578.
Chateauguay, 555.
Chatham, Lord, xiii, 316, 447.
    his Bill rejected, 265.
    his plan of reconciliation, 270.
    indiscreet action of, 275.
Chavy, letter dated from, 40.
Cheap, Thomas, letters to, 358, 379.
Chelmsford, letter dated from, 163.
Chelsea, out-pensioners, 262.
Cheltenham, Gloucester, xiv, 342.
Cherokees, the. See Indians.
Chesapeak, 444, 459, 471.
Chester (England), 347.
    (Pennsylvania), 395, 449.
Chester, governor Peter, 73, 121, 138.
    letters from, 73, 78, 80, 269.
    letters to, 74, 79.
    sends a gift to Lord Dartmouth, 269.
Chesterfield, Earl of, iii.
    abhorrence of the Stamp Act, 36.
    letter from, 36.
Chesterford, 165.
Chestertown (Maryland), 342.
Chetwynd, Hon. Mrs. Deborah, letters from, 130, 135, 217.
Chevalier, John and Peter, 300.
Chillenden, Joseph, deed of sale of land to, 8.
China, 114.
Chipman, John, 589, 598.
Cholmley, Nathaniel, letter to, 149.
Christie, lieutenant-colonel Gabriel :
    desires an appointment, 342, 383.
    his lands in America, 121, 552, 602.
    letters from, 342, 375, 383, 411.
    memorial of, 121.
    petition of, 383.
    reasons for taking immediate possession of New York, 334.
Christy, lieutenant, 94.
Church, [Benjamin], 278.

- Church of England in America, 105, 117, 118, 284.
  - shut up, 422.
  - want of bishops in, 2.
- Church of Scotland, Assembly of, 38.
- Civil List, the, unable to bear numerous American demands, 288–9.
- Clare, lord, 167, 541, 576.
- Claremont, letter dated from, 31.
- Clark :
  - George, lieutenant-governor of New York, 5.
  - Richard, 193, 194.
- Clarke :
  - a Quaker, 604.
  - Mr. 507.
  - Isaac W., 384.
  - Jonathan, 384.
  - Thomas, deputy secretary, 6.
  - W. S., 506.
- Clavering, colonel, 585.
- Clement, George, distress of, 152.
- Cleobury, near Bewdley, letters dated from, 239, 318.
- Clery, D'Hermand, de, 513.
- Clifton, near Bristol, letter dated from, 207.
- Clinton :
  - major-general Sir Henry, 210, 266, 312, 337, 344, 425, 445, 447, 463, 477.
  - —— at Charlestown, 425.
  - —— commissioner for peace, 457.
  - —— detaches colonel Grant to the West Indies, 465, 468.
  - —— lands at Rhode Island, 433.
  - —— letters to, 461, 471.
  - —— reinforcements to, 471.
  - —— returns from South Carolina, 423.
  - —— secret instructions to, 462.
  - De Witt, death of, 490, 491.
- Clossy, Dr., 329.
- Clunie, Alexander, 64, 67.
- Clyde, arrival of ships in the, 450.
- Cobequid, 598.
- Cobham, Mr., recommended for an appointment, 505.
- Cochon, Isle au, 80.
- Cochran :
  - captain and major Gavin, 14, 15.
  - —— applies for lands, 162, 171.
  - —— letters from, 43, 44, 45, 50, 162, 171, 322, 360.
  - captain, officer of Castle William and Mary, 282.
- Cock, Dr. Daniell, grant of land to, 2
- Cockburn, Sir James, 542.
- Cockermouth, 307.
- Cocknawaugho, 309. See also Kocanawago.
- Codrington, Sir W., 540.
- Coffin :
  - captain, 183.
  - Mr., offers to purchase necessaries for the army, 257.
- Coinage for America, plan for a, 204.
- Coit, —, 26.
- Colden :
  - Alexander, 154, 155.
  - —— death of, 261.
  - Cadwallader, surveyor-general and lieutenant-governor of New York, 30, 176, 218, 225, 233, 236.
  - —— complains of his letters being intercepted and used for malicious purposes, 26.
  - —— letters from, 26, 236, 298.
  - David, 228.
  - Mr., 152.
- Colden's Memoir on the completion of the great Erie Canal, 490.
- Coldengham, letter dated from, 330.
- Collets, captain, 331.
- Collier, Sir George :
  - letter from, 286.
  - letter to, 357.
- Collins :
  - captain, 368.
  - lieutenant, 294.
  - Mr., Clerk to the Crown, 83.
- Colman, G., 347.
  - letter from, 338.
- Comit, R., 80.
- Commissioners of Customs in America, 152, 212.
  - —— at Boston, 62, 73, 83, 133, 186, 191, 233, 247, 263.
  - —— in London, 70, 186.
  - —— —— letter to, 198.
  - —— in Scotland, 380.
  - for restoring peace (Lord and general Howe), 417.
  - —— (Lord Carlisle and others), 457, 462, 471.
  - for Trade and Plantations. See Board of Trade.
  - American, in Paris, 468.
- Commons, House of, 35, 50, 53, 135, 137, 201, 241, 246, 261, 263, 264, 267, 277, 286, 287, 296, 309, 399, 431, 433, 445, 452, 461, 487, 566, 567.
  - address to the King, 406.
  - estimates to be laid before the, 190.
  - naval inquiry in, 479.
  - petitions to, 13, 32, 37, 65, 259, 529.
  - resolution of, re taxation, 271, 277, 302, 342.
  - unjust and inhuman Bill passed in, 281.
- Company of military adventurers, 111.
- Concord, 246, 290, 343.
  - military stores to be deposited at, 278.
  - skirmish at, 290, 292, 304.
- Conelly, Dr., 341.
- Congress, 229, 231, 232, 233, 237, 239, 240, 241, 252, 256, 258, 267, 268, 275, 284, 285, 289, 296, 299, 301, 302, 305–8, 310, 312–7, 320, 326, 329, 331–3, 339, 340, 346, 350, 351, 355, 359, 360, 362–4, 370, 373, 375, 377, 379, 384, 388, 395, 401, 402, 411, 422, 427–9, 432, 438, 439, 443, 446, 448, 449, 452, 454, 458–60, 462, 464, 471, 478, 481.
  - address of, to the people of Ireland, 342.

- Congress—cont.
  - agrees to secure all crown officers, 374.
  - articles of confederation, 300.
  - associations adopted by, 243, 291.
  - committees appointed by the, 278.
  - declaration published by, 337, 469.
  - demands made by, concerning Burgoyne's troops, 463.
  - determine that all ports should be closed, 295, 319.
  - discountenanced by New York, 274, 276.
  - dismissal of general Stevens, 449.
  - dissolution of the, 242.
  - forbids exports to England, 334.
  - Franklin in, 303.
  - idea of a, 215.
  - King said to be enraged at, 343.
  - letter from, 231.
  - letters from members of, intercepted, 390.
  - New York delegates in, 316.
  - nomination of delegates, 271, 294.
  - non-importation advised and resolved on, 234, 235, 267, 289.
  - paper dollars issued by, 435.
  - people discontented with, 383.
  - petitions from, vi, 241, 341, 358, 370.
  - preparation for, 225, 226.
  - preparations for offensive and defensive operations, 339.
  - prepares petitions and addresses, 312, 313.
  - proceedings of, disliked, 236.
  - prohibit the exportation of provisions to the British army and fleet, 307.
  - raising of troops by, 312, 454.
  - reported division in, 321.
  - rules for the government of the troops, 322.
  - secret meetings of the, 301.
  - sends presents to the Indians, 374.
  - takes direction of the war, 337.
  - taxes levied by, 480.
  - votes men and money, 305, 317, 332, 427.
  - warning against allowing a first, to be held, 223.
- Conklin, colonel Platt, 251.
- Connecticut, 12, 17, 30, 48, 67, 76, 101, 110, 113, 119, 123, 227, 231, 234, 246, 255, 273, 274, 280, 290, 303, 314, 316, 335, 340, 403, 410, 417, 422, 425, 428, 438, 453, 470.
  - Act for punishing persons inimical to the United Colonies, 403.
  - appointment of a bishop of, 483.
  - Assembly, 314.
  - —— adjournment of the, 284.
  - charter of, 31, 51.
  - controversy with Moheagan Indians, 100.
  - disturbances in, 275, 406.
  - expedition to, 437.
  - forces of, 312, 329.
  - governor and company of, 277, 279.
  - increase of population in, 110.
- Connecticut—cont.
  - militia laws in, 408.
  - people of, seize stores belonging to the King, 317.
  - petition from the inhabitants of, 65.
  - river, 109, 110, 122–4, 136, 370, 492.
  - —— Dutch settlers claim the whole of the, 128.
  - —— granting of land on the west side of, 121, 147.
- Constable, lieutenant, charges against, 596.
- Constitutional Gazette, the. See Newspapers.
- Conway, general Henry Seymour, 26, 33, 56.
  - letters from, 23, 37, 39, 554.
  - letters to, 30, 46, 47.
- Cooper :
  - Grey, secretary of Treasury, 23, 371, 434.
  - —— letters from, 165, 403.
  - Dr. Myles, 218.
  - —— letters to, 329, 330, 371.
  - Rev. Dr. Samuel, 227.
  - —— letter to, 269.
  - William, town clerk, Boston, 72.
  - —— letter from, 110.
- Copenhagen, 297.
- Copley, John Singleton, xv, 489.
  - letter to, 384.
- Coram, John, 365.
- Corbett, —, lieutenant-governor of Jersey, 579.
- Corbin :
  - G., recommended for an appointment, 269.
  - Mr., senior, 330.
- Cork, 358, 541.
  - letters dated from, 289, 351, 395, 433, 446, 459, 461–3, 465, 466, 476.
- Corn, introduction of, from America, 149.
- Cornbury, Edward, viscount, 2.
- Cornell, Mr., 458.
- Cornwall, Mr., 132.
- Cornwallis, lord, 423, 430, 433, 475, 598.
  - arrival of, from the Jerseys, 448.
  - defeat of, 479.
  - departure of, from Charlestown, 477.
  - letter from, 477.
- Cornwood, letter dated from, 433.
- Corsar, Mr., 516.
- Cortlandt. See Van Cortlandt.
- Corunna, flour for, 347.
- Cosslett, Charles Matthew, J.P., 382.
- Cotton :
  - grown in the Bahamas, 504.
  - imported into England, 523.
- Cotton :
  - J. Hynde, 4.
  - deputy-marshal, death of, 336.
  - William, 377.
- Coudre, island of, 420.
- Coughlan, —, Rev., missionary, letter from, 581.
- Coulthurst, Edward, recommended for an appointment, 262.
- Cousaponakees, an Indian princess, memorial of, 10.

Couwenhoven, captain Rem, 195.
Coventry, 204, 490.
Cowes, Isle of Wight, letter dated from, 218.
Cowper, Wm., poet, xiv.
Cowper, Mrs. Maria, 207.
Cox :
  captain Nicholas, 145.
  —— recommended for an appointment, 163.
  Mr., of Trenton, 178, 234, 350.
Coxe :
  Daniel, 128, 266.
  Dr., 128, 129.
  John, 266, 373.
  Rebecca, 266.
  William, 266.
" Crackers," 45.
Cracraft, Richard, 100.
Crafford, Mrs., 517.
Craig, captain, 446.
Cramahé, lieutenant-governor H. T. :
  despatches sent to, 92.
  letters from, 121, 175, 549, 552, 561.
  militia under command of, 386.
Cras. See De Cras.
Crawford, captain, suspected of dangerous designs, 368.
Crawfurd, John, 238.
Crichton, William, 441, 442.
Crisis, the, 439.
Crisp & Co., 54.
Croghan, George, 53.
  memorials from, 74, 75.
  supposed author of anonymous letters, 7.
Croker, Rev. Temple Henry, memorial of, 122.
Cromwell, Oliver, Protector, 388.
Crooke, Mr. : suspended for irregular conduct, 537–8.
  vicar of Huddersfield, 132.
Crooms Hill, letter dated from, 482.
Crossfield, Stephen, 291, 292.
Crowley (Crowle), Thos., 34, 38, 39, 189, 196, 450.
Crown Point, 110, 162, 269, 310–14, 322, 360, 379, 395, 481. application for lands at, 171.
  establishment of a port at, 186.
  evacuation of, 423.
  fear of the French troops coming to, 456.
  regiments at, 212.
  taking of, 311, 314, 384.
Crown Point Bills, 8.
Cruden :
  J., 483.
  James, 480, 481.
  John, 480.
  —— letters from, 447, 448.
  John, junior, letter to his father, 458.
  Rev. William, 413, 458, 460, 469, 480.
Cruger :
  —, 237.
  Henry, 347.
Cruger—cont.
  Henry, letters from, 285, 296.
  —— junior, letters from, 296, 343.
  —— —— letters to, 285, 326.
  John, 281, 347
  —— letters from, 287, 298.
  —— letter to, 343.
  Hon. John Harris, 347.
  —— letters from, 326, 327, 343.
  —— letters to, 343, 370, 390.
Cruger and Mallard, Messrs., 296.
Cuba, Island of, 499.
Cugnet, François Joseph, 551, 569, 576.
Cumberland :
  county (New York), 123.
  —— militia of, 197, 199.
  —— (Nova Scotia), 596, 598.
  —— treasonable consultation of the inhabitants of, 415.
  duke of, 584.
  Richard, 598.
  —— appointment of 412.
  —— letters from, 596, 597.
  —— letter to, 512.
Cunningham :
  —, 355.
  Waddel, 13.
Curtis, lieutenant Roger (afterwards Sir Roger), proposal of, 577.
Curwen, Mr., 391.
Cushing, Thomas vii, 101, 175, 216, 239. complains of the duty on molasses, 24.
  his opinion of the Stamp Act, 24.
  letters from, 24, 35, 45, 63, 168.
  letter to, 158.
Cutts, Samuel, desires compensation for loss of land, 129.

D.

Dacosta, —, 350.
Dalhousie, lord, recommended for Parliament, 202, 203.
Dalling, lieutenant-governor John, 169, 524. desires a baronetcy, 521.
  letters from, 519–21.
  recommended for an appointment, 519.
Dalrymple :
  Campbell, 509.
  Sir John, on Botany, 150.
  William (lieutenant-colonel, brigadier-general, colonel, major-general), 97, 247, 477, 509, 531.
  —— desires employment, 196.
  —— instructions to, 533.
  —— letters from, 192, 196, 209, 213, 267, 278, 304, 392, 525, 533, 534, 535.
  —— letters to, 532, 533.
  —— offers his services as adjutant-general for America, 278.

Dalrymple—cont.
William, promotion of, as major-general, 532.
Dalton:
Mr., declares in Congress against hostilities, 284.
Simon, letter from, 369.
Dampier, Dr., sub-master of Eton, 21, 32.
letter from, 20.
letter to, 21.
Danforth:
Thomas, 227.
—— acknowledges kindness received, 176.
—— letters from, 176, 184, 468.
—— junior, memorial from, 156.
Daniel, captain Don Lorenzo, 530.
Danson, Mr., 4.
Dart, Benjamin, 207.
Dartmouth, near Rhode Island, 218, 357.
Dartmouth:
(1st earl), ii, iii, 4.
—— letter from, 3.
(2nd earl), admiration of Americans for, 42.
—— anonymous letters addressed to. See "Anonymous Letters."
—— appointment of, as Secretary of State, 87, 88.
—— —— New England provinces rejoice at, 107.
—— asked to accept seals of old secretary of state, 399.
—— biographical sketch of, ii–viii, x–xv.
—— cannot give Mr. Kemble any encouragement, 96.
—— concerned at unhappy spirit prevailing in Massachusetts Bay, 158.
—— concerning the Boston riots, 197.
—— —— the Quebec Bill, 566.
—— congratulations to, 24, 26, 27, 88, 92, 96, 101, 107, 115, 118, 401, 426, 431, 497, 556.
—— conversation with Mr. Hutchinson, 216.
—— declines the post of President of the Council, 474.
—— deeds belonging to, 222.
—— despatches of, intercepted and opened, 328.
—— draws up, with Lord North, plan of pacification, 389.
—— first commissioner of the Council of Commerce, 16, 18.
—— freedom of Liverpool granted to, 541.
—— his connection with Dartmouth College. See that item.
—— is offered Hillsborough's post, 86.
—— lands belonging to, in East Florida, 103, 215, 241, 282–3.
—— —— proposal to settle these lands, 139, 140, 142–4, 149, 151, 159–62, 167–8, 170–1, 180–1.
Dartmouth—cont.
(2nd earl), lands, offered to, in St. John's Island, 602.
—— —— recommended to obtain, in Nova Scotia, for his sons, 594.
—— letters from, passim.
—— letters from, to be laid before Parliament, 264.
—— letters to, passim.
—— levee held by, 241.
—— memoranda by, 251, 406.
—— memorandum books of, 26, 52.
—— minutes in his hand, 13, 14, 16, 23, 27, 30, 33, 34–7, 39, 44, 47, 50, 52, 144, 195, 198–200, 202, 208, 247, 283, 316, 318.
—— oath of secretary of state taken by, 88.
—— omits to kiss the Queen's hand on his appointment, 95.
—— policy of, concerning the American colonies, questioned, 147, 261.
—— portrait of, xv, 489–93.
—— presents for, 42, 45, 56, 158, 527.
—— relationship of George Washington with, 488.
—— resignation of (as President of Board of Trade), 48.
—— —— as Secretary of State, 400.
—— secret letter of, published in newspapers, 141.
—— speech in the House of Lords, 51.
—— takes a step contrary to Lord Rockingham's opinion, 77.
—— vote of thanks to, from Massachusetts Bay, 45.
—— warning to, 403.
—— will have Privy Seal, 400.
Lady, xiv, 77, 217, 527, 584, 586.
(3rd earl), letter to, 489.
(4th earl), his gift of the 2nd earl's portrait and some books to Dartmouth College, 489–94.
Dartmouth College, xiv, xv, 12, 416, 480, 489–93.
Bishop of London refuses to be a trustee of, 79–80.
petitions concerning, 115–8.
scholars of, address from, 118.
See also Dr. Wheelock's Indian Charity School.
Davies, Rev. Edward, 54.
Davis:
Benjamin, 193.
Strachan, & Co., Messrs., letter to, 351.
Davison, Thomas, 385, 400, 414.
Dawson, lieutenant H., 311.
Day, Thomas, 473, 594.
letter from, 585.
Dearham, letter dated from, 584.
Debbieg, captain, 68.
De Berdt:
Dennys, agent for Massachusetts Bay, iv, 17, 35, 38, 48, 136.

De Berdt—cont.
  Dennys, elected to present petitions to Parliament, 24.
  —— grant of money voted to, 88, 89.
  —— letters from, 16, 19, 25, 29, 34, 48, 58.
  —— letters to, 24, 47, 63.
  —— seeks to show the injustice of taxation, 19.
  Dennis de (son, also agent), 411.
  —— letters from, 89, 293, 405, 420.
  —— memorial from, 415.
  —— on American lands, 166.
  —— on the cod fishery, 185.
De Brahm:
  William Gerard, viii, 37, 83, 382.
  —— accusation against, 477.
  —— advice to the Cape Florida Society, 149, 159, 171.
  —— applies for assistance, 112, 197, 456.
  —— appointment in South Carolina, 162.
  —— astronomical observations of. 210, 443, 456.
  —— complains of the expense he has been put to, and money he has lost, 142.
  —— complains of the injustice of governor Grant, 133, 142, 170.
  —— deprived of his ship, 456.
  —— desires an increase of salary, 231.
  —— desires restoration of his office, 102.
  —— detained as a prisoner, 456.
  —— discoveries of, 381.
  —— emoluments due to, 139.
  —— essay upon the Apocalipsin, 183.
  —— establishes a colony in Bethany, 120.
  —— grievances of, 133, 142, 162, 170.
  —— his map, 87, 120.
  —— King's commission to, 477.
  —— letters from, 68, 87, 102, 120, 139, 140, 142, 144, 149, 172, 174, 178, 179, 182, 185, 189, 201, 216, 220, 223, 228, 229, 235, 273, 287, 381, 477, 479.
  —— letters to, 79, 103, 139, 142, 165, 167, 181.
  —— memorials from, 120, 132, 133, 241.
  —— ordered to England, 79, 102.
  —— philosophical researches of, 68.
  —— promises to do his utmost to assist the settlers for Cape Florida, 151.
  —— salary of, 166, 228, 240.
  —— suggestions as to the cultivation of lands in West Florida, 102.
  —— suggests the erection of forts, 189.
  Mrs, 228.
Dechambault, 560.
Deer Island, 265.
Deer Island—cont.
  memorials from the settlers on, 99, 185.
De Grey, solicitor-general, afterwards lord chief justice, 22, 526.
  letters from, 519.
  opinion on the status of Roman Catholics, 548.
Delaire, James, 133.
Delancy:
  James, 488.
  —— letter from, 287.
  captain Oliver, letter to, 254.
  hon. Oliver, letter from, 254.
  —— letter to, 370.
  —— motion in New York Assembly, 264.
  Mr., recommended for an appointment, 166.
De La Place, captain, 313, 379.
Delaware, 65, 325, 341, 446, 449, 450, 452, 459, 467.
  River, 128, 315, 446, 450, 484.
Denson, Henry Denny, letter to, 598.
Denyse:
  Isaac, 195.
  Jacques, 195.
De Peny, Isaac, 189.
Deptford, 367, 430.
Derby, captain, 304, 579.
Derbyshire, 580.
Derry:
  bishop of, letters from, 303, 319.
  —— son of, 269.
Des Baratz, Le Chevalier, 513.
Desbrisay, lieutenant-colonel Thomas, 171. illness of, 603.
  letters from, 601–5.
  letter to, 605.
  seeks an appointment for his son, 604.
Dessoulavy, Henry, 168.
Detroit, 41, 47, 53, 119, 152, 276, 426, 571.
  fort and garrison at, 98.
  inhabitants of, 119.
  necessity for a governor, 95.
  objections against a settlement at, 53.
  petition from inhabitants of, 80.
  produce of, 41.
Devereux, captain, suspected of dangerous designs, 368.
Devizes, letters dated from, 155, 179, 219.
Devonshire, 474.
Dickason. See Champion, Dickason, & Co.
Dickenson. See Dickinson.
Dickeson:
  David, 601.
  John, 601.
Dickinson, John, 65, 235.
  letter to, 391.
Dieppe, 562.
Digby, admiral, letters from, 481, 482.
Dinwiddie, Mr., 509.
Disney, Daniel, arrest of, 548.
Dissenters, 476.
  Bill, the, 127.

- Ditmas, lieutenant Johannes, 192.
- Dominica, 145, 180, 470, 488, 495, 500, 506.
  - British-American trade with, 509.
  - correspondence and papers relating to, 509–12.
  - free port at, 247, 509.
  - letter from, 329.
  - petition from merchants, &c., interested in, 509.
- Donaldson, William, 29.
  - letter from, 373.
- Donne, Letters of Geo. III. to Lord North, x.
- Donnington Park, letter dated from, 33.
- Donough, Mr., 135.
- Dorchester, Lord, 488. See also Carleton, Sir Guy.
- Dorchester Neck, 315.
- Dorrett, Alexander, 368, 369.
- Dorset, duke of, 237.
- Douglas :
  - colonel, applies for an appointment, 495.
  - Francis, memorial from, 526.
  - lieutenant-colonel James, desires an appointment, 528.
- Douglass, Asa, deed of sale of land to, 8.
- Dover, letters dated from, 237, 268, 353.
- Dowdeswell, William, Chancellor of the Exchequer, letter to, 23.
- Downing, Mr., 474.
- D'Oyly, Christopher, 434.
- Draper :
  - Richard, printer, 12.
  - Samuel, printer, 12.
  - Sir William, 166.
- Drayton, William Henry, 188.
- Dresden, letter dated from, 92.
- Drinker, John, letter from, 288.
- Dromore, Ireland, letter dated from, 18.
- Drummond. See Nesbitt, Drummond, and Franks.
  - A., 69.
  - captain, 433.
  - Lord, 312, 406.
  - Messrs., bankers, 214, 338.
- Dry, Mr., collector of customs, 322.
- Duane, James, 237, 401.
- Dublin, 587.
  - letters dated from, 542, 601–3, 605.
  - Castle, letters dated from, 511, 571.
  - Stephens Green, letter dated from, 430.
- Duché, Rev. —, once chaplain to Congress, 449.
  - departure of, for England, 452.
- Duchrie, 123.
- Duddingstone, captain, 421.
- Dudingston, lieutenant [William], commander of the "Gaspée," 86.
- Dudley, 259.
- Dudley :
  - Charles, letter from, 141.
  - Elizabeth, 189.
- Duff :
  - admiral, 464.
  - Archibald, 175.
- Duhamet, Benjamin, curé of St. George, 514.
- Duke, Mr., 121.
- Dulwich, letter dated from, 500.
- Dumas, Jean, 555, 564.
- Dunbar :
  - colonel David, 10, 101.
  - major, 303.
- Duncan, —, 587.
  - Alexander, 292.
  - James, 103.
- Dundas, Sir Lawrence, 512.
- Dunkirk, 122, 467.
- Dunlap. See McFarran and Dunlap.
  - John, printer, 460.
- Dunmore :
  - Earl of, governor of Virginia, 165, 167, 224, 306, 324, 334, 341, 349, 401, 478.
    - —— arrival of, at New York, 423.
    - —— his rangers fight the Indians, 245.
    - —— letters from, 113, 121, 152, 161, 205, 207, 243, 286, 294, 301, 305, 318, 330, 346.
    - —— letter to, 135.
    - —— reported seizure of, by the people, 303.
    - —— seeks re-election as a peer, 205.
    - —— takes refuge on a man-of-war, 317, 320.
  - Countess of, letter from, 165.
- Dunn, Thomas, letter from, 500.
- Dunning, John, letter from, 541.
- Du Pont, Mr., 418.
- Duport, chief justice, 589, 602.
- Durand, J., 446.
- Durnford :
  - Elias, colonel and lieutenant-governor of West Florida, 78–80, 248.
    - —— complains of the difficulty of obtaining fees, 210.
    - —— letters from, 79, 190, 210, 248.
    - —— lieutenant of engineers, 435.
- Dutch, the :
  - first settlers, claim Connecticut River, 128.
  - smuggling of tea to America by, 202, 247, 409; and of ammunition, 341.
- Dutch Church at New York, 82, 160.
  - convoy, capture of, 475.
  - illicit trade with the northern colonies, 40.
  - trade on coast of Africa, 542.
  - troops, 405.
- Dutchess county, New York, 206.
- Duval, Peter, desires an appointment, 165, 225.
- Dwarris and McLean, Messrs., 518.
- Dwight, Joseph, J.P., 7, 9.
- Dyar [Dyer], Eliphalet, 65.
- Dyer :
  - —, 220.
  - lieutenant-colonel, 420, 424, 426, 463.
  - Samuel, entices soldiers to desert, 231.
- Dyson, Thomas, 396.

E.

- Earsham, letter dated from, 224.
- East Florida. See Florida, East.
- East Greenwich (Rhode Island), 8.
- East India Company, 22, 93, 114, 194, 221, 253, 351, 376, 468, 589.
  - article against, 176.
  - concerning compensation to the, for teas destroyed, &c., 246, 252, 266.
  - ill-feeling towards the Commissioners appointed by, 182, 184.
  - licenses of the, 184.
  - monopoly of the, 183.
  - tea sent by, to America, objected to, 182–4, 197.
- East Indies, 409.
  - sugar estates in, 544.
  - translation of plants from the, 540.
- East River, 427.
- Eaton, William, 185, 186.
- Eden :
  - governor Robert, letters from, 222, 387, 388.
  - —— proposed return to Maryland, 222.
  - —— threatened with tar and feathers, 235.
  - William, commissioner for peace, 95, 463, 471.
  - —— letter from, 229.
- Edgecumbe :
  - Lord, letters from, 97, 145.
  - Lady, letter from, 88.
- Edinburgh, 381.
  - letters dated from, 162, 392, 519.
  - Episcopal church of, 200, 363.
- Edwards :
  - Bryan, 522, 523.
  - Isaac, 207.
  - Mr., 381.
  - John, agent of De Brahm, 456.
- Effingham, Lord, 443.
- Eglinton, Lord, memorial of, 126.
- Egmont, Lord, 601.
- Egremont, Lord, 25.
  - letter from, 11.
- Elizabeth, Queen, 548.
- Elizabeth River, 346.
- Elizabeth Town, 411.
- Elk River in Maryland, letter dated from, 442.
- Elliot, —, 262.
  - [Andrew, New York], 329.
  - Sir Gilbert, 225.
- Elliott, Grey, letter from, 36.
- Ellis,
  - —, 594, 597.
  - Henry, governor of Georgia, 9, 11, 83; afterwards of Nova Scotia, 592.
- Ellis—cont.
  - John, 90, 206
  - Welbore, 95, 483.
- Elmsall :
  - captain, influence of, 477.
  - Edward, letter from, 127.
- Elphinstone, George, letter to, 297.
- Ely, bishop of, 145.
- Enfield, 48.
- England :
  - address to the people of, 312.
  - America entirely out of her hands, 370.
  - commercial relations with, 89, 346. See also Trade.
  - debts owing to, by America, 29, 244, 259, 261.
  - discontent of the merchants of, 280.
  - forces remaining in, 263.
  - has not a single friendly power or ally to boast of, 107.
  - importation of grain and flour from America, a benefit to, 389.
  - importations from Jamaica, 523.
  - preparations for war, 390.
  - the first victim of her colonies, 545.
  - See also Great Britain.
- English Ministry, change of, 481.
  - deceived by their officers, &c., in America, 361.
  - does not doubt of the reduction of the colonies, 389.
  - not disposed to oppress, 390.
- Erie Canal, 490.
- Ernst :
  - John Augustus, 201.
  - Mr., 50, 224.
- Errecarte del Rio & Co., letter to, 347.
- Erskine :
  - Rev. John, 392, 393.
  - Sir William, 438.
- Ervin, Mr., 419, 426.
- Erving, Mr., 151, 226, 227.
- Esquimaux, the, 578.
  - Moravian missions among the, 574–7.
  - savage nature of the, 577.
  - thefts and murder committed by the, 580.
- Estaing, Comte D', 323, 468, 470, 474.
  - action with Byron, 474.
  - arrives off Rhode Island, 469.
  - French governor of St. Domingo, 498.
  - his expedition to America, 464.
- Estem, captain, 56.
- Eston, colonel, 314.
- Estwick, Samuel, assistant agent for Barbadoes, 506.
- Eton, letter dated from, 20.
- Europe, 362, 434.
  - American trade with, 213.
  - spirit prevailing in, of emigration to America, 181.
  - poem, extract from, 489.
- Evans :
  - John, 338, 347.
  - Simon, arrest of, 548.
- Ewer, Mrs. Sarah, letter from, 518.

Ewing, Rev. Dr. John :
  letters from, 324, 365.
  petition of, 325.
Exeter, 473.

F.

"Fact," letter signed, 164, 171.
Fairferest, 355.
Fairholme, Thomas, 539.
Fairland, Mr., 229.
Falmouth, 263, 274, 347, 369, 473, 522.
  (Antigua), 497.
  (Casco Bay), 430.
  (Nova Scotia), 598.
Fane, Francis, 5.
Faneuil Hall, Boston, 72.
Fanning, Edmund, 236, 261, 483.
  letters from, 225, 226.
Farley Hill, letter dated from, 505.
Farmer, captain John, 402.
Farmer's letters, 235.
Farmers General, the, 434.
Farndborgh, captain, 247.
Fauquier, lieutenant-governor, letters from, 23, 26, 30, 31.
Fellows, —, American general, 440.
Feltham, lieutenant Jocelyn, 314.
  letters from, 313, 316.
Fennel, John, recommended for an appointment, 188.
Fenton :
  James, 586, 592.
  captain John, 132.
  —— letters from, 278, 282, 414, 589.
  —— son of, not fit for public service, 132.
Fenwick colony, 160.
Ferguson :
  Dr. Adam, 200.
  James, 223.
  —— memorial of, 211.
Ferrel, captain, 598.
Fetherstonhaugh, Sir Matthew, 89.
Fewtrell, John, J.P., 382.
Fielding, captain, 475.
Fife, letter dated from, 92.
Finlay, Hugh :
  surveyor of posts in North America, 140.
  craves protection for himself and family, 401.
Finly, president of Jersey College, 48.
Finnie, Mr., 307.
Fish, Jesse, 65.
Fisher :
  Edward, 324.
  John, collector of customs, 324.
  Kendrick, 65.
  Thomas, 307.
Fishery. See Newfoundland Fishery.
Fitch :
  colonel, 419, 420.
  governor, 14.
Fitzherbert, William, 507.
  letter from, 511.
Fitzmaurice :
  Aboan, claim of, 537.
  Lord Edmond, Life of Lord Shelburne, ix.
  Ulysses, property of, 537.
Fitzroy, general, 102.
Flanders, 383.
Flatbush, 192.
Flatlands, township of, 195.
Fleming, lieutenant, rebellious proceedings of, 339.
Fletchal (Fletchall), colonel Thomas, 341, 354, 355.
Fletcher :
  Benjamin, governor of New York, letter to, 2.
  Ebenezer, 9.
  Mr., 244.
Fleury, Joseph, 562.
Florida Blanca, Count de, 469.
Florida, East, 11, 36, 40, 68, 73, 78, 119, 125, 133, 134, 139–43, 146, 162, 164, 167, 168, 172, 177, 201, 220, 238, 241, 283, 287, 335, 354, 393, 409, 477, 479, 483–5, 573, 602, 603.
  Court of Admiralty, 175.
  exports of, 81.
  History of, by De Brahm, 120. lands in, belonging to Lord Dartmouth, 103, 139, 140, 142, 143, 144, 149, 151, 159, 160, 161, 162, 167, 168, 170, 171, 180, 181.
  —— claimed, 186.
  —— granted, 78.
  —— petitioned for, 19, 82.
  —— purchase of, 248.
  memorial from the inhabitants of, 122.
  office of provost marshal of, 182.
  offices and officers in, 488.
  soil of, 215.
  Spaniards in, 65, 120.
  trade of, 57.
  want of laws in, 78.
  wretched condition of, 78.
Florida, West, 11, 13, 36, 58, 78, 90, 125, 138, 180, 190, 210, 215, 225, 248, 274, 306, 369, 402, 409, 502.
  high prices of provisions in, 190.
  offices and officers in, 488.
  petition for land in, 18.
  tobacco grown in, 269.
  trade of, 52, 57, 471.
Flory, John :
  inventor of cannon balls and muskets, 239, 318.
  letter from, 244.
Flucker, Thomas, 168, 239.
Flushing, Long Island, letter dated from, 428, 436.
Fogo Island, 578.
Forbes, captain, 66.
  letter from, 62.

Forbes' Life of Beattie, xvi.
Force's American Archives, 336, 403.
Ford, Richard, & Co., 369.
Foreign troops to be employed against America, 391. See also German troops.
Forsey, Thomas, 13.
Fort Ann, 441.
Fort Augusta, distress in, 100.
Fort Bute, 80.
Fort Charlotte, 43, 106, 355.
  seizure of stores at, 355.
Fort Chartres, 47, 55, 57, 66, 81.
  letters dated from, 61, 62.
Fort Clinton, storming of, 448.
Fort Detroit, 279.
Fort Edward, 440.
  Americans abandon, 442.
Fort Gage, 303.
Fort George (end of Lake George) taking of, 314.
  —— New York, q.v.
  —— (Scotland), 271.
Fort Island, 452.
Fort Johnston or Johnson, 322, 323, 327, 331.
  —— ill-treatment of the gunner of, 354.
  —— taking of, 381.
Fort Masiach, 55.
Fort Montgomery, storming of, 448.
Fort Natchez, 74.
Fort Pitt, 46, 55, 57, 74, 94, 454.
  securing of, 61.
Fort Prince George in Cherokee country, 14, 15, 43.
  repairing of, 44.
Fort St. Vincennes, 426, 571.
Fort Stanwix, 320.
  Indian congress at, 75.
Fort Ticonderoga, taking of, 303, 315, 316. See also Ticonderoga.
Fort Washington, taking of, 430.
Fort William, 260, 348.
Fort William and Mary, 337.
Forteu, captain, 269.
Foster, Ingham, letters to, 300–1, 311, 339–40.
  Is., 350.
Fothergill, Dr., John, iv, vii, 236, 270, 294.
  letters from, 17, 18, 41, 42, 266, 406, 407, 430.
  letter to, 508.
Fountaine, Rev. J., letter from, 515.
Fowler, David, 16.
Fox :
  George Casker, 347.
  H., secretary of state, 455.
  —— letter from, 7.
Fox Island, 99, 108, 265.
Foy, captain, 152, 165–7, 173, 305, 333, 374, 396.
  letter from, 207.
France, 16, 104, 156, 182, 273, 289, 338, 349, 367, 383, 405, 457, 461, 470. amount spent for Canada, 550. assistance given to the Americans by, 383.
France—cont.
  Court of, 323, 401, 430, 531.
  declaration of her treaty with America, 461.
  declaration of war by, 461, 467.
  fleet of, attacks Dominica, 470.
  Franklin goes to, 430.
  free trade with, 418.
  Jesuits expelled from, 549.
  King of, 443, 513, 559.
  —— fishing ports in Labrador granted by, 52.
  loss of possessions to, 247.
  sends regiments to the West Indies, 323.
  supplies goods to America, 402.
France and England, fleets of, engagement in the West Indies, 543.
  Spanish mediation between, 469.
France and Spain, combined fleets of, threaten landing in South of England, 474. fleets of, at St. Domingo, 477.
  plan contemplated by, detrimental to British trade, 383.
Francklin, lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, 233, 598. charge against, 591.
  letter from, 595.
  recommended for an appointment, 146.
Franklin :
  Benjamin, sale of land to, 8.
  —— junior, sale of land to, 8.
  Dr. Benjamin, v, vi, 21, 158, 169, 172, 175, 239, 266, 270, 280, 288, 316, 347, 391, 401, 437, 439, 482.
  —— accepts the post of Postmaster-General in America, 340.
  —— agent for Pennsylvania, iv.
  —— appointed to conciliate the Indians, 339.
  —— —— to prevail on them to stand neutral, 364.
  —— attends Dartmouth's first levee, vi.
  —— goes to France, 430.
  —— his hints for conversation on . . . terms . . . of Union, 236, 264.
  —— his proceedings in Congress, 303.
  —— in the affair of the Hutchinson letters, vii, 170, 216, 222.
  —— issues commissions to privateers, 473.
  —— letters from, 167, 307.
  —— letters to, 310, 346, 374, 390.
  —— portrait of, 491.
  —— presents remonstrance and petition of Massachusetts Bay, vi, 152.
  —— signs petition, 206.
  —— suggests Dartmouth as Secretary of State, v.
  —— thought capable of any mischief, 239.
  MSS. of, in State Department, Washington, vi.
  Walter, 255.

Franklin—cont.
  Walter, letter to, 369.
  governor William, 144, 233, 420.
  —— letters from, 30, 31, 217, 275, 411.
  —— remarks concerning the custody of lunatics, 111.
Franks. See Nesbitt, Drummond, and Franks.
  Jacob, letter from, 373.
  Moses, 346, 390.
  —— letter from, 370.
Fraser. See Lane, Son, and Fraser.
  Alexander, midshipman, letter from, 321.
  Simon, brigadier-general, 441, 444.
Frazer:
  captain Andrew (commissary at Dunkirk), 122.
  John, 548.
Frederica, Island of, 44, 50.
Frederick, Sir Charles, surveyor-general of the ordnance, letters from, 559, 582.
Frederick county, Maryland, letter dated from, 230.
Frederick William, prince, death of, 51.
Freidenberg or Friedenberg, Charles de, 135. lands to be laid out for, 155.
  mandamus granted to, 154.
  memorials from, for grant of land, 130.
French, James Bogle:
  letter from, 511.
  letter to, 373.
French ambassador. See Guines, Comte de, and Noailles, Marquis de.
French, the, ammunition and stores sent to America by, 341.
  in America, 17, 52, 53, 54, 55, 66, 74, 106, 121, 129, 183, 324, 366.
  —— influence of, with the Indians, 57.
  —— intrigues of, 53.
  —— molested by the Indians, 58.
  share in the fishery, arguments against, 581.
  smuggling of tea into America by, 247, 409.
  threatened landing of, in south of England, 474.
French officers, give American intelligence, 349.
  (2) information obtained from, 366.
  join the Americans, 401.
French Protestants, willing to cultivate lands in East Florida, 102.
French subjects in Quebec and Canada, 552, 553.
Frisby, Daniel, 530.
Fry:
  John, 294.
  William Storrs, 294.
Fuller:
  Abraham, J.P., letter from, 110.
  Rose, member for Rye, 562.
  Rose and Stephen, Messrs., 519.
  Stephen, 30, 524, 526.
  —— letters from, 267, 523–5.
Fullerton, William, deposition of, 101.
Fundy, bay of, smuggling at, 587.
Furneaux, Dr., 127.

G.

G. J., letter signed, 350.
Gadsden, Christopher, letter from, 36.
Gage, general, x, 61, 76, 84, 90, 95, 97, 169, 208, 209, 212, 220, 225, 228–30, 233, 245, 246, 254, 255, 257, 262, 266, 267, 294, 297, 301, 302, 304, 306, 312, 318, 323, 330–3, 337, 339, 340, 342, 346, 349, 350, 353, 372, 374, 375, 376, 384, 388, 390, 392, 394, 396, 407, 409, 483.
  army of, 251, 258, 289, 316, 339, 346.
  —— shut up in Boston, 308, 311, 352. arrival of, in England, 413. commission to, as commander-in-chief in North America, 134.
  —— proposed to be revoked, 408.
  correspondence of, with secretary of state, 410.
  desires assistance from Canada, 309.
  despatches of, 251.
  differences between, and the Admiral, 350.
  difficulty of communication with, 327.
  dispatches men to Concord, 290.
  his request for orders to withdraw men from the Illinois, 121.
  hostile preparations of, 273.
  hostilities commenced by, 301, 307.
  inactivity and moderation of, 240, 303.
  inclined to evacuate Boston, 378.
  instructed to abandon Fort Chartres, 81.
  letters from, 17, 30, 47, 53, 55, 58, 61, 62, 66, 86, 92, 231, 239, 257, 260, 278, 282, 319, 320, 336, 337, 357, 548.
  letters to, 61–3, 81, 88, 96, 98, 104, 111, 231, 344, 345, 365, 519.
  powers proposed to be granted to, 408.
  proclamation issued by, 321.
  reinforcements for, 264, 273. reported resignation of, 340.
  strange conduct of, 240.
Gage, Mrs., 357.
Gagetown, 585.
Galloway, Earl of, 288.
  —— letter from, 287.
  Joseph, xvi, 435, 438, 449.
  —— appointment of, as superintendent in Pennsylvania, 452.
  —— estimate of houses in Philadelphia, 445, 455.

Galloway—cont.
  Joseph, letters from, 242, 275, 435, 437, 448, 449, 452, 454, 459, 462, 466, 467.
  —— papers concerning Pennsylvania supplied by, 454–5.
  —— receives a halter and a threatening letter, 275.
  Stephen Payne, 296.
Galphin, George, 106.
Galvez, Bernardo de, 472.
Gambier:
  Mr. (commodore James), 180.
  lieutenant-Governor John, 498.
  —— letter from, 501.
Gamble, Mr., 7.
Gamon, Mr., collector of Basseterre, 528.
Garbett, Samuel, chief magistrate of Birmingham, letters from, 28, 32.
Garbrand, Caleb J., letter from, 146.
Gardiner, James, letter and memorial of, 442.
Gardner, Joseph, J.P., 192.
Garlies, lord, letter from, 70.
Garth, Charles, iv.
  letters from, 155, 179, 210, 219.
  letters to, 31, 129.
  memorials from, 13, 33.
Garton, Jonathan, letters from, 338, 347.
"Gaspee" (lieutenant William Dudingston, commander):
  seizure and burning of the, 85–7, 89–91, 93, 95, 137, 141, 156, 175.
  —— letters concerning the, to be recalled, 88.
  —— commission of inquiry to discover perpetrators, vi, 88, 90, 127, 144.
  —— papers concerning, to be laid before the King, 88.
  —— the King's instructions for inquiry, 94.
"Gaspee" (lieutenant William Hunter, commander):
  Allen and other prisoners on, 387.
  recapture of the, 420.
Gates, general, 444, 448, 449, 457. accusation against, 470.
  repulse of Rawdon by, 477.
Gay, John, 511.
Gayton, admiral, 504, 524.
Geary (qy. Elbridge Gerry), 278.
Geneva, 201.
George I., 413.
  picture of, destroyed, 215.
George II., 101, 553.
  picture of, destroyed, 215.
George III., ix, x, xi, xiv, xvii, xix, 11, 16, 19, 23, 47, 57, 59, 63, 67, 68, 86, 87, 88, 90, 101, 112, 125, 135, 140, 153, 158, 159, 168, 192, 195, 199, 201, 213, 250, 271, 283, 285, 292, 299, 305, 310, 313, 344, 345, 365, 372, 377, 387, 390, 400, 412, 424, 439, 455, 460, 461, 476, 518, 521, 525, 527, 531, 533.
  addresses to, 27, 64, 188, 268, 275, 346, 380, 381, 387, 388, 393, 406, 473, 504.

George III.—cont.
  charts of West Indies submitted to, 542.
  commissions and instructions from, 92, 94, 134, 344.
  conversation with Mr. Hutchinson, 216.
  determined to assert his right, 391.
  displeased at the tenor of governor Wanton's letters, 86.
  disregarded by the Congress, 240.
  has negative over Pennsylvania laws, 104.
  indignation of, at proceedings of the French, 461.
  letters from, 87, 381.
  letters to, 128, 160, 220, 253, 293, 381.
  Letters to Lord North (Donne), x. memorandum from, 283.
  memorials and petitions to, 13, 18, 65, 74, 82, 84, 99, 100, 103, 108, 120, 121, 122, 133, 161, 174, 185, 186, 191, 205, 241, 248, 249, 258, 263, 264, 274, 281, 287, 294, 305, 308, 309, 312, 313, 324, 325, 331, 339, 341, 358, 374, 383, 392, 439, 486, 505, 507, 516, 517, 539.
  oaths of allegiance to, 345.
  orders attack on French West Indies, 461.
  proclamation declaring the rebellion, 348, 349, 352, 353, 359, 365, 373, 380. representations of the Board of Trade to, 74, 105, 150, 151. speeches of, 27, 32, 51, 69, 190, 260, 474.
George III. and royal family, prohibition of prayer for in America, 422.
Georges, William Payne, letters from, 529, 540.
Georgetown, 603.
Georgia, 11, 23, 36, 37, 44, 76, 88, 109, 149, 210, 272, 277, 338, 341, 353, 354, 364, 372, 373, 410, 417, 460.
  charter of, 51.
  civil establishment of the colony of, 79.
  civil officers' fees, 125.
  council of safety, 338, 339.
  culture of silk in, 28, 29, 35, 45, 46.
  debts in, 105.
  exports of, 109.
  flourishing state of, 83.
  fruits in, 50.
  German settlers in, 120.
  joins the general association, 332, 333.
  lands in, claimed by Thomas Bosomworth, 9. lawless set of men on the frontiers of, 45.
  naval office of, 203, 210.
  on securing, from the depredations of the Indians, 108, 109.
  orphan house in, 166.
  produce of sago, &c., 36–7.

Georgia—cont.
    repairing of forts in, 43.
    sends delegates to the Congress, 377.
    Spanish vessels go into ports of, 15.
    trade of, 57, 106.
Germain, Lord George, x, xvi, 398, 400, 402, 414, 417, 424, 432, 442, 464, 468, 478, 480, 526, 537, 539, 583, 595, 597, 598.
    letters from, 410, 412, 461, 467, 468, 471, 526, 543.
    letters to, 446, 453, 465.
German settlers in America, 335, 350, 428.
German troops, 262, 432, 450, 478, 599.
Germantown, 463.
    engagement at, 448.
Germany, 361.
    officers from, join the Americans, 401. plan for procuring Protestants from, 93.
Gibbons :
    Treasury messenger, 418.
    captain R., 591, 596.
    —— letters from, 589, 590.
Giberne, Rev. J. William, letters from, 27, 42, 232.
Gibraltar, 318, 479.
Gibson, John, letter from, 331.
Gibson and Ashton, 312.
Gifford, James, recommended for an appointment, 333.
Gilbert, Nathaniel, speaker of the Assembly of Antigua, 496.
Gildart, Francis, town clerk, Liverpool, 380.
    letter from, 541.
    letter to, 381.
Gillespie, Mrs., 460.
Gillon, Alexander, letter from, 373.
Givran, Chevalier de St. Maurice, 536.
Glamorganshire, 421.
Glasgow, 372, 380.
    seamen's riots in, 520.
    Tolbrook, letter dated from, 167.
Gloucester, dean of, 475.
Gloucester co., New York, 160.
    militia of, 205.
Glover, R., 441, 442.
Goldthwait, Joseph, letters from, 303, 314.
Goodricke, Rev. Mr., letter to, 311.
Goodwood, letters dated from, 428, 475.
Gordon :
    —, 220.
    lieutenant, 94.
    A., letter from, 238.
    lord Adam, 19, 40, 50.
    —— letter to, 307.
    —— regiment of, 527.
    Alexander, letter to, 299.
    Arthur, 175.
    —— letter from, 78.
    captain Harry, journal of, 55.
    captain John, 245.
    —— letters from, 248, 262.
    —— memorials from, 65, 122, 186, 248.
Gordon—cont.
    Robert, letters from, 351, 395, 433, 446, 459, 461, 462, 463, 465.
    —— letters to, 441, 446, 456, 462, 466.
    Thomas Knox, J.P., 365, 382.
    —— letter from, 203.
    Rev. William, details of a conversation with Cushing, 101--2.
    —— letters from, 101, 156, 169, 173, 183.
    Rev. William, rector of Mobile, petitions from, 225, 238.
    William (Quebec), letters from, 419, 440, 572.
Gorham, lieutenant-colonel Joseph, 280, 431, 528. brother of, 249.
    corps of, 336.
    debts of, 591.
    letters from, 299, 586, 594.
    memorial of, 249, 583.
    recommended for an appointment, 584, 585.
Gosfield, letter dated from, 167.
Goulbourn, M., letter from, 526.
Gould, —, 498.
    Arthur, letter from, 595.
    Mrs., letter from, 586.
Governors' Island :
    possession taken of, 425.
    stores and batteries to be kept on, 254.
Governors of the American provinces, 34, 90, 145, 153, 186, 244, 287, 393, 485, 488, 535. correspondence of, 254, 410.
    letters to, 9, 277.
    should prohibit use or sale of scalping knives, 18.
Gower :
    Earl, 253, 277, 464.
    —— letters from, 224, 407.
    —— retirement of, from the Council, 474.
    Countess, letter from, 305.
Grace and Kennedy, Messrs., letter to, 386.
Grafton county, New Hampshire, 278.
Grafton, Duke of, iii, x, xiii, 23, 33, 399.
    letter from, 37.
Graham (Græme) :
    captain John, 123.
    lieutenant-colonel, 123.
Granada, 605.
Granby, Lord, 67, 586.
Grand Sable, St. Vincent, letter dated from, 535.
Grant. See Patterson and Grant.
    half pay officer, 571.
    Mr., 605.
    lieutenant, 373.
    colonel, 357.
    David, letter to, 383.
    James, governor of East Florida, 65, 102, 142, 178, 228, 231, 477.
    —— complaints against, 68, 80, 122, 185.

- Grant—cont.
  - James, his treatment of William Gerard de Brahm, 112, 120.
  - —— letter from, 465.
  - —— letters to, 81, 468.
  - —— tyranny and injustice of, 83, 185.
  - John, lieutenant 42nd, escape of, 360.
  - captain Jon., 225.
  - —— memorial for lands, 218.
  - William, of Quebec, 401, 554.
  - —— letter from, 383.
- Grantham, Lord, 275, 469, 530.
- Granville, Lord, 140.
- Graves :
  - John or Samuel, lieutenant, 357.
  - Reverend Matthew, his work as a missionary, 77.
  - —— letter from, 77.
  - vice-admiral Samuel, 228, 246, 259, 313, 394, 417.
  - —— applies for assistance, 294.
  - —— letter from, 373.
  - —— letter to, 404.
  - —— reinforcement of marines to, 251.
  - Thomas, letter to, 357.
- Gravesend, 506.
  - (New York), militia of, 195.
- Gray :
  - Alexander, recommended for an appointment, 222.
  - E. W., 560.
  - John, letter from, 347, 348.
  - Thomas, 35.
- Great Barrington, 267.
- Great Britain, 16, 19, 31, 34, 38, 39, 48, 51, 53, 57, 63, 84, 149, 150, 168, 191, 204, 220, 230, 231, 236, 238, 240, 242, 247, 251, 253, 262, 270, 273, 276, 279, 283, 284, 292, 298, 320, 326, 352, 361, 362, 364, 377, 404, 407, 437–9, 453, 457, 459, 463, 482.
  - apathy of, 256.
  - her tobacco trade, 434. See also Tobacco.
  - manufactures of, 509.
  - methods to secure American dependence on, 438.
  - non-exportation from America to, 237, 250.
  - non-importation from, 75, 250. See also Non-importation.
  - rates of postage in, 411.
  - regulations concerning American trade detrimental to, 29.
  - strength, riches, and influence of, depend on commerce, 58.
  - taxation, question of, 30, 31, 33. See also Taxation.
  - trade of, 383, 522, 542. See also Trade.
- Green (of Nova Scotia), 416, 593.
  - Mr., desires secretaryship of New Hampshire, 191, 283.
  - Mr., letter to, 19.
  - lieutenant (Nova Scotia), 593.
- Green—cont.
  - general, 571.
  - George, dismissal of, 417.
  - —— letters from, 299, 419, 571.
  - —— sufferings of, 419.
  - John, case of, 501.
  - —— imprisonment of, 499, 502.
  - —— petitions and letters from, 498–503.
  - Joseph (of Boston), 227, 352.
  - —— (of Bristol), letters from, 499–503.
  - —— —— letter to, 502.
  - Josiah (should be Joseph), 193.
- Green Mountain Boys, 314.
- Greenwich, 367.
  - letters dated from, 180, 238, 327, 501.
- Greenwich Hospital, 5.
  - letter dated at, 238.
- Gregory, — :
  - ——, chief justice of Quebec, 562.
  - —— memorial of, 571.
  - William, judge, South Carolina, 365, 382.
- Grenada, 37, 511, 531, 538, 540, 542, 543.
  - address from the inhabitants of, 540.
  - Bill concerning, disallowed, 514.
  - correspondence and papers relating to, 512–17.
  - Government of, erected, 11.
  - proprietors and merchants trading to, petition, 516.
  - trade of, 57.
- Grenadoes, the, 132.
- Grenville, George, v, 56, 73, 479.
  - administration of, 200.
  - his fatal policy, 41.
- Greville :
  - C. F., letters from, 496, 569, 605.
  - Honourable Thomas, letter from, 147.
- Grey. See De Grey.
- Griffin, Cyrus, 233.
  - letter from, 404.
- Grimaldi, Marquis de, 530.
- Griswold, captain, 490.
- Gros Macatinat, Mecatinat, Mekatinat, 107, 123, 243, 574, 576.
- Grosvenor, Lord, survey of land belonging to, 133.
- Guadaloupe, 517.
  - French garrisons in, 468.
- Gualy :
  - captain, 589.
  - Nancy, 589.
- Guernsey, Lord, letter from, 146.
- Guerry :
  - L., letter from, 419.
  - Lewis, admitted to orders, 571.
- Guiana, 507.
- Guildford, Connecticut, 428.
- Guildford, Earl of, ii, xiii., 4, 77.
  - letters from, 76, 77.
  - Countess of, xiii.
- Guinand, Henry, merchant, 550.
  - plan of, 509.
- Guinea, purchase of slaves on the coast of, 522.

Guines, comte de, 367, 411.
  letters from, 515, 516.
Gunnersall, —, ordered to quit Georgia, 364.
Gunpowder :
  Americans in want of, 366, 405.
  —— receive supply from London, 255, 350.
  —— receive supply from French West Indies, 376.
  —— receive supply from St. Eustatius, 279, 334.
  applications for exporting, from England, 380, 392.
  seizure of, in Georgia, 332.

H.

Habersham, President Joseph, Georgia :
  certificate of, 36.
  depositions and warrant against, 364.
Hackwood, letter dated from, 69.
Hague, the, 229.
  letters dated from, 233, 563, 564, 565, 570.
Haldimand, Frederick, Brigadier, Colonel, Major-General, 58, 127, 169, 186, 194, 234, 262, 305, 313, 378.
  letter from, 212.
  letters to, 305, 316, 326.
  question of his rank in America, 134, 135.
Hale, Roger, letter from, 23.
Haley, Mr., 255.
Halifax, 249, 300, 351, 353, 357, 417, 421, 572, 585–601.
  Admiralty Court at, 439. arrival of Highlanders at, 421. capture of ships near, 421.
  council held at, 416.
  desertion of troops, 112.
  discontent of the people, 396.
  letters dated from, 142, 365, 396, 398, 415, 596, 598, 599.
Halifax, Earl of, 21, 550.
  letter from, 52.
  letters to, 10, 17, 29, 584.
Hall and Sellers, printers, 435.
Hal :
  captain Elihu, 183, 191, 302.
  —— complains of not receiving compensation for his services, 113.
  —— desires an appointment, 123.
  —— desires compensation for money advanced to soldiers, 112.
  —— letters from, 112, 113, 123, 407.
  —— losses of, 112, 123.
  —— memorials from, 112, 113, 123.
  —— tired of the world, 113.
  Mr., death of, 510.
Hallowell, Benjamin, commissioner and comptroller of customs, 357.
  his house attacked, 27.
Hallowell—cont.
  his opinion of the Stamp Act, 26.
  letters from, 26, 174.
Halmbeck :
  John, 8.
  William, 8.
Hamburgh (Hamburg), letter dated from, 233.
Hamilton :
  —, 369, 404.
  captain of the "Lizard," 344, 404.
  major, desertions from his corps, 313.
  Lord Archibald, governor of Jamaica, 4.
  captain Henry, recommended for an appointment, 276, 571.
  Sir William, desires an appointment, 275.
  —— letter from, 275.
Hammerer, John Daniel, 39, 450.
Hammond, captain A. S., letters from, 133, 144.
"Hampden," letter signed, 176.
Hampshire co., Massachusetts Bay, judges of, called to meet the mob, 229.
Hanbury, Capel, merchant, 17.
Hancock, John, President of the Congress, 216, 227, 278, 321, 322, 331, 413.
  letter to, 193.
Hankey, Mr., request of, 542.
Hanover :
  (New Hampshire), Dartmouth College at, 12, 115, 147, 492, 493.
  (Pennsylvania), 333.
Hanoverians, may be hired, 226.
Hansen, captain John, 326.
Hanson, John :
  desires an appointment, 240.
  letter from, 240.
Harbour Grace, letter dated from, 581.
Harcourt :
  colonel, 433.
  Earl, letter from, 511, 571.
Hardenbrook, Theophilus, report of, 244.
Hardenburgh patent, the, 136.
Hardwick, 230.
Hardwicke, Lord, 555.
  letters from, 211, 216, 221, 223, 239, 267, 270, 271, 447, 457.
  letter to, 57.
Hardy, Sir Charles, 7, 474. pursuit of fleet of, 474.
Harley, Thomas, letter from, 515.
Harnett, Cornelius, 331.
Harris :
  Mr., 418.
  Rev. —, 507.
  Sir James, 474.
Harrison, colonel Benjamin, letters from, 333, 390.
Harrowgate, letter dated from, 515.
Hartford (Connecticut), 314, 316, 317, 420, 428.
Hartley, Mr., 308.
Hartwell, —, 357.
Harvey :
  general, 349, 375.
  —— letter to, 315.

Harvey—cont.
  John, 213.
Hasenclever, Peter, 20.
  letters from, 21, 32, 33.
Hatch, Patty, 189.
Hatton :
  John, letter from, 306.
  Rev. Thomas, letter from, 306.
  —— letter to, 306.
Havannah, 70, 86, 522.
  siege of, 249.
Haven, Dr. Samuel, 155.
Hawkshaw, —, 305.
Hawley :
  Mr., 105, 363.
  Lord, death of, 95.
Haxthausen, Count, letter from, 476.
Hay :
  Alexander, letter from, 584.
  Major David, 279.
  Edward, letters from, 505, 506, 507.
  —— recommended for the Government of Barbadoes, 505.
Hayes. See Perry and Hayes.
Hayley, George, letter to, 351.
Hayne :
  Arthur, letter from, 583.
  Robert, 190.
  —— letters from, 177, 178, 234, 249,
  (Haynes, Hayns) Mary, 160, 190, 234, 249.
  —— letters from, 168, 186, 234, 249.
Haynes, William, merchant, letter to, 385.
Hayt, captain, gallant behaviour of, 453.
Hazen, captain, 309, 395.
Headley Harbour (Pitts' Harbour) Chateau, 577.
Heath (American general), 278.
Heber, Reginald, 489.
Hedges, J., 198.
Henderson :
  Captain, buys up arms under false pretences, 339.
  William D., 491.
Henniker, John, 446.
Henry VIII., 553.
Henry, Patrick, 301.
Hermitage (near Edinburgh), letters dated from, 519, 520.
Hermon Husbands, 157.
Herries, Sir Robert, 272, 434.
Hertford, Lord, 602.
Hervey, Mr. 262.
  Rev. James, xiv.
Hesse, Landgrave of, 405.
  States of, 453.
Hessians, the, 226, 405, 421–3, 425, 427, 453, 454.
Hewitt, William :
  desires an appointment, 515, 542.
  letter from, 515.
  recommended for an appointment, 511.
Hey, William, chief justice, 375, 400, 565, 569.
  letters from, 276, 332, 379, 394, 572.
  personal danger of, 379.
Heyett and Barclay, Messrs., letter to, 334.
Hicks, Whitehead, mayor of New York, 189.
Hierlihy, major, 422.
Higginson, captain, claim of, 512.
Highlanders, collected by lieut.-colonel McLean to form a corps, 336. See also British forces and North Carolina.
Hill :
  Noel, letter from, 93.
  Lady Mary, 586.
Hillock, G. :
  desires an appointment, 536.
  letter from, 536.
Hillsborough, Earl of, v, 21, 25, 64, 67, 69, 82, 85, 88, 91, 93, 95, 125, 134, 137, 188, 286, 478, 499, 517, 549, 550, 555, 560, 566, 575. desires an office for his son, 86.
  letters from, 62, 63, 79, 86, 90, 585.
  letters to, 73, 77, 78, 80, 84, 85, 86, 87, 90, 531, 581.
  memorials to, 105, 109.
  objections to the Quebec Bill, 568. petition to, 499.
  report to, 83.
  resignation of, 86, 164.
Hillsborough : township of, 43.
  River, 222.
Hilton, Mr., 527.
Hird, James, 106.
  letter from, 107.
Hispaniola, 339, 499, 504.
Hitchborne, Mr., 335, 336.
Hocquart, Mons., 245. claims of, 107, 123, 574, 576.
  letters from, 243, 576.
Hodgson, —, 413.
  general, illness of, 271.
  Robert, superintendent of Mosquito shore, 526.
Hodsdon, 302.
Hoffman, Nicholas, letter from, 295.
Hogg, Robert :
  letter from, 464.
  recommended for an appointment, 365.
Hoghton, Sir H., 127.
Hog Island, skirmish on, 311.
Holland, 39, 129, 227, 264, 270, 405, 542.
  ammunition sent from, 339.
  illicit trade carried on with Great Britain, 39.
  —— with New York, 42.
  —— with the Northern Colonies, 40.
  tea imported from, 227, 230. See also the Dutch.
Holland, captain, surveyor, 37, 220, 228, 329, 340.
Holt, John, printer, 13.
Home, lieutenant-governor Alexander, death of, 539.
Hood, Samuel, captain and commodore, letter from, 180.
  memorial of, 161.
Hook (near Titchfield, Hants.), letter dated from, 528.
Hooper, Robert Lettis, 266.

Hope, Lord, 41, 50.
Hopkins :
  Mr., 284.
  governor, 14.
  American commodore, 428, 431, 433.
  Mark, registrar, 8.
  Samuel, letter from, 476.
Hopson, —, 588.
Hore, Major, 207.
Horley, alderman, 431.
Horne, Mr., 514.
Horsefall, Mr., letter to, 519.
Horsley, Dr. 216.
Horsmanden, Daniel, chief justice, New York, 176.
  appointment of, 121.
  commissioner in the "Gaspee" affair, 92, 94.
Horton (Nova Scotia), 598.
Hotham, commodore, 423.
Howard :
  Joseph, 548.
  Robert, 294.
  colonel T., 108, 120, 123, 124, 128, 164.
  —— letters from, 153, 224, 226, 230.
Howe :
  captain of the "Glasgow," 428.
  Lord, vii, 416, 418, 433, 434, 449, 456, 458, 459, 468, 470, 599.
  —— arrives at New York, 422.
  —— flag of truce to Washington not received, 422.
  —— instructions for, 417–18.
  —— letters from, 325, 398, 467.
  —— letters to, 269, 315, 398, 453.
  —— pursues D'Estaing, 469.
  major-general Sir William, 262, 266, 279, 312, 317, 337, 340, 344, 349, 375, 403, 415, 417, 423–5, 433–6, 440, 443–5, 447, 450, 452, 457, 459, 460, 463, 503.
  —— appointed to command, 344.
  —— complains of excessive demands for hire of buildings in Nova Scotia, 416.
  —— complaints against, 447.
  —— instructions for, 417–18.
  —— letters from, 269, 315, 391, 437, 448.
  —— letters to, 344, 372, 410, 422, 432.
  —— men wanted by, 432.
  —— plan for employment of the troops, 407, 410.
  —— retreat of, from Middlebush, 442.
  —— victory at Bunker's Hill, 331.
  Hon. Mrs., vii.
Howes (Howe), Robert, American general, 331.
Huay, Daniel, depositions of, 74.
Hudson, William, letters from, 150, 534.
Hudson river, 109, 121, 277, 402, 422, 444.
Hudson's Bay, 67.
Hughes, James, memorial of, 559.
Hull, letter dated from, 525.
Hull, lieutenant, death of, 300.
Hulme, O., letter from, 380.
Hume, the historian, 200.
Hunt :
  Japhet, 7.
  Thomas, letter from, 190.
  Thomas and Robert, Messrs., 508.
Hunter :
  Mr., 426.
  John (surgeon), 579.
  Robert, letters from, 241, 242, 394, 577.
  Dr. William, letter from, 17.
  —— letter to, 99.
Huntingdon, letter dated from, 154.
Huntingdon :
  Earl of, letter from, 33.
  Countess of, xiii, 100, 166.
  —— letter from, 100.
Hurst, John, letter from, 194.
Husband, John Barnes, 541.
Hutchins, Mrs., 317.
Hutchinson :
  Mr., 500.
  Eliakim, judge of the Inferior Court, death of, 336.
  Elisha, 40, 193.
  —— letter to, 384.
  Henry, imprisonment of, 573.
  —— letter from, 573.
  Dr. James, letter to, 377.
  governor Thomas, vii, 92, 110, 128, 159, 164, 165, 170, 179, 194, 199, 204, 207, 209, 230, 247, 250, 386, 417, 424, 484.
  —— applies to the King for relief, 23.
  —— concerning the custody of lunatics and idiots, 111.
  —— conversation with the King, 216.
  —— his house attacked, 27.
  —— history (MS.), of Massachusetts Bay, 216.
  —— instructions to, 186.
  —— King approves of his conduct, 209.
  —— letters from, 23, 40, 76, 78, 114, 124, 191, 193, 199, 205, 216, 217, 222, 226, 227, 296, 304.
  —— letters to, 111, 136, 146, 149, 152, 226, 238, 239.
  —— presented to the Queen, 569.
  —— sails for England, 209.
  Thomas, junr., letter from, 193.
  William Sanford, letter from, 420, 421.
Hutton, James, xvi, xviii, 418, 574.
  letters from, 234, 317, 318, 321, 496, 575, 578, 579.
  letter to, 574.
  memorial from, 497.
Hyde, Lord, vii, 236, 270.
  letters from, 17, 138, 157, 164, 325.
  letters to, 157, 325.
  paper by, 407.

I.

Ibberville River, 79, 80.
Iles, Mr., desires an appointment, 541.
Illinois, 46, 47, 53, 55, 62, 66, 81, 104, 124, 571.
    commerce of, 66.
    desirability of establishing forts and stationing troops in, 55, 57.
    opposition by the inhabitants of, 62.
    regulation for civil government proposed by inhabitants of, 98.
    Spaniards reach, 61.
    withdrawing men from, 121.
Illinois River, 17, 47.
    traders and settlers prohibited from going up the, 61.
Imhoff, J. L. Peyer, letter from, 171, 172.
Inagua, 498, 504.
Independence. See America.
India stocks, fall in the, 531.
Indian : affairs, plan for future management of, 12.
    Charity School. See under Dr. Wheelock.
    congress, 7, 61, 128, 375.
    presents, 61, 344, 345, 374, 549.
    trade, 44, 55, 65, 74, 109, 252.
    —— plan for regulating, with the Indians on the Ohio, 402.
    traders, 21, 44, 45, 47, 53, 57, 61, 74, 85, 98, 106, 152, 552.
    —— lands ceded to, in payment of debts, 105.
    —— memorial to the King, 74.
Indians, 12, 39, 44, 45, 46, 47, 49, 52, 53, 55, 57, 58, 60, 61, 63, 66, 68, 72, 84, 95, 98, 105, 106, 108, 109, 111, 119, 124, 140, 152, 154, 155, 158, 161, 178, 190, 245, 256, 275, 278, 309, 320, 324, 338, 339, 345, 355, 358, 364, 369, 375, 382, 385, 386, 422, 441, 447, 456, 484, 485, 545, 549, 555, 592, 606.
    Board of Trade minute concerning, 105. build a church, 153–4.
    on christianizing the, 71.
    desire to have traders sent into their country, 21.
    employment of, by the British, 455. hostilities committed by, 459.
    imposed upon, 45.
    incendiarisms committed by, 585.
    inhabitants of Ohio driven inland by, 230.
    in the French war, 455.
    invited to assist Ethan Allen, 310.
    join the Americans, 376, 379.
    lands purchased from the, 126, 159, 289–92.
Indians—cont.
    murder committed by, 14, 578.
    not to be depended upon, 383.
    persons disguised as, destroy chests of tea, 183.
    plan for regulating trade with the, on the Ohio, 402.
Indians (specified) :
    Cherokees, 15, 44, 105, 106, 133.
    —— complaints against the white people, 45.
    —— country of the, 14, 43.
    —— French check upon the, 55.
    Chickasaws, 58, 104.
    Chippawaes (Chippaways), 57, 85.
    Creeks, 44, 45, 122.
    —— lands proposed to be ceded by the, 106.
    —— (Upper), 7, 105, 106.
    —— (Upper and Lower), 10.
    Delawares, 317.
    —— disputes with the Shawenese, 318.
    Five Nations, 153.
    Mississagoes, 85.
    Mohawks, Mohocks, x, 19, 23, 335.
    —— church and school among the, 71.
    Moheagans, distress of the, 100.
    Mortars, 45.
    Nescanpicks, 578.
    Oneidas, 480.
    Ottawas, 68.
    Shawenese, disputes with the Delawares, 318.
    Six Nations, 489.
    Stockbridge, x, 480.
    —— deed of sale, 7, 8.
Indigo grown in the Bahamas, 504.
Ingersall. See Ingersoll.
Ingersoll:
    David, 287, 390.
    —— letter from, 392.
    —— memorial from, 267.
    Jared (Inner Temple), 346, 347, 349.
    —— letter from, 390.
    —— letter to, 379.
    Jared (Philadelphia), letters from, 348, 379.
    —— letter to, 390.
    Jonathan, letter to, 346; referred to, 347.
Ingersoul, Mr., from Philadelphia, 460. See above, probably Jared.
Inglis :
    Rev. Charles, rector of New York, 444.
    —— letters to, 372, 389.
    Mrs., 478.
Inman, John, letter from, 302.
Innes, Alexander, secretary to governor Lord William Campbell, captain and lieutenant-colonel, 313, 332, 341, 355, 356, 381, 453.
    letters from, 302, 306, 312, 325.
    letter to, 436.
Intercepted letters, ix, 347, 393.
Inverary, letters dated from, 162, 556.
Ipswich, letters dated from, 131, 265.

Ireland, 62, 68, 137, 145, 258, 262, 281, 319, 340, 347, 350, 474, 509, 517.
  address to the people of, 342.
  defenceless condition of, 289.
  embarkation of troops from, 97, 141, 316, 331, 337, 341, 394, 406.
  rates of postage in, 411.
  repeal of the popery laws, 467.
  uncultivated land in, 303.
Ireland, James, letter from, 227.
Irish lottery, 166.
Irishmen as governors, &c., Americans prejudiced against, 129.
Irish Parliament, 467.
Irving:
  Mr., 90.
  John, letter from, 357.
  Thomas, 186.
  —— letters from, 159, 160.
Isles, Mr., death of, 497.
Isleworth, letter dated from, 505.
Italian States, 107.

J.

Jackson:
  Andrew, Presidential candidate, 490.
  James, 106.
  Richard, letters from, 144, 242, 288.
  —— letters to, 242, 435, 437, 449.
  —— M.P. for New Romney, xvi.
  William, letter from, 400.
Jadis:
  Charles N. G., memorial from, 585.
  —— letter to, 587.
  Mrs., letter from, 586.
Jamaica, 52, 225, 504, 506.
  address to the Assembly of, 312.
  artillery wanted for, 526.
  correspondence and papers relative to, 517–27.
  establishment of a customs house in, 527.
  free ports of, 523.
  naval force stationed at, 526.
  offices and officers in, 488.
  ordnance stores for, 526.
  regiments for, 97, 524–6.
  Revenue Act in, 517.
  rum from, for British army in America, 434, 440.
  smuggling at, 527.
  Spanish trade with, 518.
  trade of, 57.
  —— protection of the, 527.
Jamaica (New York), 218.
Jamaica Plain (New York), letters dated from, 156, 169, 173, 183.
James I., 31.
James II., 281.
James:
  lieutenant-colonel Thomas, 336, 375.
James—cont.
  Lieutenant-colonel Thomas, departs from Boston, 272.
  —— his propositions for reducing the rebels, 367.
  William, 446.
James Island, letter dated from, 172.
James River, 458.
Jauncey:
  Mr., 225.
  James, 228.
  —— letter from, 287.
Jay, Sir James, letters from, 49, 414, 415.
Jefferson, Thomas, letter from, 361–3; mentioned, x.
Jeffreys:
  Herbert, commissioner to inquire into disorders in Virginia, 1.
  Thomas, geographer to the King, 484.
Jenyns, Soame, 475.
  letter from, 333.
Jerry, a negro, condemned to death, 365.
Jersey College, 48.
Jersey Society, 166.
Jerseys, the, 89, 152, 160, 429, 433, 438, 440, 459, 470, 471, 579.
  distress in, 100.
Jerusalem, 585.
Jessup, Ebenezer, 290, 291, 292.
Jesuits, the, 548.
  expelled from France and Portugal, 549.
  in Canada, 549, 556, 557, 559, 562, 563, 564.
Joel, Thomas, letters from, 377, 378.
Johnson:
  captain, 468.
  Benjamin, 189.
  B. J., 254.
  colonel Guy, 320, 375, 394.
  —— forced to flee to Canada, 374.
  —— letter to, 345.
  Sir William, 13, 17, 19, 21, 47, 71, 152, 176, 181, 205, 224, 455, 585.
  —— death of, 236.
  —— letters from, 13, 46, 53, 84, 85.
  —— presents an Indian church with a bell, 154.
  William Samuel, viii.
  —— letter from, 101.
Johnson Hall, letters dated from, 17, 19, 46, 53, 84, 205.
Johnston:
  —, clerk of the crown in South Carolina, 266.
  George, as governor of West Florida, letters from, 12–14.
  —— as commissioner for peace, 463, 470.
  —— declaration by Congress against, 469.
Johnston and Canning, letters to, 298, 327.
Johonnot, Francis, 468.
Joiner, William, petition of, 6.
Joliet, —, 551, 574.

Jones:
  John, claims lands in South Carolina, 182.
  —— letter from, 181.
  [John] Paul, fleet of, 474.
  Lewis, 181.
  Nathaniel, chief justice of the Jerseys, letter from, 124.
Joppa, letter dated from, 403.
Jordan, Mr., resignation of, 507.
Jouvencell, —, 17.
Judd's friend, an Indian, 105.
Justices of the peace:
  Coram, John, 365.
  Cosslett, Charles Matthew, 382.
  De Grey, William, lord chief justice, 519.
  Dwight, Joseph, 7, 9.
  Fewtrell, John, 382.
  Fuller, Abraham, 110.
  Gardner, Joseph, 192.
  Gordon, Thomas Knox, 203, 365, 382.
  Gregory, William, 365, 382.
  Hey, William, 379.
  Horsmanden, Daniel, 235.
  Livingston, Robert R., 105.
  Livius, Peter, 218.
  Oliver, —, 239.
  Rice, Thomas, 101.
  Savage, Edward, 382.
  Smith, Mr., 190.
  Smyth, Frederick, 137, 301, 302.
  Stinson, John, 101.
  Stokes, Anthony, 364.
  Woodbridge, Timothy, 8.

K

Kaskaskias, 66, 81, 104, 111, 121, 484.
Kavanagh, Laurence, 593.
Kay, Mr., 429.
Kayaderosseras, land called, 19.
Kearney, captain Michael, recommended for an appointment, 301, 302.
Keats, captain, 482.
Keeling, Joseph, 506.
Keen, Mr., xv, 59, 60, 132.
Keith:
  Sir Basil, 518–20, 525, 526.
  —— appointment of, 520.
  —— arrival of, in Jamaica, 522.
  —— letters from, 519–25.
  Robert, letters from, 519, 520.
  Sir Robert Murray, letters from, 518, 520.
Kelly:
  —— letters from, 81, 82.
  Henry, capture of, 411.
  —— letter from, 342.
  William, letters from, 149, 179.
  —— stands for Worcester, 179.
Kelly & Co., letter to, 342.
Kemble, Samuel, 92, 96.
  letter from, 189.
Kemp, Philemon, 105.
Kempe:
  Grace, 266.
  John T., 266.
Kennan, Henry, letters from, 28, 45.
Kennebeck, R., 101.
Kennedy. See Grace and Kennedy, Messrs.
Kent co. See Delaware.
Kenward:
  John, 335.
  —— letter from, 395.
  Maria Eliza, letter from, 335.
Keppel, general, 279, 333.
Keswick, letter dated from, 225.
Key, J., letter from, 421.
Kidleston, letter dated from, 98.
Kimbolton Castle, 163.
King, Mr., desires an appointment, 283.
King, the. See George III.
Kingsbridge, 427, 447.
  letters dated from, 432, 453.
King's county, New York, 192, 195, 196.
Kingston, Jamaica, letters dated from, 12, 13, 518.
Kingstown, St. Vincent, letter dated from, 537.
Kinlock, Mr., 40.
Kirkland, Moses, sufferings of, 384.
Kirkleatham, letters dated from, 106, 107.
Kirtland, Kirtlands, Samuel, 16, 71.
  letter from, 153.
Knapp, Samuel, L., 494.
  letter from, 493.
Kneller, Attorney-General of Quebec, 566.
Knill, Mr., 523.
Knipe, Mr., 99.
Knowles, Sir Charles, letter to, 26.
Knox, William, xvi, 75, 187, 209, 226, 396, 434, 440, 462, 485, 572.
  letters from, 95, 125, 233, 348, 416, 424, 445, 450, 451, 469, 512, 566, 568, 583, 597.
  letters to, 266, 445.
Knulton, Mr., junior, 305.
Kocanawago, 310.

L.

Labrador, 52, 67, 551, 568.
  correspondence and papers relating to, 574–80.
La Bras-dor, 123.
La Corne St. Luc, arrest of, 548.
Lafayette, Marquis de, 463, 469, 470, 477.
La Fontaine, 576, 577.
Laight, William, 343.
Lake Champlain, 107, 121, 125, 130, 155, 309, 312, 314, 332, 360, 403, 427, 441, 488, 489, 571.

- Lake Champlain—cont.
  - Dutch settlers claim the whole of, 128.
- Lake Erie, 85, 279.
- Lake George, 309, 314, 441.
- Lake Huron, 140.
- Lake Maurapa, 126.
- Lakes, the, 17, 47, 86, 339, 379, 385.
- Lalande, —, 574.
- Lamb, John, 35.
- Lancaster (Pennsylvania), Queen Street, letter dated from, 460.
  - merchants of, letter from, 44.
- Lancton, Rev. —, letter to, 486.
- Land's End, 473.
- Langdon :
  - Samuel, D.D., 155.
  - Woodbury, 194.
- Lane :
  - Son, and Fraser, 295, 304.
  - John, letter from, 194.
- Lansdowne House MSS., 37, 46, 50.
- Larpent, —, 418.
- La Trobe, —, letters from, 575, 577.
- Laurens, Henry, President of the Congress, 271, 460.
- Laurent, Sir Francis, introduction of, 513.
- Laurie, captain Walter Sloane, letters from, 292, 300, 303, 319.
- Lavanchy, Mons., letter from, 96.
- Law, —, ordered to quit Georgia, 364.
- Lawrence :
  - Governor, death of, 593.
  - Asa, letter to, 292.
  - Sir Thomas, artist, 491.
- Laybourne. See Leybourne.
- Laycock, Elizabeth, 189.
- Layritz, brother and sister, 577.
- Leach, Leech, Shoal, East Florida, 133.
- Leacocke. See Nowlan and Leacocke.
- Leadbeater, John, recommended for an appointment, 177.
- Lea Hall, letter dated from, 18.
- Lebanon, Connecticut, 12, 48, 70, 279, 482.
- Le Brun, —, lawyer, 564.
- Leche, captain John, letter from, 465.
- Lecky, Hist. of England, iii, xiv.
- Lecomte, M., 515.
- Le Cras :
  - merchant, 351.
  - captain E., 351, 357.
- Ledlie, captain, 420.
- Lee :
  - Arthur, 164, 302, 349, 359, 360.
  - —— letters from, 288, 358.
  - Charles, American general, 225, 324, 336, 337, 338, 347, 404, 423, 425, 432, 470.
  - —— taken prisoner, 433.
  - Joseph, 506.
  - Samuel, letters from, 220, 221.
  - William, sheriff, 206, 242, 281.
  - —— letter from, 280.
- Leech, T., 435.
- Lees, —, 385.
- Lees, lieutenant John, petition from, 486.
- Leeward Islands, 467, 484, 495, 523.
  - defence of, 68.
  - offices and officers in, 488.
  - trade of, 57.
  - four-and-a-half per cent. duty from, 5.
- Legge :
  - Mr., 449, 432.
  - Hon. Charles, 283.
  - Francis, captain and governor of Nova Scotia, 52, 54, 587, 588, 591, 594–601.
  - —— letters from, 54, 56, 365, 367, 415, 488, 588, 590, 591, 593, 594, 600.
  - —— letters to, 272, 345, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 596, 597, 598, 599.
  - —— memorial of, to dispose of his commission, 30; for expenses, 600.
  - —— received by the King, 424.
  - —— replies to the charges made against him, 599.
  - —— report of Board of Trade on charges against, 600.
  - —— requested to return to London, 596.
  - Major Francis, 489.
  - Heneage, baron of the exchequer, iii.
  - Hon. Heneage, 283.
  - Henry Bilson, chancellor, iii, v.
  - Julian, desires employment, 174.
  - Thomas, letter from, 593.
  - Hon. William, 283.
  - —— letter from, 488.
- Leghorn, 37.
- Lehman, —, missionary, drowned, 579.
- Lehunte, captain George, memorial from, 173.
- Leicester, 380.
- Leigh, Sir Egerton, offers to resign, 321.
  - pecuniary losses of, 277.
- Leland, lieutenant-colonel, recommended for an appointment, 145,
- Lemoine, —, 550.
- Lennard, American general, 444.
- Lenox, Watt, 361.
- Leonard, —, chief justice of Bermuda letter from, 508.
- Le Sevre, Mr., 443.
- Leslie :
  - lieutenant-colonel C., 278.
  - —— letter from, 384.
  - Mrs., 368, 369, 375.
- Letchworth, Thomas and Robert, 294.
- Letters of Marque, 413, 458.
- Lever, Richard, petitions from, 471.
- Levesque, —, 550.
- Levy :
  - Mr., 7, 9, 10.
  - Moses, letter to, 373.
  - Isaac, memorial from, 486.
- Lewes, 476, 562.
  - journal, 475.
- Lewis Town, insurrection near, 446.
- Lewis :
  - Mr., 465.
  - Edw., letter from, 511.
  - Mordecai, letter from, 312.

Lewisham, Lord, 474, 480, 562.
Lexington, 290, 394.
    action at, 292, 316, 324, 343, 366.
Leyborne, Governor William L., 97, 121, 495, 533, 535, 539.
    death of, 514, 537.
    letters from, 512, 513, 530-2, 534.
    letter to, 513.
Leyden, township of, New York, 82, 160.
Lichfield, 376, 377, 380, 393.
Life, Thomas, 307.
Lifford, Lord, letter from, 542.
Ligon. See Neale, Ligon, and Booth.
Ligonier, 94.
    Lord, letter from, 605.
Limerick, 474.
Lincoln, Bishop of, xiv.
Lincoln co., Massachusetts, 108.
Lincoln Island, letter dated from, 101.
Lindon, W., letter from, 512.
Lindsay:
    Lord, request of, 474.
    Sir David, 473, 474.
    William, letters from, 386.
Linsey. See Linzee.
Linzee, captain John, of the "Falcon," 357; later, of the "Pearl," 450.
Lisbon, 254.
Lisle, 323.
Lispenard, colonel Leonard, 250, 251.
Litchfield, letter dated from, 602.
Little:
    Daniel, letter from, 486.
    William, 7.
Littleton, governor William Henry, 39.
    letter from, 518.
    letter to, 518.
Livermore, Samuel, 127.
Liverpool, 491.
    Corporation of, address to the King, 380-1.
    —— grants Lord Dartmouth the freedom of the town, 541.
    merchants of, letter from, 47.
    —— fit out privateers, 396.
Livesey, Robert, letter to, 47.
Livingston:
    colonel, 264.
    Mr., of New York, 460.
    J. H., letter from, 160.
    Peter, N. B., letter to, 373.
    Philip, 64.
    Robert R., letter from, 105.
Livingston, manor of, 105.
Livius, Peter, 127, 144, 146, 151, 177, 197, 206, 218, 400.
    letters from, 77, 217, 221, 400, 418, 419.
    recommended for an appointment, 150.
Lloyd:
    Mrs., 174.
    Samuel, letter from, 77.
    Thomas, demands release of prisoners, 472.
Logan, George, letter to, 307.
London, J., 458, 460.
London:
    bishop of, appointed chancellor of William and Mary College, 1.
    —— declines to become a trustee of Dr. Wheelock's school, 79.
    —— letters from, 40, 79, 80, 144, 218, 507, 571, 581.
    city of, debts due to, from America, 261.
    lord mayor of, 231, 281, 371.
    merchants of, trading to Africa, 121.
    —— trading to America and West Indies, 28, 38, 54, 56, 183, 415.
    —— —— letters, memorials, and petitions, 37, 48, 82, 93, 106, 261, 267, 392, 509.
    —— —— meetings of, 240, 247.
London, places in or near:—
    Adelphi, 528, 595.
    Aldersgate Street, 515.
    Argyle Street, 191.
    Audley Square, 583.
    Austin Friars, 514.
    Barrack Street, 467.
    Basinghall Street, 181.
    Berkley Square, 159, 492, 559.
    —— Street, 165.
    Berners Street, 88, 603.
    Bland Street, 248.
    Bloomsbury, Bedford Row, 358, 379.
    —— Great Russel Street, 338, 383.
    —— Southampton Street, 523, 524.
    —— Square, 222, 514, 536.
    Bond Street, 544.
    Bow Church, 369.
    —— Churchyard, 194.
    Bread Street, 190.
    Brewer Street, "the Fox," 50.
    Brompton Row, 262.
    Buckingham Gate, 299.
    —— Stafford Row, 508.
    Cannon Row, 249.
    —— Street, Laurence Poultney (sic) Lane, 222.
    Cavendish Square, 94, 145, 209, 257, 262, 266, 273, 282, 285, 286, 394, 397, 507, 593.
    —— Bentinck Street, 505.
    —— Chandos Street, 99.
    —— Harley Street, 139, 142, 143, 159, 170.
    —— Little Titchfield Street, 349.
    —— Margaret Street, 225, 262, 269, 372.
    Charing Cross, "King's Arms," 38, 386.
    —— Lancaster Court, 486.
    Charlotte Street, 501.
    Charter-house Square, 380.
    Cheapside, 386.
    Chelsea, King's Road, 234, 317, 318, 481, 496, 578.
    —— Lindsey House, 575, 577.
    Clapham, 99, 127, 132, 166, 416, 586, 592.
    Clemens Lane, 255.
    Clifford's Inn, 350.
    Coleman Street, 394, 577.

London—cont.
Conduit Street, 222.
Cornhill, Freeman's Court, 49.
Covent Garden, 195.
—— Crown Court, Russel Street, 413, 458, 460, 469, 480.
—— Southampton Street, 84, 114, 151, 167, 286.
Crane Court, 150, 534.
Crescent, 149, 516.
Croydon, 392.
Crutched Friars, 28, 45.
—— America Square, 223, 240, 241, 244, 245, 321, 351, 415.
—— John Street, 81, 82.
Curzon Street, 376, 515.
Custom House, 198, 523.
Devonshire Street, 584.
Doctors Commons, College of Advocates, 439, 569.
Dover Street, 97, 594.
Downing Street, 197, 227, 297, 327, 400, 434, 456, 463, 464, 478.
Essex Street, 527.
Exchequer, the, 210.
Fleet Street, 566.
Fulham, 79.
Furnival's Inn, 328, 410, 577.
Garlick Hill, 262.
General Post Office, 411.
—— letters intercepted in, ix, 347, 393.
Gerard Street, 39, 40, 42–4.
Golden Square, 210, 226, 227, 353.
Goodmansfields, Prescott Street, 363.
Goswell Street, Artillery Court near, 16, 47.
Gracechurch Street, 34, 38, 39, 189, 196, 450.
—— Whitehart Court, 312.
Grafton Street, 238, 268, 325.
Gray's Inn, 390, 397.
Great George Street, 180, 201, 369.
Great Marlborough Street, 19.
Great Pulteney Street, 213, 513.
Great Titchfield Street, 155, 535.
Grosvenor Square, 37, 46, 56, 64, 70, 73, 554.
—— New Norfolk Street, 134, 177, 456.
Grosvenor Street, 175, 269, 398.
Guildhall, 281.
Hackney, 165, 225.
Hammersmith, 480.
Hanover Square, 86, 90, 91, 106.
—— George Street, 166.
—— New Street, 368.
Harper Street, 266, 406.
Hatton Garden, 518.
Haymarket, 159.
—— Canton Street, 401.
—— the Top, Arundel Street, Panton's Square, 517.
Herald's Office, 274, 280.
Hertford Street, 145.
Inner Temple, 379, 558, 562, 566.
Islington, Cambden Street, 510.
Jermyn Street, 276.

London—cont.
Kensington, Craven Hill near, 515.
Kensington Gore, 478, 479.
Lambeth Marsh, 585.
Leadenhall Street, 508.
Leicester Fields, 376.
—— "The Feathers," St. Martin's Street, 75.
—— Orange Street, 347, 397, 399, 414, 418.
—— Princes Street, 200, 368.
Leicester Square, 43, 342, 375, 383, 411, 606.
Leicester Street, 91.
Limehouse, 367.
Lincoln's Inn, 87, 134, 548, 550.
—— Fields, 206.
—— Grange Court, Cary Street, 404.
—— Hemlock Court, Carrey Street, near, 174.
Little St. Helens, 509.
Little Warwick Street, 37.
Lombard Street, 164, 170, 325, 508.
London House, 144, 571.
Lothbury, 471.
Lower Grosvenor Street, 213, 511.
Ludgate Street, 324, 365.
Mark Lane, 67.
Middle Temple, 124.
—— Garden Court, 358.
Minories, "Rose and Crown" Inn, St. John Street, 149.
Mount Street, 173.
New Bond Street, 189, 225, 226.
—— Stuarts' Coffee House in, 334.
New England Coffee House, 156.
Newman Street, 207, 258, 558.
Nicholas Lane, 194.
Old Bond Street, 152, 570.
Old Jewry, 131, 236, 260, 533.
Oxenden Street, 203, 269, 437.
Paddington, Lisson Grove near, 211.
Pall Mall, 468.
Park Street, 207.
Parliament Street, 216, 217, 403, 434, 557, 587.
Philpot Lane, 100.
Piccadilly, 51, 560, 604.
—— Half Moon Street, 202.
—— Vine Street, 128, 150.
Portland Row, Norton Street, 483.
Portman Square, 279, 329, 330, 396, 506, 582.
Privy Garden, 192.
Queen Ann Street, 501.
Queen's House, 381.
Rathbone Place, Tottenham Street, 310.
Red Lyon Square, 542.
Rosemary High Street or Lane, 198.
Royal Exchange, Grigsby's Coffee House, 90.
—— John's Coffee House at the 51.
Sackville Street, 140.

London—cont.
St. James's, 39, 73, 85, 88, 89, 97, 130, 134, 135, 172, 174, 177, 217, 235, 260, 287, 344, 378, 383, 469, 477, 478, 508, 529, 552, 587.
—— Bury Street, 510.
—— Charles Street, 287, 529.
—— Place, 153, 181, 218, 327.
—— Square, 158, 270, 271, 457, 564, 581.
—— Street, 296.
St. Martin's Lane, Duke's Court, 322, 360.
—— Hunt's Court, 485.
Saville Row, 277, 290, 321.
Scotland Yard, 242.
Scots Yard, 223.
Seamore Place, 510.
Shoreditch, 177, 234.
Soho, Gerrard Street, 519, 540.
—— Nassau Street, 88.
—— Poland Street, 211, 270, 279, 289, 363.
Spring Garden, 210, 339, 394, 395, 396.
Strand, 214, 463, 472.
—— Cecil Street, 414, 415.
—— Craven Street, vii, 141, 385, 386, 464.
—— Denmark Court, 181.
—— New Round Court, 261.
—— Salisbury Street, 69, 424, 600.
—— Somerset Chapel, 93.
—— —— House, 511, 604, 605.
Stratton Street, 511.
Suffolk Street, 224, 401.
Summer Street, 308.
Swithin's Lane, 373, 511.
Temple, the, 63, 288, 329, 350.
—— Bar, 51.
—— Gordon Court, 288.
Threadneedle Street, 464.
Throgmorton Street, 593.
—— Copt Hall Court, 32, 472.
Tower, the artillery at, 333.
War Office, 134, 305, 341, 466, 533, 541, 593.
Watling Street, 348, 349.
Welbeck Street, 529, 540.
Westminster, 113, 235, 240, 263, 296, 300, 309, 508.
—— Bridge, 349.
—— Bridge Street, 542.
—— Charles Street, 70, 146, 515, 516.
—— Dartmouth Street, 220, 223, 228, 229, 231, 287.
—— Duke Street, 114, 201, 405, 470.
—— Great Queen Street, 201, 210, 216.
—— James Street, 505, 506.
—— Prince's Court, 253.
—— Queen's Place, 166, 170.
—— Queen's Square, 139, 140, 149, 159, 160, 162.
—— Queen's Street, 197, 269.
—— School ii.

London—cont.
Westminster, Story's Gate, 182, 256.
Whitechapel, Bunn House, Field Gate, 152.
Whitehall, 59, 61, 62, 63, 74, 79, 81, 84, 86, 91, 94, 95, 97, 98, 104, 106, 108, 109, 111, 113, 130, 135, 136, 141, 146, 151, 159, 172, 202, 233, 272, 277, 285, 292, 305, 312, 330, 344, 352, 368, 369, 410, 421, 442, 444, 445, 457, 461, 462, 463, 467–9, 471, 477, 483, 509, 512, 513, 519, 525, 531, 533, 541, 543, 555, 574, 576, 583, 585, 588, 589, 592, 593, 596, 597.
Wimpole Street, 42, 414.
Winchester Street, 77.
Windmill Street, 99.
Wine Street, 499.
London Chronicle, the. See Newspapers.
Londonderry, 7.
Long, Beeston, 439, 441, 542.
letter from, 442, 514.
Long Island, 340, 423, 425.
action at, 442.
conveyance of troops to, 425.
evacuation of, 425.
fortification of, 257.
letters dated from, 428, 436.
peaceful state of, 437.
Lord, Dr. Nathan, president of Dartmouth College :
letter from, 492.
letter to, 493.
Lord Chancellor, the. See Apsley.
Lords, House of, 37, 51, 56, 64, 70, 201, 261, 264, 265, 286, 300, 307, 400, 408, 555, 566.
addresses to the King, 27, 32, 474.
letters and papers to be laid before the, 192, 203, 209.
orders of the, 208, 209.
papers read in the, 64.
petitions to, 65, 267, 281, 287.
rejects New York remonstrance and petition, 309.
royal message to, 461.
Lorimer, James, memorial from, 381.
Loring :
captain, 442.
Joshua, 432, 436.
—— junior, letter to, 432.
Losack, Richard Hawkshaw, petition of, 528.
Lot, colonel, 195.
Lotbiniere :
Marquis de Chartier de, 125, 243, 403, 558, 568.
—— letters from, 488, 560.
—— marriage of his son, 573.
—— offers to take charge of Lord Lewisham, 562.
Louis de, priest 570.
——, persecution of, 558.
Lott :
Ab. P., letter from, 297.
captain Petrus, 196.

- Loudon, Earl of, 455.
  - letter to, 7.
- Louisburgh, Louisbourg, 97, 249, 545, 572, 586, 591, 593.
- Louisiana, 46.
- Loup, James Samuel, 168, 171.
  - letter from, 181.
  - letter to, 172, 179.
- Low, Isaac, 292.
  - letter from, 297.
- Lowndes, Rawlins, 356.
- Loyalists, 405, 459, 479, 481.
- Luc, Jean André de, 201, 217.
- Lucas, W., letter from, 516.
- Lucayos, island of, 498.
- Lucé, M. de Marolles de, letters from, 357, 375.
- Lucea, port of, 527.
- Lutterloh, Emmanuel, 602, 603.
- Lyman :
  - Rev., 486.
  - Gen. Phineas, iv, viii, 52, 101.
  - —— letters from, 32, 33, 50, 58, 101, 110, 111.
- Lynche Creek, 477.
- Lynn in Boston Bay, 430.
- Lyons, John, chief justice of Dominica, letters from, 495, 511.
- Lyttleton. See Littleton.

M.

- Mabben, Godfrey, 419, 420.
- McArthur, John, 7.
- McCall, James, 167.
- McCarthy, D., letter from, 503.
- Macartney :
  - Sir George, desires an appointment, 515.
  - Lady Jane, letter from, 516.
- Macclesfield, Earl of, letters from, 586, 587, 588.
- McCobb, Samuel, 101.
- McCulloch, captain, 314.
- McDonald :
  - captain, 317.
  - Angus, 316.
  - —— sent to Hartford as a prisoner, 317.
- Macdonough, Thomas, letter from, 146.
- McDougal, Reynold, 52.
- McFarran and Dunlap, Messrs., 327.
- Machias, Machious, proceedings of the rebels at, 368, 398.
- McIntire, John, 74.
- Macintosh, William, letters from, 514, 542.
- McIsaac, Malcolm, 189.
- Mackay, captain, 561.
- McKay :
  - captain, ill-treatment of, 422.
  - lieutenant general, death of, 411.
- McKean, Thomas, 65.
- Mackenzie :
  - major, 532, 535.
  - commodore George, letter from, 396.
- Mackinnon, William, recommended for an appointment, 496.
- Macknight, Thomas, 291.
  - letters from, 463, 472, 478–80.
  - loyalty of, 472.
- Maclean, colonel Allen, fortifies Quebec, 386.
  - letter from, 385.
- McLean. See Dwarris and McLean.
  - lieutenant-colonel, 336.
  - Donald, letter from, 325.
- McLeane, Lauchlin, letter to, 57.
- McNutt, colonel Alexander :
  - hints given by, 585.
  - memorials from, 584.
- Macquet, Father, jesuit, 563.
- Madan, Rev. Martin, xiv.
  - letters from, 407, 528.
  - letters to, 190, 528.
- Madeira, 202, 264, 311, 513.
  - letter dated from, 527.
- Madrid, 275.
  - letter dated from, 530.
- Magdalen islands, 551.
- Maidenhead, letter dated from, 476.
- Maine, proposed annexation to New Hampshire, 204.
- Mair, Arthur, letter from, 395.
- Malcom, John, petitions of, 192, 263.
- Mallard. See Cruger and Mallard, Messrs.
- Mallet, J., letter from, 99.
- Malloun, Robert, appointment of, 538.
- Manchac, 80.
- Manchester, Duke of, 92, 97, 148, 309.
  - letters from, 37, 92, 104, 145, 154, 163, 476.
  - recommends his brother for an appointment, 104.
- Manchester, 527.
  - address of, 380.
  - merchants of, 46, 47.
  - (New England), letters dated from, 220, 221.
- Manesty, Jos., letters from, 25, 32, 34.
- Manser, Richard, letter to, 561.
- Mansfield :
  - Lord, 397, 562.
  - —— letter from, 566.
  - —— letter to, 566.
  - Mr., 514.
- Mant, major Thomas, letters from, 41, 50, 53.
- Marblehead, 230, 486.
  - town meeting at, 111.
- Marchmont, Lord, 223, 250.
- Mardon, Moses, 189.
- Margate, 569.
  - letter dated from, 445.
- Marnham, near Twyford, letters dated from, 146, 580.
- Marr, lieutenant, 559.
  - his remarks concerning Quebec, 560.

Marriott :
    Rev. George, desires a living, 569.
    J., Advocate General, memorial of, 439, 569.
Marsh, Reeve, & Co., Messrs., letter to, 350.
Marshalsea Prison, letter dated from, 573.
Marshalswick, near St. Albans, Herts, letter dated from, 496.
Marshel, Rev. William, 104.
Martense, captain Leffert, 192.
Martin :
    Mr., 511.
    —— recommended for an appointment, 515.
    David, letter from, 75.
    —— wishes to become a missionary, 75.
    F., letter from, 569.
    Governor Josiah, 184, 213, 323, 336, 399, 418, 478.
    —— charges made against, withdrawn, 180.
    —— conduct of, wins confidence, 397.
    —— danger of, 322.
    —— instructions to, 186.
    —— letters from, 214, 291, 302.
    —— letter to, 213.
    Samuel, letter from, 496.
Martinico, 531, 536, 543.
    French garrisons in, 468.
    incursions of the Charibbs into, 530.
Martyn, Samuel, of Newhey, complaints against, 473.
Mary, Queen, letter from, 2.
Maryland, 19, 45, 67, 76, 89, 182, 205, 222, 230, 240, 347, 352, 388, 403, 410, 434, 442, 470, 548.
    charter of, 31, 51.
    circular sent to the Governor of, 277.
    Convention meeting, 322.
    effect of Stamp Act in, 20.
    goods supplied to, from North Carolina, 458.
    Governor to raise men for the defence of New York, 2.
    office of sheriff of, 228.
    petition from the inhabitants of, 65, 459.
    proceedings in, 215, 223.
    rebellious behaviour of the people of, 235.
    survey and inspection of the ports of, 73.
    tobacco from, seized, 198.
Maseres, Francis, 564.
    letters from, 558, 559, 562, 566.
Maskelyn. See Watts and Maskelyn.
Mason :
    James, 355.
    John, 100.
Massachusetts, 4, 6, 26, 31, 44, 67, 75, 84, 88, 99, 103, 104, 107, 129, 135, 136, 150, 158, 200, 202, 204, 211, 222, 225, 246, 249, 250, 265, 273, 277, 283, 285, 301, 313, 331, 332, 379, 406, 407, 410, 422, 423, 468.
Massachusetts—cont.
    Act for regulating the Government of, 211, 266.
    agent for, De Berdt, iv.
    Assembly of (the Council and House of Representatives), 13, 23, 24, 35, 39, 42, 146, 156, 158, 164, 168–9.
    —— passes Test Act, 422.
    —— petition of, vi.
    Bill to alter the constitution of, 198.
    charter of, 51, 234.
    closing of the Courts of Justice in, 293.
    Committee of Correspondence, 229.
    Committee of Safety, 292. complaint of the Commissioner of Customs, 83.
    concerning the non-importation associations, 76.
    Council of, 16, 78, 80, 102, 151, 159, 185, 191, 208, 216, 336.
    councillors for, 69, 229, 336.
    death of the lieutenant governor of, 209.
    disorder in, 67, 73.
    fishery at, 325.
    General Court of, 102, 146, 151, 158, 161, 187.
    Governor of, his power to apprehend rioters, 246.
    —— to raise men for the defence of New York, 2.
    Governor, Assembly, and Council, journal, 3.
    grant to De Berdt, 88, 89.
    House of Representatives, 7, 12, 13, 16, 21, 24, 40, 43, 166, 168, 192, 199, 205, 216.
    —— petitions to the King, 85, 152–3.
    —— vote of thanks to Lord Dartmouth, 45.
    —— votes of, unconstitutional, 64.
    judges in, called to meet the mob, 229.
    militia laws in, 408.
    mis-government in, 73.
    papers concerning, to be laid before the House of Lords, 209.
    petitions from the inhabitants of, 65, 158.
    plans for the restoration of order in, 246.
    —— to be represented in Parliament, 51.
    Provincial Congress, x, 230, 239, 246, 283, 337.
    revenue from, 11.
    trade of, 11, 57.
Masserano, prince de, Spanish ambassador, letters from, 163, 369, 370.
Massey, general, 498, 595.
Massie, J., 213.
Mast trees, preservation of, for the Royal Navy, 43, 44, 84, 588.
Mathews, major-general, 475.
Mathias, Emanuel, letter from, 233.
Maty, Dr. M., letter from, 535.
Mauduit, Israel :
    letter from, 255.
    letters to, 12, 255, 256.

Mauger (Joshua), 591.
  letter from, 588.
Maugerville (Major Ville), smuggling at, 587.
Maunsell, John, letter from, 389.
Maxwell, Major, 347.
Mayne :
  Robert, 446.
  Thomas de la, letter from, 189.
Meadows, Ph., 4.
Mease, Mr., 485.
Mecklenburgh co., North Carolina, 323.
Medcalfe, Mr., 198.
Medford, letter dated from, 273.
Mein, Mr., 76.
Melvill, general Robert, governor of Grenada, letters from, 23, 513, 540.
Mercer, colonel George, 183.
  letters from, 376, 515.
  memorial of, 82.
Meredith :
  captain, 333.
  Sir William, 396.
Merges, letter dated from, 103.
Messnard, captain, 255.
Mexico, 111, 381.
Meyrick, —, 588, 596.
  letters from, 587.
Michilimackinac, 57, 570.
Middlebush, 442.
Middleton, Sir Charles, 481, 482.
  letter to, 482.
Middletown, Connecticut, 420, 422.
Middlewick, Cheshire, letter dated from, 17.
Mifflin :
  Samuel, 23.
  Thomas, American general, 340.
  —— quarrels with the Congress, 470.
Mikak, an Esquimaux woman, 575.
Milford Haven, 369, 393.
Milksham, 387.
Milligen or Milligan, Mr., 354, 355.
Milton, Massachusetts, letter dated from, 40.
Mingan, island of, 551, 574.
Minorca, 318.
Miquelon, island of, 129, 545, 583, 593.
Mirepoix, duc de, anonymous letters addressed to, 7.
Mississippi, riv., 18, 46, 47, 53, 58, 61, 66, 73, 74, 79, 80, 108, 129, 184, 212, 215, 222, 252, 393, 422, 471, 566. concerning settlements on the, 52, 80, 96, 100, 101, 111, 122.
  Custom House of, 108.
  establishing of a government on, 106, 125, 126, 225.
  goods transported up the, 46.
  Indian trade on the, 55.
  navigation of the, 50.
  proposed building of a church on the, 218.
  protection to the settlers on, 78.
  seizure of British vessels on, 472.
Missouri, the, 66.
  erection of a fort at the mouth of, 17, 66.
Mitchell (Peter), Secretary of the East India Company, 351.
Mobile, 108, 422.
  letters dated from, 14, 225, 238.
  manner of living at, 58.
  unhealthy quarters for British troops, 58.
Mohawk river, 484.
  hemp plantation upon the, 21.
Moira, Earl of, letter and petition from, 18.
Moira, Ireland, letter dated from, 18.
Molé, de, President of Parliament of Paris, 546.
Molleson, William, 322, 242.
  desires an audience, 223.
  letters from, 223, 240, 241, 244, 245, 321, 351, 392, 415.
  letters to, 223.
Moltke, count, 476.
Monckton, general, 146, 279.
Moncrief :
  lieutenant, 314.
  —— taken prisoner, 315.
  major, letter to, 423.
Monk, James, Solicitor General, Nova Scotia, 253, 588, 594, 597, 598. appointment of, as Attorney-General of Quebec, 600.
  letter from, 590.
Montagu :
  —, agent (for Grenada), 514.
  captain, 374.
  Lord Charles Greville, 45, 76, 92, 104, 127, 130, 145, 188.
  —— desires an appointment, 476.
  —— letters from, 148, 176, 187.
  —— narrow escape of, 333.
  —— pecuniary losses of, 187.
  —— petitions from, 92, 176.
  —— sails for England, 129.
  —— sudden departure from his government, 148.
  —— suffers from the climate of Carolina, 148.
  Edward, 398.
  —— letters from, 388, 390, 397.
  —— letter to, 398.
  Frederick, letters from, 87, 220, 556.
  Admiral (James), 85, 86, 88, 90, 91, 193, 194, 197, 220.
  —— his opinion as to British Acts of Parliament in America, 156.
  —— instructions to, to seize St. Pierre and Miquelon, 583.
  —— letter from, 85.
  —— squadron of, to be reinforced, 198, 245.
Montcalm, marquis de, 549, 562, 571.
  letters from, 545, 546.
Montesson, Madame, 576, 577.
Montfort, Lord, letter from, 209.
Montgomerie, Hugh, letter from, 559.
Montgomery, general, 384. attacks St. John's, 371.
  death of, 382, 386.
Monticello, letter dated from, 361.
Montour, —, 321.

Montreal, 199, 310, 384, 387, 394, 548, 549, 553, 554, 560. advice from, 423.
  business suspended at, 384, 402.
  fears for safety of, 400.
  letters dated from, 225, 309, 320, 353, 426, 545, 555, 562, 569, 571, 582.
  martial law proclaimed, 320.
  merchants of, ordered to assist Ethan Allen and his forces, 309.
  ordnance at, 330.
Montresor (Montressor), Captain John, 313, 340.
Moor Park, Herts, letter dated from, 512.
Moore:
  Arthur, 4.
  Benjamin, letter from, 329.
  John, letter from, 351.
  Sir Henry, 19, 39, 76, 121.
  —— letters from, 33, 36, 41, 50, 52.
  —— warrant of survey issued by, 155.
  Thomas, life of, 492.
  William, 101.
Moravians, 234, 574–6, 578, 579.
Mordaunt, Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas:
  letter from, 449.
  retirement of, 449.
Morden College, letter dated from, 412.
Morden, Mr., 107.
More, John, letter from, 96.
Morgan, —, 444.
  —— memorial from, 21.
  Mr., 92, 96.
Morison, Francis, Commissioner to inquire into disturbances in Virginia, 1.
Morland, Ensign, seizure of, 316.
Morley, 476.
Morris. See Willing, Morris, & Co.
  —, of Nova Scotia, 597; letter from, 588.
  captain, 396.
  Alexander, appointment of, 590.
  Corbyn, letters from, 182, 198, 200, 203, 256.
  Israel, 430.
  Colonel Lewis, 364, 374.
  Robert Hunter, 124.
  Governor Valentine, 478, 484, 536–9.
  —— appointment of, 533.
  —— desires an appointment, 495.
  —— illness of his wife, 496.
  —— letters from, 495–7, 533, 536–9.
  —— salary of, 537.
  Wilmot, 538.
Morrison, James, letter to, 309.
Morton:
  Dr. C., Royal Society, letter from, 131.
  —— letter to, 163.
  Major-General J., President of the Corporation of New York, 490, 491.
  John, Pennsylvania, letters from, 65, 311.
Mosquito Shore, 251, 526, 540.
Mott, American officer, 381.
  Gersham, 35.
Motteux, John, 301.
  letter to, 343.
Moule, near Keswick, letter dated from, 225.
Moultrie, John, address to, 78.
Mount Edgecumbe, letters dated from, 88, 97.
Mountmorris, Lord, letter to, 90.
Mud Island, Delaware river, 450.
Mud Island Fort, ordnance and stores captured at, 452.
Mulcaster, Frederick George, 79, 142, 231, 283.
  appointment of, 229.
Munro, Hector, letter from, 542.
Murdock, William, 65.
Mure, Son and Atkinson, Messrs., letters from, 432, 436, 439, 440, 441, 448, 451, 452, 454, 457. letter to, 433.
Murray:
  colonel, 123.
  James, lieutenant-governor of Quebec, 549, 551, 555, 556, 558, 561–3, 573.
  —— charges against, 548, 550, 552.
  —— instructions to, 546, 547, 551–4.
  Robert and John, 294.
  W., solicitor-general, 6.
Musgrave:
  lieutenant-colonel, misconduct of, 518.
  —— recommended, 527.
  Sir Philip, letter from, 527.
  —— letter to, 158.
Muy, M. de, 323.

N.

Nain, Labrador, 577, 579.
  letter dated from, 574.
Nancrede, Joseph, 489.
Nantes, 443, 468.
Nantucket, 350.
  letter dated from, 351.
Naples, letter dated from, 275.
Nash, Abner, 331.
Nassau, New Providence, letter dated from, 503.
Natchez, 125, 126, 225.
Naval proceedings, inquiry into. See Commons, House of.
Navy, the:
  North Carolina the reservoir for framing and supporting, 213.
  trees reserved for the use of, 43, 44, 84, 588.
  See also British squadron in America.
Neale:
  colonel, 355.
  Ligon, and Booth, Messrs., 54.
Neate, William, letter to, 288, 298.

- Neave and Son, merchants, 23.
- Neave, Richard, 439, 441, 442.
  - applies for a grant of land, 220.
- Negro, burning of a, 354.
- Negroes:
  - in America, 5, 433.
  - in West Indies, 536.
  - sale of, 180.
  - See also Slave Trade.
- Neilson, Archibald, letter from, 418.
- Nelson, Mr., 140.
- Nepean, Mr., 481.
- Nesbitt, attorney-general of Nova Scotia, 590.
- Nesbitt, Drummond, and Franks, Messrs., letter to, 446.
- Nethercote, Charles, letter from, 525.
- Netherlands, 347. (See also Holland).
- Nettleton, Robert, letter from, 508.
- Nevis island, 528.
- Newark Academy, 325.
- Newbern, 322, 458.
  - letters dated from, 180, 207, 214, 291, 302.
- New Bordeaux, French settlement, 43.
- New Brunswick, (N.J.), 442.
- Newbury, 77, 284, 486.
- Newcastle, Duke of, iii, 555.
  - letters from, 29, 31, 210.
- Newcastle on Delaware, 350, 446.
  - county of, 65, 325.
- Newcastle house, letter dated from, 29.
- New Concord, petition from the inhabitants of, 208.
- Newdigate, Sir Roger, letter from, 210.
- New England, 24, 25, 45, 67, 72, 104, 110, 129, 131, 138, 143, 145, 150, 152, 176, 182, 212, 220, 221, 226, 233, 252, 255, 263, 269, 280, 282, 285, 289, 304, 312, 314, 316, 337, 366, 382, 385, 402, 409, 415, 447, 455, 471, 545, 580, 592, 595.
  - embargo upon all ships in the ports of, 408.
  - grievances, list of, 187.
  - much in debt, 297.
  - persecuted royalists of, 290.
  - preparations for war in, 278, 301, 308.
  - prisoners sent into, 314.
  - prohibition of fisheries to, 272.
  - quit-rents of, 143.
  - republican spirit taken by first emigrants to, 305.
  - troops of, 307, 442, 470.
- New Englanders:
  - ill-treatment of Indians by, 606.
  - invade Canada, 383.
  - loyal, yet zealous of constitutional rights, 273.
  - oath required from, when attending the fisheries, 345.
  - seize Ticonderoga, &c., 311, 322.
- Newenham, Edward, letter from, 467.
- Newfoundland, 67, 393, 488, 574, 575, 577, 580.
  - capture of ships near, 421.
  - correspondence and papers relating to, 581–3.
- Newfoundland—cont.
  - defence of, 67.
  - fishery, 295, 298, 545, 559, 576–81, 583, 593.
  - —— Mr. de Berdt on the cod fishery, 185.
  - —— injured by Governor Palliser and his officers, 54.
  - —— New Englanders engaged in, to take oath of allegiance, 345.
  - fortifications of, 559.
  - harbours in, 68.
  - merchants, petition from, 52.
  - supplies to, from America stopped, 295, 297, 298, 303.
  - Vice-Admiralty Court in, 146.
- New Grove, 106.
- New Hampshire, 6, 44, 57, 67, 84, 101, 107, 110, 121, 128, 129, 138, 144, 146, 150, 151, 155, 164, 177, 191, 205, 206, 221, 250, 260, 273, 275, 277, 282, 283, 299, 321, 363, 410, 464, 480, 486, 488, 490, 492.
  - appointment of a secretary and chief justice for, 52.
  - complaint against the governor of, 77, 122.
  - council of, 146, 194.
  - Court of Common Pleas in, 9.
  - disputed grants in, viii, 105, 107, 109, 121.
  - forts in, robbed of cannon, 321.
  - governor of, forced to leave town, 321.
  - militia of, 6.
  - proposed annexation of Maine to, 204.
  - recovery of debts in, 107.
  - riots in, 105.
- New Haven, Connecticut, 346, 426.
  - general court held at, 403.
  - letter dated from, 293.
  - unhealthy state of, 293.
- Newhey, 473.
  - smugglers at, 472.
- New Jersey, 22, 102, 128, 178, 190, 275, 277, 301, 306, 314, 316, 406, 410, 413, 425, 430, 540.
  - address from the clergy of, 219.
  - Assembly, 124.
  - —— votes of, against the Stamp Act, 25.
  - commerce stopped, 306.
  - offices and officers in, 488.
  - petitions from the inhabitants of, 65, 288, 459.
  - Presbyterians of, 144.
  - recovery of debts in, 107.
  - riots and disorder in, 301, 306.
- New London, Connecticut, 417.
- Newmarch, Timothy, letter from, 353.
- New Orleans, 46, 47, 54, 61, 124, 129, 472.
- Newport (Nova Scotia), 598.
  - (Rhode Island), 8, 12, 373.
  - —— letter dated from, 452.
  - —— "Liberty" destroyed at, 119.
- New Providence, 393, 394, 417, 428, 498–504.

- New Providence—cont.
  - abuses and misgovernment in, 503.
  - sold to the Americans, 503.
  - unhealthy state of, 503.
- New Romney, Richard Jackson M.P. for, xvi.
- Newspaper cuttings, 18, 19, 21, 135, 138, 141, 147, 149, 229, 231, 235, 259, 263, 313, 491, 492, 529.
- Newspapers:
  - Boston Evening Post, 20.
  - Boston Gazette, 20, 24, 76, 131.
  - Chronicle, 15.
  - Constitutional Courant, 19.
  - Constitutional Gazette, 411.
  - Daily Advertiser, 35.
  - Daily Ledger, 203.
  - Essex Gazette, 304.
  - Evening Post, 22.
  - Lewes Journal, 475.
  - London Chronicle, 432.
  - London Evening Post Extraordinary, 304.
  - London Gazette Extraordinary, 448, 452.
  - Maryland Gazette, 215.
  - Massachusetts Gazette and Boston Weekly News-letter, 22, 42, 76, 159, 161, 162, 165, 189, 194, 287.
  - New Hampshire Gazette and Historical Chronicle, 197.
  - Newport Mercury, 15.
  - New York Gazette and Weekly Mercury, 30, 437, 438.
  - New York Gazetteer, 277, 338.
  - New York Journal, 76.
  - New York Journal of Commerce, 492.
  - North Carolina Gazette, 76, 291.
  - Pennsylvania Journal, 552.
  - Public Advertiser, 132, 138, 147, 164, 171, 216, 234, 235, 533.
  - Public Ledger, 196.
  - Quebec Gazette, 551.
  - Quebec Weekly Advertiser, 277.
  - Rockingham Gazette, 489.
  - Royal American Gazette, 437.
  - South Carolina Gazette, 76.
  - Virginia Gazette, 127, 426.
- New Straight, township of, 195.
- Newton, letter dated from, 110.
  - Henry, petition of, 595.
  - John, xiv, 25, 476.
- New York, city or province, 13, 16, 22, 26, 40, 60, 67, 76, 89, 91, 95, 97, 101, 105, 107, 119, 121, 125, 126, 130, 135, 145–7, 152, 155, 157, 159, 160, 165, 173, 185, 187–90, 197, 205, 214, 218, 219, 222, 230, 232–4, 238, 240, 244, 245, 253–5, 258, 266, 274, 278, 287, 295, 298, 301, 308, 314, 322, 326, 339, 340, 347, 363, 366, 369, 370, 383, 384, 395, 402, 409, 410, 422, 423, 425–7, 431, 441, 442, 444, 447, 450, 452, 458, 460, 462, 464–6, 468, 471, 475, 477, 481, 483–6, 488–94, 530.
  - Academy of Fine Arts, 491.
  - Act passed in, to regulate elections in Albany, 285, 287.
- New York—cont.
  - Act passed in, for the quieting of His Majesty's subjects, 287.
  - address from the clergy of, 219.
  - address to the inhabitants of, 402.
  - arms of the city seized, 295.
  - assembly, the, 36, 236, 274, 276, 298, 306, 327.
  - —— allegiance of, 30.
  - —— complaints against, 4.
  - —— excludes Judge Livingston, 105.
  - —— extract from the journal of, 30.
  - —— extraordinary proceedings of, 245.
  - —— grievances of, 282.
  - —— judges of Supreme Court not to sit or vote in, 105.
  - —— motions passed by, 264.
  - —— opposed to the Stamp Act, 30.
  - —— opposed to the measures of Congress, 274, 276.
  - —— petitions from, 64, 281.
  - —— petitions mentioned, 326, 359.
  - —— petitions rejected by the Lords, 309.
  - boundary of, 128, 175.
  - burning of stamped paper in, 33.
  - church of England in, 117, 118.
  - classes of the people in, 26.
  - college of, 49, 224 See also King's College.
  - Columbia College in, (formerly King's College), viii.
  - Committee [of Correspondence], proceedings of, 223, 230, 293, 294, 309.
  - complaints of, 65.
  - congress held at, in 1765, 20.
  - corporation of, 490–2.
  - council of, 225, 228, 301.
  - —— king displeased at the conduct of, 408.
  - —— minutes of, 33, 148, 200.
  - Cruger family in, 296.
  - Custom House seized, 295.
  - —— keys seized from the collector, 339.
  - delegates of, the ablest in Congress, 316.
  - deplorable state of things in, 36.
  - descent on, suggested, 342.
  - destruction of, determined, 414.
  - directed by Congress to raise 3,000 men, 306.
  - distress in; 29, 458.
  - Dutch church in, 82, 160.
  - episcopate wanted for, 219.
  - faction in, 278.
  - famine expected, 435.
  - fort, burning of, in 1741, 5.
  - Fort George, fire at, 184, 189, 214, 215, 244.
  - —— letters and minutes dated at, 33 41, 128, 148, 154.
  - Gages' inclination to make himself master of, 378.
  - Hasenclever's iron factory in, 20, 21.
  - harbour of, 254.

- New York—cont.
  - hates the New Englanders, 316.
  - Highlands of, 471.
  - joins the other provinces, 298, 301.
  - King's College in, letter dated from, 329.
  - lands in, 290–2.
  - —— fees for grants, 107.
  - —— granted by Tryon, 208.
  - —— petitions for, 218.
  - —— recommended for one of Lord Dartmouth's sons, 194.
  - —— requested for Dartmouth College, 117–118.
  - letters dated from, 10. 17, 26, 32, 50, 58, 61, 99, 105, 107, 119, 135, 154, 157, 160, 189, 205, 208, 219, 222, 232, 236, 237, 240, 254, 255, 272, 274, 276, 278, 285, 287, 290, 294–8, 311, 313, 324–9, 343, 346, 350, 351, 364, 375, 377, 402, 417, 423, 425–7, 429, 431, 434, 436–40, 447, 455, 458, 475, 479, 482, 488–94, 548, 569.
  - merchants of, 54, 131.
  - —— petition from, 50.
  - —— threatened bankruptcy of, 297.
  - militia, 215, 250.
  - mob fired on by captain Vandeput, 374, 377.
  - Naval office at, 165, 166, 167, 189.
  - O'Callaghan's Documents relating to the Colonial History of, 7, 26.
  - offices and officers in, 488.
  - out-herods Herod, 316.
  - packet, detention of the, 238.
  - packets to, stopped, 389.
  - people united in, and determined to be free, 285.
  - —— make provision to support the pass at Ticonderoga, 313.
  - ports of, blocked, 295, 319.
  - preparations for war, 285, 289.
  - Presbyterian church in, 38, 47, 178, 284, 371.
  - Provincial Congress, 329, 330.
  - quit-rents in, 10, 41, 58.
  - reasons for taking immediate possession of, 334.
  - revenue in, 3, 4.
  - smugglers at, 230.
  - Sons of Liberty, 42.
  - South Street, letters dated from, 489–92.
  - stores near, seized, 317.
  - trade of, 57, 327.
  - trade with Holland, 42.
  - troops for, 307.
  - troops required by Howe for, 315.
- Niagara, 565.
  - securing of, 61.
- Nicholl, Sir Charles Gunter, daughter of, marries Lord Dartmouth, iii.
- Nickolls, Rev. Robert Boucher, letter from, 348.
- Nicolson (captain Samuel), 443.
- Nielston, letter dated from, 50.
- Nile, the, 522.
- Nimham (Nineham), captain Abraham, 309, 310.
- Nivernois, Duc de, letter from, 565.
- Nixon, American general, 440, 444.
- Noailles, Marquis de, French ambassador, declaration delivered by, 461.
- Noble, captain Robert, 6–8, 576, 578.
- Noddles Island, skirmish on, 311.
- Noix, Isle aux, 383.
- Non-importation associations and resolutions, 75, 125, 221, 226, 230, 234, 235, 237, 243, 245, 250, 257, 259, 267, 270, 292, 294, 324.
- Norfolk, Virginia, 361.
- North, Lord, ii, iii, v, xi, xiii, 76, 84, 113, 114, 165, 180, 182, 220, 227, 228, 233, 236, 240, 242, 256, 261, 263, 264, 266, 270, 271, 275, 286, 308, 316, 318, 324, 325, 328, 349, 352, 363, 389, 397, 399, 400, 401, 403, 409, 410, 414, 419, 420, 433–5, 455, 464, 471, 472, 477–9, 481, 513, 557, 558, 560–2, 564, 569, 597.
  - application to, for relief, 415.
  - letters from, 86, 197, 204, 221, 251, 288, 289, 297, 398, 399, 456, 457, 463, 464, 467, 470, 474, 478.
  - letters to, 81, 86, 87, 248, 255, 263, 293, 298, 386.
  - Letters of Geo. III. to, (Donne), x.
  - memorials to, 415, 463, 481, 508.
  - prepares for the campaign, 392.
  - reported declaration of, 284.
  - volume dedicated to, 451.
- North Allerton, Kirkleatham near, letter dated from, 106, 107.
- Northampton, Earl of, letter from, 524.
- North Carolina. See Carolina, North.
- Northern army, the (i.e., Burgoyne's), 435, 440.
- Northern Department, the, 137.
- Northey, Edward, 548.
- North River, 334, 435, 443, 447.
  - expedition up the, 448.
- Northumberland :
  - Duke of, letter from, 221.
  - Duchess of, letter from, 221.
- Norton, Sir Fletcher, attorney-general, 134, 548.
- Norwalk, 428.
- Norwich, 361.
- Nouvelle France, map of, 487.
- Novar, letter dated from, 542.
- No-variation line, 381.
- Nova Scotia, 35, 57, 67, 107, 125, 256, 409, 415, 416, 424.
  - Act passed in, for raising militia, &c., 596, 598.
  - correspondence and papers relating to, 583–602.
  - defence of, 67.
  - fishery and commerce stopped, 295.
  - illness of the governor, 130.
  - King's College in, 600.
  - Volunteers, 599.
- Nowlan and Leacocke, Messrs., 311.
- Nugent, Oliver, 497.
  - letter from, 510.

Nunn, captain, 441.
Nursing Island, 422, 428.

O.

Oath of Allegiance:
  [to Congress] tendered to loyal subjects, 354, 356.
  —— tendered to inhabitants of Rhode Island, 404.
  to the King, list of deserters from the American army who have taken the, 462.
O'Callaghan's Documents relating to the Colonial History of New York, 7, 26.
Occom, Rev. Samson, xiv, 48, 132.
Occraook, 458.
Œufs, Riviere aux, 574.
Officers serving in late French war desire promised grants of lands, 122–3.
Ogden, Mr., 144.
Ogilvie:
  colonel, 442.
  Dr., 236.
O'Hara, lieutenant-colonel Charles, 505.
Ohio, the, 21, 47, 88, 100, 111, 155, 159, 163, 317, 364, 566. battle fought near, 245.
  Company, 174.
  establishing forts at, 55.
  French people killed on, 58.
  goods smuggled up, 47.
  grant, viii, 150, 172.
  inhabitants on, driven inland, 230.
  petition for a grant of land on, 86.
  settlements on, 94, 96, 103–4.
  trade on, 55, 74.
  —— plan for regulating, 402.
  traders and settlers prohibited from going up, 61.
Oldham, Mr., letter to, 58.
"Olive Branch" second petition of Congress, vi.
Oliver:
  chief justice Andrew, 239.
  lieutenant-governor Andrew, vii, 8, 164, 170, 199, 207, 210.
  —— letters from, 102, 159, 191, 239, 413.
  Professor Daniel, 489.
  Peter, commissioner to inquire into the "Gaspee" affair, 92, 94.
  Richard, letter to, 439.
  councillor Thomas, 239.
Olives, culture of, 46, 97.
Onondago, 154.
Onslow, Mr., 31.
Onslow, Nova Scotia, petition from inhabitants of, 596.
Onvide, letter dated from, 153.
Opposition, the, 363.
Oran, 308.
Orange county, New York, militia of, 198.
Orange regiment, return of the, 188.
Orange, Prince of, 405.
Oration, An, paper called, 78.
Ord, colonel, 262.
Orders in Council, 5, 23, 73, 88, 89, 90, 113, 172, 174, 177.
Osbaldeston, sergeant John, letter from, 377, 378.
Osborn:
  John, letter from, 92.
  Mrs. S., letter from, 188.
Oswald, Richard, ix.
  letters and papers from, 268, 271, 272, 274, 460, 461, 477, 478.
Otis, James, 30, 35, 65.
Ottawa, 545, 573.
Ouabache. See Wabash river.
Oughton, Sir James Adolphus, xvi, 271.
  letters from, 200, 202, 271, 276, 349, 360, 363, 380, 403, 449, 450, 463, 520.
  letter to, 322.
Owen, W., 51.
Oxford University, ii, xiii.

P.

Padmore, Mr., letter to, 181.
Padstow, letter dated from, 473.
Page:
  Mr., 420.
  engineer, 333.
  Rev. Bernard, letters from, 100, 403.
  Sir Gregory, letter to, 335.
Paine, Mr., author of the "Crisis," 439.
Painter, J., letter from, 385.
Paisley, letter dated from, 104.
Pakacktan river, 484.
Palliser, Sir Hugh, 39, 54.
  —— governor of Newfoundland, 397, 551, 575, 577.
Palmer, Thomas, 127.
  letter from, 527.
Panton, Rev. George, letter from, 370.
Paper currency, 55, 185, 187, 366, 435, 446, 450. depreciation of the, 454.
  Three-dollar Bill, 435.
Papplewick, letters dated from, 87, 556.
Paris:
  American agents at, 468.
  letters dated from, 104, 243, 357, 375, 515, 562, 565, 576.
  Parliament of, 513.
  Treaty of (1763), 11, 516, 548, 574.
Parker:
  Mr., 265, 579.
  captain Hyde, 417.
  Joseph, letter to, 386.

Parker—cont.
  Sir Peter, 397, 424, 425, 433, 504.
  —— appointment of, 396.
  —— arrival of his fleet at New York, 423.
  —— wounded, 425.
  Thomas, letter from, 284.
  William, 456.
Parliament, 9, 16, 24, 28, 37, 39, 47, 48, 52, 55, 68, 97, 101, 122, 168, 169, 176, 197, 198, 199, 211, 220, 227, 235, 242, 244, 246, 252, 254, 259, 261, 264, 274, 279, 283, 288, 289, 297, 306, 313, 314, 316, 346, 347, 362, 374, 391, 402, 412, 458, 459, 460, 468, 484, 544, 556.
  addresses to the King, 67, 268.
  King's message to, 201.
  —— speech to, 69, 190, 474.
  question of taxation by, 33, 56, 64, 101–2, 156.
  —— of American representation in, 51, 204, 244.
  resolutions of, 67, 408.
  too sanguine of America acceding, 266.
Parry :
  lieutenant, 404.
  admiral William, 531, 532.
  —— letter from, 511.
Parsons:
  captain, 394.
  Wm., letters from, 394, 395, 396.
  —— letter to, 395.
Partridge, Oliver, 65.
Paterson:
  —, American general, 444.
  Alexander, wounded, 387.
Patterson:
  Ann, 189.
  J., adjutant-general, letter from, 436.
  Walter, governor of St. John, 52, 605, 606.
  and Grant, Messrs., letter from, 385.
Paulus Hook, 427, 477.
Paxton, (Charles), 164.
Payne:
  George, desires employment, 266.
  Sir Ralph, 531.
  —— letters from, 495, 497, 527–9.
  —— visit of, to England, 497.
  Lady, 497, 527.
Peabody, —, magistrate, accusations against, 587.
Pearson:
  captain, letter from, 442.
  James, letter to, 36.
Peek's Kill Town and Bay, 435.
Pemaquid, 101.
Pemberton:
  John, letter from, 307.
  Samuel, 72.
Pembroke, Mass., grievances at, 115.
Pencader, 444.
Penderleath, captain, 261.
Penn:
  Mr., 370.
  —— petition from, 352.
Penn—cont.
  governor John, letter from, 308.
  —— unpleasant position of, 308.
  Richard, letter from, 358.
  —— letter to, 360.
  William, petition of, 2.
  Lady Juliana, letter to, 339.
Pennant, Mr., 419.
Pennsylvania, 2, 46, 67, 74, 76, 89, 100, 152, 160, 187, 205, 222, 240, 242, 245, 275, 277, 347, 387, 395, 406, 410, 438, 440, 447, 452, 459, 466.
  accounts of, with Congress, 454. agent for—B. Franklin, iv.
  Assembly, 427.
  assessment in, 455.
  charter of, 6, 51.
  concerning Acts passed in, 104.
  debt of, 454.
  foreign trade of, 187.
  inhabitants of, disposition of, 145.
  —— number of, 454.
  —— petitions from, 65, 459.
  merchants, memorial from, 14.
  plan to represent in Parliament, 51.
Penny, Taylor, letter from, 473.
Penobscot Bay, 486.
Penobscot River, 104, 186.
Pensacola, 106, 144, 169, 212, 393, 394, 417.
  deplorable condition of inhabitants of, 13.
  French at, 106.
  letters dated from, 14, 73, 78–80, 269.
  manner of living at, 58.
Pepperrell:
  A., desires an appointment, 299, 371.
  —— imprisonment of, 464.
  —— letters from, 287, 299, 352, 371, 464.
  —— letter to, 465.
  —— property seized, 352, 464.
  Sir W., 465.
  —— letter from, 308.
  William, 97, 156.
Percy:
  Earl, 290, 312.
  —— arrival at Boston, 221.
  —— letter from, 317–8.
  Mr., 422.
Perley, Israel, 587.
Peronneau, Henry, 207.
Perry, James, 445.
  letters from, 280, 378, 389, 444.
  letter to, 295.
Persey, Mr., preaching of, 211.
Perth Amboy, 422.
  letters dated from, 102, 275, 411.
Peters:
  colonel John, 205.
  Rev. Samuel, 227.
  —— bound for London, 227.
  —— desires an appointment, 275.
  —— distress of, 274.
  —— letters from, 274, 280, 489.
  —— treatment of, 231.
Petersfield, letters dated from, 161, 180.

Petworth, letter dated from, 555.
Phelippeaux Bay, 551, 574.
Phelps, Elisha, 314.
Philadelphia, 6, 15, 41, 54, 104, 119, 138, 184, 194, 199, 214, 230, 231, 232, 245, 254, 269, 271, 275, 280, 288, 291, 294–7, 300–3, 307, 308, 311–17, 319, 320, 343, 348, 366, 368, 370, 373, 387, 388, 390, 391, 401, 402, 412, 422, 423, 429–31, 435, 438, 445, 447–50, 452, 456, 458, 460–3, 465, 471, 476, 481, 594.
  army preparing in, 308. arrival of gunpowder at, 350.
  artillery of, 395.
  closing of the port of, 373.
  College, 6.
  discontent at, 395.
  distressing state of, 460.
  exports of, 455.
  houses and inhabitants in, 455.
  letters dated from, 36, 54, 57, 138, 211, 217, 231, 244, 284, 288, 295, 300–2, 305, 307, 308, 311–4, 317, 331, 333–7, 339, 341, 343, 346–8, 371, 373, 376, 404, 412, 448, 449, 454, 455, 460, 462, 465.
  line of march of Washington's army through, 454.
  memorial dated from, 14.
  merchants of, 21, 22.
  —— resolve on non-importation, 23.
  military manœuvres in, 312.
  observatory at, 365
  public libraries at, 452.
  slaves from, 395.
  town meeting at, 185.
"Philalethes," article signed, 159, 161, 162, 165.
Philips, Mr., letter from, 310.
Phillips :
  colonel and major-general, 349, 441.
  Mr., death of, 472.
Phipps, captain, letter to, 364.
Pictou, 585.
Pierce, Daniel, death of, 194.
Piercy, Rev. Mr., 166, 435.
Pierie, lieutenant, letter from, 349.
Pigot, brigadier-general and colonel, 319, 344.
Pilgrim, letter dated from, 507.
Pinco, lieutenant, 598.
Pinfold, governor Charles, 504.
Pinson, Andrew, 576.
  unlawful seizure by, 578.
Pintard, S., letter from, 297.
Piscattery, repulse of the enemy at, 442.
Pitcairn, John, letter from, 307.
Pitcher, commissary, 488.
Pitman, captain Frederick Cobbe, memorial of, 93.
Pitt :
  Mr. Secretary, 11.
  —— letter from, 9.
  Lord, 397.
  —— narrow escape of, 386.
  Thomas, 220.
  —— letter from, 431.
  —— letter to, 191.
Pitt—cont.
  William, 483.
  —— death of, 489.
Pittsburg, 81, 317, 374.
Pitt's Harbour, 577.
Pittsylvania, establishment of a colony called, 75.
Placentia, 52, 249.
  fortifications of, 68, 484, 581, 582.
  letter dated from, 586.
Plants :
  translation of, from East to West Indies, 540.
  American. See America.
Plough Hill, 375.
Plymouth :
  (England), 228, 229, 472, 531.
  —— American prisoners at, 473.
  —— measures for defence of, 474.
  —— Thaneke near, 357.
  or Plimouth, Mass., 112, 204.
  —— town meeting at, 112.
Point Coupé, 125, 126.
Poland, 93, 107.
Pollock, William, 127.
  letter from, 421.
Pomereau, —, 574.
Pontefract, letter dated from, 519.
Pontiac War, the, 546.
Poole, 591.
Popple :
  governor Alured, 508.
  Henry, letter from, 508.
Popplewick, letter dated from, 220.
Porlier, —, 550.
Porte, the. See Turkey.
Porten, Sir Stanier, 99, 137, 323, 375, 383.
  letters from, 235, 260, 378, 529.
  letters to, 368, 369.
Port Glasgow, custom house, letter dated from, 426.
Portland, Duke of, letter from, 215.
Porto Rico, Isle of, 499.
Portskewett, letter dated from, 54.
Portsmouth (England), 229, 298, 361, 404.
  letters dated from, 181, 418, 583.
Portsmouth (New Hants), letters dated from, 77, 129, 155, 278, 282, 289, 321, 371.
Portsmouth prints, 489.
Portugal, 16, 201, 264.
  Jesuits expelled from, 549.
  trade of, 27, 57.
Postage, rates of, in Great Britain, Ireland, and the Plantations, 411. See also London, General Post Office.
Post Office, establishment of, in America, 205.
Potomac, North, collectorship of customs for, 230, 240.
Potomac River, locks in, 487.
Powell :
  —, printer, commitment of, 188.
  brigadier, 446.
  Mr., recommended for an appointment, 145.
  Thomas, merchant, letter to, 311.
  Trueman, 7, 8.

- Powley's Hook. See Paulus Hook.
- Pownall:
  - George, secretary of the province of Quebec, letter from, 386.
  - John, xvii, 39, 76, 81, 86, 87, 93, 96, 115, 121, 133, 166, 198, 219, 249, 252, 323, 368, 399, 412, 413, 414, 477, 502, 548, 562, 563, 571.
    - —— deed and papers lodged with, 126.
    - —— indisposition of, 99.
    - —— letters from, 87, 90, 91, 93, 95, 96–9, 115, 127, 184, 220, 230, 240, 251, 264, 304, 347, 349, 352, 358, 359, 372, 375, 380, 381, 392, 408, 409, 412, 455, 487, 505, 531, 569.
    - —— letters to, 12–14, 25, 69, 174, 176, 191, 229, 235, 260, 270, 288, 378, 381, 385, 522, 523, 565, 570, 571, 588, 589, 603.
    - —— resignation of, 412.
  - governor Thomas, xvii, 164, 245.
    - —— letters from, 163, 165.
- Powys:
  - Thomas, letter to, 230.
  - Mrs., 230.
- Pratt, Mr., 500.
- Prentis, —, 361.
- Presbyterian churches:
  - of New Jersey, 85, 144.
  - of New York, 38, 47, 178, 284.
- Prescott, general Richard, 315, 427, 442.
- President of the Council, letter to, 122.
- Preston, major, 379.
- Pretender, the, 326, 368–9.
- Prevost:
  - lieutenant-colonel Augustine, memorial from, 169.
  - lieutenant-general James, 411.
    - —— letters from, 293.
- Price:
  - Dr., 439.
  - ensign George, 15, 44.
    - —— letter to, 14.
  - J. or T., letter from, 18.
- Priestley, Dr., 132.
- Prince, William, petition of, 53.
- Prince Edward Is., xix.
- Prince Rupert's Bay, 511.
- Princeton, New Jersey, 85.
- Pringle, lieutenant, 559.
  - plans for defence of St. John's, 582.
- Prior, Mr., 161.
- Privateers:
  - American, capture transports, 477.
    - —— should be suppressed, 458.
  - of Liverpool, 396.
- Privy Council, 86, 108, 109, 122, 123, 130, 136, 191, 411, 518, 552.
  - has negative over Pennsylvania laws, 104.
- Protestants:
  - emigration of, from North of Ireland, 289.
  - French families suggested for Lord Dartmouth's lands in East Florida, 102–3.
  - in Quebec, 547, 550, 557, 560, 566.
- Protestants—cont.
  - plan for procuring, from Germany, Poland, &c., 93.
- Providence, Rhode Island, 357, 375.
- Prussia, 107.
  - probable alliance of, with Russia, 470.
- Pryce, captain David:
  - letter from, 173.
  - recommended for an appointment, 192.
- Purcell, Joseph, 235.
  - secretly takes copies of surveys, 178.
- Putnam, general, 324, 340, 349, 366, 429, 440, 442.
  - letter from, 423.
- Putney Park, letter dated from, 541.
- Pynchon, Edward, registrar, 7, 8.

Q.

- Quakers, the, 306, 354, 356, 446.
  - loyalty of, 356.
  - petition from, 294.
- Quebec, 11, 85, 125, 199, 219, 233, 251, 315, 321, 330, 382, 386, 395, 400, 404, 409, 410, 419, 420, 424, 427, 437, 440, 441, 446, 540, 559, 574, 577, 578, 580.
  - appointment of officers in, 488.
  - attack on, by the Americans, 413.
    - —— successfully resisted, 419, 420.
  - attorney-general of, 600.
  - British merchants trading to, case of the, 569.
  - capture of some of the (provision) fleet going to, 477.
  - chief justice of, complaint against, 569.
  - civil government of, regulations for, 546, 547, 549–58, 562, 567–9.
  - correspondence and papers relating to, 546-73.
  - council of war resolve to defend, 404.
  - fortifications of, 559, 582.
    - —— proposed citadel, 484, 581.
  - indefensible state of, 309.
  - letters dated from, 98, 175, 358, 379, 382, 383, 394, 400, 401, 418, 419, 446, 546, 547, 550, 551, 552, 554, 561, 572.
  - merchants and traders doing garrison duty in, 386.
  - minutes of council, boundary with New York, 175.
  - narrow escape of the governor of, 382, 386.
  - ordnance at, 330.
  - preparations for defence of, 385, 386, 395, 400.
  - remarks concerning, by lieutenant Marr, 560.

Quebec—cont.
  Roman Catholics in, 547, 548, 550, 560. siege of (1759), 249, 546.
  steps being taken to relieve, 411.
  trade of, 57, 385.
Quebec Act. See Acts of Parliament.
Queen, the, consort of George III., 217, 528, 569.
Queen Ann's county, letter dated from, 114.
Queen's county, 409.
Queen's Light Dragoons, 465.
Queen's Royal Rangers, 437.
Quick, Robert, letter from, 385.
Quin, Thomas, letter to, 391.
Quincey:
  Josiah, death of, 280.
  Mr., 137, 240.
  Samuel, solicitor-general, 239.
Quit rents, 143, 248, 487.

R.

Radcliffe, Mr., 527.
Rainham, letters dated from, 333, 340, 361.
Raleigh, letters signed, 135, 138, 147.
Ramadge, Smith, letter from, 298.
Ramezay, de, 557.
Ramsay, Indian trader, 84.
Ramus, Mr., 228.
Randall, William, 209.
  memorial from, 210.
Randolph:
  Edmund, 333.
  Colonel John, x, 15.
  —— letter from, 45.
  —— sends eaglets, &c., to Lord Dartmouth, 42, 45.
  Peyton, letters to, 231, 388.
Rankin, Reverend Thomas, 245.
  letters from, 205, 244, 404, 412.
Rappahanock river, 27, 232.
Rawdon, Lord, 432, 477.
Rawkawnuck, 8.
Rawlings, W., xiv.
  letters from, 472, 473.
Rawlins, Stedman, letter from, 529.
Rawlinson, Abram, senior, letter to, 512.
Ray, Robert, letter from, 285.
Read, Joseph, 340, 429.
Reading, letters dated from, 90, 94, 95, 465, 505.
Reas, Andrew:
  deed of sale of land to, 8.
  letter from, 90.
Rebellion Road, South Carolina, letter dated from, 384.
Recollets, 549.
Red Bank fort, ordnance and stores captured at, 452.
Reed:
  lieutenant-colonel, letter from, 61.
  Mr., 166, 405.
  Joseph, 41.
"Reedhesel" Dragoons, 443.
Reeve, Richard, letters from, 141, 214.
"Regulators," North Carolina Insurgents, 157.
Reid, colonel, 291 (? see Reed, lieutenant-colonel).
Remsen, Henry, letter from, 194.
Remson:
  Mr., 126.
  Captain Abraham, 195.
Rennard, Thomas, 99, 132.
Renaudet, Peter, letter from, 311.
Renselaer:
  colonel, 148.
  Mr., 252.
Restigouché river, 592.
Reynolds:
  George, desires an appointment, 252.
  —— letters from, 222, 252.
  John, governor of Georgia, 7.
Rhea, John, 41.
Rhode island, 19, 30, 67, 76, 204, 226, 232, 233, 246, 247, 273, 280, 301, 357, 364, 366, 373, 374, 390, 406, 410, 432, 442, 449, 452, 469, 475, 477.
  assembly of, 8, 141, 477.
  —— Acts passed by, 8.
  —— resolutions of, 19.
  charter of, 31, 51.
  difficulty of raising an army in, 284.
  governor of, to raise men for the defence of New York, 2.
  governor and company of, 88, 277.
  —— letter to, 86, 92.
  inquiry into the affair of the "Gaspee" at, 86–89, 91, 92, 94, 114, 141, 144, 156, 175.
  militia laws in, 408.
  —— to be furnished by, 2.
  oath administered to the inhabitants of, 404.
  paper currency of, 8, 12.
  petition from the inhabitants of, 65.
  powder for, 376.
  proposed fortification of, 257.
  taken possession of, by Clinton, 433.
  vessel belonging to, loading fire-arms in Holland, 229, 230, 232, 233.
Rhynobeck, letter dated from, 206.
Rice:
  George, letter from, 166.
  Thomas, J.P., 101.
Richards:
  Captain, 60.
  Mr., capture of, 436.
Richardson:
  Ebenezer, 288.
  —— petition of, 289.
  James, letter from, 299.
Richmond:
  (England), letters dated from, 211, 216, 447.
  county, New York, 196.
  county, Virginia, 27, 232.

Richmond—cont.
  Duke of, xiii, 48, 555, 562.
  —— letters from, 428, 475.
Rigauville, or Jean Baptiste de Bergere Rigauville Vere: commission to, 546.
  letter to, 548.
  memorial from, 564.
Rigby, James, 501.
Ringgold, Thomas, 19, 65.
Ritzmore, Major, 371.
Robarts, J., 53.
Robbins, Samuel, deed of sale of land to, 8.
Roberts, B., Commissary of Indian Affairs, 57, 197.
  —— desires an appointment, 161, 212.
  —— distressed circumstances of, 113.
  —— his means of gaining influence among the Indians, 155.
  —— Indian speech to, 68.
  —— letters from, 113, 114, 152, 155, 158, 161, 212, 310.
  —— on raising a corps of Canadians, 310.
  John Christopher, 572.
  —— letter from, 556.
Robertson:
  captain, secretary to Sir Basil Keith, 525.
  J., 371.
  James, colonel and brigadier-general, letters from, 222, 255, 272, 278, 305, 315.
  —— letter to, 316.
  —— reinforces Clinton, 447.
  Dr., 494.
Robinson, —, 528.
  —, commissioner of customs, 212.
  John, secretary to the Treasury, xi, xii, 119, 339, 352, 434, 477, 557, 558, 603.
  ——, letters from, 399, 400, 414, 434, 439, 441, 445, 446, 456, 462, 466, 528, 557, 567.
  ——, letters to, 353, 414, 429, 446, 448, 459, 461-3, 465, 466.
  major Joseph, 355.
  Thomas, 35.
Rochambeau, Count de, 477.
Roche, Boyle, memorial from, 279.
Rochester, letter dated from, 95.
Rochford, Earl of, 81, 98, 107, 134, 136, 137, 174, 195, 198, 202, 208, 234, 235, 258, 260, 349, 587.
  letters from, 97, 159, 169, 172, 174, 378, 383, 513, 519, 531, 532, 541, 587.
  letters to, 172, 199, 378, 530.
Rockingham, Marquis of, iii, iv, v, 64, 77, 87, 283.
  indisposition of, 56, 68.
  letters from, 46, 56, 57, 64, 68, 70, 73, 74, 554.
  Memoirs of, iv.
Rodgers, John, 178.
Rodney:
  Cæsar, 65.
  Sir George Brydges, letters from, 521, 524.
Roebuck, Dr., 258.
Rogers, Major Robert, 75, 422. desires that his commission be renewed, 279.
  letter to, 350.
Romaine, xiv.
Roman Catholics:
  in Quebec, 547, 548, 550, 560.
  status of, in ceded countries, 548.
  See also Jesuits.
Roman, Mrs., allowance to, 484.
Romans, Bernard, 178, 314.
  letter from, 184.
Rooke, Henry, clerk of rolls, 2.
Roseau, 511.
  letter dated from, 512.
Ross, R., letter from, 353.
Rothimurchus, letter dated from, 96.
Roubaud, Pierre, 260, 557, 570. desires an interview with Lord Dartmouth, 549.
  grievances of, 555, 557-9, 561-5, 569-71, 573.
  letters from, 228, 254, 260, 549, 555, 557-9, 561-3, 570, 571.
  memorial from, 254.
Roupell, Mr., Deputy Postmaster-General, 328.
Roux:
  Jean Daniel, death of, 172.
  —— letter from, 103.
  —— petition of, 82.
  Madame, letter from, 103.
Row, John, sheriff of Maryland, 182, 229, 231.
Rowland, David, 65, 416.
Rowley, admiral, 477, 543.
Roxbury, near Boston, 315.
  fortifications of, 366.
  letter dated from, 212.
  town meeting at, 112.
Royal American Regiment, 30, 84, 519.
Royal Highland Emigrants Regiment, 323.
Royal Society, 131, 142, 150, 151, 164, 186, 534.
  American productions for, 163.
  plan for making collections for, 535.
Royalist Militia in New York province, returns of, 188, 192, 195-9, 205, 215, 409.
Royall, Isaac, 227.
  letter from, 273.
Ruggles, brigadier, 255, 258, 275, 336.
  letter from, 256.
Rum, 38, 54.
  evil effect of, on the Indians, 45. required for the British forces in America and contract for supplying, 414, 417, 429, 432, 434, 436, 437, 439-42, 444, 448, 451-5, 457, 484, 532.
Russel, Mr., letter from, 24.

Russell's, Mr., at, Oxenden street, letter dated from, 203.
Russen, Mr., 484.
Russia, 107, 184, 190, 375, 470, 474, 477, 478.
Russians expected to be taken into British pay, 391.
Rustigush, see Restigouché.
Ryder, D., 6.
Rye, 562.

S.

Sabine Hall, Richmond county, letter dated from, 27.
Sacheverell, Dr., trial of, 599.
Sagadahoc, Sagadahock, Sagadahook, 47, 88, 103, 104, 179, 265, 290, 487.
Sago, from Georgia, manufacture of, 36, 41.
Sainsbury, W. Noel, 1.
St. Albans, Herts, letter dated from, 496.
St. Asaph, bishop of, 147, 156.
St. Augustine, East Florida, 78, 120, 202, 228, 229, 235, 282, 335, 346, 395, 479, 487.
  letters dated from, 68, 83, 201, 222, 224, 283, 335, 395.
  Bar, 354.
St. Christopher, 527, 529.
  —— letters dated from, 527, 528.
St. Clair, American general, 440.
St. Croix, 179, 529.
  (Santa Cruz), petition from inhabitants of, 529.
St. Domingo, 477, 498, 504, 529, 530.
St. Eustatius, 279, 334, 413.
St. George's Channel, 381.
St. George (Grenada), 118, 543.
  letter dated from, 514.
St. Germans, J. Pownall M.P. for, xvii.
St. Helen's, 270.
St. John, Antigua, 497. island of, xix, 67, 316, 488, 589.
  —— correspondence and papers relating to, 601.
St. John's, fort of, Canada, 309, 314, 353, 371, 375, 379, 383, 384, 400.
  —— invested by Americans, 385, 386, 395.
  Newfoundland, 393, 559, 577, 580, 582.
  —— fortifications, 68, 581, 582.
  river, East Florida, 582.
  —— Nova Scotia, 587, 588.
St. Lawrence river, 128, 175, 256, 395, 555, 559, 560, 573, 574, 606.
St. Leger, colonel, 441.
St. Lewis, castle of (Quebec), 175.
St. Louis (Caughnawaga), 555.
St. Lucia, 461, 462, 468, 530, 531.
St. Lucy, 507.
St. Malo, letter dated from, 443.
St. Mary's river, East Florida, letter dated from, 483.
St. Maurice Givran. See Givran.
St. Modet, 551.
St. Pierre, isle of, 545, 583, 593.
St. Roc, 401.
St. Roch, letter dated from, 243.
St. Vincennes. See Fort St. Vincennes.
St. Vincent, island of, 66, 86, 131, 484, 496, 497, 512, 517.
  Botanic Garden at, 533.
  correspondence and papers relating to, 530–9.
Salem, 204, 233, 278, 284, 304, 312, 324, 486.
  letter dated from, 465.
Sallade, 555.
Salop powder, sample of, 37.
Salt on Turks Island, 498, 504.
Saltash, P. Wentworth M.P. for, xvii.
Salter:
  Henry, 160, 190.
  lieutenant-colonel John, letter from, 249.
  judge Richard, 168, 177, 178, 186, 234, 249.
Sandwell, Lord Dartmouth's seat near Birmingham, xiv, 68, 96, 98, 171, 172, 174, 360, 490, 493, 519, 586.
Sandwich, Earl of, 21, 165, 195, 201, 287, 506.
  letters from, 150, 397, 416, 475.
  letters to, 461, 464.
Sandwich Bay, Labrador, 578, 579.
  Gulf of, East Florida, 161, 172.
Sandy Creek, 157.
Sandy Hook, 417, 421, 445, 468. arrival of fleets off, 423.
San Ildefonso, 530.
  letter dated from, 469.
Saona Island, 530.
Saranac River, 130.
Saratoga, 441–4.
  Convention of, 449, 463.
Sargent, John, letters to, 295, 327.
Sargents, Chambers, & Co., 311.
Sarjant, John, 172 (qy. same as Sargent).
Saturn, transit of, 274.
Saunders, Sir Charles, 557, 602.
Sauthier, C. J., 157, 261.
Savage, Edward, justice of the peace, 365, 382.
  James, petitions from, 208, 237.
Savannah, 43, 50, 373, 475.
  letters dated from, 15, 36, 68, 109, 338, 364.
  silk culture in, 28.
Saville (Savile), Sir George, 42, 283.
  letter from, 191.
Sayre, Stephen:
  letters from, 54, 56, 88, 529.
  proposals of, 252.
Scarsdale, lord:
  letter from, 98.
  letters to, 95, 98, 152.
Scawen, Mr., death of, 407.
Schaack. See Van Schaack.

Schaw, Alexander, 328.
  letters from, 397, 399.
Schenectady, 335.
Schleswic, letter dated from, 476.
Schuyler :
  general, 339, 371, 376, 384, 386, 440, 443.
  Peter, grant of land to, 2.
Schuylkill, 315, 452, 459, 462.
"Scœvola," printed letter from, 182.
Scot, general, death of, 403.
Scotchmen, Americans prejudiced against, as civil officers, 129.
Scotch Pension List, 478.
Scotland, 200, 253, 413, 463, 483, 553, 584.
  canvassing for general election in, 203.
  church of, 38.
  forces remaining in, 263.
Scott :
  captain, 193, 194.
  John, letter from, 36.
  William, petition from, 486.
Seabury, Dr., 371, 483.
Seaforth, lord, letter from, 507.
Seagrove, Is., letter from, 324.
Seal Island, 578.
Searle, Edward, suspected of dangerous designs, 368.
Sears, Isaac, 35, 234, 316.
Secretary of State, office and salaries of, 252.
Senegambia, 13, 33, 57, 540.
  offices and officers in, 488.
Senneville, 552.
Serle, Ambrose, xv, 252, 467. appointment of, as clerk of the reports, 412.
  essay from, 244.
  letters from, 244, 418, 421, 423, 425–7, 429, 431, 434–40, 442, 444, 446, 449, 452, 476, 503.
  letter to, 452.
Sessions, (Darius, of Rhode Island), 284.
Sewall, Jonathan, 357.
  letters from, 238, 305.
Sharp, Granville, letters from, 131, 236, 260, 261, 533.
Sharpe :
  governor, 30.
  Mr., M.P. for Callington, death of, 531.
Shaw :
  captain Daniel, 330.
  —— letters from, 253, 511.
  Sir John, 395.
  John, junior, letter from, 295.
  Mr., 420.
Sheffield, Lord Dartmouth as Recorder of, iii.
Sheffield, Massachusetts Bay, 6, 8, 9.
Shelburne, Earl of, iii, 50, 59, 132, 134, 479, 481, 528, 555, 557, 580.
  —— letters to, 53, 55, 58, 61.
  Lady, 262.
Shepherd, John, letter from, 510.
Sherbrooke, Mr., 295, 444.
Shiers, —, 339.
Ship Island, 108.
Ships mentioned :—
  Actæon, 425.
  Amelia, 254.
  Ann, 269.
  Apollo, 441.
  Arethusa, 133, 144.
  Argo, 393.
  Arthur, 183.
  Asia, 258, 364, 377.
  Beaufort, 368.
  Beaver, 253.
  Belville, 472.
  Betsy, 395.
  Bonetta, 482.
  Boyne, 543.
  Black Prince, 472, 473.
  Britannia and Florida, 282.
  Cambria, 493.
  Cambrian, 490.
  Centeaur, 165.
  Charming Betsy, 402.
  Chatham, 511, 577.
  Chelsea, 490.
  Cherokee, 273, 381.
  Columbia, 493, 494.
  Cruizer, 331, 365.
  Daphne, 427.
  Dartmouth, 253.
  Dawkins, 522.
  Deal Castle, 529.
  Diligent, 351.
  Duke of Cumberland packet, 507.
  Dutchess of Gordon, 402.
  Eagle, 449, 452, 467.
  Eleanor, 253.
  Elizabeth, 404.
  Falcon, 270, 357, 417.
  Fame, 368.
  Favourite Betsey, 506.
  Flora, 233.
  Fowey, 294, 320, 330.
  Gaspee. See under "Gaspee."
  General Payne, 527.
  Glasgow, 428.
  Greyhound, 464.
  Hanbury, 56.
  Hancock and Adams, 443.
  Hannah, 468.
  Harcourt, 393.
  Hawk, 529, 530.
  Hope, 421.
  Hudson, 491.
  Isis, 418, 420.
  James, 131.
  Johana, 300.
  John, 207.
  Kingfisher, 375, 387.
  Lady Gage, 255, 442.
  Languedoc, 543.
  Liberty, 119, 288.
  Lincoln, 443.
  Lizard, 344, 404.
  London, 194.
  Lowestoffe, 174.
  Maidstone, 439.
  Marlborough, 473.

Ships mentioned—cont.
    Marshal, 443.
    Martin, 418, 420.
    Mary Ann, 339.
    Mercury, 258.
    Mersey, 459.
    Minerva, 580.
    Myrtilla, 347.
    Napoleon, 491.
    Nautilus, 289, 350.
    Neptune, 368.
    Nightingale, 439.
    Otter, 346, 577.
    Pallas, 429.
    Pearl, 427, 450.
    Phœnix, 421, 425, 527.
    Polly, 404.
    Preston, 357.
    Ramillies, 396.
    Ranger, 425.
    Repulse, 423.
    Resolution, 181.
    Robert, 368.
    Rose, 421, 425.
    St. John, 373, 393.
    Savage, 393, 417.
    Scarborough, 251, 258, 321.
    Seaford, 525.
    Sibella, 466.
    Somerset, 353, 357.
    Squirrel, 150, 439, 521.
    Sukey, 304.
    Surprise, 418, 420.
    Swallow, 472.
    Swan, 470.
    Tamar, 306, 381, 382, 384.
    Tartar, 441.
    Thomas and Sally, 537.
    Tweed, 286.
Shirburn Castle, letters dated from, 586–8.
Shirley, William, governor of Massachusetts, 6, 7, 498, 502, 512, 587.
    letters from, 329, 499, 540.
    petition to, 499, 501.
    recommended for governorship of Dominica, 500.
Shirreff, William, memorial from, 600, 601.
Shoolbred, John, memorial from, 592.
Shrewsbury, 230.
Shuckburgh, Mr., 181.
Shuldham, admiral lord, governor of Newfoundland, 121, 417, 472, 577.
    letters from, 385, 386, 581.
    letter to, 576.
Shute, Samuel, 4.
Sidney's Exhortation, 376.
Silk, culture of, 28, 29, 35, 37, 45, 46, 103.
Silliman, general, death of, 438.
Simon, Mr., recommended for an appointment, 480.
Simpson :
    Charles, town clerk of Lichfield, letters from, 376, 393.
    —— letter to, 380.
    George, 131.
    James, 365, 382.
    Jonathan, letter from, 398.
Sinclair :
    captain, 126, 152, 443, 570.
    general, 113.
Sinnott, Pierce, lieutenant-governor of Niagara, memorial from, 565.
Skeene. See Skene, colonel Philip.
Skene :
    Dr. George, 299.
    colonel Philip, 202, 296, 312, 314, 316, 340, 403, 422, 441, 443, 585.
    —— appointment of, as lieutenant-governor of Crown Point, &c., 269, 481.
    —— arrives at Philadelphia, 311.
    —— letters from, 105, 217, 219, 262, 284, 269, 440, 441, 444, 481.
    —— letter to, 479.
    —— losses and hardship of, 481.
    —— seizure and imprisonment of 312, 313, 315, 327, 481.
Skenesborough, 219, 444.
    letters dated from, 105, 440.
Skinner, Cortland, 411.
    memorial from, 102.
Skochry, 335.
Slaves and slave trade, 5, 20, 74, 113, 131, 236, 302, 522, 539, 544.
    abolition of slavery suggested, 433, 544.
Small, major, 317, 323.
Smith :
    —, 26.
    captain, 63.
    colonel, 290.
    Dr., 359.
    Charles, letter from, 145.
    D., 281.
    Edward, letter from, 40.
    Henry, Westenhook grantee, 3.
    captain Isaac, 537.
    Dr. James, letter from, 353.
    John, letters from, 22, 30, 31, 50.
    —— letter to, 27.
    Dr. John F.D., capture and escape of, 437.
    Jos., letter from, 293.
    Samuel, 443, 601.
    —— letter to, 85.
    William, chief justice of New York, 237, 253.
    —— letters from, 235, 236, 326, 479.
    Mrs., 166, 170.
Smuggling and smugglers, 119, 175, 230, 237, 247, 288, 313, 331, 472, 473, 527.
Smyth, Frederick, chief justice of the Jerseys, 47, 92, 94, 190.
    letters from, 137, 301.
Smythe, Sir Sydney Stafford, baron, xiv, 99.
    letter from, 163.
Snediker, Jacob, 192.
Snell, William, letter from, 514.
Sneyd, Edward :
    letter from, 419, 420, 424, 426.
    death of, 435, 449.
    imprisonment of, 422.
Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, 71.

- Solano, Don Joseph, 530.
- Son of Freedom, A, paper signed, 294.
- Sons of Faction, 306.
- Sons of Liberty, 42, 35, 255, 294, 306.
- Sons of Loyalty, 306.
- South Carolina. See Carolina, South.
- South Seas, 478.
- Southampton, letter dated from, 588.
- Southern Department, the, 87, 137.
- Southouse, Edw., letter from, 188.
- Spa, letter dated from, 92.
- Spain, 107, 264, 273, 289, 308, 338, 367, 383, 464, 471, 478, 540.
  - British trade with, 16, 25, 29, 53, 57, 396, 518.
  - fleet of, 323.
  - King of, 163, 164, 469, 470, 522.
  - mediation of, 469, 470.
- Spaniards:
  - ammunition sent by, to the Americans, 341.
  - in East Florida, land purchased from, 65.
  - in West Florida, 55, 61, 79, 370.
  - —— seize vessels on the Mississippi, 472–3.
  - —— trade with, 13, 14.
  - in East Indies, British trade with, 409.
- Spanish ambassador. See Masserano.
  - Bay, 551.
  - merchants, 69.
  - Piccaroons, 504.
  - settlement on the Mississippi, 66.
  - Town, Jamaica, letter dated from, 522.
  - vessels come into Georgia, 15.
  - vessels convey stores to Americans, 366.
  - vessels, seizure of, 13.
- Sparhawk, Andrew Pepp., letter from, 260.
- Sparks' Works of Franklin, 170.
- Speaight, Richard, losses of, 409.
- Speer, captain Joseph Smith:
  - imprisonment of, 540.
  - letters from, 540, 542.
  - memorial from, 50.
- Spence, W., seizure of tobacco by, 198.
- Spencer:
  - George, letter to, 297.
  - Joel, deed of sale of land to, 8.
  - Lord Robert, letter from, 163.
  - —— letter to, 162.
- Spencer Town Liberty of Purchase, 7–8.
- Spencer Town, N.Y., petition from inhabitants of, 148, 200.
- Spithead, 474, 475.
- Spooner, Isaac, letter from, 137.
- Spottiswoode, John, letter from, 63.
- Springfield, Massachusetts, 7, 9, 229.
- Spry, governor, death of, 505.
- Stadtholder, 388.
- Stamford, Lord, letter from, 140.
- Stamp Act. See Acts of Parliament.
- Stamp officers, 18, 25.
  - insults to, 27.
- Stamp paper, seizure and burning of, 33.
- Stanhope, E. F., 521.
- Stanley:
  - Edward, 422.
  - —— letter from, 523.
  - Hans, letters from, 133, 144, 192.
- Stanton, captain John, 409.
  - letters from, 237, 268.
  - recommended for an appointment, 159, 237.
- Starbuck, Christopher, letter from, 351.
- Starch, manufacture of, 53.
- Staten Island, 417, 421, 423, 425, 442, 443, 445, 447.
- States General prohibit stores to America, 413.
- Statuvell (qy. Hatwell), Mr., 369.
- Stawell, Baroness, v.
- Steel (Steele), Joshua, letter from, 372.
- Steel, manufacture of, 137.
- Stephens:
  - Philip, 86.
  - —— letter from, 194.
  - —— letters to, 270, 373.
  - Theophilus, 427.
  - William, recommended for an appointment, 210.
- Stevens:
  - —, American general, 449.
  - —, Rev. 486.
  - Andrew, 8.
  - B. F., Introduction by, i–xix.
- Stewart:
  - colonel, 471.
  - Charles, surveyor-general of customs in America, 70.
  - Peter, 604, 605.
- Still Water, 441, 444.
- Stinson, John, J.P., 101.
- Stirling, Lord, 417, 428, 500.
  - imprisonment of, 425, 427.
  - packet intercepted by, 411.
- Stockbridge, 310.
- Stockton, Richard, letter from, 85.
- Stokes:
  - Anthony, chief justice of Georgia, 364.
  - John, 120, 166.
- Stone:
  - H., seizure of tobacco by, 198.
  - colonel Nathan, 199.
  - Thomas, letter to, 301.
  - William L., letter from, 494.
- Stork, Dr., 484, 485.
- Stormont, Lord, 474, 526.
  - letter from, 478.
- Storr, Samuel, 589.
- Story:
  - Enoch, letter from, 314–5.
  - William, desires an appointment, 131.
  - —— letter from, 131.
  - deputy registrar of Vice-Admiralty Court at Boston, 27.
- Strahan, William, 347.
  - letters from, 310, 346, 374, 390, 391.
  - letter to, 371.
- Stratford, Edward, letter from, 342.
- Stratford, Connecticut, 428.
  - letter dated from, 101.

- Strettall, John, letter to, 385.
- Stringer:
  - Rev. William, letters from, 211, 449, 460.
  - Mrs., 211.
- Stuart:
  - Francis, letters from, 358, 379.
  - John, superintendent of Indian affairs, 44, 105, 178.
  - —— letter from, 165.
  - Patrick, 165.
  - —— letter from, 280.
- Suckling, George, desires employment, 219.
- Suffield, letters dated from, 101, 110.
- Suffolk co., New York, 251.
- Suffolk, Earl of, 81, 98, 192, 232, 352, 569.
  - letters from, 114, 201, 405, 469, 470, 532.
  - letter to, 233.
- Sullivan:
  - general, 239, 445, 469.
  - —— imprisonment of, 425, 427.
  - Mr. 530.
- Sullivan Island, 425, 456.
- Susquehannah, 100, 320, 459.
- Sussex, county of. See Delaware.
- Suydam, captain Farnandus, 195.
- Swan, Michael, petition of, 601.
- Swansea, letter dated from, 421.
- Sweden, 75, 107.
- Swift, Joseph, letter from, 346.
- Swiney, Mr., letter from, 519.
- Switzerland, 93.
- Swizer. See Cape Florida Society.
- Sykes, John, 127.
- Symmer, Andrew, 20, 504, 540.
  - letter from, 20, 498.
- Symonds, Rev. Mr., 158.

T.

- T., J., letter to, 178.
- Tachet, —, 574.
- Taitt, Mr., 368.
- Talbot county, New England, resolutions of, 24–5.
- Talbot, Reverend —., letter to, 90.
- Tar, manufacture of, 75.
- Tatnell, Mr., recommended for an appointment, 210.
- Tattnall, Mr., 88.
- Taxation of America, question of, 12, 16, 17, 19, 20, 21, 30, 31, 33, 35, 51, 56, 57, 64, 69, 187, 189, 196, 204, 216, 259, 261, 271, 272, 275, 277, 281, 284, 313, 314, 328, 341, 346, 362, 389, 407, 456, 546.
  - Commons' resolution to forbear, in the event of suitable provision being made by America, 271, 277.
- Taylor:
  - Eldad, 8.
  - Sir John, 526.
  - Thomas, letter from, 89.
  - W., 537.
  - colonel William, 18, 68, 126.
  - William, imprisonment of, 499.
- Tea:
  - consumption of, in America, 131.
  - cost of, sent to Boston, 253.
  - loaded in Hamburg for America, 233.
  - no sale for, in New York, 297.
  - on indemnity for the tea destroyed, 214, 231, 246, 270.
  - —— Dr. Franklin's offer, 266.
  - on the importation of, into America, 114, 175, 202.
  - —— from Holland, 230, 264.
  - policy of repealing the duty, 232.
  - proceedings at Boston and destruction of the, 182–4, 191, 220, 255.
  - —— at Philadelphia, 184.
  - purchased by Americans from French and Dutch, 227.
  - resolution against using, 237.
  - shipped from London, 131.
  - smuggling of, by French and Dutch, 247, 409.
  - threat to Governor Eden concerning, 235.
  - to be sent on to Halifax, 589.
- Teddington, letter dated from, 370.
- Temple:
  - John, 164, 170, 171, 222.
  - —— finds favour in England, 174–5.
  - —— his duel with Whately, 216.
  - —— letter from, 180.
  - —— recommended by Governor Trumbull, 482.
  - Robert, 329.
  - William, arrives in Philadelphia, 422.
- Templeman, Dr., letters to, 41.
- Tenison, Archbishop, 2.
- Tern, letter dated from, 93.
- Texel, 270, 413.
- Thaneke, near Plymouth, 357.
- Thomas:
  - Captain Edmund, recommended for an appointment, 114.
  - —— appointment promised, 114.
  - Governor, 495.
- Thompson, Sir Charles, 414, 427, 570.
  - letter from, 152.
- Thomson, Mr., 409.
- Thorn, Honourable Stephen, 472, 473, 489.
- Thornborough, captain, 306, 332, 340.
- Thornhill, letter dated from, 127.
- Thornton, John, ensign 12th foot, 466.
  - John, xiv, xv.
  - —— his portrait referred to, 12.
  - —— letters from, 99, 127, 132, 166, 416, 586, 592.
  - —— letter to, 197.
- Thurloe, Dr., 329.
- Thurlow Edward, Attorney-General, letter from, 353.

Thurlow Edward—cont,
  and Alexander Wedderburn, Attorney and Solicitor-General, 83, 85, 87, 89, 90–2, 125, 134, 172, 191, 195, 247, 273, 352, 409.
Thynne, Honourable Mr., letter from, 140.
Ticonderoga, 186, 269, 302, 309–13, 319, 322, 342, 371, 374, 379, 424, 438, 441, 481.
  American army posted at, 324.
  —— marching towards, 339.
  taking of, 311, 313, 314, 363, 384, 442.
Tilghman:
  Edward, 65.
  James, letter from, 339, 341.
Tillidge, —, 420.
Tilt-hammers, prohibition of, in America, desired, 137.
Timothy, Peter, printer, 36.
Tingrith, letter dated from, 218.
Tinkler, Mr., 14.
Tipping, Mr., 527.
Titchfield (Hants), letter dated from, 528.
Tobacco, 269, 347, 380, 434.
  duties on, 81.
  frauds in the exportation of, 73.
  seizure of, 198.
Tobago, 64, 430, 517, 539.
Todd, Anthony, ix, 140, 330, 347, 351, 370, 374–7.
  letter to, 390.
Tollemache, captain, 327.
Tolver, Elizabeth, letter from, 517.
  letters to, 401, 402.
Tomkyns, John, 523.
Tomlinson, lieutenant Robert, letters from, 181, 261, 316.
Tonge, W., 272, 589, 594, 597.
  appointment of, 587, 588, 598.
  recommended for an appointment, 586.
Tongue, William, 363, 364.
Tonyn, Patrick, governor of East Florida and General, 166, 170, 241, 346, 483.
  letters from, 134, 177, 201, 202, 222, 224, 282, 283, 335.
  letter to, 202.
Toplady, Rev. —, xii, xiv.
Topsham, letter dated from, 479.
Toquo, letters dated from, 14, 15.
Tories, 330.
Torrington, Lord, recommended for an appointment, 215.
Tortola, 497, 539, 540.
Totten, Joseph, 291, 292.
Toulon, 464.
Townsend, Admiral George, 557.
Townshend:
  Right Honourable Charles, letter from, 40.
  Thomas, 516, 534.
  —— letters to, 512, 543.
  Lord Viscount, General, Master-General of the Ordnance, 347, 349.
  —— letters from, 279, 329, 330, 333, 340, 361, 396, 583, 584, 586, 593.
  —— letters to, 559, 581, 582.
Trade, carried on between:—
  Holland and New York, 42.
  the Carolinas and other provinces in spite of prohibition, 447, 458.
  the northern colonies and Holland, 40.
Trade:
  re-opened between West Indies and United States, 492.
  general, of Great Britain, 16, 24, 53, 522.
  —— —— her strength, riches, and influence depend on, 58.
  —— —— her tobacco trade, 434.
  with the American colonies, 21, 27, 54, 67, 69, 119, 138, 193, 247, 248, 352, 405.
  —— foreign trading to be prevented, 84, 410.
  —— free, intended to be offered by the Americans to all nations, 129.
  —— Indian trade, see Indians.
  —— licenses for, 445.
  —— right of parliament to regulate, admitted, 101, 240, 362.
  —— scheme for, 486.
  —— stoppage of, 311, 327, 339. with Nova Scotia, 592.
  with island of St. John, 606.
Trail, James, 382.
Transport service, 443.
Trapand, Governor, letter to, 353.
Treasury, 24, 56, 82, 119, 132, 165, 172, 186, 197, 221, 228, 247, 389, 417, 418, 440, 441, 446, 453, 457, 462, 472, 477, 478, 538, 539, 555, 564, 569, 570, 597, 600, 603, 606.
  freighting of ships by, 451.
  letters to, 120, 440, 441, 442, 452, 454, 455, 478, 527, 539.
Trecothick, Barlow, alderman, letters from, 135, 500.
  letter to, 28.
Trees reserved. See Mast trees.
Trelawney, Sir William, 526.
  death of, 519.
  letter to, 97.
Trenchard, Sir J., 2.
Trentham, letter dated from, 224.
Trenton, 22, 41, 178, 454.
  letters dated from, 128, 370.
Trent, William, memorial of, 74.
Trevose, Pennsylvania, letters dated from, 242, 275.
Trinchard. See Trenchard.
Trois Rivieres, 549, 553, 560.
  letter dated from, 488.
Troops of Convention, 463. (See also Burgoyne.)
Trowbridge, 387.
Trumbull:
  Governor Jonathan, 420, 428.
  —— letters from, 279, 482.
  John, letter from, 491.
Truro:
  smuggling at, 473.
  (Nova Scotia) petition from inhabitants of, 596.

Tryon co., New York, 205.

Tryon, Governor William, 99, 105, 138, 154, 155, 184, 186, 189, 193, 196, 215, 218, 221, 263, 291, 296, 330, 339, 402, 408, 417, 425, 429, 475, 587.

—— asks for a reward for his services, 157.

—— —— discretionary leave to return to England, 329.

—— assists in enterprise in Connecticut, 438.

—— charges brought against, 17.

—— house destroyed by fire, 215.

—— indisposition of, 214.

—— journal of expedition against regulators, 157.

—— lands granted by, 122, 208.

—— —— to Colonel Howard, 108, 124, 128.

—— letters from, 17, 128, 154, 157, 176, 213, 228, 233, 261, 277, 289, 290, 292, 293, 298, 300, 328, 329, 374, 402, 432, 450.

—— letters to, 17, 124, 136, 154, 207, 213, 214, 232, 234, 235, 274, 276, 292, 374, 422.

—— orderly book of, 157.

—— petition to, 200.

—— receipts and disbursements of, 214.

—— salary and emoluments of, 157, 429.

—— wishes to resign, 432.

Mrs., indisposition of, 214.

Tucker, Mr., of Virginia, 395, 458.

Tudway, James, letter from, 42.

Tunbridge, letter dated from, 221.

Tunbridge Wells, letter dated from, 218.

Tunstall, Marmaduke, letters from, 150, 534.

Tunton. See Trenton.

Turgot, Mons., 418.

Turkey (the Porte), war with Russia, 107, 190.

Turks Channel, 504.

Turks island, 498, 504.

Turnbull, Dr., 83.

Turner:

Charles, 107, 527.

—— letter from, 106.

Nicholas, provost marshal of Quebec, 558, 560, 572.

—— letter from, 555, 556.

Tusten, colonel, his regiment of militia, 198.

Twiss, —, 560.

Twyford, letter dated from, 580.

Tyler, Dr. Bennett, president of Dartmouth College, letter from, 490.

Tyrawley, Lord, letter from, 505.

Tyson, Mr., letter to, 529.

Tystree camp, letter dated from, 476.

U.

Uhthoff. See Chabanel, Uhthoff, & Co.

Ulloa, Don, 61, 66.

Ulster, co. New York, 205.

United States, Supreme Court of the 492.

Upton Grey, near Basingstoke, letter dated from, 173.

V.

V. A., letter signed, 401, 402.

Vaihant, M., recommended for an appointment, 516.

Valburg, letter dated from, 570.

Valley Forge on Schuylkill, 459, 462, 463.

Valltravers, Rodolph, memorial from, 93. See Walltravers.

Vanbraam, Jacob, memorial of, 122.

Vanconnier, Peter, Westenhook grantee, 2.

Van Cortlandt, James, 193.

Vandalia, 191, 220, 242.

Van Dam, Anthony, 251.

letter from, 298.

Vandeput:

captain George, 374.

—— letter from, 377.

Sir George, letter to, 377.

Vanderbilt, captain Jeremiah, 195.

Vanderhorst, E., letters from, 269, 270.

Vane, Frederic, recommended for an appointment, 519.

Van Harthals, Edward, letter to, 373.

Van Renslaer, —, grant of land to, 292.

Van Schaack, Peter, letters to, 296, 389.

Van Vleck, Abraham, 350.

Vardill, Rev. John, 296.

letters from, 224, 230, 284, 483.

letter to, 326.

Vassal, William, 351.

Vaughan, lieutenant-colonel John, letter from, 392.

Venice, letter dated from, 96.

Venture, captain, 468.

Vere. See Rigauville Vere.

Vermicelli, sample of, 37.

Versailles, 467.

Verte Bay, 559.

Vialars, Daniel, merchant, 552.

"Viator," newspaper cutting signed, 235.

Vice Admiralty Court at Newfoundland, 146.

Vickers, Rev. Mr., 186.

Victuallers, list of, 431.

Victuallers and Storeships, 456, 465, 466.

account of, 445, 451–2.

Vienna, 107.
  letter dated from, 520.
Villeneufve, captain Gedeon, 254.
Vincennes. See Fort St. Vincennes.
Vines, culture of, 46, 97.
Virginia, 1, 2, 13, 27, 45, 46, 51, 52, 56, 57, 67, 107, 119, 167, 173, 232, 294, 301, 330, 346, 361, 363, 370, 397, 401, 410, 433, 434, 458, 478.
  Acts passed by, concerning slaves, 5, 74.
  —— for the better support of the contingent charges of the Government, 74.
  agent for, Edward Moutagu, 388
  Assembly, 15, 135.
  boundary line with Indians, 121, 133.
  committees in, subvert government authority, 243.
  convention of, raises army, 340.
  cost of American army in, 424.
  Council of, 140, 269, 324.
  —— address to the people, 324.
  courts of justice abolished in, 243.
  disorders and riots in, 1, 70.
  exports stopped in, 347.
  governor of, circular to, 277.
  —— personal danger of, 294. See Dunmore.
  —— seizure of, 303.
  —— to raise men for the defence of New York, 2.
  House of Burgesses, resolutions of, 15.
  —— starts committees of correspondence, 156, 169.
  merchants trading to, 347.
  new charter for, 1.
  non-importation in, 76, 221, 243.
  offices and officers in, 488.
  office of secretary of, 86.
  Oswald's suggestions with regard to, 268.
  people of, exasperated with Dunmore's conduct, 306.
  —— conduct towards Moravians, 234.
  regiments raised in, against French encroachments, 183.
  slave trade of, 5, 74, 113, 131. See also Slaves and Slave Trade.
  Stamp Act bears heavily on, 20.
  —— festivities on repeal of, 42.
  stamp distributor for, 376.
  success of the King's troops in, 475.
  tobacco exported from, 198, 347, 458.
  —— arrival of ships laden with tobacco from, 380.
  —— frauds in exportation of, 73.
  William and Mary College in, 1.
Virgin Islands, 497, 539.
Vivian, Thomas, letter from, 433.
Volburg, letter dated from, 228.

W.

W., T., letter signed, 368.
Wabash River, 47, 55, 61, 66.
Wadman, lieutenant Arthur, 314.
Waldersham, letter dated from, 474.
Waldo, Samuel, petition of, 10.
Wales, 347, 553.
Walker:
  Dr., essay by, 540.
  Fowler, letter from, 550.
  George, letters from, 505, 507, 559.
  —— letter to, 506.
  Nathaniel, letter from, 258.
  Richard Benson, of Hodsdon, letter to, 302.
  Thomas, 548, 552.
  —— letter from, 353.
  —— letters to, 309, 310.
  W., memorial, 525.
Wallace:
  captain, 364, 374.
  Hon. Hugh, 71, 374.
  Sir William, 450.
Wallingford, letter dated from, 112.
Walltravers, Mons. de, letter to, 215. See Valltravers.
Walpole, Thomas, 89, 150, 191.
  memorial of, 172.
Walsh, colonel, murder of, 535.
Walter, John, letter from, 505.
Walton, Jacob, letter from, 287.
Wanton, governor Joseph, 86, 92, 94, 141.
  letter to, 94.
Ward:
  American general, 324, 366.
  Joseph, 155.
  —— letters from, 110, 129, 138, 143, 150, 158, 182, 212.
Ware, letter dated from, 358.
Waret, Henry, 65.
Warner, Seth, 314.
  reward offered for his capture, 327.
Warren:
  Dr., 303.
  colonel James, 335, 352, 388.
  —— letter to, 336.
  Joseph, 72, 292.
Warwick Castle, letter dated from, 569.
Warwick, Earl of, letter from, 604.
Washington, general, and his army, x, 324, 337, 364, 376, 402, 422, 430, 438, 440, 442, 445, 449, 452, 454, 459, 462, 463, 466, 470, 471, 477. letter to, 333; referred to, 390.
  pedigree of, 488.
  pocket of, 491.
Washington, State Department, Franklin's MSS. in, vi.
Waterford, bishop of, 604.
Waterhouse, John, letter from, 396.
Waters Upton, Shropshire, letter date from, 306.

Watertown, 336.
Watkins, captain, 475.
Watson:
  Brook, 82, 83, 247, 253.
  —— letters from, 238, 262, 445.
  Jonathan, letters from, 401, 433.
Watts:
  John, 301.
  —— letter from, 375.
  —— letters to, 346, 375.
  Robert, letter from, 346.
Watts and Maskelyn, Messrs., letter from, 387.
Weary, Sir Clement, 517.
Weatherhead, John, letter from, 327.
Weattly. See Whately.
Weaver's Company, 50.
Webb:
  colonel and general, 7, 146.
  Olympia, letter from, 521.
  T., desires an appointment, 459.
  captain Thomas, 245.
  —— letters from, 145, 160, 190, 276.
  William, 435.
Webster, Edward, 75.
  letter from, 211.
Weddell, Mr., 132.
Wedderburn:
  Alexander, solicitor-general, 172, 216.
  —— letters from, 83, 87, 91, 565.
  —— opinion of the Quebec Bill, 565.
  —— See also Thurlow, attorney-general, and Wedderburn.
  Sir John, 526.
Wedell, baron, 476.
Wegg, Samuel, 206.
Weir, Daniel. See Wier.
Welbeck, letter dated from, 215.
Wells, 486.
Wells, colonel, 197.
Wentworth, letters dated from, 57, 68.
  George, 127.
  —— petition of, 174.
  John, 174.
  governor John, 71, 79, 115, 197, 283, 348, 414.
  —— charges concerning, 77, 115, 127, 135, 151, 177.
  —— his answer to them, 127.
  —— letters from, 289, 480.
  —— portrait of, 12.
  Paul, viii, xvi.
  —— ideas which may be woven into a plan, etc., 410.
  —— letters from, 30, 31, 270, 279, 319, 363, 370.
  —— letter to, 289.
  —— requests an audience, 211.
Wesley, Charles, xiv, 276, 460.
Wessels, Derick, grant of land to, 2.
West, Mr., 482.
West Bromwich, letter dated from, 506.
West Chester county, 427.
  militia of, 193.
Westenhook Patent, 2, 237.
Western Islands, the, 264.
West Indies, the, 10, 20, 25, 48, 96, 98, 119, 126, 150, 164, 285, 290, 316, 323, 333, 349, 350, 354, 366, 375, 376, 383, 409, 413, 462, 467, 492, 495, 499, 502, 507, 514, 524, 540–4. capture of vessels bound to, 196.
  conveyance of troops to, 543.
  free ports in, 69, 541.
  petitions from the merchants interested in, 261, 267, 543.
  smuggling of tea into, 247.
Westover, letter dated from, 340.
West Point, 477.
Wexford, letter dated from, 173.
Weymouth, Lord, xi, xii, 464, 467, 471.
  declaration delivered by French ambassador to, 461.
  letter to, 469.
  relinquishes his claim to the Privy Seal, 400.
Wharton:
  Joseph, junior, letter to, 295.
  Samuel, associate in the Ohio grant, 89, 172, 220.
  —— letter from, 191.
  —— letters to, 284, 301, 302, 305, 313, 317, 376.
  Thomas, letters from, 284, 301, 302, 305, 313, 317, 376.
  —— letter to, 391.
  See Baynton, Wharton, and Morgan, Messrs.
Whately, William, vii, 156, 164, 180, 216, 222. his duel with Mr. Temple, 216.
  letter from, 170.
Wheatley, Phillis, a negress, 107.
Wheelock:
  Dr. Eleazer (pastor of a church in Lebanon, Connecticut, founder of an Indian School, afterwards Dartmouth College), grant of land to, 77.
  —— his Indian Charity School, 16, 17, 59, 79, 99, 115, 117.
  —— —— narrative of, 12.
  —— —— Mr. Thornton allows 500*l.* for building, 132.
  —— —— See also Dartmouth College.
  —— letters from, 48, 65, 70–2, 115, 147.
  —— letters to, 16, 153.
  —— McClure and Parish's memoirs of, 65.
  —— petitions for land, 115–8.
  John, letter from, 489.
Whenham, Thomas, grant of land to, 2.
Whit (qy. White), Hon. Henry, letter to, 374.
Whitaker, Rev. Nathaniel, xiv, 27, 48, 49, 59.
  letters from, 59, 60.
  portrait of, 12.
White:
  —, (of Georgia), 364.
  Francis, recommended for an appointment, 584.

White—cont.
  Henry (of New York), 235, 429.
  —— letters from, 232, 274, 276, 337.
White Cliffs, intended establishment at, on the Mississippi, 125, 126, 212.
White Eye, captain, 317, 318, 321.
Whitefield, Rev. George, xiv, 49.
  death of, 77.
  letter to, 21.
White Plains, 470.
Whitney, Thomas, 6, 7, 9.
Whittaker, —, rebellious proceedings of, 339.
Whitworth, Mr., 350.
Wickes, corsair, 443.
Wier, Daniel, commissary general, 444.
  letters from, 439, 448.
Wikes. See Wickes.
Wilkins:
  lieutenant-colonel, letter from, 66.
  Isaac, 298.
  —— letters to, 364, 371.
  Mrs., letter from, 364.
Wilkinson:
  captain, 427.
  Jonathan, letter to, 307.
  Joseph, 28.
Willard:
  Benjamin, 8.
  J., 6.
Willday, John, letters from, 89, 204.
Willey, Wan, 35.
William III., 215, 548.
William III. and Mary II., 103, 282, 486.
Williamos, captain Charles, 37, 58, 92, 431, 527.
  desires an appointment, 97, 153, 181, 218.
  letters from, 45, 97, 153, 181, 218, 327.
  letter to, 237.
Williams:
  —, 75.
  John, 427.
  John, naval officer at New York, 165.
  John, inspector of customs in America, 84, 133.
  —— letters from, 62, 73, 81, 152, 204, 328, 410.
  —— letter to, 255.
  Jonathan, 206.
  Robert, 83.
  Thomas Charles, letter to, 350.
  Teb and Williams, Messrs., 350.
Williamsburg, 45, 221, 333.
  insurrection of the people, 294.
  letters dated from, 26, 45, 56, 133, 152, 161, 205, 207, 243, 294.
Williamson, Dr. Hugh:
  letters from, 325, 391.
  letters to, 184, 350.
Willing, Morris, & Co., Messrs., 338.
  letters from, 301, 334, 343, 347.
Willoughby, Samuel, 589, 598.
Willson, Ebenezer, 2.
Wilmington, 328, 331, 452.
Wilmot:
  Mr., 171.
Wilmot—cont.
  Sir Eardley, 558.
  George, letters from, 288, 386.
  Henry, at one time governor of St. Vincent, 31.
  —— letters from, 222, 514, 536.
  —— letter to, 537.
Wilson:
  John, letters from, 377, 512.
  Thomas, letter from, 91.
Winchester, 330.
  letter dated from, 511.
Windham, Connecticut, 424.
  letters dated from, 419, 420.
  gaol, letters dated from, 424, 426.
Windsor, (New York), 199.
  (Nova Scotia), 368, 598.
  Castle, letter dated from, 166.
Winnington, 419.
Winter, lieutenant, 396.
Winthrop, John, 227.
Wintringham, C., letter from, 594.
Wodburn, 218.
Woddrop, John, imprisonment of, 167.
Wolfe, general, 546, 556.
Wolleott, Erastas, 314.
Wollin, John, letter from, 575.
Wood:
  Adam, desires an appointment, 155.
  —— letter from, 535.
  William, agent for securing Lord Dartmouth's portrait for Dartmouth College, letters from, 489–93.
  —— letters to, 491–4.
Woodbridge, Timothy, J.P., 8.
Woodcote End, letters dated from, 407, 528.
Woodgate, Robert, letter to, 353.
Woodmass, —, 589.
Woods, Joseph, letter to, 312.
Woodward, Bezaleel, portrait of, 12.
Wooldridge, Thomas, 81, 105, 146, 164, 171, 222.
  letters from, 68, 80, 83, 107, 119, 127.
Woolley, Joseph, 16.
Woolridge, Mrs., letter to, 63.
Woolsey. See Gregory and Woolsey, Messrs.
Wooster, general, death of, 438.
Worcester:
  (England), contested election at, 179.
  (Massachusetts), 278.
  county, 229.
Worge, general, 604.
  letter from, 603.
Worthington, John, 6.
Wragge, Mr., loyalty of, 332.
Wray, Charles, letter from, 566.
Wrest, letters dated from, 221, 223.
Wright:
  Mr., 418.
  Charles, letter from, 158.
  governor Sir James, 36, 39, 105, 106, 109, 332, 339.
  —— letters from, 15, 96, 108, 109.
  John, 573.
  Thomas, letter from, 605.
Wrixon, major, 368.

Y.

Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, 595.
Yates, Richard, 401.
  letters from, 295, 311.
York (America), 316, 371.
York, archbishop of, letters from, 505, 506.
York, duke of, marriage of the, 531.
Yorke:
  Charles, attorney-general, 22, 552, 555.
  Hon. John, letter from, 604.
  Sir Joseph (ambassador at the Hague), 229, 230, 232, 604, 605.
  —— letters from, 233, 453, 564, 565, 570.
  Sir Joseph, letter to, 564.
  Sir Philip, attorney-general, 517.
Yorktown, Pennsylvania, 333.
Young:
  captain, 339.
  dean, sermons of, 392.
  Robert, letters from, 515, 516.
  Sir William, 487, 495.
  —— resignation of, 500.
Youngsbury, near Ware, letter dated from, 358.

Z.

Zedwitz, major, 371.
Zonical tables, 217.

Circular of the Commission.

Public Record Office, Chancery Lane,
London, W.C.

Her Majesty has been pleased to appoint under Her Sign Manual certain Commissioners to ascertain what unpublished MSS. are extant in the collections of private persons and in institutions which are calculated to throw light upon subjects connected with the civil, ecclesiastical, literary, or scientific history of this country. The present Commissioners are:—

Lord Esher, Master of the Rolls, the Marquess of Salisbury, K.G., the Marquess of Bath, the Marquess of Lothian, K.T., the Earl of Rosebery, K.G., Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice, the Bishop of Oxford, the Bishop of Limerick, Lord Acton, Lord Carlingford, K.P., Sir G. W. Dasent, and Mr. H. C. Maxwell Lyte, C.B.

The Commissioners think it probable that you may feel an interest in this object and be willing to assist in the attainment of it; and with that view they desire to lay before you an outline of the course which they usually follow.

If any nobleman or gentleman express his willingness to submit any unprinted book, or collection of documents in his possession or custody to the examination of the Commissioners, they will cause an inspection to be made by some competent person, and should the MSS. appear to come within the scope of their enquiry, a report containing copies or abstracts of them will be drawn up, printed, and submitted to the owner, with a view to obtaining his consent to the publication of the whole, or of such part of it as he may think fit, among the proceedings of the Commission, which are presented to Parliament every Session.

To avoid any possible apprehension that the examination of papers by the Commissioners may extend to title-deeds or documents of present legal value, positive instructions are given to every person who inspects MSS. on their behalf that nothing relating to the titles of existing owners is to be divulged, and that if in the course of his work any modern title-deeds or papers of a private character chance to come before him, they are to be instantly put aside, and are not to be examined or calendared under any pretence whatever.

The object of the Commission is solely the discovery of unknown historical and literary materials, and in all their proceedings the Commissioners will direct their attention to that object exclusively.

In practice it has been found more satisfactory, when the collection of manuscripts is a large one, for the inspector to make a selection therefrom at the place of deposit and to obtain the owner's consent to remove the selected papers to the Public Record Office in London, where they can be more fully dealt with, and where they are preserved with the same care as if they formed part of the muniments of the realm, during the term of their examination. Among the numerous owners of MSS. who have allowed their family papers of historical interest to be temporarily removed from their muniment rooms and lent to the Commissioners to facilitate the preparation of a report may be named: The Duke of Rutland, the Duke of Portland, the Marquess of Salisbury, the Marquess Townshend, the Earl of Dartmouth, the Earl of Ancaster, Lord Braye, Lord Hothfield, Mrs. Stopford Sackville, Mr. le Fleming, of Rydal, and Mr. Fortescue, of Dropmore.

The costs of inspections, reports and calendars, and the conveyance of documents, will be defrayed at the public expense, without any charge to owners.

The Commissioners will also, if so requested, give their advice as to the best means of repairing and preserving any papers or MSS. which may be in a state of decay, and are of historical or literary value.

The Commissioners will feel much obliged if you will communicate to them the names of any gentlemen who may be able and willing to assist in obtaining the objects for which this Commission has been issued.

J. J. Cartwright,
Secretary.

HISTORICAL MANUSCRIPTS COMMISSION.

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s. d.
1870 (Re-printed 1874.)	First Report, with Appendix - - Contents :— England. House of Lords; Cambridge Colleges; Abingdon, and other Corporations, &c. Scotland. Advocates' Library, Glasgow Corporation, &c. Ireland. Dublin, Cork, and other Corporations, &c.	f'cap.	[C. 55]	1 6
1871	Second Report, with Appendix, and Index to the First and Second Reports - - - - - - Contents :— England. House of Lords; Cambridge Colleges; Oxford Colleges; Monastery of Dominican Friars at Woodchester, Duke of Bedford, Earl Spencer, &c. Scotland. Aberdeen and St. Andrew's Universities, &c. Ireland. Marquis of Ormonde; Dr. Lyons, &c.	„	[C. 441]	3 10
1872 (Re-printed 1895.)	Third Report, with Appendix and Index - - - - - - Contents :— England. House of Lords; Cambridge Colleges; Stonyhurst College; Bridgewater and other Corporations; Duke of Northumberland, Marquis of Lansdowne, Marquis of Bath, &c. Scotland. University of Glasgow; Duke of Montrose, &c. Ireland. Marquis of Ormonde; Black Book of Limerick, &c.	„	[C. 673]	6 0
1873	Fourth Report, with Appendix. Part I. - - - - - - Contents :— England. House of Lords; Westminster Abbey; Cambridge and Oxford Colleges; Cinque Ports, Hythe, and other Corporations, Marquis of Bath, Earl of Denbigh, &c. Scotland. Duke of Argyll, &c. Ireland. Trinity College, Dublin; Marquis of Ormonde.	„	[C. 857]	6 8
1873	Ditto. Part II. Index - - -	„	[C.857i.]	2 6

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s.	d.
1876	FIFTH REPORT, WITH APPENDIX. PART I. - Contents :— ENGLAND. House of Lords; Oxford and Cambridge Colleges; Dean and Chapter of Canterbury; Rye, Lydd, and other Corporations, Duke of Sutherland, Marquis of Lansdowne, Reginald Cholmondeley, Esq., &c. SCOTLAND. Earl of Aberdeen, &c.	f'cap.	[C.1432]	7	0
„	DITTO. PART II. INDEX - - -	„	[C.1432 i.]	3	6
1877	SIXTH REPORT, WITH APPENDIX. PART I. - Contents :— ENGLAND. House of Lords; Oxford and Cambridge Colleges; Lambeth Palace; Black Book of the Archdeacon of Canterbury; Bridport, Wallingford, and other Corporations; Lord Leconfield, Sir Reginald Graham, Sir Henry Ingilby, &c. SCOTLAND. Duke of Argyll, Earl of Moray, &c. IRELAND. Marquis of Ormonde.	„	[C.1745]	8	6
(Reprinted 1893.)	DITTO. PART II. INDEX - - -	„	[C.2102]	1	10
1879 (Reprinted 1895.)	SEVENTH REPORT, WITH APPENDIX. PART I. - - - - - Contents :— House of Lords; County of Somerset; Earl of Egmont, Sir Frederick Graham, Sir Harry Verney, &c.	„	[C.2340]	7	6
(Reprinted 1895.)	DITTO. PART II. APPENDIX AND INDEX - Contents :— Duke of Athole, Marquis of Ormonde, S. F. Livingstone, Esq., &c.	„	[C. 2340 i.]	3	6
1881	EIGHTH REPORT, WITH APPENDIX AND INDEX. PART I. - - - Contents :— List of collections examined, 1869–1880. ENGLAND. House of Lords; Duke of Marlborough; Magdalen College, Oxford; Royal College of Physicians; Queen Anne's Bounty Office; Corporations of Chester, Leicester, &c. IRELAND. Marquis of Ormonde, Lord Emly, The O'Conor Don, Trinity College, Dublin, &c.	„	[C.3040]	8	6
1881	DITTO. PART II. APPENDIX AND INDEX - Contents :— Duke of Manchester.	„	[C. 3040 i.]	1	9

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s.	d.
1881	Ditto. Part III. Appendix and Index Contents :— Earl of Ashburnham.	f'cap.	[C. 3040 ii.]	1	4
1883 (Re-printed 1895.)	Ninth Report, with Appendix and Index. Part I. Contents :— St. Paul's and Canterbury Cathedrals; Eton College; Carlisle, Yarmouth, Canterbury, and Barnstaple Corporations, &c.	,,	[C.3773]	5	2
1884 (Re-printed 1895.)	Ditto. Part II. Appendix and Index Contents :— England. House of Lords, Earl of Leicester; C. Pole Gell, Alfred Morrison, Esqs., &c. Scotland. Lord Elphinstone, H. C. Maxwell Stuart, Esq., &c. Ireland. Duke of Leinster, Marquis of Drogheda, &c.	,,	[C.3773 i.]	6	3
1884	Ninth Report. Part III. Appendix and Index Contents :— Mrs. Stopford Sackville.	,,	[C.3773 ii.]	1	7
1883 (Re-printed 1895.)	Calendar of the Manuscripts of the Marquis of Salisbury, K.G. (or Cecil MSS.). Part I.	8vo.	[C.3777]	3	5
1888	Ditto. Part II.	,,	[C.5463]	3	5
1889	Ditto. Part III.	,,	[C. 5889 v.]	2	1
1892	Ditto. Part IV.	,,	[C.6823]	2	11
1894	Ditto. Part V.	,,	[C.7574]	2	6
1895	Ditto. Part VI.	,,	[C.7884]	2	8
1885	Tenth Report This is introductory to the following :—	,,	[C.4548]	0	3½
1885 (Re-printed 1895.)	(1.) Appendix and Index Earl of Eglinton, Sir J. S. Maxwell, Bart., and C. S. H. Drummond Moray, C. F. Weston Underwood, G. W Digby, Esqs.	,,	[C.4575]	3	7
1885	(2.) Appendix and Index The Family of Gawdy.	,,	[C.4576 iii.]	1	4
1885	(3.) Appendix and Index Wells Cathedral.	,,	[C.4576 ii.]	2	0

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s.	d.
1885	(4.) Appendix and Index - - Earl of Westmorland; Capt. Stewart; Lord Stafford; Sir N. W. Throckmorton, Sir P. T. Mainwaring, Lord Muncaster, Capt. J. F. Bagot, Earl of Kilmorey, Earl of Powis, and others, the Corporations of Kendal, Wenlock, Bridgnorth, Eye, Plymouth, and the County of Essex; and Stonyhurst College.	8vo.	[C.4576]	3	6
1885 (Reprinted 1895.)	(5.) Appendix and Index - - - The Marquis of Ormonde, Earl of Fingall, Corporations of Galway, Waterford, the Sees of Dublin and Ossory, the Jesuits in Ireland.	"	[C. 4576 i.]	2	10
1887	(6.) Appendix and Index - - - Marquis of Abergavenny, Lord Braye, G. F. Luttrell, P. P. Bouverie, W. Bromley Davenport, R. T. Balfour, Esquires.	"	[C.5242]	1	7
1887	Eleventh Report - - - - - This is introductory to the following:—	"	[C. 5060 vi.]	0	3
1887	(1.) Appendix and Index - - - H. D. Skrine, Esq., Salvetti Correspondence.	"	[C.5060]	1	1
1887	(2.) Appendix and Index - - - House of Lords. 1678-1688.	"	[C. 5060 i.]	2	0
1887	(3.) Appendix and Index - - - Corporations of Southampton and Lynn.	"	[C. 5060 ii.]	1	3
1887	(4.) Appendix and Index - - - Marquis Townshend.	"	[C. 5060 iii.]	2	6
1887	(5.) Appendix and Index - - - Earl of Dartmouth.	"	[C. 5060 iv.]	2	8
1887	(6.) Appendix and Index - - - Duke of Hamilton.	"	[C. 5060 v.]	1	6
1888	(7.) Appendix and Index - - - Duke of Leeds, Marchioness of Waterford, Lord Hothfield, &c.; Bridgwater Trust Office, Reading Corporation, Inner Temple Library.	"	[C.5612]	2	0
1890	Twelfth Report - - - - - This is introductory to the following:—	"	[C.5889]	0	3
1888	(1.) Appendix - - - - - Earl Cowper, K.G. (Coke MSS., at Melbourne Hall, Derby). Vol. I.	"	[C.5472]	2	7
1888	(2.) Appendix - - - - Ditto. Vol. II.	"	[C.5613]	2	5

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s.	d.
1889	(3.) Appendix and Index - - - Ditto. Vol. III.	8vo.	[C. 5889 i.]	1	4
1888	(4.) Appendix - - - - The Duke of Rutland, G.C.B. Vol. I.	„	[C.5614]	3	2
1891	(5.) Appendix and Index - - - Ditto. Vol. II.	„	[C. 5889 ii.]	2	0
1889	(6.) Appendix and Index - - - House of Lords, 1689–1690.	„	[C. 5889 iii.]	2	1
1890	(7.) Appendix and Index - - - S. H. le Fleming, Esq., of Rydal.	„	[C. 5889 iv.]	1	11
1891	(8.) Appendix and Index - - - The Duke of Athole, K.T., and the Earl of Home.	„	[C.6338]	1	0
1891	(9.) Appendix and Index - - - The Duke of Beaufort, K.G., the Earl of Donoughmore, J. H. Gurney, W. W. B. Hulton, R. W. Ketton, G. A. Aitken, P. V. Smith, Esqs.; Bishop of Ely; Cathedrals of Ely, Gloucester, Lincoln, and Peterborough; Corporations of Gloucester, Higham Ferrers, and Newark; Southwell Minster; Lincoln District Registry.	„	[C. 6338 i.]	2	6
1891	(10.) Appendix - - - The First Earl of Charlemont. Vol. I. 1745–1783.	„	[C. 6338 ii.]	1	11
1892	Thirteenth Report - - - This is introductory to the following :—	„	[C.6827]	0	3
1891	(1.) Appendix - - - - The Duke of Portland. Vol. I.	„	[C.6474]	3	0
	(2.) Appendix and Index - - - Ditto. Vol. II.	„	[C. 6827 i.]	2	0
1892	(3.) Appendix. J. B. Fortescue, Esq., of Dropmore, Vol. I.	„	[C.6660]	2	7
1892	(4.) Appendix and Index - - - Corporations of Rye, Hastings, and Hereford. Capt. F. C. Loder-Symonds, E. R. Wodehouse, M.P., J. Dovaston, Esqs., Sir T. B. Lennard, Bart., Rev. W. D. Macray, and Earl of Dartmouth (Supplementary Report).	„	[C.6810]	2	4
1892	(5.) Appendix and Index - - - House of Lords, 1690–1691.	„	[C.6822]	2	4
1893	(6.) Appendix and Index - - Sir W. FitzHerbert, Bart. The Delaval Family, of Seaton Delaval; The Earl of Ancaster; and General Lyttelton-Annesley.	„	[C.7166]	1	4

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s. d.
1893	(7.) APPENDIX AND INDEX - - - The Earl of Lonsdale.	8vo.	[C.7241]	1 3
1893	(8.) APPENDIX AND INDEX - - The First Earl of Charlemont. Vol. II. 1784–1799.	,,	[C.7424]	1 11
1896	FOURTEENTH REPORT - - - This is introductory to the following :—	,,	[C.7983]	0 3
1894	(1.) APPENDIX AND INDEX. The Duke of Rutland, G.C.B. Vol. III.	,,	[C.7476]	1 11
1894	(2.) APPENDIX. The Duke of Portland. Vol. III. -	,,	[C.7569]	2 8
1894	(3.) APPENDIX AND INDEX. The Duke of Roxburghe; Sir H. H. Campbell, Bart.; the Earl of Strathmore; and the Countess Dowager of Seafield.	,,	[C.7570]	1 2
1894	(4.) APPENDIX AND INDEX. Lord Kenyon - - - -	,,	[C.7571]	2 10
1896	(5.) APPENDIX. J. B. Fortescue, Esq., of Dropmore. Vol. II.	,,	[C.7572]	2 8
1895	(6.) APPENDIX AND INDEX. House of Lords, 1692–1693 - -	,,	[C.7573]	1 11
1895	(7.) APPENDIX. The Marquess of Ormonde - -	,,	[C.7678]	1 10
1895	(8.) APPENDIX AND INDEX. Lincoln, Bury St. Edmunds, Hertford, and Great Grimsby Corporations; The Dean and Chapter of Worcester, and of Lichfield; The Bishop's Registry of Worcester.	,,	[C.7881]	1 5
1895	(9.) APPENDIX AND INDEX. The Earl of Buckinghamshire, the Earl of Lindsey, the Earl of Onslow, Lord Emly, Theodore J. Hare, Esq., and James Round, Esq., M.P.	,,	[C.7882]	2 6

HISTORICAL MANUSCRIPTS COMMISSION.

FIFTEENTH REPORT, APPENDIX, PART I.

THE MANUSCRIPTS
OF THE
EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

VOL. III.

Presented to both Houses of Parliament by Command of Her Majesty.

LONDON:
PRINTED FOR HER MAJESTY'S STATIONERY OFFICE,
BY EYRE AND SPOTTISWOODE,
PRINTERS TO THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

And to be purchased, either directly or through any Bookseller, from EYRE AND SPOTTISWOODE, EAST HARDING STREET, FLEET STREET, E.C., and 32, ABINGDON STREET, WESTMINSTER, S.W.; or JOHN MENZIES & Co., 12, HANOVER STREET, EDINBURGH, and 90, WEST NILE STREET, GLASGOW; or HODGES, FIGGIS, & Co., LIMITED, 104, GRAFTON STREET, DUBLIN.

1896.

[C.—8156.] Price 1s. 5d.

INTRODUCTION.

WITH the exception of the curious and valuable lists of armour at the Tower and elsewhere—which probably came into the hands of the first Baron Dartmouth when he was Master of the Ordnance, in 1682—the Earl of Dartmouth's manuscripts now preserved at Patshull, commence at the Restoration. The principal part of the collection was reported upon for the Historical Manuscripts Commission in 1887 by Mr. William Hewlett (see 11th Report, Appendix, Part 5). The present volume refers only to the documents that have come to light since that time, and forms an interesting supplement to the earlier report.

The collection opens with the correspondence and papers of Colonel William Legge, father of George Legge, first Baron Dartmouth, and commences with a letter from the famous Charlotte de la Trémouille, widow of James Stanley, Earl of Derby, and the gallant defender of Lathom House and the Isle of Man against the Parliamentary forces. In this letter which is dated 18 February 1662, the Countess prays Colonel Legge to use his influence with King Charles II. to obtain a title for her younger children, meaning probably her two younger surviving sons, Edward and William, who, she said, had suffered so greatly in the royal cause by the loss of their father. Her eldest son, Charles, then eighth Earl of Derby, had occasioned great grief to his father and the anger of Charles II. by marrying the daughter of John Kirkhoven, Baron of Rupa, in Holland, and by his will, dated August, 1651, James, Earl of Derby, left his estates to King Charles II., with a desire that they and the title might descend to his second son Edward, to the exclusion of his heir apparent, Charles, "and this," he continues, "by reason of my just offence against Charles, my eldest son, for "his disobedience to his Majesty in the matter of his marriage, "and for his going to join the rebels of England at this time to "the great grief of his parents by which he has brought a stain "upon his blood if he were permitted to inherit, but this by his "Majesty's great goodness, may be prevented." An explanation is here given to the reference in the latter part of the Countess's letter as to her husband's intention to bar the entail of the family estates, had he lived, and the invalidity of that portion of his will which proposed to convey the title and estates away from the heir.

Colonel William Legge had a considerable amount of property in Ireland, and the letters of his agents there, James and Nicholas Jones, throw some light on the condition of affairs in that country during the fifteen years following the Restoration. At the death of Colonel William Legge, on 13 October 1670, these properties, with others in England, went to his eldest son, George, who had been trained to the sea under Sir Edward Spragg, and who afterwards served under the Duke of York and Prince Rupert in the various naval battles against the Dutch in 1672–3. Hence it is probably that we have such ample information of the naval affairs of that time in this collection. Of the engagement in Sole Bay between the combined English and French fleets and the Dutch on 28 May, 1672, there are full accounts. It appears that the allied fleets were lying in the bay unsuspicious of the proximity of the Dutch, and, as Burnet tells us, more intent upon preparing for Oak Apple day than engaging the enemy, when about 3 or 4 in the morning one of the scouts brought news that the Dutch were in sight. The signal was immediately given by the Duke of York for the fleet to weigh anchor and for the ships to be put into line of action. Before this could be done, however, the Dutch had commenced the attack, and the engagement, which began at between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning, lasted all day. For some reason full reports of the battle were prepared by the principal commanders who survived the action, and copies of these are amongst the Earl of Dartmouth's MSS. A specially melancholy interest is attached to the account of what happened on board the Royal James, the flagship of Edward Montagu, Earl of Sandwich, "a gentleman," as Bishop Parker describes him, "adorned with all the virtues of Alcibiades and untainted by any of his vices." Being hard pressed, the Earl sent unsuccessfully to Sir Joseph Jordan for assistance. His ship was then boarded by a Dutch man of war, which he proposed to get rid of by taking the initiative and boarding the Dutchman himself; however, the force available was too weak, his ship having lost between 250 and 300 men. The Earl fought on bravely in hope of assistance, but none came, Sir Joseph Jordan passing close by to windward "very unkindly" taking no notice of him. Jordan, however, states in his account of the battle that he was unable to render assistance. The Earl having repulsed the boarders from the Dutch man of war, was boarded by a fire ship, which set fire to the Royal James, in the destruction of which the gallant Earl perished.

The journals of Admiral Sir Edward Spragg, who gives an outspoken account of all he saw and thought, commence with a narrative of the destruction of the Algerine fleet in Bugia Bay in May, 1671, and end off abruptly on the 10 August, 1673, the day before Spragg was drowned in the engagement with the Dutch off the Schoonvelt. In his account of the battle of Sole Bay, and wherever he has an opportunity, he does not fail to find fault with the conduct of the French ships then acting in concert with the English against the Dutch. In consequence of the Test Act, the Duke of York resigned his command of the fleet, and was succeeded by Prince Rupert, whose unpopularity or incompetency alienated the affections of most of the naval officers under his command. In the various engagements off the coast of Holland in the summer of 1673, Sir Edward Spragg severely criticises the Prince's mismanagement, and speaks of the "ill conduct and most notorious cowardice" of the fleet, in which there was want of order, no man well knowing his station. A further account of the naval engagement off the Schoonvelt of 11 August, 1673, will be found in Sir John Narborough's journal.

There is little further in the appendix to the present report till after George Legge had been created Baron Dartmouth in 1682, previous to his taking the command of the expedition for the destruction and abandonment of Tangier. Of this expedition and the proceedings of the Commissioners at Tangier, we obtain a considerable amount of information, which, with what has been printed in the former report, gives a fairly complete account of the expedition. Lord Dartmouth was appointed on the 2 July, 1683, sailed in August, and was home again in March, 1684, having fully carried out all the instructions given him as to conveying the residents, who were of various nationalties, to their native lands, demolishing the town, fortifications, and the Mole or harbour, and bringing home Colonel Kirk and "his lambs," with the other soldiers stationed at Tangier. Some interesting details about the topography of Tangier, the names of the inhabitants and of the streets, together with particulars of the goods and ornaments of the Church of St. Charles the Martyr there, will also be found.

Some of the papers here calendared assist materially in clearing up the question as to the position which Lord Dartmouth as admiral of the fleet took at the time of the Revolution. It appears that at the beginning of September, 1688, James II. appointed him admiral of the English fleet intended to intercept the Dutch ships which were to bring William of Orange to this country. The opinion in England was that the Dutch were bound for Harwich or the Thames and Medway; Lord Dartmouth determined, therefore, to alter the lights of Harwich and the buoys at the mouth of the Thames, so as to bring their ships upon some of the sand banks around that coast. Lack of provisions for sometime prevented the fleet, which then consisted of 32 fighting ships and 13 fire ships, from putting to sea, but towards the end of October Lord Dartmouth hoisted his flag on the Resolution and cruised about the mouth of the River. Both the fleet and King James appear to have been quite ignorant of the doings of the Dutch. Scouts were from time to time sent over to the coast of Holland, but returned only with unreliable information. On 30 October the fleet sailed northward along the east coast, and on the 4th November, a Dutch fly boat with about 200 soldiers, under the command of Major Colingsby, was taken, from whom it was discovered that the Dutch fleet had sailed to the westward. Lord Dartmouth immediately set sail in pursuit, but hearing that the enemy had landed, it was not deemed advisable to tempt them to offer battle, considering the inferior strength of the English fleet. Lord Dartmouth therefore remained in the Downs and neighbourhood until the 13th, when dispatches were received from the King, and from the instructions contained therein it was determined to attack the Dutch fleet wherever it might be found. From first to last Lord Dartmouth in his letters to the Bishop of London complains of the winds being contrary and the weather bad. On the 16th of November the whole fleet set sail for the west and on the following day, when off Portsmouth, an order was sent in to Sir Richard Beach to man what vessels he could for strengthening the fleet. Later on in the day Torbay was passed, but could not be approached on account of contrary winds. On Sunday the 18th November a great storm arose which dispersed the fleet, but upon the storm slightly abating on the Monday the fleet again made for Torbay, where the Dutch ships were descried, but the storm increasing, the English had to make for shelter in St. Helen's Road.

Notwithstanding the continued application to James for instructions, no definite orders were sent. It seems quite evident that for as long as it was possible to do anything in James' service the fleet held to his cause; Lord Dartmouth had been an intimate friend of James, when Duke of York, as the letters between them in the former report on the Dartmouth MSS. clearly show, and whatever feelings might be held towards the King on land, he continued to be considered the admiral and sailor prince among the sailors. The high esteem in which he was held by the Navy was shown at the time that Prince Rupert replaced him as admiral in 1673, when it was quite impossible for the latter to obtain the confidence of his subordinates and invidious comparisons were made between him and the Duke. But if the King had now no heart for the fight, his officers could not be blamed for being inactive. Undoubtedly Lord Dartmouth was in a most difficult position. Sir Henry Shere, writing to him on the 25th November, seems to have expressed the position pretty clearly, and advised the only course which it seemed possible to him for Lord Dartmouth to pursue. "Now "my dear Lord," he writes, "what will you do, I know you "are a man of honour, and I pray God keep you in that "mind, you have therefore an insuperable task given you which "nothing but divine inspiration can resolve how you will be able "to go through with. . . . . If you contribute "in any wise to the bringing in foreign force, you are undone "without redemption. If you fight the Dutch Fleet it will be "as fatal, and little less if you give up your command so that "the fleet should fall into hands that may render it useful to any "of these ends, which you might have prevented. Is it not "possible for your Lordship to shun these rocks by artfully "keeping the fleet for some days at sea (for this fermentation "cannot last ten days) and by that means put it out of your "power to obey or refuse, while you have made it impossible "for you to receive or they to send you any orders." Had Lord Dartmouth been inclined to accept this advice it would have been impossible for him to carry it out for want of provisions and on account of the tempestuous weather. As no reply came to his repeated request for instructions, on 1 December, an address was sent to the King by the hands of Lord Berkeley, but beyond an expression of approval of the action of the fleet, Lord Berkeley brought back no definite message. While lying at Spithead, the little Prince of Wales being at Portsmouth, the commanders waited upon him, and every ship in the fleet fired a royal salute in his honour. There can be little doubt that the presence of the Prince of Wales and his mother at Portsmouth was one reason for the detention of the fleet at Spithead, for we find James had sent word that if it were found impracticable for Sir Edward Scott to convey the Queen and Prince to London by land, Lord Dartmouth was to carry them there by sea. James had desired Dartmouth to convey the Queen and Prince to France, but this he absolutely refused to take upon himself the responsibility of doing.

While the fleet was still at Spithead, on 13 December there was received a letter from the Lords Spiritual and Temporal dated the 11th, ordering all acts of hostility towards the fleet of the Prince of Orange to cease and all Roman Catholic officers to be removed. Upon receipt of this and the news that the King had withdrawn, Lord Dartmouth had these orders carried out, and further wrote to the Prince of Orange as to the safety of the ships under his charge. Concerning Lord Dartmouth's bringing the greater part of the fleet up the Thames and his interview with the Prince of Orange, nothing fresh is brought to light. There is something comically pathetic in the excuse for the absence of the Mary yacht, which Lord Dartmouth made to Pepys, namely, that she was employed to bring the Prince of Wales' rockers up the river. That Lord Dartmouth behaved honestly and loyally to his king and country during a very difficult and critical time there can be little doubt from the papers quoted in the appendix to this and the previous report. As long as it was possible to serve James he did so, but not slavishly, for he James his errors and refused to act contrary to the laws of the country, but when the King forsook his own cause, Dartmouth did the only thing possible for the safety of the Kingdom by handing the fleet over to the Prince of Orange.

There are no documents touching the imprisonment, examination, and death in the Tower of the first Baron Dartmouth in this supplementary calender; of his examination before the Council, however, a full account will be found in the earlier report. His successor, William, second Baron Dartmouth was under age at the death of his father, but shortly after attaining his majority he took his seat in the House of Lords, and soon became recognized as a statesman of some distinction. In reward for his services to the State, Queen Anne created him, in 1711, Viscount Lewisham and Earl of Dartmouth. A piece of European history comes to light in some correspondence between him and Lord Townshend touching the death of Philip, Duke of Orleans, Regent of France, and the abdication of Philip V. of Spain, which called to the remembrance of Lord Dartmouth a curious account of the feelings of those concerned in the negotiations between the Court of St. James' and that of Madrid for the renunciation by Philip V. of the crown of France and the settlement generally of the succession to various European kingdoms at the time of the Treaty of Utrecht.

The most important part of the correspondence here calendared relates to the time of William Legge, second Earl of Dartmouth, generally known as "the good Lord Dartmouth." He was appointed President of the Board of Trade and Secretary for the Colonies in the cabinet of Lord North, to whom he remained steadfast all through that eventful ministry. In 1775 he was appointed to the less onerous post of Lord Privy Seal, and acted in that office under Lord North till the fall of his ministry Before taking office, Lord Dartmouth was urged both by the Earl of Hillsborough and the Earl of Chesterfield to obtain unrestricted power in his office, the latter ominously adding that "if we have no Secretary of State with full and "undisputed powers for America, in a few years we may as "well have no America." As the letters and papers of this collection touching America are to be dealt with in a separate report, it is needless to refer to such incidental references to the American War as happen to occur in these papers. There are one or two letters of interest from Lord North, John Robinson, and other politicians and statesmen, the most interesting of which is perhaps the almost pathetic letter from Lord North announcing to Lord Dartmouth the defeat of the ministry in 1782. The English policy with regard to the bloodless revolution in Sweden whereby the aristocratic form of government was deposed by Gustavus III. is shown by a letter from the Earl of Suffolk to the Earl of Dartmouth of 6th September, 1772.

The second Earl of Dartmouth will, however, be perhaps best remembered as a lover of the arts and literature, a scientist, but above all as a philanthropist and supporter of Wesley and the Evangelical movement of the middle of the eighteenth century. Principal among the letters touching this subject are those of the Rev. John Newton, of Olney, and afterwards of St. Mary Woolnoth, London, the converted slave trader, the hymn writer, and friend of William Cowper, the poet. Newton relates his difficulties in obtaining ordination from the Archbishop of York and the Bishop of Chester, and his early letters throw light upon the distaste in which the Evangelical movement was held by the higher ecclesiastical dignitaries and the governing body at Oxford. The most interesting part of this correspondence is perhaps that which refers to Newton's association with Lord Dartmouth's old schoolfellow, Cowper, who, with Mrs. Unwin, lived with Newton for some time before going into their new house at Olney, and light is thrown upon Cowper's long period of despondency in 1774–5. Of other persons who took part in the Evangelical movement, whose letters appear in the appendix to this report, are the Countess of Huntingdon and Rev. M. Maden. There is also an exceedingly curious and interesting letter from the Rev. John Wesley, dated 23 August, 1775, giving an account of the commercial and social condition of this country, and pointing out the decay of trade and discontent of the people consequent upon the American war.

The letters of Thomas Jenkins, painter and dealer in works of art, give us various points in the history of several paintings by the old masters. Trafficking at a date when the priceless contents of the villas of some of the Italian nobility were being put upon the market, Jenkins had the opportunity of obtaining for his English clients, works of art, at prices which appear to us almost ridiculous. The letters of Gainsborough inveighing against the "custom of painters dressing people like scaramouches and expecting the likeness to appear" give a valuable expression of opinion upon the fashion of the day in this respect. Of other letters concerning art, we have the amusing proposal by the Rev. William Gilpin to found a posthumous charity by the sale of his paintings.

As a man of science, the Earl of Dartmouth was applied to concerning a polar expedition in 1774, and in the following year touching the various inventions of James Watt. In 1778 he was requested to succeed Sir John Pringle as President of the Royal Society, and in 1779 was asked to undertake the presidency of the Society of Antiquaries.

The second Earl of Dartmouth died on 15 July, 1801, and was succeeded by his eldest son, George, who before his accession to the title had gained some political distinction, and, as a director of the East India Company, had shown an aptness for administration. The letters of Alexander Macaulay to him, when Viscount Lewisham, deprecating the means adopted by Englishmen for securing fortunes in India throw a valuable light on the conduct of affairs in that country. Like his father, Lord Dartmouth had strong religious convictions, and numbered amongst his friends such men as William Wilberforce. But it is in his capacity as Lord Chamberlain that the more interesting letters were written; from these we get some information as to various theatrical and similar schemes at the beginning of the present century.

Of miscellaneous letters and papers, the correspondence between Lady Marow and her daughter, Lady Kay, and between Lady Kay and Lady North, are interesting as illustrating the social history of the first half of the eighteenth century. The instructions to the Duke of Ormond, and the correspondence between him and the Secretary of State regarding the negotiations prior to the Treaty of Utrecht, throw considerable light upon the subjects with which they deal. The letters of Mr. Rawlings, a wine merchant of St. Columb, in Cornwall, give a graphic description of the systematic smuggling which existed in the West of England during the middle of the eighteenth century, and the totally inadequate means for suppressing it. The evasion of the custom duties was a fault not confined to small traders, but was practised largely by East Indiamen, and especially by the Lisbon packets coming into Falmouth harbour. On account of the smuggling by these vessels, he says, his firm could sell no Lisbon wines unless to truly conscientions persons, who will not buy where they suspect an unfair trade is carried on, "the number of "such as these is, alas, very few."

By reason of the proximity of Sandwell, formerly the principal country seat of the Earls of Dartmouth, to Birmingham, much information as to occurrences in that town appear in this collection.

WILLIAM PAGE.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

BOUND VOLUMES AND ROLLS.

1559, November 20. A survey of the Isle of Wight with plans of fortifications.

The Armoury.

1561. An account of the armour received into and delivered out of the Armoury from 26 January 1546 to 31 December 1561. The account sets out from whom the armour was received, from whence brought, and to whom delivered. It gives amongst others the armour of the Protector Somerset, Lord Seymour of Sudeley, Sir John Gates, the Marquis of Northampton, Dr. Cranmer, Archbishop of Canterbury, the Duke of Northumberland, and the Earl of Warwick. The armour in store at various places is also given, setting out the body armour of Henry VII. and Henry VIII. A large folio volume written on vellum and bound in velvet, ornamented with engraved silver, it contains as a frontispiece a coloured drawing on vellum of Sir George Howard, Master of Queen Elizabeth's Armoury, on horseback in full armour. This volume appears to be the original of Harl. MS., No. 7457. There is also another copy of it in this collection in a handwriting of the 17*th Century.*

1660, October.—"A View and Survey of all the Armour and other Munition of Habiliaments of Warr remayneing at the Tower of London."

The armour is described under the following headings:—

" Curasseers Armour with their furnitures."

Among the items are:—

"Large white Armour, cap-a-pe, said to be John of Gaunt's.

" Small white Armour, cap-a-pe, said to be Prince Henrie's."

" Corslets & Curats with their furnitures."

Among the items are:—

" White feild head-peeces defective - - - - ij.

" Masking Armour, compleat, reported to be made for King Henry the VII.

" Sundry parcells of tilt armor defective."

" Sundry other Armes and parcells of Armour, munition, &c."

Among the items are:—

" Battle axes - - - - - - iij.

" Great lances, whereof two are said to be King Henry the Seaventh's and one Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk's - - iij.

" Great hearte of John of Gaunt's.

" Spanish coller for torture, taken in 1588.

" Antick head-piece with ram's hornes, coller, and spectacles upon it, one jacke and one sword, all said to be Will. Somers' armes.

" In the Closett within the Armory att the Tower.

" Armor of King Henry the viij$^{th's}$, cap-a-pe, being rough from the hamer."

"Sundry compleate armors and others, whereof some of them were standing formerly at Greenwich in the Green Gallery there, viz:—

Upon a horse statue of wood, one compleat tilt armor, cap-a-pe, richly gilt, part engraven, part damasked, made for Prence Henry with two gantletts and one gilt grandguard; the horse furniture being one shaffron of the same sort, one old leather sadle and bitt.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, white and guilt, made for Kinge Henry the viijth. The horse furniture being one shaffron, breast plate, and buttocke of the same sort, one old sadle and bitt.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, damasked with gold, made for King Henry the vijth. The horse furniture being a shaffron, crinet for the neck, breast plate, and buttock of the same, sadle stirrops and bitt.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, white engraven and parcell gilt, made for King Edward the Third. The horse furniture being one shaffron, crinet for the neck, brest plate, and buttocke of the same, an old sadle and bitt.

Upon a like horse, one curasseer armor richly gilt and engraven, made for his late Matie of ever blessed memory Charles the First. The horse furniture being one shaffron of the same, and an old sadle.

Upon a like horse, one white armor cap-a pe, made for King Edward the iiijth. The horse furniture one shaffron, crinett for the neck, brest plate, buttock and one old sadle, with two gantletts and a pace guard.

Upon a like horse, one armor made for King Henry the vjth, consisting of an head peece, back, breast, a paire of pouldrons and vambraces, a paire of greaves and a pace guard. The horse furniture being a shaffron and an old sadle and a bitt.

Upon a like horse, one armor compleat cap-a-pe, engraven with the ragged staff, made for the Earl of Leicester. The horse furniture being a shaffron, crinett for the neck, and breast plate of the same, one sadle, bitt, and reines.

Upon a like horse, one armor complete cap-a-pe, white and plaine, made for Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk. The horse furniture being a shaffron, breast plate, and buttock of the same, one sadle, bitt, and bridle.

Upon a like horse, one armor complete cap-a-pe, white and plaine, made for William the Conqueror; the horse furniture being a shaffron, crinett for the neck, with sadle, bridle, and stirrops.

"Sundry rich Armors and parcells of Armour" brought from Mr Anneslie's house and now remayning in severall trunkes within the office of the Armorye at the Tower, with ij. great trunks and one great lead cisterne, still at the said house, viz.:—

Armour cap-a-pe, richly gilt and graven, made for his late Majestie of blessed memory, Charles the First, with gantletts and shaffron of the same, and gilt steeles for the saddle - - - - - - - -	One.
Small armor made for his now Majestie Charles the Second, when he was Prince, consisting of breast, back, gorgett, and head-piece, all richly guilt - - -	One.
Curasseer armor, richly gilt, made for his late Majestie Charles the First when he was young, consisting of a back, breast, head-peece, gorgett, pouldrons, and vambraces, cullet, cushes, and gantletts - - - -	One.
Small armour for horse and foot richly guilt with bosses of gold, and corded with silver, consisting of back, breast, taces, murrion, close head-peece, pouldrons, and vambraces, with gorgetts and gantletts - - - - -	One.

Foot armour of Henry the viijth richly gilt, consisting of a backe, breast, and placket, taces, gorget, a burgonett with a buffe or chin peece	One.
Small horse armor complete, cap-a-pe, richly guilt and chased, with gantletts	One.
Stirrups richly gilt and chased	One paire.
Sleeves of maile, with a velvet coate to them	One paire.
Small tilt armour, cap-a-pe, richly gilt and chaced, wanting only gantletts and manifare, with a shaffron of the same	One.
Small armour richly guilt and chaced, consisting of back, breast, culet, taces, gorgett, pace guard, maniefare, and gantletts	One.
Tilt head peice of the late prince Henry, gilt and graven	One.
Vampletts for tilting, staves, gilt and graven	vj.
Armour richly gilt and graven, consisting of back, breast, cushes, a paire of kneecappes, gorgett, a paire of short taces, one burgonet with a buff murrion, one gantlett, and a shaffron, with a pair of guilt steeles for a saddle	One.
Armour sent his now Majestie Charles the Second by the Great Mogull, consisting of back, breast, baces, head peice, vizor and peeces of the greaves	One.
Trunks wherein the said gilt armor is laid	iiij.
Great old trunks bound about with iron, remayning still at Mr Anneslie's house	ij.
Great leaden cistern formerly brought from Greenwich, and now remayning at the house where Mr. Anneslie dwelt in the Tower	One.

GREENWICH.

" Wee doe finde as well upon our owne view as upon the information of diverse officers of the Armory, storekeepers, and others that dureing the time of the late distractions, the severall armes, amunicon, and habiliments of warr, formerly remayning in the Green Gallery at Greenwich, were all taken and carried away by sundry souldiers who left the doore open. That sundry of the said armes were afterwards brought into the Tower of London by Mr. Anneslye, where they are still remayning. That the wainscott in the said Gallery is now all pulled downe and carried away, and, as wee are informed, was employed in wainscotting the house in the Tower where the said Mr Anneslye lived. That a great part of the ceiling is very much ruined and the whole house much decayed. That all the severall tooles and other utensills for making of armour, formerly remayning in the Master Armourers workhouse there, and at the Armorers Mill, were also within the time of the said distractions, taken and carried away (saveing two old trunks bound about with iron which are still remayning in the said workhouse, one old glazeing wheele still at the mill, and one other glazeing wheele sold to a cutler in Shoo-Lane). That sundry of the said tooles and other utensills have since been converted and sold to private uses by those who, within the time of the said distracions, had the command and care of the said armes and tooles, both at Greenwich and at the Tower. That diverse of the said tooles are still in other private men's handes who pretend they bought them. That the Great Anvill (called the Great Beare) is now in the custody of Mr Michaell Basten, locksmith, at Whitehall, and the anvill knowne by the name of the Little Beare is in the custody of Thomas Coxe, one of his Majesty's Armourers. And one combe stake in the custody of Henry Keemer, one other of his Majesty's Armourers. And that the said mill formerly employed in grinding glazing and making cleane of armes is destroyed and converted to other uses by one Mr Woodward who claimed it by vertue of a graunt from King James of blessed memory, but the Officers of the Armorye for his Majesty's use have it now in their possession.

Memorandum:—That the severall distinguishments of the armors and furnitures before mentioned, viz.:—The first serviceable, the second defective and to be repaired, the third unserviceable in their owne kinds yet may be employed for necessary uses, and soe reported by Richard King and Thomas Cox, two of his Majesty's Armourers at Greenwich, who were nominated and appointed in his Majesty's commission under his Signe Manuall, before recited, to be assistant in this service. And wee doe think the same to be by them faithfully and honestly distinguished."

J. Robinson,
Lieuten: Tower.
Jo: Wood,
Barth: Beale.

Will. Legge, Master of His Majesty's Armouries.

The Armoury in the Tower.

1682, November 2 to 1683, June 30.—Account of George Francklyn, Esquire, Keeper of the Armoury in the Tower. Among the items there are the following:—"Large white curazier armour compleate said to have beene John of Gaunt's, one suite." Various pieces of tilting armour. "Masqueing armour compleate said to have been made for King Henry the Seventh, one suite; compleate black armour rough from the hammer said to have been made for King Henry the Eighth. One suite anticke headpeece with rams' horns and spectacles upon it and one jackett of maile all said to have been William Somers his armes." Two gilt shaffrons whereof one is said to belong to King Charles the First's horse. Codpiece of King Henry the Eighth parcel gilt. Large headpiece or hearse of John of Gaunt; helmet with a long nose; collar for torture taken from the Spaniards in 1588, champion lance and target made for his own Majesty King Charles II., great lances and old wooden shields, two of each of which are said to have belonged to Henry VII. and one of each to Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk.

"Sundry compleat armours, etc. viz.:—Upon an horse statue of wood, armour cap-a-pe, white and plaine, with a gauntlett and manifare, made for William the Conquerer; the horse furniture being a chaffron, crinet for the necke, saddle and bridle, one suite.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, white engraven and parcell gilt, made for King Edward the Third; the horse's furniture being a chaffron, crinet, breast plate, buttocks of the same, an old saddle, and bitt, one suite.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, with manifare and passeguard made for King Edward the Fourth; the horse's furniture being a chafron, parcell guilt, breastplate and buttocks, plaine, with an old saddle, one suite.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, made for King Henry the Sixth, with a manifare and passguard; the horse's furniture being a chaffron, crinett, breast-plate, old saddle and bitt, one suite.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, damasked with gold, made for King Henry the Seventh the horse's furniture being a chaffron, crinet, breast-plate, and buttocks of the same, saddle, stirrupps, and bridle, one suite.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, white and gilt, made for King Henry the Eighth; the horse's furniture being a chaffron, gilt, breast plate, and buttocks, plaine, an old saddle, and bitt, one suite.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, white and plaine, with manifare, made for Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolke; the horse's furniture being a chaffron, breast plate, and buttocke of the same, a saddle plate gilt, with a saddle, bitt, and bridle, one suite.

Upon a like horse, one armour cap-a-pe, engraven with a ragged staffe, made for the Earl of Leicester, a mainguard, passguard, manifare and gauntlet; the horse's furniture being a chafron, crinet, and breast-plate of the same, saddle, bitt, and reines, one suite.

A statue of an horse, the furniture being a breast-plate and saddle-plate, parcell gilt, buttocks plaine, an old saddle with a gilt bitt, one.

Rich armour and parcells of armour:—

Small armour, made for his now Majesty, King Charles the Second, when Prince, consisting of back, breast, gorgett, and head-peece, all richly gilt, one suite.

Armour sent his now Majesty, King Charles the Second, by the Great Mogull, consisting of backe, breast, taces, head-peece, vizard, and a pair of greaves, one suite.

Odd peeces of sanguine armour, richly guilt, consisting of an head-peece, gauntlet, and three vamplets, v. peeces.

Odd pieces of white armour, richly gilt, consisting of a culett, pass-guard, and gauntlett, iij. peeces.

Vampletts, white, whereof one is richly embossed and engraven, vij.

Stirrup irons, parcell gilt and engraven, one paire.

Manifare, white, parcell gilt, one."

List of Armourers tools.

A like account, 30 June 1684 to 30 June 1685, which contains the following:—

"Complete armour on a statue of wood. One armour cap-a-pe, white, engraven, and parcel gilt, upon a horse statue of wood, made for King Edward the Third.

Breasts:—Danish, to be worn with cross girdles, the girdles unserviceable, ixcxv.

Footmen's armour with their furniture and crosletts:—Strong head-peeces for sea service, serviceable, ix.

Dutch headpeeces of severall fashions, serviceable, ix."

JOURNAL of Sir EDWARD SPRAGG commanding the Flag Ship in the Mediterranean Fleet.

1671, May 8 to 1671[-2], March 1. The journal commences with an account of the destruction of the Algerian ships in Bugia Bay, and gives a plan showing the positions of the ships there.

May 8, "Monday at 12 o'clock, the sea breeze came in finely. At 3 o'clock I fell on, battered ships and castles, till near five, at which time I sent my boats to cut the boom, and most bravely performed it was. My Victory, fireship, got aboard and destroyed seven sail of the best men-of-war, the newest ships of Algiers, two prizes, and a small trader, ... Half an hour past seven, all being done that was wished for, I warped off. The castles were very civil to us. About 10 o'clock we got off into 9 fathom of water out of shot, and anchored, viewing all night our lovely bonfires, which, in my opinion, was the most glorious sight that ever I saw, so great variety was in it, some of the ships' ports appearing in the flame, others their sterns, and some their timbers all naked. When the powder came to blow up, it was terrible; it destroyed many of them. It was so great and hot a fire, that the enemy was forced to quit the walls. The ships were close under the walls of the town and castle. A poor Bremen slave, that got off to me on Wednesday, the 10th, at night, assures me that by their own confession, they lost and there were destroyed in the ships alone, upwards of 300 soldiers of pay, besides Moors, which they make no account of. All their boats, and the poor Christian slaves, were hard at work fishing for the Turks. This poor man that escaped so luckily from them, helped to fish forty of them, the same day he came off, with great spikes made crooked on pikes and spars. The Admiral of Algiers, Irico (?), and all the captains of Algiers, who were not then at sea, were here. The Admiral and three captains wounded, seven killed, one of which being Barbarossa, that made so good a defence with the three Dutch men-of-war, where Van der Zane was killed."

The remainder of the journal gives an account of the cruises about the Mediterranean and return to England in March, 1672.

JOURNAL of [Sir EDWARD SPRAGG ?]

1672, May 2.—His Royal Highness sailed from the eastward of the Nore with about 40 sail of "stout men-of-war."

May 5. Anchored at the Isle of Wight. The French Fleet at Spithead.

May 28. "By 4 o'clock in the morning, the enemy's fleet appeared, we being then in the Sole Bay; many of the ships riding near the shore, especially our fire-ships and small craft. Before we came into line the enemy fell on, as the Blue and the Red stood with their heads to the westward. The French stood with their heads to the southward; the Zealand squadron stood with them. Our first guns were fired at 7 o'clock, by the Blue, being then ahead the Duke of York. When it cleared up, which was about 2 o'clock, I saw the Prince, and sent my pennice aboard to know how his Royal Highness did, and what he pleased to command me; which I no sooner did, but I found the Royal Standard spread in the St. Michael, his head to the southward and with him, of his own division, the Victory, the Fairfax, Cambridge, and Phœnix; of my division, the Resolution, Diamond, Breston (sic), and Monck, ahead of me, the Old James astern of me. Half an hour past 4 o'clock, having all my sails set since I tacked, I got ahead of his Royal Highness, under his lee, the St. Michael being somewhat disabled at that time. At 5 o'clock, his Highness came on board of me. About 40 sail of the enemy to windward of us, within gunshot, by the leeward of us; in another line about as many more. The Vice-Admiral of the Blue at the same time to the windward of the weathermost line of the enemy, with some 10 or 12 sail more. De Ruyter's squadron, with himself, was that which was on our weather side, being well repulsed by us, hove away, about 8 o'clock, to the leeward line. We kept our . . . . . and stood all night with 25 sail to the eastward, about the distance of a league and a half of the enemy, till 4 o'clock next morning."

Commanders slain:—Lord Sandwich, Mr Franc: Digby, Sir Fre: Hollis, Sir Jo: Cox, Captain Waterwoorth (?), Captain Hannam, Captain Pearce. Commanders wounded:—Captain Haddock, Captain Ludman. Persons of quality and gentlemen slain:—Lord Maidstone, Mr Rich: Nicols, Captain Hodg Vaghton (sic), Mr Trevanion, Captain Bromley, Captain Bennet.

May 29. Four o'clock in the morning, I called up his Royal Highness. It was then found advisable to tack and stand to the N.W., the French, and the Blue being most out of sight. At 10, we had a council called aboard the Prince, to hear his Royal Highness was returned aboard. The result was, that in consideration of the scarcity of ammunition, and several of our ships being disabled in their masts and hulls, we should go into the River and fit. This being no sooner resolved, than the enemy appeared, standing with us. We every one went to our several ships and stood with the enemy, being then in gunshot with the headmost of them. The enemy tacked in their line. At two o'clock we were in a line abreast of them, excepting the French, who never will be as they ought to be. Presently out came a fog, which continued till half an hour past 5, on which his Royal Highness spread his flag of battle. I bore down with my division, within less than a league. The French were very slack in bearing down, and in great disorder, nor do I expect better from them. This delay made his Royal Highness take in his red flag. At 8 o'clock, we being then within seven leagues of Zealand, S.E. by E. then of us, we tacked to our own coast, stood N.W. all night; the enemy continued still to their own coast.

May 30. We stood toward Sole Bay.

May 31. In the evening we stood near the shore. Aldborough being then of us W. by N. five leagues, we anchored. Close weather, and a great sea. We rode all night.

June 1. It being ill weather, we rode still at anchor in Sole Bay.

June 2. In the afternoon we sailed from Sole Bay, and anchored in the evening, in the Sladway, in 14 fathom. Our scouts brought us word that the Dutch fleet was anchored by Goree.

June 3. In the morning we weighed anchor and sailed with our whole fleet up the River Thames, mistake by the pilots in the Royal Prince, taking the North Foreland for the Naze.

June 4. We weighed with all the fleet, intending up the River Thames. We stopped our tide off the Longsands Head.

June 5. We sailed, and anchored at the west end of the Gunfleet. . .

June 6. About 8 o'clock his Majesty, with many of his noblemen, came on board of his Royal Highness in the Prince. [The] same day we turned up with all the fleet; anchored short of the shore beacon.

June 7. We weighed; sent most of our ships before, that were lamed.

June 26. We broke ground from the Nore, most of our fleet anchored at the buoy of the Oaze Edge. The wind, in all the time that we have lain here at anchor, has been westerly. His Majesty returned to London.

June 27. We sailed at 5 o'clock in the morning. Most of the fleet followed, and anchored at the Gunfleet.

June 28. Much wind. At a council of flag officers, it was resolved to stay for our small craft and fireships till the evening tide, and then to sail 12 or 14 leagues off the Texel.

June 29. We sailed with all the fleet.

June 30. We had news of the enemy being off Zealand, with their fleet.

July 1. The whole night we plied to and again off the Briel; anchored in the morning, W.N.W. 10 leagues off Gravesend, in 20 fathom. Same day was brought in, a small galliot taken by the Diamond and Crown. In the evening 10 or 12 sail passed by us in the offing; stood to the southward. Some frigates of ours cut and followed them. The Prince's main topmast spent.

July 2. We lay still at an anchor, 10 leagues off Gravesend. One of my scouts came in who had made the shore. At 12 o'clock we weighed anchor, the wind then at south, and stood away to the northward; little wind. An English ship that came from Amsterdam, gave us intelligence.

July 3. At 9 o'clock in the morning we made Camperdown; stood along on the broad, fourteen towards the Texel. The news from Amsterdam says that seven men-of-war being ready to set out to sea in the Texel, were ordered in again, and are laid up within the Pampas; that De Ruyter desires to know who will pay them, and to have a commission from the Prince of Orange; stopped two East India ships, that were outward-bound, to pay him and the fleet their wages. We anchored W.S.W. off the Texel, where we remained till Monday morning. The 8th, very ill weather most of the time. The Monk lost her foremast and bowsprit; the Henry, her main crushed and disabled in rolling. The winds, for the most part, between the S.S.W. and N.N.W.

July 8. We sailed N.N.W. and N.W. by N. till 8 o'clock at night, when we came to an anchor; sent out scouts, being then in 20 fathom of water, about some 12 leagues off the Holland coast, N.W. by N. of the Texel.

July 10. A council of flag officers was held, where it was resolved that we should remain at an anchor where we are, till the 14th; in regard to our victuallers that come to us . . , and then to move towards the east end of the Dogger; and on Monday, the 15th, our fleet to go to short allowance. I must confess my opinion was to attack first De Ruyter's fleet and then to look out for the East India fleet, the first being of probability, sure to be done, the second, very uncertain, our fleet being all in a body; the enemy being still 50 capital ships in sea, it was in no way safe to divide our fleet; which after the enemy were beaten and forced in, might very well have been, so as to find out the Dutch East India fleet. It was not his Royal Highness' fault at all; ill measures were taken at Court. However it happen, I wish we do not repent it very soon. Very ill weather; I escaped drowning in my boat, narrowly.

July 11. I called my whole division aboard, and issued to them the order of our last day's council. Towards night, very ill weather. Topmasts and yards down.

July 12. All day very much wind. Our scouts returned without any news of the enemy.

July 13. I sent the Princess to the northward, on the scout. No appearance of fair weather. . . . . .

July 16. Bad weather still. The Princess brought into the fleet a flyboat, laden with spars and deals, that came out of the Sound. No news. It being bad weather, I made bold to discharge him, without sending him to his Royall Highness being bound to London."

July 17 to 24. At the Dogger.

July 25. The Dutch East India fleet were seen off Heligoland. Sent on board his Royal Highness for his commands.

July 26. Very much wind, remained at anchor. The fleet in great want of water and provisions, notwithstanding all the care taken, and promises of the victuallers given to his Royal Highness. There cannot be enough precaution taken as to this. We want watering places much all over England, for the fleet, there being no provision made by the King for that purpose, as spouts to carry the water to the water side, a very great neglect. The money, the fleet at our watering pays, would make such provisions as would leave to posterity fountains and wells.

July 29. His Royal Highness called a council of flag officers and got our whole fleet under sail. I was sick and could not wait on him in person, but sent my captain. Sailed to the westward of the Dogger.

July 30. Went on board to his Highness.

July 31. One of my division brought in a small East Indiaman, Captain Trotter by name, about 100 tons, laden with copper lingots, pepper, and cinnamon. The month ended in a storm, such as was never seen before in any seaman's remembrance. Our men generally sick and in want of provisions and water.

August 3. His Highness called a council, where it was carried by most votes, to sail towards the Thames. Sir John Harman and myself were not for it, but to stay and take our victuallers with us, the better to be able to attack the enemy, and to observe any orders we might receive from the King.

August 6. Anchored with all the fleet, four leagues to the southward of Flamborough Head. His Highness called a council. I could not attend, but sent my captain. No absolute resolution was taken, but that my squadron should ride to the southward, the French to the northward, to water.

August 16. We sailed with all the fleet, having watered and victualled, and on August 19 we anchored seven leagues E.S.E. of Lowestoft.

August 21. We got under sail and at 9 o'clock anchored in Sole Bay.

August 22. Weighed with all the fleet, and on the 23rd the Blue squadron anchored to the northward of the Red, near the Nore. Captain Robinson, with five sail of men of war and four fireships anchored on the south side of the Oaze Edge; Captain Bate and Captain Trotter, left at the Gunfleet.

Diurnal of the Royal Prince Admiral of the Blue.

1673, May 1. Anchored at the Nore. "I came from London; arrived at the fleet, where I found the King and his Royal Highness. His Majesty, so soon as he dined, went to London. Prince Rupert called a council of flag officers." The Bourdeaux fleet arrived this day, and about 500 sail of colliers, which mightily helped the manning of the fleet.

May 22. Sailed from the North Foreland, towards the enemy's coast.

May 23. In the Schoonvelt.

May 24. "The enemy still at anchor as they lay yesterday. We endeavoured to weigh, but could not, it blowing fresh, and raining. By seven o'clock, the Sovereign came to us from the river. By 10 o'clock it blew so very hard that we lowered our yards. I drove, and many others. The French, some of them, lost their bowsprits. The enemy still at anchor in the Schoonvelt.

May 25. The weather somewhat abated, yet till 8 o'clock, the fleet generally had yards and topmasts down.

May 26. In the afternoon and all night, very hard weather, and sometimes rain.

Observations. That the banks of Flanders are laid between two and two and a half leagues, at the least, farther off than they are set down on the cards. We being now with the body of the fleet, anchored in 15 fathoms of water. Ostend S. of us and not above five leagues off; the land being plainly seen all along. In times of peace we ought to employ some able men to the finding the truth and danger of these banks. The difficulties and dangers that we often apprehended of these banks, saved the enemy's utter ruin especially in the year —— when Prince Rupert, and Albemarle, beat the Holland fleet, and saved themselves by retiring into Zealand; and also in the year —— when his Royal Highness won the battle, when Opdam was General and died, their fleet in great disorder retired into the Texel, we being unacquainted also that time, was safety. In the whole, no entire victory is ever to be had of the enemy, except we are well acquainted with their ports, so as to be able to pursue them into them, it being an easy work to destroy an enemy disheartened and beaten. Most, if not all their fireships I presume, are distroyed in the battle and pursuit. It [ought] to be a Prince and the wise Ministers' care, in times of peace, to send some of his ships of war into all parts, that we at any time can suspect to be at variance withal.

May 27. I came with my squadron and anchored, Ostend S. by W. of me, five leagues off the Blankenberghe in 13 fathoms of water. It was resolved at a council of Flags, to attack the enemy the first opportunity, if they should retire into Flushing or. . . . . to anchor in the Schoonvelt, and to weigh at high water, which is tomorrow, at 10 o'clock.

May 28. At 10 o'clock, it being reasonable weather, we weighed and stood in with the enemy. About one o'clock, the van of our fleet began to engage. It was two when the Blue squadron engaged, which was with the Zealand division. By three, they ran about two hours, till five; about which time, we met De Ruyter, who had tacked from the shore, having no sight of our Red squadron, the wind veering then to the N.E. I stood off, about half an hour. It being half an hour past five, I tacked and stood in again, just aweather of all the Dutch fleet, receiving my friends, De Ruyter, Banker, and most of all the enemy's broadsides, within musket shot, seconded only by the Cambridge, who was much disabled. When past these, it was 6 o'clock, we met Tromp who had changed his ship. The Red squadron came along, at a great distance to windward of them, which, if they had borne down and given me but opportunity to have weathered them, I would have been on board of him and destroyed that party of ships, which would have got an entire victory. Some of our ships fired at 9 o'clock; at 10, the enemy anchored. We continued under sail all night. About 11 o'clock, in my ship, we had but five fathoms, one foot less. It proved a very ill fighting place, for so great a number of ships; and in truth, as ill fought on our side, as ever yet I saw. Whatever resolutions or designs the enemy had, by lying at the Schoonvelt, I am persuaded our ill conduct and most notorious cowardice, will make them take new measures, and, instead of being in their own defence before, they will now, with great reason, be the offenders and seekers. I ordered the Cambridge, if not in condition to be refitted for service in the fleet, to take the first opportunity for our coast, and ordered the Guernsey to take him in tow. Captains slain:—Tho: Fowles, Worden, Tempest.

May 29. At 3 o'clock, I went on board of the Royal Charles, to Prince Rupert, to know his resolutions. We anchored, being just over the Stene Bank. About 8 o'clock it began to blow and continued a very hard gale of wind all day and night. Topmasts and yards down. The enemy at anchor, three leagues within us.

May 30. The wind still great, and the sea. We had opportunity to fit our ships, being at an anchor, such as were disabled, being few in number, as I suppose.

May 31. It blew hard all day; fitting our ships, all manner of stores being scarce, carpenters' and boatswains'.

June 1. In the morning very early, I went on board of Prince Rupert, the enemy being new-berthing themselves, our people thought they came to attack us, at which the sign was made to weigh, which we did, and new-berthed ourselves, every man in his station; S.E. and N.W.; the enemy in the same posture, three leagues off us in the Schoonvelt.

Observations. Had the enemy come down on us this day, our fleet being anchored, intermixed, they might have caught us in great disorder, and have made us generally to have cut. For which reason, and to prevent such surprise, you ought always to have your scouts out, and your fleet always—if room—to anchor in the line that you must sail, and always to sail in line of battle. If by the wind, if large, and sea room, the squadron that is to have the van of the battle, ought to sail all abreast, and to make the headmost; the general squadron to follow in the same order; the rear-admiral's squadron to do the like, and to keep a fine distance. The vice admiral of each squadron to be on the starboard side of his admiral, the rear admiral on the larboard side. In case of one squadron, the vice admiral's division to be in the van, and the rear-admiral in the rear. In the rear, or van, I would never have above one ship in the van or the rear of either of the flags. My reason is, they being usually the most experienced men, will better observe the times of tacking the fleet; and also, their ships being commonly the best and strongest ships . . . . force, will better endure being in the rear [which] is always the easiest cut off.

June 2. At anchor with all the fleet.

June 3. Still at anchor with the fleet. The enemy in sight. The Swiftsure came to the fleet.

June 4. The weather reasonably good. About 10 o'clock in the morning, I went from my ship to go on board of Prince Rupert who was anchored, at the least, 10 miles from me. It was 12 o'clock when I arrived there; the Sovereign's topsail being then loose, and the enemy in a line, coming away with us. The Prince said little to me, but desired me get aboard, and to make sail ahead. It was just 2 o'clock when I got on board my ship. All being clear, I made sail. Prince Rupert, by this time, having pressed sail through the French squadron, who lay anchored in the body of the line, which obliged me to press more sail and delay our engaging fully an hour, which otherwise I should have done. Trompe, whose squadron had the van, being very impatient, fired a gun to stay for him. You would have thought, by his vapouring and fierceness we were to be eaten all alive. Our ships astern being in very great disorder, I continued sailing, hoping to bring them into a good line, but seeing no hopes, and Tromp's vapour being still in my head, I shortened sail. The gentleman's courage seemed somewhat moderated, that instead of eating us all alive, he very cowardly lay large gunshot to the windward, never daring to come at nearer distance. Though he had in his squadron the best ships of the fleet and 11 fireships, he did not once dare to make a proffer with any of his fireships. At three quarters past four, my main topsail was shot in pieces from the yard. I then set my mainsail to keep my ship to. At 6 o'clock, my carpenter told me he had five feet of water in the hold. At 7 o'clock, I sent to my Vice Admiral, and Rear Admiral, to let them know my condition, and in case I bore away to stop my leaks, they should support the line. My carpenters have stopped some of my leaks, and the pumps entertaining it; so that the water did not increase, I kept my line till near 10 o'clock, at which time I bore down and lay all the rest of the night fair by the Sovereign to leeward of her. Between 11 and 12, De Ruyter stood away to his own coast. Tromp, with 16 sail more, continued sailing by my Vice Admiral and the Vice Admiral of the Red Squadron, till 3 o'clock. At daybreak, he found himself quitted by De Ruyter, stood away very quietly, being then fair by the Vice Admiral of the Red, no one interrupting him. When he was almost gone out of sight we stood a little that way, and stood in again to our own shore, which was then in sight. We fell in off Lowestoft.

We had in this battle, great want of order, no man well knowing his station, which must inevitably be a ruin to that army so governed. Had the body of our fleet tacked on De Ruyter, he being very weak in that part of the line, we should probably have got the battle. The strength was, and their hopes were, in the van of their fleet, which was commanded byTromp. I had ships enough in my squadron to hold him tack (sic); or had the Red and the French tacked about two o'clock in the morning, Tromp's whole squadron had been lost, De Ruyter having tacked to E.S.E., and Tromp with his squadron kept along with us till 3 o'clock, N.N.W. We very tamely let him go, till he was out of reach, and then we made as if we had a mind to follow."

The fleet then returned to the Thames and again started for the coast of Holland, on 19 July. On 21 July, they were in sight of the enemy, who was anchored in the Schoonvelt. The Prince placing himself in the van, the French in the middle. "The line of battle, being of 89 men-of-war, and small frigates, fire-ships and tenders, is so very long, that I cannot see any sign' the General Admiral makes; being quite contrary to any custom ever used at sea before, and may prove of ill consequence to us. I know not any reason he has for it, except being singular and positive.

July 22. "We weighed anchor. The enemy were also under sail. While we stood to the northward, the enemy followed, which was till 12 o'clock, at which time the Prince made the sign for the van of the fleet to tack, where I then was, the French in another line to the leeward of me. I tacked and stood to the southward; the enemy's van at the same time, did the same. At one o'clock the Prince sent me his lieutenant, by name——to tack and use my own discretion, which I took in writing under his hand. In the time of this tack, the wind veered from the N.W. to the S.W., so that from lying W.S.W. by the stern, by the time I fetched the length of the Red, I could lie but S.S.E. on which the enemy re-tacked and lay W.N.W. with their larboard tacks on board, insomuch that I could not get the wind of a quarter of the enemy's fleet. Our Red squadron, instead of keeping the wind, the best they could (from the time the sign was made for me to tack to the southward to the enemy), bore away near three leagues to the leeward.

At the time, the enemy was perceived to stand in again into their own sands. The Red sprung their luff again, which, had it been done all along, I am sure we had engaged the enemy, who were very inconsiderable to us, their number, in all, not exceeding 106, of which number, I suppose men-of-war, 70, at the most. If any slackness or neglect was in us this day, Sir John Harman, then Vice-Admiral of the Red, and then in the van of the fleet next to the enemy, is best able to tell. I was at so great a distance from the Red that I cannot say much to it; only this much I say, that what was done by us, I never saw done before, nor, I hope, never will again. After the enemy tacked from us, our fleet stood away to the northward. About 12 o'clock, we anchored, the French being anchored before us. The Red, who were ahead, lay all night driving, and under sail. Many inconveniencies may and do daily happen from putting the French in the middle."

A record follows of the cruising of the fleet off the coast of Holland till 10 August, when the journal suddenly terminates. On 11th August Sir Edward Spragg in whose handwriting the journal appears to be, was drowned in the naval battle with the Dutch.

PAPERS RELATING TO THE FLEET.

1672, August. James, Duke of York's instructions for the better ordering of his Majesty's Fleet in sailing and in fighting. A list of the fleet with the signals for speaking to any of the ships, and accounts by the captains of various ships of the battle between the English and Dutch Fleets on 28 May 1672, and accounts of what happened on board several of the English ships.

ACCOUNT given by Captain JOHN NARBROUGH, on board the Prince, Tuesday, 28 May 1672.

After his Royal Highness went away out of the Prince, which was between 10 and 11 o'clock, we bore off from the Dutch to bring her upon another tack, to mend her rigging and fit the ship, which was disabled. About 12 o'clock we got our larboard-tacks on board, and stood to the E.S.E. to the leeward of the Dutch fleet, out of shot, fitting our rigging. Falling in then with Sir Edward Spragg and some other ships of our division, which were standing to the northward to get up with the enemy, I sent my boat on board them to give them notice that his Royal Highness was gone on board the St. Michael, which lay to windward of us, upon our larboard quarter. As soon as they had notice of it, they tacked, and made what way they could up to the St. Michael. Between 2 and 3 o'clock we saw them engaged with the enemy, but could not discover any particular ship for smoke, all the afternoon. About 4 o'clock we passed by the hull of the Royal James, which was then almost burnt down, and a good while after that, we passed by a Dutch ship disabled, which we saw the Greenwich take. Between 6 and 7 we discovered Sir John Kempthorne and Sir John Harman, each of them with some shipps in their company, who were standing to the southward, firing at the enemy, who were on their weather bow. Presently after we saw a squadron of ships upon our lee bow, standing to the northward, but being at a distance, we could not distinguish what they were, but then took them to be the French. As soon as they got the length of us (being about 2 miles distant) they tacked and stood to the southward as we did, keeping the wind, and then we made them to be part of the Dutch fleet, consisting of about 25 sail (fire ships and others) which had been before engaged with the French. At 8 o'clock we got up with Sir John Harman and Sir John Kempthorne, and the rest of our ships which were in their company. The Dutch fleet, which had the wind of us, bore down, tacking, to join those to leeward of us, and then we saw several French ships to leeward of the Dutch, standing to the southward. We tacked, and stood a little to the northward. After we had spoken with Sir John Kempthorne and Sir John Holmes, we concluded to keep our wind, and ply to the southward to join his Royal Highness and the rest of our ships, which we saw to windward of us, standing to the southward likewise a-weather of the Dutch fleet. Night coming on, we kept them company by their lights and the next morning we joined with them, being to the eastward of the Galloper about two miles, the Dutch being at that time out of sight.

ACCOUNT given by Captain RICHARD HADDOCK, on board the Royal James.

Upon signal from our scouts of the Dutch fleet's approach (about 4 in the morning, the wind at E. by S.) we immediately put our ship into a fighting posture, brought our cable to the capstan, and heaved a-peak of our anchor, which, upon firing a gun and loosing foretopsail of your Royal Highness's ship, we presently weighed and afterwards lay kedging, without head sails at the mast, till our anchor was up, which done, we made sail, and stood off (stemmed N.E. by N.) with our signal abroad for our squadron to draw into line of battle, which was done as well as the short time we had would permit; and finding ourselves one of the weathermost ships, we bore to leeward till [we] had brought ourselves in line. The Vice-Admiral and most of his division right ahead, the Rear-Admiral and his, right astern; only one or two of our division a little to leeward of us, the Edgar, and (as I remember) the Mary Rose, and they so near us as within call.

The Dutch squadron, Van Ghent, Admiral, attacked us in the body and rear very smartly, let our van go ahead without engaging them for some considerable time as far as I could perceive. We engaged above an hour very smartly. When the Dutch found they could do no good on us with their men of war, they attacked us with two fireships, the first of which we fired with our shot, the second we disabled by shooting down his yards. Some short time before, I had sent our barge, by my Lord Sandwich's command, ahead, to Sir Joseph Jordan, to tack and with his division to weather the Dutch that were upon us and to beat them down to leeward, and to come to our assistance. Our pinnace I sent likewise astern to command our ships to come to our assistance, which boat never returned, but were on board several ships, who endeavoured but could not effect it. About an hour and a half after we engaged, we were boarded athwart our hawse by one of their men of war, notwithstanding our endeavours to prevent him by wearing our ship 2 or 3 points from the wind to have taken him along our side. When he had been athwart our hawse some short time, my Lord Sandwich asked me whether it was not our best way to quit ourselves of him to board him with our men and take him by force. I gave him my reasons that it would be very disadvantageous to us. First, that I must have commanded our men from our guns, having then, I believe, betwixt 250 to 300 men killed and wounded, and could not expect but to lose 100 men in taking him; 2^{dly}, If we had so done we could not have cut him loose from us, by reason the tide of flood bound him fast athwart our hawse; and thirdly, had we plied our guns slowly by taking away our men, we had then given cause to the enemy to believe we had been disabled: and consequently more of them would have boarded us, which might possibly have overpressed us: so that my lord was satisfied with my reasons and resolved we should fight it out in our defence to the last man, being still in expectation of assistance. About 9 or 10 o'clock Van Ghent himself finding those, his other flags, could do no good upon us, nor that party with them, came up with us himself (we having lost the conduct of our ship). He ranged along our starboard side, gave us a smart volley of small shot, and his broadside, which we returned with our middle and lower tier, our upper guns almost all disabled, the men killed at them. He passed ahead of us in musket shot. Some short time after, Sir Joseph Jordan (our barge having been with him and given him my lord's commands) passed by us to windward very unkindly, with how many followers of his division I remember not, and took no notice at all of us, which made me call to mind his saying to your Royal Highness, when he received his commission, that he would stand betwixt your Royal Highness and danger, which I gave my lord account of, and did believe by his acting yourself might be in his view in greater danger than we, which made my lord Sandwich answer me, "We must do our best to defend ourselves alone."

Near 12 o'clock I was shot in my foot with a small shot, I suppose out of Van Ghent's maintop which, in a short time, filled my shoe full of blood, and forced me to go down to be dressed. I gave my lord account of it, and resolved up again as soon as possible. When [I] went down I sent up Sir Charles Harboard and Lieutenant Mayo to stand by my lord, and as soon as I came down, remembering the flood was done, sent up to my lord desiring him to command the ship to an anchor by the stern, which was immediately done, and after brought up, the ship athwart our hawse fell away, and, being entangled with our rigging, our men entered and took her cut her loose from us and at my lord's command returned all on board again; upon which I, hearing the ship was loose from us, sent up to my lord that the cable might be cut and the ship brought to sail before the wind and to set our mainsail, which was presently done, and then my lord sent me his thanks for my advice, and withal to be of good cheer; that he doubted not but we should save our ship. At that time one of our surgeons was cutting off the shattered flesh and tendons of my toe; and immediately after, we were boarded by that fatal fireship that burnt the noble Royal James. Three of our fireships wanting; the Robert, Rachell and Thomas, and Edward under the shore; the Alice and Francis lay by us till the captain was killed and then notwithstanding our yoale was ahead of him towing him up; they bore away to leeward. The Henry ahead which was smartly attacked, could not relieve us; the Rupert astern kept by us a long time, and the Richmond on our bow and quarter kept by us as long as she could. Two or three ships I think of the rear squadron were up with us near our stern, about 10 o'clock, and tacked away to the southward from us.

Account given by Sir Edward Spragg, on board the London.

The whole English and French fleet being at anchor in Southwold Bay to water and complete their 4 months victualling, on Tuesday the 28th May, 1672, about 3 o'clock in the morning, was seen one of our scouts coming from the eastward making signs by firing guns and keeping his topgallant sails in the clewlines. The General's ship being then on the careen for cleaning, betwixt wind and water, was immediately righted again, and the sign made from his Royal Highness for the whole fleet to weigh. The Dutch fleet all in sight, wind easterly, the Blue leading our van, the enemy having the windward gage. We began the fight at seven in the morning, and at 8 the fleets on both sides were wholly engaged, which was prosecuted with much severity, being very little wind and sometimes calm. About 9 o'clock an admiral with 14 sail (among which were two fireships) kept themselves in a body bearing down to my division until they found themselves warmly received, which made them to keep their wind; upon which, the enemy bracing all sails aback, we laid our head sails to the mast. Immediately after, one of their great ships sunk within musket shot of us. The Old James, Bristol, and Resolution being the rear of my division with the starboard tack aboard, received most damage from the enemy at that time, being then about 12 o'clock. The gale freshening a little, and being something clearer from the smoke than usual, we saw the Prince bearing to leeward, the head of her maintopmast shot down, the red flag flying at the foretopmast head. I forthwith sent Captain Shelley on board the Prince to receive his Royal Highness's commands, who returned immediately with an account that his Royal Highness, finding the Prince disabled, had removed himself to the St. Michael; upon which I made all sail to fetch his wake, and tacked with all my division, and made what sail I could to get up with the Duke, giving notice to the commanders of my division to use their utmost endeavours to get up with the General, they sailing better than the London upon a wind, and keeping mainsail and all staysails set. About 2 o'clock, could scarce weather the ruins of the Royal James, being all on fire, was forced to bear away to leeward of her in company with the Charles. The same time Capt. Sadlington in the Dartmouth destroyed one of the enemy's fireships, and took another. Seeing the Katherine to leeward, I sent Lieutenant Pinnon aboard, who returned me an account that the ship had been taken by the enemy, and Sir John Chichley, with other officers, carried into Holland, and that the boatswain and gunner, with the people belonging to the gun deck, had retaken the ship, by forcing some of the Dutch overboard and taking the rest prisoners, and that they intended to sail for Harwich to secure the ship.

At 3 in the afternoon, the Resolution being much disabled bore to leeward, making a waft with her ensign on her mizen shrouds, with another on her jackstaff. Thinking Captain Berry might have been slain, I sent Captain Shelley on board to command the ship, seeing her bear away from the line; but he, finding the Captain well, informed me that the Resolution had 7 feet of water in her hold, and therefore bore out of the line.

At 5 o'clock, we stretched ahead of the St. Michael. At the same time Captain Pyend, in the Ruby, ran under my lee ahead of me, we being then within half shot off a rear admiral, and a small frigate of the enemy's, a little on our weather bow, which we quite disabled by shooting down his main yard, maintop-sail yard and sprit-sail yard, which rear admiral the Ruby bore down from, at which I sent Lieutenant Pimm (sic) to know the reason, and that in case he was not disabled to spring his luff and keep his line ahead of me, which he then did.

About 5 o'clock his Royal Highness came on board the London, where we continued firing against the enemy's line to windward of us, till after 8 o'clock, De Ruyter about the same time bore away to leeward of us. We tacked and laid our ship's head to the northward in 19 fathoms of water, till about 9 o'clock, being then in number 24 or 25 sail, little and great, being all of the Red Squadron except the Ruby. His Royal Highness commanded us to refit our rigging and keep company with the enemy, keeping the weather gage of them, and at half an hour past 9 we tacked and stood along the weather of the enemy all night, in sight of them. At 4 o'clock next morning we had sailed in 6 hours and a half E.S.E. 8 or 9 leagues, wind at N.E. by N., fair weather. Wherewith when I had acquainted his Royal Highness, at 5 o'clock we tacked and stemmed, away N.N.W., wind at N.E., close weather. At 6 o'clock we had sight of the enemy bearing S.S.E. some 3 or 4 leagues off, our fleet being between 40 and 50 sail. Presently after, we espied the rear admiral of the Blue and the French Squadron standing towards us. About 7 o'clock his Royal Highness left the London and went again on board the Prince, she having got up her maintopmast and at 8 we tacked, stemming away E.S.E. The General being about, laid his foretopsail to the mast, and called a council of flag officers. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, we had sight of the Rear Admiral of the Red astern of us. The Dutch fleet being to leeward of us, stood as we stood, the body of their fleet bearing south. After the flag officers were dismissed, we tacked and stood with the Dutch. At 4 in the afternoon our fleet was drawn into a line, our van being up with the van of the Dutch, within two miles of them and we to windward. The General, putting forth a red flag near 5 o'clock, bore down upon the enemy, but of a sudden, a dark and thick fog covered us till 7 at night, blowing very hard. We were forced to unsling our topsail yard and reef our topsails. At 8, the whole fleet tacked stemming away N.W., wind at N.N.E., keeping to windward of the Dutch, thick hazy weather, where we lost them in the fog.

ACCOUNT given by Sir JOSEPH JORDAN, on board the Sovereign.

28 May. Wind easterly, our fleet at anchor in Southwold Bay, taking in provisions and water. About 4 this morning, one of our scouts came in with her top gallant sails flown, and firing guns. The enemy being nigh, his Royal Highness gave the sign for weighing anchor, and putting the fleet into a line of battle, which, divers of our ships and fireships being near the shore could not get into. The Sovereign led the van, with the starboard tack on board standing towards Lowestoft, having most of her division in a line about her.

The enemy to windward, a great part thereof, about 8 this morning, fell in furiously with his Royal Highness and my Lord Sandwich. Between both parties we observed a very great conflict. There fell in with the Sovereign a Rear Admiral with some others (with fireships attending) with whom there was a dispute near an hour, during which time a boat came to the Sovereign in the name of my Lord Sandwich, that she should tack and get the wind of the enemy if possible, which was really intended, and all endeavours by the commander so to do, before that order came.

The Sovereign keeping close by the wind, caused, as presumed, that Rear Admiral and the rest to tack; then stretching it out so far, that she got the wind of them, and all the rest, and then maintained a hot dispute against an admiral, vice-admiral, and rear admiral. and 5 or 6 great ships more, with 4 or 5 fireships (one whereof was the Merlin galley). They strove to get the wind which was not reasonable in our apprehension, to give them, for that the Sovereign had not one fireship to attend her, which if she had had, she might have gone closer and done better service. That admiral, we observed, bore into another party of ships to leeward, and in the smoke and hurry we could not well discern what was done to leeward, but sometimes saw the enemy battering at our fleet, and ours at them to leeward.

About 11, the enemy tacked, and the Sovereign after them, still keeping her wind of them and battering along. About noon we espied ships on fire to leeward of us, not knowing what they were; two ships we saw sinking, which we judged to be the enemy's.

About 2, afternoon, the Sovereign bore nearer to that party or squadron of the enemy, and continued battering till 6 at night. Then, perceiving his Royal Highness to leeward of the enemy's van, we endeavoured by all means to join with and assist him, which, by the enemy's bearing away to leeward, as apprehended, to succour some of their own distressed ships, gave some advantage that the Sovereign joined with his Royal Highness between 8 and 9 at night; after which his Royal Highness plied to windward and stood after the enemy all this night, the greatest part of the fleet far astern, especially the French Squadron.

29th [May]. Wind at N.N.W. About 6 this morning his Royal Highness with some of his squadron (and the Sovereign with her division) tacked and stood to the westward, and joined with the rest of the fleet astern about 9 in the morning, and then his Royal Highness called his flag officers to council, in which time the enemy's fleet was espied to eastward of ours, about 4 leagues distant, our fleet having the wind. By his Royal Highness's signal the fleet put into line of battle, and being come almost within shot of some of them, at 3 in the afternoon, proving a very thick fog, disappointed our fighting. Wind then at N.N.E., a stiff gale, and between 8 or 9 at night our fleet tacked to the westward.

ACCOUNT given by SIR JOHN HARMAN on board the Charles, Rear-Admiral of the Red.

On Tuesday morning his Royal Highness being at anchor with his fleet in Southwold Bay, early in the morning, we heard several guns fired, and presently after saw the Dutch fleet bearing into the Bay, with the wind at E.S.E. Whereupon his Royal Highness immediately fired a gun for the the fleet to weigh, which was effected so soon as could be, though several ships were retarded by taking in of provisions. About 6 in the morning the Dutch fleet drew near, and myself went on board his Royal Highness, who was pleased to lay his commands on me that I should lead the van of his own squadron and keep next to the Blue, which was presently obeyed, although I had not more than three ships near me, the Anne, York, and Dover. Between 6 and 7 o'clock the engagement began, De Ruyter himself, with his squadron, came up directly to the Duke. The Zealand squadron came to the French fleet; the Holland squadron to the Earl of Sandwich. Concerning both these squadrons, the Blue and the French, I can give very little account in regard to the smallness of wind, which blew so much smoke, that it was impossible to see them. About two hours after the fight began, the wind came to S.E., and I stood with the Charles with the starboard tack on board till near two o'clock. About 12, De Ruyter came up with his squadron to me, when we fought about two hours. Those ships of my division being disabled, I was left alone, and about 2 o'clock I tacked the other way. At 3 o'clock it cleared up so that I could see most of our fleet. I saw his Royal Highness on the weather bow, with some few ships attending him, the vice admiral of the Red being at that time astern of me. The vice and rear admirals of the Blue were got to the windward with their divisions. The French fleet and Zealand squadron were at that time, as I judge, upon parting, at which time his Royal Highness was on board the St. Michael and engaged with the southernmost part of the Dutch fleet till about night. The Dutch fleet then with the wind nearest at the N. E. stretched it off with their starboard tacks on board towards their own coast. His Royal Highness, with the greatest part of his fleet, excepting those which were maimed, and excepting the French fleet steered off likewise. For my own particular, I was forced to lie with a very small sail that night, having enough to do to keep our masts over head; but the morning coming, I made what sail I could, but before I could get near to his Royal Highness, the Dutch fleet appeared and were drawn up in a fighting posture ready to give battle. Whereupon his Royal Highness, did bear up to them, and I, endeavouring to follow him with all the haste I could possibly make, was prevented by the disability of the mainmast which was ready to come by the board. Whereupon I was necessitated to send the Charles over to our own coast, and myself embarked in my kitch and went on board his Royal Highness, who was pleased to send me on board the Cambridge.

ACCOUNT given by Sir JOHN KEMPTHORNE, Rear Admiral of the Blue, on board the St. Andrew.

At 3 o'clock in the morning we heard the guns of our scouts in in the offing, so we immediately discovered the Dutch fleet coming upon us before the wind, it being all easterly. The warning piece being fired from his Royal Highness, we presently weighed our anchor. Sir Joseph Jordan leading the van, my Lord of Sandwich followed, but was more to windward. Several of the Blue ships riding so near the shore, they could not come into their line. Of my division I wanted only Captain Trevanion, the rest were in their order. As soon as we came near the Royal James, being somewhat to leeward of him, we discovered a ship on board him Supposing it had been one of our own ships by reason of the great smoke we could not discern the contrary. At which the boatswain of the Mary Rose lying by our side in a pinnace, by accident by reason he could not find his own ship, I commanded him to row on board my Lord of Sandwich to see what the matter was, and give him his assistance we standing away with an easy sail. The enemy sharply engaged us, a vice admiral being athwart of us, with 2 or 3 others constantly firing on us. From that time, being about 7 o'clock, we continued fighting on the same tack until about 10 or 11, not seeing any flag besides our own in regard of the constant firing and great smoke, standing still to the northwards about 2 or 3 leagues from the shore. About 11 o'clock we discovered Sir Joseph Jordan to windward of us and to windward of the enemy that fought with us, standing to the northward, he having made a tack to the southward and back again to the northward, which we did not perceive till that time. So then we tacked on the enemy and made them stand to the southward, having then got the wind of them. About noon we saw several of my Lord Sandwich's division come astern of us, and that part of the enemy which had engaged with us all the morning stood away from us, and De Ruyter himself came up and fought with us, having two seconds astern of him. He sailing very well we could not get to him, although we set our mainsail, but one of the ships astern of him, he was forced to quit, that we had lamed, with which ship we had interchanged many a shot. The Edgar being astern took possession of him, Ruyter himself backed his own ship several times to have protected her, but we forcing on him, he was forced to quit her and then made a sign with a small blue flag at his foretopmast head to another admiral and his seconds, who immediately tacked on us and weathered us, passing their broad sides on us, being then engaged on both sides. At which time there was one of their rear admirals to windward of us she having lost her mainyard. The aforesaid admiral and his consorts securing the lame ship. We still followed De Ruyter. The next ship to him being disabled of her foretopsail I did encourage Captain Harris commander of the Anne and Judith, fireship to attempt the burning of him, which he did bravely endeavour,and got fast aboard him, but his foreyard being shot, prevented his hold. De Ruyter sending his pinnace and small frigate to cut off his boat, killing him and 5 men, and wounding him 5 more, so his ship was burnt in vain, although his endeavours were gallantly performed. Being about six o'clock we still pursued De Ruyter, supposing we should have joined with more of our fleet by reason we saw the enemy engaged to leeward of us, but it proved Sir John Harman, the Royal Prince, and some few others which were between De Ruyter and another party of the Dutch. So then it being near night, the Dutch rallied the most part of their fleet together, and we edged to the Prince and Sir John Harman.

An Account of what passed on board the several Ships the Duke was in, the day of the engagement, 28 May.

On board the Royal Prince.—This morning about half an hour after two, our ship being on the careen to give her a pair of boathose tops, we heard firing of guns to windward, and presently perceived it was one of our scouts, which came down before the wind, making the usual signals of the approach of an enemy's fleet, the wind being then E. by S., and E.S.E. a gentle gale. Upon which we immediately righted her again, and made the signal for the whole fleet to weigh. A little after sunrise we could see the enemy's fleet from the quarter deck, they then bore N.E. from us, wind E.S.E. So soon as we had got our anchors on board we put out the signal for drawing into our order of battle, and stood to the northward with our starboard tacks on board as near the wind as we could lay. By six, the enemy were fair with us and the Count d'Estrée sent the Major to the Duke to know what commands he had for him, who answered him that he desired he would keep his wind as much as he could. At a quarter and a half past seven, Van Ghent with his squadron began to engage with our Blue, which had then the van, and within less than a quarter of an hour after, De Ruyter, with his, engaged us, bringing their ships to, and their starboard tacks on board, when they came within musket shot of us, and stood the same way with us; at which time both the French and Zealanders stood away to the southward, with their larboard tacks on board. We had De Ruyter and Van Nesse both upon us with their seconds, the first upon our bow and the other upon our quarter and some ships upon our broadside between them. . There was none of all our division upon the same line with us but the Victory, who was just astern, and the Bantam, a fire ship, a little astern of us to windward of our wake, the Saint Michael to leeward upon our larboard bow, and the rest all to leeward, it having not been possible for them to get up into their order-of-battle, they being, when we first weighed, to leeward, nor was it fit for us to bear down so far as to get into the same line with them, because of the sands, which lie off Lowestoft and Corton, and this was the case of most of our flag-men, for many ships and fireships of their divisions could not get up to them, so that there was not very many of us which bore the first brunt of the battle. At first we believed Dr Ruyter would have come to, right on board us, but seeing him spring his luff so soon, found he had no mind to it, and perceived his intention was to disable us and then turn his fire ships to us, and within less than half an hour after he engaged us we saw two of his fireships through the smoke, which was very great, coming up to us, both of which had boats ahead of them to tow them on, it being then very calm and one of them rowed with oars also, to endeavour to lay us on board. But we plied them so well with our guns out of our gun room and quarter that we sunk one to rights, and obliged the other to spring his luff so that we saw him no more. Sir John Cox was slain just as we first espied these fireships. The Bantam fireship, Captain Pattison, commander, had the same fortune not long after, for the enemy perceiving what she was, paid her so off that she sunk also; and the Fountain, another of our fire ships, Captain Stant, commander, that attended on the Prince, was fired by a shot from the enemy, so that we had then never another left near us. But for all that the enemy did not press farther down upon us, but, on the contrary, sprung their luffs, and kept as close upon a wind as they could, De Ruyter lying upon our bow and Van Nesse upon our quarter, who soon after fell more astern, and several other great ships upon our broadside. About ten o'clock our maintopmast was shot by the board, and our rigging and sails shot all in pieces, so that the ship was wholly disabled, which made the Duke resolve to go on board the St. Michael, Sir Robert Holmes, commander, which he then did, ordering Captain Narborough to bear away out of the line to secure and refit the ship as well, and as soon as he could, taking only along with him in his boat the Marquis de Blanquefort, captain of his guards, M^r^ Savile, M^r^ Ashton, Mons. du Puy, Thompson his chief pilot, and a footman. With these he went on board the St. Michael, who was then upon our larboard bow, and put up his standard there.

On board the St. Michael.—There was then little or no wind, which, together with the great smoke, was the cause that neither the Duke's own division nor the enemy perceived for some time, he had changed his ship, and was the reason why he was not so soon followed by the former, nor much shot at by the latter. But these found him out first and then plied us very hard. We then had but 12 fathom of water, upon which the pilot, Thompson, came and told the Duke it was time to tack or else we should go near to be aground upon the red sand, which were the last words he spoke for he was immediately slain, and by the same shot, M^r^ Napier, Sir Robert Holmes's pilot was also of the same mind—whereupon we tacked, it being then somewhat past eleven, and stood away to the southward. We then saw about 8 or 9 of the enemy's fireships on fire, which had been spent on several of our ships without effect, and for some time had leisure to look about us; for De Ruyter, with his division, and those who had to do with us kept on their course, and Van Nesse with his division was then engaged with the Royal Katherine, so that we had then some respite, and perceiving that by reason of the great smoke, and there not being wind enough to blow out the standard, none of the ships of our division or squadron, which were astern of us before we tacked, had found it out; a pinnace was sent to advertise them where the Duke was and to order them to follow. At the same time we saw Van Ghent's squadron to windward of us, standing to the southward as we did, and the Earl of Sandwich in the Royal James in the midst of them upon our broadside, and somewhat to leeward of them right ahead of us, Van Nesse, with his division. Our ship then was in a very good condition, and had received little damage and sailed very well, so that we overhauled the Dutch very much and resolved to stand in between them, and endeavour to divide them, and keeping on our course as close hauled as we could, between one and two, we were almost got up within cannon shot of the Royal James, at which time we saw a great fireship of the enemy lay her on board and burn her, we were then almost in her wake, the wind being come to the Northward of the East.

Much about this time we saw to leeward of us a great second rate ship of ours, which we took to be the Henry or the Royal Katherine, and judged she was fast upon some sand, having four or five of the enemies ships near her. Presently after we saw Sir Joseph Jordan in the Sovereign with five more of his division to windward of all the enemy's ships, and now as we came near the Royal James we thought it safest to bear to leeward of her. which we did, and when we were almost come upon her broadside, we had like to have been foul of a great wreck, which we took to be a man-of-war of the enemy, or a fireship sunk by her, and then sprang our luff. By this time the Phœnix, Captain Le Neve, was got ahead of us and Captain Sudlington, in the Dartmouth, coming under our lee, the Duke ordered him to tack and endeavour to save what men he could belonging to the Royal James many of whom we saw swimming upon pieces of timber, and what they could lay hold on. We then began to engage again very hotly with the enemy and cut their line asunder and parted them, having Van Ghent's ship with two other flags, and most of his squadron to windward of us, and Van Nesse with another flag and those with him to leeward of us. Then came up to us Captain Wilshaw in the Castle fire-ship and Captain Legge in the Fairfax a little astern of us, who was followed by the Earl of Ossory in the Victory and other ships of our division and squadron, who had then found out the standard, and so we continued fighting with the enemy, having them on both sides of us within musket shot, which made it hot work, and having a vice admiral under our lee bow and upon our broadside, his second, a great ship. After we had plied them hard some time, the Duke called to Captain Wilshaw to go and burn that vice admiral, upon which he made what sail he could with his fireship and ran out ahead of us, but in the smoke took the second for the vice admiral, and bore down towards her, but seeing his mistake sprang his luff and made for the flag man, but by that accident, being shot a little too far to leeward, could not perform that service. However, he made her bear away in amongst some of their ships, and then our fire-ship tacked and came again to her post. At the same time the great ship that was to leeward of us upon our broadside was so disabled, that she bore away from us right before the wind. Soon after this the Cambridge and Resolution got also ahead of us, our ship beginning to be disabled, so that an admiral and his second, which were upon our quarter came up alongst our broadside and bore down with their fireships upon us as if they would have been on board of us, all the rest of his line bearing down also; but when they perceived we would not give way, they sprang their luffs, and lay battering of us to windward, as two other flagmen with other ships of theirs did the same to leeward of us, did so disable us, that we sailed very heavily, having six feet of water in the hold, so that several of the enemy's ships which had been to leeward of us stretched out ahead of us so far, that they tacked and weathered us, one of which was so disabled as she passed by our line, coming within half musket shot of us that she sagging to leeward fell in amongst the sternmost of our ships of that line, and was taken ; but Van Nesse, who had also got so far ahead of us, as he tacked, much about the same time, seeing he could not weather us much, tacked again, and stood away to the southward. Presently after this the Resolution and Cambridge were so disabled and had so much water in hold, that they were forced to bear away to leeward of us, and having informed the Duke of the condition they were in, bore away to refit, Sir Frescheville Holles, Captain of the last, being slain. At the same time the Phœnix had no cartridges left, nor paper to make any, however, kept still on head of us. In the room of these other two disabled ships I have mentioned, came the Victory. We were now so much disabled, and had so much water in hold, that Sir Edward Spragg, with some of his division and other of our ships went ahead of us, which the Duke seeing and that the St. Michael must of necessity bear out of the line to stop her leaks and refit, left her about five and went on board the London ordering Sir Robert Holmes not to bear away or take down the standard till he saw it up in the London. The Duke was near three quarters of an hour in his boat before he could get on board Sir Edward Spragg, it blowing then a fine gale, where so soon as he came, he put up his standard, and then the St. Michael took down hers and bore down out of the line. By this time that part of the enemy which was to windward of us, had kept their luff so well, that they were but just within cannon shot of us, and Sir Joseph Jordan with his division to windward of them began to press them a little. Only a rear admiral with a small frigate with him was pretty near us upon our weather bow, whom we so disabled, that, had he not tacked and stood the other way he must have sagged down upon us within a very little while and been taken, but having, with much ado, got his ship about, he got in amongst the rear of those to windward of us. At the same time the Victory was so disabled, and had so much water in hold, that she was obliged to bear away ; and then De Ruyter, who was then about a league astern of us in our wake, put out a signal, being a blue or green flag, upon his foretop, upon which all those both to windward of us, bore down to him,—an[d] those to leeward of us tacked and made the best of their way to join him, and then they all went and joined the Zealand Squadron, which was yet to leeward of them, much about sunset. Soon after they began to bear away, we bore round also after them, and Sir Joseph Jordan then joined us with his six ships, and seeing the enemy spring their luffs again, so soon as they were gotten together which was before it was dark, we kept upon a wind also and so continued under sail all night, about a league to windward of them, lying with our heads to the South East. A little after midnight we saw a great man of war of theirs on fire. The next morning so soon as it was day, we found ourselves still to windward of them and had them with us between twenty and thirty sail of men of war and fireships, and continued standing the same way till six, at which time we could not see any of our ships no way ; but soon after, perceiving two or three astern of us somewhat to leeward, we tacked, and stood towards them, and then in a little time discovered the rest of our fleet with the whole French squadron, with whom we joined about ten.

Saudades Journal.

1672, October 12, to 1673, June 1.—A journal of James Jenefer, Captain of the Saudades, of a voyage from London to Lisbon. He gives an account of Portugal and the Portuguese. Their religion, he says, is that of obedience to the Pope, though [the Pope has been hardly reconciled to them for many years. There is amongst them, a sort of new Christians, so called, which are those that are generally supposed to be Jews. It seems they are not Christians turned Jews, but rather Jews turned Christians, but still retaining their Jewish principles; their origin being from those Jews banished out of Spain, by Don Emanuel. He gives a very detailed account of the persecution and burnings of the Jews, and continues that "it is now thought for reasons of state to intercede with the Pope, for a general pardon for them, as they have engrossed the best part of the wealth of this kingdom, and by terror of the Inquisition, convey it away to the great impoverishment thereof."

He goes on to describe the laws of the Portuguese, their behaviour and customs, and their buildings. Among the monasteries at Lisbon, he refers to the College and Convent of the Irish. "The College fronts the Prince's Palace in the city; the nunnery is three miles to the westward of the city, near the convent of St. Jerome, facing the river. These Irish nuns have not the permission of seeing any men, though they may be conversed with sometimes through a wall. In the chapel to this Nunnery are the best marble pillars, by the observation of all strangers, that Europe can show, it being of this country, but they have not the skill to polish it."

A description of the English College and Nunnery is then given as follows:—"The College of the English is well seated for prospect and air, upon a hill, near the middle of the city, maintaining thirty students, whereof is:—Mr. Mathias Watkison, president; Mr. Daniel Fisher, reader in philosophy; Mr. Roger Hesketh, procurator; Richard Yates, William Renalson, Charles Jennings, John Venabels, collegians. These are all the real names I could purchase, and with much difficulty I obtained them; it being counted a piece of incivility for any to inquire after their original names; neither are they known to one another, it being a certain custom to change their names upon their admittance. I observe they are generally north country lads, by their speech, and very witty, and their removing into this serene air makes them more capable to shew it. These are such, that are bred up to trouble our Israel; doubtless the design is deeply laid in culling out such choice lads, for I never saw any of their years defend an argument so smartly.

[The] English Nunnery.—These are, in the esteem of the Portuguese and strangers, of a very good report, for their piety and sobriety, and by their foundation they are to maintain sixty sisters, but here are present not more than twenty-eight whose names I have here inserted:—Mrs. Barbary Brooke, lady abbess, a nun of fifty-two years; Mrs. Mary Carneby, prioress, a nun thirty years; Mrs. Frances Napper, the most handsome of all the rest; Mrs. Mariana Salisbury, Mrs. Ursula Salisbury, Mrs. Mary Harnage, Mrs. Hellen Harnage, Mrs. Mary Russell, Mrs. Kath. Miles, Mrs. Grace Penrice, Mrs. Dorothy Loraine, Mrs. Frances Victor, Mrs. Frances Brooke, Mrs. Mary Carr, Mrs. Jane Carr, Mrs. Everal Constable, Mrs. Dorothy Graham, Mrs. Bridget Smith, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Mary Blackstone, Mrs. Ann Hutton, Mrs. Christiana Tunston, Mrs. Elizabeth Blieth, Mrs. Dorothy Grimes, Mrs. Frances Fuller, Mrs. Mary Banner, Mrs. Livesey. This Nunnery is called by the name of Syon House, in memory of our Syon House, by Brentford, and dedicated to the honour of S^t Bridget; but the professors were removed in the reign of Henry the Eighth, some into Flanders, and the rest here, and such is the fondness of these real devouts, that they hope to return to their original foundation; but I doubt their harps will rust upon the willows, before they will be able to tune that song of Syon aright. They have three English fathers to attend their masses, who were formerly monks, but now in this habitt. Their names are:—Fathers Francis Benson, George Griffin, John Marke. These are the three honest good fellows, as I may call them, whose happiness in living so pleasantly would almost prevail with one to turn Catholic were it not for the burden of the old song 'The Devil a monk was he.'

He then describes the fortifications, mercantile commodities, and the country. He says the King "Don Pedro Perera, third son of King John, born the twenty-sixth of April, 1648, is of a very black complexion, tall, well set, and strong, having that power with his hands that he can force a horseshoe asunder. His apparel is commonly of black English baize; he is a great admirer of perukes which he wears in largeness to excess. He is very excellent at managing the great horse which he becomes with so much majesty, that it is the only thing I find his subjects to commend him for. His other diversions are hunting the wild boar and hare for which he allots a certain time at a place called Salvatera, according to the season of the year; also bull-baiting before his palace, at which he is very dexterous and sometimes he recreates himself in his brigantine of 24 oars which rows him to Belle Isle and to a quinta thereby called St. Josepha, which he takes much delight in. His Court has but little of splendour either for state or furniture and so private that if a stranger appear he will be often assaulted with the compliment of 'what is your business there.' At meals the Queen dines first, then, after the distinction of clean linen with the sound of a trumpet exactly at eleven, the Prince slips in, being only attended with an old woman and a dwarf, the latter being as famous for his years as the smallness of his person. His table seldom exceeds six or eight dishes or plates, his drink is all water. His first business as soon as he is dressed in the morning is to give audience to those that have any concerns in the affairs of the Kingdom, he places himself to that purpose under a canopy, all that are in presence standing with their hands behind them close to the wall where they are very demure, except the snuff box come in the way, to which they are very ready to pay their devotions.

The Queen Maria Francesca Isabel de Savoia, daughter to the Duke de Nemours, about thirty years of age, first married to King Alfonso, with whom she presently discerned the defect of due benevolence which declined her affections and made her a great instrument in the contrivement of his deposing, after which she married this present prince, by whom she had only one daughter, by name Isabella Maria Josepha, born the 6th of January, 1669. This Queen is a very beautiful lady of a sanguine constitution, flaxen-haired, which sort of peruke she wears very large. She differs much from the humours of the French in fashions, for in her apparel she only affects the Portuguese garb. Her attendants are mostly French. Without any considerable splendour, she resides in the palace with the Prince, and is counted unhappy in this, that there is no hopes of an heir male by her.

Then follow descriptions of the armies, guards, the Council, revenues and customs, the officers of the Court, the orders of knighthood with drawings of their badges, the navy, with particular accounts of certain ships and the present state of Portugal. Under the last head he states that the two grand evils that subvert the Kingdom are the great number of churchmen and the foreign merchants. In Lisbon, there are no fewer than 28,000 clerics, and within the kingdom there are no less than 50,000 Franciscans as appeared from a muster by the General of the Order These are the most youthful and strongest of their men and should the Prince have occasion to increase his army, it is a question if the rest of the Kingdom could supply him. As to the second evil, that of the foreign merchants, he says they are grown so corrupt of late, "such kind of vermin being the common bane of those kingdoms wherever they come, more especially to this, where there is no Exchange to make monies a commodity as in England." The English do the least prejudice. Another great inconvenience that debilitates the Kingdom is its possessions in the Indies "to support which, they every year consume 2,000 to 2,500 men out of this little Kingdom, besides the charge of the ships, who seldom return." The goods of most value brought from the Indies are jewels "which are swept up by the Jews, or new Christians, who, by terror of the Inquisition, convey themselves away with their estates. It is thought they would be willing to part with the Indies, if they could come off upon honourable terms; though, I believe the common people would most disgust it, it being their only pride to sit in their shops and read over the conquest thereof by their ancestors, with which they are as really affected as if they had run over all the rencounters of Don Quixote. In fine, I doubt this Kingdom will never prove a noun substantive, it being most supported by the kindness of its friends, which if her lovers should fall out, may prove of an ill consequence to her, but of two happinesses that have attended it, I know not which is the greater, that of my most noble Mistress the Queen her being borne in it, or matched out of it."

After this, follows a description of the Factories in Portugal. These "are most English, some French some Dutch, and a few Italians. Of English there are about one hundred, whereof 25 are housekeepers, the rest factors and attendants; the more principal whereof are by name as followeth:—Mr. Thomas Hill and Mr. Boultell, partners; Mr. Henry Stanley, Mr. Nich. Polexten and Mr. John Hicks, partners; Mr. Roger Bradhill, Mr. Richard March, Mr. James Rudge, Mr. William Colston, Treasurer, Mr. Humphrey Benning and Mr. John Milbanck, partners; Mr. John Pargiter and Mr. William Bird, partners; Mr. Francis Lenthall, Mr. Henry Jacobs, Mr. John Wiggott, Mr. Peter Maddock, Mr. Joseph Domey, Mr. Bernard Mervin, Mr. Joseph Hardwick, Mr. George Maynard, Mr. Leonard Newham and Mr. John Clerk, partners; Mr. John Adams, Mr. John Earle, Mr. Robert Cock, a decayed but remarkable merchant, in the year 1649, for his kindness to Prince Rupert. Mr. Barnaby Crafford the most eminent formerly in Lisbon but now only famous for the good wine he makes. The young factors:—Mr. Richard Gay, Mr. John Banks, Mr. Knightly Alderne, Mr. John Parsons, Mr. William Brookes, Mr. Charles Cullin.

Our English merchants have been very successful in gaining estates but how honestly I cannot determine. Here are three or four ingenious men, the rest are like our coffer breed in England, who, no longer than they are choked with privileges and riches cannot endure to speak well of any Government under whom they abide. They are likewise such strangers to the humours and customs of the place where they live, that when I came to converse with them, I could not gain the advantage of one passage in ten to any satisfaction.

A list of those merchants that have gone off with estates since his Majesty's restoration. Mr. George Lane, jun., Mr. Christopher Warren, Mr. William Bird, Mr. William Lane, Mr. Edward Rudge, Mr. Thomas Clarke, Mr. Thomas Bird, Mr. John Polexfell (sic), Mr. Abraham Jacobs, Mr. William Peachy, Mr. Edward Colson, Mr. Richard Stanley, Mr. Samuell Boltell, Mr. William Clarke, Mr. Samuel Tucker, Mr Roger Bradhill, Mr. James Rudge. These one with another are judged to go off worth 100,000 crowns apiece, besides what are drawn off from Port o Porto whose names I could not recover only those who reside there at present are as follows :—

Port merchants:—Mr. Walter Maynard, Consul, Master Samuel Madock, Mr. Walter Atwood, Mr. John Wrettzsley, Mr. Nicholas Trevanyon, Mr. John Pougsley, Mr. Walter Morgan, Mr. Thomas Stutt, Mr. William Delawood, Mr. Nicholas Prynn, Mr. John Cooke, Mr. Giles Hitchin, Mr. John Clarvett, Mr. Edward Marcott, Mr. Samuel Palmer, Mr. Edward Martin, Mr. Henry Hayward, Mr. Peter Lenoble, Mr. Richard Medford, Mr. Richard Marshall, Mr. Thomas Mellish.

His Majesty's Agent in Portugal is Francis Parry, Esq., Mr. Thomas Maynard, Consul at Lisbon, Mr. Thomas Smolt, chaplain.

1672[–3], January 19 to September 12.—Log of His Majesty's ship Assistance on a voyage to and from St. Helena.

1672–3, February 3 to 1674, September 29.—" A journal or relation of a voyage from England into the Straits or Mediterranean Sea being bound for Constantinople with the right honourable Sir John Finch ambassador for his Majesty Charles the second " . . . in his Majestie's Shipp Centurion. By me Charles Wylde, Captaine."

Account of the voyage, and recovery of the body of the late ambassador, Sir Daniel Harvey, at Smyrna. Account of the various ports at which the vessel touched.

JOURNAL of Sir JOHN NARBOROUGH on board the St. Michael.
1673.

Sunday being the 10th day [of August], close hazy weather. This morning the wind at N.E. a small gale. At six o'clock this morning our general fired a gun, and hauled home his fore topsail sheets. All our fleet made ready to weigh. About eight o'clock all our fleet got under sail and stood S.E., the wind at the N.E. a very small gale, so that we made but little way all this forenoon. In our weighing we rubbed our sheet cable in the nip of the hawse. Between ten and eleven o'clock we could see the Dutch fleet very plain from our maintop; they bore from us S. by W., distance off about six leagues; they stood to the northward having their starboard tacks on board, the wind then at the N.E. by E. a fine small gale, the sea smooth. We steered S.E. by S., having our two topsails and foresail set. We bore down to the Dutch fleet, with our whole fleet, the French Squadron leading the van, the General, in the middle with the Red Squadron, the Blue Squadron bringing up the rear, all our own fleet sailing in a line, one after the other, according to the order of battle prescribed, with the Union flags on the mizen peaks of all the flag ships. This forenoon the Marygold fireship was left in the sea dismantled, being ready to sink. I suppose she was defective. Between three and four o'clock in the afternoon the wind veered to the E. by N. a fine gale. We were in a very good order of sailing with all our fleet. Our General bore towards the Dutch fleet, we neared them a great pace. About four o'clock the Dutch fleet tacked and stood to the southwards with their larboard tacks on board, as we did, being to leeward of us, about three leagues off, or better. A French rear-admiral, Monsieur Martell, and two French ships more were half way between us and the enemy. Sailing along as we did, I could see the Texel Island plainly. At six o'clock in the evening, the south end of the Texel Island bore off me E. ½ N., distance off between three and four leagues. We had then 16 fathoms water. This evening, I could perceive the Dutch to make what sail they could, and kept close by a wind to the south-eastwards. They shot ahead of us a great pace. Just as it began to be dark they were shot forward of us on our lee bow. Our General and all the fleet made but short sail this evening, and to night sailing only with two topsails, sometimes but half mast up, and sometimes our foretopsail to the mast. Our course stood by compass until 12 o'clock to night was S. by E. fine close weather. To-night the wind variable; at ten o'clock to the E.S.E., a fine small gale, sometimes pretty fresh. We sailed in our line and order of battle all night. Thus ended these 24 hours.

Monday being the eleventh day of August, 1673, beginning at 12 o'clock in the morning, and so proceeding successively from one to two o'clock until 12 o'clock tonight. The wind was, at 11 o'clock, at the E. by N., a fine small gale. We continued our course to the south by eastwards with our short sail, fair weather and smooth water, with a fine small gale. We sailed in our line according to the order of battle. Between twelve and one o'clock this morning, the wind veered to the E.S.E. a fine small gale. At one o'clock this morning our General, and all our fleet, tacked and stood to the E.N. eastwards, as near the wind as we could lie with our two topsails, the wind at S.E. a fine small gale. Several ships in tacking were out of their order, and so continued until daylight. At daylight our General hoisted the Union flag at his mizen peak to have all our fleet fall into the order of battle. Presently all our whole fleet fell into their stations, every flag-ship putting out the same sign, the Blue squadron leading the van. When it was fairly daylight, we saw the Dutch fleet on the S.E. of us, right to windward of our fleet standing the same way as we did close by the shore, distance from our General about three leagues. Then the south end of the Texel Island bore from me, near E.N.E., distance off, three leagues. When it was full daylight the Dutch fleet made sail and put themselves into a line; and came large down to our fleet, the Dutch fleet appeared to be but a small fleet to ours. I could not tell above 88 ships of war of Dutch. We were about 90 ships of war of our fleet—English and French. About seven o'clock in the morning our General put abroad a Union flag at his foretopmast head, and a Union flag at his mizen topmast head, signs for the van of our fleet to tack, and the rear of the fleet to tack, then our General, and our whole fleet, tacked and stood S.W. by S., close by a wind, the wind then at the S.E. by E. and S.S.E. a fine small gale with smooth water, the mouth of the Texel bearing nearest E. by S. of us, distant off—three leagues. Our fleet sailed in very good order in a line, everyone in his station, according to the order in the second article in the fighting instructions. We all sailed with two topsails and a foresail, the French squadron leading the van of our fleet; our General, with the Red Squadron, in the middle, and the Blue Squadron in the rear. The vice admiral, rear flag. The Dutch fleet being in a fair berth to windward of us, spread their fleet with our fleet in this manner:—Admiral De Ruyter bore down against the body of our fleet with his squadron, Tromp, one the Dutch flags, and his squadron, placed themselves in a line against our Blue Squadron to windward of us. They were about 26 sail of men of war, and about seven fireships. Our Blue Squadron was 27 men of war and nine fireships. Admiral Tromp, and his division placed themselves against our admiral of the Blue and his division. Tromp's vice-admiral and his division placed themselves against our vice-admiral of the Blue and his division. Tromp's rear-admiral and his division placed themselves against our rear-admiral of the Blue and his division. Admiral De Ruyter, with the rest, being about 60 ships of war, besides several fireships, placed themselves against our General and the rest of our fleet. At their coming down at first, as I perceived, they fired at a great distance at our fleet which were ahead of us, and stood on to the southward with our fleet, they being to windward caused so great darkness with their smoke, that I could not see what any of our Red squadron did.

A little before eight o'clock, the Admiral of the Blue braced his foretopsail aback. Presently after, we braced our fortopsail to the mast to keep in our station and line of battle ; the Dutch division of ships at that time were got within cannon shot of us. We saluted them with our trumpets and three holloas. Presently, the Dutch rear-admiral shot several shot over us and about us, then we fired at him. Thus our fight began, they being to windward of us, and stood to the southward as we did, the rest of the Dutch ships were firing at the rest of the ships in the Blue squadron. In our admiral's and vice admiral's division, the guns went off very fast. After the Dutch had received several of our shot, they backed from our broadsides and fell on our quarter, and there kept and plied their guns at us. So we kept on fighting to the S. by Westward as near the wind as we could lie, sometimes with our foretopsail aback and sometimes full, to keep our distance from our admiral until near 12 o'clock today, then it rained a small shower and the wind veered to the S. by W. a fine small gale, our topsails were much shot, the bolt ropes cut, and braces, that we could not keep them full. The foretopsail was shot down twice, our shrouds and rigging was cut by the enemy's shot very much faster than I could get seamen to make it fast again. The enemy shoot much more shot than we do and ply their guns faster. They shoot much pound shot, which flies so quick and cut our rigging so much. When the enemy came near us, I could perceive our shot to be well placed in them, but when they were at any distance our shot fell often short. About twelve o'clock to-day I saw our Admiral of the Blue on our lee-bow, hard by us, standing to the Westward, with his foresail, foretopsail, maintopsail, and mainsail in the brails, as near the wind as he could be. We stood along with him having our foresail and foretopsail, our maintopsail being split from the skirt to the head in the middle of the sail, so that it would not stand full. Several of the Dutch were on our lee quarter plying shot at us, and we at them. Tromp, and several of his division, were on the lee quarter of our Admiral of the Blue, standing along with him, shooting at, him, I saw the vice-admiral of the Blue and his division to leeward of Tromp and several of the Dutch ships standing, to the westward as we did, shooting at each other.

Between twelve and one o'clock the wind came to the S. W., a fine fresh gale, the sea smooth, so that we could carry out our lower tier of guns without shipping one drop of water, then the Dutch were put to leeward of us and our admiral. By the shifting of the wind, they fell astern, nearly out of shot of us. Our division, and our admiral's division being near together we made what haste we could to fit our rigging and get our maintopsail fitted again, that we might be ready to go about. Having the weather gage of the enemy, excepting the rear admiral of the Dutch, and four sail more, which were on our weather quarter, a cannon shot from us. I could not see our General, nor any of our two squadrons, the Red and the White, nor hear any guns from them. Before one o'clock, I saw a great Dutch ship without her masts, she lay astern of the Dutch ships which plied at our admiral's division of the Blue. The wind being good at S. W., a fine fresh gale, our admiral of the Blue, made way to stay, when the ship came in the wind, with her head sails; she fell again, and would not stay; they loosened their sprit sail and flattened their head-sails to wear her to bring her on the other tack; their foresail and foretopsail being set, the mainsail in the brails, and the maintopsail up aloft and full. When the wind was on the beam, the mainmast fell by the board at once, a little above the deck. It carried away the mizen mast with it overboard, the stump left being a man's height above the deck. She kept on her course to the W.N.W. ward having her head sails complete; they cut the main mast and mizen mast away presently. This was about one o'clock in the afternoon. Sir Edward Spragg sent his Lieutenant on board the St. Michael to know how Lord Ossory did, who returned commendations to Sir Edward by his lieutenant and bid him tell Sir Edward Spragg and the company that he would keep by him with the St. Michael.

We hauled up our foresail and fell astern of the Royal Prince's quarter between him and the enemy, and kept plying our guns at the enemy, our division being with us. The enemy made sail to get up with the Royal Prince, seeing her disabled. Sir Edward Spragg went aboard the St. George and put up the blue flag at her maintopmast head This was presently after one o'clock. The St. George being ahead of us, my Lord Ossory sent me on board the St. George to Sir Edward Spragg to know if he would bear down and board the enemy. In case he would, my lord would board Tromp, and that we were provided for it.

I immediately went on board the St. George and delivered my lord's message to Sir Edward Spragg on the quarter deck, there being there Sir Edward Spragg, Captain Darcey and several officers on the place. Sir Edward Spragg answered me he would bear down upon the enemy so soon as possibly he could, and that he would second my lord in boarding, and that there would be no great danger in doing it. I took my leave of Sir Edward Spragg and went on board the St. Michael and acquainted Lord Ossory with what Sir Edward Spragg said to me. We presently loosened our sprit-sail and flattened our headsails, being resolved to lay Tromp on board, he being then our lee quarter within fair shot of us, making such sail to get up near the Royal Prince. At the same time, my lord sent one of his fireships to the Royal Prince to lie by her and assist her. The fireship went to the Prince, and lay by her. Then the Prudent Mary, fireship, Captain Christopher Billopp, commander, bore down upon Tromp, which caused Tromp to bear up. The fireship brought to again, and kept on her course with the Royal Prince, we in the St. Michael having borne to leeward of all our ships, and saw that Tromp and his division bore from us, and that Sir Edward Spragg in the St. George did not bear down after us to our assistance, we brought our ship to and handed our sprit sail, and kept on our course to the westward along with the Prince, astern of her, the enemy and we plying our guns at each other very briskly. Between one and two o'clock the enemy shot the St. George's foretopmast bythe board, so that she was disabled as to working. Presently, the Blue flag was taken down from the maintopmast head. Sometime after, I saw a boat drive astern of the St. George, sunk, and men in the sea swimming about the boat. I saw two boats put from our ships and take up the men, and went to the ship again, one was the St. George's boat it was close by the St. George's stern; we were looking when the blue flag would be put up on board some of our ships that were near the St.George at that time.

All this time, the enemy plied many shot at us and the Prince, which much disabled us in our rigging, sails, and men; all our shrouds of our main-mast and maintopmast being cut, with most of our running ropes, so that we could not traverse one yard any way to work the ship nor haul up any sail. The clew lines and clew garnets and bunt lines being shot, both our topsails, were shot, so as they split clear asunder in rags, all the canvas of the foretopsail was so shot in pieces and the bolt rope cut that the whole sail fell into the sea, and was lost. Our maintopsail yard and mizen-yard shot in pieces, and our mizen topmast shot by the board.

We had no sail left us but our foresail, which was much shot, the mainsail mizen and staysails shot in pieces that we could not set them. We kept on our course with our foresail, resolving to get the Prince off from the enemy. My Lord Ossory always ordered me to keep close by her, letting her go ahead. About 3 o'clock Tromp's ship was disabled in her sails, topmast, and yards so that she fell astern. Tromp went on board one of his seconds, and put up his flag there, and made sail ahead with nine Dutch ships with him, to leeward of the Prince. Our vice-admiral of the Blue and his division being to leeward of Tromp's division, made sail and tacked ahead of Tromp, and weathered several of Tromp's division, and made a stretch away to the eastward firing at the Dutch, as he passed by them, which made them give way. When he had passed all the Dutch and was astern, and most of his division with him, he and they fitted their rigging. About four o'clock we saw a great fleet of ships to windward of us, S.W. from us; they came large down to us; they appeared to be our Red and White squadrons. As they neared us, they appeared to be in two divisions. They next to us, we saw had Dutch flags and colours, and those that were furthest off had English colours, they being our General, and his squadron, the Dutch fleet being to the eastward of our fleet both coming down before the wind, N.E., Tromp made sail ahead to leeward of the Prince, and tacked, and stood to the eastward and his division after him, and came aweather of the Royal Prince. Our vice-admiral of the Blue and his division met Tromp and his division and passed several shot into each other; then we, and some of our division, placed several shot in Tromp. As he went aweather of the Prince, she passed several shot into him and his division. Two Dutch ships that followed Tromp endeavoured to lay the Prince on board as they came along. We plied them with shot, and the Prince bravely defending herself, so that they could not grapple, but set their ships on fire, before they were fast and burnt the fireships to no purpose, astern of the Prince. Tromp and the rest of the Dutch being sufficiently satisfied with their day's work, kept on their course to the eastward. We braced our foresail to the mast and went to work about fitting our rigging again, and to bring a foretopsail to the yard. Our division being pretty well fitted in this time, they being ahead of us on our weather bow, near out of shot of the enemy, my Lord Ossory sent the Hampshire, Captain Griffith, commander, to the Prince to take her in tow, to get her further ahead, my lord being resolved, as soon as we could get our topsail to the yard, and out shrouds and rigging fast, to bear down upon Tromp; all our Blue squadron being got pretty near together and in a good condition, the major part of them. The Dutch were but twenty sail together; the rest of them were disabled and bore out of the squadron. We had much advantage of the Dutch now by having more ships, and not much worse for the day's fight, and the weather gage of them. Now we doubted our admiral was slain, because we could not see the flag put up anywhere.

Captain Billopp, commander of the Prudent Mary fireship, this afternoon bore down ahead of the Royal Prince to lay Tromp's vice-admiral on board, which he would certainly have done had not a Dutch fire-ship laid him on board on his bearing down, so the two fireships burnt both together. In case the Dutch fireship had not burnt thus, she would have attempted to board the Prince, or some other of our ships, as she could have fetched.

Between four and five o'clock saw Tromp, and his division, a good way astern of us fitting our rigging. De Ruyter and the rest of the Dutch fleet, began to near us apace, and edged more northerly, thinking to cut us off from joining with the General, which was bearing down towards us. After we had brought a new foretopsail to the yard, it was time for us to make sail, several of the Dutch were shooting at us, we being the sternmost ship of all our Squadron, the Royal Prince was got out of shot ahead of us two frigates having her in tow. At five o'clock, the General and the Red squadron being near the Dutch fleet, aweather of them, fired several guns at each other. Our General having a blue flag at his mizen peak, a sign for all ships to windward of him to bear down into his wake, the French squadron keeping to windward and would not bear down according to the signal given by our General. We kept the wind, what we could, to get into our General's wake. De Ruyter himself bore down ahead of all his fleet towards us to cut us off from our fleet; he fired several shot at us, and we at him. He saw he could get nothing by us; he braced his maintopsail aback, and backed to his fleet. About six o'clock, our vice-admiral of the Blue and his division, and most of the admiral's division of the Blue were joined with our General's squadron. Tromp seeing De Ruyter bearing down towards us, tacked and stood to the westward, close by a wind, to join with him. In case De Ruyter and his fleet had not come down to leeward to us, we had busily engaged Tromp and his squadron before night: Tromp was standing clear away had he not seen De Ruyter come towards us.

About six o'clock two of the General's fireships, having the weather gage of the enemy, set their ships on fire before they came at the enemy, putting the enemy in disorder. The French still kept to windward, although our General's sign was out to call all ships to windward into his wake.

Between seven and eight o'clock we were got into our fleet, fine close weather, the wind at S.W., a fine fresh gale. . . . This evening at seven o'clock the Dutch fleet bore off from our General, and fell astern of our fleet on our lee quarter, that we could not see them in their lights when it was dark. This evening we heard that Sir Edward Spragg our Admiral of the Blue, was drowned, his boat being sunk under him by a shot from the enemy as she was going from the St. George to another ship. His body was taken up, his hands being fast to the sunken boat; two or three gentlemen more were drowned with him. This night, the Royal Prince was towed ahead of us by three frigates. In case my Lord Ossory had not lain by the Royal Prince, all this afternoon, and saw her out of shot before him, she would certainly have been destroyed by the enemy. Thus the enemy and our fleet parted, we being to windward of them. We stood away to the westward all night.

In this day's fight I know not of one man of war that is lost of ours nor of theirs; several fireships burnt on either side. At 12 o'clock midnight, the Texel bore from us S.E. by E., distance off, 17 leagues or thereabouts.

Tuesday being the 12th day, close weather. This morning, at one o'clock, the wind at S.W. a fine fresh gale, we were close by our General on his lee bow. We kept on our course with all our fleet to the W.N.W. with our two topsails and foresails. I could not see the Dutch fleet follow us, nor any signs of them, I believe they tacked and stood to the eastward when it was dark last night. This forenoon between 8 and 9 o'clock, all our fleet were near together. The Royal Prince was towed by three frigates; fair close weather this forenoon, and little wind at W.S.W. We lay driving with our yards down, and some with their topmasts down, mending what was amiss in our masts, yards, rigging, hull, and sails. This forenoon, about nine o'clock our General called the flag officers aboard to let him know in what condition each division was in: and when the fleet had fitted themselves, he would have another bout on the coast of Holland. At noon to-day I reckon we are N.W. by W. nearest from the Texel; distance off, about 18 leagues. Our loss of men throughout our whole fleet in yesterday's fight is not 500 men that I can hear of. I can see several ships but little the worse for the fight. In the fight, the Henrietta yacht was sunk, Captain Guy, commander; he and his company went on board the hospital ship, and there remained. Officers slain in the battle:—Captain Le Neve, Sir Edward Spragg, drowned unhappily; several others wounded, I know not their names at present.

This afternoon, it fell calm. We fished our foreyard and mainyard, mizen yard and mizen mast, and spliced our ropes, got up our shrouds, and cut off our cables that were shot and bent them again. We have now no more sail than yards. Both our topsails were shot down in fight and cut into the sea, the low sails much shot. I have set the sail makers to mend them.

We have now 100, and odd, men wounded, many of them will soon die, their wounds being mortal. Slain in fight, 54. This evening it proved a small air of wind at N.W. We steered S. . . . . About 8 o'clock, it proved foggy weather; we anchored with all our fleet in 21 fathoms of water, white sand. I reckon that the Texel mouth bears from me N.W. by W., about 17 leagues off. Close weather and little wind all night, and smooth water. We rode fast. Thus ended this night.

1673. Instructions by James, Duke of York, to the Fleet, and orders by Prince Rupert and others. 1 vol.

1674–1688. Various Reports on the Navy and Ordnance, and ordnance Stores Establishment Books and divers books of official accounts.

1677. Work and duties of Post Masters with accounts of the various roads in England.

LETTER BOOK OF LORD DARTMOUTH AT TANGIER, AND ON HIS RETURN HOME.

1683, September 16. Tangier.—Lord Dartmouth to Secretary Jenkins. Commences "I arrived here on Friday the 17th instant; and have now with me, of all sorts, 21 sail of ships and vessels." The report of his coming to Tangier, and his errand, were pretty widely spread. "On my first appearance the inhabitants were ready to be packing up . . . . the Moors have likewise had the same intelligence." General description of the condition of affairs.

1683, 27 October. Tangier.—Same to same. "Among the many extraordinary cases that must be looked for, in services like this . . . . . that which relates to the gentleman Mr. Smith, present mayor of the city, is one. He is worthy of great consideration. Besides what he is otherwise likely to be a sufferer in from his removal hence," he is the greatest proprietor of the place. He will be a creditor to the King for no less than 2,000*li.*

1683, November 5. Tangier.—Same to same. "The mines both of the town and castle are all finished and ready to blow, when the moat is done. . . . . The other paper sent you is a schedule of the plate and goods belonging to the Church, which I humbly desire may be removed to Godshouse Chapel at Portsmouth, lately rebuilt by his Majesty; and I have sent, in the Dartmouth, marble stones, out of the church, and other places here, enough to pave all that chancel. And since his Majesty has been pleased to repair that church so well, I hope he will not forget his gracious intentions of annexing a Prebendary to it, which the Bishops of Canterbury and London both promised to be assisting in; for, without some settled maintenance to that chapel and chaplain—of the best garrison, I think, his Majesty has—it will fall again into the ruinous condition it lately was."

1683, November 16. Tangier.—Same to same. "The moat is a very heavy piece of work; and though most of the terrace work is already destroyed by powder, yet that can take no effect on the rubbish and body of Sir Hugh Chumbley's part which is very great, and must be removed into the harbour by hands and labour; but this good will follow, that the harbour will be fully choked up by it. . . . I have from the garrison and fleet upwards of 2,000 men at a time, working upon the moat; and these light nights will help us to make good riddance. For God's sake, Sir, implore his Majesty not to think the time long . . . . the work is much greater than was imagined."

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COMMISSIONERS AT TANGIER.

1683, September 19 to November 12. "A Journal of the Proceedings of Samel Pepys, Esquire, William Trumball, doctor of Laws, and Frederick Bacher, Esquire, Commissioners appointed by his excellency George, Lord Baron of Dartmouth, for enquiring into the true state and value of the several proprietaries pretended to by any of the inhabitants of the City of Tangier, or others, in any of the lands, houses, or tenements within the said City." This volume contains the petitions from the holders of property in Tangier, the proceedings and report of the Commissioners, schedules of the properties and occupiers, and a large plan of the city, giving the names of all streets, &c. A large folio volume.

September 20. The Commissioners met in "the Town House," accompanied by the Mayor, &c., of Tangier, and directed the issue of forms, to the various inhabitants, requiring information, in detail, as to their property, &c.

September 21. "The Fathers of the Portuguese Church" were heard as to their rights.

September 24. The Fathers statement and that of William Smith, Esq., mayor of the city, were considered from 2 to 8 p.m.

September 28. The day was taken up with the interview between "the Alcayde" and Lord Dartmouth.

September 29. The Commissioners sat from "before eight in the morning, till past nine at night, one hour only, at noon, excepted."

September 30—Sunday. "Time spent before morning, and after evening, prayers, by Mr. Pepys at the Town House overlooking the work of the week."

October 5. Answer received from the Portuguese Fathers. "That as to what belongs to the King of Portugal, which is the Cathedral and its appurtenances, and the Misericordia, we have no manner of claim to put in for it; it being a thing the King, our master, ought to have satisfaction given him for. But the Reverend Chief Treasurer, Juan Alvarez de Mattos, caused a house to be built for his own use, upon the ground belonging to the Church, on which he laid out 100 pieces of eight." The Arch-priest built another house on the same ground which cost him 160 "pieces of eight." For both these, satisfaction is claimed. The Canons also claim satisfaction for their respective houses in several parts of the city.

October 6. This morning, very early, a proclamation was "published" throughout the city of a few "particulars" of properties brought in, viz.:—"Two houses of my Lady Fairborne's in St. John St."; one house of Lady Peterborough's, &c. The proclamation regrets that the particulars come in so slowly.

October 7, Sunday. After evening prayer, a special meeting was held by the Commissioners, at which several inhabitants, whose interests were small, attended.

October 11. The Mayor furnished a list of the public books, papers and records, belonging to the Corporation.

October 16. Account of the properties, in fee simple, belonging to the Portuguese Fathers:—Eight houses, value 599*li.* 12*s.* 9*d.* Draft of warrant for payment thereof.

October 29. Reports on various petitions:—John Meagher, apothecary, for want of his due for medicine from the four companies belonging to the Duke of Monmouth—9*li.* 15*s.* Stephen Vincent, baker, prays satisfaction for bread supplied to the Hospital. The "four eldest companies of the King's Battalion in the Garrison" for not receiving their pay.

November 2. Consideration of further petitions:—Solomon Pariente, a Portuguese, for eight years' pay as interpreter between the Governors of Tangier and the Moors.

November 10. Consideration of the petition of Colonel Trelawny and his officers, shewing that "by great deductions made from them for clothes for themselves and soldiers," &c., they have not "one farthing remaining of their last 7 months' pay." They, therefore, pray the loan of 800*li.* Upon strict enquiry, it appeared that, after all deductions, over 1,500*li.* had been issued, in ready money, to the regiment; but, as the case of the petitioners, as to ready money, is worse than that of other regiments and battalions, and that clamour will arise on their arrival in England, &c., it is advised to make the loan requested.

November 12. The Commissioners close their report.

Following this journal of proceedings come copies of various reports, shewing the value of materials delivered from the King's stores for repairing houses, "both lease and fee-simple," in Tangier, 153*li.* 3*s.*; for repairing "Burgers' houses, hired for quartering officers & soldiers," 284*li.* 10*s.* An account of the annual value of freeholds in the city; this includes a description of the Cathedral and Misericordia as follows:—

"A cathedral church of the ordinary sort of building in Tangier; without steeple or bells, being in length, 30 yards, and in breadth, 30 yards, divided into three aisles, each containing eight pillars, the roof of the middle aisle being 35 feet high, the other two, 25 feet high, having five altars on each side of the church, which they call chapels, the pictures and all other ornaments of the said cathedral church being taken away by the fathers.

"Particular apartments adjoining to the Cathedral appropriated as lodgings to the fathers, built as in manner aforesaid; one room 20 feet long and 10 feet broad, and a shed, 10 feet square.

"Several lodgings, the whole containing 28 yards long, and three yards broad.

"Two store rooms on each side the church, one containing in length, 10 yards, and 5 broad; the other, 30 yards long, and 7 broad.

"The Cathedral aforesaid, with appurtenances, if turned into secular uses, as others are in Tangier, would amount, per annum, to 200*li.*

"The Misericordia is, in length, 27 yards, and in breadth, 14; containing three roomes above, and three below, being of the ordinary sort of building in Tangier; and, if turned into secular uses, as other chapels in Tangier are, would amount, per annum, to 50*li.*"

Following this is an account of the yearly value of the leasehold property.

Next is a copy of the answer of the Fathers of the Portuguese Church, dated October $\frac{8}{18}$, 1683:—"We have thus long delayed in answering your letter, because we would give you a full answer, upon all his Excellency's commands, signified to us by you. We give you our hearty thanks for all your favour hitherto, and for those you promise us in our embarkments, with our families and goods, and those belonging to this Holy Temple. We cannot, till Wednesday, give a minute of the parcels, but we believe that the Cathedral Church goods and materials, will consist of above 60 chests; and as to our particular goods, we do not yet know the quantity, but will give an exact account of all, to the end you may cause the bulk and weight to be examined. Concerning the number of persons, we will also give an exact list thereof, and we will also put down the names of such other Portuguese, as will go in our company.

"Next Sunday in the afternoon, at 4 o'clock, we do pretend, with the grace of God, to be on board, and our goods may be sent before, especially those belonging to the church. But we pray you order payment to be made to us, of what belongs to us, to enable us to pay such debts as we owe here, we not designing to go hence, till we clear our debts; and, that we may the better do it, we intend to publish the day of our departure, that so all our creditors may come to us."

Following this are copies of various letters, from the Mayor as to the value of properties in the city.

Notes on the Proprietors' objections to the Commissioners proposed valuation made at a meeting held on Sunday evening, October 14, 1683. Present—Mr. Pepys, Mr. Bacher, Mr. Erlisman, Captain Giles, Mr. Sanford, and Mr. Povey:—

"Upon reading and debating the objections given us by the Mayor and the rest of the proprietors to our proposals of measures for the valuing their proprietaries, the following notes were loosely taken by Mr. Pepys, videlicet:—

"Upon Mr. Sanford's alleging that the charge of repair upon Mr. Wortley alias Montague's house, for whom he is intrusted, exceeds not 6 per cent. per annum, it was answered that he hath never given them any thorough repair, so as they are at this day ready to fall down. But that if ever they were to be rebuilt, as they must be to be well repaired, it will appear that twice that expense will not do it.

"Mr. Comptroller avers, that being upon the late survey, Mr. Mayor did assert of his house in general, that it cost him the greatest part of the rent in repairing and Mr. Povey more particularly. That the Mayor did say in his hearing concerning his house that is valued at 100*li. per annum*, that it cost him every year 30*li.* repairs.

"They say that the late layers out of any money in new buildings, who are made a pretence for the raising the value of houses in general are but five or six in the whole City, namely, Mr. Comptroller Erlisman, Colonel Boynton, Mr. Recorder, Captain St. John, Mrs. Mulloy, one Fish, and one Kempe.

"Three of these gentlemen here met, being Commissioners of the survey, do for themselves and their whole number wholly disown their ever saying or pretending that seven years' purchase would be allowed them for freeholds and the whole remainder of years to come for leases, or that ever they looked upon themselves as authorised to say or propose anything upon that subject, and desire that Mr. Mayor, who was one of them, and allegeth this under his hand, may be asked whether ever he did or no. Besides the folly of such a proposition, which were to set a greater value on leases than freeholds.

"It was observed that there have been several times, since we had this place, when the rents of houses received general occasions of increase, videlicet:—Once upon a great occasion of privateering in the Dutch war; another when the French in their war with Spain, brought their goods hither, and so made great employment for warehouses; the last upon the addition of forces sent hither by the King. All the rent that could be got for houses at any other time within these 20 years, hardly sufficing to pay for their repairs.

"So that it is the King that has raised the rents to what they now are by his sending over more forces for securing the place, and is now likely to be made to pay for his own kindness to them by this exacted valuation of their houses, through that increase of rents raised upon him for extraordinary quarters, which this kindness of his occasioned, as if the King were now bound to keep for ever, the number of men he now has here, which is near 4,000. Whereas before there were not usually above 1,000, and should he bring them down again to their old number, the rents would fall to nothing, as they were before. One other reason is indeed suggested for this increase of rents, but it is but a small one, namely, their letting their houses out by parcels, and particular rooms to strangers and vagabonds, who come hither to get a small matter, and when that is done, leave them, and then after a room being so held for one year it lies empty on the owner's hands for two.

"It was noted that one Mr. Gascoigne did for one house pay Mr. Mayor 110 "pieces of eight" per annum for seven years together, after which the Comptroller paid him for the same house 150 "pieces of eight" per annum for two years and now it is let for 200 "pieces of eight" per annum and valued in the late survey at 40*li. per annum*. Whereas in Gascoigne's time his rent came but to 25*li. per annum* and in the Comptrollers, but to 33*li.* 15*s.* 0*d.* Such has been the increase of rent upon this one house, though all that the Mayor has added to it of new building, is only one closet upon a foundation that was laid and prepared before.

"That there have not been above four houses sold in Tangier, either freehold or by lease, within these last twelve months videlicet:—one sold by Captain Giles to Mr. Kempe, another by Doctor Lawrence to the Comptroller, a third by Commissary Hughes to the Recorder, and a fourth by Nevill's widow to Mr. Rothe, and not one of these upon any foresight, as is suggested, of what is now known, namely, the destruction of the place. Besides that, had that been known, would either they or any other have forborne selling all they had or would any have built, so lately as they now have done? Nay, what would not people have taken for their houses had this been known six months ago, for who that had heard that, would ever have imagined that the King would have done that which is now offered, of giving satisfaction for them.

"That the apprehensions, people were under, of the danger the place was in at the time of Charles Fort being taken, was such, that some people did absolutely go, and others publicly endeavoured to dispose of their affairs, for the removing of themselves, their estates and families away into Spain.

"They own that notice has been given them of intentions said to be in the King of renewing their leases for 99 years, but never knew of any such Commission actually issued for that purpose as is pretended in this paper. For what is suggested? That oath will be made of higher rates given by the proprietors than we propose, and as high as those demanded. These gentlemen do all declare, that they believe no such thing unless it be meant by the way of fallacy, that in the time of the Portuguese when rents were very low, a house not yielding 5li. a year that now yields 20li., more years purchase might possibly be paid for them, but that no such high rates are given now under the great rents that houses are raised to.

"And that no such design of partiality to the King or ill will to the place has, as is suggested, been employed in the present pretended undervaluing of their houses, may appear from the Mayor himself having had two houses of his, and he is said to have owned it, with some triumph over their mistakes that did it valued in the late survey at a higher rent than he himself makes of them. Though these gentlemen did explain to me, how they came to be misled to it.

"Whereas it is pretended that materials, and particularly lime, are very chargeable, and thereby their buildings are so too. It is answered, that the stone is all the King's saving the charge of fetching it, and their mortar, for the most part, nothing but dirt, saving for pointing without side only where a very little lime is made use of."

"An Alphabet of the persons names, first interested, by purchase or Lease, after his Majesty's possession of Tangier, in various houses and tenements.

Henrique de Acuna, Henry Aylward, Captains Allen and Darcy, Roger Alsop, Juan Alvarez, Sebastian Gonzales Alvarez, Emanuel Francisco Alvarez, Alphonso de Aranjo, Owen Babell, Frederick Bacher, Hugh Bayly, Alexander Balam, Samuel Bennett, William Berkley, Domingo Dies Boiro, Redmond Bourke, Marmaduke Boynton, Robert Browne, James Bruffe, Captain Bryon, Captain Bunn, William Carpenter, Robert Collins, David Condon, Mettode Corcos, Antonio Correa, Simon Crabb, Francis Cranwich, Edmond Darcy, Charles Daniell, Diego Dies, William Dolby, John Eccles, George Elliot, Thomas Emerson, Edward Emms, Sir Palmes Fairborne, Juan Baptista Figeredo, Edward Fitz-Gerald, James Fitz-Gerald, Richard Fitz-Gerald, Walwyn Gascoigne, George Gerbier, Jonathan Geere, Theophilus Gilby, Captain Giles, Francis Gorman, James Gorman, Mackenny Gorman, John Grimes, Evan Harris, John Hill, Henry Holt, William Hord, Edward Hughes, Richard Hunter, Robert Ingram, Richard Jones, Mr. Izard, John Lawrence, John Langford, John Legg, John Lough, John Luke, Alexander Mackenny, John Mackenny, George Maskall, Viera Belchior Viera Mattoso, Fernando Luis Matteos, Manuel Matteos, William Moore, Francis Moore, Daniel Mulloy, James Mulloy, Sidney Montague, Fernando de Nabo, Quartermaster Nevill, John Nevill, Captain Norwood, Kennedy O'Bryan, James Pembridge, Thomas Perry, John Philpot, Edward Pope, the King of Portugal, Morgan Read, Nathaniel Roberts, Duarte Rodrigues, Elizabeth Rodrigues, Edward Rothe, Griffith Saite, Thomas St. John, the Earl of Sandwich, Richard Senhouse, John Sherrow, an English shoemaker, John Shuttleworth, George Simmonds, Lieutenant Stackhouse, William Staines, Antonio Rodrigues Surdo, Francis Surrat, Stephen Tabrin, George Talbot, Ewald Tessin, Nicholas Tewes, Jenkin Thomas, Joseph Tiffeny, William Tilley, Francis Trelawny, Daniel Vansisterflitt, Phillibert Vernatty, William Victor, Charles Wager, James Wyly, Benjamin Welch, Widow Whittaker, Thomas White, James Wilson, Edward Witham.

Another List, giving some additional names.

Isabell de Acuna, Margaret Beverley, Mrs. Bolland, Richard Bonner, Colonel Boynton, Samuel Burch, James Burrins, John Chapel, Hugh Cholmley, Francis Clarke, John Clarke, John Creed, Elizabeth Culliford, Robert Cuthbert, Denis Daily, Edward Eccles, Jane Emerson, John Erlisman, Lady Fairborne, Gregory Fish, John Fargeon, Teige Fox, Walwin Gascoigne, Bartholomew Gonzales, James Guy, Arthur Herbert, Henry Horzdesnell, Thomas Hugbon, George Hutt(?), Robert Jackson, John Kempe, John Kynoin, Captain Leslie, Nathaniel Luke, George Mercer, Charles Middleton, Lucy Mulloy, the widow Nevill, Lady Peterborough, Eleanor Phœnix, Ann Philpot, Thomas Roberts, Thomas Rowe, Anne Saite, John Samms, Nicholas Sanford, Robert Sandison, Mary Sherrow, Henry Shere, William Smith, Henry Sparkes, William Swansborough, James Tobin, Frances Maria Toran, Richard Treherne, Stephen Vincent, Mary Weston, Elizabeth White.

At the end of the volume is a carefully prepared plan of Tangier at the foot of which appear the names of the Streets, as follows:—Ababados Street, Alphakecca Street, Assoy Street, Ayres Pinto, backside of Captain St. John's Garden, Barbara Street, Barrell Court, Bishop's Street, Bowell Court, Butcher Lane, Butcher Row, Cabrado Street, Cannon Street, Rua de Carmo, Castle Hill Foot, Cathedral church, Common shore, Terrero de Contrato, Coroena Street, Custom House Street, Rua de Coelio, Diego Baneo, Diess Street, Dominican Alley, Duanna Street, Duanno Turnagaine, Escada Grande or Great Staires Street, Francisco de Favares, Gilpin-lane, Gomes Street, Gormis Street, Ground under the wall, &c., Gully Hole, Hospital, Jews Court, Jews Lane, Katherina-gate or port, Katherina Street, Rua de Lancero, Machado Street, Macarde Rua de Luis, Merceda Street, Machias Street, Machias Turnagaine, Maria Street, Markett Place, Miserecordia Street, Nabo Fernando, Rua Nabo, Old Parade, Little Parade, Quebrado-street, Salisbury Court, Salisbury Street, Sandwich Port, Sebastian's Place, Sebastian's Street, St. John's Street, St. John's Street in Rua Coelio, Suarvis Ferrero de Antonil, Suaris Court, Souaris Street, Taverne Street, Terrero de Martin Anne' (?), Turnagaine of Machias, Water Gate, Water Side.

A volume of entries of Orders, given under the hand of Lord Dartmouth, at Tangier, between September 21, 1683 and April 25, 1685, and an account of Lord Dartmouth's expenses at his "fitting out to sea, in July and August, 1683"; this includes payments to "Mr. Kelk, for pewter," 22*li*. 0*s*. 3*d*., "Mr. Child, for plate," 180*li*. 18*s*. 8*d*., "Mr. Seller, for books and sea-charts," 10*li*. 9*s*., to "Mr. Price, a hackney coachman, that carried down Mr. Pepys Dr. Trumbull, and fetched Dr. Ken from Winchester," 19*li*., to "Mr. Harford, for bibles and prayer-books," 2*li*. 13*s*. 6*d*. Following this, is Lord Dartmouth's warrant, addressed to William Hewer, treasurer for the affairs of the late garrison at Tangier, requiring him to pay, out of the money applicable for that service, 992*li*.

to Samuel Pepys for the 248 days (4li. per diem)—that he was employed upon the Tangier business; mention is made that the King was, himself, "pleased to pitch upon Samuel Pepys," and recommend him to Lord Dartmouth as a suitable person to assist in the expedition. There are at the other end of this volume, various accounts of the expenditure of money at Tangier.

1683, September 23, to 1684, May 28.—A volume of miscellaneous entries.

1683, September 23.—A Survey of the naval stores at Tangier, pp. 1–5.

1683, September 26.—Directions to Sir John Berry, as to the disposing the seamen who come ashore at the interview with the "Alcayde."

My Lord Dartmouth's battalion of seamen commanded by Sir William Booth, consisting of 200 men, clothed with white and blue striped linen, fitted with muskets, pikes, and pole-axes, with four union flags.

Sir John Berry's battalion, commanded by . . . . . . , clothed with the cloth Mr. Hewers shall give, with four Irish colours.

Two other battalions, each consisting of 200 men, clothed with such clothes as the Scotch shall furnish, with eight colours of Colonel Trelawney's regiment.

These four battalions to be commanded by Sir John Berry.

All the boats in the fleet to be manned, with a captain to command them, to be armed with blunderbusses and hand-grenades, and drawn up, as Sir John Berry shall direct, for the well flanking of the sands.

Captain Aylmer and Captain Mackdonnell to come into the Bay as near as he possibly can with safety.

Sir John Berry to take a copy of this paper, to call the officers aboard, and assign to everyone his just post.

All the men to be drawn up on the sands to the best advantage, as Colonel Kirk shall direct.

All the ships to fire, at the signal Sir John Berry shall appoint.

That Sir John Berry do, tomorrow in the afternoon, send ashore, men of the gun-room crew, out of a third rate four, a fourth rate three, a fifth rate two, a sixth rate one, besides a gunner, or gunner's mate, out of each.

That the brigantine be manned with the men of the hulk, to be commanded by Captain Withers.

The battalions and men above mentioned to be sent ashore tomorrow afternoon.

1683, September 25.—Survey of Naval provisions; finding that the 15,580 "pieces of pork, mentioned to be defective, do so stink and are rotten, and not fit for men to eat;" and that the 35 bushels 3 gallons of peas "are musty and stink."

1683, October 6.—Survey of the Gloucester hulk; incapable of repair and fit only to be sunk.

1683, October 13.—Report about the Mole, signed by John Berry, John Ashby, H. Kellegrew, William Booth, John Wyborne, Thomas Fowler, Charles Wylde, Cloudesley Shovell, M. Aylmer, Henry Cawerth, Ralph Wren, G. Aylmer, John Tyrell, G. Rooke, Francis Wheler, George St. Loe, Daniel Jones, Ran. McDonell, William Botham, Thomas Hopton, Th. Leighton, H. Priestman, William Gifford, Anthony Hastings, Daniel Deering, and Thomas Hamilton.

To the 1st. What the present length of the Mole is, and the several depths of water at low-water within, at the head and along the sides of it, to be measured for every 20 yards, and how much it flows in those places?

Answer.—We find, by measure thereof had by us, the Mole to contain in length 479 yards, from the bastion of York Castle, to the end of the furthermost chest. The depth of water, at low-water, to be: the first 20 yards, to become solid earth; at the next, 20 yards, one foot; thence to 100, two foot; thence to 140, two and a half foot; thence to 280, three and a half foot; thence to 300 yards, four foot; at 320 yards, four and a half foot; at 340, five foot; at 360, six foot; at 380, six and a half foot; from 400 to 460, eight foot; there, nine foot; and at the very Mole head, ten foot. And that it flows within the Mole at ordinary tides, right up and down, six, and upon spring tides, near eight foot.

The 2nd. What difference there is between the present depths, in each place, and what you can remember, or receive certain information there was, three or four years past, and, in case of such difference, what the true occasion thereof has been?

Answer.—That as well by some of our own knowledge and observation, as by certain and credible information we have received from many of the ancient inhabitants, there is now found in several places but two foot [of] water, at low-water, where heretofore was five; and where has been between eight and nine, is at this day but four; and so gradually to the end of the Mole; and in all parts of it, the like extra less depth of water, which we judge may proceed partly from the nature of the stone itself, with which the Mole is built, which, being soft and brittle, the continual agitation of the sea converts it to sand, which lodges in the Mole; but principally from the great seas which are seen frequently here, and make white and muddy water, at least a league from the shore, bringing great quantities of sand into the Bay, and from thence, as all tides in rivers set from point to point, so by the tide of ebb here setting from the bottom of the bay into the Mole, the sand is carried into the Mole, and by its sudden stopping upon the resistance it meets there, lodges itself.

To the 3rd. What sort of ground there is for ships riding within the Mole?

Answer.—That in the best and deepest place in the Mole, the ground is full of rocks, and very foul, which renders it extra difficult to preserve cables from being cut in pieces, notwithstanding all endeavours of buoying up with casks and other things to prevent it; so that the damage ships sustain in the very Mole in that particular will be equal, if not superior, to what they can be thought to suffer in the open road.

To the 4th. How many ships, and of what quality, may at this time commodiously ride there?

Answer.—That in the Mole may at this time ride four or five sixth-rate ships drawing not more than eight foot water, being carefully moored head and stern, and within them cetteas and small vessels to the number of 15 or 16.

To the 5th. What security there is against an enemy, for such ships, coming from the sea, or from the Moors upon the land?

Answer.—That there is not at present, nor is the place capable to be rendered secure against the attempts of a bold enemy coming from sea, who, in spite of all the helps of art and nature, will be able to burn and destroy all ships that shall be found here or retreat hither for protection. Nor is there any sort of security against the Moors upon the land, who, as late experience has shewn, may bring cannon upon the sand-hills, which so commands and overlooks the said Port, that no vessel shall possibly be able to ride there without their leave; and we cannot but believe that that point was overseen by the first contrivers of the Mole by the opinion they had of the impossibility of the Moors bringing cannon, or they could not have led His Majesty to undertake so chargeable and difficult a work as the Mole without first providing against that inconveniency which would utterly deprive us of any use it could be of to us if finished.

To the 6th. Whether it be feasible to build a counter mole, what expense, and what time it will require, and whether then his Majesty's ships may ride in safety?

Answer.—That in our opinion a counter mole may be built, but in what time, or at what expense, we cannot ascertain; but that even then there can be no manner of security for ships in the Mole against the Moors, unless the aforesaid high land, commanding and overlooking, be taken in and fortified. The practicableness, time, and expense of which so vast a work, we leave your Excellency to other means of information, adding only upon this head, that when the said countermole, or the elbow, or the return of the mole shall be finished, to give the protection against the Levants, that ships will be then so land-locked and imprisoned by the said Levants (which blow almost the whole summer in fresh gales, and sometimes in storms, for two months together) that it will be found a difficult and dangerous work (if to be done) to get ships out during the said Levants, which would be a very great hindrance to his Majesty's service, and no less discouragement to merchant ships trading here, in the privation of the principal advantage proposed to be had from the place, of expedition and quick dispatch of ships in time of war. And, as the Levants in summer, so the N.W. winds in winter (which blow in violent storms) would have the like ill effect upon the port.

To the 7th. Whether any of you at any time past, careened any of his Majesty's ships within it? In what time it was done? Whether with any hazard, or long expectation of weather to heave down?

Answer.—That Captain Rooke, commander of the St. David, informs us, that in the year 1678 he careened his Majesty's ship Nonsuch, who drew but 12½ feet of water, with all things in, but for want of water within, was obliged to take out all his guns, provisions, and ballast (to the great danger of the ship, in riding light), without the Mole. That he was 14 days in the doing of it, with great hazard and trouble to the King's ship, and at last could not heave her keel above water, by reason of the great swell that came in, though the weather was very fair. That Captain Shovell careened his Majesty's ships James galley, and Sapphire, but with some difficulty, long expense of time, and hazard of the King's ships. And Captain Hastings says he has met the like in careening the Sapphire this year, adding that he spoiled two cables in his riding to expect weather, when the master's attendant would undertake to heave her down.

To the 8th. That such captains as were in these parts with the late Admiral Herbert, declare what they judged, and was then accounted, the reason why he did not make use of this port to keep the hulk, lodge the stores, and careen his Majesty's ships, rather than remove with them to a foreign port so near to it?

Answer.—That Sir William Booth, Captain Shovell, Captain Rooke, Captain Wheler, Captain Hastings, and Captain McDonnell, were the captains now in the fleet, who were with the late Admiral Herbert, at the time of his removing the stores, hulk, and other things to Gibraltar; and they say, that upon survey of the condition of this place, and debates had at a council-of-war thereupon, many reasons were drawn up in writing, signed by the said captains, and sent home to England, setting forth the want of depth of water, the danger from the weather, the tediousness of dispatch, the inability of the Mole to contain other than small ships, and other things which occur not now to them, and that thereupon, with their unanimous advice and opinion, this place was left, and his Majesty's service performed at the other.

Lastly. In answer to the liberty your Excellency gives us, of giving our opinion in any other matter relating to the Mole not mentioned in your enquiry, and pursuant to your commands in your order, for giving our opinions in general of the capacity of the said Moles, to be rendered useful and advantageous to his Majesty's service in the receiving, careening, and preserving his ships, we pray leave to observe to your Excellency that the place being situated so near the great ocean, where the rage and fury of the winter storms operate in a manifold degree more violently, and with a greater effect than in the Mediterranean Sea, the most proper part of the world where moles are of use, and where, by reason of least violent storms, the works thereof are carried on and effected more successfully, and are preserved in repair with an easy charge, we are of opinion that works of this kind are very impracticable, if not impossible, so near the main ocean where the waves come in with that weight, and beat with such violence, that no artificial strength seems sufficient to resist them, and as this mole shall be advanced into deeper water, the weight and force of the waves and great seas will increase here proportionally, especially, too, when it shall be carried out beyond the ledge of rocks which lie without it, and which seems hitherto to yield it some protection. And that, in our opinion, if the Mole should be finished, it is impossible to preserve it, though with vast charge, from choking and filling up with sand, as we see it plainly has done to a very great degree in few years past, and that by so much the more in this than others in the Mediterranean, which we yet observe are preserved by all sorts of helps from engines, &c., at a great expense, by how much the agitation of the sea is greater here than there. And there is yet another evil we must also mention to your Excellency, which is, that at this time we find the place so ill-furnished with water that it is impossible to supply 2 or 3 ships in any reasonable time, and that little there is, is very bad and pernicious to men's health, which is an inconvenience alone, should it continue in after years, would suffice to render the port entirely useless. And to conclude, we further lay our opinions before your Excellency, that, as in the condition we find by dilligent search and just enquiry this place to be now in, it is altogether unuseful to his Majesty for the receiving, careening, or preserving his Majesty's ships, so in our opinions grounded on the foregoing considerations, it is not a place to be rendered so to answer in any degree the time and expense of doing it, if it can be done. And these we conceive were some of the many considerations upon which most people pretending to any judgment in works of this nature, have ever esteemed Tangier useless, and of great charge to his Majesty; and upon which other commanders, formerly, and Admiral Herbert and the captains with him, lately, were obliged to have resort to foreign parts for the lodging stores and careening ships upon any occasion of a war in these parts.

1683, November 9. Account of the stores, &c. on board the Scedam, prize; general condition good.

1683, September 19. Survey of decayed provisions on board the Henrietta and of the state of the pink, Swan, prize.

1683, November 20. "Account of the progress made by Lord Dartmouth in the Victualling of His Majesty's fleet, sent out under his command to Tangier; and the soldiers in that garrison."

1683–4, January 21. Report by John Berry and others—many being the same persons who signed the Report of the 6 October, previous—about the Mole and harbour at Tangier:—

"We find that vast mass of stone and earth, of which the Mole consisted, which upon our former survey at your first arrival here, was measured 479 yards in length, to be levelled and carried into the harbour so low that the sea has free passage over it the whole tide, till within an hour and a half of low water, and that thereby that part of the harbour which was esteemed the best, and had the deepest water, is now, for the whole length of that which was the Mole, made solid earth, 170 feet together from the altar of the mole into the port, and several piers of stone run out besides, of 310, 220, 180, 170, 368, 160, and 275 feet in length, and that in the rest of the harbour vast quantities of stones and rubbish are thrown in and sunk all over it, in boats and other vessels fitted for that purpose, upon which we have considered whether they are reduced to such a state, as that the one may not be rebuilt and the other cleansed, and made useful by any Christian prince, or by the people of this country, if they should attempt it, and are of opinion that for a Christian prince, besides the necessity of being master of this country, and fortifying all the high ground overlooking and commanding the harbour, there is not any one of the motives which always give encouragement to the doing works of that kind, to be found in this, to make it reasonable, if it be possible, for any such to endeavour it. And in relation to the Moors of this country, we conceive it a work very impracticable and impossible. And whereas a very great and essential benefit and advantage to any harbour or port is a good and secure road for ships to ride safely without. We have some of us formerly, and all of us very lately, had such experience of this, that we cannot on this occasion, but observe to you that the foulness of the ground were in the great depth of water and very dangerous seas which come without, render it so bad and insecure for ships to ride, especially considering they are sometimes to ride without their guns, ballast, and in other circumstances which your Excellency very well knows is required to prepare them for the benefit of the harbour or port within, in their cleaning and fitting, that it can no way incite or encourage any people to attempt the doing such a work, were it in other respects reasonable. As for the Mole itself, it is so entirely ruined and destroyed, and the harbour so filled with stones and rubbish, and made so unfit to receive, harbour, or protect in any manner from the weather, or from an enemy, any ships or vessels, and that in very many degrees worse than the bay itself naturally would have done, before the building the Mole, that when you shall think fit to order the little hillock of sand, lying at the hither end of the beach, and that of stones on the other, to be made level with the other parts of it, we do unanimously, in our best judgments, not only think what has been done does fully and completely answer all the ends of making one and the other in no capacity to give any kind of refuge or protection to the ships or vessels of any pirates, robbers, or any enemies of the Christian faith, or any others."

The other end of this volume, appears to have been used by Lord Dartmouth for entering his letters sent before starting on his voyage to Tangier, and from Tangier, to various persons, between August 9, 1683, and May 29, 1684.

Amongst them, the following:—

1683, October 19. Tangier. Lord Dartmouth to the Admiralty.—"At my arrival here I found the Centurion, Dover, and Sapphire, of the Squadron left by Mr. Herbert, the rest were at sea, on several occasions, and are since come to us, all but the Crown, which Captain Shovell, ordered home. The James galley, and Dartmouth, had taken two fly boats from the Moors, whom I have fitted for the sea, and shall employ in the bringing people home." "The small ships most proper for that service, and the other ships who were cleanest, I have kept constantly cruising upon the coast of Salee, but have yet no account of any success they have had, other than what you will find in the enclosed from Captain Deering, and the further account he brings me of the Greyhound and Sapphire's putting a brigantine ashore near Marmora, in which the former lost her boat, the captain's brother and seven other men in her, who were next day seen among the Moors ashore, an over earnestness of the men for plunder kept them too long on board her, so as the sea coming in filled the boat and forced them ashore to save their lives. The Swallow, by which I send this, I have filled with inhabitants of this place and their goods, and sent home, the St. David and Dartmouth will in a few days follow her, with the rest of the families." Refers to scarcity of victuals, and the dearth in Spain, and the "unwillingness of the people [there] to afford us any succour." "Another thing, I think, fit for me also to observe to you, that these ships designed by you to be left here, will be obliged to have resort to the ports of Spain for water, and upon other occasions, and may possibly meet at sea with the fleet of Spain, who are every day expected down into these parts. And so will be exposed to the like affronts some of our ships lately received in the matter of salutes, unless that be speedily regulated, and more particular instructions given our commanders how to behave themselves therein."

1683, October 22. Tangier. Same to same.—"I am very sorry to have this occasion given me to put you to any trouble, especially one of this kind, but so little care has been taken at home to provide sufficient quantities of vituals for this fleet or garrison to enable them to perform the service, his Majesty has been pleased to send us hither for, that I dread the fatal consequences that neglect may prove of to his Majesty's service without a speedy and good supply reach us here. To perform my duty in this matter, in the prevention of those inconveniences all that may be, I have and am making all the provision this country will afford, which is but very inconsiderable, the late great droughts having made corn not only very dear, but to be had in great scarcity. I have not only done it here, but being obliged to send a ship to Portugal with the fathers of that church, and other people, late inhabitants of this place, who are gratified in their choice of his Majesty's ship Centurion, Captain Ralph Wren, commander, I have sent her with no more victuals, than may serve to carry her thither, but she being one of the ships I am directed by the Lords of the Admiralty to leave behind me as a cruiser upon the coast of Salee, I have made use of his Majesty's credit at Lisbon, by M^r^ Fanshaw, his envoy extraordinary there, and M^r^ Maynard, the consul, to furnish her with two months' vituals, to enable her to do it, till she may be further supplied with the other ships from home." Refers to the "bareness" he found at Tangier in his Majesty's "naval stores, of all kinds both in ships and magazines."

1683, October 31. Tangier. Same to Same.—"I have nothing since my last of the 27th instant, by the St. David to trouble you with, further than to accompany Capt Jones in the Diamond, who carries Madame Kirkwith, her family, and several of the inhabitants with his Majesty's stores, for the service of that garrison to Pendennis, with this account of my sending her home, that you may dispose of her as you think fit, after she shall have dispatched her business there, which will take up but very little time. In a day or two the Dartmouth follows her, with other of the inhabitants."

1683, November 30. Same to Same.—Two ships with victuals for the garrison, arrived on the 26th instant. "The extraordinary violent storms of N.W. winds, with rain and ill weather, we have had these seven or eight days past, have done some damage to our ships. The Oxford's cable broke the other night, and she drove aboard the Montague, carried away her head, bowsprit, and foreyard, and with some difficulty at length got clear and stood into the Straits. The same night, the Greyhound was forced to do the like, and the Sapphire, with the flyboat designed to bring away the horses, bore away also, and I hope are all got through, or at Gibraltar. The Pearl, James, galley, and others have broken their cables, and received other damage, but the weather prevents the boats coming ashore to give me more particular information. In the meantime, I am very glad the mischief has been no other or greater, since the storm was so very extraordinarily violent and continued so long. I have ordered the Montague to Cadiz to get another bowsprit and repair her other damage."

1683–4, February 5. Tangier. Same to Same.—The ships left behind were the Bonaventure, James, galley, Tiger, prize, Sapphire, Pearl, Lark, and Drake; the condition of each of these is described. And it appearing to me very reasonable and necessary, at this time, of his Majesty's quitting this place, and drawing away his forces, that no encouragement be taken therefrom, by any of the Corsairs of Tripoli, Tunis, or Algiers, to interrupt our trade in these parts, or offering any violence to the ships of his Majesty's subjects, that all care should be had, and means used, by appearing before their Ports, and speaking with any of their ships at sea to show them what ships his Majesty keeps abroad for the protection of his subjects in these parts, and thereby to keep them in awe, and oblige them to continue the good correspondence between his Majesty and them, I have directed the Commander-in-Chief of the squadron left behind, that the ships should always keep two and two together, and endeavour, as oft as they can, to meet and speak with any of the ships, or vessels, belonging to those people, and likewise, if by chase or otherwise, any of them are led into the Straits, within 10 or 20 leagues of Algiers that they should appear before the Port, and continue there some little time, to learn anything in reference to that people, that might conduce to his Majesty's service; and not only this, but esteeming the preservation of the peace at this time, and the security of our merchants trading in these parts, a matter of very great consequence, I purpose to send the Bonaventure and Turk's Tiger, ships of the best countenance of those to be left abroad, expressly to Algiers, Tunis, and Tripoli just after the leaving this place for the ends aforesaid, and so to go to Livorne [Leghorn?] to cleare and return to their stations against Salee, and thence to Lisbon, as the foulness of their ships, or want of victuals shall require it. The Mary Rose and Swan, who are gone to Marseilles, Genoa, and Leghorn, with the strangers, late inhabitants here, and the Constant Warwick, who is now following them. I have ordered also to rendezvous at Leghorn and from thence to come together down the Barbary shore. And in like manner, and for those ends, to appear before Tunis and Algiers. To the former place I have sent by Captain Priestman, the commander of the Two Lyons of Salee, taken lately by Captain Wren, who being a subject of Tunis proceeded from thence to a ship of that place, with a pass from his Majesty's consul, and losing that vessel in little time after, he fitted and armed this from Salee and made use of that pass for his security in her, and under such pretence of being a friend, took an English ship before he was met with by the Centurion. I have put the several papers making out the matters of fact in this case, into Captain Priestman's hands and given him instructions that, with the advice and assistance of the consul, to whom I have written therein, he acquaint the Government upon his arrival at Tunis, that as a mark of friendship and civility to them, this their subject has not received the punishment from us which by the law he has merited for this fact, but is sent to be delivered up to their justice, which, if Captain Priestman can have reasonable assurances will be had, I have directed that he be delivered up to them, or otherwise be brought back for your lordship's further disposal."

1684, March 30. On board the Grafton in Plymouth Sound. Same to Same.

"After the blowing up of the town, and our retreat aboard, finding a great want of water cask and water in the fleet, to supply so many persons as were to be transported home in it, which all the endeavours we used could not procure at Tangier, and vituals also to be provided to answer the warrants the victualler had formerly had, which upon the loss of the victualling ship, the fleet greatly wanted, and being obliged to stay awhile there myself to dispatch some affairs yet in treaty with the Moors, I sent immediately the Henrietta, Montague, and another ship or two, which most wanted water to Cadiz with directions to water themselves and procure 200 tuns of cask, for we wanted about that quantity for the rest, and to have them filled and put on board gaburs, to be hired for that purpose to be ready to send to the Bay of Bulls to the fleet upon our arrival there, that as little time as possible might be spent in expecting of it, and in one of the said ships the victualler was also sent to endeavour to procure the said provisions there for us. In a day or two after the despatch of these ships, I had finished the negotiations with the Moors, but was, notwithstanding, by calms and north-west winds, kept from sailing with the rest of the fleet till the 20th of February, then having fair weather we got to sail in the morning." Describes the incidents of the homeward voyage and adds:—"I thank God, we are at length got hither, in that condition we are, without knowing of any other accident that has befallen any of us, than what you have here given your Lordships. As to the Dragon, which I informed your Lordships I had designed to help carry the forces to Ireland; finding upon the embarking them that the Dover could safely and conveniently do it herself, I put them all there, and have brought the Dragon with me to ease some of the other ships, which were very full of people."

1684, April 2. From the Grafton, at sea, off the Start. Lord Dartmouth to Lieutenant-Colonel Boynton.

"Having met his Majesty's commands at my late putting in to Plymouth, for the quartering all the regiments commanded by Colonel Kirk at that place and Pendennis, I have in pursuance thereof left there the company of Grenadiers and Captain Guy's which were on board the ships which put in with me there, and having now very fortunately met the Centurion, where [was] the second battalion of the said regiment, commanded by yourself, I have directed her commander to go back to Plymouth, and put the same there ashore and do desire you to see all dispatch be used in the doing thereof and care taken by your officers in the disposing of their companies in such manner and according to such orders as they will meet from Sir Hugh Piper, Lieutenant-Governor, I am further very earnestly to recommend it to yourself and all the other officers as a matter which his Majesty has very strictly commanded, and will be very necessary for your own sakes to be done, that all care be taken by them that their soldiers behave themselves civilly and with good order, conforming to the rules and customs of the garrison, and that no cause be given to any of the people of the country to complain of ill-treatment, or being defrauded of anything that is justly their due. Wherein his Majesty has not only required all regard to be had by the officers, but expect each one should be answerable for the compartment of the soldiers under his command."

1684, April 7. Spithead, on board the Grafton. Lord Dartmouth to the Admiralty—"I received your letter of the 5th instant, and am surprised to find not so much as any mention made therein of the Tiger's being to go up the river, while Captain Wheeler shows me at the same time, an order from you, how procured I cannot but wonder, directed to, and requiring him to do it. To forbear insisting on the particular disrespect, such, I believe, an unprecedented proceeding seems to carry with it towards myself, who, nevertheless have, I hope, acquitted myself with such regard and duty to his Majesty's commission under your management in my punctual, frequent, and just accounts to your lordships, through this whole expedition, so as, I thought, not to merit anything like it; I cannot, in duty to his Majesty's service, but observe to your lordships, that the same is directly repugnant to all good order and discipline, and tends, in a very high degree, to the destruction of both, in our fleet, at a time when there appears much more occasion and reason for the introducing and maintaining it, by all concerned therein, who desire to be thought to wish well to it; it lessens the authority and dignity of a superior, which ought, by all means and ways, to be preserved and cherished, and bears with it many other evil consequences to the welfare of the service."

1684, April 22. St. James Square, London. Same to Same.—"In return to your lordships' of the 12th instant, I am so far from controverting what you are therein, with so much earnestness, pleased to assert of your being only ordained for the preservation of the discipline of the navy, as not to have wanted that very consideration, among others, in the weight by me put upon the breach thereof, complained of in my letter of the 7th, it seeming too much for me to impute to a bare mistake, so open a departure from what yourselves are pleased to own for the sole end of your commission. Not but that your Lordships having now declared it to have arisen from a mistake only, suffices for the removing of all it brought with it of dissatisfaction to my particular; heartily wishing that this were the only particular my late employment has given me the knowledge of, and I may sometime have occasion of discoursing you upon his Majesty's behalf, relating to the present state of the discipline of the navy.

For what you are pleased by way, as you call it, of retaliation to recriminate me with, of irregularities of my own; I hold it not only my duty to give, but advantage to be asked, an account of everything by me done in pursuit either of his Majesty's commission or yours; and therefore, for the former of your two enquiries, touching my taking with me some of the King's officers from Portsmouth, I did it by no less warrant than that of his Majesty's, under his own hand, countersigned by one of the Secretaries of State, directed and delivered to the proper officer, Sir Richard Beach, commissioner of his navy at that Port, and this, though I should have hoped alone sufficient, confirmed before execution by another of your own, requiring me to observe all orders I should receive from the King or such his secretary; nor is what I have said in this particular less true through my whole transactings, in this affair, as having not proceeded to any one single act upon the King's commission before you had thus authorized me thereto by yours of the 2nd of August.

To the other, of my appointing standing officers to his Majesty's ships without the recital of your authority for my doing the same, though I cannot but think the deriving my authority from the King a sufficient asserting of yours in a case where my obedience to his commands was justified, as before, in so extraordinary a manner by a general warrant from you, especially, too, when I reflect upon what I have seen of an allowance granted, without hesitation, by your Lordships, to a commission given even by a private commander without any authority for it, either from his Majesty or you; yet cannot I but take leave to add it as my present opinion as well as past practice, that in the case of two concurrent authorities for the same thing, one from the King and the other from your Lordships, the compliment had been as excessive towards you to have made an equal recital of both, as it had been defective towards the King, in my quoting but one, not to have given the preference to his. And yet, such has been my thoughtfulness in this very particular, as, in every other, to avoid all appearances of neglect towards your Lordships that upon enquiry you will in every later occasion of this kind, after the first three or four, find me changing my style into the general words of the power to me given, without any express specification of either. And for what you are pleased to suggest of your diving into other circumstances best to be forgot, and which might have been and may still be so, if I think fit, I beg you to believe that I shall never think that fit towards me, that must be thought the contrary towards the King and therefore with the same openness you find me exercising towards you, I entreat you to repay me, who will never be less willing to acknowledge an error, than studious to commit none, as I have through my whole conduct of the service now in debate been, and that with so much strictness, as to ask no other measure for your judging of my performances therein, with regard both to my duty towards his Majesty, and observances towards you, than your comparing them with the most justifiable of any, who have preceded me in the like command.

For the copy of my patent demanded by your letter of the 15th instant, your Lordships being no strangers to the privacy wherewith every part of his Majesty's resolutions and proceedings in this expedition was managed, I doubt not your well accepting of this for answer. That as I hold not myself at liberty to comply with your Lordships' desires herein, without his command, so with it, I shall at all times be most ready to deliver the same to you.

Give me leave to close with observing to your Lordships, that after having executed, I hope, all the commands of his Majesty and you had directed to me, whilst in the fleet, according to the notice thereof already given you by my letter from the Downs, and being then commanded to repair to his Majesty's presence for his further commands, and that your Lordships were pleased to send a yacht to bring me from the fleet, I think it my duty to acquaint your Lordships, that I have now by his Majesty's warrant of the 17th instant received his royal and gracious revocation of his commission."

ENTRY ACCOUNT, and LETTER BOOK kept at TANGIER.

1683, October 1. The names of all the Commissioners and Staff Officers belonging to the regiments now in pay at Tangier, and also entries of Musters of those regiments.

1683, October 5. Minutes of Council of War held at Tangier.

1683, September 26 to December 8, following. Entry book of Letters and Petitions, with reports thereon relating to affairs at Tangier.

1683, September 22 to December 21 following. Entries of the results of various Courts Martial held by order of Lord Dartmouth at Tangier.

1683–4, January 16. "An account of the Utensils, Ornaments, Vestments, &c., belonging to the church of St. Charles the Martyr in Tangier :—

Two silver flagons.
Two large silver patens.
One small silver paten.
One silver chalice.
Two surplices.
One linen communion-table cloth.
One velvet covering } for the Governor's pew.
Eight velvet cushions } for the Governor's pew.
One fringed hearse-cloth.
One plain hearse-cloth.
One serge hearse-cloth.
One Master of Art's hood.
Three Common Prayer books, folio.
Two great Bibles.
One rich crimson velvet carpet for the communion table, with the cloth and cushion of the same for the pulpit.
One small turkey carpet.
One old purple communion-table cloth.
One cloth cushion for the pulpit.
A table of the Commandments.
The King's Arms.
The picture of St. James.
The marble with the Arabic inscription.
A piece of crimson velvet.
Eight small pieces of the same, designed for cushions. Certified by me—T. Hughes."

Following this is the account of the money due to the church and poor of Tangier.

1683–4, January 16. Catalogue of the books in the Library of Tangier, "Paradise Regained," and "Paradise Lost," are both marked as "lost." Amongst the books are "Charles Stuart and Oliver Cromwell united," London, 1655; "An English Bible," London, 1594; "Sir William Davenent's Works," London, 1673; "Dr. Fuller's Worthies of England," London, 1672; "The Mystery of Jesuitism," "The Works of King Charles the First," London, 1660; numerous classics, and a large number of religious works in Latin. The library also contained "Two globes" and "some maps and pictures."

Orders to be observed during the government of Colonel Percy Kirke.

1683, July 17 to October 18, following "A journal of the proceedings of the French before Algiers," by Robert Cole.

1683, November 20. "Debts entered by Edward Roth in William Hewer Treasurer's, Office, Tangier."

1683, October 19 to — 1684, July 20. A volume containing the entry of letters from Lord Dartmouth at Tangier to "the Alcayde of Allcazar," with some answers thereto, and some letters of Colonel Kirke. The volume also contains a copy of Colonel Kirke's report, dated at Tangier, September 16, 1683, to Lord Dartmouth, setting out his dealings with the Alcayde, printed in full in the previous report on Lord Dartmouth's papers pp. 90–92. Following this is an entry of the Articles of Truce and Commerce for six months, agreed between Colonel Edward Sackville, commander-in-chief of the city and garrison at Tangier, and the Alcayde, dated January 3, 1680–1; and also of the "Articles of peace, friendship, and commerce," agreed between Charles II. and the Sultan of Morocco, dated March 29, 1681, and March 23, 1681-2. This is followed by:—

1683–1685. A journal of Lord Dartmouth's intercourse with the Moors, from the time of his arrival at Tangier to the time of his leaving:—

1683, September 27. Present sent to the Alcayde—in return for divers civilities shewn—of cloth, lances, cambric, 12 barrels of fine powder and "three dozen bottles of cyder."

1683, September 28. (See Rep. 11, App. 5, p. 94.) Seamen ordered ashore from ships in the roads, Lord Dartmouth "clothing a good part of them in the red-coats we brought over with us for the Scotch and Trelawny's Regiments. . . . About eleven o'clock, his Excellency drew out, in order, upwards of 4,000 men, besides strong guards and the burghers left in the town. His Excellency kept Pole Fort on his right hand, and the whole body stood under cover of that; Browne George, the Irish Battery, and the Seamens' lodgments, where seven small pieces were planted towards the sandhills, and a battalion of Trelawny's regiment, and the guns, were posted with them. The left of the garrison reaching to Fountain Fort, and then the seamen, to upwards of a thousand, were drawn from thence all along the sands by the seaside, and the guard-boats, and the rest of the boats of the fleet, commanded by Captain George Aylmer, flanked beyond the seamen, close in with the shore. At the utmost extent of the seamen, across the sand, his Excellency stood, attended by several gentlemen, the volunteers of the fleet, commanded by my Lord Berkeley, and most of the horse, where the Alcayde met him, drawn up very orderly and to the best advantage of ground, according to their way of discipline. They made as much show as they could, though their Foot was not judged to be about 2,500, and about 500 horse. After many compliments from the Alcayde, and civilities passed on both sides, at his Excellency's desire, Colonel Kirke, and the Alcayde, shook hands; which done, the Alcayde, and his horse, exercised, a full hour and a half, before his Excellency." After this, the Alcayde and Lord Dartmouth took leave of each other, "the Alcayde ordering all his small shot to be fired, which his Excellency commanded to be answered by ours, and all the artillery of the Town and Castle and from the ships: which ceremony being over, the Alcayde drew off his people, and his Excellency commanded our forces to march into the town again, but by that time, the Alcayde drew off, and sent Almocadem Abdala, with a party of horse, upon the sandhills. Colonel Kirke's two battalions were marched as far as the Spurr at Peterborough Tower, and the whole body being in motion, begirt the whole town round with soldiers, towards them, that we seemed more than we really were. The small frigates were, all the time of our drawing out, in motion as near the shore as they could."

1683–4, January 11. The Alcayde complains to Mr. Cuthbert that our people "wrought in the fields, contrary to the treaty: the Alcayde riding about the lines" said this going on near Pole Fort, and elsewhere. It was explained to the Alcayde "that what our people were doing in the fields was in order to prevent the damage his men might receive at our quitting this place, by reason of several mines which were formerly made by Sir Palmes Fairboure." The Alcayde said he could not "stand still" and see the Christians possibly laying into the ground for new fortifications, and collected an attacking force at Pye Corner. Lord Dartmouth remonstrated and the Alcayde promised the offence should not be repeated.

1683–4, January 15. Part of the fleet being come together in the road, and the weather being more moderate, and the Mole and harbour quite destroyed, Lord Dartmouth, with the advice of a council of war held on the 13th, resolved on demolishing and quitting our posts. Taking in all the "pallisadoes and stores" he began at Pole Fort, the situation of the place being such that it was not judged convenient to part with it before "we were in good readiness to quit the town." The whole garrison was drawn out with a battalion of seamen. The small boats from the fleet were in continual motion from "Fountain Fort" to "Tangier River," and the small frigates, under sail, standing towards the shore. The colours of the regiments, that were not carried out, "were posted on such eminent places on the walls, as were thought most convenient." All the artificers with the burghers and some seamen, were employed in taking in the pallisadoes and other stores, and, in the interim, the mines "were preparing to be blown." About 2 o'clock, "orders were given for marching in the several battalions . . . the horse bringing up the rear of the field: all the passes, where there was any probability of the Moors' horse approaching us, being strewed with crows feet. When the men were all in safety, the mines were fired." Lord Darimouth sent to warn the Alcayde of the danger which would attend any of his people remaining near the lines. "The ground being as aforesaid covered with crows' feet, after the forces returned into the town, our guards perceiving some Moors coming to pick them up, fired upon them" and Lord Dartmouth desired the Alcayde to warn his people not to come within "our lines . . . for, if they did, it should be upon their peril."

1683–4, January 29. Several guns and horses taken on board ship.

1683–4, January 31. General preparations made for the retreat.

1683–4, February 1. Description of the withdrawal before Peterborough Tower.

1683–4, February 3. "The three companies of Grenadiers marched out of the Salley Port to Seamens' Battery, at the head of the King's battalion. . . . . . . All the town guards, besides those at Catherine and the Spurr, marched out at the Sallee Port, consisting of Colonel Trelawny's regiment; then manned the line of the Old Spur at Seamens' Battery. Before the drawbridge, Colonel Kirke's, having the guard of the Catherine and Mole, those of the castle were drawn up at that regiment's parade nigh Peterborough Tower, the Mole guards being secured under the arch at Whitby Gate, and all the small vessels commanded off, lest damage should happen; all the men being thus secured, the mines of that part of York Castle, with the square tower next to the Mole were blown up. . . . . At this time was also fired one mine in Stainer's Battery and another in the Governor's bastion, which was left standing to secure conversation (sic) betwixt the town and the castle. . . . . Cambridge fort was blown up and destroyed: and in the evening, Colonel Kirke's regiment took the guard of the castle, and Colonel Trelawny's those of the town. When the aforesaid mines were so happily blown up, a form of prayer, prepared by Dr. Ken, relating to the present conjuncture, was read at the Town House—the church being no longer fit to be made use of—where his Excellency, attended by the principal officers of the Garrison, returned God thanks for his infinite mercies to us hitherto."

1683-4, February 4 and 5. Weather very bad, but the garrison forces, etc., "were employed in pulling down all the remaining quarters, guard-houses, churches, &c., and in shipping the remaining sick and stores." The remains of the buildings were thrown into the common sewer. None but serviceable men were now left on shore, and there supplied with ammunition and victuals for two days, "so that all things being in a readiness for the blowing up and demolishing the town and castle, [on] the 5th, in the evening, orders were given that the guards should be at their arms by break of day. About 9 in the morning the garrison was commanded to draw to the port. The first mines to be blown were those at Stainer's Battery, and from the Water-gate to the Devil's Tower. The other mines were successfully fired, neither the garrison nor the fleet sustaining any injury. The mine from the Devil's tower up to the Bowling Bear, were next ordered to be "blown," After this, the mine of Peterborough was sprung with the same good success, the tower falling flat, on which many of the Moors appeared, giving a great shout. After firing the mines at Lawson's Battery, and elsewhere, the signal was given "for the small embarkations to stand in, for the putting our men on board." Colonel Trelawny's men advanced in good order to the galley and were put into the boats, company by company, the same order was followed by Colonel Kirke's and the other regiments. But it was noticed that as our men left, greater numbers of Moors appeared on the sandhills, and drew near the town and castle; three companies of "Grenadiers," were therefore to be drawn up in "grand parade." Sir William Booth was ordered to inspect the ships and see they were not crowded. About midnight "the wooden fort and the galley were set on fire, and more of the remainder of the men sent to the ships. The unfired mines in York Castle were then fired, those that did it being received into boats to go to the ships. "The last mine under Whitby Fort was fired by his Excellency himself, and this, with the rest of the town and forts, utterly destroyed." The small boats rowed off to the fleet early in the morning, and Lord Dartmouth saw all the men put on board, and then went in his barge towards the shore "to look upon the mines." The Moors, 3,000 horse and foot, on seeing Lord Dartmouth, put up a flag of truce by the sea-side. He sent to them to warn them from coming within the ruins, advising them for their own safety to withdraw at once; "but the Moors, with their usual stubbornness, did not mind it, which they heartily repented a little after, for whilst they were swarming among the ruins," an unfired mine blew up and killed above 40 of them. "In this whole transaction there was only one gunner slightly wounded, one Spaniard and one Englishman killed, and three other stragglers hurt by their own negligence. Many complimentary expressions were conveyed to Lord Dartmouth by the Alcayde on his Excellency's leaving."

1682, November 16. A report by Christopher Musgrave on the condition of the City and Castle of York, especially as to defences, with large detailed plans of the Kings Manor House, the Castle, and the City of York. A large folio volume.

1683. Reports by Lord Dartmouth, and others, on the condition of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and Holy Island, especially as to defences, with four large detailed plans. A large folio volume.

1683 circa. A General Survey of the Post Office by Thomas Gardiner. A large folio volume.

1684. A report by Christopher Musgrave on the condition of the fortifications of the City of Chester, with a large plan of the city and surrounding country. A large folio volume.

1684[–5], January 2. A report by Christopher Musgrave on the condition of the City and Castle of Shrewsbury, especially as to fortifications.

1684[–5], February 10. A report by Christopher Musgrave on the condition of the citadel and town of Carlisle, especially as to the defences, with a sketch, and large detailed plan of the city and land surrounding. A large folio volume.

1685, February 6. Duties to be performed by the Guards at the Tower. A folio volume.

Temp. James II.—Volume containing the King's "Instructions for the Government of Our Office of the Ordnance in Ireland, committed to the care and charge of the Master of Our Ordnance, the Lieutenant of Our Ordnance, the Surveyor of Our Ordnance, the Clark of Our Ordnance, and the Keeper of Our Stores." This is followed by "An Establishment of the Annual Payments and Allowances to be made to the Officers of Our Ordinance"—they amount to 2,312*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*

JOURNAL of Captain GRENVILLE COLLINS.

1688, June 17. Commission to him to the command of the Yacht Merlin, with instructions as to ordering the scout boats, &c., at Portsmouth.

July 21. Received news of the death of that "worthy and ingenious seaman," Sir John Narborough, one of the Commissioners of His Majesty's Navy, who died in the West Indies.

September 12. Received a letter from "Mr. Pepys, that if I pleased I might be removed into the Spragge, Capt. Montgomery being removed to command the Nonsuch." I wrote to the Secretary, that I was willing to serve the King in any capacity.

September 17. Went on board the Young Spragge and was ordered to carry Capt. Montgomery to the Downs, to the command of the Nonsuch.

September 19. At ten in the morning anchored in the Downs, where we found 20 sail of men of war and fireships, commanded by Sir Roger Strickland.

September 20. Received a commission of command for the Young Spragge, with an order to carry her back to Portsmouth, September 23. In the evening received a letter from "Mr. Secretary Pepys."

September 24. Took post at Deal, and at night got to Gravesend.

September 25. At three o'clock in the morning took a pair of oars to go up to London, where I waited on Mr. Secretary Pepys, and there met my Lord Dartmouth, whom his Majesty has made Lord Admiral of his Fleet for this present expedition, who did me the honour to appoint me his master in the Resolution, and immediately, I went with his Lordship into his barge, and went down aboard his yacht. At night his Lordship went ashore at Erith, where his coach met him to carry him to Chatham to dispatch his own and some other ships, which are ordered out. I went for Gravesend with Lieutenant Wright in order to take coach there for Chatham; but at Gravesend I was taken with a lameness in all my limbs and was not able to move myself, so was put to bed at the "Black Boy."

September 27. In the morning, Lord Dartmouth came to Gravesend from Chatham to go to London. He gave me the honour of a most kind visit, giving the doctor great charge of me, and, that I might not want for anything, presented the doctor with a fee, and gave me ten pounds to bear the charge of my sickness.

September 29. In the evening, my Lord came down in his yacht from London, and sent his boat ashore for me.

October 2. In the evening, his Lordship came down in his yacht from London and sent his boat ashore for me at Gravesend, where I went aboard, and at 12 at night anchored at the Buoy of the Nore, close by the Resolution.

September 3. Went with my Lord aboard the Resolution, and there took possession and charge of Master. Here I found my worthy good friend, Captain William Davies, Captain of the Resolution under my Lord Dartmouth; the fleet being 16 sail of fighting ships and six fire ships.

October 4. My Lord called a council-of-war, and ordered, that in case the Dutch should make any attempt to land their land forces (which are daily expected with a great fleet of ships) either at Harwich or up the Rivers Thames and Medway, to remove the buoys of the Gun-fleet, Middle Ground, &c., and the lights of Harwich to be so altered, that they may lead them on the Ridge-sand, and that smacks lie by the buoys ready to take them up, upon the approach of the enemy. Ordered out some frigates and smacks to cruise for the discovery of the Dutch fleet.

October 7. Sir John Berry, Rear Admiral, in the Elizabeth, came out of the Swale, and anchored at the Nore, hoping to take up his guns and provisions.

October 10. My Lord called a council-of-war, to know in what condition every ship was in, what stores and provisions aboard, and what was wanting. Every ship ordered to be put in a fighting posture.

October 14. My Lord called a council-of-war and determined to sail, hearing the Dutch were at sea, and resolved to come for the coast of England the first opportunity, being about 50 sail of men-of-war and fireships, and 250 sail of flyboats and small vessels to transport their army. It is not known for what part of England they will land, as yet, but it is believed for Harwich, or thereabouts. Sir John Berry, Rear-Admiral, went aboard the Defiance, Captain Ashby, his own ship not being ready.

October 15. Sailed down to the Blacktail and there anchored, and resolved to sail no further, being thought not safe, the tides falling and the winds contrary. One of our scout smacks came from the coast of Holland with news that the westerly winds had forced many of their men-of-war into Goree.

October 17. My Lord held a council of flag officers, and consulted with the flag masters and pilots about going down the Swin. It was their opinion not to adventure down without a fair wind, it being very dangerous to turn down a fleet, many of which were great ships. It was then resolved to ride with the fleet between the buoy of the Oaze Edge and the buoy of the Nore, putting our fleet with fireships in order to receive the enemy, in case they should come up the Swin.

October 20. We put some provisions and seamen's chests into one of our tenders, to make room in the hold for platforms for the wounded men.

October 24. At eight in the morning got under sail; at noon anchored at the buoy of the Gunfleet, the Nazeland bearing N.N.W. Here we found the Dover and Ruby, which makes up our fleet to be 31 fighting ships and 14 fireships.

[Here are entered very careful drawings of ships, showing signal flags with explanations of these flags and table of signals.]

October 25. Sent the Cleveland yacht into Harwich with letters.

October 26. Captain Allin, in the Quaker ketch, came into the fleet, having been cruising on the coast of Holland, where he found 20 sail of men-of-war and fireships at anchor, without Goree, one of which let slip and gave him chase, but could not get up with him. In the afternoon called a council-of-war, which concluded to ride here some time, and then to go for the Downs.

October 28. Lord Dartmouth received a packet from the King, giving an account that the Dutch were at sea with 400 sail, out of which there were 50 sail of fighting ships, and the rest were fly-boats, dogger scouts, and other vessels, to transport the army, being about 18,000 foot and horse, and arms for 12,000 more. Held a council of war.

October 29. Counted the whole fleet, being 32 sail of fighting ships and 13 fire-ships.

October 30. At one o'clock set sail with the whole fleet; at six at night anchored between the Sledway and the Longsand Head, the Naze bearing W. and the Church of Bawdsey (?) N.W. ½ N. Sent the Katherine yacht to cruise to the eastward, the Kitchen yacht to the southward, and the Saudades to the northward.

November 2. In the morning we wanted several of our tenders, which we judged were gone for Harwich. The Nonsuch and some others broke their cables, and the Dartmouth lost her longboat, much wind.

November 3. At daylight we espied several ships to windward, close-hauled under their low sails, but immediately heaved out their topsails. Our windward ships let slip and stood after them to the southward. We discovered 13 sail of them. We had weighed with the whole fleet after them, but the ebb tide being almost spent, we could not weather the Longsand Head and the Kentish Knock. In the evening came into the fleet an English ship, which came last Wednesday from Hamburg, bound for London, but could not give us any account of the Dutch fleet.

November 4. At four in the morning, we made the signal for weighing anchor, and at break of day got under sail. At 8 o'clock, the Foresight, Captain Stanley, which was one of the ships that let slip yesterday, came into the fleet, and told us that the Dutch fleet were gone to westward, and sailed by Dover yesterday, and that he had taken one of their fly-boats which had lost her rudder on the Gabbard Sand in which were 200 soldiers, the officers English, and many of their men. We made all haste possible after them. At eight at night we got up with the South Sand Head, staved and pulled down all cabins, cleared our ship and made all ready for fight. At 12 at night, the light of Dungeness bore N.

November 5. At 8 in the morning, got up with Beachy. Called a council of war. At noon, Beachy three leagues off. Start away an express to the King. The Montague and Dartmouth fell foul of each other there being very little wind.

November 6. Steered away for the Isle of Wight to look for the Dutch fleet.

November 7. At eight o'clock a storm at S.W. the Assurance bore away and made a signal of distress. The storm increasing with rain, we bore away for the Downs having sprung our foremast. At 11 o'clock Beachy N., and at two the Ness, N.N.W. and at 5 at night, anchored in the Downs. Here we heard that the Dutch Fleet had landed the Prince of Orange and his army in Torbay.

November 9. At eight at night, the Centurion Sir Francis Wheeler, Commander, ran ashore under the South Foreland. Several ships sent their boats to his relief, but could not get her off.

November 10. In the morning at high water the Centurion got off, and was ordered up the river to be docked.

November 12. In the afternoon, the St. Alban, coming from the North Foreland, ran on the North Sand Head, gave two or three knocks and backed off again and anchored, and then slipped both cables, and came safe into the Downs; the Woolwich and Newcastle came with her.

November 13. Called a council of flag officers. Captain Mundin came into the fleet, and left us at the Gunfleet.

November 14. A court-martial for the trial of John Oliver, Master of the Centurion for running the said ship ashore. He was turned off and fined a month's imprisonment. The Pilot of the St. Alban was tried for running the said ship ashore, for which he was rendered incapable of piloting any of the King's ships.

November 16. At three o'clock got under sail with the whole fleet, being bound for Torbay to fight the Dutch fleet. At five at night got up with Dover, and at eight at night, got up with the light of Dungeness. Steered away all night with a small sail, because we would not slip by the Isle of Wight, for fear the Dutch might be there.

November 17. In the morning the Isle of Wight bore W.N.W. about seven leagues. At ten o'clock we saw that there were no ships in St. Helens, nor the Spithead. Sent the Cleveland yacht into Portsmouth with a packet. My Lord Berkeley, in the Montague, went into Portsmouth, his ship-head being disabled. The Constant Warwick went in, likewise, for repairs. At noon, made sail with a full resolution to fall in with the Dutch in Torbay, in the morning, early.

November 18. By reason of the flood tide made a more southerly course than was expected, for Alderney bore E.S.E. about seven leagues off. At noon we could see but 24 sail of our fleet, the Rear-Admiral being wanting amongst the number. At 4 o'clock in the evening, the highland of St. Albans bore N.N.W. about five or six leagues off. At one o'clock in the night our mainsail and mizen split, and most part of them blew away in a violent gust. Some ships gave signals of being in danger.

November 19. At 9 o'clock it cleared up; we saw the Start bearing N.N.E. about six leagues off, at which we saw but 22 sail of our fleet. At noon we stood in fair for the Berry, and from our topmast heads, saw the Dutch fleet at anchor in Torbay, but could not discern how many, we being about four leagues off, and they lying under the land. My Lord ordered the Jersey to stand into Torbay, and discover the Dutch fleet. We made small sail, steering away for the Wight. At night, a violent storm; some ships made signals of danger.

November 20. In the morning, the storm continuing, we bore away, and stood in for the land. At 12 o'clock, noon, anchored in St. Helens Road. Here we had news of the Antelope and the Hedleburghs (?), hospital ships being foul of each other; the latter sunk, 13 of her men saved. Sir William Booth, in the Pendennis, lost his bowsprit and foremast. The Pearl, likewise, lost her foremast, and several other ships received damage.

November 22. Sailed for the Spithead, and there anchored.

November 24. My Lord Dartmouth, accompanied by the Vice and Rear-Admirals, and most of the Captains of the fleet, went ashore to Portsmouth, to wait on the young Prince of Wales, and ordered that every ship in the fleet, should fire guns to salute the Prince; the Admiral beginning with 21 guns, and the rest following.

November 25. There came into the fleet, a small sloop from Jamaica, bringing news of the death of the Duke of Albemarle, who died there the 6th of October last.

November 28. Received news from the Saudades that she was safe in the Downs with the Bonaventure, and the Newcastle, at Plymouth, and the Speedwell fireship, put into Poole, having lost her mainmast; so that now we have heard of the safety of all our fleet, having not lost any ship in the late storms, but the hospital ship.

December 1. My Lord, and the rest of the command in the fleet, sent an address to the King.

December 2. News that the Fan-Fan sloop, commanded by Henry Turvill, fell into the Dutch fleet, and is detained by them.

December 4. Sir William Jennings went into the harbour, in the Rupert, being not fit for the sea, so was ordered into the Warspite; my Lord Berkeley into the Edgar, and Captain Skelton into the Dunkirk, their ships being defective for present service.

December 6. The Prince of Wales went away from Portsmouth, privately, in the night, it is supposed, for London.

December 9. My Lord Berkeley came down from London, having delivered the address to the King.

December 12. The Queen and Prince of Wales went away from Whitehall, very privately. It is said they are gone for France. Some report that the King is privately gone away, likewise.

December 13. A council-of-war held. Sir Roger Strickland, Vice-Admiral, laid down his Commission. The same was done by the rest of the Roman Catholics in the fleet. Sir John Berry, Rear-Admiral, made Vice-Admiral, and my Lord Berkeley made Rear-Admiral.

December 14. Received advice that the King and Sir Edward Hales were stopped at Faversham, in Kent, being in disguise, and endeavouring to get away in a small smack.

December 19. A council of war. My Lord ordered all things ready for sailing, being bound for Buoy of the Nore. Sir John Berry, Vice-Admiral ordered to remain here with 13 men-of-war and two fireships The Rear-Admiral and the rest of the fleet to sail with the Admiral.

December 26. Reported that the King was gone for France.

December 30. At 11 o'clock we sailed, leaving Sir John Berry at the Spithead; the rest of the fleet sailed with us, and at 12 at night we got up with Beachy.

December 31. At five at night, anchored four miles westward of Dover. At two o'clock, set sail again with the flood tide.

1688[-9], January 1. Anchored in 16 fathoms of water, Dover bearing N. about three miles off. A great fog all the forenoon, with frost and snow. At two o'clock in the afternoon, we set sail and plied for the Downs, where we anchored at seven at night.

January 2. Weighed anchor, and sailed a little further to the southward. Anchored in the Admiral's berth. At 2 o'clock at night Captain Hoskins came off from the shore, with a packet for my Lord, and brought word that the Sedgemore frigate was ashore under the Foreland.

January 7. My Lord Berkeley, Rear-Admiral, sailed, being bound for Portsmouth, with some men-of-war and fireships.

January 8. At half past nine we sailed, and went out to the Gulf Stream. At 11 o'clock, we steered away N.E. till one o'clock.

January 11. Anchored at the Buoy of the Nore.

ENTRY BOOK OF CORRESPONDENCE OF LORD DARTMOUTH from the FLEET, from 2 October, 1688 to 5 March, 1689.

1688, October 2. Lord Dartmouth to Mr. Secretary Pepys.—Acquainting him of his arrival at the Nore and setting out the condition of the fleet as to men, provisions, &c.

September 21 to October 1. Accounts by the masters of the smacks the Three Brothers and the Hopewell, ordered to proceed to Maas in Holland to ascertain the force and motions of the Dutch fleet. They found that the Dutch fleet consisted of 25 sail.

October 4 On board the Resolution. Lord Dartmouth to Mr. Pepys.—As to provisions for the fleet, and the proposed removal of the most considerable buoys at the mouth of the River, and the light at Harwich.

October 11. Same to same.—Hopes to be at sea before the enemy. Not an ounce of provisions come to the fleet.

October 22. The same to the Bishop of London.—"It is no little scandal to our religion, nor less regret to myself, that I am necessitated to take notice to your Lordship what a scarcity I find of chaplains in his Majesty's fleet now under my command; for redress whereof that the fleet might have the blessing of your Lordship's effectual recommendation in this, so essential and pious a work, I had sooner applied myself to you, had not my Lords, the Bishops of Ely, and Bath and Wells, promised, at my coming away (in such haste that I could not personally wait on you) to put your Lordship in mind thereof." There are only eight in the fleet which consists of about 38 men of war and 12 fire ships.

October 22. On board the Resolution at the Oaze Edge. The same to Secretary Pepys.—"If the Dutch were out since the wind changed they must needs have passed their time very ill; if not, these winds keep them fast in. So that I reasonably hope to be out before them, not foreseeing anything to hinder me when the wind shall favour." You were misinformed as to the number of men that ran away from Sir William Booth in the Pendennis.

October 24. On board the Resolution at the Gunfleet. Same to Same.—Sailed from the Nore about eight in the morning and anchored at the Gunfleet about noon. Has ordered a ship from each division to cruise to the eastward in the daytime to look out for the enemy. The buoy of the Gunfleet is removed.

October 28. On board the Resolution at the Gunfleet. Same to Same.—"It is very manifest from the extract of [the] Marquis D'Abbevill's letters of the 30th of October and 2nd of November (new style) to the King, and the 31st of October to my Lord Sunderland, that the Dutch put to sea on Friday the 19th instant, our style, with a very considerable fleet, on which was embarked the Prince of Orange and his great land forces, and preparations, and that, the next day, they met with such contrary winds and ruffling weather, as made them glad to retire to their own ports again; and no doubt, if their baggage and other ships and vessels, which he sums up to about 500, were out too, as he says, they must have received very considerable damage, such as, I believe, would not have given them leave to come out again by this time, though the winds had been fair to invite them to it; but on the contrary, they have been such as, you may perceive by the daily account thereof in this letter since my last of the 24th, would not by any means let them stir: for with regard to the season of the year, their designs to me appear very desperate and unadvised.

I cannot, from any of [the] Marquis D'Abbevill's advices, make any judgment as to what part of our Isle they will make their descent as believing — notwithstanding the suggested notions of the pilots mentioning, in their drink, Sole Bay and some of Mr. Herbert's ships talking of Essex—the Prince would not trust the knowledge of a secret of that importance to his designs, to above two or three of his private Council, and therefore I believe myself very well posted here.

I have deliberated very thoughtfully with myself, from his Majesty's reasonable conclusion of the enemy's being still on their own coast, in consequence whereof, you tell me his Majesty seemed to think it might not be unuseful that I went with the fleet towards their Coast, and am of opinion that the keeping of this fleet together and entire, is so essential to his Majesty's service, that, considering the season of the year, as the winds stand now, it is not advisable to venture over. The experience we have of the mischief to them, is reasonable advertisement to us, to avoid, as much as we can, the same evil; for should we go over, and meet with such weather as should separate or damage us, they would, all the while, be safe in their own ports, and ready to attack us, probably disabled, on the first fair invitation out. I have therefore determined to send over to that coast, as scouts, three of our good sailing frigates, to make the best discovery of their motion they can, and accordingly to give me notice thereof by one at a time as they can get intelligence.

The frigates I have appointed for it, under the command of Captain Hopson, are the Bonaventure, Swallow, and Foresight from which I hope for such intelligence as will enable me to do the best I can in attending and attacking the enemy, with regard to the season, and utmost devotion to his Majesty's service, but because in a matter of that weight to the Crown, as the preservation and conduct of this fleet is, wherein I find his Majesty wholly reposes and relies on me, I would not depend upon my own single judgment. I have this day had a consult with the Flags, and after that, a general Council-of-War of all the commanders of the fleet, before whom I laid every material circumstance and intelligence, whereon it was unanimously advised, Sir William Jennings excepted, and in terms I think not very proper, at a more seasonable time of taking notice of it, that we should not, as the winds are, go over to that coast, but send scouts, as I have already observed to you, and if the wind comes up easterly or southerly, with fine weather, I will to sea, and look out for them, [in] which case, considering the time must be spent in the moving of such a body as their sea fleet, and the ships that carry their land forces must make, I cannot miss of them in any probable conjecture, and I doubt not by the help of God to give my master a good account of ourselves and them. I believe we are pretty well manned, considering circumstances, and the little time [that] has been employed therein, and I hope all the officers will do their duty honestly with regard to his Majestys service, which by all the endeavours that I am capable of, I shall keep them to."

Yours of the 27th, acquainting me with the Duke of Grafton's being intended to go on this expedition as a volunteer on board Capt. Hastings' ship ; and I doubt not, he will acquaint himself of this duty, but whether it will not be a probable impediment to the services "he hopes also to be ready for shore," I will not pretend to judge of.

October 30. Resolution under sail from Gunfleet. Same to the Same. —Last night the wind continuing between N. and N.N.E., will no doubt bring out the Dutch fleet to sea. The wind being at S.S.E., I am just now under sail with all the fleet to go to look for them "Pray God grant good success to all his Majesty's arms, as well by sea as land, to which I shall contribute to my utmost power and ability.

November 5. The Resolution under sail off Beachy Head. Same to Same.—I was on the 31st at anchor with the fleet off Longsand's Head, where I rode till yesterday morning, with no little vexation, being wind bound, so that I could not get out to sea to meet the Dutch fleet "before they got hold on our coast." On Saturday morning we saw 13 sail about 3 leagues to windward of us and three of our frigates slipped to give them chase. The Foresight took a fly-boat that had lost her rudder, by having struck on the sands, wherein were four companies of soldiers (making about 200 men) under the command of Major Colingsby who is aboard me, a prisoner. "Besides these cruisers, I ordered the Katherine yacht, to the eastward, the Kitchen, yacht, to the southward, and the Saudades, to the northward. Yesterday, about 9 in the morning, the Katherine, yacht, returned, giving me an account of a considerable fleet being passed to the westward on Saturday, which was confirmed to me by Major Colingsby, brought me by the Foresight yesterday about two [in the] afternoon, from whom I gathered that they were designed to land within the Isle of Wight on the main side, so that I cannot but conclude they have put on shore their land forces, by this time, in Stokes Bay, and Hampton River, &c. the thoughts whereof is so great a vexation to me that I am much troubled how to proceed, and having this day had a Consult of the Flags, and a general council of war wherein every man's single opinion was asked apart, they unanimously declared, that considering the enemy was landed, and their fleet much superior to ours it was not advisable to attack, or give them battle nor indeed to approach their view with the whole fleet so as to tempt them to offer it us, who from their much greater strength than ours, can hope for nothing less than a dishonourable retreat at best, wherefore, upon a mature consideration of all the ill consequences may attend his Majesty in any unlucky accident or miscarriage to this fleet I have determined to send the Centurion, Portsmouth, and Ruby to make the best discovery they can of them and I resolve to ply off and on with an easy sail till the scouts I have sent, bring me an account of the enemy, and that the ships astern or rather left behind, come up to me, and I know his Majesty's further pleasure or get such intelligence as may make it reasonable for me to attack them, which under the circumstances [that] I am of wanting a very considerable part of the fleet as the enclosed list will further inform you and the enemy not (sic) numbering by many capital ships, I do not think now—since their land forces are probably ashore—advisable to do."

November 7. Aboard the Resolution in the Downs. Same to Same. —"All Monday night and Tuesday till four in the afternoon it was calm with fogs, so that I lay driving with the tide; but then it sprung up a small gale at S.E by E., and so to the S. and S.S.W. We stood away to the westward till eleven at night, Beachy bearing N.E. by E. distance about 9 leagues and then we tacked and stood to the south east, to get a better offing from the shore, using all my endeavours to back my scouts and raise the Isle of Wight by morning if possible, for which purpose I tacked again about three in the morning, and stood to the W.N.W. and N.W. till eight o'clock, and then came up a storm at S.W. The Assurance, frigate, made her signals of distress and bore away to the eastward, as did also the Mary, not being able to hold it longer. The paunch of my own foremast sprung, and the head of the mast wrung, so that the storm continuing with thick rainy weather, I thought it best to bear away for the Downs, not to strain the fleet too much, and at five this afternoon, having had a very great run, I came to anchor there, the storm continuing at S.W.

This being the place I ordered the fleet to rendezvous at, in case of separation, I hope we shall all meet here to make the most united strength we can, and for the adding what more I can thereto, I have ordered Lieutenant Wright ashore to buy, contract for, or impress six such vessels as he shall find fittest to be made fireships of, which for the quicker fitting of, I will order to be done here by the carpenters and gunners of the fleet, enclosing you herein a copy of the order I have given the said Lieutenant Wright for his Majesty's further knowledge of the care I have ordered to be taken therein.

I have ordered the Katherine, yacht, to the Gunfleet to hasten the Sampson, fireship, I left there, to me, and with this express, I also send orders to Captain Willford at Sheerness, to bring, or dispatch to me what fire-ships are there under his command in any condition to come to sea. I doubt not the continuance of your care and zeal, in hastening all the force you can to me, and I suppose the ships from the river can find no excuse to be longer from me. The enemy I have to deal with, I understand from all hands, are very strong, and with the first easterly winds I will be at sea again, taking all imaginable care in the meanwhile, that they do not attack me here disadvantageously. I am informed they have ordered a considerable force to come to them in [a] few days, and therefore, I believe, they design wintering with us, which will befit his Majesty's considerations, in making suitable preparations, that they may not be masters of our seas; for prevention whereof, I have, and shall do, everything to the utmost of my power.

November 9. Aboard the Resolution, in the Downs. Same to Same. —"Having by express, dispatched to the shore, while I was with the fleet, on the 9th instant, off Beachy, given his Majesty and you an account of my being prevented—to my very great trouble and regret—by adverse winds, in meeting the Dutch fleet, before they had landed their army, which from my concern for his Majesty's service and affairs, I account the greatest misfortune of my life, and what I could not in the least foresee, I will make no repetition on that afflicting subject, but proceed to the answering yours of the 1st and 3rd instant, which came to my hands this day; in the doing whereof, I am, in the first place, to acknowledge, and I do it heartily, your very kind and repeated desires and good wishes for my success in the conduct of this fleet, wherein, though I have been extremely disappointed in the services I hoped to have done my master before these invaders came ashore, it is some satisfaction to me, that his Majesty well approves, of all my proceedings which, as I have, I shall continue to push on for his utmost service; and though in the enemy's going by me without my being able to speak with them, I have the satisfaction within myself, of not having made one false step, or omitted anything that could be done; yet, I cannot but account myself very unfortunate therein.

I observe his Majesty has directed your consulting with the Navy Board, about the erecting yards at Harwich and Sheerness, and I hope the result will be, ordering it to be done. I perceive the vessels, I left to give notice of the buoys being altered and removed, have been forced, by foul weather, to leave their stations. I desire, therefore, you will cause the Trinity House Brethren to order vessels to lay them out again in their proper places; for now the apprehension of the use they might have been to the enemy is over.

The late storms, which obliged the fleet to come in here, have shaken and disordered many of the ships which I will take care to get put into a good condition again with all the dispatch imaginable; in order to which, I have this day given several orders to M^r Fendall, storekeeper at Deal. We have lost many of our boats, which we must endeavour to get recruited here. Several of the fire-ships have received damage, which I have ordered to be surveyed, and of them, I have directed the Speedwell into Dover to stop her leaks. The Katherine, yacht, has also received some damage, which I have writ to the shipwright at Sheerness, to repair, she being ordered thither for the carrying a major and nine other commission officers, taken with their companies in a Dutch fly boat and the private soldiers are most delivered ashore to Colonel Collyer. I understand to-day that the Dover and Foresight, frigates, that were wanting in return from cruising, came in here, and also the Speedwell and Sally Rose. . . . . There are also here the Unity and Charles and Henry, fireships. In our passage hither, the Pearl, Captain Cole, commander, [took] a small vessel, a pretended Brandenburger, who upon examination, I find was with, and I believe belongs to, the Prince of Orange's fleet, and I suppose was dispatched back with intelligence, as you may conclude by the inclosed letters taken from him, amongst which there is an English one, dated from Exeter on Monday last in the afternoon, and directed to the Lady Bulkeley, at the Hague, which pray let be kept together, for I have no copies of them. The Captain, I have in custody, and expect further discovery from his papers, which as yet he disowns, and conceals, about which you shall have a further relation in my next. In the meantime, I pray I may have his Majesty's directions what shall be done with this vessel, and the fly boat taken with the soldiers, and such other vessels as we may meet and bring in, and how their companies must be treated and disposed of, for between a war not declared and an invasion made, which I should think actual war, even with Holland itself, I am in doubt what to do in any such case as I have mentioned to you, or such other, as you think may occur from the service I am in. . . . . . . Since the writing this letter, the captain of the Brandenburgh has delivered up his papers and dispatches from the Prince of Orange and his army and fleet, all which I have caused to be sealed up in a bag, and directed to the King, to whom I desire they may be given as they come, without opening. These are very particular accounts and draughts as well of their fleet as army, which I have enclosed his Majesty in my own letter to him, which comes by M^r^ Hodder that he might have the readier and quicker account thereof."

November 10 On board the Resolution, in the Downs. Same to Same.—"Since mine of the 8th present, dispatched away, at one this morning, by express, I have received, by return of my former express, yours of the 7th and 8th instant with duplicate also of the 6th, sent to me by way of Portsmouth, from all which I gladly observe his Majesty's full and repeated approbation of my care and conduct of the fleet, which though hitherto I have not had further success with, than in keeping them well together in such a post as prevented the enemy making their descent and attempt on the rivers of Thames or Medway, to which I believe they were designed, yet I do not despair of doing his Majesty and the Kingdom very signal service with them in the future preservation of both, to which, as I have hitherto, I shall bend all my study and endeavours, and though I have not the good luck of popular applause therein, yet since his Majesty and those who are proper judges of my proceedings are well satisfied therewith, I will do my duty and not lay anything so anxiously to heart as to divert my thoughts from the main security to his Majesty in that (sic) of this fleet, which, though I shall take all possible care not to engage unreasonably, or to a probable disadvantage, yet you may assure his Majesty, I shall seek all opportunities of doing it, when it may be for his service, and push it home with [the] utmost zeal and affection thereto.

I have communicated to the Flags, your letters of the 6th, 7th, and 8th instant, and, among the rest of the affairs of the fleet, have consulted with them, on the two notes, you say you are commanded to lay before me, not by way of injunction to rule my thoughts, but to enlighten them, in the knowledge of his Majesty's injunctions, in securing, and not exposing, the fleet, under the present difficulties his affairs are reduced to in other respects; on which points of great importance, they desire time to consider, at least till further directions from his Majesty come to me, which I hope I shall not be long without; but in case I find it for his Majesty's service, that I leave this place before, if I go not into the Spithead with the fleet, I do think of sending in two fourth rate frigates into Portsmouth, but I know not how circumstances may occasion the altering my intentions thereabout; for I find many ships of the fleet much disordered with the bad weather we have met with, but I shall make the best I can of all misfortunes, choosing at present rather to apply the best remedies I can to them, than make complaints, though in truth, there is reason enough for it, and therefore pray lay before his Majesty, my desires of having ships fitted as well on the river, as Portsmouth, that we may be able, by change, to better the quality of the ships, if not add to their number; for several are not in such condition for service as they ought to have been."

November 11. Aboard the Resolution in the Downs. Same to Same. —"I have yours of the 9th instant, and thank you for your news, which gives me so probable hopes that the counties will be loyal, and the Prince of Orange will not have those numbers of people flock to him as the desperateness of his attempt gives great reason to believe he expected. Pray God, frustrate his designs and prosper his Majesty's arms.

I have this day consulted the flags, &c., again, about what place it was properest to post the fleet in, with regard to his Majesty's service in every respect, as well of their security, as otherwise, and some are for the Nore and others for the SpitLead, but the winds being now at N.N.E., and likely to continue so, the enemy cannot approach us here, and therefore I am in hopes, if possible, to receive his Majesty's commands for my direction and government in this, so considerate and important step to his service, for which many things may be urged in respect to both places, where I desire all preparations possible of ships and provisions may be made for us."

November 13. Aboard the Resolution in the Downs. Same to Same. —"Yesterday I received yours of the 10th, and two of the 11th instant, one dated at noon and the other, past 11 at night, by three several expresses which, with no little difficulty, got on board me between 12 at noon and 3 afternoon, from which times it blew so much wind I could not call the flags aboard to consult with them about the particulars therein treated of.

This morning, having a lull for a little time, for it continues blowing very hard by gusts, I made the signals for their coming aboard me; in consequence whereof, upon reading your letters, and the intelligence and list of the Dutch fleet accompanying them, we have resolved—if the weather will permit for to-day, the tide being spent, and such gusty and windy weather that we cannot unmoor the fleet, without running the hazard of falling foul of one another—to set sail to-morrow for St. Helens, in order to the getting what ships we can for reinforcement of the fleet, from Portsmouth, in exchange of such as are with us and are mentioned in the margin,* so defective, as not to be fit to keep sea this winter season. The flags observe that the force and number of our fleet is magnified above what it is in respect of the defective men-of-war and the want of several ships therein, videlicet:—those of the River not joined the fleet at the making thereof and some of the fire-ships, videlicet:— the Halfmoon, Charles, and Roebuck, believing also that the list of the Dutch ships, which you place against ours is not what it is now, any intelligence confirming that there have been alterations and additions to the ships therein since there making the original Dutch list, which was the state of their fleet the $\frac{16}{26}$ of October last.

This being the general result and observations in the aforesaid letters and papers, I come now to give you my particular answer thereto with the further necessary occurrences since my last. I am resolved, if the weather will give me leave to sail with the fleet to-morrow for St. Helens, for the reasons already mentioned to you; and after I have reinforced and supplied the fleet with what is necessary, that can be got from Portsmouth, I intend for Torbay to seek out the Dutch, and shall be very glad to find them in such condition as it may be reasonable to attack them, wherein, and all other my proceedings, I shall do my utmost for his Majesty's honour and service.

I have had the Captain of the Brandenburgher aboard me again, and have made the strictest examination I can for further papers of moment, but can find no more; but such as they are, of all sorts, I here send you; so that I shall now clear him. But I think it is not advisable that he sail hence till after the fleet is gone, to prevent his giving intelligence thereof, I shall also give orders that the flyboat that the four companies, with officers and soldiers were taken in, be restored to the master, and he have liberty to proceed as he pleases, which I take to be the meaning of his Majesty's commands in your letter of the 10th about them, though it bids me expect his Majesty's resolution in cases of the like nature more amply under his own hand.

---

* The Mary, Montague, Centurion, and Assurance.

Yesterday, the Newcastle, Woolwich, and St. Alban came to the fleet, the former so leaky . . . that she made 23 inches of water a glass, till she came in smooth water, about which, I cannot say less, than that it it hard, ships should be so long coming, and then only fit to go in again.

Since the writing this letter, the Halfmoon and Charles, fireships are come to the fleet, and I have also received yours of the 12th instant by Mr. Crosse, with an enclosed from the King, and his Majesty's order under the Sign Manual, as an Act of State, that now, since their descent with their army in the west, and the said fleet riding and hovering on our coast, I should attack them or any part of them, in any place where the fleet, or any of the ships under my command, shall happen to meet or find them, which command I shall diligently obey, and give the necessary orders thereabout to his Majesty's ships that are or shall come under my command, taking kindly from you the observation in the omission made in direction of the said order, and the care you promise me to take in procuring another from my Lord Middleton's office, directed to me, as his Majesty's commands."

November 15. On board the Resolution in the Downs. Same to Same.—"Having in mine of the 13th instant acknowledged the receipt of the King's letter and the resolutions taken as well before as on its receipt, I have need say nothing more thereon, than that I think myself so well satisfied in his Majesty's pleasure therein, and the Order of State accompanying it in yours of the 12th instant, that there is no room for further debate, whether I shall go with the fleet to the westward, or stay where we now are, unfortunately windbound; and upon a Consult, had yesterday with the Flags, &c., it was resolved to attack the Hollands fleet wherever we meet them; for which I purpose, with the wind at N.W. by N., for gaining sea room, to sail with the fleet to Dungeness. But considering the season of the year, and the darkness of the nights, and that we have good scouts abroad to give notice of the enemy's approach, upon which we will go to the Northsand's head for the better encounting them, it is thought more advisable, for the safety of the fleet, that we remain here till we have fair winds to proceed to the westward."

November 22. Aboard the Resolution at Spithead. Same to Same.—"After sailing from the Downs to the westward on the 16th instant, and encountering at sea, as I shall now proceed to give you a particular account of such variety of winds and storms, as frustrated all my hopes and intentions for his Majesty's service, the fleet being very much shaken and shattered, I returned with 20 or 21 sail of ships and anchored in St. Helens road the 20th instant, where with very much wind at west, I rode till this morning and then had a . . . . to turn into the Spithead.

On Friday the 16th, at 3 in the afternoon, with the wind at N.E., I got under sail with the whole fleet, and at 8 that night we were abreast of the light on Dungeness, the wind being at E.S.E. a fine gale, we steered away all night W.S.W. Saturday the 17th in the morning, the Isle of Wight bore N.N.W. distance about 7 leagues. At 10 in the morning, we lay by and sent the Cleveland, yacht, into Portsmouth with a letter to Sir Richard Beach, to prepare and get in readiness, what ships he could to strengthen the fleet and particularly to hasten out the York, and those ships I had ordered in there, as my last advised you, the Montagu being disabled, she went also at the same time for Portsmouth, with order to Sir Richard Beach to man the York completely from her company, if the said ship's repairs should require any long time. At noon of the same day, the body of the Isle of Wight bore W. by N., about 5 leagues off with a fresh gale at S.E. and we stood away for Tor Bay, making such sail as might bring us there early in the morning; but at 4, afternoon, the wind came out at S.S.E. and S. by E. very much wind, when we tacked and stood to the eastward to undlay (sic) the tide of ebb; but finding the winds to shrink, that we could lie no better than east, at 7 at night, we tacked, again and stood off S.W. with the tide of flood under our lee, to check us off the shore. At 12 at night, being much wind, we took in our foretop sail, and lay under a pair of courses till daylight.

On Sunday the 18th, in the morning, we found that the flood tide under our lee had caused us to make a S.W. course good, by the Island of Aldnerney, bearing E.S.E., distance, about 7 leagues, then we bore up, and the wind increasing to a very great storm, we lay our head to the eastward, trying under a mainsail till noon, to bring the fleet together there not being then in sight above 24 sail, the Rear Admiral with several men-of-war and fireships, being wanting.

At noon, we set our foresail, standing N.E. by N. and E.N.E. till 4 in the evening, at which time the land of St. Alban's bore N.N.W. about 6 leagues off, when we tacked, and stood to the westward, the storm continuing violent, and at one at night, with a violent gust of wind and rain, our mainsail and mizen, blew away and some ships fired guns as signals of distress.

Monday the 19th, at 4 this morning we brought to another main sail and mizen, by seven in the morning, being less wind, at west we got up our main yard, set the main sail, heaved our top sail, and stood away to the eastward and at 9 in the morning, it clearing up, we saw the Start Land bearing N.N.E., distance about 6 leagues, at which time we were 22 sail. At noon the Start bore N.W. We stood away towards Torbay, and at 2 o'clock we were close to the Berry, describing the Dutch fleet in Torbay, but could not discover their number whereupon I ordered the Jersey, Captain Beverley, to stand near in, for giving me the better account of them, and, with the fleet, I steered away to the eastward towards the Isle of Wight. At 10 at night the wind came out at S.W. blowing very hard, so that we handed our top sails and lay under a pair of courses till 12 at night, when we had a violent storm at W.S.W., so that we were forced to lie a try under the main course till break of day.

Tuesday the 20th in the morning, the storm continuing very hard, we bore away for the Isle of Wight and at noon anchored at St. Helens Road where the Jersey came in to me giving an account, that standing close in with Torbay, he saw the Dutch fleet, being as near, as he could tell, 57 sail of great ships, their small ships being so far in, that he could not count them. I found here at anchor the Pendennis, Sir William Booth, who was forced in on Sunday with the loss of his foremast and having received other damages by his guns breaking loose in the storm, wherein also I understand that the Heldrenbergh hospital ship, was unfortunately lost, and but 13 of her men saved in her long boat by Captain Ashby, by some ships running on board her, which is supposed was the Bonadventure she being seen at anchor, on the back side of the Isle of Wight without a head, bowsprit, or foremast, and was getting up a jurymast, so that not having yet had any further accouut of her, I hope she is got into the Downs. I found also Sir John Berry with other men-of-war and fire-ships at St. Helens and Spithead, and I fear most of the fireships have received damage, as well in their hulls, masts, and yards, as fireworks.

We had much wind all night at west, which continuing also all Wednesday, kept us at St. Helens and this day we got into the Spithead, where was sent on board me, by Sir Richard Beach, yours of the 20th instant, whereto all the answer I can make, at present is that I shall endeavour all things for his Majesty's service to my utmost."

November 25. The Resolution at Spithead. Same to Same.—Many of the ships of the fleet prove very leaky but to prevent loss of time I am unwilling they should go into harbour. "Though I perceive from yours of the 20th instant that his Majesty was so well satisfied with my determination in consult with the Flags, in future proceedings with the fleet as to believe his intended order of the 16th instant, in explanation of the order under the seal manual of the 12th, which yours brought me a copy of, was unnecessary, the said order of the 12th referring to a preceding orderof the 1st of October, which is called an Order of Council, though you know it is not, wherein I was left to my liberty to conduct and do with the fleet, on all emergencies, as I thought most for his Majesty's honour and service, yet your last letter of the 24th from an apprehension of the damages the fleet may have sustained in the tempestuous weather I encountered when I went to the westward to look out for the Dutch fleet, seems to suggest as if a further determination would be taken at the King's expected return from Salisbury, in the fleet's disposal, I pray therefore that I may be so positively and plainly instructed, in that and all my other affairs of the fleet that I may be without any manner of doubt what to do; for the King's last letter to me, seemed wholly to reject the thoughts of my going to the Nore, and unless, great supplies of all things, at least of provisions be sent hither, I cannot see how we should so much as abide here, much less proceed again to the westward.

I gladly note the account you give me of the further addition of ships I may soon expect, wishing, heartily, I may have it in my power to do his Majesty some eminent service answerable to the expense of this great fleet, than which I desire nothing more, nor can be more solicitous and thoughtful about anything.

December 4. The Resolution at Spithead. Same to Same.—"By his Majesty's letter of the 29th, to which you refer me for my further proceedings with the fleet, I am directed to give his Majesty my thoughts where it will be best to post the fleet for the safety thereof this winter season, since, as you observe to me in your letter of the 29th, the expectation of any action is over for this winter, but your fresher of the 1st instant, with an extract of Sir R. Holme's intelligence from Yarmouth, seeming to suggest something else, I am not yet come to a resolution what advice to offer his Majesty therein, therefore, all I cau say concerning it, at present, is that I will endeavour all that lies in me to prevent the expense of his Majesty's money and stores and shall be so far from fitting out any fresh ships to sea in consideration of the charge attending it, which at this time especially, I believe there is great reason to have regard to, as to encourage the Commanders, all I can, in keeping out their old ships, if they be in any tolerable condition for it; but the Montagu and Rupert, being wholly otherwise, from the surveys and judgments of the proper officers in the yard at Portsmouth, I have, as I formerly acquainted you, directed my Lord Berkeley, and the Montagu's company, into the Edgar, and Sir William Jennens and the Rupert's company, into the Warspite; the Dunkirk, as Sir William was ordered into before, not proving so fit a ship in regard of some defects. Those ships, therefore, being getting in readiness with all the despatch they can, as is likewise the making necessary repairs to the whole fleet, I shall let them proceed, unless I receive his Majesty's express commands to the contrary.

I heartily congratule his Majesty's resolution for a parliament, as you will see more particularly in the address made to him from myself and the fleet, and his determination of publishing to the world, by way of proclamation, his gracious intentions and endeavours of securing its freedom both in its election and sitting."

December 6. Spithead. Same to Same.—"I have by the enclosed to his Majesty, prayed his directions how I shall proceed with the fleet, after being refitted, and if to the eastward, whether the Downs, or the Nore, be the properest station, presuming the sea will be the worst enemy we shall be to encounter this winter season, and therefore probably his Majesty may think of our continuing here."

December 14. The Resolution at Spithead. Same to Same.—"Since my (sic) last is come to my hands, yours of the 10th December, with his Majesty's order of the same date, forbidding all further pressing of men for his Majesty's service, and of the 11th instant, with an order subscribed by several Lords Spiritual and Temporal, then assembled at Guild Hall, requiring all acts of hostility between his Majesty's fleet and the P[rince] of Orange should cease, and that all popish officers should be removed from his Majesty's fleet, to prevent the effusion of blood and any inconveniences that may happen in the fleet; on which heads, and what else is necessary to lay before you in answer to their said letters, or in respect of the charge on my hands, I proceed to give you this further account. . . . . The King's letter, accompanying yours of the 10th, bidding me expect direction for the fleet's motion by the Duke of Berwick, but yours of the 11th bringing me another letter from his Majesty acquainting me with his intentions of withdrawing himself, which he was then taking horse, to do, gives me so great grief and trouble of spirit and anxious thoughts for the King, and this our poor distracted kingdom, that it is almost insupportable; however, summoning up my best resolutions to look forwards, I could not think of anything more essential to the King and my country's service, in the settlement of our laws and established religion, than making an application to the Prince of Orange, and purging the fleet from all Roman Catholic officers, which as I was intending I received yours of the 11th instant, with the subscribed result and determination, made that day at Guild Hall, by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, which suiting in all respects, with what I had with good consideration, deliberated on before, and the fleet unanimously concurred in, you may imagine, I put them in execution with the more willingness."

Postscript, December 15. — After writing this, last night, with intention of sending it away early by express this morning, I received, from some private hands, the good news of the King's being still among us, which gives me new life again, and hopes that all past occurrences will terminate in a happy agreement with the P[rince] of Orange, who I am told is at London by this time, being so earnestly invited thereto by the Lords, and a good understanding among all his Majesty's subjects; none whereof, I hope, can be so villanous to entertain a prejudicial thought to his Majesty's person, which that it may be always in safety and honour is, and shall be [my] endeavours and prayers."

December 17. The Resolution at Spithead. Same to Same.—"In these distracted times, besides the general, I have not wanted my very particular share in keeping peace and quietness in the garrison of Portsmouth; the outrageous and indiscreet behaviour of the Irish in threatening to destroy the Dock and assassinate the inhabitants on any approach of the Prince's forces, giving great apprehensions and disquiets. In order therefore to secure his Majesty's stores and the harbour, I have, with no little pains and assiduity, got into my possession, James and Charles Forts, and South Sea Castle, which being now again under command of Captain Carter, will much quiet the minds of the country. For the better security of the harbour, I have this day ordered in the Bristol and Nonsuch, being defective ships, which, with other ships within, and some small fireships, I shall leave, I hope the Dock, and all things are now pretty well secured and at the direction of Sir Richard Beach.

Sir Edward Scott being an uneasy man to the inhabitants of the town, I have prevailed with him to lay down his Commission, and he is aboard me till further orders. The whole garrison being now brought into a better compass and reduced to a willingness of laying down their arms, I hope they will be mercifully dealt with, and his Majesty will give direction for their disposal.

December 22. Spithead. Lord Dartmouth to the Mayor of Portsmouth.—Giving directions to search the Fubbs yacht for Popish priests and other suspected persons.

December [28]. Lord Dartmouth to Mr. Secretary Pepys—" The 27th instant I received yours of the 25th and 26 instant. The former acquainting me that the Prince expected the fleet at the buoy of the Nore long ere this, according to his order of the 16th. In answer whereto, I desire you to observe that, though his Highness' order bore that date, yet it reached not me till the 19th, when I immediately called a council of war and gave order that all ships should be ready to sail the next morning, except those mentioned in the order to stay here, under the command of Sir John Berry. But though we were accordingly ready in all other respects to sail, we had not wind enough neither that, nor the next day, videlicet the 21st, to fill our sails. On the 22nd the wind came out at N.E. and has continued easterly ever since, without any likelihood of a sudden change. I choose to be thus particular, that his Highness may see there has been no neglect on my part in putting in execution his commands, and I would have given you earlier notice hereof, had not the Prince's aforementioned order directed me to give an account of my proceedings with the fleet to the Secretary of the Navy; which officer I not knowing and not having heard from you for a considerable time past, I could think of no better expedient than by sending up my Secretary, with my Letters immediately to the Prince himself. . . . . Not knowing his Highness' intentions of keeping the yachts at home, to answer some sudden occasion he has himself for them, I ordered the Fubbs to Guernsey with my Lady Scott and her family and directed her master in his return to call at Cowes, and receive on board and carry to Jersey, Sir Philip Carteret and his Lady, but since it is his Highness' pleasure that she should forthwith come up the River I have sent orders to Cowes, for her master, directing him upon his arrival there to do so and not to proceed to Jersey, as I had before ordered him. And herein I must observe to you, upon what you mention about the Commanders of the Fubbs and Mary yachts having the King's written commands, not to stir from Portsmouth without his further order, that though they were so commanded by his Majesty, yet the occasion of the Mary yacht's staying there being not very justifiable, she had (upon its being known that I was sensible of the business she was designed on) other orders sent to her but not signed by the King for bringing the Prince of Wales's rockers up the River which after detaining her for some time, I permitted her to do. And as to my orders to the Fubbs yacht for going to Guernsey, they were not issued till after I heard his Majesty had absented himself from London in order to his leaving the kingdom."

1689, January 1, The Resolution at anchor in the Downs. The Same to the Same.—"That his Highness the Prince of Orange may be informed how far the winds have permitted me to put in execution his commands for my coming to the buoy of the Nore, I think it necessary to give you the following account." Gives an account of a stormy voyage from Spithead to the Downs. "Upon my arrival at the Nore if I meet not with orders to the contrary I design to come up to wait on the Prince but before I leave the fleet I will take care to give such directions to the respective commanders that they do not themselves permit their men to leave their ships till further orders which fault (as you very well know) they are generally addicted to."

1707—1726. Diaries in three paper volumes, quarto, of Sir Arthur Kaye, of Woodsome, co. York, bart., M.P. for York from 1710 until his death. Chiefly notes of expenses, visits paid, and visitors entertained.

1710, June 24, to 1713, August 13. Domestic Letter Books.—Copies of official letters to and from Lord Dartmouth's Principal Secretary of State, touching Admiralty and War Office matters, legal, commercial, criminal, and miscellaneous subjects. 3 vols.

1710, June 26, to 1713, April 28. Letter Book, Ireland.—Copies of official letters from Lord Dartmouth, Principal Secretary of State, to the Lord Lieutenant and others.

1710, September 14, to 1712, October. Foreign Office Letter Book, France.—Copies of official letters to and from the French ministers and English Agents in France, principally concerning the exchange of prisoners of war.

1712, August, to 1713, May. Similar Letter Book.

1713, May to August. Similar Letter Book.

1710, June 30, to 1712, July 29. Foreign Office Letter Book, Spain.—Copies of official letters to and from Lord Dartmouth, Principal Secretary of State, touching Spanish affairs.

1712, July, to 1713, May 3. Similar Letter Book.

1710, June 27, to 1713, January 3. Foreign Office Letter Book, Portugal.—Copies of official letters to and from Lord Dartmouth, Principal Secretary of State, touching Portuguese affairs.

1680.—"John Cox, his travels over the land into the South Seas, from thence round the South part of America, to Barbadoes, and Antigua." A folio volume MS. On the arrival of the ship at "the Golden Island," they met the "Emperor or Duryan," who came on board and said he was at war "with the Spaniard," and that if we would go with him he would show us a place where the Spaniards found a great quantity of "dust gold"; to this they consented. Describes the journey; at night they slept at native houses that they came to having, "the cold ground for our bedding, and the spangled firmament for our covering." The costume of the Emperor was "a mantle of beaten gold." They met, on the way, "King Golden Capps"; he was dressed in "a long white cotton coat, fringed all round the bottom. About the neck, a bell of tiger's teeth, and on his head a hat, the major part was beaten gold, and in his nose a ring of gold, with a flat plate of the same, much like a cockle shell, which is usual in those people to wear." When they reached the place where the gold dust was supposed to be, they found it had been sent to Panama; thither they accordingly went. A folio volume MS.

An Abstract of the Duke of Ormond's Instructions, and of the Letters by him received from, and sent to, the Secretary of State and also of the several Letters enclosed therein. Anno 1712.

$\frac{7}{18}$ April.—Instructions. Her Majesty directs the Duke to repair to the Hague, and to acquaint the Pensionary of his command, and that his orders were to see the latter before he headed the troops, and to acquaint him of her Majesty's resolution of pushing the war with vigour till the enemy had agreed to a safe peace for her Majesty and her Allies. That he was prepared for a good correspondence with the Generals of the Allies, particularly those of the States, and hoped for the same inclination on their part, and that the Pensionary's good offices would contribute thereto.

To desire the Pensionary to acquaint him of the operations of the next campaign.

Upon the Duke's arrival at the frontier, he was to meet Prince Eugene and the other Generals, in secret, and with them to consult measures proper for entering into action.

To review all the regiments in British pay, and to certify the number and condition of the several regiments of horse, foot, and dragoons.

To correspond with one of the Secretaries of State, and to transmit an account of his proceedings, and all occurrences which happened.

$\frac{16}{27}$ April. Hague.—Gives an account of his [the Duke's] arrival at the Hague, and of visiting the Pensionary, and acquainting him with her Majesty's orders in respect to him, and also his intention to live in a good correspondence with the Generals of the Allies, and particularly with those of the States. That the Pensionary told him they had come to no particular resolutions as to the operations of the campaign, and desires Cadogan should be employed.

$\frac{19}{30}$ April. Hague.—That he was going from the Hague to the camp, and that the recruit horses would not be there till eight days. That Marshal Villars had posted his infantry, and was fortifying several posts along the Sensell. That the Imperialists would join in ten days, and that the nine battalions of Prussians were not to be expected. Gives an account of his attending a conference at the Hague, and that they had left the operations of the campaign to the Generals and Deputies in the field.

$\frac{25\text{ April}}{5\text{ May}}$. Ghent.—That he was going to Tournay to meet Prince Eugene. Gives an account of the posture of both armies, and that the enemy could not hinder the siege of Valenciennes, but thinks Cambray or Arras of more consequence, and says he would hear Prince Eugene's proposals.

$\frac{16}{27}$ April.—That he [the Secretary of State] had nothing in command from her Majesty, and that this was a private letter. That he had intelligence from Holland that the Dutch were not without fears of their new General, and they began to consider that he was a papist, a German in interest. That the Emperor his master has nothing to lose in the Netherlands. That the battle won, might give grounds to insist upon higher terms than the House of Austria was now likely to obtain. That a battle lost, might contribute to prolong the war, and that in either case the expense of blood would fall on the Queen and the States. These reflections, in his opinion, occasioned private directions to the Generals to use more caution than the Prince would approve. That this consisted not with the compliment of an unlimited command, made by Monsieur Lathmar, in the name of the States. Believes the enemy would not have taken the posts they were then in, if they had not a prospect of subsisting till forage was on the ground. The Queen expects to hear from his Grace what situation the armies were in, and what is likely to be done in the field. That he hopes soon to inform him what success might be expected in the Congress.

$\frac{22\ \text{Mar.}}{3\ \text{April}}$.—That he had received his Grace's letter of the 30th N.S., and that on Friday a messenger should be sent with her Majesty's instructions, upon what passed when his Grace was at the Hague.

$\frac{25\ \text{April}}{5\ \text{May}}$.—That her Majesty was desirous to know on what footing the Dutch had settled their command, the expression in the Lord Ambassador's letter being ambiguous and doubtful; whether the States took the same resolution with the Duke as they had done in relation to the Prince, or whether it was barely a copy of what they had come to, in favour of the Prince. That the Earl of Strafford speaks of it as a determination at the Hague, that two armies were to be formed. That her Majesty inclined that all the troops, whether subjects or foreigners in her pay, should be under his Grace's command. That there seemed at present to be reasons of a strong nature for having it so, which were likely to increase. That there were grounds to be jealous of Prince Eugene's conduct at this juncture, which his Grace could not but see and know.

That the Queen directed him to be cautious, for some time, of engaging in action, unless in the case of an apparent advantage, because they expected daily to be strengthened by the arrival of the Imperialists, who ought to have their share therein.

That the great article of preventing the union of the two Monarchies was not settled, the expedient hard of digestion to the French, and when that should be over, no formidable difficulty seemed to remain in the way. That the Queen, upon his Grace's desire, was willing Cadogan should serve under him.

$\frac{28\ \text{April}}{9\ \text{May}}$. Tournay.—The Duke takes notice of the receipt of the letters of the 16th and 22nd of April. That the States gave him a copy of their instructions to their Deputies or Generals, whereby they were to obey them to him and the Prince alike. Is informed that the Dutch had ordered the Walloon regiment in Ostend, to Brussels, and that the Duke of Marlborough had formerly the command of those troops.

Speaks of besieging Valenciennes or Quesnoy, and if a fair opportunity offered, could not refuse to join with the Allies in a battle, which, won or lost, would alter matters in treaty, but hopes to have a messenger before the armies are formed.

$\frac{7}{18}$ May. Tournay.—Received the letter of the 25th. Has in his army most of those in the joint pay, with the Queen's own troops. Prince Eugene and the Deputies proposed passing the Scheldt to attack the enemy, but if too strongly entrenched, then to besiege Quesnoy. Hopes to hear good news touching the separating the two Monarchies.

$\frac{9}{20}$ May. Tournay.—Encloses the letter from the Elector of Hanover, and by his answer, that Prince Eugene was not so pressing as formerly to enter in action and seems uneasy at the uncertainty. Speaks of besieging Quesnoy and Landrecies which, if taken, will be equivalent to Cambray, and as to their entering France by way of Champagne, says, if opportunity offers, the Prince and States will press to attack the enemy, unless they hear soon from England. The peace is near concluding. That if the peace was delayed, he doubted not but to force the French to comply with the Queen's terms.

$\frac{\text{22 April}}{\text{3 May}}$. Hanover.—The enclosed from the Elector of Hanover, is only a compliment on his Grace's receiving his command, and to recommend General Bulan to his Grace, and that he will receive him and his troops into his protection.

$\frac{13}{14}$ May. Tournay. The Duke of Ormond to the Elector of Hanover.—Owns the receipts of the Queen's of the 3rd instant. Acknowledges the honor done him in giving him the command, which he hopes will give him an opportunity of shewing his zeal for her Majesty's service and the interest of her Allies, which will be a sure way of shewing the pure esteem he has for his Highness, and that he shall take pleasure in serving Monsieur Bulan and his Highness' troops.

$\frac{10}{21}$ May.—The Secretary of State acknowledges the receipt of his Grace's letter of the 18th N.S., and that he had communicated the same to her Majesty, who approves of the army's continuing on the same footing as it now stands, according to the repartition in the last dispatch. The Queen was glad to find that (after all the complaints made that the British troops were likely to be last in the field, and the necessity of his Grace's hastening over) her troops were assembled and her General arrived, before the army was in a condition to act. That he sends a paragraph of the dispatch to the Earl of Strafford concerning the States' proportion of the last additional 15,000 men, which the States had represented against, but that her Majesty would adhere to her former proposition. The purport of which dispatch was, that since the Commons, the 23rd of February, 1711, voting the 40,000 and 10,000 additional forces, had also given in a lump the rest of the troops paid by the Queen, in Flanders, on condition that the States agreed to add to such additional forces the proportion of $\frac{3}{5}$ to $\frac{2}{5}$. Therefore, her Majesty would expect either that the 15,000 men, which was but equal to our 15,000 men, should be increased to 22,500, or that her Majesty would lessen her 15,000 to 10,000, and of this the Earl of Strafford was forthwith to acquaint the States.

$\frac{10}{21}$ May.(1)—That her Majesty had received advice from the Court of France, that they would come to an agreement about the union of the two Monarchies, as soon as a courier, sent from Versailles to Madrid, could return.

---

[1] A private letter received at Marchiennes, 24th May N.S., at seven in the evening, by Barton.

Therefore the Queen positively commanded, that his Grace should avoid engaging in a siege or battle, till her further orders. That he is directed by the Queen to let his Grace know she would have him disguise the receipt of this order, and that her Majesty thought he could not want pretences for conducting himself to answer her ends, without owning that which at present might have an ill effect, if publicly known. That her Majesty could not, with patience, think of sacrificing men, whilst she had a prospect of attaining her ends another way, and would not suffer herself to be exposed to the reproach of having retarded, by the events of the campaign, a negotiation which ought to have been concluded in a few days.

Postcript.—That communication is given of this order to the Court of France, so that if Monsieur Villars takes any private notice of it, his Grace was to answer accordingly. If this order changed on either side, notice to be given to each other.

$\frac{17}{28}$ May.—Takes notice of the receipt of his Grace's of the 20th, and that her Majesty was impatient till she heard of the safe and early arrival of the dispatch, by Barton. That her Majesty was glad to find the Elector of Hanover did so much justice to his Grace, and hoped that Prince would think his interest, and that of the common cause, best placed in those hands the Queen had lodged them. That the uncertainty under which Prince Eugene seemed so uneasy, would not be of a long duration, and his Grace's answer was worthy of himself. That true glory results from a punctual obedience to the Prince we serve, and the steady promoting the interest of one's country to all private and other advantages. That the Queen was sure that this maxim his Grace had at heart, and therefore she was infinitely the more at ease in this ticklish and important conjunction of affairs.

$\frac{14}{25}$ May. Marchiennes.—The Duke has received letter of the 10th inst. and will obey her Majesty's commands therein, but was obliged, for want of forage, to pass the Scheldt and to encamp at Neuville and Solesmes with the river Selle in the rear; and the Prince and Deputies pressed much for a battle, or if that impracticable, then to besiege Quesnoy, and all the troops being arrived, &c. makes it very difficult to prevent their guessing at the orders sent him.

$\frac{17}{28}$ May. Solesmes.—That his Grace came to this camp on Thursday. The night before he marched, received Marshal Villars' letter. Sent a detachment to view the enemy, which he could not refuse without giving suspicion. That Prince Eugene and the Deputies were to dine with him tomorrow. Will endeavour to conceal the true reason, if anything be proposed, but that it will be difficult to do it.

$\frac{14}{25}$ May. Cambray. [Enclosure]. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—The Marshal acquaints his Grace that he had orders from the King, and the consent of the Queen, to write to him on receipt of a courier, and that they were no longer enemies, and that he supposed his Grace had received the like orders the day before.

$\frac{15}{26}$ May. The Duke to Marshal Villars.—Owns the receipt of the letter of the 25th. That he has received the like orders from the Queen to which he will conform. That the chief point is to keep the secret they are intrusted with, which will depend much on the measures taken by the Marshal. The march made by the confederates is for subsistence of the troops, and nothing to be apprehended from thence. At least his Grace will answer for those under his command.

$\frac{18}{29}$ May. Solesmes. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—That Prince Eugene and the Deputies dined with him, and by all reports, &c., an attack upon the enemy seemed practicable. It was much pressed on him, and his objections against it seemed very dissatisfactory, especially the delay on account of Lord Strafford's journey to England. And the Prince and Deputies say they must give an account of this to their Masters. That he could not propose a siege, that being as contrary to the Queen's orders as a battle; and this made his a very difficult situation. Therefore he desires further directions.

$\frac{\text{24 May}}{\text{4 June}}$. Solesmes.—Cannot express his uneasiness for want of fresh instructions. That the Deputies came to him this morning, and desired to know whether his Grace had positive orders not to undertake anything. To which his Grace only replied, he should be glad to hear from England before he entered on action, which he expected every moment. The Deputies next asked him whether if they should besiege Quesnoy, he would cover them, and whether he designed to keep the Auxiliaries in pay, from acting To which his Grace being so bound up by his instructions, could return no other answer, than to the first question which gave little satisfaction. That the Prince's army is laying bridges over the Selle; supposes it is to beseige Quesnoy, in which case, he thinks, he must also pass the Selle and take the camp he designed, when all the forage was spent on this side, which situation would place him twixt the besiegers and the French, and as his Grace did not consent to the siege, should not transgress his orders, as he presumes Marshal Villars would his, should he come to his Grace, but hopes to have final orders before they come to extremities. Incloses a copy of a long letter also received from the Deputies this morning.

$\frac{\text{24 May}}{\text{4 June}}$. The Deputies to the Duke.—That their masters the States had directed them to acquaint his Grace of the great surprise they were under, at his refusing either a siege or battle, when so great advantage offered, which if not now made use of, might never after happen.

That their High Mightinesses could not perceive how his orders could be so very general as to tie up his hands when so fair an opportunity offered, of annoying the enemy. That they thought such orders were to be understood in a good sense, and only as temporary, if the common cause did not suffer thereby, but not to occasion inaction whereby the common cause would irreparably suffer; that the forage consumed, their future operations would be more difficult, if not impracticable; not to mention that the enemy would have time to re-trench and fortify as they pleased. It is for these reasons that their masters command them to persuade his Grace, not to do so much prejudice to the common cause, as not to concurr in the operations of the campaign.

That they were also ordered to enforce the reasons undermentioned, particularly that the army under his command, were not only the Queen's national troops, but chiefly such as were of the common corps of her Majesty and the States, and tho' chiefly under his command, yet could not by him alone be employed, to act against the enemy without the concurrence of the States.

That they were also ordered to remind his Grace that not only the Grand Alliance, but the particular treaties twixt her Majesty and the States, oblige her to push the war.

That his Grace's declaration not to act without new orders (when with his concurrence they had approached so near, as to have an opportunity of acting with such apparent hopes of success) was neither agreeable to the said treaties, nor what the Queen had assured the States by Letters, and by the Lord Strafford, that her troops should act with the greatest vigour, and his Grace being sent for that purpose, and made the same assurances while he was at the Hague, and on these accounts, they were directed to press his Grace to push on the operations of the war.

But if his Grace will not act offensively, then they are to desire he will cover their siege and promise to assist, if the enemy should attempt to raise it.

That in case his Grace refuses this, they have orders, and do accordingly protest against the irreparable wrong which the Allies must necessarily suffer thereby.

And further, they demand to know his orders, and what reliance they might have for the future, from the British troops, and they require him not to hinder the Auxiliaries to act in the war, in conformity with the treaties.

That this representation they have made by word of mouth, as well as in writing, to justify their masters, the States, from the consequences of the inaction at this time, and they desire an answer in writing.

$\frac{\text{28 May}}{\text{8 June}}$. Cambresis. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Received Mr. Secretary's of the 17th May. Shall think it his duty, punctually to obey the Queen's orders. That he used his endeavours to keep secret, what was written by Barton. That the excuses for inactivity passed for 3 or 4 days. But that afterwards the Prince and Deputies, from goodness and superiority of our troops, and the readiness all things were in for a siege, concluded his Grace had orders for what he did, and told his Grace they knew he could answer it without. That he cannot avoid seeing the ill-blood created by the measures he is obliged to take, and they that do not stick to say we are betraying them, and that this will increase, rather than diminish, and it will be hard to guess its consequence. That he daily expects to hear of a peace, but if ever so advantageous, and the allies dislike it, is apprehensive, cannot depend on any troops but her Majesty's subjects.

The Prince and Deputies have invested Quesnoy, and that his Grace had nothing to do in the operation, yet he could not refuse furnishing 7 Battalions and 9 Squadrons in the States' pay, but avoided giving any in her Majesty's whole pay.

Says if there be no prospect of action, he sees no use he is of, and if it suits her Majesty's service would be glad to return, but submits &c.

$\frac{\text{24 May}}{\text{4 June}}$. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—Acknowledges the receipt of the dispatch by Fry and that her Majesty was satisfied of the contents thereof, and that he will send a dispatch in a day or two. That the Queen had given Lord James Murray the captain-lieutenancy of a regiment of Guards.

$\frac{\text{27 May}}{\text{7 June}}$.—That he had received the dispatch of the 4th June n.s., and that he was commanded to acquaint his Grace, that the affected alarm and clamour raised by industry, both here and in Holland, upon what passed with Prince Eugene and the Dutch Deputies, gave her no uneasiness, her orders being founded upon the most just and prudent considerations, which were obeyed with the firmness becoming his Grace. That the final orders his Grace impatiently expected, should be sent him on Friday. In the mean time, her Majesty approved of his taking the camp to cover the siege of Quesnoy, if Prince Eugene and the States persisted in attacking that place.

That his Grace was to find a pretence of sending a trumpet to Marshal Villars, to acquaint that general of the true state of this affair, and that we should not long continue in this uncertain condition, since in 4 or 5 days, his Grace might expect to hear that the place was secure, or have orders to enter on action, in both which cases his Grace was to write again to him.

That his Grace was to conclude by saying that since this suspense would be soon removed, his Grace hoped the Marshal would not oblige him to come to any action, either to defend himself or join with Prince Eugene's Army, which he must necessarily do in case he was attacked.

$\frac{\text{28 May}}{\text{8 June}}$.—That finding there would be a battle in both Houses of Parliament, upon the very order given to his Grace, her Majesty thought fit to delay the express till the fortune of the day was declared.

That he had sent to his Grace, the question moved by the Whigs in the House of Commons, and the numbers, both for and against it, and that he had also sent the Address proposed by the Commons, carried without a division.

That the debate with the Lords, was upon the same point, and carried by a majority of 28, and that the spirit which was shown was a better omen than the majority.

That his Grace would receive 2 letters to the Marquis de Torcy, one of which was from the Secretary, open for his Grace's perusal, which he was to send with his own, to the Marquis, if the Prince and States should be so unreasonable as to press a siege.

$\frac{\text{28 May}}{\text{8 June}}$. The Secretary of State's letter to the Marquis de Torcy. —Is to acquaint him that the States' remonstrance to the Queen, on the Duke's refusing a siege as well as a battle, had no other effect than to make these orders be renewed; but should the Prince and Deputies undertake a siege, tho' the Queen's army did not assist them, yet the Duke must desire the Marquis not to oppose them, whereby to oblige him to come to an action.

That in a few days the Kings of France and Spain's last resolutions were expected, whereupon her Majesty would make such declarations as mentioned in his letters of the 24th inst., or give her general orders to enter on action. That so small a delay could not prejudice their interests; therefore the Queen doubted not but the Marquis will think himself obliged to prevent the general action, by forbearing to engage the Allies, as the Duke had hindered the attacking the French.

$\frac{2}{13}$ June. Cambresis. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Received the letters of the 27th and 28th past. Refers him to the letters and answers which passed between him and Monsieur Villars.

That Messrs. Hope and Welderen and the Deputies dined with him this day, and that Monsieur Welderen began with assuring his Grace, the States had the same respect for the Queen as ever. That they apprehended they were ill-represented as corresponding with the Whiggish Party and desire him to acquaint the Queen of the contrary, and intimated that the States intended an extraordinary deputation to the Queen, to acquaint her of the contrary. That he had promised them to cover the siege and prevent its being raised, till he should have orders to the contrary. That he had translated the account of the proceedings in Parliament, and sent it to Monsieur Boulan who had been with him, and seemed not well pleased with the Dutch, but said his master, the Elector, would come into no measures without the Queen. That the language among the foreign troops is much changed; her Majesty's having behaved themselves as became them.

The purport of the Six Letters are as follows :—

$\frac{\text{30 May}}{\text{10 June}}$. Noyelle. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Desires to know how his Grace will act in the siege of Quesnoy. Is persuaded the Prince durst not undertake it with his troops alone. Is informed, a courier was dispatched with an answer to the Queen from Spain, to her satisfaction.

$\frac{\text{31 May}}{\text{11 June}}$. Chateau Cambresis. The Duke to Marshal Villars.—Hopes (from the news then sent him by the Marshal) to be soon freed from the uncertainties he has so long laid under, and referred to his last. Says the Marshal has shown him how much they ought to keep the secret. That it was not in his power to hinder the siege of Quesnoy. That he was obliged to furnish some troops of the States corps, but not one of the Queen's, but believes they have not yet opened their trenches. That this siege can break no measures concerted by their Sovereigns, before they shall have full instructions. That the Duke of Wurtemberg had told his Grace that the Marshal had said to his trumpets, the English would do him, nor he the English, no more harm. That he had such orders, and he was sure his Grace had the like.

$\frac{\text{31 May}}{\text{11 June}}$. Noyelle. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Denies Duke of Wurtemberg's information is true. Is satisfied since the Queen's troops do not act in the siege, but desires to know whether they will oppose the French should they attempt anything against the Prince, if he continues the siege. Desires such an answer as may not leave him in any doubt.

$\frac{1}{12}$ June. Chateau Cambresis. The Duke to Marshal Villars.—That he is satisfied the Duke of Wurtemberg's report is false, and a mere invention. That it is not necessary to take notice of the small share he acted in the last movements on this side, nor the care he used, to avoid acting contrary to the orders they had each of them received, having no further to answer for than the Queen's troops. That the Queen is assured that 4 or 5 days must determine the grand affair, so that in that time he shall know whether to declare for peace or war, and since this delay will be so short, hopes the Marshal will continue the same disposition till the result, and tho' the siege be carried on, yet that he will not oblige his Grace to defend the besiegers or assist the Prince which he must do, if attacked. Incloses two letters received from England, to be forwarded by the Marshal.

$\frac{2}{13}$ June. Noyelle. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—That he never intended attempting anything against Prince Eugene, and though it was very disagreeable to see a siege carried on by the enemy without attempting to raise it, yet since his Grace desired it, and the Queen would declare herself in so short a time, it was easy to wait it with patience.

$\frac{7}{18}$ June. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—That he has received all his Grace's letters, and laid them before the Queen, whose orders were first to let his Grace know the satisfaction she had in the obedience he had paid to her orders, and to express her confidence that his Grace would proceed in the same manner. That enclosed were two letters and a memorial sent to the Marquis de Torcy, which were prepared by the Queen's order in answer to her last express from France, whereby it appears that her Majesty will not declare for a cessation of arms in the Netherlands, till the execution of the Article of Dunkirk, and the Article relating to Spain. That her Majesty was positively resolved to continue no longer on the present foot. That if these conditions were accepted and sent, signed by Mons. de Torcy to his Grace, and Dunkirk put into his possession, his Grace was publicly to own he could no longer act against the French. If they were not consenting to this, his Grace was entirely free from restraint, and at liberty to annoy the enemy. That Lord Strafford was going thence, and hoped he would find the Dutch more tractable than hitherto they had been, in which case, the Queen will do her utmost to settle the terms of a cessation, and the peace, in the best manner for them. That it was with the greatest regret her Majesty was constrained to such extremities with her Allies. That she had no other remedy left, unless she would submit to be worse used than a petty prince, and have the negotiations wrested out of her hands, because some benefit was likely to accrue to her subjects by the peace. That the Dutch Minister had pressed to know what private orders were given, which was answered by demanding what the States had given their Generals. That Marshal Villars would soon receive orders from Versailles, and that his Grace was then to acquaint him of his expectations from the Court, which must determine his proceedings, and that accordingly they were to be freed from any restrictive orders, and have full liberty to act against each other, or openly declare a cessation, whilst the best means possible would be used to prevail with the Allies to do the same; but the Queen's declaration is to be positive. That endeavours were used to debauch the foreign troops, in her Majesty's pay, and the Queen doubts not he will be on his guard to secure them to her interest. That he will acquaint the foreign Ministers, how much the Queen will resent this usage, and believes his Grace will do the same to the Generals of the foreign corps in the Queen's pay, and believes they would reflect upon their arrears due. That these are all the instructions he was directed to transmit.

The purport of the Memorial and letters inclosed are thus :—

The Memorial to the Marquis de Torcy.—Article 1. The Queen consents to a cessation for 2 months, which may be prolonged for 3 or 4 months. Article 2. During this, the treaty of peace to be settled, at least the articles for disuniting the two kingdoms, viz :—King Philip to renounce France—and such renunciation to be properly confirmed—and that crown settled on the House of Bourbon. That the Dukes of Berry and Orleans renounce Spain, and that be also confirmed, and that crown be settled on King Philip and his descendants. Article 3. The town, citadel, and forts of Dunkirk, to be evacuated by the French, and the Queen's troops in possession the day the cessation was declared, and this place to remain in the Queen's hands till the States shall have given the French King an equivalent for the demolition thereof.

Article 4. That the civil government of the town shall continue the same as before, and the King's ships, and those of his subjects should, pass into and out of the ports and be as safe there as formerly.

$\frac{6}{17}$ June. The Secretary of State to the Marquis de Torcy.—Acknowledges the receipt of the Marquis' of the 5th N.S. wherein he takes notice that King Philip agrees to the first Article, and that of the 10th, in answer to Mr. Secretary's of the 24th O.S.

That the Queen thought his last memorial did not answer her demands; had this day met her Parliament and made all necessary declarations to dispose her nation to be unanimous for a peace. That she had not mentioned the suspension to her Parliament, but had commanded the Secretary to communicate her resolutions therein. That the expedient for disuniting the two kingdoms, her Majesty will never depart from. That she is answerable for it to her people, to her allies, to the present age, and to posterity, and therefore the Queen hopes the King will not take amiss the demands made by her in the annext memorial. That he had dispatched another courier to the Duke of Ormond to acquaint him of this, and if the King consents, the Marquis has no more to do but to sign the Articles and send them to the General, who at the same time he takes possession of Dunkirk, will declare the cessation. That the Earl of Strafford went last week to Utrecht with new instructions to the Plenipotentiaries, who in conjunction with those of his Majesty, would be able to prescribe rules to those who refuse terms just and reasonable.

$\frac{7}{18}$ June.—That the Queen regards, as well as the King, a cessation as absolutely necessary to deprive the enemies to the peace, of the measures of obstructing or delaying thereof. That it is neither the interest of the King nor Queen to let things rest as they are at present. It will not be agreeable that the Marshal Villars should rest inactive whilst Prince Eugene besieges Quesnoy. It is not for the Queen's honour, the Duke of Ormond should become a peaceable spectator to what passes between the Arms of France and the Allies, before openly declaring a cessation. That the Marquis says it is no small grievance to the Hollanders to tell them the English troops are in possession of Dunkirk, but assures him it is so, to tell the Queen's forces will not act against France. That the King has left them no excuse to colour their obstinacy, and they must hasten their accommodation or run risk they are unable to bear. The Abbé Gortier will write to you in behalf of the Chevalier.

$\frac{11}{22}$ June. The Secretary of State to the Duke.(1)—This letter is to explain the last order transmitted upon supposition that the Court of France agrees to the cessation of arms, proposed by her Majesty. That the Queen directs his Grace to consider how to take possession of Dunkirk, both in respect to the enemy and the Allies. That his Grace should know of Marshal Villars, what facility he can give on his part to obviate all such difficulties as should be created by Prince Eugene and the Deputies. That he hoped to find at the army and everywhere else, more ease and compliance than hitherto; but suppose the worst, no precaution ought to be omitted in an affair so nice, and of so great importance to the Queen and her kingdom. That if the French did not comply, his Grace then understood himself to be at liberty to act as if no such restrictive orders had been ever sent, which he was to signify to the Maréchal.

$\frac{14}{25}$ June(2). That a courier was returned from France, and that her Majesty's demands were complied with to her satisfaction, and if any difficulties arose in taking possession of Dunkirk, his Grace should keep his army entire, and troops should be sent from England for that service. That nothing was more dreadful to the Dutch than this town in English hands, and if his Grace was likely to have the least disturbance, he was to keep this secret, and send his accounts to the Queen, and the suspension should be timed with the evacuation of Dunkirk. Expects to hear from his Grace, since Monsieur Torcy had sent copies to his Grace of what was sent to London. If his Grace had taken possession of Dunkirk, well; if not, it should be done from England; and that perhaps in the ferment, his Grace had better lie still, and let Dunkirk be possessed and the clamour happen afterwards.

$\frac{16}{27}$ June. Chateau Cambresis. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Received his letters of the 7th and 11th. Refers to copies of letters sent to and received from Maréchal Villars which he enclosed, and says he thought necessary, by way of precaution, not knowing Dunkirk was surrounded, upon a cessation, declared by that part of the army only, consisting of her Majesty's own subjects. That his Grace was desirous of an answer, before he dispatched a messenger with this, but receiving none, supposed the Marshal had sent for fresh orders to Court. That according to his promise to the Prince and Deputies to acquaint them when he had fresh orders from England, he visited them, the 25th, and told them that the French King had agreed to several articles as a foundation for a cessation and (inter alia) the surrendering Dunkirk. Says that could not be a secret, considering the circumstances they were in, and that since he was not master of the foreign troops in the Queen's pay, the sending away a detachment without telling the reason, might have exposed them to an affront not agreeable to the Queen's honour. His Grace therefore told them he could no longer cover the siege, but was obliged to march with the Queen's troops and declare a cessation as soon as the town was delivered up, and hoped they would concur therein, which was most likely to induce the Queen to take all possible care of their interests at the peace. That he endeavoured to show them Dunkirk was of more consequence than Quesnoy. That the Deputies desired 5 days to consult their masters hereon, which his Grace would have allowed, had they agreed to stop the siege, which they would not. That his Grace consented to 3 days which would be no hindrance in the execution of his orders, since he could not have the French King's resolutions in less time. That he had sounded the foreign generals, who at first seemed inclinable to march with him, especially the Monsieur Bulan, but means had been found to seduce him; and they agreed in their pretences that they would not separate without their master's orders, which they had sent for. But that being likely to execute her Majesty's commands before they received answers, he had sent them written orders to be ready to march with him, having first, in discourse, represented to them the ill-consequences which would result from their refusal, in which, should they persist, and Marshal Villars send a satisfactory answer as to Dunkirk, his Grace shall think it best to march with all the Queen's troops and artillery, this corps being so small that it cannot be otherwise secure. That they would have the sea open in case the Queen thinks fit to recall them, and the town and forts would hold the foot, and the horse be encamped under the cannon. Thinks it the more necessary, since the Deputies refused a detachment passage through any of the towns to Dunkirk. That should the troops be separated cannot answer for the execution of any of the Queen's orders that may be sent him; however will be on his guard to support the Queen's honour and his country's interest, and desired orders about the troops at Ghent. That the Prince and Deputies had said his marching with the Queen's troops and foreigners would leave them to the mercy of the French; but they were sure the foreigners would not march, and that he had heard that they would move their camp when he marched, and it would not be possible for him to stay longer. Did hope Lord Strafford would have ere this returned to Holland with such further explanation of the Queen's sentiments, as might incline the States to comply; but not hearing of his landing was under great difficulties how to act, and desired the Queen's positive orders how to act. Encloses another from Marshal Villars received since this was writ.

---

(1) "Received by Phillips, 25 November."

(2) "Received by Fry, 29 N. S. at 2 in the afternoone."

The purport of the letter enclosed in the last was:—

$\frac{10}{21}$ June. Cambresis. The Duke to Marshal Villars.—Acquaints the Marshal of an express received from London, which advised him that the Marshal should soon after receive one from his Court, and desires to know his orders therein whereby to direct their future conduct. That his Grace's orders were to declare a cessation, whilst they endeavoured to persuade the Allies to do the like, or to acquaint him we are free from all engagements of an inaction, and at liberty to act offensively, according to the resolutions of his King, which his Grace impatiently expects. Hopes his Court will take such methods as will best suit with the quiet of Europe, &c.

$\frac{12}{23}$ June. Noyelle. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Speaks much of the satisfaction he has in the prospect of their countries being united in peace, and a free commerce settled betwixt them. And says that when he receives a courier, which he expects every moment, he will forthwith communicate what it brings, to his Grace.

$\frac{13}{24}$ June. Noyelle.—Sends him a copy of articles proposed by the Queen, and the King's answer which he hopes is agreeable to the Queen's demands, and therefore doubts not but the cessation may be immediately declared.

$\frac{11}{22}$ June.—Articles. The same as before set forth to which the Kings agree exactly, with these additions. That as to the renunciation of France by King Philip, the Letters Patent granted to his grandson in 1700 shall be revoked and annulled, and as to the 4th Article for the evacuation of Dunkirk, that his Majesty's officers of the land and sea magazines should hold their employments in Dunkirk, so long as the English continue there.

$\frac{14}{25}$ June. Cambresis. The Duke to Marshal Villars.—Wishes the Marquis de Torcy had signed the copy of the articles, which would have been more conformable to his Grace's instructions, but would wave all difficulty for want of form. That he would go to the Prince and Deputies to prevail with them to quit the siege and on their refusal, to tell them he should be obliged to withdraw the Queen's army. Will send a detachment to Dunkirk, and the cessation shall take effect as soon as they enter; wants an order to the governor to give them possession, which he desires to have forthwith. Will let the Marshal know the Prince and Deputies' resolution.

$\frac{14}{25}$ June. Cambresis.—That the Prince and Deputies do not relish the proposals. Apprehends the Auxiliaries will not quit the Prince's army without express orders from their masters. Desires to know in what manner Dunkirk will be delivered into the hands of the general; he shall send to take possession thereof, in case the Queen's national troops only should march thither, that the cessation may take effect, so far as concerns his Grace. Desires him to dispatch the orders about Dunkirk required in his last.

$\frac{16}{27}$ June. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—That he every moment expects the return of a courier, sent to the Court. That the King had sent orders to the Governor for the surrender of Dunkirk, when the Marshal should tell him the cessation was declared. That the King having granted all the Queen's demands, the cessation may take effect without prejudice to her, since it may be broke, if Dunkirk should not be surrendred. That the King will be surprised that the Auxiliaries do not march with his Grace, and that it is surprising the Dutch should have more power over men they do not pay, than the Queen that has paid them these 12 years.

$\frac{18}{29}$ June. Cambresis. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Owns the receipt of the letter of the 14th. Wishes the expedient of sending troops from England to take possession of Dunkirk, had been thought sooner. Incloses copies of the letters sent from Marshal Villars to his Grace, of the 28th, and from the Monsieur de Torcy to the Secretary, of the 27th. That Dunkirk not being delivered, he should think he is at liberty to act in conjunction with the Allies against the enemy, but would not make a step of that consequence without the Queen's particular orders, which he is impatient for. That Marshal Villars pressed him to an interview, which he declined, and refers to the Marshal's letter and his answer.

The purport of the enclosed letters was:—

$\frac{16}{27}$ June. Monsieur de Torcy to the Secretary of State.—Takes notice of the Duke's letter to Marshal Villars, of the 25th, N.S., wherein his Grace speaks of going to the Prince and Deputies, and desires an express order to the governor of Dunkirk, to deliver possession, and promises to advise of what passes between the Prince and him. Makes also mention of his Grace's letter to Marshal Villars, of the 22nd, and uses many arguments, from the title of the Queen's Articles for cessation, and from the reason there was to believe Prince Eugene would push an action after the Queen's corps only was separated to show that the King never intended to deliver possession of Dunkirk, but only on a general cessation, and how reasonable it was for them to hold to this resolution. However, he concludes that the King expects the Queen should forthwith give positive orders to the Duke, to separate with her own corps entire, and that as soon as these orders should be executed by him, the King would deliver up Dunkirk according to the third Article.

$\frac{17}{28}$ June. Marshall Villars to the Duke.—Incloses copy of last letter from Monsieur de Torcy. Says he has received a courier from France, with the King's orders for surrendering up Dunkirk, but that this, by the Queen's own proposal, was not to be done till a general cessation was made. Argues that a small delay cannot give the enemies to the peace an opportunity of frustrating the measures taken. Says there are certain difficulties which four hours conversation will easier reconcile than many letters, and desires an interview.

$\frac{18}{29}$ June. The Duke to Marshal Villars.—Acknowledges the receipt of the last letter, but says he cannot alter his measures until he has the Queen's orders, and as his glory is not to make the least step without order, he hopes the Marshal will (however his Grace's own inclination may otherwise be) excuse his granting an interview.

$\frac{\text{20 June}}{\text{1 July}}$. Secretary of State to the Duke.—That by the orders of the Queen he had told the foreign ministers that her Majesty would look upon herself discharged from the arrears due to that Prince, whose troops would not obey his Grace's orders, and that until the arrival of the Earl of Strafford at the camp his Grace was to be on his guard, and speak in the most resolute manner to the foreign generals. That his Grace was to give Marshal Villars notice thereof and of his expectations to hear from him on an express sent from hence and of the Earl of Strafford coming with further instructions. That if his grace received an account from the Court of France that her Majesty's last proposals were agreed to and orders despatched for surrendering Dunkirk, he was to declare a suspension between Great Britain and France. That he should keep the whole body of his troops entire and withdraw in the best manner he could. That as to the troops in Ghent his Grace should advertise them to be on their guard. That the letter enclosed to Monsieur Torcy was fit to fall under no eyes but his Grace's.

Ma

The letter to Monsieur Torcy enclosed in the last was thus:—

$\frac{\text{20 June}}{\text{1 July}}$. Secretary of State to Monsieur Torcy.—Acknowledges the receipt of several dispatches, which he has communicated to the Queen, who with the greatest displeasure observes the new difficulties invented by the enemies to the peace, but that she is determined to yield to none, but still to operate in conjunction with the King not doubting thereby to defeat those who would prolong the miseries of the war. That by the Queen's orders he had told all the foreign ministers in England that the Queen would take the conduct of the general in the field to be the declaration of their Princes for or against her, as they should pursue the measures by her formed for assuring the peace, or those of the Prince and States for breaking them, and that, therefore, she was persuaded they would obey the Duke of Ormond; which, if they refused, she would no longer pay their troops and that an express was sent to the Duke of Ormond to acquaint the foreign generals of this, her Majesty's declaration, which his Grace was to put in execution if the Generals refused to obey him. That in case any of them persisted in staying with the Prince, the Queen has given orders to the Duke to withdraw with her own corps and those that will march with him and declare that they will no longer act against the French or pay any that shall. That after such behaviour of the Allies, the Queen thinks herself justifiable before God and man to continue the negotiations whether they concur therein or no, and therefore he had the Queen's orders to assure the King that if he will surrender Dunkirk though all or part of the auxiliaries should refuse to march with the Duke, she will make a separate peace, leaving a certain time for the other persons to come into the conditions thereof. That thus the peace is in the power of the King. The English corps will be separated with the Duke's, and the foreigners left at the expense of the Dutch who are so far from being able to bear new charges, [that they] cannot discharge those already on their hands. In a word Great Britain will withdraw from the theatre of the war leaving the other powers in a slender condition to make head against France, and the peace may be concluded between the two kingdoms in a few weeks. That if these proposals are accepted by the King, the Queen thinks a general cessation by sea and land will be for the interest of both nations. That he expects a speedy answer and that the Marquis should at the same time dispatch a courier to the Duke of Ormond that he may know how to behave himself and that if orders are dispatched to Dunkirk for it to be surrendered, the Duke will immediately act as before, and that her Majesty will send regiments from England to Dunkirk which may prevent such obstacles as may have been formed in case it were by a detachment from the Duke as was first intended. That since the writing of this the Queen has concluded to send my Lord Strafford to the army, who sets out to-morrow.

$\frac{\text{26 June}}{\text{6 July}}$. Cambresis. Duke of Ormond to the Secretary of State. —Received the letters of the 20th June, and copies, etc. That he has sent the letters received from England to all foreign generals, but expects no compliance from the foreign troops and believes Lord Strafford, when [he] arrives, will not succeed therein. That having a courier from France, his Grace will pursue the directions given him, but hopes Lord Strafford will be able to inform him the route he is to take. Has written to Marshal Villars and received his answer, which he inclosed, and has heard that the Marshal opposes delivering up Dunkirk on any terms but a general cessation.

The letters enclosed in the last were:—

$\frac{24 \text{ June}}{5 \text{ July}}$. Cambresis. Duke of Ormond to Marshal Villars.—That by the last message to the Queen he finds she is determined to surmount all difficulties which are created, to obstruct the present negotiations, and, therefore, the Queen has sent my Lord Strafford with new instructions for his Grace's conducting himself. That his Grace daily expects to hear from the Marshal touching some dispatches sent from England to the French Court.

$\frac{25 \text{ June}}{6 \text{ July}}$. Noyelle. Marshall Villars to Duke of Ormond.—Says he received the King's order to deliver up Dunkirk to those that his Grace should name. Finds by Mr. St. John's letter to Monsieur de Torcy, the Queen is determined to carry on the peace with firmness, and by a letter written by the King's order, to Mr. St. John, that the King is resolved to grant everything that the Queen desires. That his Grace must have time to receive orders from England and that the Marshal sends the orders for surrendering Dunkirk, and desires his Grace may fix a day that he may give the commander of Dunkirk notice thereof. Perceives by Mr. St. John's letter that the Queen will send troops from England to take possession of Dunkirk, and thinks it for the interest of both nations that his Grace should be at the head of as great a body of troops as may be. Is concerned to think that, contrary to all reason, &c., the Queen's measures for a peace should meet with such opposition, since she had contributed so much to the war and leaves the Emperor and States in so flourishing a condition.

$\frac{27 \text{ June}}{7 \text{ July}}$. Secretary of State to Duke of Ormond.—That inclosed was a copy of Monsieur de Torcy's letter, and that he supposed Marshal Villars communicated the same to him, gives an account of the forces sent to take possession of Dunkirk, and of the fleet under Sir John Lake. That the Earl of Strafford was gone hence by way of Holland, and would arrive in the army with further orders. That as soon as his Grace had an account from Sir James Abercrombie, and Colonel King, of evacuating Dunkirk, he was instantly to declare a suspension of arms if he had not done it already. That her Majesty's commands are positive in this particular, which must be observed in all events, for if Lord Strafford brings word the Dutch do agree to a supension, then it is proper, and all the Allies will retire together. If they refuse, then these orders seem most necessary, since the Queen ought not to have the law imposed upon her and if the States agree, conditionally, then it can have no other design than to break the Queen's measures and to lose the taking possession of Dunkirk. That orders were given to Mr. Sweet to make no further payment to the foreign troops except, to such of them as his Grace should direct.

The enclosed imports:—

$\frac{5}{16}$ July. Monsieur de Torcy to the Secretary of State.—Acknowledges the receipt of the despatches of the 20th July, N.S., and takes notice of the contents thereof. Takes also notice of his own last letter and the reasons by him given why the King ought not to surrender Dunkirk without a general cessation. However, for the reasons in the Secretary St. John's, of the 20th June, which he partly mentions, the King did consent thereto on the Duke's separating with the Queen's corps only and that orders for surrendering Dunkirk were sent to Marshal Villars, of which the Duke would have advice the 6th instant, by which time, he hopes, Lord Stafford would be with his Grace, and that a peace, at least between France and Great Britain, will soon be completed. That the King approves of a general cessation by sea and land and thinks the speediest way to effect it, will be to sign the same at Utrecht.

$\frac{5}{16}$ July. Secretary of State to the Duke of Ormond.—That Mr. Hill was appointed commander-in-chief of all the troops in Dunkirk. That they were hourly in expectation to hear what communication he had received from Marshal Villars upon the orders he had received from his Court. That Lord Strafford's relation would enable his Grace to execute her Majesty's orders. That the Queen cannot give directions what route to take. That she hopes by the last account from Holland, the States will not come to such extremities as would be fatal to themselves as well as perplexing to her. But, supposing the worst, leaves it to his Grace to act as he shall think fit, and that her Majesty would not lose taking possession of Dunkirk.

$\frac{4}{15}$ July. Cambresis. Duke of Ormond to the Secretary of State.—Received his despatch of the 27th June and also a letter from Marshal Villars, with one from Sir James Abercrombie and Colonel King, from Dunkirk. That the Governor of that place had no orders for its surrender. That his Grace had sent Colonel Lloyde to the Marshal with the orders from the French King to the Governor, which he received, when a detachment was to have been sent to the army. Refers to several letters enclosed betwixt him and the Marshal. That Lord Strafford arrived the 12th, and, four days before, the Prince of Hainault was with his Grace to acquaint him his master was much surprised that the Queen's troops should withdraw, and of her making a separate peace since he had never heard of it before, and that his separation, who was a dependent on the Empire, might be fatal to him. That Monsieur Boulan and Duke of Wurtemberg could not separate. That Monsieur Barner, (?) commander of the Holstein troops and Monsieur Walloffés, would obey orders. That the chief of the Saxons, yet gave no answer, but should they remain with his Grace their number is so small that he must desire the Queen's orders for his future guidance. That Prince Eugene sent his Grace word he designed to march to attack Landrecies to which his Grace returned him answer that, as he had not concerted measures for such an undertaking with him before, therefore he would not join therein, but must retire with the Queen's troops and must take the best care of them he could. Had sent to the States Deputies that he could now cover no other siege they should undertake. That when the Prince marches to Landrecies, his Grace will march to Warneton on the Lys, and there expect the Queen's orders whether he shall march to Dunkirk or Ghent, and submits whether it is not proper to put more troops into Dunkirk, since it is reported there are but four battalions sent thither. Is surprised the story of his having showed his orders to Prince Eugene for not acting, should gain credit.

The purport of the letters inclosed referred to in the last were :—

$\frac{1}{12}$ July. Duke of Ormond to Marshal Villars.—Says he is informed two officers were sent from England to concert the taking possession of Dunkirk, and since no orders have been sent to England for the Governor's surrender of that place, desires his aide-de-camp, Colonel Lloyde, may be sent thither with the orders his Grace lately received from him for that purpose. Hears the Dutch have given orders to their Deputies not to act against the French for 8 days.

$\frac{1}{12}$ July. Marshal Villars to the Duke of Ormond.—Knows of no other orders for surrendering Dunkirk, but that which he sent his Grace and those which the King had given him to consult with his Grace as to the day for surrendering that place and declaring the cessation, and therefore the execution of that depended entirely on his Grace, wherefore he kept Colonel Lloyde till he should have his Grace's answer to this.

$\frac{2}{13}$ July. Cambresis. Duke of Ormond to Marshal Villars.—Says the suspension was immediately to take place on the surrender, and therefore desires Colonel Lloyde may be dispatched with the orders to the Governor and when he shall obey them, his Grace will forthwith declare the suspension and retire. That my Lord Strafford arrived yesterday and gives his Grace hopes that all will end well and the auxiliaries be brought to reason at last.

$\frac{3}{14}$ July. Noyelle. Marshal Villars to the Duke of Ormond.—That the Governor of Dunkirk has orders to surrender, and will do it to-morrow, and that the day for declaring the cessation shall be at his Grace's pleasure. That he would be glad to know what troops would march with his Grace, and who he must esteem friends [and] who enemies, and that the King no longer looks upon him with the number of the last.

$\frac{4}{15}$ July. Cambresis. Duke of Ormond to Marshal Villars.—Cannot, at present, but hopes to-morrow, to be able to acquaint the Marshal what troops will obey his command. Cannot declare the cessation till he knows Dunkirk is evacuated, but when it is done, it shall be any day the Marshal shall appoint, and says he has already done it in effect by acquainting the Prince and Deputies that he will no longer assist them with the Queen's troops.

$\frac{6}{17}$ July. Avesnes le Sesque, sent by Captain Hart. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—That Colonel Lloyde is returned to his Grace, with a letter from Marshal Villars, and one enclosed from the Governor of Dunkirk to the Marshal, to acquaint him Dunkirk will be surrendered without delay to the English, when they arrive, and, therefore, according to the Queen's orders, he has declared a cessation. Refers to letters sent to, and received from, Marshal Villars inclosed. Says Prince Eugene marched yesterday and all the foreign troops, except the Holsteiners and Walloffés Dragoons, and that all the generals of all the foreigners had taken leave of him in the civilest manner. That this conduct was agreeable to what he long foresaw, and therefore thought it agreeable to the confidence recommended to them to acquaint Marshal Villars thereof, since he must first have had it from other hands.

The letters inclosed were to the effect following:—

$\frac{4}{15}$ July. Noyelle. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Says the surrender of Dunkirk fails only for the arrival of the English. That the French King ordered him to declare a cessation on the 18th, not doubting but the surrender would be before that time, and desires the duke would declare a cessation at the same time. Desires also to know, what enemies they had now remaining. That he is informed Prince Eugene will march to Landrecies, and if so, then the Duke's army will prevent his approaches towards them.

$\frac{5}{16}$ July. Cambresis. The Duke to Marshall Villars.—Received the Marshal's of the 15th. That Prince Eugene marched this morning with all the foreign troops, except the Hollsteiners and Walloffés Dragoons. That his Grace knew not certainly till now, what troops would march, and to show his sincerity he has proposed to take into the Queen's corps some battalions and squadrons that were in the common corps of her and the States. That the cessation has already its effect by declaring he would not assist the Prince and Deputies, and by separating the Queen's troops and artillery, and by the pay of the foreign troops being stopped. That he depends on the Marshall's fidelity, and to-morrow will make (sic) expecting the news of surrendering Dunkirk.

$\frac{5}{16}$ July. Noyelle. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Inclosed C. D. Le Mont Governor of Dunkirk's letter whereby it appears the town will be surrendered whenever the English troops arrive.

The purport of the Governor's letter inclosed, was:—

$\frac{5}{16}$ July. Dunkirk. C. D. Le Mont to Marshal Villars.—That he received the Marshal's dispatch by Colonel Lloyde, with the orders from the King for surrendering of Dunkirk, the citadel and forts. That he has sent back Col. Lloyde with his, and will obey the King's orders when the English arrive. That the Generals Abercrombie and King are with him, and that they have concerted the method of the French evacuating, and the English taking possession of that place, and when the English troops arrive he will despatch another courier to the Marshal.

$\frac{5}{16}$ July. Noyelle. Marshal Villars to the Duke of Ormond.—Refers to the Governor's letter, that Dunkirk will be surrendered when the English arrive. Desires to know which way his Grace intends to march, and says he may have the liberty of any part of the King's territories. That had the last General been as faithful to the Queen as his Grace, the Dutch would not have been masters of all the places. That he would act all things in concert with his Grace. Desiring an interview with his Grace and Lord Strafford.

$\frac{5}{16}$ July. Noyelle. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Refers to his last. Renews his request to know which way the Duke intends to march and to have an interview, and proposes to meet half way betwixt their camps. Says a cessation will be declared to-morrow, throughout the King's army, and afterwards on the frontiers. Desires the Duke will do the like, and proposes to exchange instruments in form, for the cessation.

$\frac{6}{17}$ July. Cambresis. The Duke to Marshal Villars.—Says he is then mounting, in order to march to Avesnes le Sesque, intending to lie between Lille and Ypres, to wait there the Queen's order whether to go to Dunkirk or Ghent. Excuses his and Lord Strafford's meeting the Marshal, as not proper at this juncture. Desires a passport for Monsr. Barner, the Holstein commander. Says he has advised the foreign generals of his declaring a cessation, in which they may join.

$\frac{6}{17}$ July. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Inclosed a letter from the Marquis de Torcy to my Lord Strafford, which his Grace may peruse and send to my Lord Strafford, if he should be gone. Encloses also a passport for Monsr. Barner.

$\frac{\text{30 June}}{\text{11 July}}$. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—That he received his Grace's letters of the 15th and 17th, N.S. which he had laid before the Queen, who directs him to say, she is well pleased with his Grace's conduct and answer to Prince Eugene. Expresses the mighty concern her Majesty had for the obstinacy of the Imperialists, and states and wishes they may not repent. Directs his Grace to march to Dunkirk, that garrison being much too weak, and will be more so when they should withdraw the marines, which compose a third part, and are intended to be withdrawn, and that his Grace is also to march the Garrison out of Ghent thither, but is at liberty to pursue other methods in case of any unforeseen objections. That at the time his Grace resolves to march to Dunkirk, he is to communicate his design to Marshall Villars, to consult measures for the ease of the country, and, in the Queen's name to promise him satisfaction for whatever the forces should have of the subjects of France. That his Grace should be under no concern about the foolish report dispersed by the Dutch and their Allies here. That the Queen never depended upon any relations of his conduct, but by himself, and that story gained no belief with him. That orders would be given for such pay as his Grace had ordered, and that he should acquaint Walloffé, her Majesty was satisfied with his behaviour, and that he should have her protection. Incloses a letter to the Marquis de Torcy, the purport whereof was to acquaint him that his Grace had orders to march to Dunkirk with his troops, from where her Majesty could the easier remove them to England. That he had orders to concert his march to Dunkirk with Marshal Villars, and that satisfaction should be made for whatever the Queen's forces should have of the King's country.

$\frac{10}{21}$ July. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Received the letter of the 5th. Instead of going to Dunkirk he takes another route, the Queen leaving it to him. That the reasons for such contrary march, were from the ill-usage to the officers by the Dutch garrisons of Bouchain, Douay, &c., which his Grace believes they had orders for, although Count Hornpesch and Count Corneille sent to excuse it. That he will take care of the troops at Ghent and march and encamp on the canal of Bruges, and there expect further orders; and this he thinks necessary on account of something that passed at Bruges, which did not show the greatest respect showed by the inhabitants there to the Queen, and encloses a copy of Prince Eugene's letter to the States on that subject, which is pretty extraordinary.

$\frac{18}{29}$ July. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—Takes notice of the receipt of his Grace's letter of the 21st N.S. and that he has laid it before the Queen and Cabinet Council. Then expresses very fully the Queen's approbation of what he had done, and that by his march to Ghent the Dutch and Imperialists would be brought to a more decent way of behaviour to the Queen and her troops, than they have hitherto been. Her Majesty desires that Ghent, and the stores in the Garrison, may be taken care of, and that his Grace will keep possession thereof so long as he shall find it necessary.

$\frac{19}{30}$ July. ——. Takes notice of a letter he received from Monsieur Torcy upon the news of the defeat of the Earl of Albemarle at Denain and that thereby her Majesty had it in her power to give laws to the States. That in answer to that letter, he, by her Majesty's command, told Monsr. Torcy, that her Majesty would take all measures consistent with justice and honour, to overcome the obstinacy of her Allies and oblige them to a peace, and that his Grace had orders to secure the posts he was in possession of. That by the interest of the French, and perhaps some of the Queen's subjects may happily think it theirs too, that the Queen should join her forces with those of France, and so give laws to the Confederates, but her Majesty will continue equally just to all. That she cannot think of acting with the French against the Confederates, whatever the provocation may have been, and she is willing to hope that they may see their error and concur with her, and concludes [with] a repetition of her Majesty's desire that he keep Ghent and Bruges in his power.

$\frac{15}{26}$ July. Drongen. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Gives an account of his and Lord Strafford's arrival at Ghent, the 23rd and of their encampment with the right on the canal of Bruges, and the left upon the Lys, whereby they were made masters of that place and were at hand to throw some troops into Bruges, and send such reinforcement to Dunkirk as should be thought requisite. That should they entirely evacuate Ghent, there were two battalions there would possess it. That it is his Grace's opinion that when a competent number of battalions are sent to Dunkirk, four may be put into Bruges and the rest into Ghent, and the horse may be posted on the canal of Bruges. Recommends Mr. Barner and Baron Walloffé to the Queen, and hopes they will have such encouragement as he had orders to promise them. Refers him to Mr. Laws for an account of the battle of Denain. Has sent Colonel Armstrong to take an exact account of the state of Dunkirk. The Resident of Sreeves (?) has written to desire the pay may be continued to his master's battalion at Maestricht, in the Queen's pay, to which answer is sent him, that if they observe the cessation they shall be paid.

$\frac{21\text{ July}}{1\text{ Aug.}}$. Drongen. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Refers to Marshal Villar's letter, inclosed with an account of the Battle of Denain, and to his Grace's answer thereto. That he received a letter from Lord Albemarle, who was taken prisoner at Denain, to intercede for him, and therefore he had written on his be half to Marshal Villars, and hopes the Queen will excuse using her name therein, and believes that if Lord Albemarle had his liberty, his representations in Holland might be of service. Incloses the particulars of Mr. Hill's demands for the security of Dunkirk, which may be sent from his Grace, if her Majesty thinks fit. Desires instructions about the meat provided, and also what number of waggons—the 4 months for which they contracted being near expired. Believes 100 may suffice. That he shall want orders how to act, if any of the foreign troops join him, on the States consenting to a cessation.

The letters inclosed in the last, were—

$\frac{14}{25}$ July. Denain. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Sends inclosed, the relation of the Battle of Denain, and desires his Grace will forward it to the Plenipotentiaries at Utrecht.

$\frac{17}{28}$ July. Drongen. The Duke to Marshal Villars.—Thanks him for his relation of the Battle of Denain. That Lord Strafford departed yesterday for Utrecht, and his Grace has therefore dispatched a messenger with the account after him, to the Plenipotentiaries. Says he was under concern for Count Vanderberg, till he knew he had fallen under his hands. That some of the troops who took possession of Dunkirk would be recalled, and therefore he shall be obliged to send some battalions to supply their places; that he has orders to concert with him the march and to assure him they should make satisfaction for what damage they should do the King's subjects therein.

$\frac{23\text{ July}}{4\text{ Aug.}}$. Drongen. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Acknowledges the receipt of Lord Bolingbroke's letter of the $\frac{18}{29}$ July, O.S. Encloses Marshal Villars's answer to his letter about sending a reinforcement to Dunkirk. That the detachment thither consists of 6 battalions with proper artillery, under command of Brigadier Duzele, who, according to their route given them by his Grace, will be there the 10th instant. That his Grace has sent to the French Intendant a copy of their route, that they may meet with no difficulties in their march. That his Grace has sent 4 Battallions, under command of Brigadier Sutton, to Bruges, and that the usage of this country had been such, that he had not consulted the Council of State therein. Thinks after this, it is best with the small corps he has left to go for Ghent and encamp the horse on the other side of the canal. He refers to Marshal Villars' letter, inclosed, in answer to that his Grace mentions in his last letter, to have sent to him on Lord Albemarle's account. That the officers sent to Dunkirk will expect to be allowed forage till they are permitted to dispose of their field equipage. Thanks his Lordship for communicating to him his letters to Monsieur de Torcy, so agreeable to that justice and honour with which the Queen has all along acted.

The letter from the Marshal enclosed is thus :—

$\frac{\text{22 July}}{\text{2 Aug.}}$. Denain. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—That it was not in his power to give leave to Lord Albemarle, for the King only could do it, but said that he had given liberty to Captain Grangues at his Grace's request. Says they found much more at Marchiennes than could be expected, and that the loss to the States was such, that they must be infinitely concerned for their not accepting the cessation.

$\frac{\text{22 July}}{\text{2 Aug.}}$. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—Expresses the Queen's satisfaction in his Grace's keeping Ghent, Bruges, and Dunkirk. Directs a reinforcement of Dunkirk, and sending stores and artillery there, wherein to prevent difficulties, the French to be concerted; and when his Grace shall add to the Garrison of Dunkirk, that it may be given out that the Queen will immediately withdraw the guards and marines from thence. That the encouragement to the Holstein Dragoons and Walloffé's regiments should be made good, and what his Grace had promised to the battalions of Trèves and the Palatines.

$\frac{2}{13}$ August. Ghent. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—That there are but three battalions in Ghent, and the rest are encamped near the town. That the 4 battalions are well received at Bruges. That the battalions had got well to Dunkirk, but the barracks are not sufficient for more than two of them at present, and the other four are encamped without the town till room could be made for them within. That the French Intendant received them very civilly and joined in everything to facilitate their march. Desires to know what he shall say to the officers as to their field equipage, and on their behalf intercedes that the Queen will allow them the forage delivered them on their march. Supposes Mr. Walloffé has waited on his lordship. Desires the Queen will make good to Mr. Barner the pay of Major-general which he has lost in Holland by adhering to her interest. Has no answer from the Elector of Trèves. Hears of no other troops that will join him. If the Palatines make application, will answer them as he did the Minister of Trèves. That he is informed such is Marshal Villars situation, that Prince Eugene will not venture to attack him. Has no account of the trenches being opened against Douay. Has been at Bruges and was received very civilly there, and waits for the Queen's further commands at Ghent.

$\frac{6}{17}$ August. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Refers to a letter from Marshal Villars, inclosed, which he apprehends to be only a strain of the fallacious reasonings by which (as he terms it) our neighbours have been lately misled, than agreeable to the least appearance either of truth or probability. Has been informed by Major-General Seckendorffe, Commander of the Saxons, who passed that way for the Hague on the King's business that Douay is very ill-provided for a defence; that the Generals in the army are much divided, and the general discourse there is of peace, and the Prince Eugene declares if he had not speedily an opportunity of attacking the enemy, he will return home without passing through Holland. That from this discourse with Mr. Seckendorffe, he concluded the confederates cannot prevent the designs of the French and nothing but the good offices of the Queen could help them. Refers to the answer to Marshal Villars, now sent, but promises his further answer to Marshal Villars in his next, and refers also to a letter sent by him to Monsr. Bulan on his Grace's having information that several deserters from the Queen were entertained amongst the Hanoverians. Daily hopes for the Queen's orders, desired in his two last letters.

Inclosed in this letter was this:—

$\frac{2}{13}$ August. Leisant. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Says it is the opinion of the principal prisoners taken in the last action, that they strongly depend in Holland on a sudden revolution in England, but cannot imagine such an attempt should succeed. Says he stopped two deserters from Walloffé's regiment, and wants to know what he shall do with them; but if his Grace would have them back he begged they may not be put to death. Intends to open the trenches before Douay to-morrow, though he would rather defer it for a few days and carry it on the more vigorously.

$\frac{10}{21}$ August. Ghent. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Writes for instructions about providing winter quarters, and other measures relating to the troops. Says it will be a satisfaction to the officers to have leave to part with their field equipage, and recommends the Holsteiners and Walloffé's Dragoons to the Queen, to be forthwith satisfied their pay. Refers to his further answer to Marshal Villars' last letter inclosed.

The letter inclosed is to this purport:—

$\frac{8}{19}$ August. The Duke to Marshal Villars.—That the Allies and near neighbours to England, have of late amply showed the small respect they bear to the Queen and Ministry, and it is not to be wondered that such has been the consequence of their separation, as has befallen them; nor that their spleen is increased thereby, and that they now lay all their misfortune to the separation of the Queen's troops. Answers him there is no fear of a revolution in England, and that the general reports thereof proceed from their inclinations, and not from any assurances they would have thereof. Thanks him for his regard towards the interest of England and for his care of the deserters, and answers him they shall not suffer death.

$\frac{20}{31}$ August. Dunkirk. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—Acknowledges the receipt of his Grace's dispatches by the Prince de Ligne and Mr. Browne. Concludes his Grace has received an account from England of the suspension of arms by sea and land, which he concluded at Fountainbleau, and that he hopes a peace will intervene within the 4 months. That the English are perfectly masters of Dunkirk, and that it is reasonable they should continue so of Ghent and Bruges.

$\frac{\text{29 Aug.}}{\text{9 Sept.}}$ Ghent. The Duke of Ormond to the Secretary of State. —Acknowledges the receipt of his letter from Dunkirk. That he has received advice from England of the suspension for 4 months, and has declared it at Ghent, and Brigadier Sutton will do the same at Bruges, and he hopes peace will be concluded before that time.

That he will keep possession of Ghent and Bruges; and that the 7th he had a conference with Mr. Vegelin, who asked such questions, and his Grace returned such answers, as follows:—

Question 1. Whether the English would stay in Ghent and Bruges all the winter, or how long?

Answer. Could not tell, but saw no appearance of their being withdrawn, as yet.

Q. 2. Whether his grace will consent to the putting troops into Ghent to escort their convoys to the foreign garrisons?

A. Could not permit any but the Queen's troops into the town, but would not obstruct their convoys, and that their troops might come to the counterscarp and receive them, as they had to that time done.

Q. 3. Whether his Grace would let part of the Danish troops winter in Bruges, as they had usually done?

A. Could not let any into Ghent or Bruges, without orders from the Queen.

Q. 4. Whether his Grace did not think of providing winter forage for the troops, and to take that charge off the country?

A. Will take care the Queen's troops shall not want forage, and due regard shall be had to the good of the country, which was already shown by the regulation of forage furnished at present, by their sending the regiments to Dunkirk and lessening the number of the artillery horses and bread waggons to 30.

This was the substance of their conference, which he believes was not too much to Mr. Vegelin's satisfaction. Desires further orders as to forage and other matters necessary to be thought of, for wintering the troops.

$\frac{9}{20}$ September. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—Takes notice of the receipt of his Grace's letter of the 9th N.S. and that her Majesty was satisfied with his Grace's answer to Monsieur Vegelin. Directs that no troops but her own be admitted into Bruges or Ghent till further orders. Expresses the Queen's resentment of the ill-treatment of her subjects, with respect to the commerce in the Netherlands. That his Grace should make this re-partition of winter quarters in the manner by him proposed. That the officers should not be obliged to keep their field equipage, and that contracts should be made for winter forage, and recommends to his Grace the case of one White, a sufferer by the magistrates of Bruges, and that he acquaint the magistrates of Bruges that the Queen takes this treatment of her subjects extremely ill at their hands.

$\frac{9}{20}$ September. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—That her Majesty leaves it to his Grace, what troops shall be received into Bruges, and that she requires his continuance there till the campaign draws to a conclusion.

$\frac{4}{15}$ Sept. Ghent. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—This is an account of the repeated alarm Monsieur Villars had taken from the apprehensions the Dutch officers had given him of a sudden revolution in England, and encloses the Marshal's letter to him on that subject. Impatiently expects the Queen's orders, desired in his last dispatches.

The purport of the inclosed was:—

$\frac{1}{12}$ Sept. Presean. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Acquaints his Grace of the taking of Douay and investing Quesnoy, and that he cannot think Prince Eugene will hazard a battle, but he has taken care to render all such attempts fruitless. That my Lord Albemarle has all the liberty required. That all the Dutch generals, my Lord Albemarle and Count Hornspech, who was taken in Doway, talk with the greatest assurance of the Dutch depending on a speedy revolution in England.

$\frac{17}{28}$ September. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—Owns the receipt of his Grace's letter of the 15th, and that her Majesty approves of his Grace's answer to Marshal Villars. That the Queen's desire is, that those who talk at that rate should be acquainted that the Queen knows it and believes Lord Strafford will take notice of it, without saying from whence he has his intelligence, and that the Earl of Orrery should be sent to treat of the matters of commerce in the Netherlands.

$\frac{\text{23 Sept.}}{\text{3 Oct.}}$ Ghent. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Acknowledges the receipt of his lordship's letter of the 9th September. Submits to her Majesty's pleasure, that he shall continue in Flanders for some time longer. Recommends General Lumley as proper to be left in his room. Says Lord Orkney desires to go for England. Supposes Lords Stair and Cadogan will not be thought proper, and next proposes Sabine, if none of the others are approved of, and recommends Sabine (who was then going for England) to be received by his Lordship, suitable to his merit.

$\frac{10}{21}$ October. Ghent. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—He is to acquaint his Lordshipp, of an information that his Grace had received from a person well affected to her Majesty, to this effect:—That the successes at Fort Knock had encouraged, a project for surprising Newport or Furness, and that the fortifying Dixmunde is made use of as a pretence for drawing together troops sufficient to put the design in execution. That if it be thought for her Majesty's Service, it should be known his Grace was of opinion some means should be used to advise Marshal Villars of it, who may possibly think we may owe him that good office in requital of some information by him given his Grace in service of her Majesty. That he cannot yet mention his author's name, he desiring it should be private. Hears nothing from Bouchain, but is assured both armies that are to quarter in the most remote parts, are already on their march, and that Prince Eugene will be at Brussells the 24th.

$\frac{16}{27}$ October. Ghent. The Duke to the Secretary of State.—Refers to a letter received from Marshal Villars, dated the 20th, wherein he intimates that the campaign being ended, he was going to Paris, and therefore his Grace humbly requests that he may have leave to return home, since he can be of no longer service there. That Prince Eugene is at Brussels with all his generals, and Mr. Laws will give an account what they are doing. Hears the Prince is not fully complied with in his demands upon the provinces for his subsistance of his troops this winter. That he lately received letters from the Princess of Austria, to ask his favour in procuring her pension, which he excused, as not being in the Ministry, and referred her to my Lord Orrery, but his return meeting with new delays, she had desired his Grace to forward the enclosed papers to the Queen, which he desires may be laid before her in the most favourable manner. Is told by a gentleman from Brussels, that both armies are separated, and those that are to winter in this country, are in their quarters, and that Prince Eugene sets out Saturday next for the Hague.

The letter enclosed was thus:—

$\frac{9}{20}$ October. Aprés. Marshal Villars to the Duke.—Says Bouchain is surrendered at discretion, after 10 days siege. That he had received no answer from his Grace to the letter which gave him an account of the taking of Quesnoy. That he had heard my Lord Strafford had gone to England, from whence he would return very quickly, and put an end to that great work, the peace. Is concerned that he had not an interview with, and that he writ to Lord Oxford. Says he is going to Paris, and desires his Grace's commands thither.

$\frac{14}{25}$ October. The Secretary of State to the Duke.—Takes notice of a most scandalous paragraph in the Ghent Gazette received from Mr. Watkins, and thinks his Grace ought to take care to have the author brought to punishment. That he would answer his Grace's letters of the 15th and 21st N.S. as soon as he had received her Majesty's commands.

$\frac{\text{21 Oct.}}{\text{1 Nov.}}$ The Secretary of State to the Duke.—That her Majesty was pleased to allow of his Grace returning home, and directed his Grace to give particular commands to the officer to be left in command at Bruges, to be constantly on his guard, lest any surprise or insult should be offered him. That her Majesty is of the same opinion with his Grace concerning the use that is to be made of the intelligence mentioned in his Grace's letter of the 21st N.S.

THE PUBLIC REVENUE.

Book containing, amongst other things, the copy of a Report made to Parliament, and presented to the House by Mr. Scawen.

1659, April.—"A brief view of the public revenue, both certain and casual, with the ordinary expense of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland, and Ireland, respectively, for one year; together with the State of the public debts, as the same doth appear to the Committee appointed by the House of Commons for the inspection into the account and public revenue, as follows, that is to say:—

ENGLAND.

	li.	s.	d.
By assessment of 35,000 li. a month - -	420,000	0	0
By Customs and subsidies in London and the outports - - - - -	391,630	17	7¼
By the Custom of sea-coal exported out of England, and Scotland, in farm to Mr. Noell, at 22,000 li. a year, whereof he affirms, 2,216 li. 5*s.* 4*d.* is for the coals of Scotland, and is hereafter charged in the income of Scotland, and therefore to be here deducted; the remaining being - -	19,783	14	8
By the Excise of goods imported into London and the Outports - - - - - -	196,783	12	7
By the Excise of inland commodities of England, and Scotland, in farm to Mr. Noell at 65,000 li. a year, whereof Mr. Noell affirms 1,674 li. 9*s.* 5*d.* is for the inland Commodities of Scotland, and is hereafter charged as part of the income of Scotland, and therefore here deducted. The remain is - - - - -	58,375	15	7*
By the Excise of beer and ale in farm - -	329,011	0	0
By Receivers Generall arising chiefly by papist and delinquent estates - - -	54,087	5	9

---

* Note in margin; this should be 63,325*li.* 10*s.* 7*d.*

	li.	s.	d.
By probate of Wills	7,993	18	3
By postage of letters, in farm	14,000	0	0
By fines for alienations	4,883	13	4
By the Hanaper office	3,873	9	2
By the duty of Seacoal in farm	1,838	12	6
By Wine licences	4,131	6	1
By post-fines in farm	3,000	0	0
By the issue of Jurors, in farm	1,000	0	0
By the Green Wax, besides the wages of the Justices of the Peace	835	18	7¾
By the Sheriffs in the Pipe, and by minute rent, vested in trustees for the sale of fee-farme rents, and for lands extended, for outlawries and debts let to farm	1,542	14	3
By seizures in the Pipe	844	5	11
By Sheriffs for debts of several natures	498	1	3
By butlerage, in farm	500	0	0
By the profits of liberties	81	9	2
By the Forest of Dean, in several sorts of iron shot, delivered into the public stores of the Office of Ordnance	1,575	14	1¼
By the Mint	3	5	9
By the Alnage, a rent of 997*li.* 1*s.* 11*d.*, is in charge; but for 12 years last past, it has been ill paid and sometimes very little. In the year 1657, was answered	997	1	11
By first fruits and tenths	—
Note that we find in a report made by a Grand Committee for the public revenue in the year 1654, a yearly income set upon the particulars following, viz.:—
Upon the Forest of Dean	4,000	0	0
The Islands of Jersey and Guernsey	2,000	0	0
The Coinage of tin	2,000	0	0
But nothing answered for any of these, save the sum of 1,575*li.* 14*s.* 7*d.*, out of the Forest of Dean in iron shot, as is before expressed.
Note also that the last year there was answered in the Exchequer the several sums of money hereafter mentioned, viz.:—
For Dean and Chapter's land sold	3,433	11	7
For the fee-farm rents sold	1,134	15	4
Compositions for new buildings	30,229	19	7½
Prize goods	3,770	0	0
Fines of delinquents	3,565	15	9
Fines in Star Chamber	—
From the Commissioners of Sequestered Estates	160	0	0
From the Treasurers at Drury House	400	0	0
For estalled debts	603	6	8
From the Collectors of the 400,000*li.* subsidy	111	19	10½
From the duty of 1 per cent.	4,382	9	11

	li.	s.	d.
Fines of leases	26	4	0
For goods forfeited for treason	215	0	0
For land seized and extended	221	16	1

	li.	s.	d.	li.	s.	d.
For rent of land - - -	1,511	1	4
For Plymouth duty - -	500	0	0
For sale of woods - - -	58	10	0
For the Duchy of Lancaster -	649	8	0½
For the Yorkshire Engagement -	400	0	0

These duties are casual and many of them expired, and the rest are declining, and though some money may be raised and gotten in upon them, towards the payment of the public debts, yet are not to be reckoned and relied upon as an annual income.

	li.	s.	d.
And so the whole annual income of England is -	1,517,274	17	1*

SCOTLAND.

	li.	s.	d.
The annual revenue of Scotland was, vizt. :—
By assessment of 6,000*li.* per month, per annum	72,000	0	0
By property and constant rent repayable to the Exchequer - - - - -	5,324	18	5½
By casual and uncertain rents, received by Sheriffs, and accounted for the Exchequer -	576	3	5
By composition of Signatories in the Exchequer	929	6	0
By customs, inward and outward, and by the excise of goods imported, in farm to Mr. Noell	12,500	0	0
By the custom of Seacoal in farm to Mr Noell, with the customs of Seacoal in England at the rent of 22,000*li.* a year, and for which Mr. Noell affirms that the sum of 2,216*li.* 5*s.* 4*d.* is paid for the Coals of Scotland, and is therefore deducted out of that rent in the income of England before mentioned, and is here to be charged as part of the income of Scotland - -	2,216	5	4
By the excise of foreign Salt 550*li.* a year, and by the Excise of inland Salt, 1,124*li.* 9*s.* 5*d.*, in all 1,674*li.* 9*s.* 5*d.*, which commodities are in farm to Mr. Noell with the Excise of the inland Commodities of England under the yearly rent of 65,000*li.*, and is therefore deducted out of that rent in the income of England before mentioned, and is here to be charged as part of the income of Scotland - - -	1,674	9	5
By the Excise of beer, ale, and aqua-vitæ -	47,444	13	4
By the forfeiture of goods uncustomed and unexcised - - - - -	595	10	11½
By the interest of money set apart for the Judges salaries - - - - -	392	5	0
And so the whole annual income of Scotland is	143,652	11	11†

---

* Note in margin; this should be 1,517,274*li.* 17*s.* 3¼*d.*

† Note in margin; this should be 143,653*li.* 9*s.* 0*d.*

Memorandum.—It doth appear to this Committee that by an order of the 11th of September, 1656, by the Lord Protector and his Council, the Marquis of Argyle is to receive the Moiety of the Excise of wines and strong waters in Scotland, and not exceeding 3,000*li.* a year, until he shall receive 12,116*li.* 13*s.* 4*d.* in full of 145,400*li.* Scotch, with interest; and by the auditor's certificate of Scotland it appeared that the Marquis hath received by a particular order of the Lord Protector [and] Council 1,000*li.* in part thereof, and that there remains 11,116*li.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, upon which the Council of Scotland has given no order for the Marquis' satisfaction.

[IRELAND.]

The Annual revenue of Ireland, viz. :—

	li.	s.	d.
By the Assessment of 9,000*li.* a month - -	108,000	0	0
By Customs and Excise, in farm - -	70,000	0	0
By rent of lands and houses - - -	20,679	0	0
By rent of impropriations, etc. - - -	7,611	0	0
By Sheriffs accounts, the Hanaper accounts, with fines and amerciaments - - -	1,500	0	0
And so the whole annual income of Ireland is -	207,790	0	0
As above, of Scotland - - - -	143,652	11	11
,, ,, of England - - - -	1,517,274	17	1
So the annual income of England, Scotland, and Ireland, is - - - - -	1,868,717	9	0

The issues and expense of them is as follows, vizt. :—

The issues of England in paying the Army of England, at 29,301*li.* 18*s.* 10*d.* by the Month, according to the establishment hereafter following, viz. :—

	By the Month.			By the Year.
	li.	s.	d.	li.	s.	d.
To the general officers of the army	639	11	4
To nine regiments of horse, each regiment consisting of 6 troops, and each troop of 48 soldiers -	11,709	12	0
To the Life Guard of 106 soldiers	1,080	16	0
To 8 regiments, and two companies, of foot, each regiment consisting of ten companies, and each company of 80 soldiers -	9,415	6	4
To the train of Artillery - -	44	12	6
To diverse garrisons in several places - - - -	6,422	0	8
				380,925	4	10
In part of the pay of the army of Ireland, out of the assessments in England - - -	8,000	0	0	104,000	0	0

	Per Month.			By the Month.			By the Yeare.
	li.	s.	d.	li.	s.	d.	li.	s.	d.
In part of the pay of the army in Scotland, out of the assessments in England - - -				11,400	0	0	148,200	0	0
In pay of the forces in Jamaica, consisting of 1,597 soldiers with officers - - -				4,153	2	0	53,990	6	0
In pay of the forces in Flanders: viz.:—
To a regiment of horse, consisting of 6 troops, and each troop of 95 troopers	2,269	1	0
To 3 regiments of foot, each regiment consisting of 10 companies and each company of 90 soldiers - -	3,357	4	0
To two majors one for Dunkirk and one for Mardike -	9	6	8
To the train of artillery - -	266	14	0
For contingencies -	49	0	0	5,951	5	8	77,366	5	0
To a minister per annum 200 li.
The whole pay of the army and forces for a year by England is, besides an allowance of clothes to the non-commissioned officers and soldiers in Flanders - - - - -							764,481	15	10
In pay to the ordinary guards and fleets at sea, and building of ships by way of estimate as follows: vizt.
				li.	s.	d.
For the charge of 7,500 men, to be employed in 50 ships, for a summer's guard for 7 months, at 4*li.* a man by the month -				30,000	0	0	210,000	0	0
For the charge of 5,250 men, to be employed in 35 ships, for a winter's guard, at 4*li.*, for 7 months - - -				21,000	0	0	147,000	0	0
For building of ships yearly - - -							40,000	0	0
In pay to the Commissioners of the Admiralty and Navy, and the Treasurers of the Navy -							7,744	0	0
In pay to the standing officers belonging to the Guards, and of ships in the harbour - -							3,628	6	10
In pay to the officers and seamen employed in the looking to the ships in dock, and otherwise unemployed - - - - -							45,613	13	9
The whole charge of the Navy by the year is -							453,986	0	7

	li.	s.	d.
In interest paid for 268,047*li.* 19*s.* 6*d.*, charged upon the receipt of Excise, by acts and ordinances of Parliament, for a year is - -	20,585	13	7
In Expense of his Highness his household yearly	100,000	0	0
In repairs of his Highness houses yearly -	5,650	0	0
In moneys advanced to the Treasurer of his Highness, public contingencies - -	23,496	6	8
In allowance to public ministers employed abroad	11,089	11	2
In gifts and rewards - - - -	2,262	12	2
In payments of sundry natures, as per a particular - - - - - -	11,734	12	8
In liberaties of the Court of Receipt and of the Exchequer, and for a defalcation upon sea-coal	582	16	3¾
In allowances, fees, and salaries, paid out of the Exchequer - - - - -	24,674	7	7¼
In pensions and annuities paid out of the Exchequer - - - - -	5,897	0	0
In salaries to Judges in England and Wales, and a pension of 500*li.* yearly paid out of the Customs to the Earl of Nottingham - -	16,286	13	4
In salaries, fees, and charges, incident and extraordinary in managing the Excise yearly -	28,178	3	11
In the like, in managing the Customs yearly -	42,714	3	5
In the like, for collecting the monthly assessment of 35,000 [li.] a month, the sum of 7,000*li.*, and for the charges and salaries of the Committee of the Army and Treasurers-at-War, 8,279*li.* 9*s.* 2*d.* In all - - -	15,279	9	2
In the like, for the Committee of Appeals -	1,800	0	0
In the like, for the Judges and other officers employed in the probate of wills and incident charges - - - - -	2,584	10	0
In the like, paid by, and allowed to, the Clerk of the Hanaper in ordinary 701*li.* 7*s.* 4*d.*, and of extraordinary payments 3,123*li.* 19*s.* 7*d.* -	3,875	6	11
In like fees and allowances to the Receiver, etc., of the Office of Alienations - - -	1,044	17	0
In fees to the officers of the Mint, with their diet and incident charges - - - -	1,154	19	5
In officers' salaries, rent, and other charges of the Office of wine licences by estimate - -	600	0	0
In fees and allowances to the Auditor and Receiver of the revenue - - - -	4,287	10	4
In allowances in the Pipe upon Sheriffs accounts by warrant from the Commissioners of the Treasury, and judgment of the Court of Exchequer; viz.:—for casual necessaries of several natures, 2,498*li.* 14*s.* 10*d.*, for apprehending of felons 945*li.*, and in fees for passing Sheriffs accounts 2,098*li.* In all - - -	5,541	14	10
The sum is - - -	329,320	8	6½
The whole issues of England for a year is -	*1,547,788	4	4½

---

* Note in margin; this should be 1,547,788*li.* 4*s.* 11*d.*

THE ISSUES OF SCOTLAND.

In pay of the army in Scotland 20,818*li.* 14*s.* 2*d.* a month according to the following establishment viz :—

	Per Month.
	li.	s.	d.	li.	s.	d.
To the General officers of the army - - -	243	14	0
To 5 regiments of horse, each regiment consisting of 6 troops, and each troop of 48 soldiers - - -	6,505	6	8
To 11 regiments and one company of foot each regiment consisting of 10 companies, and each company of 70 soldiers - - -	11,900	2	4
To four companies of Dragoons, each company consisting of 48 Dragoons - -	630	18	8
To the train of Artillery -	50	19	2
To divers Garrisons in several places - - -	288	3	4
To defray contingencies -	1,100	0	0
				270,643	4	2

	Year.
	li.	s.	d.
In salary of the Council and other officers -	9,410	11	0
In contingent charges of the Council - -	350	0	0
In Salaries to the Court of Exchequer - -	1,833	4	2
In contingent charges of the Exchequer - -	80	10	2
In salaries to the Courts of Justice - -	4,246	4	0
In contingent charges of the Courts of Justice -	485	12	0
In salaries to the Commissioners of the Customs and of the Excise - - - -	4,177	9	6
In contingent charges of the said Commissioners	771	9	4
In salary to the Court of Admiralty and their officers - - - - -	304	8	8
In the contingent charges of the Admiralty -	167	14	1
In charges of an hospital - - -	587	10	6
In fires and candles to soldiers for guards, etc. -	5,297	19	4
In pensions and other temporary contingencies -	8,915	15	9
The whole issues of Scotland for a year is	307,271	12	8½

THE ISSUES OF IRELAND.

In pay of the army in Ireland, at 23,967*li.* 17*s.* 4*d.* by the month, according to the following Establishment, viz :—

	li.	s.	d.	li.	s.	d.
To the general officers of the army - - -	657	17	4
To 11 regiments and 10 companies of foot - -	11,473	0	0
To 6 regiments and 3 troops of horse - - -	9,293	19	4

	li.	s.	d.	li.	s.	d.
To a regiment of dragoons -	1,162	4	8
To the Life Guard of Horse -	277	18	0
To a foot guard - -	155	8	0
To an hospital - - -	279	4	0
To reparation of garrisons -	500	0	0
				311,582	5	4
To the entertainment of the Lord Lieutenant				3,864	8	11
In allowances to the Council, and the Clerk of the Council, and their clerks and attendants -				7,600	0	0
In allowances to the Lord Chancellor, and the Officers of the Chancery - - -				2,258	0	0
In allowances to the Lord Chief Justice of the Upper Bench, and two Judges, and Clerks of the Court - - - - -				1,167	10	0
In allowances to the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and two Judges, with their Prothonotary - - - - -				1,007	10	0
In allowances to the Chancellor, Chief Baron, and two Barons of the Exchequer, with other officers and payments by liberate - -				1,991	15	0
In pay and allowance to the Justices of Assizes, in 5 Circuits - - - - -				1,000	0	0
In pay to the Lord President of Connaught and two provost marshals in Leinster and Munster				1,887	0	0
In pay to the overseers of the hospital in Dublin, nine muster masters, 5 commissioners of stores, to the overseers of the States houses with an allowance to the Provost and Fellows of Trinity College - - - -				1,807	8	4
In pay of 8 receivers of the revenue - -				165	0	0
In pay to 28 comptrollers and Searchers of the Customs - - - - -				1,150	0	0
In pensions to maimed soldiers and widows and orphans of soldiers - - - -				3,000	0	0
In allowance and contingencies extraordinary, gratuities, and other casual issues - -				8,000	0	0
The whole issues of Ireland - -				346,480	18	3*

	li.	s.	d.
The annual income of England is - -	1,517,274	17	1
The annual issues and expenses of England is -	1,547,788	4	4½
So the issues or expense exceed the income by	30,513	7	3½
The annual income of Scotland is - -	143,652	11	11
The annual issues and expenses of Scotland is -	307,271	12	8½
So the issues or expense exceed the income by	163,619	0	9½
The annual income of Ireland is - - -	207,790	0	0
The annual issues and expenses of Ireland is -	346,480	18	3

---

* Note in margin; this should be 346,480*li.* 17*s.* 7*d.*

	li.	s.	d.
So the issues and expenses exceed the income by	138,690	18	3
The annual income of England, Scotland and Ireland is - - - - - -	1,868,717	9	0
The annual issues and expenses of England, Scotland, and Ireland is - - - -	2,201,540	15	4

	li.	s.	d.	li.	s.	d.
So the issues and expenses exceed the income, viz.:
By 11,400*li.* paid monthly by England for Scotland, which yearly is - - -	148,200	0	0
By 8,000*li.* paid monthly by England for Ireland, which yearly is - - -	104,000	0	0
By the balance which is more -	80,623	6	4
				332,823	6	4

The state of the debt follows, viz. :—

England, 1659.

	li.	s.	d.
The state of the debt of the Common-wealth:
To the navy, to the first of November 1658, as the same is certified by the Commissioners of the Admiralty, and of the Navy by way of estimate - - - - - -	541,465	14	7
To the army in England to the 29th of March, 1659, as the same is certified by the Committee of the army - - - - - -	223,747	8	5½
To the army in Scotland, to the 29th of March, 1659, as the same is certified by the Auditor of Scotland - - - - - -	93,827	13	0¾
More for the citadel of Leith - - -	1,800	0	0
To the army in Ireland to the 20th December, as the same is certified by the Council of Ireland -	299,225	5	4
More to pay up that army to the 29th of March, 1659, by estimate - - -	71,903	12	0
To the forces in Jamaica to the first of February, 1657, 103,045*li.* 18*s.* 11*d.*, as by a certificate from the Treasurer for that service, ⅓ part whereof being abated for provisions, there is due 68,697*li.* 5*s.* 11⅓*d.*, and for the said forces from thence, to the 26th March, 1659, at 4,153*li.* 2*s.* 0*d.*, per month, for 15 months 62,296*li.* 18*s.* 0*d.*, out of which one third being abated for provisions as before, there is due in the whole - - - - - -	110,228	11	3⅓
To several persons for provisions for the forces in Flanders, as by a certificate from the Commissioners of the Treasury - - -	13,153	6	1
To several persons for money charged by acts and ordinances of parliament, as by the account of the Commissioners of excise appears -	268,047	19	6
To several persons charged upon the Exchequer, as the same is certified by the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury - - -	124,184	15	6

	li.	s.	d.
The whole debts at present are - - -	1,747,584	5	9
Besides which there is a growing debt incurring for the Navy for this present year's service, determining the first of November 1659, over and above the sum of 143,292*li.* 19*s.* 8½*d.* which is already received towards this service, and the sum of 466,243*li.* 0*s.* 7*d.* allowed for the ordinary charge of the fleet, as in the issues of this year appears, the sum of - -	393,882	8	0
And further, whereas the said issues and expenses for England, Scotland, and Ireland exceed the income 80,623*li.* 6*s.* 4*d.*, as by the balance of the three nations is before declared, that sum is a debt on the Commonwealth, and will be due before the end of the year - -	80,623	6	4
The whole debt of the public at present, and before the year's end is, and will be - -	2,222,090	0	1

That is to say:—

	li.	s.	d.
In the present debt before mentioned - - -	1,747,584	5	9
In the growing debt of the Navy for the present year as above - - -	393,882	8	0
In the issues this year more than the income - -	80,623	6	4
				2,222,090	0	1

Besides what may be due to the Flanders forces.

A collection of what debts we find owing to the Commonwealth, and of money in cash, and what money we find received by the Treasurer of the Navy for the supply of this year's service out of the Customs and Excise, unto the 25th of March, 1659, and since the report of the committee delivered into House of the debt of the Commonwealth, all which sums will lessen the debt of the Commonwealth for so much as they come unto, viz. :—

	li.	s.	d.
By the farmers, sub-commissioners, and others, employed in the Excise, from the year 1649 to the last of March, 1659 - - -	41,761	19	2
By the farmers of excise of beer and ale, and inland commodities due 25th March, 1659 -	150,704	14	8
By Mr. Noell upon the farm of the customs of sea-coal due then - - - -	12,000	0	0
By the compounders of new buildings - -	46,254	9	5½
By Receivers General, by estimate due the 25th March [16]59 - - - -	25,000	0	0
By money paid out of the Customs and Excise to the Treasurer of the Navy before the 25th March, 1659 - - - - -	70,229	6	1¼
In cash in the hands of the Treasurers-at-war -	3,717	18	0
In cash in the hands of the Customers on the 25th March, 1659 - - - -	9,272	7	5½
	358,940	14	10¼

Examined 25 June 1663.

The Volume also contains :—

An Account of the pay of the land forces and garrisons, of England from 1 January 1677–8 to 18th March following.

"A list of the Ships taken and carried into Algiers, come unto hand December 18, 1677."

An Account of the Navy from 1 April 1665 to 1st April 1670. Given under the headings "Ships Sold," "Ships taken by the Dutch," "Ships burnt, sunk [or] broken up."

A paper entitled "What is required in a General or Admiral, at Sea," "Instructions briefly collected, to be given by a General or Admiral to his Captains," and numerous other "Instructions," which set out the duties of the different persons employed on board ship. One of the headings is "Concerning differences between Masters and Captains," it is set out that "there has been, in these modern voyages, much emulation and contention between Captains and Masters on his Majesty's ships, and other ships pressed for his service, in regard they both had then Commissions from the Lord Admiral. This was not heard of in the time of Queen Elizabeth; for the Captain commonly made choice of his Master, and always had the superiority of the ship and company, wherein the Master was comprehended." This was as it should be; but since the long time of peace in the reign of James I., "when there "was no use of Captains but in the Narrow Seas," the idea has become prevalent that a Master may not be displaced by a Captain.

Following this, is "the Order of Military watches," and a treatise on the "Preparation to War."

LETTERS.

CHARLOTTE, COUNTESS OF DERBY to "MONSIEUR LEGGE."

1661[2], February 18. Knowsley.—"Votre voyage a Donkirk m'ayent privé du bon heur de vous voir fors que je quité Londre, fait que je prens la liberté de vous inportuner de saite lettre et vous dire quelques discours qui se passerent un peu auparavant on me parla alors de la bonté qu'il plaisoit au roy d'avoir pour nostre famille en consideration de la memoire de feu monsieur mon mary. Je say fort bien et reconnoitray toujours que quoy que sa perte ait caussé la ruine totale de mais pouvres jeunnes enfans et de moy, il n'a perdeu que ce qu'il devoit a un sy bon maistre et mon regret est (comme estoit le sien un peu devant sa mort) qu'il n'a peu pleus utillement servir sa Majesté nean moins puis que comme l'on me l'a temoigné le roy avoit en pensée de marquer de quelque titre d'honneur sa memoire et que maime sa Majesté ne me croiet pas indigne d'en porter la quallité (mais sentimens ayent tousjours suivi les siens en toutes chosses et prinsipallement en ce qui regardoit le servise de sa Majesté) Je vous supplie me tant obliger que de me mender sy je puis attandre saite gracce; mon age joint à l'experiance funeste que j'ay de l'incertitude des chossez de saite vie m'a long temps detourné de saite penseé, mais la consideration de ce que je devois à mon mary et à mes jeunnes enfans, qui outre le menque de moyens caussé par la perte de monsieur leur père ce trouve encore elloignes des lieux où ils pourois parestre faute de quallité pour leur en donner l'entrée, m'a fait enfin souheter saite faveur spesialle de la bonté du roy que sy il plaisoit à sa Majesté m'onorer de quelque nouveau titre il me sufiroit de que mes jeunes enfans puisent jouir du privilige qu'ils aurois eu sy monsieur leur père l'eust eu de son vivant, sans que la qualité desendist à aucun par apres, l'ené en ayent desa une assez considerable sy il eust pleu a Dieu de conserver monsieur mon mary en vie jeusque au rétablisement heureux de sa Majesté; son intention estoit de supplier le roy de faire ces jèunnes enfans successeurs de sa quallité et son bien à causse du desplesir que son fils ayné luy avoit caussé en venent contre son commandement expruis parmy les rebelles en Engleterre et il le la ecrit en ces termes de sa propre main au dernier testament qu'il a fait mais les loix du royaume empaiche le testamant d'estre vallable à causse de l'intayle qu'il estoit en son pouvoir de couper sy le service du roy ne l'eust empaiché d'estre pour lors sur lieux où cela ce fait d'ordinere, vous voyes monsieur la confience que j'ay en vous fondée sur l'amitie que vous avez il y a long temps porté au nostre maison laquelle je vous conjure de me continuer. Seals.

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1663, September 19. Dublin.—"I beg your favour in the serious perusal of the inclosed paper, being a thing I offered to your consideration when in Ireland, which you judged a just and equitable provision to have been included in the Act of Settlement then past, and omitted. But, now, Sir, it may be presumed that the complete settlement of Ireland may centre in the bill, lately transmitted: if so, this may be a proper clause inserted therein, and may very well be construed a part, and consistent with the general settlement, which hath graciously provided for all interests except this. For be pleased to observe, the Irishman who possibly hath erred, yet is restored by a judgment of innocence, or his Majesty's special grace; the soldier and adventurer who have gained estates, not in the due way, yet are confirmed in such their lands and possessions by his Majesty's gracious bounty; and is there anything done in favour of the loyal, poor, suffering, despoiled Protestants of Ireland, whose lives and estates were exposed, and made the enemy's spoil and prey, in the beginning, during the rebellion, and continued sufferers under persecution of the Usurper, till redeemed by his Majesty's happy restoration. And shall they not find favour in his sight, which, that we have not hitherto in this, is attributed to no other reason than our own remissness. But now, most honoured Sir, an opportunity is (if befriended at Court) for inserting this particular proviso in the bill pending before his Majesty and Council, which, as I have heard several serious men discourse, will rather facilitate the passing, than anywise impede it. M^r^ Attorney here, doth approve, and hath promised, to write unto you about it. Daniel Gahan hath sent to M^r^ O'Neile, the same proviso; and I earnestly beseech, and not only I, but the dispoiled Protestants of Ireland, do implore your hearty engaging and appearance for us, and then we doubt not of good success, wherein you will attract our prayers, with honour to yourself and a grateful acknowledgment from all, who must acknowledge you the author of the justice and benefit they shall receive thereby, particularly myself in an especial manner, my case being thus:—

My father, before the Rebellion, took a lease from a papist, paid him a fine, bestowed upon his land above 2,000*li.*, which improved the same from 60*li.* to 200*li.* per annum. The Rebellion breaking forth, my father, with his family, was forced to fly for safety of life, being robbed and spoiled of his substance to a great value, and the place laid waste.

In the Usurper's time, this landlord of mine (being countenanced and encouraged by a fanatic, then Mayor and Governor of this City, Alderman Hutchinson by name) possessed himself of my said farm, and set it over to Hutchinson for a long term, at an under rent, to commence immediately, notwithstanding my lease was then, and yet in being. Hutchinson accordingly entered, and for seven or eight years kept me out by his power. And now, having lately recovered my right, am in possession, but my lease is almost expired. And then the papist and fanatic who between them have wasted and detained the premises by oppression, for 16 or 17 years together, shall jump into the improvements and prefer any other before the old tenant. Pardon me, Sir, in that I instanced this particular grievance of my own, which represents unto you what it is in general, being much the same, wherein we can have no relief, but by Act of Parliament, according to the tenor of this proviso. . . . . It is no more than what before the Rebellion hath sometimes been prudently and candidly covenanted between landlord and tenant, that, in case of war or insurrection, the rent should not grow nor the term efflux. And where is the prejudice, the landlord receiving his old rent during the addition of years, and the tenant subject to all conditions and penalties as before."

Postscript.—"Methinks we hear the adventurer and soldier repine at fearing it may have some reflections upon their lots, by the continuance of the Protestant's lease. Say it should (which is but rare), they have the reserved rent and reversion. But if any such insatiable wretch whether there be, which this does not answer, let it be remembered and considered, that the soldier whose duty was to have fought the suppressing the Rebellion of Ireland, turned his sword against the King in England, and afterwards against his authority in Ireland (for which he hath got his estate); and the adventurers, money supported, which was not the meaning of the Acts 16 & 17 Car., which designed both for the relief of those dispoiled Protestants, whom such as would oppose this proviso are so far from, that they would rather continue their oppressions by building themselves houses out of the ruins of their destroyed families, and yet amidst their cruelties to their brethren, would be styled English interest men. As for the '49 men or interest, they may not oppose, for we are the same." Seal of Arms.

JAMES JONES to Colonel [WILLIAM] LEGGE.

1663, November 4. Dublin.—"Being returned from the County of Louth, upon which I promised to give as exact an account of your affairs there as might be, they are thus:—At my being in those parts, Dr Loftus was in Drogheda as chancellor, representing my Lord Primate, upon the occasion of uniting of parishes and dividing of livings, according [to] an Act of Parliament. The clergy and country were all summoned, and I appeared to assert the right; which was done, and your possession of the rectories so well maintained, in face of the pretending incumbents, that they declined depending on them, as any certainty by the Primate's grant, but became petitioners to recommend them unto you for presentations to the vicarages and cures. I told Dr Loftus and them, that where there was a vicarage endowed, you did not, nor would, hinder or obstruct him in the vicarial part, but rather add by way of encouragement and where there was to be a stipendiary curate, you would present a fit person, giving him a handsome competency. This seemed well, and Dr Loftus was civil; and upon this union of churches, one happened to be appointed at Kilsaran and another at Dunleer as gratifying you, the proprietor of the lands. After this, being speedily returned to Dublin, I understood from Mr Attorney that the Primate was very incessant with my Lord-Lieutenant to retrench your proviso, so far as the church pretended to, I instantly engaged Mr Solicitor, and Sir William Davis to oppose, and vindicate your interest according [to] the inclosed instructions herewith sent for your own private satisfaction, being the best, I think, that could be made of your case. Whereupon, your counsel might press and enlarge. Well, Sir, on Saturday last, being the very period of time, and the last minute, my Lord Primate moved for a retrenchment, and was opposed; and your right and title asserted by all your counsel and vigorously pleaded. But it would not do; the Church must be tendered, and yet, my Lord-Lieutenant was very much concerned for Colonel Legge's loss by this retrenchment, which was urged, and so is taken to be the only considerable thing of your grant, worth 400*li. per annum*, and the remaining part, worth little or nothing. And now Sir, you become a suitor for an equal compensation in lieu, whereupon Mr Attorney, being troubled, moved my Lord-Lieutenant on your behalf in that particular. My Lord, it seems, is very zealous and inclinable, hath declared himself concerned, and will himself or hath written unto you about it. Mr Attorney I must say, is very studious in the thing, hath proposed a way, and writes unto you by Mr Keating, who goes Agent over for the '49 men, to which I must refer and long for a speedy return with your further commands.

"Sir, for the ease of your mind, I will let you know what the yearly value of these glebes and rectories are, and might be, and what troubles and incumbrances you must have been subject unto. I have searched into the thing, and can do it. The most they could be set for, last year, was 161*li.* 6*s.* 8*d.* and I am very confident, the country being settled, they will never rise to 250*li. per annum*, out of which very thing you must have paid, in Crown rent, 4*li.* or 5*li.*, and fifty pounds yearly, at least. You must have repaired churches, given stipends to three chaplains and been perpetually troubled with the hungry whining vicars, so as, in truth, I believe you would have given them all for their bare prayers. Again, if your proviso had not been stirred, it is to be doubted whether, by the law, you could have carried the Preceptory of Kilsaran, the main thing and not inserted. Then my Lord of Drogheda, hath in the late King's time a patent, past in reversion, of the Lord Louth's lease of Carlanstown, one of the prime rectories worth 30*li.* per annum. This considered, besides all other troubles incident, fare it well, so as you compass the 3,000 acres, with the remainder of your former grant, turned into an estate in fee. As for Dunleer and Dunany, your counsel are of opinion, we shall do well enough with Smyth, as also with Sir Thomas Bramwell, for your land of Termonfeckin, though you may remember he hath passed a patent of them; but you must mind whether either of them gets any further clauses in this bill. These lands contain 2,000 acres, not much incumbered by decrees of the Court of Claims. You do not forget how Cary Dillon hath passed a patent of Templetown, between his Majesty's letter and your proviso in the Act of Settlement. Of this, you may advise how prevalent his patent is and what to do. The Lordship of Kilsaran with the demesne lands thereto belonging, is not anywise touched by the retrenchment, and we are now taking care how to have it penned best for your advantage.

"Sir, I have not as yet received any rents out of any part of the estate, save Monasterboice, which I set this year for 60*li.* That which Smith pretends unto, I manage as well as may be, rebus sic stantibus. I will not stand now to give you an account of his, and Allen's, litigious, knavish, practices. My many endeavours, by advice and otherwise, being to secure the title of a thing so considerable, hedged in by fortune, which, methinks, if you post over his Majesty's letter speedily, for passing your whole grant, as Mr Attorney, I presume, hath written whereupon diligence being used here to get it under seal, it may happen time enough to be confirmed by this bill, and then, surely, all will be safe.

"As for your impropriations, all Mr Combs and I could do was to maintain your right of possession, but got little rents out of the tenants hands; not so much, I am afraid, as quit trouble and charge, and probably the victorious Primate may aim to have it refunded. What it yet is, I have not had an account from Mr Combs, who stood up honestly for your interest therein, even to a sentence of excommunication, and now is worse 'disgruntled' (sic), and myself too, upon this retrenchment which affords occasion to the brisk Levites to . . . . .

"Sir, you gave me no resolution concerning Bellingham; so as, this term, I purpose to do against him what I may for the rents of Kilsaran. Sir George Lane did attend at Council Board and vouch the late Primate's promotion and consent to your proviso in the Act of Settlement, which he did heartily, he saith; and of it, you may take notice to humour him."

Sir WILLIAM DUMVILE to Col. WILLIAM LEGGE.

1664, July 2.—"I must now advertise you to secure yourself and get your Patent secured in the Act, and then you are safe as to the things of this world, as to that which concerns the other, I know you have stoical Charles to advise you with much gravity and morosity. . . . . There are some of the Talbots who are supposed here to have secured some thirty thousand pounds to themselves upon undertakings to get in the secluded Irish into their estates—I have just cause to fear they have undertaken for mine."

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1665, June 28. Dublin.—"A prohibition is granted against Dr Williamson and when the next seal is over—where Mr Attorney will be on your behalf—I intend for Connaught, but before going, shall more particularly inform you of those matters."

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1665, July 19. Dublin.—"The 15th of this instant, they that dispossessed you of Dunleer were turned off your lands and you restored. At the Assizes in Dundalk, your tenants were, upon trial, acquitted of five pretended actions of trespass, brought against them; and your tenants of Templetown, dismissed from four civil bills brought against them for rent claimed thereout, by one who pretends both, under the Primate and Tyrconnell. Some progress I have made, in disposing the tithes this bout, and I intrusted the rest to Mr Combs, which, likely angering the Church, may promote their endeavour for confirming the patent interest. To Connaught, I am going, particularly by the Sheriff's friendship, intending the settlement of your possession, much impeded and disturbed, as I have received letters, by Dr George; not upon right of the Duke of York, but upon an insignificant pretence of his own in conjunction with Cary Dillon, upon some orders of the late Lords Justices, which was controlled by the late order for you and Mr Lock, by the Lord Lieutenant and Council, whatever George aims at, I think to weather, and will give account at return. Yesterday, the Lord Archbishop's patent for Chancellor was sealed, and he sworn, which since it is so, you may consider of making his just friendship. His son-in-law, Sir William Davis, is counsel for the moneyed man Smith, against you, but Sir Paul Davis, I have ever found, to my discerning, your serious freind." Seal of Arms.

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1665[–6], January 29. Dublin.—"I am now putting in your claim upon all provisoes for you, in both Acts, and doubt not of the recovery of Termonfechin, given for lost. The Earl of Tyrconnell hath been considering to be restored to Templetown, by order of the House of Lords; but it now seems to be the interest of M^rs^ Mary Plunket, in whose right he intends to sue for it at the next Assizes. But I believe he will come off with the worst, because it hath been granted in custodiam, and she not judged an innocent. My Lord spoke to me in it, whom I told, that by any means I thought you would not quit possession, by reason the Lord Primate's and Cary Dillon's pretences in reversion of that lease. He said he had written, but received no answer, and desired me to write and present his service to you, but I say no more. I have sued Capt. Bellingham as an intruder upon Kilsaran since Michaelmas 1660. He applied himself to M^r^ Attorney, who directed him to give in a state of his case, and I of yours, which accordingly was done, to Bellingham's dissatisfaction. M^r^ Attorney hath or doth intend to send you both, to consider of. I have been thinking, and do now propose, that you procure all your lands in the county of Louth, to be created into one entire manor, whereof Dunleer to be the head and named Leggsburrogh, and also made a corporation, with power to choose two Parliament men, with fairs and markets, etc. To this purpose I have offered a draft of a letter to M^r^ Attorney, which he promises to peruse, and likes well of the thing, and if you do so, to write your mind, whereupon the letter shall suddenly be transmitted. I suppose several persons of quality may apply to take all the land in gross. Better it is, and more profitable, to set it to meaner persons, such as you shall approve of, whose persons and purses you may command, and be as considerable here as such who would take all; or if you should think of doing otherwise, I must remember you about Dunleer, not to dispose of that, because some obligations lie on me to persons almost ruined by adhering to your interest therein, the answering of whose expectations, or mine therein, shall not prejudice you."

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1665[–6], March 3. Dublin.—M^r^ Moore, by himself and his tenants, is in possession of Rathdrum and Ballileige. M^r^ Moore, "in the war time" made "some sale thereof to Colonel Cusack, compelled thereunto, being a weak man as some of his friends aver. And that upon his intermarriage with Sir William Sambige's daughter, whose father was one of the King's sergeants-at-law here, the estate was so settled that Moore can neither sell or make lease for above 21 years, without his son's joining therein which they say he never will do. Since my last, Duffe's farm hath been excepted out of Smith's report, by order of the Commissioners, and truly I think you will carry it, on your own claim, which comes on on Thursday next. Such is the opinion of your counsel, and I will fee such as are near the Commissioners." Seal of Arms.

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1666, May 9. Dublin.—"I constantly attend the Court of Claims, fearing surprises, and may not go into the country to bustle about this year's setting the acres, lest in that time you should lose them for ever, being not secure, till a certificate issue under the hands and seals of the Commissioners, whereupon new Letters Patent must be passed. This matter is now in hand, which very speedily is looked for, I having already paid 100*li.* towards the fees. Sir George Lane says you are frank in his office, and shall have quick dispatch, so that now, in a short time, your troubles will be ended. I trust the business ascertained and you receive a very good income. Col. Taaffe, because of some miscarriages in the management of his claim, is deferred, and Cary Dillon not yet come on, with whom you are beforehand, and hath hitherto had in your success, as any in the Court of Claims."

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1666, May 22. Dublin.—" Col. Cary Dillon's claim for Templetown is dismissed the Court, and their certificate for that, and the rest you have without any saving, for Col. Taaffe or other check, more than formerly intimated. I am now looking for an injunction from the Commissioners to put and quiet you in the possession of all they have decreed. I am also prosecuting in the Four Courts, to free and rid you of all those chargeable suits which I earnestly covet to see ended, and possession quietly settled against your coming over. The Earl Tyrconnell acquainted me of your letter and observation, that his lessee to Templetown was also lessee to the Lord Primate, which I shewed to his Lordship was certain and might have been of dangerous consequence to your title, not to be remedied by him; whereupon he was opposed, though I told his Lordship your order was to the contrary; and knowing of this, he deserves little at your hands for anything I know which is submitted."

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1666, August 7. Dublin.—You have now new Letters Patent, under the Great Seal, of all your estates in Ireland, according to the method and proceedings of the Court of Claims, firmly drawn and grounded on the several provisoes in both Acts: All the lawyers think you have a secure estate in law, not to be shaken by Mr Smith's angry fancies or projects, he is styled "pious Erasmus with the golden purse." Describes dealings with various properties. Seal of Arms.

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1666, December 22. Dublin.—" Mr Maule gives you ten hundred thousand thanks for your extraordinary kindness to his business, and son, and needs would take a beer-glass of sack to your good health." Gives the state of the case as to Moore and Cusack; " Mr. Solicitor" is our counsel. " Lands here are fallen a third part; nay, I fear shortly, half . . . by the bill against Irish cattle." Seal of Arms.

JAMES JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1666[-7], February 11. Dublin.—Mr Moore's answer to Cusack is come in, wherein he confesses the deed; but saith it was compelled, for an invaluable consideration, not paid. And that Cusack promised to release the same. . . . . Sir John Burke is lately dead and my Lord Lieutenant hath not called upon me, as yet. in that business. When it shall please his Grace so to do, I am furnished with a just certificate from the surveyor to make good what I asserted to his Grace, and informed you."

NICHOLAS JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE, "at his house in Minories near Tower Hill."

[16]69, November 20. Dublin.—"I will presume thus far to acquaint you of my observation of things here. That our new Lord-Lieutenant seems more calm than at the beginning. How far he may be in a labyrinth in the many affairs before him, I know not. But this I know, that our late most worthy Governor, both he and his, never were better affected as to the outward esteem and affections of [the] City of Dublin, than they are; and generally so, by the best of the country. And for the commonalty, there is nothing better pleases them than the present steerage."

NICHOLAS JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

[16]69–70, March 5. Dublin.—"My Lord Birmingham laid his commands on me to present his kindness to you as also to accommodate the difference between you and Lady Mary Bourke. . . . he sent a firkin of Usquebaugh, double corked, to be sent to you." Seal of Arms.

NICHOLAS JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

[16]70, May 3. [Dublin].—"Our new Lord-Lieutenant comes in like a lamb. What the effects will be, I know not, but this I am sure, that the late went more calmly out than he came in, for he was gone the next morning after delivering up the sword, to Mellifont, to the Earl of Drogheda's, before either nobles or citizens could pay the respects due to the place he was removed from. Many think here he has a stone in his sleeve to throw at someone, which I pray God, may not harm the loyal." Seal of Arms.

NICHOLAS JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1670, July 3. [Dublin].—"I had written to you oftener since my last, did not the business of the year's value totally take me up, and the uncertainty of the Barons of the Exchequer in their resolutions, made me the more cautious of writing until I could be somewhat certain in my relation to you; for the Barons positively declared, the first day, that they would not admit any to plead, but since, they are better humoured, and admit pleas to be taken in, but will not grant respites. What their design in that may be, is not yet known, yet I am partly satisfied that your plea will avoid the first payment of the year's value which you are to understand thus, by taking notice of the Acts of Settlement, that it says that all adventurers and soldiers that reaped any benefit by the said Acts, are to pay a year's value; and in case the monies paid by them amount to the grand sum mentioned in the said Act, then, and in such case, the persons not under that qualification, shall not be liable to pay any; but in case the year's value of all the adventurers and soldiers do not amount to the said sum, then the estates of all persons, whatsoever, of the kingdom, are to pay so much as remains unpaid of the said sum. And this is the opinion of all our lawyers here, for I advised with the best of them, touching your particular. The lands in Connaught are not liable to the year's value, for anything [that] appears yet; so that the County Louth is all we have to defend, at present, to which I have pleaded, and have gained, a respite, which none has got but myself, as yet, and the reason is, for that I produced matter of record, to make appear what I pleaded."

NICHOLAS JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1670, July 9. Dublin.—Finds that Legge's interest in the county of Galway will "do better to be set to the English, than to any of the natives; for the old inhabitants have so many ways to avoid paying their rent, that one shall never get any satisfactory account, nor punctual payment, unless a man were continually with them." It is otherwise in Leinster. Legge's not coming over this year, will prejudice his interest, for it is uncertain and chargeable to set his lands year by year. Seal of Arms.

NICHOLAS JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1670, July 16. Dublin.—"My Lord Aungier landed but on Saturday last, since which time, I waited on him and acquainted him as to your commands, and received this answer from him; that all church grants, as yours and Esquire Coventries, were stopped for the present and that on his return from the Curragh of Kildare—where there is a general rendezvous of all the army of Ireland—the 21st instant, he would give you a further account from himself."

NICHOLAS JONES to Colonel WILLIAM LEGGE.

1670, September 26. Dublin.—M^r^ Walter Walsh told me since he came over that you desired to have a fair and market at Dunleer; "if so, it shall be done out of hand, and the quicker that it may be put in the Almanack."

Sir WILLIAM DUMVILE to GEORGE LEGGE.

1670, October 30.—Had the opportunity of serving Legge's father and, beyond his expectations, procured for him Letters Patent of his whole estate in Ireland. He then recommended James Jones to manage his affairs there. Jones died about two-and-a-half years back, and on Dumville's recommendation to Legge's father, Nicholas Jones was appointed to succeed. Suggests that Nicholas Jones should be continued as manager. Seal of Arms, broken.

THOMAS MARTIN to his cousin Captain GEORGE LEGGE, "one of his Royal Highness' Grooms of the bed chamber, at Heathen House in the Minories, London."

1670, November 19. Galway.—"The excess of grief with which we are possessed for the loss of your noble father, and our dear friend hath benumbed us of our senses which is the cause that ere now we did not condole the death of that worthy person. We beseech the Heavens to grant to every of us that we may make as good use of our time and leave behind us as he did marks of loyalty, fidelity, and honesty."

NICHOLAS JONES to GEORGE LEGGE.

[16]70–1, February 4. Dublin.—. . . . The Lord Aungier is not come over as yet, I gave your commands to Mr Attorney; his son is one of the students at Lincoln's Inn and has his chambers there.

NICHOLAS JONES to GEORGE LEGGE.

[16]70–1, February 14. Dublin.—Mr James Lill, your kinsman, as I am informed, has a freehold in this town of Trim, 20 miles from Dublin. It is a fair stone house, back-houses, yard, orchard, and garden; let now for 20*l*. per annum, and a rich pennyworth. Mr Lill will dispose of it, as he is in necessity, and lies in the Marshalsea in Southwark, for 150*l*. or 200*l*.

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

[16]71, May 23. Dublin.—"On Saturday last, between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, the store-house of the castle of Dublin was burned; and by report about (?) 30,000 arms. How it happened is not known. Some say by a 'rott' which brought in a candle, lighting, but it is generally worse suspected. I am glad that impudent act of Blood, in taking away the crown and sceptre, proved ineffectual."

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

1671, June 5. Dublin.—"As for Mrs Fitzwilliam's, alias Plunket, demanding the profits of the lands of Cowley, it is true that she was so importunate with your father, that I had commands from him to pay her the accruing profits, during her lease of the same, and to be assisting to her for the recovery of the profits received by Mr James Jones; but when I informed him that she had no title, and being not restored by the Court of Claims, he then seemed to stay his first resolution; for, if you be pleased to know her title, it stands thus:—The Lord of Louth having had a lease of these lands with others from Queen Elizabeth on the dissolution of abbeys, he assigns this over to this lady, for the payment of her proportion or some such thing. Now these lands being taken from her, and the Lord of Louth, on the account of the Rebellion, was made a forfeiture, so as your father got a grant of the lands, and the church, and she not being restored by the Court of Claims, is for ever barred by the law."

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE "at his house in Pall Mall, next door to the Katherine Wheel."

1671–2, March 5. Dublin.—"I sent you some pieces of frieze soon after my coming over. . . . I have endeavoured, by all the industry and friendship I could, to get you a brace of wolf-dogs, which as yet I cannot possibly procure: neither am I forgetful of a fine nag for your lady. . . . Your family has put me on an inquiry of a good match for your maiden-sister. How you, or she may like an Irishman, I know not; but I assure you he is a person of good fortune. He is not yet 20 years old, of a handsome stature. His fortune is a 1,000*li*. a year, within five miles of this city. If you have a desire to enquire of him, he is the son and heir of Luttrell of Luttrellstone; the only blot in his escutcheon, is his religion." Seal of Arms.

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

1672, December 17. Dublin.—You are pleased, once more, to demand the most I can give for a lease of all your estate in Ireland, and to pay you in London. Offers 500*li.*, a year, clear rent; "but to pay it in London, I cannot, without a great loss to myself; for I am sure the exchange would soon consume the profit I were to make. Yet, if you would contrive a way to be paid in wool from hence, as the rates of wool might rise and fall, then probably there might be a convenience to us both. For I am persuaded, if the times hold, as they do now, there will not be a penny [of] money in the country, so that when the money fails, the commodity of the country must be taken, or the lands will be waste."

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

1672–3, February 4. Dublin.—Has received Legge's letter, enclosing that of the King, which he has given to Sir Harry Ford, chief secretary to the Lord Lieutenant; but, Sir Harry's lady dying last night, prevented the Lord-Lieutenant's warrant being obtained.

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

1672–3, February 22.—Has got the Lord-Lieutenant's warrant on the King's letter, but "by the great surprise of his only daughter dying, here yesterday," cannot have his hand to it for two or three days. "As for your tenants in the county of Louth, there was never tenants more startled to come under the most racking land-lord in Ireland; besides, your intended plantation there will clearly fall, if the English that lived thereon be turned off, for they will never stay under severity; and, instead of them, will come in a miserable skum of poor, indigent, people that will use no means of livelihood, or improvements, but what the plough, and the extremity of the land, will afford." As to your estate in Connaught, "I should be glad to hear what you resolve, as to the disposal for another year; for it is now high time to let the tenants know what they have to trust to." Seal of Arms, broken.

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

1672–3, March 15. Dublin.—Asks Legge to use influence with the Duke of York to appoint him "Solicitor in the Managing of law-suits, and other the Duke's concerns under Mr. Turnor who is the Duke's only Agent. . . It is very good news that the King, and his Parliament, are so unanimous, and God continue them so! I could heartily wish they would permit this poor country to transport their cattle; if otherwise, it is a ruined kingdom. It is now as poor as Job, and rents are falling every day."

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

1673, April 15. Dublin.—"I cannot expect any rent from your tenants, till after May or until the cattle be in a condition to sell." The country is reduced to such poverty by the dearth of "all sort of cattle" that most of the under-tenants in the Kingdom will be broken this year. and, by that means "the land-lords will be to seek for their rents!"

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

1673, April 19. Dublin.—There is an "honourable employment" to fall vacant on the death of Sir Robert Byron, Master of the Ordnance, who is desparately sick. This is worth Legge's applying for. The Lord Conway has an eye to it.

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE "at Pall Mall next door to the Katherine Wheel."

1673, June 3. Dublin.—Has not received any rents since last writing, and does not expect any till the country "recover the hardship their cattle has been put to this last winter by the extremity of the weather and scarcity of fodder." No hope of rent from Connaught. "I am sure I must use all the severity possible, before I get in anything considerable; for it is hardly to be believed, the poverty the country is reduced to, unless you were here to see them."

Sir JOHN BELLEWE to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

1673, December 17.—"I am told by Sir Frauncis Winnington, that the Duke's Commissioners meet tomorrow morning, at Sir John Warden's office in St. James'; and there being a prohibition against those of my profession to go thither, occasions my giving you this trouble, lest that by my absence, I may suffer any prejudice in a lease of the lands of Verdonstown, and Baronstown, by Major Bayley, or any other, and for which I have his Royal Highness' warrant, and the Commissioners' order, Sir, I pray acquaint his Highness with this matter, as likewise such of his Commissioners as you have an interest in."

1673. "The ground plot of the Castle of Dublin with the thickness of the walls, parapets, and battlements with outlines of the several buildings therein contained."

R. CASIE to the Honourable GEORGE LEGGE.

1673-[4], January 17. Dublin.—"I was desired, before I left London this last summer, to represent to you the case of Robert Peirse, one of the tenants here at Dunleer in Ireland; but Grays Inn my abode while there, being so far from your lodgings in the Mall, and the grandeur of your affairs affording you those early avocations, while in town, and those honourable achievements you were engaged in abroad, allowing you but short visits thither, it was my misfortune—though often I attempted it—never to meet with you, and now the rigour of your agent here, putting him upon a necessary defence of himself to prevent the utter ruin of himself and family, hath enforced him to engage me as his counsel for advice, and being not skilful in expressing himself, hath become an earnest petitioner to me to state his case to you. Sir, this is he, of whose fidelity to your father, no doubt you have heard, being a thing so generally known here. When Allen, the agent of Erasmus Smith, would have given him 510 li. to quit his possession, and a lease, of 21 years, of half the town, at 59 li. per annum, he utterly refused it, and when they had gotten possession of all but the spot he lived on (the whole town, beside, turning freely to Smith) he maintained it with force, and stoutly resisted both their attempts and temptations. Upon which very critical point of his keeping possession, and that Smith never had the whole, it was, that your father got the lands of Dunleer. My Lord Drogheda and Lord Dungannon, with several others of your father's friends, encouraged him with promises that your father should do better for him than what was promised for Smith. James Jones, your father's agent, assures him the like, and that he should have a lease for 21 years of the whole town at 118 li. per annum, and advises him to go on with his improvements. The poor man hereupon erects his hopes, and lays out all the money he could any way compass, in gardening, improving, and building a house fit for the entertainment of travellers. No sooner dies James Jones, but your agent, Nicholas Jones, takes away half the town from him, and for three years, to May last, he hath had but 430 acres, yet hath paid for 560. Upon a survey of what he had in his possession, this appearing at May, Peirse was unwilling to pay for what acres he had not in his possession; thereupon states the account, and finds he had paid him 21 li. more than his due. Your agent, nevertheless, demands 21 li. more still from him." The agent has distrained all his cattle and forced him to replevy, and has removed the suit to the Common Pleas, and is there prosecuting it. "One Henry Miller, the other innkeeper of the town, the great opposer of your father's interest, Smith's stickler, and at whose house his agent kept all his meetings, is nevertheless now the person, and hath all along been, to whom your agent showed his respects and entire friendship, [and is] admitted by him, tenant to 636 acres of the land, and still enjoys them."

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE at Cary House in Tuttle Street Westminster.

1673–4, February 7. Dublin.—"I am bold in the behalf of my brother Aickin, at his earnest request, to desire a favour from you. He is a gentleman that hath suffered in the usurped Government very much for his loyalty and fidelity to the King, and is very well known to some of the best of the kingdom. He was secretary to Sir Arthur Forbes, when he was one of the justices. . . . . He is now deputy-lieutenant of Ordnance, which signifies very little to him, and the height of his ambition is, since he is informed that Sir Thomas Chicheley is to have the command of the ordnance here, that he would be pleased to confer upon him to be clerk of the ammunition and stores in this city, the salary whereof is sixty odd pounds a year, upon the establishment."

NICHOLAS JONES to [Captain GEORGE LEGGE?].

1674, April 14. Galway.—Is forced to abate the rent at which we set the lands last year: "but do you discourse with any that has lands in Connaught, or, if you please, with Colonel Garrottmoore, a man of 1500 li. per annum, in this province, and they will tell now there is a greater danger of famine, than hopes of raising rents; for the tithe of all the cattle in the counties of of Galway, Mayo, &c., are not now living, which is all their support. . . . Since my coming here, I have been eye witness of the death of many, and [the] continued outcry of the people, by the scarcity of corn and horn."

NICHOLAS JONES to Captain GEORGE LEGGE.

1674, July 26. Dublin.—As to the miserable state of the country. "If I lose a penny by my farm from you this year I shall lose above 40 li., for I could not get tenants for a great part thereof, by reason of the dearth and famine that is generally in the north and west of Ireland." Fears "the extremity of weather, that is now," will quash the hope of harvest.

NICHOLAS JONES to Colonel GEORGE LEGGE.

1675, June 5. Dublin.—"I should be heartily glad to have the happiness of seeing you here; and the rather, because when you see your estate you will be the more sensible of the present condition of your concerns, especially of that part that is leased to me, for I will be sworn (excepting this last favour you did in allowing me 40 li. out of my last Alster (?) rent) I really believe I have not got 20 li. clear profit, a year, by all my holding; and much of the reason may be attributed to the remoteness of the place as well as to the poverty and cunning of the people of that country, that to this day I cannot get a tenant to take a lease from me, unless I set it so as to gain no profit."

Captain GEORGE LEGGE to "Mr. JONES."

1675, November 28.—"I confess the remoteness of the land, you hold of me, from Dublin, may be sore inconveniency to you; but both that, and the exchange of money into England, you knew beforehand, and as for Sir John Bellow's having a better lease, it was your fault to boggle so long at it, and your exception to giving security, which was the cause you had it not. But as I shall endeavour to make the lease you have from me, turn to your advantage, so I hope you will find the real effect of it; and if I have been remiss in my letters, yet it shall no ways turn to your disadvantage, and nothing can be more acceptable at all times, than punctual dealing, which shall be most perfectly observed on my part. I am very sensible of the knavish informers for concealed lands, and I thank you for your care in my particular, which I think can never do me any damage, if you continue your kindness in letting it come timely to my knowledge. I am told, times are very good among the generality of tenants in Ireland, and I hope they will grow rather better, if once the Act against transporation, hither, of cattle, may once be repealed, which in time, at least, we may hope.

The King hath been graciously pleased to remit my quit-rent, for which I hope, next post, to send you his Majesty's letter to the Lord-Lieutenant or Governor, for the time being; and when it comes to your hand, I desire Sir William Dumville's furtherance. The commission for Captain Henry Preistman, in the room of Sir Roger Strickland, lies in Mr. Robert's clerk's hands, at Dublin; if not there, look in the other office. I am confident it is signed by my Lord Essex; therefore, pray take the commission out, pay the fees, and see it entered with the Commissary, and let me know who is lieutenant to the company, and where it is quartered." Copy.

NICHOLAS JONES to Colonel GEORGE LEGGE, "Cary House in Tuttle Street."

[16]75, November 30. Dublin.—As to his outlay in Ireland. "I have paid for Captain Prestman's commission, three pounds for the Secretary's fees. Thomas Owens is lieutenant to the Company; Lewis Widdrington, ensign, and the Company' quarters at Athy in the County of Kildare. Your information as to the tenants in Ireland is a very great mistake; for they are generally as poor as poor may be, and they can expect little hopes of transportation, the Parliament being so long prorogued. If your letter in discharge of your quit-rent comes over, I will give all the dispatch to your advantage." Seal of Arms.

Sir WILLIAM DUMVILLE to Colonel GEORGE LEGGE.

1679, April 8.—" There are some persons who, unknown to me, and against my desires, have moved his Majesty to remove me to the Chief-Justice's place of Common Pleas, upon Sir Robert Booth's promotion to the King's Bench now void by the death of the late Chief-Justice Powes (?) This endeavour, Sir, is as much without my Lord Duke of Ormond's privity, as mine, and very much to my damage and against the right of my Letters Patent, whereby I hold my employment for life. My Lord Duke hath written by the last post and this, to M^r^ Secretary Coventry to rectify this miscarriage, and the last post, I likewise wrote to M^r^ Secretary and my Lord Ossory (?) myself, and sent inclosed to my Lord Ossory an humble petition of mine to be presented by his Lordship's hands, or M^r^ Secretary's, to his Majesty, humbly to inform him that this hath been done without my privity, that I hold my employment for life by Letters Patent under his Majesty's Great Seale of England, and cannot, legally, be removed at pleasure. And therefore, I humbly pray, I may, by his Majesty's grace and favour, enjoy the benefit of my former Letters Patents; this is the scope of my petition, which I humbly hope his Majesty, upon reading, will graciously incline to condescend unto.

I am much disappointed of my former friends there to solicit this business with my Lord Ossory and M^r^ Secretary, for it requires some care and expedition and I doubt not but both those honourable persons will endeavour a good return from his Majesty, if minded thereof, in regard my Lord Duke hath so frequently and effectually written about the same to M^r^ Secretary. I understand you have some interest in M^r^ Thynne, who attends in M^r^ Secretary's office. I beseech you put the care of this on him and engage him to be solicitous in it, and what moneys may be needful there in the obtaining his Majesty's letter to my Lord Duke to stay me where I am, or for M^r^ Thynne's gratification, do me the favour to supply him with at present, and I shall, upon notice, repay you there or here to your Agent M^r^ Robert Allway and acknowledge this as a particular kindness."

ROBERT AYLEWAY to JOHN GRAHAM at "Carew House, in Tuttle Street, Westminster."

1680[-1], January 13. Dublin.—Has received 200 li. of Sir Michael Armorer, and encloses a bill for 186*li.* "which, with the exchange, being 7 per cent., make 200*li.*; the exchange current is 8½ per cent., but I have husbanded this better. You will find the merchant in the Irish Walk, in the Exchange."

HENRY FOOKE to LORD DARTMOUTH at Carew House in Tuttle Street Westminster.

1683, July 29. The Royal Citadel off Plymouth.—" I have put on board the hired ship, which is still retarded here by contrary winds, 15 able miners with a foreman."

Sir ALLEN APSLEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1683, August 13.—"I did hear of this voyage of your Lordship's sometime before you went, but I thought it would have been a great rudeness in me to have mentioned any thing of it to you. The whole design is yet in the dark. All the discoveries of the voyage are but conjectures, for I meet with none that know any more of it. Some of the Commissioners of the Admiralty were not pleased that you would have passed by them, to which it was a just answer that being obliged to keep it as the greatest secret it was necessary you should communicate it to as few as you could."

LORD NOTTINGHAM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1683, August 27.—Has spoken to Lord Rochester about another hospital ship, and likewise to Sir R. Haddock, about fresh provisions and necessaries for sick men on board the hospital ships, and he is assured that the surgeon had 18*d*. per head allowed him to provide these things, and if he has not done it, he is much to be blamed. Begs Lord Dartmouth to address his letters to the Secretary of the Board. Has reason to say that the Secretary of the Board of Admiralty "is the most malicious enemy (if he be considerable enough to be called an enemy) that your Lordship has here."

Sir CHRISTOPHER MUSGRAVE and RICHARD GRAHAM to LORD DARTMOUTH, Admiral aboard the Grafton.

1683, August 27.—"The King mislaying the petition, therefore we presented another by my Lord Rochester, who promised to get a reference upon it and to serve your Lordship effectually in that, and all other affairs wherein your Lordship is concerned.

"We told my Lord Rochester, that in your absence you had appointed us to inspect and manage your affairs, in which we had made some progress and found the debts very considerable, and advising with ourselves what course to take to pay them with the least prejudice to your family, it appeared to us that selling the place of Master of the Horse, was the best expedient, because it brought no profit, but was a growing charge. To which he answered, that he had told your Lordship that he thought your Lordship made no advantage by it, yet found you unwilling to dispose of it, being desirous to continue in the Duke's immediate service, and demanded if we would sell it in your absence, to which we made this return, that we were directed in all things relating to your Lordship, to govern ourselves by his Lordship's advice, and he seemed inclinable to let it rest, until your Lordship's return. Therefore we desire your Lordship seriously to consider, what may suit your convenience best and to give us your further direction therein.

"Sir Nicholas Butler told us, that he had spoken with the King and the Duke in your favour, who have promised to make you easy in your fortune, upon which we asked him if that would be done before your return, he believed not, so that your Lordship hath no greater assurance (as we conceive) than you had at parting.

"Sir Nicholas likewise told us, that he had discoursed the Lord Churchill, concerning the differences between you, who promised in your absence that he would neither write, nor speak to your prejudice, at which we were extremely surprized your Lordship having not been pleased to discover to us, any inclination of a friendship there and fearing some evil construction might be made of such application in your absence.

"Mr Secretary Jenkins hath promised to procure an order from the King for removal of your Company, all application hath been made for a supply of money for the office, but has not met with any success, which makes the officers very uneasy, and unable to answer your Lordship's commands, and to discharge the necessary service of your office."

John Graham to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, August 27. London.—The King goes for Winchester on Wednesday next, with the Queen, Duke and Duchess, Prince and Princess, who all dine at Farnham Castle. The King has not fixed a time for going to Portsmouth, "but I am promised to have timely notice and shall, God willing, attend him there and shall suddenly after, go for Staffordshire. We have no news here, since your departure Lord Murray had put in his own tailor and fringeman, but the Duke has ordered it otherwise and they threaten that your Lordship's tradesmen shall live uneasy lives in their service; he sent for Lady Anne's cast saddle and since, for the old rich coach, but hath neither."

William Banks to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, September 9.—"I was at Portsmouth, where Sir Christopher was to wait on the King, and I heard the King approve of what was done, and said, Fitz you shall have money to finish the wall about the Point." Seal of Arms.

Sir Christopher Musgrave to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, September 9. Winchester.—Upon Wednesday about two in the afternoon there arrived his Majesty, the Duke, and Prince George at Portsmouth, coming by sea from Southampton, and the same day came from Winchester. The time of his coming was so great a secret, that they knew not at Portsmouth till 10 o'clock that his Majesty would be there that day. By great good fortune I was in the town two hours before his Majesty, who immediately went on to the Saluting Platform and Gallery and so to Wimbleton's Mount and betwixt Pembroke and East Mount, went over the Salley Port and so into the Counterscarp and walked very softly to the Land Port observing strictly how each gun did bear in the Counterscarp and how defended by the bastions. From Land Port he went over the Outer Counterscarp, and his Majesty and Royal Highness do very well approve of the pallisadoes set up in the covered way. When they came to Mr Philips' lodgement, I acquainted his Majesty and Duke, that your Lordship desired their direction, how that work should be closed, they surveyed the ground before it by the Mill dam, and thought a half moon detached or mound be made upon the side to discover any enemy that should make his approaches on that side. And from thence walked to the mill, went out of the gate and think that the faces of the Alarm Redoubt (which is staked out) should have large faces to flank the waste ground on the other side and the work that is to be made there. The Duke apprehended that the embrasures of the Stone Bastion, beyond the mill are not made so open as to discover the waste ground on the other side. Viewing all the work to Key Gate, they went to God's House. After reposing themselves a little while, they went to Gosport and walked round the whole line and coming to sup with the Duchess of Portsmouth at M^r^ Rigges, concluded that day's work. The King, Duke, and Prince lay aboard their yachts and next morning went to Southsea Castle which they were extremely satisfied with, and were treated at God's House by my Lord Gainsborough. After dinner they went to visit the Hospital, Guise Mount, and Beastons, and the Round Tower and so to Blockhouse Point and then aboard their yachts, and at seven on Friday morning weighed anchor for Southampton and so to Winchester. The King and Duke were extremely satisfied with what was done and you could not desire more deliberation than they used in their survey. Everything was in good order, M^r^ Clark having performed his part very well. On Thursday the Duchess of Portsmouth attended by your brother went to Southsea Castle and resolved to visit the Hospital on Friday but proving rainy after my two hours attendance upon her, it was deferred till her next coming, promises all her interest for the supporting it. The gunner of Blockhouse Point was killed, one of the guns (which had been long charged with a shot) breaking when they saluted the King in his coming into the Harbour. On Saturday your company marched from Portsmouth, which was in hazard of being deferred till the arrival of more Companies, my Lord Allington having pressed earnestly for the continuance of Row's at the Tower, and the King was inclined yours should stay till some other Company were ordered to relieve yours, I used the best arguments I could for yours to march presently and the Duke with great heartiness came into it, and so that affair is ended. And when this morning I acquainted his Highness with your Company's marching, with great satisfaction he told me Row's was ordered to march and that he had discoursed my Lord Sunderland in it, who said nothing was designed to injure you, but was occasioned by my Lord Allington's importunity for Row's stay, I desired liberty to wait of his Highness when your concern required it, to which he hath allowed me. The Duke's warmth in your concern makes me hope that his kindness is not lessened as your jealousy suggests, I acquainted both the King and Duke, that if a certain fund were given for the fortifications, that in every floor of stone work, we could save him above a fourth part. I said the same as Sir Stephen Fox who took the pains to go with me round the works, and was very much pleased and commended your Lordship's care extremely. Sir Barnard de Gome came on Friday night to Portsmouth to visit the King. Not one penny, but the 500 li. per week being paid to the Treasury, our condition is most deplorable. There are many other things which I will not insert in this, having left minutes of them with M^r^ Graham and suppose his will acquaint you with them. I have discovered that Colonel Vernon hath knowledge of your petition and endeavours to prevent granting the inheritance. I have given notice of it to your brother, my Lord Rochester is not here. I perceive your not writing to the Commissioners of the Admiralty, but to my Lord Finch is not well taken, and he not judging it convenient to produce your letter, nothing was ordered of what you desired."

Captain WILLIAM LEGGE to his brother, LORD DARTMOUTH.

[16]83, September 9. Winchester.—"The King went from hence to Portsmouth on the 5th, by way of Southampton, where he took yacht and landed at Portsmouth by three in the afternoon, and went derectly to the platform, and so, very leisurely, to the second salyport where he went over to the Counterscarp, and walked along to the Landport, and there went out into the outer Counterscarp and went quite to the Mill Pond, where he took a particular notice what was fit to be done there, and will think of it; the Duke and Prince George being with him. From hence, he went back into Phillip's work, and so over that sally bridge into the first Counterscarp, and so to the mill where he say (sic) the bastion that is done and went quite out towards the other side of the Mill Pond, to see what was fitting to be done there, but resolved on nothing, only saying he had the ground in his head and would think on it. From thence he went to God's House, where after resting some time he took boat and went to Gosport, and walked quite round it and then he went on board the Charles to show it Prince George, and I ashore, to see whether the Duchess of Portsmouth was come, and ordered to send him word as soon as she was, which I did, and can assure you she is your friend. Next morning, the King very early went from his yacht, where he lay, to Southsea and say (sic) that, and is mightily pleased with all that is done, both there and every where, as is also the Duke, and do declare it pity it should not be finished; and so much for that. As for other news, your company is marched, the particulars of which I leave to Sir Christopher, and shall only tell you that the Duke is most extremely kind in everything that concerned you. There was a letter sent by the penny post to my Lady Essex, to let her know that if they might have their pardon, they would prove that the Duke of York and yourself murdered my Lord Essex. Brome Horwood is taken up for saying the last King died justly, and that this King deserved the same, for he was a coward and fool, and governed by whores and knaves, and Mr Speake is taken on suspicion of writing that letter to my Lady Essex. . . . . Your family is well, and Billy the greatest favorite in Court."

John Graham to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, September 10. London.—"In obedience to your Lordship's commands, I have again been at Portsmouth having notice of his Majesty's going thither. He came there Wednesday at noon, and stayed till Friday morning, at which time he returned from thence by way of Southampton to Winchester. Wednesday he went round the works, both without and within, and was well pleased with everything, and next morning went to Southsea Castle, where he was also very well pleased, and afterwards went on board the Ossory, and to the Dock, and in the afternoon went to the Castle again, the Duchess of Portsmouth not having seen it before. The Duke, Prince, Dukes of Grafton, Richmond, Albemarle, Somerset, and a great many others of the nobility, were there, but neither the Queen, Duchess, nor Princess, were there. I was troubled to find that the breach made by Beaston's (?) Mount, by the sea, was not made up, nor the palisadoes set upright, that were washed down, which might easily have been done, if minded, I told Mr Clarke of it. Sir Christopher Musgrave was there, but Sir Bernard was not there till the King was gone. Your brother had Mr William at Winchester, where he stayed some three or four days. His Majesty was very kind to him and mightily pleased with his behaviour."

Sir Christopher Musgrave to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, October 6. London.—"Mr Bridges presents his humble service to you; a friend of his, being in company with the haughty Lord, amongst other discourses, the great slight you put upon the Admiralty was debated with great warmth, and the Lord said, now was the time to push that matter and to right themselves; and that you were the great instrument in stripping him of his employments. So that you must expect all the prejudice his pride and malice can effect. He writes very diligently and I hope your friends will watch his motions. Frank Gwin is gone to Newmarket. No hopes as yet of our old friend's return. How the Alderman have demeaned themselves towards the King, I suppose you have a particular account from Secretary Jenkins. Our friend Sir William Prichard, I fear, hath not answered expectation. Sir George Jefferys, now Lord-Chief Justice of the King's Bench and Privy Councellor, professes great friendship to you and saith, my Lord Sunderland speaks kindly of you. Admiral Herbert's brother is the Duchess' solicitor, and one Jenner, recorder of London, so that our friend Jack is forgot. Your brother waits very close."

Sir Christopher Musgrave to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, October 15. London.—"I write this day sennight that we had sold 1,250 barrels of reparable powder, for 40*s.* a barrel, a 180 barrels of wheat, for 23*s.* a barrel, 700 stowable, for 47*s.* a barrel. I perceive there is near 200 tons of saltpetre in the interloper's hand. We are endeavouring to secure the same for his Majesty. This day we began taking the remain at the Tower. I have got a warrant to receive the arms taken in my Lord Gray's house. . . . The Lords of the Treasury sit not till his Majesty's return from Newmarket, which makes our condition very unfortunate. On Saturday last, the debt upon the quarter ending at Lady-day, was cleared. I perceive the Duke of Ormond thinks it not advisable for his Majesty to grant any advowsons, so that you will not be admitted to be a builder of churches, notwithstanding your charitable intentions, but the Duke will make a favourable report upon the other part of your petition."

John Graham to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, October 22.—Sir Allen Apsley, who died on Monday sennight was buried on the Wednesday following. "The great expectation of news is from your Lordship. The King and Duke are, blessed be God, well. None of the conspirators as yet come to their trial, but on Tuesday, Sydney, Hampden, Trenchard, and one more, come to be tried at the King's Bench. Doctor Barebone has not only proceeded to demolish Carey House, but begun to lay foundation for new ones. I have given M^r^ Graham and Sir Christopher, an account of your charges in fitting out, which they design to solicit the Lords of the Treasury for re-imbursement, as they say. I wish they may and that it may take effect to your Lordship's advantage. Colonel Vernon has had a Woodmoot Court at Tutbury, lately, wherein he gave strict charge for inquiring into all manner of waste committed in His Majesty's forest, particularly in Castle Hey Park."

Sir Christopher Musgrave to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, October 22. London.—People are looking after commands of Dragoons which they say will be established at your return.

Sir Martin Wescomb, consul at Cadiz, to Lord Dartmouth.

[1683, October, Cadiz.] "Although overgrown with the moss of age to the years of 70 less five which is my number, yet I continue a proportionable inclination to that of the bee to suck the subsistance out of every flower, to give your Excellency the best intelligence I can for your measures in the grand point of his Majesty's honour and concerns of all his good subjects. What new offers, is to give your Excellency an account, how that last evening arrived in 6 days from Salee a small English vessel called the Joshua, of London, Symon Rolland, commander, burthen about 30 tons, laden with wax and dates, consigned here to Messrs Lodington and Sutherland. The commander affirms to me to be all truth that the two Barbery cocks, Muley Ismael and his nephew Muley James, that have so long time with their great armies faced one of the other, are now reconciled to a perfect peace, which intelligence may be of some use to those measures which your Excellency and the Governor of Tangier may take for the service of our gracious King."

WILLIAM BANKS to LORD DARTMOUTH at Tangier.

1683, November 11. St. James's.—"I told you how I struggled with the Controller and Lord Murray, for the Princess' last coach; that at last allowed of, but the Princess would borrow it sometimes to use it, so sent to me not to dispose of, this winter. To that end, I [was] acquainted. My Lady and Sir Christopher had their allowance, left the keys with Isaac when I went to Newmarket, but when I came home, found it turned into mourning, then went to the Board and told Colonel Werden, before the rest of the commissioners, who answered, that it was particularly done by the Princess' order, for Lord Murray said the same, and that I should see it was not out of any design of disowning your right, that he was sorry it was done, and that I might have the inside, which I had got before, so that at last your Lordship will not be altogether loser; but no thanks to them. Yet Mr Graham does not perform his promise to introduce me to the Princess, being still under her frowns, as they would make me to all the world; too long to trouble you with such noise. The Prince had a great fall last day a-hunting, from a horse Lord Corrcnborough bought, so took your grey gelding again, and said he would have him, for 40 guineas I will have for him. The duke will have Lowther I think, or I can sell him for 100 li to any gentleman. The horse Lord Chesterfield gave you, is a hopeful horse; the Turk will make you a good hunter. Those three horses and a groom's horse, are all you have in the stable." Seal of Arms, broken.

WILLIAM TRUMBALL to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1683, November 12. Doctor's Commons.—"On Saturday about 10 at night I got to Whitehall, and immediately was brought by Mr Secretary Jenkins to his Majesty, who received the news very kindly, but being then at the Duchess of Portsmouth's, commanded me next day to attend at the Cabinet Council. Immediately from the King, I went to St James's and kissed his Royal Highness' hands, who, having read your Lordship's letter, discoursed with me a great while in private, with all the assurances imaginable of kindness to your Lordship, and that the information your Lordship had received of any foul play was either from the mistake of some friends or from others that designed your Lordship an unkindness, for he was satisfied that no other man in England could have served the King in this expedition besides your Lordship. His Royal Highness laid all the fault on the victuallers, and said it was their constant practice to deceive all that rely upon them, and told me your Lordship need not doubt of his being firm to you.

Yesterday at the Cabinet Council, I was called in, and the whole dispatch was examined and having had leisure enough at sea, I was not unprepared to give such an account, as did, I hope, answer all questions; for every particular being scanned, his Majesty and the Duke seemed very well pleased. I have not yet got a private audience from the King, but the Secretary who has been very ill, and continues still much indisposed, though somewhat amended, promises to get me one speedily. The Earl of Rochester gives me also all the protestations imaginable of his readiness to serve your Lordship, but as to the main point, all the satisfaction I can get is, that the victuallers have been these five weeks in the Downs, and have not been able to sail for want of wind and weather. I have conferred with Captain Legge and Sir Christopher Musgrave, being extremely desirous to do your Lordship all the service I am able."

Captain W. Legge to his brother Lord Dartmouth.

[1683], November 12. "The Duke spoke to me of your letter, and told told me there was ill men that write stories to you without any manner of colour, and showed me your letter and said it was very melancholy, and that those that put these things in your head were neither yours, nor his, friends, for it was not in the power of any one to do you an injury with either the King or himself, and indeed, that he was very sorry that anybody should have it in their power to make you think that he would not be constant and true to you."

Francis Gwyn to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, November 12. London.—He finds the King is very well pleased with Lord Dartmouth's progress. On Saturday night the King said, as he was going to bed, that George Legge had by this time done the work he went about, and he, the King, believed he would be here about three weeks hence. Gwyn need not enter into Lord Churchill's affairs, but he must say that, however "rattle-brained Jemmy Grimes may be" upon other occasions, he and M^rs^ Sydley have played their parts extremely well. "On Wednesday, last the King sent Griffins who was in waiting to the Grand Prior, to command him to leave England in twenty-four hours; after some dispute, he absolutely refused to go on so short warning, as he did likewise a second message. But upon consideration, though he first asked the opinion of lawyers, on Friday night he resolved to go and on Saturday morning the Phubbs, yacht, for luck's sake, took him on board for Dieppe. Your Lordship may easily imagine the talk which this hath occasioned, though the particular matter is a secret to every body, yet every body will be guessing, but I will not, at this distance from your Lordship, pretend to it."

O. Wynne to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, November 12. Whitehall.—"Our news from Hungary continues good and like to be yet better, if it be true that the Grand Seignior and his Vizier are gone in great disorder towards Constantinople to crush a rebellion that is begun there; the Sultana mother having, as the story goes, declared upon her death bed that the present Grand Seignior is but a bastard and that his brother is the lawful emperor.

The two great expectations in our neighbourhood are whether the Prince of Orange, who is now in person at Amsterdam, could dispose that city to consent to the levy of 16 thousand men; and whether the 12 thousand Swedes, which are said to be embarked aboard the Dutch fleet at Gottenburg, and now under sail, are designed for Bremen or for Flanders. The Grand Prior was two days ago banished the Court and is gone for Holland; it is said to be at the complaint of a great lady, who, they say, was offended at some good quality of his, besides his modesty."

JOHN GRAHAM to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1683, November 26. London.—"On Saturday last, the Duke of Monmouth came in and laid himself at his Majesty's feet, and Royal Highness', and having kissed their Majesty's and Royal Highness' hands, both, has his pardon granted. He seems to be very penitent and says he will endeavour to deserve his pardon. He has confirmed all that was discovered, and a great deal more, the particulars whereof are not yet known. This day Colonel Sydney received his sentence to be hanged, drawn, and quartered, and behaved himself very saucily in court, and said, after sentence; 'Now am I to suffer for the righteous cause,' but my Lord Chief-Justice told him that which he called the righteous cause, the law called high treason; and for that he was to suffer."

"An ACCOUNT of what passed between Mr. SYDNEY and the COURT at his receiving Judgment."

1683, November 26.—"This day Algernon Sidney was brought up to receive his judgment. He proposed several matters in arrest of it, which were rather complaints of the hard measure he pretended to have received at his trial, than what was proper to object in such a case. He began with saying the court had refused to receive a special plea from him which Mr Justice Withers said was false. 'False,' said he, 'I am now upwards of 60, and no man ever yet durst tell me I spoke a false thing.' The Judge repeated that it was notoriously false, for that all the bar might remember the court offered to receive it, in case he would stand by it, but not otherwise. Next, he pretended that the jury was unduly returned, at the nomination of Mr Graham and Mr Burton; he was told that such an objection ought to have been made before his trial; that now it was unseasonable. Then, he disparaged the jury saying they were all mean persons and no freeholders. For their being no freeholders, my Lord said, it was the solemnly declared opinion of all the Judges that in criminal cases the want of freehold was no objection to a juryman; and if his jurymen were not gentleman, he might thank himself, who had challenged off so many that were so; but that any jury would have found him guilty upon such incontestable evidence which was produced against him. Then he complained that he had not counsel assigned to argue several points of law, I think he said eleven, which he had ready to offer. He was told that if he had offered any matter of law, wherein the court had received the least doubt, that he should not have wanted counsel; but he alleged nothing of that nature and therefore had no need of counsel. At last, he had nothing left to say, but to pray a new trial, for that he had a new witness to produce in his behalf, the Duke of Monmouth, to whom he appealed and by whose testimony he would stand and fall. But this being so wild, unprecedented, a demand he was bid to hear his judgment which was pronounced by my Lord Chief Justice. The prisoner said this upon it. That God Almighty who knows all things knew him to be innocent and he prayed God that his blood might light upon the heads of them who persecuted him for righteousness sake. My Lord told him that such language did not become the mouth of a dying man and that it was his misfortune to call that righteousness, which the law calls treason."

O. Wynne to Lord Dartmouth.

1683, December 3. Whitehall.—"The Whigs pretend to get ground daily, and the Loyalists are damned with their very calumnies. It were to be wished, the loyal party were more active, since the disaffected will omit nothing that may encourage their cause. We stick not to say the King's friends, as they call them, are retrograded 15 degrees of what they were 10 days ago; however, it is certain they are in great measure remiss and timorous, nor did they scarce ever want a comforter as much as they do at this time: and this merely by the dapperness and insolency of the faction."

George, Baron Dartmouth, to Col. Percy Kirk, Col. Charles Trelawny, Lt. Col. Boynton, Sir James Lesly, and others.

1683, December 18. Tangier.—"It being very necessary, in the execution of his Majesty's pleasure and commands touching this place, that all ways and means be considered of and used for the total destruction of the walls of the town, the castle, forts, and fortifications, within and without it, so as to leave it uninhabitable and without any sort of succour or defence for the Moors or any others that shall attempt to possess themselves of it, these are to desire and direct you, with the assistance of Major Beckman, M^r^ Thomas Phillipps, the rest of the engineers now present, and any of the officers of the garrison whom you shall think qualified, forthwith to take a view and consider of the several mines and other things prepared for the blowing up and demolishing the said walls, castle, and forts, and to give me your opinions in writing, under your hands, whether you think the same will be sufficient, if they answer the reasonable success expected from them, to complete the aforesaid ends of destroying this place; and that if anything further to be done, or in any other manner seem reasonable and fit in your judgments towards it, you do offer the same to me, in order to its being further considered of and put in execution, and therein to use all the care and exactness to the best of your abilities, required in a work of this nature and consequence." Copy.

Followed by the reply of Colonel Percy Kirke and others, dated Tangier, 20 January 1683–4:—"We have with our best diligence and ability surveyed and inspected the several mines, 'furnos,' and other works appointed and prepared by your Lordship, for the blowing up, dismantling, and total destruction of the fortifications, forts, walls, defences, etc. of and appertaining to this place, having taken to our assistance Major Martin Beckman, M^r Thomas Phillipps and others, who we thought anywise qualified to help us in the judgment and report, we are required to make by our said commission; and having deliberately, and with all the care and caution necessary in a service so earnestly injoined by your lordship, and in itself of so great weight and consequence, examined and debated the same, we do hereby according to your Lordship's directions as aforesaid, faithfully and upon our honours certify viz.:—

That the said mines, etc. (disposed as by the annexed draughts may appear) are, we conceive, ordered in the most proper manner that may be, for the blowing up and demolishing the said works, both in the town and castle, etc. That where the nature and importance of the work requires it, all needful skill and diligence seems to us to have been used for the more effectual execution of your Lordship's directions as aforesaid. And in the upper castle especially, which is a fortress after the modern way, and where the Portuguese had been at great expense to fortify the same, extraordinary care and judgment is in our opinion put in practice for the more certain and effectual demolishing and making useless the principal works and eminences thereof, where batteries and platforms may with best advantage be made to the seaward, and from whence greatest annoyance can be given to shipping.

We have, together with our inspection made into the nature, position, and contrivance of the several mines, etc., considered of the quantities of powder assigned to them respectively (whereof the draught likewise makes mention) and do give it as our opinion, according to the best of our judgment, that the several quantities of powder so appointed, are in due and necessary proportion to the end for which it is so disposed. And wheresoever we have thought it of use to have anything further performed towards the entire destroying the works and walls of this place we have, according to the latitude of our commission, advised the same to be forthwith put in execution.

Furthermore, by occasion of the great and continual rains that have fallen since the lodging of the powder in some of the mines (from whence we were jealous, damage might be received) we have ordered such as we most suspected, to be unstopped and examined; and where we found the powder damnified, the same to be renewed, and further care to be taken by drains and other means for avoiding the water.

After having thus carefully and with our best ability given your Lordship the aforegoing account of our proceeding, in pursuance of our said commission, there appears nothing of moment therein by us unexecuted, but the signifying to your Lordship our entire approbation of the whole cause and method assigned by your Lordship and practised by the engineers, for the total destruction and spoiling the principal works and defences of this town and castle, etc., as aforesaid. And by the effect that we have seen from mines that have been already put in execution, we hope and agree in our expectation of the like success from the rest, saving to ourselves and the undertakers of the said works (who seem to us to have painfully and skilfully discharged their duty) so much indemnity as from the uncertain issue of affairs of this nature, performed even by the best men, and rules now in practice, may in justice be allowed us."

William Hewer to Lord Dartmouth, Governor and Captain General of his Majesty's City and Garrison of Tangier.

1683[–4] $\frac{\text{December 30.}}{\text{January 9.}}$ Cadiz.—"Captain Elmore, after having lost his anchor and cable in the Bay of Bulls, in the late storm, and by contrary winds driven back again with the packets he had received from Sir Martin Westcomb this day sennight, being supplied with another by Captain Killigrew and put into a condition of sailing, has waited ever since Tuesday last for an opportunity of sailing, but to his great mortification the weather, both for wind and rain, has been such, as not to suffer him to stir from hence to this moment, and he keeping on board to lay hold of the very first opportunity to sail, I thought it my duty to give your Lordship this advice; that on Monday last, was solemnly proclaimed in usual manner, at this place, war against his Most Christian Majesty, with warning for all his subjects to depart within 15 days, upon pain of imprisonment and what further punishment the law of this place directs.

Last night there came in, two Yarmouth-men, who bring news that the Duke of Monmouth was at Court and had kissed the King's and Duke's hand, and made a full confession of the whole conspiracy, and that my Lord Howard is put into the Tower for concealing a great part of what he knew concerning it. If this should prove true, I hope it will go a great way towards settling the minds of the people in England, and at the next Parliament, which is likewise discoursed of to be shortly, such a settlement will be made to the King's and Duke's good liking, as to prevent the like disorders and disturbances for the future, which I do heartily wish and pray for. The continuance of the ill weather—having not had two days without rain since our landing at this place—makes us as backward in our journey to Seville, as I fear it will prove to the works your Lordship is upon at Tangier; but we are upon our watch not to lose an opportunity that may make our return to your Lordship as speedy as may be. Mr Pepys has written twice from this place to Lord Dartmouth. As no horses are to be got here fit for Lord Dartmouth's purpose, Mr Gargrave has gone over to St Mary's Port to fit himself there or at Xeres." Seal.

William Hewer to Lord Dartmouth.

[1684], New Year's day. Cadiz.—Has previously given an account of the stores sent by Captain Killigrew to Lord Dartmouth. The Constant Warwick still remains here; "of the twenty-four convoys of the Newfoundland fleet come in with her," there are not four remaining to go up into the Straits. "The flota is not permitted yet, to deliver any money out, the King of Spain having signified his pleasure that he will be supplied with half a million of money from the merchants' effects coming home in this flota, to be repaid them again in the West Indies as shall be appointed, in the meantime guard boats are appointed to prevent any boats going to, or coming from, the said flota, which rides a little beyond Puntal Castle from which, and other observations now particularly made by me here upon the place, I am confirmed in what I have heretofore believed and noted, that it were much better for our King, both for his honour and profit, to give commanders, designed to these parts, ten times their wages, than to give way for their making up a fortune this way of taking in and carrying off money." Seal broken.

Sir John Lowther to Lord Dartmouth.

1685, April 12.—"I beseech your Lordship to command any horses I have, either for yourself, or if you think them deserve it, for the King, in whose good opinion I beseech your Lordship to establish me; since whatever your Lordship shall undertake for me it will be sure to make good." I fancy my enemies still ruin me by false reports to the King. Would your Lordship be my protector it would be a generous act to an injured man.

Address to the King.

1685, July 16. Lichfield Guild Hall.—Address of the Grand Jury of the City and County of Lichfield to the King after Monmouth's Rebellion. Signed.

John Evelyn to Lord Dartmouth.

1686, June 3.—" Since I met your Lordship this morning in the gallery at Whitehall, my son came to tell me that M^r Laurence had turned over an arch of brick in order to a bridge for the making of a drift way and common road through his ground, which in truth he cannot do without considerable trespass. The abutment of it wholly resting on my son's land and passing over a ditch within his sole repair.

My Lord, I lately acquainted you, and still assure you, there was never in memory of any person living, or [on] record, any other than a single and very narrow path, for foot-men only, through these pastures to the town of Deptford, and my son is the more surprised, my Lord, at this procedure of M^r Laurence's, in regard your Lordship, he tells me, only desired a way to your market through Wolfe-aker Lane, which he acquaints me he freely offered, giving order to his gate-keeper about it, though it were some prejudice to him; so that he does not believe your Lordship has at all encouraged the ruining his fences, breaking down stiles, and gates, with soldiers and others, to gain a thoroughfare, which your Lordship never so much as once mentioned to either of us, and therefore was this afternoon to wait upon your Lordship with his complaint. But your Lordship was gone to Windsor which is [the] occasion of this letter to you, being most confident that your Lordship has no intention to prejudice him in a thing which is in no sort advantageous to your Lordship, when it shall be well considered, but of great injury to us, and therefore hopes your Lordship will not blame him for securing his grounds, asserting his tenants' complaints, and reducing the patch and way to what it ever was. I must likewise acquaint your Lordship that the town of Deptford, and especially his Majesty's workmen at the yard, who go to their homes late and early, will be concerned as to their safety, should this be made a common highway, they have already complained, and the ancientest inhabitant of the parish ready to depose it never was other than a footpath. It is true, our tenants for the carrying off their crops in their seasons, and that they might not injure the footpath, have on covenants, inclosed a cartway, but this, my Lord, for that convenience only; myself having enjoyed it many years before there was any such thing, and when all the pastures were but one great field with a footpath only through it. Therefore, as to M^r Laurence, I doubt not but his mistake proceeded from his seeing the way so fenced not examining the reason of it. And as for what your Lordship mentioned to me of Sir Dennis Gauden, he has no pretence of way through any of these grounds; but as he is our tenant, upon which account he has passage through Wolf-aker Lane, directly to his store houses and other lands being my own inheritance, but never any from Rotherhithe, where our fences are broken down and demolished. I know there is a magazine near the river of Thames, would ruin that honest man by having the some privilege through our grounds, but this is neither sufferable nor reasonable.

As to his Majesty, your Lordship will, as I said, yourself be judge whether it be fit or safe to lead his Majesty, so very far about through, such fulsome and unwholesome marshes before he come near this passage; but should he think it convenient for him, my son, upon the least intimation of his royal pleasure, would have a gate and keeper there on purpose. But why it should be made a common drift at all times, does not at all consist with that regard [which] ought to be had of his person and sole convenience; nor can we secure our tenants on this ground, should the fences be exposed, so remote from all their houses.

My Lord, I have much more to allege as it concerns my particular, since they must needs pass almost through my dwelling, where I cannot live in safety, as it is, but by diligently keeping the ancient gates, stiles, and inclosures, so injurious and impracticable is this design. And if, after all these difficulties, objections, and concessions, as to your lordship's first desire, and there be record or anything material and of legal right, your Lordship will (I persuade myself) think it reasonable it should appear, before so violent a course were taken as if my son, who is a barrister-at-law, stood in contempt of law after due process, there being no colour or provocation for this violent and unhandsome usage. Wherefore we humbly again beseech your Lordship that M^r^ Laurence be desired to repair what he has broken down and desist from doing further damage till we give your Lordship just cause." Holograph. Seal.

[Sir HENRY SHERE to LORD DARTMOUTH.]

[1688], November 25. Hartley Row.—"I have with the last degree of impatience solicited how I might write to your Lordship with any kind of certainty or hope to succeed, I have often writ by the common post, but your motions being governed by two so uncertain elements, it becomes a doubt whether any of my addresses have found you. This day I was assured you were at the Spithead, which is my encouragement to send the bearer with this tender of my duty. I am well assured my dear Lord, you are under the heaviest burthen of distress, which would sink any man's spirit but yours, which was not given you but to be exercised in occasions of the greatest trial of the bravest and greatest mind. You have now a part to act, my Lord, which to my weak discerning, is by much the most important of your life; which will appear plainer to you, when I tell your Lordship that the King is almost quite deserted. You have heard of those who gave the first example, where my Lord Cornbury was the leader, my Lord Abingdon going in with him, &c. Yesterday my Lord Churchill, the Duke of Grafton, and many with them, besides two regiments, are gone to the Prince of Orange, and just now, while I am writing this, news is come (and I believe it true) that the Prince of Denmark, the Duke of Ormond, my Lord Rochester, and many others are likewise amongst the deserters and every day will produce now, accounts to add to the list, and heap new calamities upon this poor unfortunate Prince's head, who has been cursed with fools to his Counsellors and knaves in his bosom, the one to advise him to his destruction, the other to desert him in his distress. The King is very ill, I fear, I may say dangerously so, at least in my opinion, he rests this night in the neighbouring village and tomorrow proceeds to London, whither we are moving as fast as our great body can march, and may expect tomorrow to have our quarters beaten up. Now my dear Lord, what will you do, I know you are a man of honour, and I pray God keep you in that mind, you have therefore an insuperable task given you, which nothing but divine inspiration can resolve how you will be able to go through with. While you remain firm in your obedience and faithful to your trust, you are sure to draw the envy, enmity, and indignation of all those upon you who shall have forfeited that character, which has a fatal aspect on your fortune and future state, and while you reflect on your family and circumstances, will not choose but cost you some sad reluctancies, and should you quite depart from your duty and allegiance in the high station wherein you now are, you will then be undone to yourself, for it would give you pangs of remorse, that would haunt you to your grave. What then is the temper between these extremes. If you contribute in anywise to the bringing in foreign force, you are undone without redemption. If you fight the Dutch Fleet it will be as fatal, and little less if you give up your Command so that the Fleet should fall into hands that may render it useful to any of these ends, which you might have prevented. Is it not possible for your Lordship to shun these rocks by artfully keeping the fleet for some days at sea (for this fermentation cannot last ten days) and by that means put it out of your power to obey or refuse, while you have made it impossible for you to receive or they to send you orders. But I am at my wits end, and you will forgive me, my good Lord, while you know what an aching heart I have for you, and that out of the force of my love, gratitude, and duty, I presume thus to interpose my poor opinion. God in His mercy and wisdom, bless and counsel your Lordship and send us a happy meeting."

[Philip Musgrave] to Lord Dartmouth.

1688, December 11.—"The melancholy news of the King's departure will have reached you before this, what hath since happened, will inform your Lordship of the present state of affairs here, after it was known that his Majesty was withdrawn. The general officers then in Town assembled to advise what was fit for them to do; it was at last resolved that a letter should be written to the P[rince] of O[range] to this effect, which, is dispatched by my Lord Ranelagh:—That the K[ing] having left them without any orders, they designed to continue in arms, and preserve the peace as much as in them lay, and that they should obey such orders as his Highness would think fit to send. The Lords Spiritual and Temporal assembled at Guild Hall with the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, among other things sent for the Lieut[enant] of the Tower, Mr. Skelton, who I am informed resigned his government; and my Lord Lucas is appointed by them to succeed him, others say that there are two more joined in Commission with him. All the Popish Officers and soldiers are dismisssed and disarmed; Dick Graham and most of the Judges are fled, as also the Lord Chancellor and Bishop of Chester; the rabble hath pulled down the Chapel in Lincoln's Inn Fields, which is the only violence yet offered. Since your Lordship's going to sea, a great equipage hath been prepared and many horses bought for the King, all which my Lady is informed Sir William Villiers intends to dispose of for his own use, alleging that by the contract with your Lordship, they are his perquisites. My Lady hath sent to desire him to come to her, with intention to speak to him herein, but he was not at home, her Ladyship very earnestly desires your directions herein, for without them nothing can be done here, either for the King's service or your Lordship's advantage, he having the absolute command of the stables in your absence, it is said that if he cannot make his advantage of them by sale, he will make a compliment of them to the P[rince], to whom it is rumoured that he intends to go."

THOMAS PHILLIPS to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 12. Portsmouth.—"I have since the hearing of this ill news, made it the chiefest of my case to send away all my papers, that may be of use to me, or my poor children, and I am sending my wife and mother to take care of them, and as soon as possibly I can, I will come to you. God knows the grief of this makes me almost incapable of business, but my comfort is, that I have behaved myself justly to the King and to the subject, notwithstanding the opposition I have met with and the slights and affronts that hath been put upon it, hath not made me in the least to waver from my Prince's service. And now I have not one groat in the world to keep me from starving, but what is in the hands of the office, which I now despair of ever having it without a miracle, but God is allsufficient and will provide for the just." Seal of arms broken.

Colonel RICHARD NORTON to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 13.—"It is a very great trouble to me that I cannot wait on you without danger to myself. I cannot get rid of the gout and the least cold will put me back again, and I would not be ill at this time. You find by my letter this morning I sent to Mr. Batten for you, how affairs go. If the King is not at Ports[mouth] he is gone, for the Lords declare him gone. Oh unhappy man to follow such counsel, the like was never or will be in story, a King with a great army driven out of his kingdom by a lesser army without fighting. What further issue of these affairs little time will show, I could venture to meet you at the Dock or at Hell Head but cannot well venture further on the water. I am getting myself a good guard here of my neighbours for we have many Irish dragoons quartered near Portsmouth, where they keep them out. I wish your Lordship might be able to do some acceptable service at this time, I have sent this by my son whose zeal, if it carries him not too far, I am sure has so much honour as to do no worthy man hurt, if you have any saying yet in your mind that upon no acquaintance you would impart, send some one to me."

P[HILIP] M[USGRAVE] to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 13.—"Since the King's departure the distractions have been so great here, that till this moment I know not what to write to your Lordship, the insolencies committed by the rabble have been insupportable, and my Lord Faversham's disbanding the army, hath increased our miseries, for he did not disarm any of them, and the Irish and Roman Catholics (as we are informed) are in a great body about Uxbridge who burn, kill, and destroy all they meet with, and if the prudence of the Lords here had not kept those soldiers that were about the Town together, all had been ere this in fire and blood, and if your Lordship should quit the Fleet, it is reasonable to believe that the seamen will likewise mutiny for their pay, and if they should get ashore, the consequence would be very dreadful. I waited upon my Lord Rochester to advise with him in your affairs and have obtained a letter from him, which I hope is very ample, to which I beg leave to refer your Lordship, believing my Lord to be very sincere therein. I have sent the Declaration of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal with their Address to the P[rince] of Orange, whereby your Lordship will see the sense of the nation and be able thereupon, to take such measures as may be most conducing to your own safety, and advantage to your family. I humbly offer it to your consideration, whether some Declaration or Address may not be expected from the Fleet. In your Lordship knowing the inclinations, both of the officers and seamen, it also seems to me advisable for your Lordship to write to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, who now govern here, and their letter to you will be a very ground for a reply.

"My Lord Chancellor was taken yesterday making his escape, and is committed to the Tower. The train of Artillery is returned. Sir Edward Sherburne commanded to leave the Tower."

Sir MARTIN BECKMAN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 13. The Tower.—"I long very much to have occasion to tell your Lordship how narrowly I escaped on Tuesday last, to have marched either in the advanced Guard or else in the rear of Sir Edward Sherburne, but proving myself an heretic of Rome, nobody would shew me the way out of the gates. Sir Henry Shere promised me to give your Lordship an account of this matter, therefore conclude with hearty wishes for your Lordship's happy and save return, and that all the happiness of this and the next world may attend you, for the comfort of us all, fatherless children, who very much want your Lordship's presence." Seal of arms.

Sir EDWARD SHERBURNE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 13. The Tower.—"The sad revolution of the public concerns have now involved my particular and private interest in the common calamity. In short, I humbly crave leave to acquaint your Lordship, that this morning the Lord Lucas, now Lieutenant of the Tower, showed me a warrant from the Lords Spiritual and Temporal for removing me, as a Roman Catholic out of the Tower. I made him answer, that as for disarming me it might be quickly done, I having not any arms in my house, but as for removing me, I made it my request, that for the better satisfaction of the Lords, and himself, to take off all suspicion of danger, I might be confined as a prisoner to my own house, for it would be a great prejudice to my personal welfare, and that of my estate to leave my house and goods, which in my absence might suffer irreparable loss. Besides, I added, that I had a duty incumbent upon me as an officer of trust, and that I had divers considerable accounts and books to make out for discharge of myself and service of the office, which could not suddenly be done, and therefore humbly desired I might have the Lords' permission for my stay under such security as their Lordships should think fit, till such time as I could dispatch that affair.

"That, which to this, I make bold to add to your Lordship, is this, that in regard I am an officer under your Lordship's government and superintendency, and therefore under an immediate correspondence to your Lordship, that you would please to write to the Lords, more particularly to my Lord Rochester and my Lord Secretary Preston that as well in vindication of your own superintendency, as for receiving a just account of my duty, they would please to grant me time to stay in the Tower until I can give the necessary dispatch to that my concern. Postcript.—My Lord, since the writing hereof I have quitted the Tower, and therefore only beg the favour of their Lordships re-admitting me upon such security as their Lordships shall think fit." Seal of arms.

LADY SCOTT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 15.—"I most humbly beg your Lordship's pardon, that I have not yet made use of your favour. This sudden and unhappy news, has been the occasion of my delay, not knowing whether it were my best way to go thither or farther, besides, I think it so hard to resolve to leave Sir E—— that I know not what will become of him I beg your Lordship's advice in this as also your letter to Colonel Norton (in case I stay) to protect him, me, mine, and whatever belongs to us. If this seem unreasonable, your Lordship must impute it to the distraction I am in, of which I doubt not but you have a sensible share. A line from your Lordship would be an unspeakable satisfaction."

P. MUSGRAVE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 15.—"Since this unhappy revolution, I have not failed in my duty to your Lordship, of giving a full state of affairs here, but am apprehensive, that few or none of my letters have come to your hands, by the ill usage Ben hath met with, though in some measure he alleviates my concern by giving me hopes, that Mr. Becket, to whom he gave my letters may get to you. Finding the Lords assembled, begun to wonder, that no answer came to their letter sent to your Lordship, I acquainted my Lord Rochester with Ben's usage and desired him to move for a pass for him, and to insinuate to the Lords that in all probability you had not received their order, who, thereupon directed that an attested copy should be sent you, to which I most earnestly beseech your Lordship to dispatch an acceptable answer with all expedition, which may testify your readiness to comply with such orders as you should receive from them, which nobody hitherto hath refused, and my Lord Faversham, that went to the King with the Guards, acted solely by their directions. I should not urge this, but that I am assured that your Lordship cannot act in any manner more for the King's service, who I am very well assured will not be prevailed upon to return upon any terms that can be offered him. He wrote a letter to my Lord Faversham, giving an account that he was stopped at Shellness by some fishermen of Faversham, who brought him thither and took what he had from him, and after they knew him, did detain him because as I am informed he would not part with those R[oman] Cat[holics] that were in his company, and the rabble do declare they will not let him go till they have directions from the P[rince] of Orange, to whom an express was sent to Windsor. The gentlemen of the country to the number of an 100 horse went to defend him from the insolence of the rabble. I have herewith sent you the Lords' Declaration, lest the other may have miscarried, and with it must again acquaint your Lordship, that some such Declaration will be expected from you, and I am confident the inclinations of the Fleet tend that way, which (pardon the expression) would be very imprudent and of dangerous consequence for your Lordship and whole family, fruitlessly to endeavour to obstruct. The Duke of Berwick offers conditions for the surrender of Portsmouth, which are dispatched to the Prince."

LADY SCOTT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 16.—"That I might have your letter to Colonel Norton, that he would upon your account, receive and protect my coach, horses, servants, goods, and whatever else I cannot carry with me, this would be an additional kindness, but above all, my Lord, liberty for poor Sir Edw[ard] who has neither regiment nor company to tie him here, nor can I think his being here necessary. The governor, my Lord Duke of Berwick being here himself, nor has he upon any account received the least benefit by it; if your Lordship will not grant this, allow that my cousin Aylmer may convoy him out, so as I may take him up, who I am sure, will be just to your Lordship and me, this is not all my Lord, but that I may have your Lordship's private orders to the master, that in case I find not my father in Guernsey or that place should be in disorder, that he might land me either in Jersey or any the nearest port in France, that I might not in a strange place be forced to transport myself the second time or third time; if your Lordship should tell me you cannot grant this, or that it is to satisfy the people you will comply, I say, my Lord, that you solely govern this place and people, and that what you will do they will never withstand, this is what I beg my Lord with pardon for this and all other trouble."

D. MOODIE to LORD DARTMOUTH, Master General of the Ordnance.

1688, December 16. Portsmouth.—"On Thursday last I waited your Lordship's direction on board of Captain Hoskin's yacht, who gave me no other answer, but that I should return to my post, since which, most of the gunners have refused their duty in compliance with a letter written by the King, which was read upon the platform, that at present he had no further service for those in arms under his command; besides which, their subsistance is stopped by M^r^ Suffeild. My Lord, I farther acquaint you, that last night by a warrant from the Duke of Berwick to me, the 50 muskets which were in the state room upon the platform were delivered to Colonel Mac-Ellicott's regiment. I did refuse, till I had spoken with the Duke, who told me it must be. The guards were all doubled last night and 12 soldiers with a sergeant and corporal, which I understand was upon a fear of a surprisal from the fleet and Gosport, etc.

"My Lord, Sir Edward Scott sent this morning to me to the Paradise where he demanded of me, whether I was sure of the gunners, I told him as aforesaid, whereupon he comanded me to give his orders once more to all the gunners to be at the platform at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

"My Lord, we doubt by all these symptoms, that our condition may be bad enough, for when the Prince's forces appear, if we obey not, we are all at the mercy of these, and if we obey, we wrong our consciences, and are also hanged or killed."

Sir RICHARD BEACH to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 16. The Dockyard.—"I have been informed that there is a titular bishop and some priests that intend to embark themselves on the Phubbs with my Lady Scott. I have therefore desired Sir William Jennings to search for them before she sails, and if he finds any such persons on board to secure them, and acquaint your Lordship with it and dispose of them according to your Lordship's order, for if they should be permitted to go along with my Lady Scott, I fear there would be reflections made on it to your Lordship's prejudice." Seal of arms broken.

Major THOMAS SOPER to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 20. Barnet.—"The vacancies in the regiment are yet as they were, and I know not which way, neither can I be informed how commissions are to be taken out, otherwise I had, according [to] your Lordship's commands, gotten Kempthorne's and Fleetwood's. I suppose that will now be left till your Lordship's coming to Town, which I hope will not be long first. Colonel S^t Clare and S^t Ange went to the Prince to Windsor, and, as I am informed, the former was three hours before he could get anybody to introduce him, and the latter was clapped by the heels. Yesterday a Dutch regiment marched into the Tower. I shall not stir from our quarters in order there to receive your Lordship's commands." Seal of arms.

FRANCIS GWYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 23. Whitehall.—"I had your Lordship's of the 20th, from the Spithead, and can answer for myself, that were I as able as willing, I should be a very useful servant to your Lordship. I am sure, were it in my power, your commands of waiting on you at the Buoy of the Nore, should have been obeyed; but I am engaged in a very wholesome employment and all the good that I know in it is, that it is like to be a very short one, which is Secretary to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, as they are pleased to call themselves and me, it obliges me to constant attendance either on their Lordships, or in their dispatches. Our poor master is once again gone from Rochester, which was certainly the end of his choosing that place for his retreat; he went in a boat with Labady, Dick Beadle, and Ralph Shelton, and hath so entirely given up all, that there will be no ceremony, I doubt, used towards him or the child, which is the word he is now called by. He chose as ill a time now, as he did before, for tomorrow the Lords are to meet concerning a Parliament, and I wish he had stayed to hear what their method had been."

Captain R. CRAWFORD to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 24. Sheerness Fort.—"Though your Lordship may have the news of his Majesty leaving Rochester from many others, yet because the reports are so various, as they are, I thought it my duty to let you know what I hear here of it, videlicet, that yesterday morning about 2 or 3 o'clock, he got away and rode post to Dover (with 2 of his servants) others say he went by this place in the Jammy, yacht, or the Henrietta smack, but for several reasons it is believed he went in the latter and directly to the Downs to the Sedgemore. I pray God bless him and send your Lordship a happy new year."

PETER SHAKERLEY to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 24. Chester Castle.—"The many favours received from your Lordship oblige me not only to a grateful acknowlegement, but induce me to shelter myself under your Lordship's kindness on my behalf in this great revolution, humbly begging that your Lordship will please to send to his Highness, or give speedily by word of mouth, such character of me, as may continue me in my station, for there are a party endeavouring to remove me hence, and if they prevail, I am ruined.

"Colonel Whitley had 100 good firelocks taken from him in the Rye-house plot which were put into these stores, and I am answerable for them at the Ordnance Office. He prays to have them returned to him forthwith. I told him I would write to your Lordship, and the Board, concerning them, and if ordered so by your Lordship, or the Board, to deliver them, it should be done: so I humbly wait your Lordship's answer thereto; and also I humbly desire your Lordship will please to order, forthwith, a warrant under the seal of the Ordnance Office, for my collecting and taking into these stores all the arms which a rabble of the citizens took from Colonel Gaye's soldiers and also the arms which I lent the citizens for their defence upon the alarm we had here of a flying party of Irish coming this way, all which arms the Mayor of this city caused the citizens to keep, though I stand charged with them."

Phineas Bowles to Lord Dartmouth.

1688, December 25. London.—"As the most acceptable duty I could pay your Lordship in my absence, I made all the haste I could to Town, where I arrived (after a miserable journey occasioned by the snow and frost) this evening, when I went immediately to the Cockpit to wait on my Lady, but she, being gone to Mr. Musgrave's, I attended her Ladyship there with your letter, and tomorrow I hope to receive her Ladyship's commands for your Lordship's service. I have yet, though I went to St. James', Lord Rochester, and Captain Russell (weary as I was), met with no other of the persons you directed me, than my Lady and Mr. Musgrave, however, I delivered the Prince your letter who only asked me if you were still at Spithead, I answered him, yes, wind-bound, but ready to sail with the first sleetch .To-morrow I will apply myself very deligently to the doing everything according to the indispensable duty of my very great obligations to your Lordship. It is said the King went away from Rochester in the dead of last Saturday night, but [it is] not known certain to what place, but I suppose your Lordship may guess. Yesterday was held a great convention of the peers, who, it is said, have addressed to the Prince of Orange, to take the charge of the government until the 22nd of next month, which the Prince will give his answer about to-morrow, when the members of the last Parliament, that are in Town are ordered to attend his Highness.

"There are letters sending to all the shires and county towns, to make return of their representatives for their meeting the said 22nd of January, and resolving what may be necessary to settle the government. Possibly you may receive a better account of affairs from better hands more conversant with them, however pray my Lord accept this, which comes from a heart wholly devoted to your Lordship's service, and shall be always so."

Lord Rochester to Lord Dartmouth.

1688, December 25. Whitehall.—"I have your Lordship's of the 20th, and cannot omit writing to your Lordship by so good a hand as your brother's; though, in good earnest, all I can say to you, must be so insignificant to your service, that I should be ashamed to trouble you. I tell your Lordship true, that I am perfectly a stranger to all the Prince's counsels, as I was to the King's, to the last moment of his going away. I confess, I wonder not so much at this, as I did at that; but so it is, that I know not the least of his intentions, and, except one audience that he gave me upon my own account, in relation to some things I had heard his Highness had taken ill of me, I have never seen him but in a crowd. It is to no purpose to brag of this, but perhaps is necessary for me to tell your Lordship, that you may not depend on my poor service, further than it is worth. However, when I tell you the news of the King's being once more withdrawn (and that was on Sunday morning) and that the Peers met yesterday, and have unanimously agreed on an address to the Prince to summon a Convention to meet on the 22nd of January, and in the meantime to take on himself the administration of all affairs, civil and military, till that 22nd day of January, your Lordship will judge that you have nothing to do, but to continue to obey the Prince's orders. I am very confident, if the King had not again withdrawn himself, the Peers would have sent to him before they had made any address to the Prince; but what can the most loyal and dutiful body in the world do, without a head. This is the present posture of our affairs, and I suppose the Prince will now act so vigorously, that all things will immediately be put into some order, which have been of late, miserably distracted. I was fain to send your Lordship's letter for the Prince to Monsieur Bentincke, because I could really not have delivered it myself in any time, and I have nothing more to say to your Lordship at this time, but again to advise you, to follow strictly, all the Prince's orders."

FRANCIS GWYN to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, "Christmas Day."—"These inclosed will show you what we have been doing here, and what we are like to do. The two written addresses are to be presented by the whole body of the Peers, this afternoon, to the Prince, and they are to meet at two of the clock in the House of Lords, on purpose to sign them, for notwithstanding their order, in the print, to empower me to sign for them, they are so fond of these two, that they will put their own hands to them which I am very glad of, for my reign being very short, I would not have any extraordinary matters appear in it, if I could help it, especially in relation to the poor King, who hath acted so quite contrary to his interest, that one would think his design was to spend the rest of his days in a cloister. He went away first from London on the very day the Commissioners were to return with the proposals of a treaty, and this second time of his going from Rochester, was on the day the Lords were to meet, and a great part of them would have been for an application to him in relation to a Parliament. But it is now all over; neither he, nor his (if the child be so), are like ever to set foot here again. You will see by my name in print, how considerable a man I am; but one of the addresses, I believe, will put an end to my secretaryship; the shortness of the employment being the best thing I know in it. I am to put my hand to send poor Dick Graham going to the Tower, from the place where he is now at Faversham in prison. I begged him, all I could in the world, not to go away, but to remain quietly in some private lodging, and profferred him one in my own house; but he chose rather to endeavour to go abroad, and the consequence is, as I tell you. Your Lordship will see by the address marked N° 1^{mo}, that there will be a Convention immediately, in order to a Parliament hereafter, and those that are in that Convention will, in probability, be of the Parliament too. I therefore desire your Lordship's letter to the town of Portsmouth, recommending me, with Harry Slingsby for their burgess, which letter I will not make use of, unless Colonel Norton will give me way. My aunt Wharton hath writ to him for his answer. She is one of his own Presbyterians, and perhaps may prevail with him, but there is no time to be lost; therefore I beg your letter to the town in the meantime, and that your Lordship will send an express with it to me; and if I go thither myself, I will first go to Colonel Norton's and know his pleasure, if he intends to appear himself (which Charles Morley tells me he said to him he would not, at Portsmouth) I will return again and take no notice of your Lordship's letter, but bring it again undelivered and unopened; but if Colonel Norton will favour me with his encouragement, I will go on to Portsmouth. In case I am obliged to attend any farther on these Lords, and consequently cannot make the journey myself, Harry Slingsby, with my servant Fisher, shall do the same thing as I intended to do myself. I beg your pardon for being so long in my own case in these times of public affairs, but these must be thought on too, a little. I wish you joy of being grandfather to a boy with all my heart. We shall see Sir Christopher here upon this Convention."

"DEPUTY LIEUTENANTS of the [TOWER?] HAMLETS" to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 26.—"It is our humble request to your Lordship that you would be pleased at this juncture of time to direct us how we should act, his Majesty being absent, it is expected the Deputy Lieutenants should address to his Royal Highness, the Prince of Orange, we thought it absolute necessary to acquaint your Lordship thereof, and before we acted in a thing of that nature to have your Lordship's directions, which we desire your Lordship to signify to us by the first conveyance."

PHILIP MUSGRAVE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1688, December 26. London.—"I had not omitted writing to your Lordship, but I was apprehensive my letters would not come to your hand before you sailed from Portsmouth, which I understood you designed to do, as soon as the wind would permit you. Last night Mr. Bowles arrived and delivered me yours of the 24th, just as we were going to christen your Lordship's little grandson, who bears my father's name, Lord Preston and Lord Downe were godfathers and my Aunt Graham, godmother, which prevented my going with Mr. Bowles to deliver your letter to the Prince, of which, I suppose he hath already given your Lordship an account. I confess I am so much in the dark, that I could not tell whom to recommend to introduce him to the Prince. I had once the opportunity of speaking with Mr. Russell, and thought him very cool towards your Lordship, nor can I discover that any of the English have so much interest with the Prince, as to be serviceable to a friend, were they inclined to it. The E[arl] of R[ochester] owns himself to be a great stranger to all affairs, and it is visible that he is not countenanced more than any other nobleman. His brother is frequently with the Prince, but I am told he is not very acceptable. In all probability, my Lord Danby will be the great man, when he arrives. It is reported that the Prince expressed himself very much in his favour, before he left Holland, as a person very capable of managing affairs of State, and to whom he was infinitely obliged. If so, I hope Charles Bertie will employ his utmost interest with his brother for your Lordship's service.

"I have so severe a cold, that I am at present confined to my house; otherwise I would have accompanied my uncle William to whom I must beg leave to refer your Lordship for an account of the occurrences of these two or three last days. Frank Gwyn hath sent you copies of the Lords' Addresses to the Prince, to take upon him the government civil and military, and the management of the revenue till the 22nd of January next, at which time a Convention is to be held, summoned by the Prince's circular letters. All this hath been confirmed by the members, in and about this town, that hath served in any of King Charles the Second's Parliaments, who assembled this day at the Prince's desire. The King went from Rochester on Saturday night, about twelve, attended by the Duke of Berwick, Ralph Sheldon, and Mr. Biddolph. It was reported, that he was stopped again at Dover, but I do not hear it confirmed. I have not seen anybody this day. Lord Preston intends to retire into the country very speedily, and Lord Middleton is already preparing for it. It is believed that no person will be continued in any employment that will not subscribe the Association. All the Peers, except Somerset, Pembroke, Nottingham, and Maynard, have signed; all the Bishops, London only excepted, have refused to sign. I suppose your Lordship hath seen printed copies of it.

"On Saturday was sennight, Mr. Howard, the governor of Carlisle, sent to my father to acquaint him that he would surrender the town to him, which he accordingly did, upon his arrival, and the next morning he and all the Roman Catholic officers marched out. My father gave an account hereof to my Lord Clarendon, and desired him to make a tender of his duty to the Prince, and let him know that the garrison was at his disposal. I attended on Sunday four hours to speak to the Prince in this matter, but to no purpose, and since that I have scarce stirred out. Sir John Lowther is so violent against my father, that he is making interest to oppose him and his friends in all places where he or any of them think to stand, so that I believe my father will be obliged to continue in the country to secure his election. If the wind continues opposite to your Lordship any time, I will endeavour to wait upon you at Portsmouth; if not, I will not fail to pay my duty to your Lordship, upon notice of your arrival at the buoy in the Nore."

Surgeon-General Pearse's Proposals about Hounslow Hospital.

[1688?].—"That each apartment have one grave matron or prudent woman, who must stand charged with all the furniture.

"Each apartment must have a cook-maid and, I judge, that each ward (receiving 15 men) must have a nurse or maid to look after them, to wash their linen, and make their beds, &c., so that when both apartments are full there must be six maids above stairs; besides the two cooks below.

"There must be also a clerk to keep an account of the entries, discharges, deaths, burials, &c., who must have a salary from his Majesty, as must also the matrons, cooks, and other maids or nurses.

"And his Majesty having furnished each apartment with bedding, sheets, towels, napkins, all necessares for the kitchen, and three or four dozen of shirts, for shifting them at their first coming, and afterwards, if they should not bring any change with them, of which care ought to be taken by giving notice thereof to the officers that send them. My opinion then is that the matrons may well afford to find the sick such diet as the physicians and surgeons shall direct for their subsistence money, and diet themselves and servants out of the profit thereof, as we see the matron to the hospital in the Tower, and that in St. Katherine's doth. The same was also done in Flanders by each surgeon or his mate.

"For in the hospitals of London, the house allows the stewards but 4 pence per diem for each man, and they have 4 days in a week a pound of beef, a quart of porridge each man, a penny loaf a day, and a quart of beer in the winter and 3 pints in the summer; and the other 3 days they have milk porridge, water gruel, ponadoe, cheese and butter and the same allowance of bread and beer.

"I judge, it will be necessary to lodge printed papers with the agent or some officer of each regiment for sending the soldiers to the hospitals, directed to the commissary, physician and surgeon-general, and kept by the clerk of the hospital carefully filed for adjusting the account of the subsistence money with each captain and that each man's disease be mentioned in that paper.

"That for preventing of counterfeits, which I have often met with by sea and land, orders may be given that no man be sent from his colours thither till he hath been visited by either the physician, surgeon-general, or surgeon of the regiment, for I send no soldier to the hospitals in London that doth not bring the surgeon's hand of the regiment to his letter, as well as the captain's in whose company he is.

"That there be also papers printed for discharges; one of which to be given to each man mentioning the time of his discharge for prevention of his rambling about the country when he is well and his relapsing into a worse disease, and also for adjusting his subsistence money with his captain.

"That till the beds are all full, the men be sent on any day, as occasion requires; but when they are full, that then men be sent only on some day agreed on. Thus on Monday only I send soldiers to the hospitals of London; for on that day, in the morning, a Committee of the governors as also the physicians and surgeons meet and visit all the patients of the house, and discharge such of them as are either cured or incurable and fill their rooms and those of the dead with such others sick or hurt, that are sent thither for that purpose.

"And I propose that the Commissary-General physician and Surgeon-General agree upon a day for this purpose and also for sending from this hospital to those at London such patients that will be long under cure, if they be capable of being removed. And also, to consider in what villages to quarter those that the hospital cannot receive and to give notice to the respective surgeons of the regiments whither they are sent, in order to their taking care of them.

"That the physician take care to visit the sick once a day, or oftener if occasion requires, directing such physic to the apothecary, and such diet to the matron, as he judgeth necessary for each man.

"That the apothecary have a room to put medicines in, wherein he must have a man to lodge constantly.

"And whatever physic is directed by the doctor or in his absence by the Surgeon-General or surgeon of any regiment, being written, and by them signed, and kept on a file, his Majesty cannot pay for more than is administered.

"The two hospitals contain beds for 90 sick persons to lie single but they being pretty large, as men grow into a state of recovery, they may lie 2 in a bed so that the two hospitals will always receive above 100 persons."

The CASE of DR. FRANCIS HAWKINS, late CHAPLAIN in the TOWER OF LONDON.

[1689? June.] For 16 years the petitioner had been chaplain or rector of the Chapel of St. Peter within the Tower of London, to which he was presented by Sir John Robinson, then Lieutenant of the Tower. The house in which he lived in the Tower he purchased for term of his life of Sir John Robinson, for a valuable consideration. In 1681 the petitioner expended large sums in journeys to Windsor, Oxford and elsewhere on public affairs. On Saturday night last he received a sudden discharge from his attendance as Chaplain of the Tower, and was required to quit the Tower by the last day of this instant June. He has a wife and eight children, and has no means wherewith to defray the charges of so sudden a remove. He bitterly laments the misery of falling under the King's displeasure and prays for compensation for his house, arrears and expenses.

1698[-9.] January 1 to 1703 December 31.—An account book of the household accounts of the Countess Dowager of Northumberland.

LADY MAROW to ARTHUR KAY.

1699-1700. March 12.—"I have had a little return of St. Anthony's fire. Some say the Duke of Norfolk will be divorced and both to marry again. I have been at a play 'The Island Princes' which is mighty fine. 'The way of the World,' Congreve's new play, doth not answer expectation, there being no plot in it but many witty things to ridicule the Chocolate House, and the fantastical part of the world. Your sister Betty was at the assembly last night, I wish we had a good Russell Street husband for her."

LADY MAROW to her daughter LADY KAY.

1708, August 12. Turnham Green.—"It is the only inconvenience here, that I cannot answer my letters so soon as at London, where I was on Monday, and returned again at night. I think I have bought you a pretty fan. I am sure it is a genteel one, and hope you will like it; the handkerchiefs are little worn at present, so I have bought you a palatine, which I think very handsome, and what all the fashionable people wear. The red ribbon, I hope you will like, because I do. The genteelest ladies, with fine laced heads, go much without ribbon. Mr. Green promised to send the shoes; if Thomas can get them, they will, and the other things, be sent this day. . . . Lady Yarbrough and Mrs. Finch made Lady D. a visit. Lady Yarbrough wonderful cheerfull and said Sir Thomas was well, sang the ballad 'You see at Derby,' which I did not send you, because I thought you would see it there or at Offchurch, she talked oddly I thought about you and said you must come to Town and board in a place where some Countess had lived and boarded. . . . . . Sir Robert Worsley and Lady in Town, lie at Mrs. Herbert's. Lady Worsley so ill after a miscarriage that she is with her cousin Herbert for advice, Sir Robert going into the Isle of Wight, where he has a house, and returns again to my Lady, who I will see before she leaves London if I can. Poor Lady Orrery keeps her bed still. Lady Stanhope in Town this 4 months, not yet brought to bed. The Town very empty and sickly. We was at Lady Belongs, where was the lover and much company and brother Bed[ingfeld] who is much yours. Mrs. Bedingfeld prettier than ever. Lady Den—— saith a lover and three thousand a year, as it is said Sir Francis has, is a great advantage to a young lady's beauty. The wedding will be quickly. Last Sunday the Duke of Buck[ingham] and b[rother] Bed[ingfeld] went to Tonbridge to see the D[uches]s who is very well. D[uches]s of Queensborough there and Mrs. Higgins with her. Lady Effingham at Tonbridge all go as airy as ever. Lady Craven and cousin Trollop here and say so many kind things of you and to you, that I love them. Both look very well and tell me old Mrs. Matthews is dead, and that Dr. Byrch has buried his lady of the small-pox."

LADY MAROW to her daughter LADY KAY "at Westgate House, in Bath."

1708, August 19.—"Some say Lord Peterborough has been in private conference with her Majesty, who is come from Windsor in order to go to Paul's, being Wednesday. Dixon says the Queen looks well, the Prince ill, Lady Derby's old lodgings are fitting up for Mrs. Massum against her lying-in. Last Thursday was Mrs. Bedingfeld married to Sir Francis Anderton, Lady Westmoreland at the wedding. She was married in white damask, with silver troley on the petticoat, much silver ribbon, which was cut in pieces for favours, else none. Lady Belong gives her a thousand pound—six hundred in money, and four hundred in clothes; which brother Bedingfeld saith if he had he durst not undertake to discharge all with that sum, linen, lace, etc., so very fine and rich. On Sunday, Lady Denbigh and I went to wish joy. Lady Belong's house, where they was married, is within a stone's-throw of this place, so we did partake of the fine music, which, for a day or two, was very constant. The bride when we went was in a glorious gold stuff, with the finest natural flowers I ever saw upon the gold, a French stuff and not [in the] least, considering the richness, superfine laced . . . . . . head and ruffles. The bridegroom fine, very fine . . . . . bride very handsome, and the bridegroom very well. We, found much company there, and more men than women, Lord Duke of Ormond, Lord Rochester, etc. On Monday next this pretty bride goes with her husband into Lancashire, and brother Bedingfield goes as far as Puckington with them. I hear the Duke of Ormond set forward for Bath on Monday next, Mrs. Eyers has married herself to a nonconformist minister that has nothing either in money or land."

LADY MAROW to her daughter, LADY KAY.

1708, August 26. Turnham Green.—"Friday last I went to town, dined with Lady Harpur, where I met Mr. Harding and the Vice-Chamberlain; they had been in town about a week; we drank your health, and the Vice invited us all to dinner to his new lodgings in St. James's, which are fine and neatly furnished. Lord Chamberlain and Lady Kent met us there. A noble treat we had, all things rare and finely got, charming wine which was brought to us with ice, and without. Lady Kent and Harpur tells me of a fine bed at Gebars for the King of Portugal. Chairs and hangings comes to nine thousand pounds, as they say; they would have had me go to see it, but I did not, having business. Curtains, vallence, and bases, the finest gold stuff was ever seen, with natural flowers, so fine upon it, as if it was done with a needle; the lyning, a rich silver stuff and flowers, very fine on that, and agreeable to the outside. The headboard, tester, and quilt, some say scarlet satin, others white; but all say, the richest embroidery of gold upon it, and in the finest pattern [that] was ever beheld; rich gold lace on the curtains, &c., and great ropes of gold, with rich tassels to draw the curtains by. From the Vice-Chamberlain's I went to see Mrs. Fynch, she ill of the spleen. Lady Worsley has painted a pretty fire screen, and presented her with; and, notwithstanding her ill-natured distemper, she was very diverting—Mrs. Fynch I mean. Lady Worsley, and Sir Robert, are with Mrs. Herbert at Westminster. I see them, and my Lady told me she saw the harness for the King of Portugal for eight horses which are worth abundance, being all covered with crimson velvet, and richly embroidered with gold. Kind Lady Harpur brought me hither on Sunday evening, she goes out of town to Lady Kent's to-morrow, and so for Calke. The Town saith Lord Pembroke will now marry and have set him three ladies:—Lady Falkland, Lady Shovell, and Lady Arundel. Lady Shovell be[ing] told of it, replied she had lately married a [daugh]ter to Sir Something Marsham, and had given her fifteen thousand pound down, and promised twenty thousand more at her death, therefore was disabled for marrying men, looking chiefly at the fortune."

Lady Marow to her daughter, Lady Kay.

1708, September 4. Turnham Green.—"Lady Denbigh and I surprised the Duke and Duchess of Buckingham on Monday at half an hour after 12 o'clock, and dined with them; a kind and hearty welcome, a good dinner at one, and charming wine, with the Duke and Duchess' conversation, regaled us to a high degree."

Lady Marow to her son-in-law, Sir Arthur Kaye at Woodsome, Yorkshire.

1708–9, March 19.—"The Duke of Montagu's death is much talked of and has produced a union between two sisters, Lady Duchess of Newcastle, and Lady Thanet; for yesterday they were seen in a coach together, and most say that the Queen has ordered the late Duchess of Albemarle shall live with Lady Thanet, but Duchess of Newcastle and Lord Sunderland, whose first wife was these ladies' sister, to have equal concern with the keeping of her grace and equal advantage of her estate, which is 8000*li*. a year. None now questions her being alive Some say the Queen will not meddle in this affair, but that the law decides it that next relations must have the advantage and keeping of the lunatic which she certainly is." Seal broken.

John Floyer to Lady Dartmouth at Blackheath.

1709, August 23. Lichfield.—"I wish you the recovery of your health, and a better neighborhood than the Palatines, which I fear have infected your pure air. Our country has whole loads of them and call them gipsies, not knowing the language and seeing their poor clothes."

LADY MAROW to her daughter, LADY KAYE.

1709, September 5.—"I have sent you the enclosed from Betty, which son Knightley brought when he came to be god-father. The child's name John Eardley; christened in the afternoon, at church; no entertainment, but jelly, biscuits, cake, and wafers; all these in great abundance, with wine and gossiping cup."

LADY MAROW to her daughter, LADY KAYE.

1709–10, January 5.—"All the town are full of the Tatler, which I hope you have to prepare you for discourse, for no visit is made that I hear of but Mr. Bickerstaff is mentioned, and I am told he has done so much good, that the sharpers can not increase their stocks as they did formerly; for one Young came in to the Chocolate House, and said he would stop Mr. Bickerstaff if he knew him. Mr. Steele, who is thought to write the Tatler, heard Young say so, and, when he went out of the house, said he should walk in St. James's Park an hour, if any would speak with him, but the Hector took no notice."

LADY MAROW to her daughter, LADY KAYE.

1709–10, February 2.—"Your watch shall go to Etherington, and I will get a good coatmaker for my girl. Dixon writ last post. Stapleton here last night, looks well, Mrs. Stapleton looks poorly. I have seen Mrs. Turner who was so kind to come to me, for I make no visits, my head being so bad sometimes, and my shortness of breath very troublesome. Dr. West before the House of Commons has preached a sermon quite contrary to Sacheverell's, Lady B. Spelman would have them put in a room together and fight it out. The Commons, some of them, was against giving Mr. West thanks, but was outvoted. Mr. Bromley here last night tells me the Bill will pass with the Commons to turn out them that have places, only the Queen's menial servants excepted, but what the Lords will do with it and Sacheverell none knows. Bell will suddenly thank you for hers last post and give account of herself."

PROCEEDINGS OF PARLIAMENT.

1710–1721. Notes for speeches in Parliament by Sir Arthur Kay, Parliamentary estimates, &c.

Sir J. JENNINGS to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1714, June 19. Castle Street.—The Lords of the Admiralty having taken exception to certain articles in his contingent account as not having an immediate relation to the Fleet, he begs to trouble Lord Dartmouth with them as the expenses in general were consequent on the orders received from Lord Dartmouth for transporting the several Crowned Heads and for facilitating the evacuation of Catalonia, &c. And when the account is laid before the Queen he persuades himself her Majesty will grant her special order to remove the objections of the Lords of the Admiralty.

Rev. Geo. Stanhope to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1714, July 24. Lewisham.—"I think it my duty to remind your Lordship of Lewisham chancel which I have just been to take a view of. Upon the rain fallen today, my Lady's pew is so wet that great part of it cannot be used and the lining will be quite rotted. Her servant's seat and the floor between that and the Communion table stood in puddles and must be laded out with pails and wooden dishes. The wall and ceiling is much discoloured with the wet, and I daresay that every shower that comes before these repairs be done, will add considerably to the expense."

South Sea Scheme.

1719. Estimates and papers of Sir Arthur Kaye's relating to the South Sea Scheme.

The Earl of Dartmouth to Sir Arthur Kaye.

1721–2, February 17. Sandwell.—Proposing his son Lord Lewisham for the hand of Sir Arthur Kaye's daughter.

The Earl of Dartmouth to [Lord Townshend.]

172¾, February 24. Sandwell.—"The death of the regent and the surprising behaviour of the King of Spain upon it, put me in mind of a piece of secret history, that was never known to any now living, besides myself and one more. Your lordship will find in a memorial brought by Abbé Gaultier from Mr. Torcy to Lord Bolingbroke, which is printed in the report of the House of Commons, page 26, that he declares a renunciation would not stand good by the fundamental maxims of the government of France, which startled the Queen and her servants very much, but upon furthur consideration, was thought to be only the last refuge to avoid making the renunciation, therefore the answer was that the Queen did not trouble herself with the maxims of France, but she and her allies would maintain what was done in an affair of the utmost consequence to all Europe, and therefore insisted upon a public declaration on their part (which your lordship will see by the renunciations was complied with) that it was done in regard to the safety of mankind in general, which she thought was of as great weight as the particular maxims of any country could be, but there remained another difficulty, which was how to be assured, that the person to whom the title should be given, would assert that right, upon assurances given of support, which considering his being a subject of France, might be very dangerous to his own person, if ever known to have entered into such engagements. The Queen told me she had very positive assurances from the Duke of Berry, but he died before the treaty was concluded. Soon after General Stanhope arrived from Spain, the Queen told me she knew by some former transactions, that he had the means if he would make use of them and ordered me to propose it to him. He expressed a very cheerful willingness to undertake it, and said it was the only expedient to make the renunciations effectual; but the Duke of Orleans would run so great hazard, that it must be managed with the strictest secrecy. I told him the Queen was as sensible of that as he could be, and assured him there was but one of the cabinet (who I named to him) that knew anything of it, or ever should, upon which he wrote the enclosed letter to the Abbé du Bois—who he calls the Abbé Guibert—which I laid before the Queen, and your lordship has the copies both of his and mine, which I took at that time. The Queen afterwards told me she had received a very satisfactory answer, but understood, the Duke of Orleans thought it safest for himself, that no one person should be entirely master of his secret, and therefore returned his answer by other hands. Whatever his majesty's measures are, it is fit he should be informed of all the steps that were ever taken in a matter of so universal a concern, therefore beg the favour of your lordship to acquaint him with it. I need not use any arguments to convince your lordship that it will not be proper, it should be known by any other; the ill consequences that may still attend such a discovery being very obvious."

Postcript.—"Your lordship may imagine by the post he was in, the other person to be Lord Bolingbroke, but I do assure you it was not."

Lord Townshend to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1724, May 2. Whitehall.—"I beg ten thousand pardons for not having sooner acknowledged the honour of your lordship's letter, the hurry of business I have had of late and some transactions at court of which you have seen the event in the prints, have, as I may venture to own to a friend, prevented my doing it. This, I am sensible, ought not to be alleged as a justification of my omission. It is upon your goodness and your partiality you have ever shown in my favour, upon which I must wholly rely; but however negligent I have been in this part of my duty, I can assure your lordship I lost no time in laying your letters before the King, who was extremely pleased with this piece of secret history, and commanded me to return your lordship his thanks and to let you know in his name, that he looked upon the part you acted in relation to the subject matter of those letters and your communicating to him at this juncture, as a great instance of your zeal for the true interest of your country and for his service. His Majesty has had the strongest assurances from the new King of Spain, and everything goes on there as well as we can wish. The late King's abdication was certainly the effect of devotion, and the Queen seeing it was not possible to hinder his doing it, came into it, and took Grimaldo, the Secretary of State, with them into their retirement, constituted a council for the young King to her own taste, and by these measures keeps a very strong influence on all that is done at Madrid; so that everything goes in the same channel they did before the abdication, and the new government has as yet scarce the appearance of any authority, the entire power remaining where it was before this great event."

The Earl of Dartmouth to [Lord Townshend].

1724, May 6. Sandwell.—"I am sorry your Lordship should think there was occasion to make any excuse for not answering mine sooner. I know very well one in your post has not much time to spare, and Wace had acquainted me, that he had delivered my letter into your own hands, which was all I wanted to be satisfied in, and hope your lordship after five and thirty years acquaintance, knows me better than to imagine I impute a failure in ceremony (had it been so) to want of friendship. It is a mark of his majesty's great goodness to take my letter in the sense your lordship says he does, I did not know what use it might be of, for his service, but I knew it was my duty to inform him of a matter of fact, that nobody else could. Had Lord Stanhope been living, I should have thought it a piece of impertinence to have taken notice of anything that had been more immediately his duty, as the King's servant, to have acquainted him with."

The Earl of Dartmouth to [Lord Townshend?]

1724–5, February 22. Sandwell.—"It is now a year since I wrote to your lordship upon the death of the Duke of Orleans and abdication of the King of Spain. What has since happened gives good reason to believe that a storm is gathering notwithstanding the present calm, and should think myself a very bad Englishman if I concealed anything that might give light, where his majesty and the kingdom are so nearly concerned, therefore shall as briefly as I can give your lordship an account of some former transactions that have had and still may have great influence upon the affairs of the world. The last king of France agreed to the renunciation after the death of the two Dauphins and the Duke of Berry with the utmost reluctancy, foreseeing the crown of Spain (much clipt from its former grandeur) might prove the lot of his own posterity, when that of France (greatly increased by his acquisitions) would go to his brothers. This I know gave him great anxiety, from a letter he wrote the Queen in hopes of prevailing that the King of Spain might be allowed to renounce that crown and return to France in case the present king should die without issue. The Queen's answer was that she thought that would leave the world under greater uncertainties than ever, and therefore must insist upon an absolute renunciation, which he seemed to take very unkindly, but concluded with great piety submitting himself and the world to the Creator of all kings. But make no doubt he left the best instructions he was able, to his family, for preventing what he esteemed the greatest of misfortunes, and in my poor apprehension the King of Spain abdicating that kingdom and resuming it again (upon an unforeseen accident) looks more like an effect of those directions, than bigotry or devotion, that a prince of his age with a young Italian queen and a numerous offspring, should quit a crown that has cost so much blood and treasure, without a prospect of greater advantage to himself and family, seems the very reverse of nature. The great party he has in France, the immoderate activity of the present King (with no very strong constitution), the precaution the regent took to hinder his having children in haste, and the little opposition the present Duke of Orleans could make, gives the King of Spain too fair expectations, what obstructions he is like to meet with from the rest of the world, is worth consideration. In the last war after the Emperor was possessed of Naples, Milan, Mantua, and Flanders, he seemed little concerned for Spain. How far the present Emperor carries his views, I know not, but Count Galas told me, the court of Vienna thought they had better pretentions to the Low Countries than any other part of the Spanish monarchy, as having belonged to the House of Austria before they had anything to do with Spain, and that any agreements made while they were in the possession of that crown, could not prejudice a prior right. When the Marquis del Bourgo, was sent to desire the late Queen would propose the Prince of Piedmont, for the eldest of the Emperor Joseph's daughters (which she readily came into, in hopes of diverting another design, the old Electress of Saxony, and the Queen of Poland having given her notice, that a match had been proposed for the Prince of Saxony, upon condition he changed his religion) I was ordered to discourse with Hoffman, the Queen being desirous to know what the success was like to be, before she proposed it in form. He told me it was true the court of Vienna had great obligations to the Duke of Savoy, but much doubted their approbation, for reasons he would tell me as his old acquaintance and friend, though he could say nothing by authority. The world he said, was going to take a new Branle (sic); we had settled the crown of England upon a protestant Elector; Holland by interest and religion would always be united with us; the King of Prussia, the most powerful prince in Germany; the Prince and elector of Saxony, protestant (though the King of Poland professed himself a catholic) the King of Sweden, a Prince of the Empire; Denmark, a near neighbour; the Czar it was plain would have a share in the dance for the future, and the House of Austria had no heirs male: all which put together, had so alarmed the Roman catholics in general, and those of the Empire in particular, that he believed their chief aim would be, how to dispose of the Archduchess, most for the advantage of that interest which hereafter would be their main concern, and gave broad hints that the Prince of Bavaria would be the properest party, but the good success they met with at Dresden obliged him to be content with the younger sister. These are particulars known to nobody now alive, but myself, therefore hope I shall not be thought over officious in begging the favour of your lordship to lay them before the King if the knowledge of them can be of any use to his service, if not, depend upon your lordship's goodness to excuse so long a letter, it proceeding entirely from a dutiful respect to his Majesty's person and sincere affection to my country."

The Duke of Marlborough to Lady . . . .

1725, September 5.—Has given directions to have the park kept according to the King's last orders, which were to give no keys. Lord Burford has been so unlike the Duke of St. Alban's son and said "he would have a key whether I would or no." Walking in the Park is now just as it was "in the Queen's time and all times, and where anybody has a coach to carry them to the place there can be no trouble I should think."

The Earl of Dartmouth to Mr. Scott.

1727, October 26. Blackheath.—Mr. Mander has given him a bill upon Mr. John Price of Lombard Street. Most of his family have been or are dangerously ill. He wishes his daughter Bagot and Sir Walter well out of Wales, for they say the sickness is worse there than anywhere.

The Earl of Strafford to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1727–8, February 5. London.—Asking Lord Dartmouth to be present at the hearing of his appeal in the House of Lords.

The Earl of Aylesford to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1729, April 7. Packington.—"The miserable afflicted state of my family, ever since I came down, has been very shocking to me; and now, Sir Clement Fisher lies in the last extremity. I do not believe he can live 24 hours.

"My children, Lady Anne and Frances, have both been very dangerously ill, especially the latter, but are now much better. Mrs. Duresore, and two more maids that look after my children, are now in great danger. Other servants have agues, which is the least matter, but, however, they are disabled from assisting us. I have three hired nurses, and God knows, not sufficient. I beg of you not to come into these parts this year. I will get away when my family, or those it shall please God to spare me, are able to travel."

LORD BRUCE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1732, April 1. Tottenham Park.—"I have thoughts sooner or later of visiting my father at Brussels. Since the affairs of the Bedwin election, I have not been to any part of the Court, nor do I hereafter intend to do so. The question is, whether I have any occasion, as a Peer, to ask a formal leave of the Court to live out of England, which, if I am to do, will determine me in staying where I am. Although I have not the least concern in Hampshire, I have had, lately, an accidental opportunity of promoting two good men's being chosen next time for that County. In short Mr. Lisle and Sir Robert Worsley, or some other of the mécontents in opposition to Lord H. Paulet and Lord John Russell, whose engaging with the former, upon his brother's account, I am sorry for. There are endeavours using for to throw out these two Lords, who have already jointly declared for the County. Though your Lordship had not a concern in Hampshire, I should take any occasion of acquainting you with this, but as you are a Hampshire man, you have a right to know it. Mr. Lisle is not acquainted with Lord Carteret, who, as you know, is son-in-law to Sir R. Worsley, and a great friend of Lord Lymington's. I have writ to Lord C[arteret] to propose a coalition, which would, I believe, make the thing sure; but should that not be entered into, Mr. Lisle would be joined by Sir L. Stuart, or some other of his own sort. I wish two such could be, but when one cannot do as one would do, one must do as one can do; your Lordship knows well, that time was, and is not likely to be again, for the putting things upon a reasonable good foot."

JONATHAN SWIFT to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1732 [–3], February 17th. Dublin.—"I have a good title to the honor of your friendship, although I have never corresponded with you since the great event that scattered us, and banished me for ever to this miserable country. The title I claim is the great favour you have formerly done me, from whence I may boldly challenge any other in your favour. I am now an interceder for the city of Dublin, which hath always used me well, and whose rights I have always contended for. There is an appeal in your House between one Mr. Vernan and the city on occasion of bounds, privileges, limits, and immunities. I shall not trouble you with the case, their agent will have the honor to deliver it you. And you are to grant the small favour of your attending this cause constantly and making your friends do the like. This is the utmost we ask, because we all know that every soul of you is consummate in wisdom and justice. I will order the agent to inquire whether your lordship be as cheerful and healthy as ever. I know little of your domestic affairs for I do not find your name in my friend's letters, upon which I might justly reproach you."

Lord Bruce to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1733–[4], January 1. Tottenham Park.—"I remember very particularly the discourse I had the pleasure of having with your lordship at Blackheath, which I have since kept to myself. This summer I have been much employed in several preparatories to elections, and have in every place as much as possible promoted Tories being chosen, such as may be depended upon. In this county and at the boroughs we are either direct courtiers or Tories, and the latter will gain ground considerably, and at Marlborough and Bedwin particularly I am pretty sure to have four friends. In Bedfordshire and Yorkshire it is necessary to deal with the third sort of people. As to the first county I have had a very great deal of argument with Lord Carteret, and we are not at all agreed. It is perfectly Mahomet and the mountain; to go to him I most certainly shall not do, and if he comes not to me, I believe he will repent it. The particulars of this affair are too long to trouble your lordship with by letter. As to Yorkshire I went thither in October at the desire of several principal gentlemen; we had a great meeting, and have I believe fixed Sir Myles Stapylton's being chosen with a good prospect of having the two of our own sort another time. By the notion I have of the present situation of affairs in Europe, I imagine that we shall upon the opening of the session, have under consideration peace or war, and I apprehend that a neutrality is the thing for the good of England, and consequently proper for we Tories to support, without any regard to who is for or against it. By this, England may reap the advantage of the follies of other nations. I send this by a safe hand, and shall be very glad to hear if I have the happiness of agreeing with your lordship. I have discoursed some other friends, who are of my mind. As it seems a time of action, I shall get as many friends as possible to town, and do intend to be there myself on the 15th, and to wait upon your lordship at Blackheath next morning to discourse fully these affairs. Upon second thoughts I will be in town the 14th, if your lordship in the meantime should not hear to the contrary, and wait upon you next morning. I send you some letters and papers as to the Scotch papers. My kinsman is a very honest sensible man, and a Tory entirely. Your lordship knew his father Sir Alexander. I shall be very glad to have your thoughts upon this material affair. My thought is that Lord K. should get all the hands he can of peers by way of petition to our House praying that the election may be by ballot. I am informed that all the non-juring Scotch peers will qualify themselves to vote at the next election. I shall recommend to my cousin getting as many of the 16 like himself as possible. If your lordship writes by the bearer I shall have it a safe way on Sunday morning."

Charles Montagu to Lord North.

1735, November 24. Bath.—"Your letter, my dear Lord, afforded us more diversion than you intended us, I received it this morning in the coffee-house. I no sooner had read it, but Lady Anne Lumley claps a letter into my hand. 'Read that, Mr. Montagu,' says she, 'and let me read yours.' I immediately delivered it her, but gently signified that if she would read it she must be obeyed and have it. You may be sure my eyes were upon her while she read it. I observed not a little fuss, but, however, her ladyship's curiosity was so raised, that she called me to her to ask if that word chicken netting did not mean marrying. I told her it did mean something like it. I communicated the contents of your letter to Petite as soon as she came to the coffee-house, guess what mirth it produced. Mansell got hold of the story, and teased her Ladyship a little at breakfast, so I am a little afraid of seeing her again, not being sure she will not be serious. I do not know in what style you write to Lady Anne, but I suppose your letters please her very well, for the moment I said my letter was from you, up she got and brought me her letter, to purchase the reading of mine. Poor Petite has been but very indifferent, but she has been for these two or three days in Apothecary Siegar's hands, who has done her a great deal of good. You may assure our ladies at the Club, I am quite good, but how I shall hold out when we come to Town, if they will not take compassion on me, the Lord knows. We both long most heartily for the time to come to be with you again, we live here so stupid a life that we know nothing of the scandal of the place to entertain our friends with the news of it. I wish those morning walks you mention may produce any good, but I am afraid your clothes will be old-fashioned when they make their appearance. I am quite in pain for poor Lady Fanny, I by no means like the account Lady Anne gives of her to Lady Anna Lumley. Petite desires her service."

The Earl of Aylesford to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1736, April 16. Queen's Square, Westminster.—"I was in hopes of your company yesterday in the House upon the affair of the bridge, and am very sorry for the occasion of your hindrance. We did not go through the bill, but proceed to-day, which has occasioned the putting off the cause till Monday. The cases you sent me I gave to some lords yesterday, and will give those you have sent me this morning to other lords to-day. Much notice was taken yesterday of the rude omissions in the list of commissioners for building the bridge; and one of the most obvious being the leaving out Lord Arran, who is high steward of Westminster. Lord Strafford moved he might be added; upon which a debate arose. The Duke of New[cast]le hinted that no amendments were to be made, which provoked the House and made Lords Abingdon, Carteret, and Anglesea speak very strongly as to the point of privilege, and the unreasonableness of calling the bill a money bill. Then it being difficult to support a personal debate, the question was put and we carried it to add Lord Arran, 42 to 39, in the committee; we had seven Bishops with us. After this success Lord Romney was named, who stood up and declined the commission. Then a general question was moved, that all peers of Great Britain having estates of freehold in Middlesex, Surrey, Kent, and Sussex, should be added; and notice taken of many of great estates being omitted, as the Duke of Beaufort, your lordship, and some others; but our troops deserted and we could not support a division, so the clause where the commissioners are appointed was agreed to with only the amendment of adding Lord Arran. Some other amendments were made to subsequent clauses; and that clause where a recompense is to be made to the Archbishop of Canterbury for the ferry, was postponed and referred to the judges to draw a clause of appropriation of the money (which was omitted in the bill). The ferry being part of the revenue of the See of Canterbury and by the original clause the Bishop would have pocketed the money. So having sat till after 6 o'clock upon a question (but no division) the House was resumed. During the debates for adding commissioners, which your lordship may imagine could not but be in some degree personal, nobody opposed more than Hay, especially as to the general question of all peers that had freehold estates, in the four counties. It became him exceedingly well, upon many accounts, which I need not suggest to your lordship. I have sent for a Bridge bill with the amendments which shall be enclosed if I can have it in time to send by your servant. I hope to wait on you at Blackheath in a day or two; in the meantime I send you a pamphlet lately published, which may afford you some amusement. It is not much talked of in town and at first went off but slowly; now it sells pretty well. But I think the author attributes too much foresight to some and seems to hint at consequences that have but little or no foundation. However I am apt to think a scene may open which few expect at present. But I leave it to your lordship's judgment."

LORD ATHENRY to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1736, May 4. Torlwahan.—"The honor I have of being related to your Lordship, and the kind manner you formerly interested yourself for me, lay me under the greatest ties and obligations to you, and makes it incumbent upon me to give your Lordship an account of my family who are entitled to your affections.

I have three sons, my eldest just past his school; I intend to send him soon to travel, and [he] will pay his duty to your Lordship. My second son hath been bred to the sea three years, had the King's letter, and was taken care of by his kinsman, my Lord Clancarty. My youngest son is at school, and eleven years old. My wife has been dead eleven years, and seeing the mischief occasioned by second marriages in other families, I determined to live single. I married my eldest daughter very much to my satisfaction, to the grandson of old Judge Daly and my own kinsman, a family in possession of a very considerable fortune, and always in strict friendship with me and my ancestors; but I had the misfortune to lose her two years ago, whose death I cannot regret more than the family into which I married her, do."

HENRY CLARSON, Mayor of Banbury, EDWARD BOX, and RICHARD BURROWS to "LORD NORTH AND GUILDFORD, at WROXTON."

1736, August 30. Banbury.—"We are now again threatened with a further prosecution for doing what we always apprehended would conduce to your Lordship's interest, that is, the choosing of Mr. Jervis, he being a person always steady in your Lordship's interest and that of your family, approved of and recommended by your Lordship long since, and upon the last vacancy, your Lordship was pleased to assure us, would be the next person brought into the corporation, and as we are not conscious to ourselves of having done anything in this affair, but what has been just and legal, we humbly hoped your Lordship would have favourably interposed on our behalf, by endeavouring to put a stop to this ill-natured, vexatious, and expensive prosecution, but as that is not done, your Lordship cannot blame us if we take all possible care to defend ourselves, and especially in the election of a mayor, by choosing one who is a friend to our cause, which we trust we shall be able to effect."

Postscript.—"Since the writing the above, Mr. Mayor has been served with a fresh process, which we believe must be no secret to your Lordship."

[LORD NORTH to HENRY CLARSON, Mayor of Banbury, EDWARD BOX, and RICHARD BURROWS.]

[1736, September.] "I am sorry to hear the animosities are likely to continue between my friends in the Corporation. But cannot help being surprised at some expressions in your letter, you seem to insinuate I had assured you upon the last vacancy Mr. Jervis should be the next person brought into the Corporation, in which you are much mistaken. I told Mr. Box if he came readily into the bringing in Cheyne I believed it would contribute to make Mr. Jervis coming in more easy another time and that he might probably be the next. It is very unlikely I should promise anything that it did not depend upon me to perform. But could what I said be interpreted into a promise, it must have been conditional and I will be judged by Mr. Box, whether he concurred in Cheyne's election in such a manner as to have any claim to the performance of it. I will repeat again that I never had any personal objection to Mr. Jervis, nay, I should have been glad to have had him brought in with the common consent of my friends which I really believe would have happened if you could but have had a little more patience. If you thought I had promised to bring in Mr. Jervis, and could effect it, sure you paid me a very bad compliment, in endeavouring to bring it about by any other means, I wonder you should expect from me the stopping of the prosecution, when I have always declared I did not propose to meddle in a dispute wherein my friends were concerned on both sides. Your opponents cannot say I have done anything to encourage the prosecution; and sure you could not seriously expect I should insist upon the strongest side giving up to the weakest, particularly when I am not convinced that the latter have the law on their side, I think both parties have been to blame, with regard to me, by preferring their private friendships or resentments to the common cause, the good of my interest. However I am still desirous to continue my favour to all who have ever professed themselves my friends and therefore wish for nothing than to hear there are such proposals made among you as are likely to bring about an accommodation. As you insinuate in your letter that I had been acquainted with the serving the mayor with the new process I will tell you that I knew nothing of it when I saw you last, but was told it since, as a thing resolved upon. I do not see how the election of a new mayor will be of any great consequence in the affair of the law suit."

C. T. to LADY KAYE.

[1739?] July 31. Dublin.—" We stayed a few days at Chester for a ship and then had a fine passage, and none of us sick; as the town is empty, provisions are extremely cheap, three fine chickens from the poulterers for 14 pence, as much fish just out of the sea for one shilling as ten people can eat; and everything in proportion, except house rent, which is extremely dear. I have taken a furnished house near Bachelor's Walk, the same Lady Wilmot was in, for which I pay an extravagant rate; but I hope I shall soon have put my affairs in such a method as not to have any necessity for any more journeys and to be able to see your Ladyship in London by March at farthest. . . . . I beg your Ladyship will tell Lord Molesworth, that yesterday a cornet in his regiment, a Frenchman, his name something like Marsalla, shot himself through the head, and died . . . . . , this makes a vacancy for little Jack, who I dare say will be remembered."

ELIZABETH, LADY NORTH, to her mother, LADY KAYE.

[1739, July ?]. Popplewick.—"We find this place much prettier than we expected and in the most delightful country I ever saw for riding, walking, prospects, etc.; the roads like a bowling green. We were yesterday at Lord Byron's, a glorious fine park and a fine old house. I am amazed how my Lady could hate it so much. To-morrow we go to see Hardwick, a fine old seat of the Duke of Devonshire's and one of our other days we go to Thoresby, if we hear his Grace and his fine lady are to be abroad, which we have sent to know. I have been very near Mrs. Chaworth's, which is a good looking old place. She visits no one soul, nor sees nobody, not so much as her sisters-in-law, and is consequently hated beyond measure in the country. It is but two miles from hence. She has not so much as sent to me; she lays out a great deal upon the place."

ELIZABETH, LADY NORTH, to her mother, LADY KAYE.

[1739, July ?] Nottingham.—"We have found that we shall be nearer Blithfield than we may ever be again, and as we owe them a visit, we think they will never believe we intend to pay it, unless we do it now: so we design to dine tomorrow at Osmaston—as we have sent them word—lie at Burton, and be at the Bagots by dinner on Saturday, and stay with them till Tuesday morning, and dine with the Andovers in our way to Sandwell. We were at Thoresby yesterday, which is a glorious place. His Grace was gone to some race, and Madam de Touche was gone awalking, so we saw the house. Her cloth was laid in all form for dinner in the hall and her apartment excessive handsome, and just as one should suppose the Duchess of Kingston would be. A red satin vast hoop lay upon the bed, and a white sack; his bedchamber next to hers. When we were gone to dinner at the inn, she sent her compliments to us and two bottles of champagne and two of claret, fearing we could meet with none good there. After dinner, as my Lord, Mr. Mont: and Lady Weary were walking in the park, they met her with a book in her hand, but before she came near enough for them to speak to her, she turned up another walk, and made them a low courtesy, which was excessive civil; for as no ladies in the country will take notice of her, she went away, for fear of putting Lady Weary to any difficulty. Most people here think he is tired of her, and if so, the poor soul, must lead a miserable life, for she never sees the face of a woman. My Lord does not think her at all handsome. We spent a charming day at Hardwick in the apartment where Mary, Queen of Scots, was for twenty years confined; the furniture just as it was then, and the most magnificent I ever saw, but some of it very ill preserved, some pretty fresh. The gallery is 180 foot long, and hung with gold and silver tapestry, from top to bottom. I had not time in my last to tell you so much of it. I hope to find the post at Burton tomorrow night, so wont send this till I can tell you something of Sir Robert and Lady Wilmot.

"Burton. Friday night. Here we are in a most miserable inn, which we hope to get out of as soon as possible. After seeing Wolverton and the silk mills we went to see Mrs. Maccullock, who invited us to dine with them, and informed us Sir Robert and my Lady were gone to stay some days at Chatsworth. We had a very good dinner of 11 dishes, and six gentlemen dined there besides themselves and us. I never saw her look so handsome, nor so well dressed, in a very rich satin night gown. Eardly looked purely, and all sent you many compliments. Mrs. Turner came after dinner, she is very well recovered and comes to town next winter. Mr. Poole dined there—Mrs. Clark's father; she is quite well at present."

ELIZABETH, LADY NORTH, to her mother [LADY KAYE].

[1739], August 1. Sandwell.—Their adventures since her last have been breakfasting at Mr. Vernon's to show Lord North the place, which he thinks glorious. "Lord and Lady Andover and Lady Fanny Finch dined at Blithfield on Monday both in high beauty, and yesterday we dined there in our way hither. It is a pretty little citizen's box, with a river running before it. Her son is very well but an ugly child. They came half way with us and looked sweetly in their riding dresses. We found all well here and my Lord Dartmouth in his usual spirits and is now carrying my Lord all about the park. They all at every place inquire much after you, drink your health, and send compliments. The first thing I saw here, was Sir Lister Holte, who I find is here every day and as much with Lady Anne as he pleases, rides out with her, &c.; but that it is ever to be a match is yet a secret to me; they never named it to me, but sure they will while I am here, for I conclude it is so, or they would not suffer it to go on so. I am sure Lady Bab. durst not have done so, even the week before she was married. He has grown and improved, has a handsome face and good person, but sadly awkward, and says, my Lady. She looks happy with him, and I hope will be so. We go to Birmingham today, and to-morrow Holtes in abundance are to be here."

ELIZABETH, LADY NORTH, to her mother, LADY KAYE.

[1739, Augnst] 6. Sandwell.—"The Earl and Countess have at last opened their minds to me about Sir Lister [Holte] who I find most excessively pressing to have the affair concluded, but the Earl's scruples are that it must appear odd and ill of his side, being his guardian, to marry him to his daughter before he is of age, but that can only be to quite strangers for whoever knows anything of the family knows it was what his grandfather, grandmother, and father always intended and that Lord Dartmouth was left guardian only to prevent his falling into other hands that might dispose of him otherwise; besides it is my firm opinion that if it is not done in a public manner soon they will make an end of it themselves. He is most violently fond of her and never easy when he is out of the house and she seems quite as well pleased with him. He mends upon knowing and a little good company would soon make him very well for he seems sensible of his bad education and very good natured. The prince and princess do certainly come I believe to the Race."

ELIZABETH, LADY NORTH, to her mother, LADY KAYE.

[1739, August] 12.—"Their Royal Highnesses have notified to us their design of coming to us at the Race so we are busy preparing for this great honour and trouble. . . . . . . The Prince and Princess bring only Lady Archibald, Mrs. Payne, Sir William Erly, Colonel Shutz, and a page, and intend staying all the 3 days of the Race and to come the day before, so we must have another cook from London for there must be 2 dinners and 2 suppers every day because she must not dine with gentlemen. It is odd to turn the master of the house to the second table but such is royal ceremony, but they reckon they shall give no manner of trouble."

T. PAGET to the [EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1739, August 13.—"The Prince has expressed to me a vast concern about you, and told me I must take a letter from him to you when I set out. He said so many kind things of you that I never before looked upon him with half the value and tenderness I did on that occasion. For God's sake my dear Lord pluck up a spirit, act like what you are (a man of sense) and preserve yourself and health for the sake of your friends, since sure I am, no man living has more."

ELIZABETH, LADY NORTH, to her mother, LADY KAYE.

[1739] August 16.—"On Monday we dined at the Argyles, on Tuesday we breakfasted at Astrop where there is more company than ever I saw there, as the Wrights—she in great beauty—the Kecks, Mr. and Mrs. Bathurst, Mrs. and Miss Grevell, Mr. and Mrs. Broughton, Mr. and Mrs Brudenell, Miss Conways, Lady Thanet every day and many more. Lady Susan inquired after you; so did the De'el, who wears a waistcoat and petticoat and is a figure to fright one. Lady Susan lives at a great rate there, sends Burgundy and Champagne to whom ever she dines with, says she keeps 30 servants, has a town and a country coachman, spends a 100 pounds of butter every week, and in short is very near being only fit to be locked up with clean straw; comes into the room in her riding dress with her cap on one side and her hair about her ears, and has quarrelled with every body in the place but the Conways. Mrs. Wright and she have had a violent one about shutting and opening a window, so bad that she would not come into the room to speak to me till Mrs. Wright was gone. They have each a little black dog, who have also quarrelled, and fly at one another whenever they meet. We dined with Lady Thanet who, you may be sure, was excellent upon this subject. She regulates their balls &c., but Lady Susan would not have had her speak to Wright, which she would not agree to. I never heard her more entertaining nor in better spirits, though very full of complaints. Harry Ballandine is with her, who she teazes rarely about her brother and his nephew Bruce. By the way, I hear from Mrs. St. John, that Lady Bruce is much liked in the country, and that her behaviour is so observant of him, that no one would imagine her anything but his grand-daughter. They have dined with each other. The Hertfords and St. Johns have only had messages passed. But to return to Thanet; she is frighted to death about the P[rince] and P[rinces]s coming to Newbottle, which we encouraged, and told her they certainly would. She says she will go out at one door as they come in at another, but that she will give them a breakfast at Astrop with all her heart. Lady Susan tells everybody they are to come to Great Tew, but I hear and believe it is true that she and Lady Archie have had a quarrel and that Lady Susan in her passion wrote her the most scolding and impertinent letter that ever was read. She says Charlotte Edwyn comes here with them. I wish I knew whether that were true, for then we must alter our scheme of bedchambers. Yesterday the four Argyle daughters spent the whole day with me, and were very merry and good humoured. The little one wears a sack; so does Lady Thanet's little girl, and they look like little old women. Nanny went there and to Astrop with us, and is in very good looks, and was much admired; they are all well. The boys speak of your coming to town with great delight. You will find Lord Wallingford with a lame shoulder by a fall from his horse. They intend being at Banbury the night before the race. My little roses of black satin riband I never yet have had, and expected them by Woodford. Pray let them come by Billy Moore; and I beg you will match this drop of Mrs. Beresford, or anywhere else, I have lost one, and have no ear-rings for the race. If this should be broke in the letter be so good to buy two, and send by him also, and we beg you will send our enquiries, and see our names set down to Madam Montandré. I hope Lewis's are well. Who do you find in town. One of Lady B. Bagot's boys has been dying at Westminster. When you send that way, be so good to inquire after him; they lodge with Mrs. Watts in Dean's Yard. The eldest Miss Leveson is going to be married to Sir Richard Rockley of Staffordshire. Lady Chetwynd has been almost killed with an overturn, and is still extremely ill. How is Lord Strafford. The Powletts and her two sons dine here to-day. Mr. Ward that married Ermine Cartwright, is dead in two days of a quinsy. Sir F. Skipworth's sister is dying there of a consumption, one of his children ill, and young Mr. Cartwright madder than ever. I never heard of so dismal a house."

ELIZABETH, LADY NORTH, to her mother [LADY KAYE].

[1739 ?] September 2.—" We are now in the midst of our preparations and have just now settled 14 bills of fare, their table is to be 3 and a remove and seven, dessert 11, supper seven, and one of them always chicken broth, I thought that would divert Sarah to hear. I fancy they cannot be here till 7 or 8 o'clock to-morrow for they are to see Blenheim on the way. The Banbury people are out of their wits for joy and are making vast preparations for their reception. On Tuesday the corporation meet them at the gate, make a speech and present a great cake and are all to kiss their hands which will divert me to see. I fancy they will be soon tired of the ball so I hope we shall keep tolerable hours. I was sensible my ink was white and expected you would complain, I hope this is better. A thousand thanks for the sweet tippet which I shall long to wear. We dined at the Paulets who have a sweet place indeed and very good house, eat in plate and have everything very nice, he was gone to London to solicit a regiment but hoped to be back for the Race. Lord and Lady Bruce were at Oxford Race and she danced away in great delight. We have 4 bucks already sent us and expect more, but fruit we are sadly distressed about; here is none in this country, one pine-apple Lady Baltimore has sent us from Epsom. The Kecks dined here and both asked much after you, she looked horrid dirty but talked fine, he vastly fond of his ruin. She says she shall stay at her house here all winter but I don't believe a word of it."

ELIZABETH, LADY NORTH, to her mother, LADY KAYE.

[1739, September 3,] Monday night.—" Our great folks are gone to bed, they arrived here between 7 and 8, desired supper as soon as possible, having been up at five this morning, she not looking a bit tired or hagged but, Lady Archie and Mrs. Payne almost dead and went to bed the moment they came. Their Royals in great good humour told me how ill you was at Tunbridge and how sorry they were." The prince has brought 12 partridges and some pheasants.

ELIZABETH, LADY NORTH, to her mother, LADY KAYE.

[1739, September 8?] Saturday night.—"We are not a bit the worse for our fatigues. No Banbury race was ever so easy to me, for we kept charming hours. The latest night I had was half hour past 12 and as they lay long in bed in a morning we had many hours to ourselves before they wanted us. They was most excessively obliging and seemed pleased with everything, and most of all with the place, though they had but one good morning to walk. They would have the children continually with them, Betty and all, and were delighted with them, and would have Nanny go every day to the race; and the last night Mr. Keck danced with her the whole night, and she was never once out, and in greater joy than can be imagined. They have, I think, pleased everybody, and indeed they took thorough pains to do so. They played one night at cards, he at whist with Lady Thanet, Mrs. Boughton, Billy Moore, etc.; she at quadrille with Lady S. Keck, Lady Archie, and myself. All our victuals went well and was much approved, so that Cheyne had hardly a cloud upon his countenance the whole time. They left the balls always at ten, and the supper was on the table when they came in, and the moment it was over, she went up to bed, and he into the room to the gentlemen for about half an hour. I am vastly delighted with the Princess; she is the easiest, sweetest, manner and temper I ever saw, and no sort of ceremony or pride. She spoke to Betty Watson and delighted her of all things. We had no Argyles, Paulets, or anybody that had any hopes or fears, except poor Lord Waldegrave and Lord Crichton; sure they wont let them suffer. The Prince was one morning at Astrop. They left 60 guineas in our house and gave at Banbury, Astrop, etc. very handsomely. They breakfasted with Mr. Cartwright at Aynho, as they went home. She had three very fine sacks for the three days and all her jewels, and looked quite pretty; is not with child, or has any message been sent but in the newspapers. Nanny desires her duty; and that you may know how happy she has been she has wrote her brother an account. You are very good to the boys, but sure two at a time is too much for you. The Astrop quarrels are higher than ever."

LADY ARCHIBALD HAMILTON to LADY NORTH.

1739, September 8. Cliffden.—"Their royal Highnesses command me to return their thanks to your Ladyship for your enquiry after them, and to let you know that they are both perfectly well, and got home without the least accident. The cold loaf and wine you sent, was very acceptable. They went in the house where the relay was, and eat very heartily. It was half an hour after eight at night before they arrived at Clifden, where they found all the young family very well. I thought myself very happy in having this opportunity of seeing your Ladyship and charming little family in one of the most agreeable places I ever saw. Mrs. Payne joins with me in being much obliged for your thinking of us; we both escaped the head ache and are much yours and Lord North's humble servants. I beg my compliments to the young ladies."

Elizabeth, Lady North, to her mother, Lady Kaye.

[1739, September 11 ?].—Is disappointed to find Lord North goes into waiting so soon. The Prince has desired to put up an obelisk here to the memory of his having been here, indeed nothing could be more obliging than they both.

Lady Wilmot to Lady Kaye.

1739, November 13. Osmaston.—"It is a thousand pities that Irish stuffs are prohibited, I mean if England can and will not make as good, pretty, and cheap." Sir Robert Wilmot has gone to the North of Ireland, which he much commends for an improved country where the linen and cambric manufactures flourish, and for being well stocked with Protestants. I hear Sir Robert Burdett was married on Tuesday last to Miss Sedley who is to come out the finest bride that has been seen in these parts a great while.

Elizabeth, Lady North, to her mother, Lady Kaye.

[1740,] May 13. Wroxton.—"I am sure your clothes must look charming. Sure the making a show of the poor princess undressed was unnecessary, I pitied her sadly. When does she go."

Elizabeth, Lady North, to her mother [Lady Kaye].

[1740], May 18. Wroxton.—"The winter diversions not being over at Banbury make us some amends for the want of summer ones. On Friday we were at the play, there attended by all the fine ladies you saw here, who were all much pleased with the performance, such a one I never saw, and in the most stinking of all alehouses, however, for once it was ridiculous enough. . . . . I fancy his Ma[jest]y is by this time not in the sweetest of tempers, it is a reprieve to Princess Mary. Miss Campbell's match was great news, what sort of man is Mr. York. I hope the Duke will live to see the wedding but he cannot keep you out of your lodging."

Elizabeth, Lady North, to her mother [Lady Kaye].

[1740,] July 3. Britton Ferry.—"I am indeed excessively surprised and concerned at the news you send me of poor Lady Anne Holte's death, and want much to hear the particulars of it, and how Lady Dartmouth does, for I really believe it will kill her. I have no letter from any of the family, and you only say she is dead; I cannot guess of what, but I suppose the small-pox. It is really a melancholy thing. I must beg you will immediately buy me a dark grey lutstring nightgown of Harris, and then it need not be paid for till I come to town, and send it to Stiller at the warehouse to make without a lining, and let it set out by the carrier on Thursday morning; and a pair of black mittens, three or four quire of black paper, and a couple of sticks of black wax, which is all I want of any kind. I grieve for your lameness and long to hear the result of Sir R. Wilmot's discourse with the doctor, and if he does think Tunbridge necessary I hope you will undergo it, but should be very glad to have you escape it. Your pure letter found us at Margam, where we dined. It may be made very pretty out of doors, but the house is so miserably ruinous, that I should think Lord Mansel a most courageous man if he undertakes repairing it there being nothing left but walls. He has yet never seen it, and I pity him when he does. My Lady Mansel must have a great fortune. I am vastly delighted with this place and quite give up St. Donats to it; I want to know Lewis's opinion, though this is to be sure much improved since he was here. It is vastly cheerful and lively, and ships continually sailing close by the windows. It is a very comfortable, good house, and everything new and clean in it. I have a charming dressing room with a fine near prospect. The tidiness of Lady Bab is prodigious; she has cut out and made up all the furniture here, and thinks of everything."

Elizabeth, Lady North, to her mother [Lady Kaye].

[1740,] June 30. St. Donats Castle.—"I am glad you now and then have rain at London but I have not seen a single drop since I left you and was choked with dust in our journey. This country threatens famine, and not a bit of grass is to be seen. We have hot sun and cold winds constantly, the sea washes up against the garden wall, and to the house you ascend about 160 steps, which Mr. Mansel is now making into green slopes. It is most certainly a fine situation but much too high and blustering for me. I dare say I shall like Britton Ferry much better . . . . I pity the Princess of Hesse, of all things nothing was ever so unlucky, sure they might have said she had a cold and not have let her be seen."

Lord North and Guildford to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1741–2, January 19. London.—"I take the first opportunity of making my acknowledgments for the honour of your Lordship's letter, and for your obliging expressions in relation to my concern and care for Lord Lewisham. He has many other titles to my friendship and affection besides his own personal merit, but that alone would command them, had he no other, for I think I may say without flattery, I never yet knew a boy of his age so promising. He has shewn a manly sense and courage in his desiring the inoculation, and in his behaviour under it, and shews the best heart in the world in the gratitude he expresses to his mother and me for the anxiety we have occasioned to ourselves on his account. We have great satisfaction in saving your Lordship and my Lady your share of it, and have still greater, in being able to assure you that the distemper has proceeded so happily that not one circumstance has happened different from what we could have wished. He has been twice to take the air and is in the most perfect health and spirits I ever knew him. He seems so well that I believe he will not have occasion to accept of your Lordship's very kind offer of allowing him to go to Blackheath."

Theo. Levett to the Deputy Lieutenants and Justices of the Peace for the County of Stafford.

1745, September 30. Lichfield.—By command of Lord Gower I beg to call a meeting for 9 October to consider whether it will be more for his Majesty's service and the ease of the county, to call out the militia or to raise some companies of foot and a troop or two of horse, by virtue of commissions to be granted by Lord Gower, with a declaration that they shall be disbanded as soon as the present troubles are over.

THEOPHILUS LEVETT to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1745, October 20. Lichfield.—We are raising a regiment in this county, as far as we can, instead of the militia. My Lord Gower is colonel and he has delivered out his commissions. The captains and subalterns were to meet at Stafford last Saturday to report what men they had raised and what measures they would take, but what further was done there I have not since heard.

THEOPHILUS LEVETT to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1745, December 2. Lichfield.—"I have been so hurried and busied in military affairs for this last three weeks that I have not been able to do or think of business. The Duke of Richmond has lodged in my house for ten days, and I had but just a bed to lie on, and the whole town has been as full, but, thank God, they have this day left us though we expect them back soon. The Duke of Cumberland came here last Friday, and this morning his Highness and all the army, except Lord Cobham's regiment of Dragoons and Handyside's regiment of Foot, which came in here about noon, left us, and we expect these to march out as soon as the moon rises. The rebels yesterday were at Stockport and Macclesfield in Cheshire, and may be in Staffordshire to-day if they please. Much depends upon their march to-day, for by that it must appear whether they intend to come forward and fight or to retreat the way they came, or to turn to the right between Nantwich and Chester and get into Wales, or slip between the two armies by Buxton and Derby and get into Leicestershire and to proceed southwards, for this morning they certainly had liberty enough to turn either to the right or left and avoid the army which I think they will never face, for our army is about 13,000 good troops with a large artillery which last night lay at Rugeley and is gone to-day to Stone or Stafford, and the rebels by all accounts are not above 7,000. We all conclude that an action will be (if at all) in 48, if not 24, hours. The plan of battle was fixed before they left us this morning and the soldiers received their cartridges, and everything is in order for an engagement. I believe the whole army encamps near Stone to-night."

The EARL OF DARTMOUTH to RICHARD WRIGHT.

1747, June 6. Sandwell.—Complains of having been lame with a pain in his right arm. Has heard nothing of the picture though his daughter Bagot told him it was finished and framed before she left London, it is thought to be very well drawn "which may be the reason Mr. Hudson is willing to keep it in his house to induce others to sit to him." Ground will be found to be much more valuable upon Blackheath when Westminster Bridge is finished. Lord North and all the company from Wroxton are expected to come hither the end of next week. He is glad Wright has got rid of the ague but he must be careful as it is a distemper very apt to return especially about Blackheath by reason of the fogs from the Isle of Dogs. Seal of Arms.

H. Legge to [Sir George] Lyttleton.

1748, May $\frac{31}{20}$ Berlin.—"Notwithstanding the high encomiums you poets are pleased to bestow upon the ingenious inventor of letter-writing, I have had such a surfeit of his contrivance this morning, that I could almost wish he were now upon earth and had nothing but ink and paper to live upon. I am not so cruel as to mean that he should live upon the produce of these two ingredients as an author, that would be referring him to a very slender diet indeed. No, I only propose that he should sit down to his own materials in the first instance, and eat heartily without waiting for second course, much less for any dessert he might expect consequently and be starved to death in the attendance. After these execrations it were natural to suppose I should leave off writing, but it is so long since I arrived here without giving you any account of your commission and kind letter to Algarotti, that I am determined to let this sin lie no longer upon my conscience. You must know then that Algarotti, about a week before my arrival, made his retreat to Italy with some precipitation. An ill-placed passion for the Barbarini who is considered here as res fisci and in a manner appropriated to his betters, was the occasion of it. The rise, progress, and particular circumstances of this amour, I can't tell you, but I know it had taken such possession of his Italian constitution that rather than lose his pursuit he was determined to have made a bawd of that respectable matron called matrimony. Upon this political demise of Algarotti, I have very prudently, not to say partially, considered myself as heir to the personal estate you sent him by my hands, and after burning your own letter have taken possession of all the printed works for my own amusement. I shall be the more unwilling to part with them as they contain many pieces of your own composition, and therefore desire you will never think of resuming them; I would advise you rather to make a virtue of necessity and confirm my title to them with a good grace. You and I, whom I look upon as pacific animals, cannot but rejoice at the signing of the preliminaries. I hope no precaution will be omitted at home, which can tend to make the peace stable and lasting, and I dare say our own leader will omit no economy that can convert it most to the advantage of Great Britain."

H. L[egge to Sir George ?] Lyttleton.

1748, October $\frac{13}{2}$. Berlin.—"You and our friend Pitt extremely overrate my services to your brother, the whole of which amount to no more than a little kindness to a worthy young man, whose own qualities give him as good a title as your recommendation, and a better no man can have with your humble servant. The company of an honest sensible Englishman in this foreign land, with whom I can communicate freely is at least worth all the civility that can be shown in return, so that upon the whole of that account we are even and quit, and I desire you and Mr. Pitt will not think of erecting that base mercantile scale of debtor and creditor to try the friendship which subsists between Mr. Lyttleton, junior, and myself. He is now sitting by me, we both exhort you to mind your own affairs and get him in at Bewdley, where I hear you are exerting such talents for electioneering as your friends never suspected you of, and wish they may be crowned with the good success they deserve. So much for my friend Lyttleton, as to myself I don't know whether to thank you most for the impatience you express to see me, or for the partial reason you give to wish my return delayed, as I don't know which is most a mark of your friendship. To say the truth I am as much convinced as you are from whence the peace must have its validity, and should be for trying all means to obtain if possible that confirmation without which perhaps it may not be worth three years' purchase. The ground we have hitherto tried (to speak in forest terms) is foiled, perhaps if we tried fresh we might make something out, and I don't know but there might be an opportunity of doing so after the peace is signed. At least this will produce another crisis, and I should wish that either your humble servant or somebody well instructed were upon the spot at this event. As it is probably not far off, I may very likely be continued here till it is over, and still be able to return to England before or very soon after the meeting of parliament. I feast my imagination frequently with those parties you mention for next winter to Enfield Chase, those Noctes cœnæque Deorum at which we will discourse politics, poetry, or that greatest of all Nepenthes nonsense, pro re natâ and as our genius shall prompt. You knew I am a strenuous peter-gunner: and since you have manifested such unexpected talents for electioneering I don't know but you may likewise have the latent virtues of a shooter in you. Do but think what a security it would be to a man of my dimensions engaged in snipe shooting, if you should be prevailed upon to incede (sic) with me like a heron over bogs and insincere ground which to you only would not be bottomless. I rejoice much at the affection you have conceived for Lowth, depend upon it the more you know him and his works, the more you will like both. He is at present gone to see Dresden, but is I dare say very much your humble servant and will be very proud to become your friend, as I shall be to become the instrument of making him so."

Rev. William Lowth to Mr. Baron Legge, "in Lincoln's Inn Fields."

1752, December 25. Lewisham.—"There has lately begun to arise in this parish some disturbances relating to the half year common land. One of Lord Dartmouth's tenants has been forbid to plough and is threatened by some of the parishioners with an action at law, for having done it. Much the same thing has likewise happened at Sydenham where Mr. Hodsden has some land of the same tenure; some of the inhabitants there, the other day, drove, for some time together a large parcel of horses and cows over a field of young wheat. This they did on purpose to make him the plaintiff, to sue them for damages: and if he does not, they will most certainly do the same in all the common land and not suffer any of the tenants to plough in what they call their half year. Though this proceeding of these inhabitants—for there are but few yet who seem concerned in it—is directly contrary to all custom which has prevailed in the parish for more than three score years, and the tenants of these lands have done nothing but what they have always used to do, yet Mr. Hodsden desires me to let you know that—as a law suit will be very chargeable, though he is very confident that he has right on his side, and the quantity of this sort of land which he has is very small only 40 acres—he will give up the thing and not try it, unless Lord Dartmouth will join with him in the suit."

Thomas Jenkins to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1754, May 8. Rome.—Acquainting Lord Dartmouth that he has forwarded a case of drawings and paintings. He met with the small landscape of Salvator Rosa a few days before packing up the things; the drawings after Raphael he sends as things not only valuable, but the most excellent he ever saw. The absence of buyers amongst "the English cavaleri" in Rome this winter furnished him with a favourable opportunity of adding to the prints.

In the list of pictures, etc., are the following not elsewhere mentioned in Jenkins' letters. A portrait of Lord Dartmouth by T. Jenkins, ditto of Lord North, a picture of a Nymph by T. J., the favourite airs in the last operas, a print representing the Crucifixion by Carracci, after Tintoretto.

Thomas Jenkins to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1754, June 1. Rome.—Before sending away the portraits he had drawn of Lord Dartmouth and Lord North, he found many defects, which it was too late to remedy. Mr. Wilson desires him to say that in this summer he will have finished twenty drawings, views of the environs of Rome, which the writer will send with some of his own drawings from the antique.

Thomas Jenkins to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1754, June 25. Rome.—Enclosing an account of money expended on behalf of Lord Dartmouth.

Enclosure:—An account of money paid for the use of Lord Dartmouth in Rome in 1753 and 1754.

Amongst the items are, a volume of prints of Albert Durer, consisting of 81 pages, "a volume of M. Angelo, Raphael and his School" a volume of various masters antique, a volume of ornaments antique, a volume of prints antique, a book of landscapes of Perella (?), characters of Bologni by A. Carracci (?); to Signor Stern for a flower piece 40 crowns;" to Benefiali for a picture representing la Sibilla d'Egitto 20 crowns; to Signor Vander Meulen for a picture of dead game; for two landscapes of G. Poussin and two models 105 crowns; for a landscape of Salvator Rosa 17 crowns; for four drawings of the Vignorollo after Raphael 16 crowns, 40 biochi; for eight views of Rome by Signor Giovanni Baptista at two zechins each, 32 crowns; to Mr. Wilson for twelve drawings views of Rome at three zechins each.

Thomas Jenkins to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1754, November 13. Rome.—"I am now to acquaint you my Lord of some things that I hope you will esteem a satisfaction to possess. In the first place the two landscapes of N. Poussin that I mentioned are not those that your Lordship saw; they were two small pictures of the school of Gaspar, whereas those I mentioned are quatro palmi, and are the same for which one Mr. Bovere offered three hundred crowns and could not obtain them; whereas I have got them in handsome gilt frames for one hundred and twenty three crowns. The Claude is a fine picture, so is the 'San Girolamo' of Philippo Lama [Laura?]. But this is not all, for, some time since, I got intelligence of there being to sell, divers pictures that were formerly the property of Principa Pia, and on examination I found them to be the following pictures:—A landscape of Titian, with the 'Judgment of Paris' in a gilt frame; 'San Francesco' by Guido, mezzo figura, in gilt frame; the Head of a Prophet,' by Dominichino gilt frame; two landscapes, Orizonte, best manner, 7 palmi; two ditto, Torriegiani, figures by Salvator Rosa, and the whole pictures retouched by Salvator Rosa—they were always esteemed Salvator; two landscapes by Mompert, 5 palmi; a sea-view, by Tempesta di Genca; two uprights by Gaspar Poussin, 3 palmi; a picture of Architecture, by Viviani, the figures by Augustino Tassi, gilt frame; the 'March of an Army,' by Padre Giacomo, in a gilt frame; a Battle, by Salvator Rosa, in a gilt frame, They are not only undoubtedly of the Masters, as mentioned, but are excellent in their kind. At first I intended only endeavouring to purchase the landscapes, but finding that by separating them a much greater price must be given, I then endeavoured to bring them to my terms for the whole collection; and at last, from a demand of fifteen hundred crowns, I brought them to two hundred and eighty zechins, which I flatter myself is such a price as the Titian, Guido, Padre Giacomo, and Salvator Rosa, will be esteemed adequate to. As several of the pictures required lining, I agreed to pay twenty five crowns for the whole expense. Three or four of the frames wanted gilding, which expense I agreed for them to be at. Added to these pictures, the Claude, the two N. Pousins, and the Philippa Lama, I hope your Lordship will find them to be a valuable collection of themselves. If your Lordship is content, I shall be happy. As I have now gone some length in pictures on your Lordship's account, I shall not think of making any other purchase without fresh orders from your Lordship; and I do not but doubt occasionally, some pictures may be bought in London, well worth purchasing. As for the duty of those I now send, it is entirely in your Lordship's breast whether you will pay one farthing, for the least influence with one of the Lords of the Treasury or Commissioner of the Customs, is sufficient to be excused from paying; and to my knowledge, not one half of the pictures that go into England do not (sic) pay any duty, especially when they are not for sale. I shall send away those pictures in about a fortnight. In the meanwhile, I have wrote to Leghorn to know if I could not insure the case for about two hundred pounds sterling, as I should be excessively concerned was any accident to prevent your Lordship's receiving those pictures, or some indemnification for them. I have made Messrs Stern and Vander Meulen very happy, or rather your Lordship has made them happy, by ordering them to paint companions to the pictures they before had the honour to do for your Lordship. Mons. Vander Meulen's great picture is not disposed of; the price of it is fifty crowns."

Thomas Jenkins to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1755, March 30, [Rome.]—" I had the happiness of your Lordship's letter of the 27th December and by other accounts since received, I find that a few days after, completed what I so much wished for—I mean, my Lord, your marriage to a lady in whose praise the whole world joins. Accept my Lord the most devout prayers of your dutiful and affectionate Jenkins, for all the happiness that is possible to attend you and your Lady. But not to interrupt what I am wishing your Lordship, I must briefly answer the contents of your letter. The two models of Fiamingo (?) were sent during your Lordship's stay at Paris, and the bill of lading I addressed to Sir Richard Hoare as usual. The case addressed to the Hon. Miss Legge, was that which contained the music, your Lordship's and Lord North's miniatures and some other articles. The drawings of Messrs. Pompeo, Wilson, and myself were sent by the French courier, addressed to your Lordship at Mr. Wheatley's." Finding that all the things he had to forward to Lord Dartmouth would be too many to go in one case, he shipped a case on December 14th 1754 which contains as follows:—"The 'March of an Army,' by Padre Giacomo, gilt frame; two landscapes, by N. Poussin, four palmi, in gilt frames; A Battle, Salvator Rosa, four palmi in a gilt frame; 'Judgment of Paris' by Titian, in a gilt frame; a landscape by Claude Lorraine, 4 palmi, gilt frame; a prospective, by Viviani, figures by Austin Tassi, 4 palmi, gilt frame; San Girolamo, by Phillippa Lama, gilt frame: two uprights of Gaspar Poussin; a case of sulphers for Mr. Golding; a head by Dominichino, in a gilt frame. . . . . .

"List of the pictures contained in the case shipped February the 28th 1755:—Two landscapes of Orizonte, palmi 7–5; two landscapes of Torrigiani. . . . . d'imperatore. N.B. retouched almost all over, by Salvator Rosa, and figures by him; two landscapes by Mompert . . . d'imperatore; a sea piece by Tempesta di Genoa, in a gilt frame; San Francesco by Guido, in a gilt frame: a picture of Vander Muelen, palmi 7–5, 'Dead Game'; a portfolio with 30 of Mr. Wilson's drawings; a portfolio with some drawings of Jenkins, at the end of which, separate, are a few drawings of landscapes, the property of Mr. Beckingham. . . . . . I hope the pictures will be in England soon after this letter. I shall say nothing more about the quality of the pictures. I hope they will speak for themselves. That of the 'Judgment of Paris' by Titian, ought to have a crystal before it, as all the works of Titian of that size have their extremities unfinished, and by having a crystal before them it becomes less visible. The pictures want no varnish; they are packed wth the utmost care, and I do humbly intreat your Lordship to give strict orders that diligence may be used at the opening the eases at the Custom House. Those drawings of my doing, are on different sized paper, as it appeared to me most suitable to the several subjects. I should be glad to know, when your Lordship has received them, if one size is more agreeable then another. I had done many other drawings, but as the last were the best, I could not risk the sending those first done. I shall be very anxious to know how the pictures please you, my Lord, although I know your great goodness for me disposes you to be prejudiced in their favour. In the month of April I shall be obliged to draw on your Lordship for about 30 li. sterling.

"By a letter received this week from worthy Col. Oughton, I have had the satisfaction of renewing, or if possible, increasing my felicity in your Lordship's happy state. Would to God that every Colonel and more men had such hearts as Col. Oughton."

Postscript. "Your Lordship will be pleased to recollect that it is entirely in your own breast whether or no you will pay any gabella, for the least interest with the Treasury excuses it. The two landscapes of Mompert are very singular; when you look near to them they are quite confused, but at a very small distance they produce a prodigious effect. It is said here that your Lordship is about building a house in Westminster. If such a person as Mr. Hayward, a sculptor, should be recommended to your Lordship, I believe I may venture to say that he is a deserving young man; I knew him some time here, and he behaved well. The picture of Messrs. Stern and Vander Muelen shall come by the first conveyance."

Thomas Jenkins to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1755, August 9. Rome.—I have to acquaint you my Lord of a very great liberty I have taken. It lately fell in my way to purchase at a very low price a miniature painted in oil colours by Baroccio, the subject is a Duchess of Urbino, and as perhaps there is not in the world a thing of this nature, it occurred to me that I could not bestow it anywhere so well as to the lady of my most honoured and beloved benefactor. At the sale of pictures of the late Cardinal Birozzi I ventured as far as seventy-five crowns for eight small views in and about Rome painted by Giov : Bapt: Bossiere they are extremely well painted.

THOMAS JENKINS to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1756, May 1. Rome.—In a former letter I mentioned that I had purchased two pictures of game painted by Mons. Davido they are seven palmi by five and are probably as fine in their kind as ever were painted. The one represents a hawk just in the act to seize some ducks, and the other some dogs rushing from a thicket into a river where there are large quantities of game. I have at last received from Signor Pompeo Lord North's portrait both your Lordship's and it shall be sent away the first opportunity.

THOMAS JENKINS to HENRY BECKINGHAM.

1757, December 3. Rome.—"The 17th of August last I had the honour to address a letter to you in which I acquainted you of having finished your picture, and in the month of September I forwarded it to Leghorn, to the care of Mr. James How, merchant there, who, the 22nd of October shipped it on board The Mary, Captain Mead, which was to sail for London, with the first convoy, therefore, I hope it will not be long before it arrives, and shall be very happy if in any degree it deserves your approbation.

Mr. Wilson informs me that you have never received those drawings delivered by him to me for you, and the which I sent in a case of the good Earl of Dartmouth's in the month of February 1755, in the same portfolio that contained your drawings, were the following, drawn by me for the said nobleman, Apollo Belvedere; ditto Villa Medena; Apollo è Daphne, Villa Borghesia; Hermaphrodite, ditto; Zingaro, ditto. I hope by this means, Lord Dartmouth will, with ease, be able to find those things that were for you. Mr. Wilson likewise informs me that you are desirous I should send you some antiquities—such as might be proper for your garden. This, or any commands of yours, Sir, I shall always most cheerfully obey, but beg you will be so good as to let me know for what particular use you intend them. I mean, what part they are to ornament, either walks or buildings; and if te be exposed to the weather, or under cover, that I may, when occasion offers, choose you such things as are most proper for the purpose. In the meantime, if I meet with anything that is worth your having I shall secure it for you. I am very glad to find the love of antiquities so much increased amongst our gentlemen in England, as I do not doubt but in time our arts, that depend on drawing, will be very much benefited by it, it being evident that the superior excellence of the professors in painting and sculpture, that have flourished in this country, has been principally owing to the advantage of having the antique to form themselves upon; this is a doctrine, I know, much decried by a certain set; but, until I see any productions superior to those above mentioned, I believe I shall not alter my opinion."—Seal.

JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1759, May 22. Edmund Street, Liverpool.—"I have been since the beginning of December last soliciting ordination in the established Church." Encloses copies of correspondence on the subject. "My manner of life, when I first mingled with the busy world, was under the unhappy influence of profane and libertine principles for which I distinguished myself to a dreadful degree beyond most of my companions and equals. . . . . . .

"For many years past I have had a latent desire towards the work of the ministry. My first and principal motive was, that I might, if possible repair some of the evil effects of my former life. . . . After many months deliberation, being encouraged by the judgment of many valuable persons in different parts of England, I did at length in a solemn and irrevocable manner devote myself to God for the important service of preaching His Gospel. At that time I was under some scruples and difficulties about episcopal ordination, but in an occasional or rather providential conference with the Rev. Mr. Crook of Hunslet, near Leeds these were so far removed, that I determined to apply. Not long after, Mr. Crook wanted a curate, and I accepted a title from him which was the very first that came to my knowledge. The event of my application was a flat refusal, without cause assigned. I am sorry that I am able to assign to your Lordship the true causes of this repulse, but I have sufficient authority for what I say. One was on the part of Mr. Crook who appeared to his Grace to be so obnoxious a person that he was determined never to ordain anyone whom he should recommend. Against me, there was no direct proof of enthusiasm, but strongly presumptive in two respects; the one, that I had accepted a title from Mr. Crook, the other, that I was willing to resign a post under the Government which was for life, and, as was supposed, worth more than 100 li. per annum to qualify myself for an uncertain curacy of 30*li.* or 40 li. per annum. I had hoped that this latter circumstance would have been favourable to me, as it carried the appearance at least of a disinterested view, but it was rather considered as a mark of an unsound judgment.

"When I received the letter marked No. 3, I was upon the point of making my final appeal to my Lord Archbishop of Canterbury; but I was afraid, lest (according to the tenor of my Lord of Chester's answer) my affair should be so represented to his Grace, as to induce him not only to refuse me himself, but thereby tie up the hands of all the Bishops in England from receiving me. Indeed, I could fear nothing from his Grace's known character, if I could have personal access to him, but this is, under my present circumstances, impracticable. I thought, therefore, I could not be said to have made use of every prudent and probable means, unless I laid the affair before your Lordships. I cannot deny some inclination to a settlement at Kippax, as first proposed, but I hope I am ready to attend the call of Divine Providence to any corner of England or any part of the globe. . . . . . I ought not to omit mentioning to your Lordship that as my acquaintance and converse has been pretty various and at large, it is not altogether either for want of employment or provision that I apply; for I have had, and still have, offers and invitations from the side of the Dissenters, and was applied to but three days ago to take the charge of an Independent Church in Yorkshire, which, I am told, is one of the most considerable in those parts. But as I can conscientiously receive episcopal ordination, and am persuaded it is my duty to seek peace and union by all lawful means, I am determined not to recede from my present views till they shall appear plainly impracticable. . . . . As I am an utter stranger, I have taken the liberty to enclose a paper I printed at the desire and expense of some gentlemen here, as previous to a general fast, 3000 of which were distributed in the town and neighbourhood."—Enclosures.

(No. 1.) RICHARD CHAPHAM to JOHN NEWTON.

1759, February 10. Grosvenor Square.—"Herewith I return you by my Lord Archbishop of York's order, the papers you sent to his Grace, and am to acquaint you that his Grace, having been informed that you have an employment in the Custom House at Liverpool, in which you have been for some time, his Grace thinks it best for you to continue in that station which Providence has placed you in, and that his Grace, therefore desires to be excused admitting you into Holy Orders."

(No. 2.) JOHN NEWTON to the BISHOP OF CHESTER.

1759, April 5. Liverpool.—Refers to the Archbishop of York's refusal expressed in the foregoing letter. "As his Grace was not pleased to signify to me his reasons for rejecting me, I shall not pretend to surmise them. . . . . . How far I am qualified is for your Lordship to determine. I had not the advantage of a regular education in my youth, but the hours I could retrieve from the hurry of business, I have for several years past devoted to supply that want. I have made some proficiency in the Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and Syriac languages, and have read, as much as my various avocations would allow. I had no aim beyond my own private improvement when I first entered on these studies. My thoughts were insensibly engaged to the Ministry by the persuasion of friends, among whom none was more earnest and pressing than the late Mr. Peter Whitfield who would willingly have introduced me to your Lordship, if I could have determined while he was living.

"It was not without much deliberation that I entered on my present views and I have gone too far, lightly to recede. The affair is become public and even the reversion of my place secured. The refusal I have met with has been a pretty general subject of conversation, and perhaps some who know me not, may judge hardly of my moral character, because I could not succeed. Under these circumstances, I humbly appeal to your Lordship. I cannot more strongly express my dependence on your Lordship's candour and goodness, than by believing you will pay some regard to a stranger unsupported, and in his own cause. I protest in the most solemn manner that my intentions are upright and peaceable. I seek neither preferment nor popularity, I neither am, nor have been, in connection with any party nor do I intend it. I am not conscious of anything that may or might be represented against me, but if such should appear, I humbly beg I may have an opportunity of justifying myself, which I hope I should be able to do to your Lordship's satisfaction."

(No. 3.) "EXTRACT of a LETTER received from Mr. WARD, Archdeacon of Chester."

1759, May 17. Ormskirk.—"I have lately received a letter from my Lord Bishop of Chester, where (in speaking of your intention for orders) his Lordship desires me to acquaint you, that whatever sentiments he might have on your case, yet the Archbishop's refusal of you has absolutely tied up his hands from attending to any farther application."

JOHN BASKERVILLE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1761, January 17. Birmingham.—Is extremely happy in the opportunity of conveying to his Majesty's hands by Lord Dartmouth's favour an offering of the first fruits of his press, the enclosed Virgil being his first attempt after ten years' painful but pleasant assiduity in his pursuit of letter-founding and printing.

W. B. LEGGE to LORD LYTTLETON.

1761, November 4. Holt Forest.—Give me leave to recommend to you a client in whose success I very sincerely interest myself. His name is John Edward Shackleford son of a friend of mine in Hampshire. He is going out with you as clerk to Mr. Ramsey the Deputy Registrar in Chancery to Mr. Stone.

ROBERT BIDDULPH to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1763, December 20.—Has had great deliverance from the general calamity so many poor creatures were involved in by the late dreadful storm. His sea walls in Essex are standing firm and the damage occasioned by the wind is very trifling. He will be glad to know of Lord Dartmouth's success in the single yokes for oxen. He can see no prospect of relief from the burden of the Cyder Tax, which is very grievous and must be the ruin of many of the farmers, which the landlords must feel very heavily.

ARCHIBALD WALLACE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1764, January 23. Edinburgh.—Recommends the Earl of Marchmont "reckoned the most eminent lawyer of any nobleman of our country," as the most fitting person to make enquiry as to "the constitution and methods of proceeding in Scotland." Mr. Alexander Tait, one of the principal clerks of Session, now in London can also afford information. He lodges at Mr. McLaren's, perfumer, next door to the Coffee House in Marlborough Street. Thinks Lord Bute's friends "will set themselves in opposition to us." Recommendations of ministers to this city, selected by some, thought to be in favour with Lord Bute, are not "very agreeable." We shall henceforth have no ministers called to the city, but such "as are recommended and approved by John Home, the author of a sort of tragedy called 'Douglas,' who deserted the office of the ministry in this church, that he might have the more time to bestow on writing for the stage." Encloses copy of a letter from the merchants of Edinburgh to Lord Bute.

ROBERT BIDDULPH to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1764, November 29.—Has been getting the fullest information of the inconveniency attending the Cyder Act. The planters have great difficulty in obtaining permits as they cannot meet with the officer, the lower sort of people borrow money to pay compositions which there is danger of their never repaying; but the case of the lowest is deplorable, such as labour for 9*d.* and 8*d.* per day that have some of them 5, 6, or 7 children each, that when they could procure a little ordinary cyder, a piece of bread with it would make them a tolerable meal. Wheat is now so dear that it with water, is scarcely to be compassed by them. Great quantities of fruit are now upon the trees and rotting but casks are so extravagantly advanced in price that it is not worth their while to make cyder.

HENRY MORELAND to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

[1764]. “Three doors below the Opera House.”—“In the confusion that attended my unhappy situation a few years past, a particular person was desired to attend to take care of some particular pictures (which he neglected entirely) among which were two landscapes of your Lordship price, 11*li.* 11*s.* By the bearer I send a performance of mine which has given some satisfaction, a duplicate of it was bought by Lord Lichfield price 10*li.* 10*s.* If your Lordship approves of it, the intention of this letter is to desire your Lordship to receive it on account, and at the same time I have taken the liberty of enclosing a bill of what I have done for your Lordship.”—Enclosure.

“1763. Cleaning and repairing the underwrote list of damages, a copy of which was sent to his lordship before the pictures were began.

“ ‘Dogs pursuing the Duck in the Water,’: the sky, water, part of the black and white dog, the blue feathers of the wings of a duck, the inside of both the wings, and lower part of its (sic) body of one of the ducks, the feathery part of the heads of the ducks, the the upper part of the neck of the flying duck.	3	13	6
“ ‘The Hawk striking at a Duck’; part of the sky, and water, both the wings of the hawk, both the wings of the flying duck, the blue feathers in the wings of two of the ducks, part of the inside of the wings, and the feathery part of the head and neck, and lower part of the body of the duck endeavouring to fly out of the water.	3	13	6
“ Lining them both on new canvass and stretching frames.	1	16	0
“ Putting a proper lustre on a large picture of a dead swan.		8	0
“ [1764.] Cleaning [and] mending some damages and putting it on a new stretching frame to a picture of dead game with a dog’s head in the corner.	1	4	0
	“ £10	15	0”

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1765, February 11. Olney.—I must confess that the work your Lordship is pleased to enquire after has been suspended for almost a twelve month. I thought my change of situation would have afforded me more leisure; but it is otherwise. On my first coming here I hoped to resume it soon but one thing or other constrained me to postpone it from time to time. Before I made the essay, I had expected to preach extempore but though I use no notes in the pulpit, I have found considerable advantage from writing on my subjects beforehand: this takes up some of my mornings, and my afternoons are generally spent in visiting the people, 3 or 4 families of a day, and so, in course,” the history, which in Liverpool was his main object, is now only subordinate.

“The parish is large, the prospect pleasing and demands close attendance. Besides, every day brings something unforeseen of its own. . . .

“My thanks are due for your Lordship’s approbation of my proposal for a new gallery and for your promised assistance. I hope when it is carried into execution it will not be found unnecessary. The roads all round are now extremely dirty and yesterday was inclining to rain, some of our most distant out-hearers could not come, yet I think every seat and bench in the church was filled and some crowded.

"I find great pleasure and form many hopes in my new attempts to instruct the children. The number at my first meeting was 89; it is now increased to 162 and will probably amount to near 200, for some new ones are offered to me every day. Some come from most of the parishes next adjoining, but the bulk of them are our own, and amongst these perhaps 20 or more of the Dissenters' children for I receive all that come with their parents' knowledge and consent. Many of them are very serious and hopeful; all in general behave well. About a hundred of them come constantly to Church and sit in a body before the pulpit. I endeavour to win their attention and affection by books and little rewards and I began to consider this, as one of the most important parts of my service. . . . . Too many of the parents need instruction, no less than their children; but either come not to Church, or, if they do, but to little purpose. But the children go home and repeat what I have been saying to them and shew their books. Perhaps some of these artless preachers may be heard where I should not."

Joseph Moyle to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1765. February 28. Southampton.—"I do not know whether your Lordship has been informed of some little reflections thrown out against Mr. Legge at the late election at Winchester. I should not mention them to you, did I not know you are incapable of being hurt either for yourself or friend by any reproach that has no foundation in truth. The gentlemen who approved him on his first canvas were disgusted at his saying in one of the letters lately published, that the opposition to him would not have been given up, if the money subscribed for that purpose had not been all spent. This they averred was a falsehood, with a degree of vehemence and acrimony not to be excused at a public meeting, had the character of the person censured been, by much less respectable. It is probable they were not a little provoked at a report that prevailed, and was believed, that Lady Stawell had wrote to her steward to order her tenants not to attend at the County election. Whether this was true or not, I have not been able to know. I was not at the election for though I was personally acquainted with the candidate, I could not attend with any degree of satisfaction, as he had been one of the heads of that opposition, which I shall ever lament, as I fear it laid the foundation of Mr. Legge's ill health."

William Rawlings to [the Earl of Dartmouth.]

1765, August 26. St. Columb.—"It was with no small pleasure I saw the determination of the Government to purchase the Isle of Man and thereby destroy that den of theives, nor am I without hope that the incrementum of the revenue from that quarter will be a spur to the Legislature to proceed still further by taking into their hands places equally destructive to the fair trade of this kingdom.

"I am fully persuaded that during the course of the late war the French had such large remittances of cash from hence by way of Guernsey, Jersey, etc. as enabled them to hold out much longer than they otherwise could have done, every other branch of trade was obstructed while this alone remained unmolested. Almost all our silver and incredible sums of other cash have been and are continually sent thither for brandy, tea, wines, and tobacco, the latter indeed sent from England for the most part and at exportation recovering the duty, but I believe almost every pound smuggled into England again. It is well known that a tobacconist shall buy one pound of duty-paid tobacco and under sanction of that sell 20 smuggled from Guernsey. I find there are now erected on this Island several snuff manufactories [a new trade struck out] so that this article of which there is now the greater consumption will soon be smuggled hither as well as tobacco. I remember some time before the conclusion of the peace, having occasion to land some goods out of one of my vessels at the port of Padstow, my servants set out some time before day but [by] fine moonlight, they met, crossing the common, about three miles from us, 60 horse having each three bags of tea on them of 56 or 58 pounds ; all this was then landed on a beach about two miles to the west of Padstow and carried from thence through this county and into Devon. Quantities of brandy as well as tea are now brought the same way without any molestation as there are no officers stationed nearer than Padstow. If in this little spot so much dirty work be done, how much more through the county. I see in the papers some notice taken of the smuggling from Scilly which I dare say is equally notorious, to the destruction of every branch of fair trade, but more especially to the morals of the people.

"Another shameful trade is that carried on by the packets from Lisbon especially, and the West Indies. From the former many tuns of wines are constantly brought and vended through the county in small quantities at 2*s*. 6*d*. a gallon and sometimes under, while the fair trader cannot import any at lowest under 4*s*. The captains themselves smuggle large quantities and connive at their men doing the same, not allowing them sufficient wages whereon to live without it. I am myself concerned in the wine trade and between myself and partners we have a considerable capital in this trade, but on account of the smuggling on every side of us (and our rivals in trade doing such things as I trust our consciences ever will start back from with abhorence) we hardly make common interest of our money which we employ in the trade. Of some sort of wines, such as Lisbon, we can sell none at all, unless to truly conscientious persons, who will not buy where they suspect an unfair trade is carried on. The number of such as these is alas very few. We also import some rums which we cannot sell under 8*s*. 6*d*. to 9*s*. while the same sorts are sold very common for 5*s*. to 5*s*. 6*d*. Not long since I heard it confidently said by a gentleman of that neighbourhood that he was certain there was more goods smuggled at the Port of Falmouth only, every year, the duties of which if paid would be more than twice the land-tax of the County."

The EARL OF EGMONT to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1765, August 28. Admiralty.—"The six persons to whom Mr. Harrison was to make a discovery of the principles of his watch, having finished their examination, and represented that they are ready to make a report of their proceedings, and it being necessary that Mr. Harrison should be paid the reward as soon as made in case it shall appear that he has made the discovery to satisfaction, I am therefore to desire your Lordship will please to favour me and the rest of the Commissioners for the Discovery of the Longitude, with your company at this office on Thursday the 12th of next month at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, in order to take the said report into consideration, and, as this is a matter of great consequence, and will require the determination of a majority of the Commissioners, I should be glad, if it is not inconvenient, that your Lordship will be present on that occasion."

W. Rawlings to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1765, September 16. St. Columb.—"It will give me unspeakable pleasure if by any means I can serve my King and Country by giving such intelligences as from time to time come to my notice, of any illicit practices carried on in this neighbourhood. I hope your Lordship may depend on my veracity in what I relate, though in many instances without being partaker in guilt (which I am sure I durst not be) it may not be in my power to obtain proof of the facts. The generality of mankind are one way or other engaged in these under-hand practices, which are the inlets of immorality and licentiousness and sap the very vitals of the trade of the kingdom. Happy shall I think myself if any of these hints I from time to time think it my duty to give you are in the least degree instrumental to promote the public good. If smuggling in all its branches is suppressed I need not say how likely this is to alleviate our National Debt, prevent the necessity of new supplies and thereby give universal satisfaction to every honest mind. As things have been long conducted we have seen a few rise on the ruins of our trade, while many by the piracies of these few, have been oppressed and injured.

Having the peculiar happiness to have access to your Lordship, I am determined to hide nothing from you that may be of any use. My business lately called me to Falmouth, while the Vansittart, Indiaman, lay in the harbour. It gave me pain to see the vast concourse of people that were there for the purposes of smuggling, and I was told from very good authority that every day, Sunday not excepted, the number of people on board was like the busiest fair we have in the county. I suppose the amount of the goods sold cannot be so little as 5,000*li*. some say double that sum. Of this I am sure, it has drained the country of cash so that it is with great difficulty we can get exchange for 100*li*. bill. Muslins, silks, and handkerchiefs are hawked about in every part of the county, nor do I find there were any seizures made worth notice, Indeed I heard but of one in these many days the ship was there, and that but trifling. I think it is plain the officers cannot discharge their duty, for is it possible for them to be ignorant of what is a doing? Have we not reason to fear they are bribed to overlook these practices which are so very notorious?

While we were at dinner in the inn, a person came in with a large bundle of silk handkerchiefs and wanted to know if any was wanting, three of the company said they had already supplied themselves on board and added they had come off safe, a shame to the officers that they did so. But what can we expect from the wretches who by indirect methods obtain these places of trust. How valuable such as reverence conscience and who would not violate that to gain a world. Permit me my Lord to offer one hint which may be of use at such seasons when India ships are in the harbour or even at other times, suppose the public waggons were to be searched on some convenient distance on the road? I think it might prevent smuggling through that channel, especially if they were severely threatened if they took any goods not properly permitted. I also beg leave to add to my last another method of wine smuggling which I knew not till lately and I find is carried on by the salt ships between Lisbon and Falmouth. One person only, if I am not misinformed had lately no less than 72 quarter casks at once.

I find the greatest part of tea and brandy smuggling is now carried on in the south coast of this county from Plymouth to the Lands End. Quantities of both come from thence, the tea sold at 3*s*. 6*d*. a pound, the brandy at 5*s*. I fancy if we were to take the county through, 90 families in a 100 drink tea generally twice a day, perhaps not one family in a hundred buys what pays duty. I am apt to think that nearly as much brandy is drunk in the county as before the late restrictions, then we drunk our own produce, now we buy, with money, from France. A good look-out on the south side in winter and the north side in summer is much to be wished for. Suppose my Lord an order were to be obtained to burn all the ships concerned in smuggling, or found carrying brandy or tea under the limited burden. Might we not hope that this would in some measure prevent this detestable practice.

I beg leave also to recommend a strict watch to be placed over His Majesty's Stores of powder, &c. in Plymouth Dock and elsewhere, I know not from whence, if not from thence the vast quantities of cannon powder, from time to time hawked about the county and sold at 6*d.* and 8*d.* a pound, comes. How deplorable is it that such as eat our gracious Sovereign's bread should so shamefully betray his and the Nation's interest, and falsify the solemn obligations by which they are bound—how unworthy such the stipend they enjoy.

I have but one hint more to give your Lordship for the present and that is relating to the deal-board and timber trade carried on at Penryn, Truro, and Marazion in this county. I fear not one half the duty is paid of what is imported. Some of the persons concerned have landing places in the river between Falmouth and Truro, where are kept very large quantities and where the more favourable opportunity offers for carrying on this trade. There is a new quay in the river, lately built by one Daniel of Truro, who keeps several ships in the Norway Trade. The Government will do well to employ proper persons to see that not only what he imports, but every one else, pays the whole duty. The gentleman with whom M^r^ Daniel served as clerk in a few years amassed a fortune of upwards 150,000*li.* part of which indeed by success in mining but how much the other way was known only to himself."

The EARL OF HILLSBOROUGH to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1765, September. Hanover Square.—Recommends that it is absolutely necessary that the same powers in every respect with regard to Trade and the Colonies should be delegated to Lord Dartmouth, as are vested in the First Lords of the Treasury and Admiralty with regard to their respective departments. Without this Lord Dartmouth will suffer continual disappointments and too probably undergo undeserved disgrace.

The DUKE OF NEWCASTLE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1765, November 15. Claremont.—"It was agreed, the other night, that your Lordship should be desired to sound our friend my Lord North; so I suppose that my Lord Rockingham has already acquainted your Lordship with it. I most heartily wish you success, and as your Lordship knows the affectionate regard I have always had for my Lord North and the zeal with which I have acted in this particular affair, both with the king and the Ministers, I must beg of your Lordship to do me justice to my Lord North in that respect. My friend Spanish Charles Townshend has been a witness of it from the very beginning, and, as I flatter myself my Lord North has some regard for my opinion, I would beg your Lordship to express to him my humble advice and most earnest wishes, for his own sake as well as that of the public, that he would accept this honorable and advantageous offer which is now made to him in the handsomest and most respectful manner, going through your Lordship's hands. You may also add from me, that as I have from the beginning had frequent occasions of knowing his Majesty's sentiments upon this subject from the King himself, I can with truth say that they are such as gave me great pleasure and did his Lordship great justice and I can further say, always shewing an inclination that his Lordship should return into his service. I most heartily wish you good success in this negotiation and in everything else that is agreeable to you." Holograph.

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1765, November 19. Olney.—Refusing the offer of an appointment in America made by Lord Dartmouth. "Here at Olney, I enjoy a happy retirement and obscurity, I have a probable sphere of usefulness, and yet [am] not greatly exposed to the frowns or smiles of men. . . . . . I am very far from classing myself a scholar. . . . I think the president of a college should be, if possible, master of everything, and be able to lend to all without being under a necessity of borrowing from any. The design your Lordship has formed is noble and important. Sorry, indeed, should I be to see it laid aside for want of persons willing to engage in it. . . . I should be glad to hear if Mr. Venn inclines to undertake it."

SAMUEL GARBETT to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1765, December 16. Birmingham.—"Sometime since, being called upon by Mr. Secretary Conway about some practices made use of here to seduce workmen to go to Sweden, I took the liberty to send him by Mr. Burke an account of manufactured plate iron imported from Sweden under the denomination of unmanufactured iron, and likewise a sketch of the iron trade in this country. As I find Lord Rockingham hath been consulted I venture to send your Lordship copies of the letters that passed between Mr. Burke and me upon the subject." Enclosed. (A) Letter from Samuel Garbett to William Burke dated 1765, November 7, Birmingham. Has had an account that the Swedes have at last succeeded in getting one workman from Scotland to Gothenburg who will be of little use to them except in forming plans for getting others. The laws are so ill executed by constables in Scotland that it is difficult to secure the persons of such offenders. (B) Paper relating to Plate Iron showing how Swedish plate-iron was imported as unmanufactured iron. (C) Paper relating to Bar Iron. Stating that the quality of a great part of the iron made into nails in the neighbourhood of Birmingham has, for some time past, occasioned much disgrace to that manufacture which will lead to fatal consequences unless the makers of iron can be induced to forbear making very bad iron. That it is believed there is near 2,000 tons of bad iron now on hand. America the principal market for sale has long complained of the quality of our nails and will most unquestionably, if the imposition continues, endeavour to raise works of their own as other countries have done. There are at least 30,000 persons employed in this manufacture, it is therefore a national consideration to preserve a declining manufacture. In another branch of the iron trade a similar tale might be told. "There are 60,000 gun barrels made annually near Birmingham, of which 1,000 will not stand such a proof as is necessary for the safety of the persons who use them. What opinion this must spread of English honesty and integrity need not be mentioned."

LORD MANSFIELD to [LORD DARTMOUTH.]

[1765?] Acknowledges the receipt of a Bill on privilege of the Peerage. "The Bill is levelled at what happened in a particular case to gain time to complete an outlawry; such a method would be too inconvenient and expensive to answer common delay . . . . . Your Lordship should take some assistance to draw the Bill. My idea last year, and what I understood to be Mr. Onslow's plan was to extend the Act of King William's to the time of the sitting of Parliament, which would be very beneficial to the subject and ought not to be opposed by one truly honest man . . . . You might substitute the form of a summons to obviate the objection from the Privilege of Peerage against a capias.

This short simple plan will do the promoters honour, and is liable to no objection but of that kind which adheres tenaciously to every supposed pre-eminence, though not to be made use of without injustice."

ARCHIBALD WALLACE, merchant of Edinburgh, to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1766, January 22, Edinburgh.—"Among many things which were done by a late ministry which shewed their little regard to religion, was the making the chaplaincy of the garrison in the Castle of Edinburgh a sinecure, by giving the salary, that ever since the Reformation was given to a minister of the Established Church in Scotland residing within the Garrison, to one Mr. Home, a friend of John Home's, formerly a minister of the Establishment, now Conservator of the Scotch Privileges in Holland. This Mr. William Home has the care of a parish between 20 and 30 miles from Edinburgh, and has not done the duty of a chaplain in the Garrison these three years, or more, that he has had the salary, though there are near 200 souls that reside constantly there, beside three or four companies of a marching regiment that are usually quartered in it.

I had occasion lately to be with a religious friend who told me that as he was now building an house, a soldier quartered in the Castle was employed in that work; he happened to ask him if he had a Bible, who answered in the negative. He then asked whether he would read it if he had one. The answer was--to be sure he would read it on Sunday, for—says he—we are allowed to go to no place of worship. My friend, surprised at this, asked the reason. He said their officers suspected, if they were allowed to go out of the Garrison, they might, in place of going to church, get themselves drunk in ale-houses and be guilty of riots, and therefore they thought it best to confine them altogether; upon which he got the Bible from my friend."

EDWARD TAYLOR to [the EARL of DARTMOUTH].

1766, March 12, Lisbon. Touching the grievances of English wine merchants at Lisbon and Oporto.

THOMAS JENKINS to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1766, May 3, Rome. Knowing Lord Dartmouth's tastes for landscapes he has sent two very good ones by Gaspard Poussin, that formerly made part of Cardinal Ottoboni's collection, and a very fine drawing of a Magdalene, which he hopes Lady Dartmouth will think an elegant ornament for her dressing-room. Seal.

The Earl of Chesterfield to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1766, May 24.—"I heard with infinite pleasure yesterday that you was to be, what the public has long wanted and I have so long wished you to be, a third Secretary of State for America singly: but my joy was a good deal abated when I was told, in the evening, that you was only to be First Lord of Trade, with the powers which Lord Halifax had at the latter end of the late King's reign. Take my word for it, my dear Lord, this will not be sufficient; strike therefore while the iron is hot and push for dignity as well as power. You must be Secretary of State in all the forms and privileges of that office, which I will assert to be a much more important one, in a national light, than either of the two other departments. I will use to you the vulgar saying of 'now or never'; a fairer opportunity can never present itself. Lay aside upon this occasion your natural timidity and diffidence; spur on your friends who wish you extremely well and who can do the whole now at once as easily as in part, and I daresay will do it, if you press it. In my zeal for the success of this affair, I protest I consider the public service much more than I do yours."

Postscript.—"If we have no Secretary of State with full and undisputed powers for America, in a few years we may as well have no America." Holograph.

The Earl of Dartmouth to the Earl of Chesterfield.

1766, May 25, Blackheath.—"As the state of the Plantation office and the alterations that it may be necessary to make in it, have been for some days past, under the consideration of his Majesty's Ministers, and as I conceive I may be materially interested in the results of their deliberations, I have been very desirous of troubling your Lordship to beg that advice which I have reason to flatter myself your Lordship is willing, and which I am sure nobody else is so able, to give me on so important an occasion. I have been to town two or three times with that view, but have always been unfortunately disappointed. I propose to make another attempt upon your Lordship to-morrow morning and hope to be in time enough to catch you, before you go out. I believe I may venture to assure your Lordship that nothing is yet determined upon, and that no plan for the future management of American affairs will have my concurrence that is not calculated to give dignity and credit, as well as effectual authority to the person who may undertake to preside over that Department." Draft.

The Marquis of Rockingham to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1766, July 12, Grosvenor Square.—"His Majesty yesterday said nothing to me, the same civility and the same good humour as usual and as equally on both sides. I know nothing. When I do, I will certainly communicate it to you."

The Marquis of Rockingham to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1766, July 25. Grosvenor Square.—"His Majesty does not understand that in the present plan there is an intention of there being a separated Secretary of State for the Colonies and Plantations annexed to the First Lord of the Board of Trade.

"I am just now credibly informed that, after all, Charles Townshend is to be Chancellor of the Exchequer."

E. BURKE to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1766, July, Friday morning.—The Marquess being just now extremely hurried has ordered me to give your lordship a short sketch of the present situation of things. I think it looks rather better than it has done for some time. About ten last night Lord Temple set out for Stow, much chagrined, and with a determined resolution to take no part in the arrangement of Mr. Pitt's system of administration. They differed in opinion exceedingly, and I hear with much heat, at least upon one side. It is probable, both from rational conjecture and tolerably good information, that their difference was upon the two capital points of G. Grenville whom Lord T. desired to be brought in, together with Lord Lyttelton, but in what rank I do not hear. This proposition Mr. Pitt strenuously resisted. The other point of my Lord T. was the exclusion of Lord Northumberland and Mackenzie on which he found Mr. Pitt equally untractable. The first I take to have been the real cause of difference, the second, the ostensible cause of quarrel. Whatever the motives to this step were, the step itself is certainly an happy one, as it narrows the ground of disagreement between Pitt and this party very considerably, both with regard to the quantity and the quality of the objection. I take it for granted that this will not find your lordship in town or I should have taken the liberty of waiting on you with the news."

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1766, November 7, Olney.—Refers to the increasing "profanation of the Lord's Day." The shop-keepers are as much engaged on Sunday mornings, as at any other time. The available justices of the peace "discover little zeal for reformation" and would not countenance proposals for it "from a reputed methodist . . . . . This year, by some omission, we have but one churchwarden."

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1767, September 5. Olney.—"In July I went to Huntingdon with no other view than to meet Dr. Convers. I missed him, but my journey had an effect which I little thought of. I called on Mrs. Unwin and Mr. Cowper in a very critical time, the day after Mr. Unwin's burial, and, in consequence of that interview, they are now coming, as Mr. Cowper, I suppose, advised your Lordship, to settle at Olney. The prospect is very agreeable to us, and the more so, as your Lordship is pleased to express your approbation of it. We live very comfortably with our poor people . . . . . . However, it will be very pleasing to be indulged, without our own seeking, with two such companions as Mr. Cowper and Mrs. Unwin for we have, hitherto, been without conversible and sensible friends, except such as occasionally oblige us with visits."

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1767, September 16. Olney.—"Mr. Cowper, and Mrs. and Miss Unwin came here the 14th. Mrs. Unwin has taken a house in what I call the Parade, that is on the south side of the Market Place. It is a small one—especially must seem so to her, in consequence of that which she quitted at Huntington,—and at present it cuts a rueful appearance, having been for a long while either empty or in the hands of very poor tenants. But we hope, when it is furbished up, it will be tolerable considering the place, as I suppose it will be sometime before Olney is much celebrated for elegant buildings. It cannot, at this season of the year, be rendered habitable very soon; till then, they will do us the pleasure to be our guests."

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1767, October 24. Olney.—"We removed, yesterday, into the Vicarage . . . I am glad to return your Lordship my immediate thanks for so comfortable an habitation . . . . I have a great acquisition in my Huntingdon friends who are still our guests. I know not where I could have picked two more agreeable persons than Mr. Cowper and Mrs. Unwin. His case (like my own though in a different way) has been uncommonly singular, and the dispensation he has passed through has been sanctified to form him into the spirit and mould of the Gospel in a degree beyond what we usually expect or find in one of so short a standing in profession."

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1767, November 18. Olney.—The beginning of December is fixed upon to resume the subject of the history. "It will doubtless necessarily both abridge and circumscribe my correspondence, but I do not think your Lordship will be much more freed from my importunity in future than in times past unless you should command me to forbear, which I hope you will not. The work appears, in idea, of so great extent that I believe I shall be tempted to imitate my lord of Gloucester in one particular and to present the public with one volume at a time. The first book contains what I could collect or offer, on the period of our Lord's personal ministry. The second is to be the history of the apostolic churches, in which I have proceeded as far as the Acts 17, and is to extend to the close of the first century. To the historical part, I propose to subjoin three essays or chapters by way of Appendix. 1. Of the life and character of St. Paul considered as an exemplar of minister of Jesus Christ. 2. Of the errors and abuses which appeared in the Apostolic churches. 3. Of the heresies and absurd doctrines propogated by false teachers in the Apostolic days. I think when I have wrote so far, I shall have materials to furnish out one sizeable octavo and I hope to make such an application to the present times as I go along, that this volume alone would be some apology for that way of thinking which the world calls Methodism, if the Author should be found insufficient to the whole undertaking, for indeed altogether it is a great one . . . . My amiable guests are at present from home. Mr. Cowper has accompanied Mrs. Unwin this morning to St. Albans to consult Dr. Cotton. Her frame is exceedingly delicate and she has a variety of symptoms (though none I hope are yet confirmed) which seem to threaten a consumption. The most alarming symptom to me (if I may dare to call it so) is her eminence in the Christian life and spirit, her temper, her language, her very air seem to indicate an unusual meetness for glory, and as together with this, she has every qualification which one would wish to find in an intimate friend. I can seldom look at her without a mixture of pleasure and regret . . . . .

We have daily new reason to thank your Lordship for our dwelling, as well as for the satisfaction you are pleased to express in our accomodation I shall say no more upon the head of expense, only that it is more than I deserve.

On looking over the bills I observe in some less essential articles there might have been a sparing, and the fault is my own that there was not, but it was for want of a part of your Lordship's experience in building. In the article of painting we pleased ourselves with mahogany doors &c. without being in the least aware that colour was dearer than white or brown. There is one line perhaps would surprise your Lordship namely for 160 letters in the study 6*s.* 8*d.* This being no great sum and a little out of the common road, I did not intend should appear in the bill, but I forgot it till all was wrote out fair and settled. But perhaps you will allow me to explain it. If your Lordship had been at the Plantations in or about the year 1746, and was now to come to Olney, you would be sensible of an amazing difference between my situation there and what it is here. I hope I am not insensible of it myself; I hope I never shall forget it. But my heart is wicked and deceitful; I was willing therefore to be reminded of it; yea to call in every help. I was willing that all my friends might remember it likewise, in hopes some of them would kindly refresh my memory of them should ever be occasion. I therefore ordered the following texts to be painted over the fireplace :—

"Since thou wast precious in my sight thou hast been honourable: but thou shall remember that thou wast a bondsman in the land of Egypt and the Lord thy God redeemed thee."

These sentences, with reference to the places from whence they are taken, Isaiah 43, 4, and Deuteronomy 15, 15, constitute the 160 letters in question I am persuaded your Lordship will think this 6*s.* 8*d.* well laid out if it should in some measure contribute to the desirable end of reminding me from day to day what I was, and by what means I am now undeservedly settled in the Vicarage at Olney. The chimney of the old part of the house is so much lower than the ridge of the new that when the wind is either in the northern or southern quarter it is impossible to bear a fire in the kitchen for the whole house is filled with smoke. As this is a circumstance that would not well admit of delay I have sent to London for a tin funnel to carry it to a proper height ; if this can be secured, and the end answered, we shall be quite complete and I would not wish the old building taken down in my time, hardly if a wish could do it without trouble or expense."

The MARQUIS OF ROCKINGHAM to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1767, November 27. Grosvenor Square.—"The Duke of Newcastle, and the Duke of Portland, and, I hope, some more of our friends will do me the honour to dine here on Sunday next. I am always happy to see your Lordship and have, in the present time, some little notion that the very appearance of all our acting unitedly may have some effect ; at least, it shews (what I am proud of) the friendship which exists amongst us."

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1768, February 16. Olney. "My history goes on but slowly, partly because it meets with many unavoidable interruptions from occasions which must not be dispensed, but chiefly because I cannot yet recover that readiness of spirit with which I formerly began, I know not but a single page costs me more time and thought than a sheet did then, and is consequently worse done; for those thoughts are usually most clear and pertinent, which are obtained with the most ease; at least it is so with me . . . . The funnel I procured from London did not at all answer the intention, and we suffered a good deal from smoke all the winter, being obliged to keep the street door open all day, in the severest weather which subjected most of our double family to violent colds . . . We have hitherto assigned the largest parlour for the reception of our people at the private meetings. The expedience of which, and the manifest blessing attending them, we are more and more sensible of. And I should rejoice in devoting it to this service in perpetuum if it would conveniently contain us, but by the accession of Mrs. Unwin's family and some other additions the Lord has favoured us with, we are so crowded that when the weather grows warmer we shall not be able to meet there without being greatly incommoded. I believe therefore I must avail myself of your Lordship's obliging offer of the large room in the great house on the right hand side; for the other, which we still keep possession of when the people meet on Sunday mornings and where I catechise the children, is smaller than our own . . . The room in question would make us quite commodious and is so large that my most sanguine hopes will hardly prompt me to think that I shall ever see it too full of truly serious people and I hope we have none but such amongst us. . . . Mrs. Unwin and Mr. Cowper removed to their own house yesterday and though they are so near, we seem to miss them much. His servant and Mrs. Unwin's maid have I hope been both truly converted since they resided under our roof."

S. Countess of Huntingdon to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1768, March 1. "I have sent by the hands of Mr. Whitfield this day to Mr. Thornton, a note for a thousand pounds to pay (as by agreement with Mr. Kimpton) for the perpetual advowson of Aldwinkle living and which was the full supposed value before Mr. Haweis had possession of it. As your Lordship must have known the want of concurrence my heart has ever had in this whole affair, so I did think you had a right to the earliest and fullest information of this transaction and also of what appeared to me the one best means to deliver from reproach on this account the Christian cause, and help out of prison and debt the miserable sufferers by it, as well as at the same time to make a way for Mr. Madan and Mr. Haweis to stand upon ground that might in the sight of all good and, reasonable men become truly Christian and honourable. Your Lordship in wishing the protection of the characters of those you regard, has seen this matter in a light tender, friendly, and charitable, but this medium is not that through which all can see in it, that exactness requisite to actions that appear of such consequence to the clearing up their fidelity when less known, a thousand to one therefore in the Christian as well as rational world must and do see it in another. These doubtless claim that consideration to them which every Christian heart would by concession willingly make wherever consciously mistaken. Else woe to the world indeed, because of offences which would yet remain the hindrance of their peace by the false impressions received against the power and purity of that Gospel which through mistaken conduct must continue so obscured. As to any reserves pride may make on these subjects may the Lord keep me, your Lordship, and all who have the name of Christ from. Should not these measures meet with your Lordship's approbation, my satisfaction will receive that difference only. As far as I know, my eye has been single to these three points I have mentioned and that to Him whose I am and from whose compassion I look for pity to all my ignorance, weakness or want of further abilities in this matter as well as for every other purpose to His Glory and honor every situation remain."

Postscript:—"I have wrote this day to Mr. Madan to this same purpose."

Dr. DAMPIER to LADY DARTMOUTH.

1768, March 19. Eton.—Hearing that Lord and Lady Dartmouth are under some distress about their sons, owing to the quarrel that had lately happened between Dr. Sumner and Mr. Glass at Harrow, he begs to recommend Eton School.

"PROCEEDINGS at ST. EDMUND'S HALL, OXFORD."

1768, March.—Particulars, collected from memory, of what the Vice-Chancellor read at the time of expulsion:—

(1.) James Mathews was bred a weaver and kept a common taphouse; when he entered himself a member of the University was ignorant of the learned languages. Has appealed for Holy Orders and has been refused. Frequents conventicles and has been with Mr. Davies and Mr. Fletcher, reputed methodists, and is himself a reputed methodist.

(2.) Thomas Jones was bred a barber, and "hath lately followed that low occupation." Has expounded the Scriptures at Wheaton Aston, although a layman. Attends conventicles, and is deficient in the learned languages.

(3.) Joseph Shipman was bred a linendraper. Acknowledged he acted much like Jones.

(4.) Benjamin Kay attends conventicles. Has heard a layman pray ex-tempore. Holds election.

(5.) Erasmus Middleton, has officiated as priest in a chapel of ease of the parish church of Cheveley, in Berkshire, "says we must sit down and wait for the Spirit," that good works are unnecessary.

(6.) Thomas Grove "hath preached to a mixed multitude of people called methodists, in a barn." Copy.

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1768, April 6. Olney.—"From what has passed at Oxford I ought to learn to prize the peace and privilege which we enjoy at Olney. . . . The young men are highly honoured so far as their sufferings. . . . . One of them Thomas Jones is now with me and I have reason to hope he knows and serves the Lord. He considers this affair as a correction, which he and his fellows justly brought upon themselves, not for having too much, but too little, of the life of religion. And by what I can hear from other hands there was not that remarkable fervour of zeal or union of affection among the professing students that should just at this time provoke the resentment of their superiors more than usual. Some of them think it was rather a chastisement, because they were disunited amongst themselves and sinking apace into coldness and formality. If so, and the Lord takes occasion by this turn to revive, quicken, and humble them, they will have reason to be thankful for it. But surely so far as men are concerned they have been very hardly dealt with. . . . . We have been lately very happy in a visit from Mr. Thornton and Dr. Conyers. The dear Doctor was drawn in to preach for us last Friday evening. . . . . He likewise spoke in our prayer meeting on Sunday evening, an opportunity which I believe will not be soon forgot. . . . . Mr. Cowper is well, and Mrs. Unwin tolerably well: they know not of my writing. Olney was always agreeable to me, but their company and friendship makes it still more so. They are not only agreeable and sensible, but spiritual and exemplary, it sometimes quickens and I hope humbles me to be with them." Seal of Arms.

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1768, May 10. Olney.—"I have received Mr. Whitfield's letter to the Vice-Chancellor. A few expressions and circumstances might have been altered or omitted; but upon the whole, I cannot think something of this sort unreasonable. Whether his appearance in the affair may not be more prejudicial to the hopes of the young men, than if some other person had taken it up, I cannot say but I hear a report that two of them are to be reinstated and some probability in favour of a third: if so, as two of them have accepted Lady Huntingdon's invitation, Mr. Jones (who is now with me) seems the only one without any prospect. As your Lordship was pleased to mention that you had heard something not to his advantage I hope you will excuse me taking this occasion to assure you that, though when he came first to Olney he was forward and conceited to an extreme, I do hope and believe he is much otherwise now and has been so for a considerable time. I have had a good character of him from all my friends, among whom he has been conversant, and I believe Dr. Dixon was not less satisfied with him at Oxford than with the rest. His talents are not of the shewing kind, but I do hope if the Lord should see fit to bring him into the ministry he would be faithful, steady, and exemplary."

The MARQUIS OF ROCKINGHAM to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1768, May 10.—"The House of Lords met to day. The administration were alert and were so full of the idea of riots, that a few miscreants hollowing 'Wilkes and Liberty' and 'no Boot' at the door of the House, where we left our carriages, became in Lord Hillsborough's mind an object to move for the justices of Westminster being called to the Bar, and ordered to exert themselves to disperse the mob. We remained in the House about half an hour and then the justices returned and said the mob was dispersing. They were questioned as to their cries, particularly by Lord Sandwich, who desired to know whether there was any seditious cries or anything personal to his Majesty. Mr. Carrington answered, no, that they appeared very loyal, that the cries were 'Wilkes and Liberty,' and a complaint of the price of bread, meat, and beer. The House then adjourned. Near the King's Bench, matters have been too serious; some lives are lost. I wished, and was in hopes, to have seen your lordship to-day; probably you will be in town to-morrow. The times are wild and I own I should be glad that your lordship was present amongst us."

LADY STAWELL to [the EARL of DARTMOUTH.]

1768, September 30. Twickenham.—Acquainting Lord Dartmouth with her intention to marry Lord Hillsborough.

The Reverend JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1768, October 25, Olney.—"My papers have passed the review of Mr. Madan and Haweis, since I wrote last. Upon their representation, strengthened by what I now apprehend might be the meaning of a hint your Lordship favoured me with, I corrected what I had wrote upon the government of the primitive church, with a pair of scissors, not a bit here and there, but I cut out every line of it. I saw that I had been too dogmatic upon a point which has been the subject of so much controversy, and farther that supposing I was right such an explicit declaration would not come well from a minister of the Established Church, that it was not immediately necessary to my main design, and would probably give more offence than any other part of the book. It is therefore now annihilated and can do no harm." Seal.

Dr. JOHN FOTHERGILL to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1768, December 15. London—Has given his patients (some of Lord Dartmouth's children) and their attendant directions what to do upon the road and hopes they have arrived home in better health. Their disease was not uncommon, though its name is singular enough; it often attacks young persons in wet seasons, and is usually called the Mumps. "I am indebted to Lord Dartmouth for his very friendly letter respecting the Royal Society and his proposal of Lord Royston. I communicated this to my acquaintance of the Society, who felt much concern that they could not hope for the President they could have wished for. They readily allowed the propriety of naming Lord Royston, whose abilities for such a station, were allowed to be indisputable. But two objections were started:—that nobleman, however well qualified, will not make a a point of attending the Society when perhaps other business of importance does not require him elsewhere. Besides, his reserve would make him more difficult of access than might be wished in a President of the Royal Society who must occasionally see and hear people of low degree, though ingenious, and, in their way, sensible. People are chosen now who do not please, and if Lord Royston had not the objections above mentioned, he would, I believe, be chosen without the least opposition. The Royal Society has been of use to [the] community in general and to the character of the nation. Much depends on its head. If he is a mathematician, studies of this kind only will be promoted; if a botanist, botany will be in estimation. But if the President is disengaged from any peculiar, and resolves to promote science in general, then science will flourish. Nevertheless, I own that in the present state of things, when principle seems to be totally forgot, and the views of this life only, cherished almost universally, there is little hope of doing much good in any other way than in taking heed to ourselves, and whilst we cannot make others better, endeavouring that none are made worse by our example."

Dr. JOHN FOTHERGILL to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1768, [December ?] Harpur Street.—Acquainting Lord Dartmouth of the cordial approval of Dr. Parsons, Dr. Knight, John Ellis, and Gustavus Brander to the proposal of electing Lord Dartmouth, President of the Royal Society. Hopes Lord Dartmouth will accept the position.

EDWARD ELMSALL to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1769, March 20. Thornhill.—"I daresay your lordship has frequently heard of Mrs. Bosanquet, and probably you may know her. She has been in this country some time, and lays out her whole time in taking care of and educating poor children, and, though she has some peculiarities (and who has not), we think her an extraordinary good woman. She had taken a house of a gentleman at Gildersome in the neighbourhood of Morley for this purpose, but it was far from being convenient. . . . . Mrs. Parkinson offered to sell her, with your Lordship's leave, her lease of Stumpcross in Morley, and Mrs. Bosanquet applied to me to beg you would please to favour her with the remainder of Mrs. Parkinson's term."

The Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1769, March 31. Olney.—"I have done nothing yet to the papers your Lordship was pleased to look over, since they were returned to me, I informed you that I was not willing to publish them as they stand against the judgment of so many friends. Yet on the other hand, the alterations they propose which amount to almost the total demolition of what I have already done, and are inconsistent with the prosecution of my plan in future discourage me. Besides I have other friends who think differently from them. Your Lordship did not hint anything of this kind, and Mr. Cowper, whose judgment has considerable weight with me is entirely against it. Perhaps the safest course, in this perplexity will be, to let the book lie dormant where it is."

THOMAS GAINSBOROUGH.

1769, May 25.—Receipt from Thomas Gainsborough to the Earl of Dartmouth for 126*li.*, "in full for two half length portraits." Holograph.

The Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1769, June 13. Olney.—"After much deliberation about the expediency of publishing my book, I have drawn up an advertisement to stand at the beginning; a copy of it I take the liberty to enclose. . . . Mr. Cowper is well, and desires his respects; he is a great blessing and a comfort to me, a true friend, faithful, judicious, and exemplary. By him and Mrs. Unwin, I am quickened or humbled every day."

The Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1769, August 9. Olney.—"I hope the Lord has graciously smiled upon our removal to the large room in the great house; it has given me opportunity of receiving several persons into our society for whom we could not find room before and I have laid the meeting on Sunday evenings more generally open and many of the congregration who knew not well how to improve their time on Sunday evenings now attend with us. . . . The simplicity and happy ignorance of those who live in a country place is a great advantage to a minister; they are out of the reach of many temptations and avocations which distract and divide the attention of many professors (sic).

"A few months ago I heard that some of them in their prayers at home had been much engaged for the welfare of Mr. Wilkes. As the whole town of Olney is remarkably loyal and peaceable with regard to the government, I was rather surprised that gentleman should have partisans amongst our serious people. Upon inquiry I found they had just heard of his name and that he was in prison; comparing the imperfect account they had of him with what they read in their Bibles they took it for granted that a person so treated must of necessity be a minister of the Gospel and under that character they prayed earnestly that he might be supported and enlarged—Your Lordship will perhaps be surprised that in this time of general ferment the whole story of Mr. Wilkes should be utterly unknown to many people in a market town within 60 miles of London. But this is the fact! . . . . Mr. Cowper desires his respects. It was agreed between us that whoever wrote first should let your Lordship know that Mr. Cowper's servant can throw a casting net, that we love fish at both houses, and that, relying on your Lordship's goodness, we have sometimes talked of employing the servant to catch us some (if he can). However, we chose to mention it before we began, and shall flatter ourselves (while we hear nothing to the contrary) that we have your Lordship's permission which will add to the flavour of the fish."

The Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1769, September 6. Olney.—"Wednesday's post, last week, brought Mr. Cowper an account of the death of Major Cowper and Friday's post summoned him to Cambridge, by letters informing him that his brother was very ill. I accompanied him one stage on Saturday morning. By a letter Mrs. Unwin had yesterday, he informs her that his brother's illness, though primarily an intermitting fever, is attended with circumstances which render it alarming; but the physician is not without hopes. . . . . On Friday, likewise, I had a few lines from Mr. Madan acquainting me with the death of his son William. This must doubtless be a heavy stroke, he was a promising youth and greatly beloved. . . . My book is, at last, gone to the press. Mr. Cowper dissuaded me from prefixing the advertisement of which I send your Lordship a copy. He thought it would dispose and instruct people to find fault with the book before they began to read it. I submitted to his judgment and it is now coming abroad without an apology; but the allegations in the advertisement, though not published, are true."

The Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1770, February 22. Olney.—"My dear friend, Mr. Cowper is at Cambridge; his brother is again dangerously ill, with asthma and dropsy, and, I believe, there are but little hopes of his recovery."

The Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1770, March 21. Olney.—"I know not whether Mr. Cowper's necessary engagements at Cambridge, and the various exercises of mind he has been under there, have given him leisure and liberty to write to your Lordship lately. If not, I dare answer for him, that only a want of such leisure has prevented him. I am sure he would be glad to communicate to you an account of the great display of the Lord's mercy in favour of his brother. His illness was and still is extreme and I believe such as affords the physicians little prospect of his recovery. In that state he seemed secure and satisfied and on the account of what he suffered rather desirous to die, than live, though evidently an entire stranger both to the necessity and nature of the gospel faith. All that Mr. Cowper's tender concern for him, in this situation, could suggest, seemed to have no farther effect than that he heard him impatiently and was convinced that it proceeded from his love and regard to him. But on the 10th instant the Lord was pleased to take the work effectually into his own hand. . . . I need not say to your Lordship, that if the Lord is pleased to restore Mr. John Cowper, his character, his natural and acquired abilities, his situation in the University, etc. will probably render him the object of as much wonder, and fit him for as much usefulness, as can be well expected in the case of a single person."

LEWISHAM VESTRY.

1770, November 19.—Resolutions as to enclosing waste land belonging to the Parish.

The Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1770, November 23. Olney.—"We have now and then a new hymn at Olney; I am willing to send your Lordship a specimen, Mr. Cowper's I shall mark with W.C. I have not asked his leave to transcribe, but when I tell him what I have done I hope he will not forbid me.

"The small pox has been some months at Olney, and seems likely to spread more. I was in hopes it would have ceased, but two families were inoculated just about the time of its decline and it soon appeared again. Here are many who have not had it, and many terrified at the thoughts of it, so that it occasions a sensible difference in our congregation and markets."

Miss M. V. VERNON to the COUNTESS OF DARTMOUTH.

[1770–1780?]—"I have just got Lady Harcourt's answer to the queries respecting glasses. None should be put on the King's table, and all those intended for him and the Queen must be covered, the servants will bring them, with the covers on to you and Lord Dartmouth, and you will take them off with one hand, while with the other you present the glass to their Majesties. I daresay you have conversed with Lady Bath on all these nice points, which she must so well understand and had some years ago occasion to practice."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1771, January 19. Olney—"I am glad my preaching on the occasion of Mr. Whitfield's death had your Lordship's approbation. Indeed I thought it expedient and even incumbent on me, to bear my testimony to his character as a minister, especially in this place, where he was known and dear to many and had been despised and misrepresented by many more . . . . My bookseller informs me that the one volume of Ecclesiastical History is in very little demand. So that it has not yet paid half the expense of paper and print (though I have taken 100 copies on my own account). I am not sorry I published it."

Thomas Gainsborough to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1771, April 8. Bath.—"I received the honour of your Lordship's letter acquainting me that I am to expect Lady Dartmouth's picture at Bath, but it is not yet arrived. I shall be extremely willing to make any alterations your lordship shall require, when her ladyship comes to Bath for that purpose, as I cannot (without taking away the likeness) touch it, unless from the life. I would not be thought, by what I am going to observe, that I am at all unwilling to do anything your lordship requires to it, or even to paint an entire new picture for the money I received for that, as I shall always take pleasure in doing anything for Lord Dartmouth, but I should fancy myself a great blockhead if I was capable of painting such a likeness as I did of your lordship and not have sense enough to see why I did not give the same satisfaction in Lady Dartmouth's picture, and I believe your lordship will agree with me in this point, that next to being able to paint a tolerable picture, is having judgment enough to see what is the matter with a bad one. I don't know if your lordship remembers a few impertinent remarks of mine upon the ridiculous use of fancy dresses in portraits, about the time that Lord North made us laugh in describing a Family Piece, his Lordship had seen somewhere, but whether your Lordship's memory will reach this trifling circumstance or not, I will venture to say that had I painted Lady Dartmouth's picture, dressed as her ladyship goes, no fault (more than in my painting in general) would have been found with it. Believe me, my Lord, though I may appear conceited in saying it so confidently, I never was far from the mark, but I was able before I pulled the trigger, to see the cause of my missing, and nothing is so common with me as to give up my own sight in my painting room, rather than hazard giving offence to my best customers. You see, my Lord, I can speak plainly when there is no danger of having my bones broke, and if your Lordship encourages my giving still a free opinion upon the matter, I will do it in another line."

The Same to the Same.

1771, April 13. Bath. "I can see plainly your Lordship's good nature in not taking amiss what I wrote in my last, though it is not so clear to me but your Lordship has some suspicion that I meant it to spare myself the trouble of painting another picture of Lady Dartmouth, which time and opportunity may convince your lordship was not the intention, and here I give it under my hand, that I will most willingly begin upon a new canvas. But I only for the present beg your Lordship will give me leave to try an experiment upon that picture to prove the amazing effect of dress. I mean to treat it as a cast-off picture and dress it (contrary, I know, to Lady Dartmouth's taste) in the modern way; the worse consequence that can attend it, will be her ladyship's being angry with me for a time. I am vastly out in my notion of the thing, if the face does not immediately look like; but I must know if Lady Dartmouth powders or not in common: I only beg to know that, and to have the picture sent down to me. I promise this my lord, that if I boggle a month by way of experiment to please myself, it shall not in the least abate my desire of attempting another to please your Lordship when I can be in London for that purpose, or Lady Dartmouth comes to Bath."

Postscript:—"I am very well aware of the objection to modern dresses in pictures, that they are soon out of fashion and look awkward, but as that misfortune cannot be helped, we must set it against the unluckiness of fancy dresses taking away likenesses, the principal beauty and intention of a portrait."

THOMAS GAINSBOROUGH to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

[1771], April 18. Bath.—"Nothing can be more absurd than the foolish custom of painters dressing people like scaramouches and expecting the likeness to appear. Had a picture voice, action, etc. to make itself known as actors have upon the stage, no disguise would be sufficient to conceal a person: but only a face, confined to one view and not a muscle to move to say 'Here I am,' falls very hard upon the poor painter, who perhaps is not within a mile of the truth in painting the face only. Your Lordship I am sure will be sensible of the effect of dress thus far, but I defy any but a painter of some sagacity (and such you see am I my Lord) to be well aware of the different effects which one part of a picture has upon another, and how the eye may be cheated, as to the appearance of size, etc., by an artful management of the accompaniments. A tune may be so confused by a false bass, that if it is ever so plain, simple and full of meaning, it shall become a jumble of nonsense, and just so shall a handsome face be overset by a fictitious bundle of trumpery of the foolish painter's own inventing. For my part (however your Lordship may suspect my genius for lying) I have that regard for truth, that I hold the finest invention as a meer slave in comparison and believe I shall remain an ignorant fellow to the end of my days, because I never could have patience to read poetical impossibilities, the very food of a painter, especially if he intends to be knighted in this land of roast beef, so well do serious people love froth. But, where am I my Lord, this my free opinion in another line with a witness, forgive me my Lord, I am but a wild goose at best, all I mean is this, Lady Dartmouth's picture will look more like and not so large when dressed properly, and if it does not I will begin another.

NOTICE from the LORD CHAMBERLAIN'S OFFICE.

1771, July 15.—"Such Ladies as desire to dance minuets at the ball, which is to be at Windsor Castle on Thursday evening, the 25th of this instant, are requested to send their names and rank to this office on or before Friday next, the 19th instant, and to send for their tickets the next day, Saturday, between the hours of ten in the morning and two in the afternoon, immediately after which, the said office will be shut up and no attendance given till the Installation is over." Draft.

NOTICE from the LORD CHAMBERLAIN'S OFFICE.

1771, July 16.—"Notice is hereby given that at the Installation at Windsor on Thursday, the 25th instant, ladies are not expected to appear in the Chapel or Hall there full dressed with hoops, but ladies who propose to dance, and such as shall sit in the front rows at the Ball in the evening, are expected to come full dressed, as to the Court Balls at St. James'.

"That all persons properly dressed who propose to go to the Installation Ball that evening, may assemble in the Queen's Guard Chamber; and that at half an hour after seven o'clock, the doors will be opened for their passage into the ball-room." Draft.

Rev. SAMUEL PARR to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1771, September 18th.—Thanking Lord Dartmouth for his patronage in his candidature for the mastership of Harrow school.

Rev. SAMUEL PARR to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1771, September 26. Harrow.—As to his candidature for the mastership of Harrow. "My competitor, my Lord, is Mr. Humphry Sumner an assistant at Eton, and a first cousin of the late Doctor's. He was incited to this measure by the advice of Drs. Barnard and Foster, and he is supported by their assistance. What wishes those gentlemen can entertain, or what alacrity they are likely to exert for the credit of a rival school, is a subject on which it were superfluous for me to expatiate. In justice, however, to Mr. Sumner, I must say what the information of others, and my own experience, authorize me to say, that he is a gentleman of a most amiable temper and most irreproachable life."

The SAME to the SAME.

1771, October 4. Harrow.—"The mastership was yesterday determined in favour of Mr. Heath. The kind intentions of Dr. Sumner, the ardent wishes of the boys and the general approbation of their friends were of no weight against my age; in vain were pleaded all the favourable circumstances of my birth in the town where the founder lived, and of my education in his school. They were by no means sufficient to overrule those prejudices which Harrow governors have at last avowed in favour of Eton instructors. I am disappointed, my Lord, but not disgraced, and it gives me a peculiar satisfaction to find that a long and severe scrutiny into my character, could bring to light no other objection, than that I was twenty-five years old. I beg pardon for not acquainting your Lordship with this event, the instant it took place. I was employed my Lord, in quelling a disturbance, which the indecent and scurrilous language of Mr. Bucknall had provoked. The respectful and friendly behaviour of every person in this place, their anxious wishes for my success, and their generous concern for my disappointment, lift me far above any infamy to which I might be exposed by rejection.

"As my hopes in Harrow are for ever blasted, as the governors trifled with my claims and sported with my expectations, as it were cowardice to stand below the situation into which my real or supposed merit should have raised me, I am now going to open a school at Stanmore. The opinion your Lordship has expressed of my worth and the efforts you have exerted for my interest, give you a right to my sincerest gratitude and respect. While I continue here I shall dissuade the Mr. Legges from any act of violence or disrespect."

The SAME to [the SAME].

1771, October 9th. Stanmore.—"Give me leave to hope that you will acquit me of all indelicacy and presumption in the application I am going to make to you. My disappointment at Harrow has thrown an insurmountable obstacle in the way of my future success. I have therefore purchased a large house at Stanmore in Middlesex, where I open my school on Monday next. The encouragement I have received from Dr. Sumner's friends induced me to engage in this undertaking, and I doubt not but my scheme will here meet with more success than at Harrow. The terms, my Lord, are twenty-six guineas per annum, for board and teaching; fencing and dancing are taught by the same masters and on the terms as at Harrow. Should your Lordship do me the honour of entrusting me with the care of your sons, I shall exert my utmost endeavours both to forward their improvement and to merit your Lordship's approbation. The disturbance that unhappily arose on Thursday last, was universal. I then used my influence with the whole school to observe order, and my advice to particular boys has since been the same. I more especially addressed myself to your Lordship's sons. My disappointment is matter of general surprise and concern, and as to my conduct on the day of election, I have guarded it from all material misrepresentation by a public declaration of my innocence, and an open appeal to every impartial person who then saw me. In my critical situation, it is by no means strange to be attacked by new enemies, and deserted by old acquaintance, but the consciousness of an honest intention and an upright conduct, supports me under my miscarriage and sets me above all the artifice of treachery, and all the assaults of competition."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1771, November 6. Olney.—"Mr. Cowper (who is so generally known here by the name of Sir Cowper, that I often style him so in my letters) desires his respects to your Lordship and Lady Dartmouth. We add a repeated tender of our duty."

FREDERICK MONTAGU to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1772, August 1. Papplewick.—"I returned from Welbeck the beginning of the week where I was present at what might have been a most dreadfull accident. The Duke, Lord Titchfield and Mrs. Bentinck were all thrown out of a phaeton close to a precipice, but they providentially escaped unhurt. The poor Duchess saw the whole accident, but is not the worse for the alarm. I am sorry Lord Hillsborough's red bag is still in his pocket, buttoned up, and like to continue there. I would venture a ducking to get at it, if you would be an accomplice and the receiver of stolen goods."

The EARL OF SUFFOLK to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1772, September 6. Hampton Court.—"An outline of the revolution in Sweden is printed in last night's Gazette. The success of the transaction is complete. The States made no resistance but surrendered their ancient form of Government and accepted and subscribed the new one delivered to them by the King. This event is of the most important nature and it is very embarrassing to me that your Lordship and the rest of the King's confidential servants are so far from London. Russia—unless her peace with the Porte is more uncertain than it has been of late represented—will propose sending troops to Sweden. The ministers of Denmark and Prussia at Stockholm, have orders to concur with Count Ostermann in everything. His propositions, I make no doubt, will be vigorous and violent, and on the other hand, that the King of Sweden will be supported by France, may be depended on. The probable consequences of all this are but too evident. In this state of things there is ample occasion for me to summon a Cabinet immediately, and to receive the advice of it with regard to what instructions the King should send Sir John Goodricke upon this critical occasion. But rather than hurry your Lordship from your retirement a moment sooner than is absolutely necessary, I will inform you of my ideas, and if approved of by your Lordship, venture to recommend them to the King, without the ceremony of a meeting. They are, my Lord, that the King should engage in no measures, now the Revolution has actually taken place, till we are informed of the intentions of the Court of Petersburg not only as to what the Empress of Russia means to do in regard to Sweden, immediately, but also with regard to the long talked of alliance with Great Britain. If she explains herself ingenuously and satisfactorily on this head, I conceive a co-operation with her in her Swedish views, may be very fit matter for our deliberations in Council. But in my poor opinion it would be very rash and unjustifiable to hazard such consequences as are obvious in attempts by force upon the Swedish Government, while the alliance with Russia is so remote and uncertain. I have the honour to enclose two draughts according to these sentiments; the one to Sir J. Goodricke, the other to Mr. Gunning. If they are such as your Lordship approves of, I will lay them before the King. If they are not, and your Lordship has another plan to propose I will immediately call together the King's servants and shall be happy to have the matter discussed in Cabinet more amply than it is possible to do in this manner. Indeed, the only reason which prevents me summoning one directly, is the reluctance of fetching you up, upon one particular point if the affair can be managed without giving you that trouble."

SIR JOHN DALRYMPLE to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1772, September 6. Edinburgh.—"I have the honour to enclose for your Lordship, a letter written from Lord Preston (then Secretary of State) to Lord Dartmouth at the time of the revolution. The letter shows that Lord Dartmouth was equally faithful to the trust he had undertaken and averse to the councils of King James. I found the letter among Lord Preston's papers, which his heir Mr. Graham of Netherby gave me. I left the notes on Bishop Burnet's history at your lordship's house, which I hope you got. This summer I went through the French despatches to and from England in the reigns of Charles II. and James II. and also through King William's private trunk, having got orders from the Kings of France and England to see them and take copies. These lights are so very great that I am busy in reforming my memoirs, and am very anxious to get all the lights further that I can upon my short but great period of twelve years. Your Lordship told me you had some letters between King James and Lord Dartmouth. May I take the liberty to ask copies of such of them as your Lordship shall judge proper; one great end of history is by drawing honourable characters out of the canvas, to inflame men with a desire of imitating them. This is the great advantage of the Grecian story. And it is by marking the contract between virtuous and bad characters that Tacitus enchants us, as he does. It was my misfortune to meet with few great characters in my period and therefore I was at the more pains to paint the few that I found. Such as Lord Russell, Algernon Sydney, Lord Dundee, and one or two more. I was happy from the highest authority, that of King James, to be able to wipe off the aspersion from Lord Dartmouth of his having betrayed the fleet of which he had solicited the command. It is with this view that I wish to know more of Lord Dartmouth than I do; for I took a liking to the gallantry of the character, but had not materials enough to do it justice. Among the notes on Burnet's history, I found two things, of which I must beg you lordship's permission to make use. The one is that Lord Dartmouth pressed King Charles for Lord Russell's life. The other is a letter which wipes off the impudent aspersion of Bishop Burnet that Lord Dartmouth neglected to save the lives of one hundred men of the best families in Britain, when the Duke of York was shipwrecked. I am so fortunate as to have a letter written by the Lord Provost of Edinburgh who was in the ship, which confirms Lord Dartmouth's account of the matter. I take the liberty to enclose a copy of a few material notes which I copied from your manuscript, particularly Lord Dartmouth's advices to King James about the weakness of the reed of passive obedience. Your lordship will run a score through such of them as you do not like me to appeal to, and I beg you will permit me to use the others, though I flatter myself your Lordship will not have occasion to score any of them out, because I used a good deal of delicacy in the selection. I will not congratulate your Lordship, so much as I do my country upon seeing your Lordship's name in the Gazette; because the cause of Bengal is the cause of humanity. I hope now that your Lordship is a minister, for some scheme to be followed for the good of that country worthy of your Lordship and of England."

The Earl of Dartmouth to Sir John Dalrymple.

1772, September 22. Sandwell.—"I shall be very glad to contribute as far as I am able to the perfection of so considerable a work as that is which you have given to the public. With this view I submitted my grandfather's MS. to your perusal, and can have no objection to your making use of those parts of it, which I have not scored in the paper, which I return you enclosed. I cannot but object to the publication of the note relating to the design of shooting Lord Nottingham on account of the delicacy of the subject. I have not by me the copy of the MS. which you saw, but in the note which is written upon the margin of the book itself I do not find the name of the E[arl] of P[reston] and I do not recollect that it is in the other copy. As to the character of my great grandfather, I think I have some papers which might serve to vindicate his principles, and those parts of his conduct which have been called in question in a more satisfactory manner, than, in my opinion, it has been done, in the several passages in which his name is mentioned in your memoirs; in some of them there appear to me to be insinuations, which do not leave a favourable impression of him upon the mind of the reader. In others, assertions, which I may not perhaps have sufficient materials in my hands absolutely to contradict, but which by no means agree with the general and uniform view of his principles, which arises out of my papers. It will take me some time to select out of these papers, such passages as may be necessary for your purpose; in the meantime, I should take it as a favour if you would let me know upon what authority those anecdotes are founded, which appear to me not to give a true and just representation of him." Draft.

Dr. Charles Morton to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1772, September 25. [The British] Museum.—By direction of Mr. Barrow, President of the Royal Society, and many of the members he writes to ask Lord Dartmouth to allow himself to be proposed as President. The office includes a Commissionership of the Longitude, a Trusteeship of the British Museum, and the first visitorship of the Royal Observatory.

Matthew Boulton to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1772, November 10. Soho.—The trade of Birmingham is so dead at this juncture that the London wagons have to make up their loading with coals for want of merchandise. The country has received a severe shock since June last, such a one as it will not recover from for many years, scarcely any one of considerable trade in Great Britain but has felt the consequences of it in some respects. Has improved his ormolu manufacture since he showed Lord Dartmouth specimens of it. Their navigation goes on prosperously, the junction with the Wolverhampton canal is complete and they already sail from Birmingham to Bristol and to Hull. Hopes he will have the pleasure of showing Lord Dartmouth their wharves, for it is a busy scene and is very great use to every class of people in the neighbourhood.

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1772, November 11. Olney.—"I have been affected by reading in the papers of the late dreadful hurricane at the Leeward Islands, particularly to find that in a relation from Antigua, a probable interruption of the playhouse for at least a fortnight, should in such circumstances be mentioned among the articles of distress. How deplorable is the blindness and stupidity of man by nature, who under such awful dispensations can neither see the hand of God or hear his voice. Perhaps no part of the King's dominions is covered with greater darkness and ignorance than the West India Islands, at least it was so when my business led me thither, and particularly at St. Kitts, where I was most acquainted. The last voyage I was there I was looked upon as very singular and was called a presbyterian. I took occasion to ask if I was the only singular person they had met with, they told me there had been a planter on the north side who was as precise as myself, who was said to pray a great deal and to keep little company, because he could meet with none of his own cast, but he had been dead several years and they did not believe there was another upon the island. I made much enquiry upon this head, but could not find a person that pretended even to the form of godliness. I believe it was little otherwise at Antigua and worse if possible at Jamaica. I hope there is a day coming when the Gospel shall be sent with power to these heathen Christians, and wish the era of your Lordship's administration may be marked with this happy event. What a change might it make, I have been told (I do not mean to inform your Lordship) that at St. Croix there are some truly religious persons both whites and blacks, if so, I believe the Danish Settlements, however inferior to ours both in the East and West Indies, have an honour to which the British can lay but little claim. Perhaps among the many applications that have been made to the Board of Trade, no one has thought of petitioning that Gospel ministers might, if possible, be sent to our West India Islands. But I hope the time will soon come, when the Lord will remember them. Notwithstanding I was looked upon as an oddity at St. Kitts, yet they somehow conceived so favourable an opinion of me, that I had an offer if I would take orders and return to them they would take charge of my maintenance till the living of Sandypoint should be vacant, and then, use their interest that it should be given to me. Which I looked upon as a favourable presage that if a Gospel minister should come among them, he would not be ill received. For that they could have no predisposition to the truth, yet they had been so wearied with the characters and conduct of most of the Clergy they had seen among them, that it was highly probable they would be struck with such behaviour as becomes the Gospel, and thereby have their prejudices against the doctrine softened.

"Yet alas, what can be done; at present while the harvest is so great and the labourers so few? While infidelity and wickedness are so epidemical at home, who can be found or spared to go abroad? If I am not mistaken it is possible to travel more than a hundred miles upon a line in several parts of this kingdom and not come within ten or perhaps twenty miles of a parish on either hand, that has the blessing of a started parochial Gospel ministry. Not one that I can hear of to be found so near the road from Northampton through Manchester to Liverpool, or through Nottingham to Leeds. In a word, take the kingdom through, perhaps not three in a county upon an average. But our present number though small, may be termed great compared with what it was a few years ago, and we hope the Lord is increasing it. But it is highly desirable to see a more earnest and importunate spirit of prayer prevailing in this behalf. For the revival on the side of the Established Church I apprehend does not yet balance the defection that has obtained amongst the Disssenters within the past 50 years, in which the Presbyterians have so generally renounced the truths which were dear to their forefathers, and the most deliberate contemptuous and malignant opposition to the Gospel of Christ arises now from that quarter, which once gloried in it. And I fear in some places the Independents are upon tiptoes to follow them. Surely had not the Lord seasonably interposed by raising up what is called Methcdism, the knowledge of the true Gospel had been by this time well nigh lost out of our land."

The Earl of Dartmouth to Lord Lewisham.

1772, December 22. Blackheath.—We came hither last Saturday by which means your brothers from Stanmore were in London long enough to see 'Elfrida," at the recommendation of Mr. Parr, and Mr. Garrick in the part of Hamlet. Portius I can assure you was no despicable performer and the whole was very well done considering the disadvantages the performers laboured under.

Dr. B. Kennicott to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1773, January 28. Christ Church.—Asking for Lord Dartmouth's patronage for his forthcoming work on the various readings in the Hebrew Old Testament.

Thomas Jenkins to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1773, March 23. Rome.—"Immediately on the receipt of the honor of your Lordship's obliging letter of the 2nd inst. I communicated the contents to his Holiness, who was exceedingly happy in being informed that his conduct had met with such flattering approbation. He commands me to assure your Lordship that, as he thinks it the peculiar duty of his nation to act with justice towards all, he particularly wishes to prove every possible attention towards his Majesty and his subjects, and thinks all he can do is but trifling in proportion to his obligations. The Pope speaks with the utmost gratitude of the efficacious means so kindly used to prevent the fleet belonging to the Empress of Russia annoying his coast or in any manner interfering with that perfect neutrality which he ought, and wishes, to observe."

Rev. John Newton to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1773, May 22. Olney.—"I believe I have not directly mentioned my dear friend Mr. Cowper to your Lordship for some time past, but you have undoubtedly heard of the heavy affliction which the Lord has permitted to come upon him, and through him upon us. There has been little alteration in his case since the account I transmitted to Mr. Madan. I am touched in a sensible part, the loss I feel for a season of such a friend, counsellor, and pattern is like the loss of a right hand, which is missed every hour. He is perfectly sensible as to common things but is a continual prey to distressing and gloomy thoughts, which he has no power to resist. What a striking instance of the vanity and precariousness of all below the skies. He is now sitting by me, disconsolate. How brittle is the blessing of a fine understanding assisted by the advantages of education and literature. A slight alteration in the animal spirits or in the texture of the blood is sufficient to cloud the faculties, so that the gross illusions of the powers of darkness, shall be received as if they were sealed to the mind with the indubitable impressions of truth. Lately he rejoiced in communion with God, was assured of his acceptance in theBeloved and lived upon the foretaste of eternal glory. . . . I believe few people living have enjoyed more abounding consolations or given men unquestionable evidence of a heart truly devoted to God than my friend, yet he is now upon the brink of despair and our most earnest endeavours to comfort him, seem but to add to his distress. In this state he has now been almost five months and though his case has admitted of some changes we see no present appearances of relief. How often have I been ready to complain and say; Why does the Lord deal so heavily with a favoured and faithful servant? But I would check myself —Shall the potsherds of the earth say to their Maker, What dost Thou? I know that the Lord does all things well. The event I trust will enable us to see more of His wisdom, power, and grace than ever. It is in part for the instruction of me and my people. Mr. Cowper was (as I verily believe) in the power of faith in a humble spirit, in deadness to the world, and simple devotedness to the Lord, the foremost of us all. His whole behaviour, was not only unblamable but exemplary in a high degree. . . . Two circumstances in his case for which we cannot be sufficiently thankful, I must not omit. The one is the great patience and mildness of spirit which the Lord maintains in him, the other, that all his troubles and terrors are restrained when he goes to bed so that he generally sleeps eight hours or more every night as undisturbed as a child."

LORD NORTH [to LORD DARTMOUTH].

1773, May 31. Bushey Park.—"I become every day more inclined to take the desperate step I mentioned to you some days ago. My comfort here and my vexations at Westminster conspire to fix me in that resolution."

JAMES BEATTIE to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1773, May 31. Suffolk Street, Haymarket.—"As it may be improper for me to obtrude myself upon your Lordship at a time when your attention is engrossed by so great a variety of the most important affairs, I would beg leave to take this method of making my most grateful acknowlegments to your Lordship for procuring me the honour of a conference with Lord North. His Lordship received me with great politeness, and very readily undertook to inform his Majesty that I am in town. I have now had an opportunity of paying my respects to the Archbishop of York and to Lord Mansfield, both of whom are pleased to honour my labours with their approbation. His Grace desired me to deliver to your Lordship the following message, which he would have communicated by letter, if he had thought it was necessary. He wishes that his Majesty would be pleased to appoint me a temporary pension of 200*l.* a year, to continue till some office can be got for me, of equal value, and he desires me to leave with your Lordship, the enclosed Memorial, to be laid before the King, or not, as you shall think proper.

"Shall I then, my Lord, make it my humble request to your Lordship, that you would mention this proposal of the Archbishop's to his Majesty and to Lord North? Of your goodness, I have already had experience sufficient to encourage me to hope that you will pardon my boldness in thus addressing your Lordship; and Sir Adolphus Oughton, who is deeply interested in my success, was pleased to assure me, that I might signify my wishes to your Lordship without fear of giving offence. On the success of this application to his Majesty depends all my hopes of bettering my condition. If it shall prove unsuccessful, the state of my circumstances will oblige me to make my stay in London as short as possible."

Enclosure.

Dr. James Beattie was in the year 1760, presented by his late Majesty to the office of Professor of Moral Philosophy at Aberdeen, a place then accounted worth 90*l.* a year, but which has yielded him for the most part about 100*l.*, though in some years, not so much.

From a desire of subverting the sceptical philosophy, which at that time was very prevalent in many countries of Europe, and which seemed to threaten the utter extirpation of religion and true science, he published in the year 1770 'An Essay on the Nature and Immutability of Truth, in opposition to Sophistry and Scepticism,' a work which it required much intense application of mind to accomplish and which, in fact, had employed the greatest part of his leisure hours for upwards of four years. He foresaw, from the first, that this work would raise him many enemies, but a sense of his duty to the public, prompted him, notwithstanding to hazard the publication. It is true, that even in Scotland, his book has done no little service and procured him many friends among the pious and truly learned, but his enemies there, are numerous and powerful, and he already knows by experience, that from the resentment and principles of such a party, he has much to fear.

This, added to a long course of intense study, has greatly impaired his health. He has been obliged, in order to retrieve it, to have recourse to some expedients which are far too expensive for his fortune, and which have long ago exhausted the little sum for which his circumstances obliged him to sell the copyright of his book. Nor have these expedients, as yet, been attended with success; travelling, and a temporary relaxation from business, have been prescribed by physicians, but his circumstances will not admit of either.

Traduced as he has been in his own country, his spirits must by this time have been totally borne down, if it had not been for the humanity and generosity of the English nation. Here, indeed, he has met with the kindest reception, both from the clergy and laity, and many persons of the highest distinction, in rank, virtue, and literature, have honoured his labours with their approbation, have been pleased to consider him in some degree a benefactor to society, and have encouraged him to hope even for some public reward, which by rendering his condition less dependent, might put in his power the means proposed, for the recovery of his health, and enable him to finish some other works already projected and begun in vindication of truth, moral and religious.

To labour successfully in the cause of truth is his highest ambition, and to the support of this cause—the most important of any within his sphere—he means to devote the remaining part of his life."

Rev. John Newton to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1773, June 6. Olney.—"Whenever a favourable alteration takes place in Mr. Cowper I shall be glad to inform your Lordship of it, if possible by the first post. About three weeks ago I went to consult Dr. Cotton who has prescribed for him and the medicines agreed very well with him, I think they have some good effect upon his health but the stress of his affliction continues with little or no abatement. Yet he has been able of late to employ himself a little in his favorite amusement, gardening, which he could not possibly apply himself to sometime since. It is a sharp trial to us as well as to him but I still hope with confidence that the issue will be happy and profitable to us all."

John Ash to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1773, June 10. Birmingham.—Acquainting Lord Dartmouth with the death from scarlet fever of three children of Sir William and Lady Bagot.

The Earl of Dartmouth to Lord Lewisham.

1773, June 12. London.—I have an expedition to propose to you, it is to meet me at Portsmouth on Monday sennight, when the King will go to see the fleet. Lord North and I shall go together on that day and you must put yourself into a postchaise and come the direct way from Oxford to be with us there on Monday evening the 21st. If your way is through Winchester I suppose we shall not meet till we come to Portsmouth, if it be through Basingstoke I fancy you will come into our road at Petersfield.

John Ash to Lord Dartmouth.

1773, June 17. Birmingham.—Mr. Wyrley has really gained ground since he last wrote. He now has another afflicted parent, Lord Kilmorey, in his house, for the death of his eldest son Mr. Needham, one of the unfortunate gentlemen who were at Salt Hill. Seal of arms.

Rev. John Newton to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1773, June 17. Olney. "Though Mr. Cowper's distress does not seem to be at all abated, yet we hope he is in some respects better, and that the Lord who has done such great things for him heretofore is upon his way to deliver him again. We are waiting, longing, praying for this happy event which we hope whenever it takes place will fill our hearts with thankfulness and our mouths with praise. In the meantime we desire to pray with earnestness and importunity so to wait with that patience and submission which becomes sinful and shortsighted worms. We are sure that all our concerns are under the disposal of unerring wisdom and infinite love that our trials are never protracted an hour beyond the fittest season of relief, and that what the Lord does, however mysterious to us, must be right because He does it. Could we always maintain these indubitable principles in actual exercise, we should enjoy a stable peace amidst all the changes and storms of life."

REV. ED. STILLINGFLEET to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1773, June 21. West Bromwich.—Calling Lord Dartmouth's attention to the case of Mr. Glazebrook, curate of Rowley, formerly one of Lady Huntingdon's preachers, whom the Bishop of Worcester refused to ordain because he had not been to either of the Universities and also told him he must quit his curacy, as he had brought no bene discessit from the bishop in whose diocese he lived. This has thrown the people of Rowley, to whom his ministry was acceptable and useful, into great distress.

DR. JAMES BEATTIE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 13. London. Sir William Mayne and I called at your house this morning, in order to pay our respects to your lordship. I came to town on Thursday last, according to your lordship's desire, that I might have the honour of being presented to the Queen, but Her Majesty did not appear in the drawing room that day. My journey to Oxford was very unexpected. It was occasioned by a letter which I received on Thursday last from the Bishop of Chester who told me that my name was put in the list of those who were to be complimented with doctors degrees in civil law, and desired me to repair to Oxford immediately. I have good reason to be flattered with so honourable a testimony of the University's approbation; it was conferred without having been solicited by me, and the University were pleased to order that it should be attended with no expense. I am much indebted to the Bishop of Chester as well as to many others of the clergy, for interesting themselves so generally and so warmly in this affair. I returned from Oxford on Sunday, and shall continue for some time longer at Sir William Mayne's at Arno's Grove near Southgate, Middlesex, as I find the country air of the greatest importance to my health. Any messages addressed to me at No. 27 Suffolk Street, Haymarket, will be carefully forwarded. Of this I thought it was necessary to inform your lordship, I would fain hope that my affairs will now be soon brought to an agreeable conclusion. The many striking instances of your lordship's goodness, which I have experienced, fill my heart with gratitude such as it is not in the power of words to express."

DR. JAMES BEATTIE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1773, July 23. Arno's Grove, Southgate, Middlesex.—Expressing gratitude for Lord Dartmouth's goodness to him. Desires to know whether he may continue here while his affairs are in dependence and what persons he may take the liberty to apply to for information or advice after Lord Dartmouth has gone to the country.

CHARLES PERRONET to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1773, August 20. Canterbury.—Calling Lord Dartmouth's attention to the condition of the shipwrights in the royal Dockyards that whereas they used to receive 2*s*. 1*d*. a day and had the chips cut from the timber they now, since March, have had a new mode of task-work. The timber supplied to the yards is also bad, or what is called over grown, and the officers of the yards receive fees to let it pass. The late contracts with Holland were very fatal, not one piece in four or five could be used. It is a national grievance that there is a law enjoining the felling of oak at the very season when it is most unfit for use, in consideration of the bark for tanners. By reason of the bad quality of the timber the men's labour is often lost, as the work has to be condemned.

G. B[ERKELEY to LORD LEWISHAM].

1773, October 9, "my fortieth birthday." Canterbury.—I thank you for the pleasure I received from the account of your Derbyshire tour, in return for which I have the honour to transmit to you a copy of a letter from an old friend of mine who visited the Peak thirteen years ago.

Letter referred to dated 19th July 1760. "On the third of last month I turned my face towards Derbyshire, my apparatus consisted of a barometer, made according to Schenchzer's directions in his Itinere Alpina. This, though portable, has an open cistern, one cannot safely depend on any barometer less troublesome in the application. I had also a mercurial thermometer formed with the utmost possible accuracy. These instruments and a few botanical books constituted the whole of my travelling equipage, I repent that a hydrostatic balance was not added to it." The silk mill at Derby is a curious piece of machinery, at first it appears very complicated but on examination convinces the beholder that a few simple and elegant contrivances are here applied to many different branches. At Wirksworth all hands are employed in preparing and smelting the lead, which is afforded by the neighbouring mines. We visited one of these sources of wealth, the shaft of which descended by several stages to the depth of sixty one fathoms; out of its mouth issued a warm steam, the workmen assured us that towards the bottom this steam was hot enough to cause a violent perspiration. To the westward of our inn at Matlock is an exceedingly steep hill with a lead mine near its top. We prepared to descend into this mine but could not do so by the shaft through which ore is brought up, the rope at that place being evidently too weak. We gained admission therefore through what miners call a 'groove hole,' a formidable passage truly, through which we were assured that none except workmen were before ever known to go. At some pretty considerable distance from the mouth of the shaft, there is a cavern in the side of the mountain about the entrance of which vast fragments of the rock lie scattered. This passage led to a narrow and dirty passage through which we crept downwards on all fours to a small trap-door. Under this door there is a perpendicular aperture containing a ladder composed of small timbers, fixed at each end into holes in the rock, the staves of this ladder were some of them so distant from their fellows that we were obliged to hang by our hands from one of them before we could place our feet on the next. Thus we descended to a landing place or shelf of rock barely wide enough to permit our crawling on it having on the left hand a deep black chasm. Our progression in this shelving projection brought us to another ladder worse than that we had just descended but which happily brought us to our journey's end, where we saw lead work carried on. Our guide was very chatty and told us that the veins of metal always make a greater angle with the horizon than do the sides of the mountain.

LADY MAYNE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 14. St. James's Square.—Asking Lord Dartmouth to subscribe to a new edition of Dr. James Beattie's "Essay on the Nature and Immutability of Truth in opposition to Sophistry and Scepticism," which Lady Montagu and she have suggested.

LORD NORTH to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 18. Bushey Park.—"I take the liberty of enclosing for your consideration, a copy of a very extraordinary and rather captious letter, which I received last night. As it does not relate particularly to me, but equally concerns the rest of his Majesty's servants, I have desired a cabinet to be called on Thursday next, to consider of the answer which it may be proper to return to it, and as I am afraid that we cannot hope for your attendance, I will immediately acquaint you with the sentiments of that meeting."

Postscript.—"I need not desire your Lordship to keep this letter secret."

Enclosure.—The Duke of Devonshire, the Marquis of Rockingham, the Earl of Bessborough, Lords Milton and Upper Ossory to Lord North. It is publicly reported that a project has been communicated to the King's Ministers, for proposing to the Parliament of Ireland a tax of regulation, which is particularly and exclusively to affect the property of those of his Majesty's subjects, who possess lands in that kingdom, but whose ordinary residence is in this. It is in the same manner publicly understood, that this extraordinary design has been encouraged by an assurance from the Administration, that if the heads of a bill, proposing such a tax, should be transmitted from Ireland, they would be returned with the sanction of his Majesty's Privy Council here, under the great seal of England.

My Lord, we find ourselves comprehended under the description of those who are to be the objects of this unprecedented imposition. We possess considerable landed property in both kingdoms, our ordinary residence is in England. We have not hitherto considered such residence as an act of delinquency, to be punished, or as a political evil, to be corrected, by the penal operation of a partial tax. We have had many of us our births and our earliest habits in this kingdom; some of us have an indispensable public duty, and all of us, where such duty does not require such restriction, have the right of free subjects, of choosing our habitation in whatever part of his Majesty's dominions we shall esteem most convenient.

We cannot hear, without astonishment, of a scheme by which we are to be stigmatized, by what is, in effect, a fine for our abode in this country—the principal member of the British Empire, and the residence of our common Sovereign.

We have ever shewn the utmost readiness in contributing with the rest of our fellow subjects, in any legal and equal method, to the exigencies of the public service, and to the support of his Majesty's Government.

We have ever borne a cordial, though not an exclusive, regard to the true interests of Ireland, and to all its rights and liberties, to none of which we think our residence in Great Britian, to be in the least prejudicial, but rather the means, in very many cases, of affording them a timely and effectual support.

We cannot avoid considering this scheme as in the highest degree injurious to the welfare of that kingdom, as well as of this. Its manifest tendency, is to lessen the value of all landed property there, to put restrictions upon it, unknown in any part of the British dominions, and, as far as we can find, without parallel in any civilized country It leads directly to a separation of these kingdoms in interest and affection, contrary to the standing policy of our ancestors, which has been at every period, and particularly at the glorious Revolution, inseparably to connect them by every tie both of affection and interest.

We apply to your Lordship, in particular. This is intended as a mode of public supply, and we conceive the treasury of Ireland, as well as that of England, is in a great measure, within your Lordship's particular Department. We flatter ourselves that we shall not be refused authentic information concerning a matter in which we are so nearly concerned, that if the scheme which we state to your Lordship doth exist, we may be enabled to pursue every legal method of opposition to a project, in every light so unjust and impolitic. Copy.

FREDERICK MONTAGU to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1773, October 25. Aston.—"I am certainly the most unfortunate man in the world. Two Scotsmen, the only two I am persuaded who are not in office and employment, have plundered the house in Hanover Square. I wish the administration had provided for them before. If I had been pillaged with the rest of the nation or persecuted with the rest of the opposition, I could have been contented, but these private plunderings are very unfair. However by the vigilance of Sir John Fielding, and notwithstanding all the endeavours of Lord Mansfield and the rest of the Cabinet Council, the thieves are taken, and now my mother is much more alarmed at the thoughts of their being hanged, than she was with the robbery: but I tell her she may be perfectly easy, that they are very safe, and will be in place and in the House of Commons next Parliament. Seriously, the loss has been very trifling. My mother has lost some coins and a few trinkets, and poor Mrs. Falconer a fine old gown. A poor old woman, who kept the house, has lost ten pounds, and she is the person the most to be pitied. I am here at Mason's among poetry and gardening, and have nothing to do with plots and conspiracies; indeed, I have been over at Welbeck for two or three days, but instead of plotting there, I danced all night, like an old fool as I am. I shall go in a day or two to Melton, and soon to Wentworth. I cannot condole with you on the loss of little Garlies, but I hate that subject. The only employment at the only time, I could wish, would be the Board of Trade, when you are at the head of it, but Fata obstant, and I am persuaded that my evil genius will always prevail. You are much too good to be long in office, and when you are out, there is no man I shall be so anxious to act with, I repeat no man, without exceptions, sauve qui peut. Have you received a request from Fitzherbert about Dominica. I beg my best compliments to Lady Dartmouth. Mason calls me. We are going into his garden to demolish some Scotch Firs, a prelude to greater changes."

The Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1773, October 26. Olney.—"I am not able yet to give your Lordship a more favourable account of my dear friend Mr. Cowper. He is at present much as he was when I left him, a prey to the most distressing apprehensions. It is a long and a sore trial, not to him only, but also to us. However my confidence in the Lord's wisdom and goodness is not shaken."

SIR JAMES ADOLPHUS OUGHTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1773, November 3. Caroline Park [Edinburgh].—"What I have lately heard relative to your Lordship differs in its matter from what I communicated in a former letter, as it comes through the channel of Dr.

Beattie, whose repeated avowals of eternal gratitude to your Lordship I gave thorough credit to, though I do not mean to trouble you with a repetition of them, or an account of my own feelings on that subject. But he told me he was bonoured with a conference of near an hour and a half with their Majesties, in the course of which the King asked him if he was acquainted with your Lordship and what he thought of you. 'Think of him, Sir,' (I use his own words) 'think of him—I not only think him the most amiable man I ever saw but I think him perfectly enchanting,'—with a strong Scotch emphasis. The King smiled—'Dr. Beattie you are perfectly right, I think precisely the same of him myself; he is, certainly, a most excellent man.' "

G. Berkeley [to Lord Lewisham].

1773, November 12. Canterbury.—I forbore thanking your Lordship for your picturesque letter from Caroline Park till I should hear of your arrival in South Britain. A human mind cannot without uneasiness behold the extreme penury, which you describe as the lot of the poor Scotsmen. That uneasiness gives no small alloy to the pleasure afforded by Loch Lomond whose woodcocks I have seen (potted) in Kent.

Rev. John Newton to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1774, January 10. Olney.—"Mr. Cowper is not yet better, than when I wrote last."

Thomas Jenkins to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1774, February 2. Rome.—At the request of the Pope he begs to state that the daughter of an Englishman who was forcibly detained at Nice on account of her having become a Roman Catholic is to be delivered to her father by order of the Pope. Endorsed: Relative to Miss Mearne's detention at Nice.

The Earl of Dartmouth to Sir Adolphus Oughton.

1774, February 21.—Asking Sir Adolphus to do all he can to assist Dr. Beattie to obtain the professorship of Moral Philosophy in the University of Edinburgh. Draft.

Dr. James Beattie to Lord Dartmouth.

1774, March 5. Aberdeen.—Indebted as I am in so many respects to your lordship's goodness and condescension, I cannot forbear to express my regret, that I should have innocently been the cause of giving you additional trouble, by being represented and recommended to your lordship as a candidate for the professorship of moral philosophy in the university of Edinburgh. The concern which you, my lord, and Sir Adolphus Oughton, have been pleased to take in this matter, does me great honour, and demands my warmest acknowledgments; and I can never be insensible of my obligations to those friends, who, without my consent or knowledge, have applied to your lordship in my favour on this occasion. But I am sorry, they did not inform me of their friendly purpose before they put it in execution. If they had done this, I would have spared them that trouble, which, if I had foreseen, I should certainly have prevented, I must now beg leave to inform your lordship, that, from the time I published the Essay on Truth, I was obliged to renounce all views of going into the college of Edinburgh; which before that time several of my friends had much at heart, and I myself considered as a desirable object. But my book raised me so many bitter enemies among a certain set of the literati of that place, that I soon found it would be better for me to remain on any terms where I am, than to put it in their power to disturb my quiet, or hurt my interest by secretly wounding my character. This they have since repeatedly attempted to do, with a degree of zeal and perseverance, which, without the clearest evidence, I could not have believed any person capable of, who has any pretensions to common decency of behaviour. But I will not trouble your lordship with any particulars on a subject so disagreeable.

It is true, the philosophy which I attacked seems now to have lost its credit even in this country; and, if I am rightly informed, the party who either professed it, or by their extraordinary attachment to its author and all his writings gave the world reason to believe they countenanced it, are now falling away apace. And I have been solicited, by several of the town council, as well as of the college, to declare myself a candidate on this occasion. But the precarious state of my health and spirits, as well as my love of peace, and my disinclination to be in any way connected with men who are my declared enemies, who hate me for my principles, and whom I cannot esteem for theirs, determines me to adhere to my former resolution. For I must inform your lordship, that this is not the first time of my being named as a successor to Dr. Ferguson. The thing was proposed two years ago, when everybody thought that gentleman was to resign his office, and go to the East Indies; but I then also declined it, with the approbation of the Archbishop of York, Lord Kinnoul, and all those of my friends to whom I had access to explain my reasons.

Here, indeed, I have more labour to undergo, than I should have at Edinburgh; but that labour, having long been habitual, is now become easy. Here too I act in a narrower sphere; but as I can act in it without opposition, and enforce good principles without giving offence, I humbly think I may do more good in this place, than I could expect to do there; and by the blessing of Providence, and the bounty of His Majesty, I have no reason to desire a change from lucrative considerations. And here as the place is more solitary, I shall have more leisure for prosecuting my favourite purpose of making further efforts for the vindication of moral and religious truth."

The EARL OF DARTMOUTH to LORD LEWISHAM.

1774, June 7. Blackheath.—Mr. Ed. Burke tells me that his son is just gone to Christ Church, I would have you show him some civilities and be of use to him if you can.

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1774, June 29. Olney.—"This is our fair day, a day of great importance to the children in town . . . . On the evening of our fair-days I usually preach, which I call opening my booth. Sometimes I invite them to buy the truth or to come and see; sometimes I depreciate the wares and objects of the fair, and endeavour to convince them that all is vanity and vexation of spirit in comparison to what is set forth to view and to sale, without money or price, in the ordinances of the Gospel; but alas, I have the fewest spectators and the fewest buyers. A mountebank or a dancing dog can gather a crowd, but there are only here or there, one who have leisure or desire to attend to the things which belong to their peace. But a few there are, and usually amongst them some strangers whom the novelty of preaching at such a time, induces to come and hear what the man has to say. For the sake of such, and with a hope of being possibly useful to some poor soul, if but one, I began this custom upon my first coming to Olney.

"It is probable your Lordship has received or will have seen a packet of my letters. They were first published in the 'Gospel Magazine,' under the signature 'Omicron,' and are now collected in a small volume. I just mention them to intreat your favourable acceptance, and shall be glad if you think any of them worth your perusal. Many of them were at first written in private correspondence, without the least thought, at the time, of appearing in public; others were only put into an epistolary form, as being the manner of writing to which I am most accustomed.

My dear Mr. Cowper has left my house, and has been at home some weeks. He is in some respects better; his distress is not so poignant as formerly, and he is more attentive to what passes. His malady, however, is not yet removed, but we have reason to hope the Lord is on his way to turn our mourning into joy."

Isaac Heard, Lancaster Herald, to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1774, July 25. College of Arms.—Enclosing a copy of his petition to Lord North for the post of Usher of the Red Rod to the order of the Bath and requesting Lord Dartmouth's influence to obtain that office.

The Hon. William Legge to his father, the Earl of Dartmouth.

1774, September 4. "Christ Church, not Oxford."—Describes a journey from Portsmouth to Southampton. On their arrival there they met "a brother Oxonian, by name Morant" who greeted them with the intelligence of a masked ball to be held that night. "At the proper time, we found ourselves, by some means or other, in the Assembly Room, in dominoes. Amongst other company, the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland were there; the latter was all over diamonds, but did not pull off her mask."

The Hon. William Legge to his father, the Earl of Dartmouth.

1774, September 22. Boconnoc.—Account of a visit to Powderham Castle and Ashburton; the latter place celebrated "for a particular sort of beer, called Ashburton pop." Describes a visit to Plymouth and to Mount Edgcombe. "It was not unsatisfactory to us that we saw the unfortunate Mr. Day's buoy, as it gave us a perfect idea of a story that is so much at present in everybody's mouth. There is a poor mad doctor Falck, or some such name, who is going to renew his attempts to draw up the ship, which he has the most sanguine expectations of effecting and —what is still more extraordinary—of saving Mr. Day's life; as he says it is impossible for a man die without air."

LORD LEWISHAM to his father, the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1774 [September].—Describes a visit to Longford, Shaftesbury, etc. —"Mr. Copley, when I was at Southampton, desired me to inform you . . . . . that the bishop of Winchester lately offered the living of Gosport to Dr. Beattie, which he refused on account of his time of life, and his Scotch accent; on his refusal, it was given to Mr. Sturges."

LORD LEWISHAM to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1774, October 1. Okehampton.—"I must introduce you to some new acquaintance formed at Southampton, and these are no other than the famous Mr. and Mrs. Miller of Bath, the instituters of the poetical prizes. You most probably know them by character, but in case you do not, I must inform you that they are said to be very assiduous in their attentions to men of rank and others that, having no rank, have seen the Queen of Naples. Mrs. Miller has been known to say, that she was never jealous but once, and that was of the Queen of Naples. Mr. Miller very politely returned the compliment and asserted that he also was never jealous but once, and that was of the Pope. It happened that it was my fate to dance at Southampton with Mrs. Miller, who said that Mr. Miller waited upon you two or three times, when Governor Brown, his relation or friend (I am not sure which) was about to be married to Miss English, and desired that she might introduce me to him. Upon this, you may be sure, great civilities followed, and they are to be vastly attentive to us when we come to Bath."

EDWARD HASTED to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1774, November 9. Precincts of Christ Church, Canterbury.—Enclosing Lord Dartmouth the proposals for his History of Kent which he hopes will meet with Lord Dartmouth's approbation.

LORD BUCHAN to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 1. Kirk Hill.—"I address myself to your Lordship as the only member of Administration with whom I either have or would wish to hold any correspondence on a subject that relates to myself particularly.

"On the event of the late dissolution of the Parliament, one of your Lordship's colleagues Lord Suffolk thought proper to write an authoritative letter to me on the subject of the sixteen peers to be elected for Scotland. I returned his Lordship an answer suitable to the affront he had ventured to offer, and I do most earnestly entreat your Lordship as an old acquaintance and a person for whom I have a singular good will, that you will when an opportunity offers suggest that if I am applied to for the future in that manner by any of the King's servants, I shall, notwithstanding my disposition to rustication, make one more visit to the great city on purpose to chastise the person who shall waste his ink and paper in that manner.

"I was not engaged in the last bustle of our peers, being sensible that now the attacks made on all hands, render the freedom of Scotland but a small object in the general attempt, and I own that nothing has all along astonished me so much since 1765 than that a peer, of whose virtue I had conceived so high an opinion, should not have come out from among the destroyers of commerce and the oppressors of the colonies."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 8. Olney.—"Mr. Cowper is much as he was."

Rev. M. MADAN to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1774, December 27. Epsom.—"My friend who formerly used to be a good deal at Luton in Mr. Herne's time, wanted to go down last summer to take a view of the alterations and improvements which Lord B[ute] has made there. He made a party with another gentleman. They went and took up their lodgings for two days at an inn kept by an old servant of Lord B.'s. The first night they lay there a great noise was heard in the yard. My friend was waked about three o'clock and rang the bell. A person came into his room, who told him the noise was owing to the getting post horses ready for Lord B. who was setting off for London. My friend then asked no more questions, but in the morning he had some conversation with the landlady, who informed him that four or six horses were always kept ready for Lord B. to go at a moment's warning, not only there, but at the other stages on the road to London; that he went constantly—once, sometimes twice, sometimes thrice a week to his Majesty. That if the King was at Kew, he was set down at Kew; if at the Queen's house, then his Lordship alighted at a little gate in the wall by the Lock Hospital. This was the latter end of June or the beginning of July, and had been the case the whole summer. One difficulty remains which is, how the boys who carried him only the first stage, should know where he was set down at the end of the last, but this is easily solved, by supposing one post-boy to tell another, and so down all the way."

L. VALTRAVERS to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1774, December 30. Salisbury Street, adjoining the Adelphi.—"The Honourable Judge Barrington (the first proposer of a Polar Voyage attempted by the Honorable Captain Phipps, and whom I have since brought into a direct correspondence with B. Engel of Berne) has lately convinced the impartial and unprejudiced part of our Royal Society, by innumerable instances of the navigability of the Polar Seas, far beyond the non plus ultra of Captain Wood cast on the shore of Nova Zembla and of Captain Phipps, stuck fast on the icy straits of Spitzbergen. His irresistible proofs entirely corroborate B. Engel's assertions and render them still more deserving his Majesty's attention.

"As neither Mr. Daines Barrington who has taken infinite pains to make himself fully conversant in this important branch of geography nor the Directors of the East-India Company, so highly interested in a shorter and safer passage to their present and future settlements, have seen B. Engel's secret memoir of June 30th 1773, graciously accepted by his Majesty with many documents, would it not be proper to indulge them with its perusal. Should your Lordship approve of it and his Majesty be graciously pleased to authorize me to such an act of indulgence, I make no doubt but a Select Committee of the Honourable East India Company would thoroughly consider and weigh his plan, start their doubts and difficulties, hear my answers, and make your Lordship a faithful report of their opinions and resolutions, either to drop or to recommend my friend's proposals for more decisive discoveries towards the North-Eastern parts of Asia and the North-Western extremities of America."

MATTHEW BOULTON to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1775, February 22. Soho [co. Stafford, near Birmingham].—" I take the liberty of writing to your lordship in favour of my friend Mr. James Watt, an engineer, who intends to petition parliament for a prolongation of a term of an exclusive privilege granted by his majesty's patent which he has already obtained for certain very capital improvements invented by him in steam or fire engines. And I am convinced that your lordship will excuse this liberty, and will even interest yourself in the affair, when I acquaint you that the legislature's compliance with the prayer of the petition will not only be a kind of justice to an ingenious man who has spent much of his attention and fortune in the discovery of an useful invention, and who from certain circumstances, which I shall explain to your lordship, cannot reap any advantage from it, unless he obtains the indulgence requested: but will also be really a public benefit, as without that indulgence his discoveries will not probably be ever carried into execution. I need not point out to your lordship's consideration the great utility of steam or fire engines in collieries, in lead, tin, and copper mines, and in other great works where great power is required, but I shall beg leave to observe, that Mr. Watt's intentions, if carried into execution, will very much extend the utility of fire engines by rendering them one-fourth of the expense usual, and by adapting them to a great variety of purposes and manufactures to which the present engines cannot be applied. Mr. Watt has spent a great part of his life and fortune in making experiments upon steam and steam-engines, and is the first and only man that has discovered the true principles upon which they can be constructed to the best advantage and very much superior to those commonly employed.

" In the year 1769, he took out a patent for the sole use of his invention, but from the many mechanical difficulties that occurred in carrying into execution his newly discovered principles, from bad health, and from his having been employed by the boards of police and other public boards in Scotland, in making surveys, superintending the execution of a navigable canal, and other public works, and from the expense attending the necessary trials, experiments and models of engines, he has not been able to finish large engines till the latter end of last year, when he completed, in my manufactory at Soho, two engines (one rotatory and the other reciprocating) which perfectly answer to his and my satisfaction.

" From the difficulties Mr. Watt has met with in the execution of this invention and from these he still saw before him, he was discouraged, and would have dropped the scheme, had not I assisted him. But as a great part of the time of his patent is elapsed and his own life very precarious and as a large sum of money must yet be expended before any advantage can be gained from it, I think that his abilities and my money may be otherwise better employed, unless parliament be pleased to grant a prolongation of the term of his exclusive privilege. I have obtained the favour of Lord Guernsey to present the petition to the House of Commons, and if it has the happiness to meet with your lordship's countenance and patronage, I doubt not but a communication of your favourable sentiments to Lord North, would greatly facilitate and ensure the success of it, as that communication would effectually convince his lordship of the justice and public utility of the measure, which seem to me to be the standards by which his lordship directs his public conduct.

"I beg leave to submit it to your lordship, whether it be not proper to avoid mentioning my name as one concerned in this affair, lest it should occasion some opposition on account of my having interested myself in the late counter petition from Birmingham."

Rev. Samuel Parr to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1775, February 24.—He cannot help expressing the satisfaction which he feels from the behaviour of Mr. Heneage Legge, "his diligence and his regularity give him a title to my warmest approbation. My Lord, I dare not tell you an untruth upon such a subject, but if a sound understanding and an upright heart are the most proper qualifications of a Christian teacher Mr. H. Legge is likely to become a real and distinguished ornament to that profession in which he is to be placed." He hopes that the methods he pursues by reading Dr. Secker's lectures, by explaining difficult passages, and by enlarging on such topics as incidentally arise, meet with Lord Dartmouth's approval.

Lord Dacre to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1775, March 25.—"Mr. Walpole has seen the Earl of Devonshire's picture, and is much pleased with it, and joins with me in wishing that your Lordship would oblige the world in permitting it to be engraved. I have taken the liberty to show it to Mr. Boydell who is perhaps the greatest merchant of prints in London, and he thinks that the engraving it is so likely to answer, that he is willing to undertake it, if your Lordship permits it. But he must then necessarily request to have the picture for sometime, as it cannot be engraved at this house or your Lordship's. He promises in this case to take great care of it and says that he is used to be trusted with pictures for this purpose."

Postcript.—"The description in Morrison's History of the person of the Earl of Devonshire exactly answers to the picture."

Lord Dacre to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1775, April 8. Bruton Street.—The Earl of Devonshire's picture is perfectly set to rights by Mr. Bonus, it was only slightly scratched in the drapery. He has sent it to Mr. [Valentine] Green, of Salisbury Street, Strand "who is the engraver Mr. Boydell has appointed to execute the print . . . . Mr. Green hopes he may be permitted to keep it, at least, two months."

William Rawlings to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1775, April 24. Padstow.—"The insults of smugglers and the great injury they do to the community, call aloud for redress, and I am sorry to say that the country round us is almost ruined by them; the liquid fire they furnish at a cheap rate debauches the morals and ruins the constitutions of thousands. Happy for us could any stop be put to these growing evils! I am glad to inform your Lordship that Mr. Nott, the gentleman appointed by the excise to the command of the lugger stationed at this port, seems an honest conscientious man, much superior to the base practices which I fear too often prevail, of taking bribes from these wretches who, in exchange for their destructive commodities, plunder the country and deprive us of the greater part of our running cash. But the small sloop under his command is utterly unfit to encounter with any of the Irish wherries which infest the coast and daringly bid defiance to all opposition. About a fortnight since, he was chased by one of these wherries, fired at, and had he been nearer he would certainly have been sunk. She drove him into this harbour and by way of bravado fired seven guns at the mouth of the harbour and hung out a flag by way of triumph. He afterwards sailed to Newquay and discharged his cargo. It is greatly to be wished that the excise would furnish this honest man with a vessel of superior force, some guns, and a few more hands. I have then very little doubt, that he would then soon give a good account of some of these out-lawed banditti, who now land their goods unmolested at Newquay and other places on our coast, from whence they are carried overland to all parts of this county and into Devon. The vigilance and strength of the cutters on the south coast between Plymouth and Falmouth, prevent their landing as they used to do on that coast, which occasions their retreat to us. There is an officer stationed two miles from Newquay, but he hardly ever makes a seizure, though there is scarce a week in the year that one smuggler or other is not discharged there. I beg leave to trouble your lordship with a small draft of the coast on which I have dotted with the pen, the sundry smuggling coves near us; but the place of general rendezvous and head quarters of this most abominable trade, is Newquay in the parish of Lower St. Columb. Here it is no uncommon thing for 100 horse, on Sundays as well as week days, to be in waiting for the arrival of one or other of the wherries, and some smaller craft. If some honest guard is not put upon this place or some check put to this trade, the consequences everyway are dreadful. I am not without suspicion that much of our wool goes from hence directly to France, and I now find that they bring not only brandy, tea, rum, Geneva, but a multitude of other articles of French manufacture. I am fully persuaded, my lord, you have the good of the nation and of trade, its support, really at heart, therefore I the more freely lay these matters before you and pray a redress, not so much on my own account, as I could live comfortably, were I out of trade, as for many who must live by trade.

"I have lately had a letter from one Anthony Kindal, who was, by means of a friend of mine, appointed tide surveyor of the Customs at New York, who says he is in danger of being turned out of his place. If for his attachment to government and a faithful discharge of his duty I humbly request your Lordship on his behalf. But if he has been in any shape countenancing the spirit of rebellion there, I would wish him to meet the punishment he deserves. But I hope better things of him.

"Since I have been happily and agreeably settled at this place, I have often turned my thoughts towards the preservation of the lives of my fellow creatures. Our harbour, though the safest between King's Road and the Land's End (on this side) for vessels of 300 or 400 ton, yet on account of its being little known, and the entrance into it not better described, has often proved fatal to many vessels and lives; scarce a winter passes without some wreck near us. I am fully persuaded if a pyramid of no very great height was built on the rock called Newland at the mouth of the harbour, it would not only be a direction for the entrance of the harbour (on the western cliff of which are rings for mooring vessels to) its being mistaken for Gulland, another rock a little to the westward of the harbour, by which means many vessels have been lost, as by attempting to make this lower rock in a N. W. wind, they are always embayed and thrown on the rocks. Could such a thing be obtained, I would undertake to keep the pyramid constantly white-washed and repaired during my life time and think myself peculiarly happy if I was hereby in any degree of service to preserving the lives and properties of my fellow-creatures. I suppose as stone may be raised on the rock the expense of building and lime would not much exceed 60*li*."

Rev. SAMUEL PARR to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1775, April 30.—" I feel great satisfaction from the last treatise of Jeyns on the Internal Evidences of Revelation, because it confirms an opinion that I have always maintained in favour of his faith. I must rescue his character from injurious censures, which hasty or partial readers have endeavoured to fix upon it, but my consolation on another account is far greater, when the gloomy, frightful doctrines of infidelity have in the most subtle manner and for the most malignant purposes been revived in a work to which Mr. Gibbon has audaciously prefixed his name. Christianity has found in Mr. Jeyns an advocate of talents to support the most difficult cause, and of integrity and fortitude to undertake the most important."

Colonel JAMES ROBERTSON to the [EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1775, May 27. Boston.—" So general is the madness of the times that we find great difficulty in providing fuel for this garrison. When by indulging avarice or supplying conveniencies we engage men to make contracts, the Congress, by autherity or by their instrument the mob, prevent the execution. To prevent a chance of want next winter of such a necessary of life I have got some substantial men to engage to bring coals from Newcastle, Whitehaven, and Scotland, and the General well knowing your zeal employs me to entreat your endeavours to help us to a supply from Louisburg. . . . . . Whatever advice you give will be gratefully attended to and whatever supply of men, money, or materials you may want for the execution shall be supplied from hence; but please remember men is what we can least spare at this season. We could without inconvenience give you some at the end of the campaign to work all winter.

" The rebels give it out that many of your best sellers are their friends and mean to prevent anything being sent from Nova Scotia for the troops.

" The rebels have certainly in letters dictated this measure. At the General's desire I assure you that I have reason to believe that every method in their power will be employed to hurt the service. The Admiral expresses some concern for the dockyard, as the value is very great and the difficulty of burning it small."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 1. Olney.—" When we received the news of the late hostilities in the neighbourhood of Boston, I immediately proposed a meeting for prayer extraordinary on a national account; it is on Tuesday mornings at five o'clock when we have from 100 to 150 people assemble. . . . . . Will your Lordship permit me to suggest that in this situation of things, it would, I am persuaded, be acceptable to many who fear God and love their country, if a day of public humiliation were enjoined by authority."

G. W. Kempson to Lord Lewisham.

1775, July 14. Christ Church, Oxford.—"The law election has made a considerable noise in this place. The numbers were, for Milles, 175; for Bragge, 83: for Harte, 80; an astonishing inequality. But parvis componere magna, a kind of fracas has happened in consequence of it, between the eldest Milles and the Bishop of Chester: who asserted before the whole common room, which he had invited to dine with him on Tuesday, that the canvas on the part of the Milleses had been very illiberal and indecent, and of the borough kind. The story spread and, as is usual, grew by being told. Particularly it was added that the reflection had been made directly and in express terms upon the Dean of Exeter, upon which the eldest Milles called upon the Bishop, who denied that he had said what was added, but maintained what he had originally asserted, and Milles went away.

"Holmes of New College is a candidate against Randolph for the poetry professorship and meets with a success that is rather formidable. Burke is not yet my neighbour. I met his father and the Bishop of Chester yesterday at Dr. Bagot's. Of course the conversation was both instructive and agreeable. Indeed I have not spent a pleasanter afternoon of some time. My neighbours leave Oxford on Monday and intend to be at Jevington by the end of the week.

"The enclosed composition is due to you on many accounts; but particularly because your very kind attentions contributed principally to relieve the fatigue of setting it together. It was returned to me yesterday in a manner which flattered me. It might have been contained by less paper, but if I had attempted to write it over again I could not have sent it to you before Sunday, because Saturday is no post-day. The numbers on the back pages will shew the order of the leaves. As for the Christ Church prizes, the determination of them is put off till the first of December, because only three compositions were received; which shewed evidently that they were written upon an emergency. I cannot tell what were the faults of the other: but mine was returned to me as being rather a preface to the main question than upon it; which was very true. All Bachelors are ordered to write upon pain of suspension from their degree; so that the competition will be rather serious."

Lord Lewisham to his father, the Earl of Dartmouth.

1775, July 25, Calais.—Describes the journey to Calais. "No sooner had we arrived at the summit of Shooters Hill, than we were accosted by a well dressed man on horseback, who with a significant shrug, informed us that there were four highwaymen on the road. Though we did not much credit his information, we construed everybody we met, till we came to Dartford, into highwaymen. At Dartford, we passed by the Duke of Gloucester, who with a retinue of three coaches, besides that which he and the Duchess were in, was on his road to Dover, in the way, as I understand, to Switzerland. We could not help smiling at the ridiculous piece of pageantry. The coach the Duke was in, when we saw it at Dartford, had eight horses, and it was no sooner got without the precincts of the town, than two of the horses were taken off and, I believe, put on to one of the other coaches which had but four. Nothing remarkable occurred till we had passed Rochester, when we had a specimen of one of the various talents of Cornwell. Being put upon a rusty horse, he made no scruple to dismount the first postilion, and drove us himself as far as Sittingbourne, as well as any other postilion could have done. At Canterbury, we found a letter from our captain, desiring that we would come on immediately to Dover, in order to embark this morning at 6 o'clock."

St. Omer, 8 o'clock in the evening. "So far had I written at Calais, . . . We found Dr. Berkeley very well at Canterbury, and at dinner; he had waited for us, but had given up the point and set down. At first we hardly knew him, as he has left off the wig, we have so long been acquainted with, and wears his own hair. We should have been very comfortable, had not the affection of Mrs. B[erkeley] made us all sick. Mrs. Scott was not at home, so that we left Canterbury (to use the words of Mr. Stevenson) scot free. We arrived in good health and spirits at Dover about 9 o'clock; found our captain waiting for us at the inn, and, in consequence of his suggestion, determined to embark as soon as we had finished our supper. Our chief motive was, that the Duke of Gloucester was, we were told, putting eight coaches on board the two vessels, and we were not without fears that we should not be able to get horses, unless we were beforehand with him. Accordingly, about twelve, we set sail with the wind westerly, and as favourable for us as possible, and after a most delightful passage arrived at Calais . . . . The shore, upon our arrival, was crowded with women running after each other and catching worms and prawns. Their foreign appearance and unknown language made them seem vastly ridiculous to us. Upon the pier we met a French officer and a Capuchin friar, and were much surprised upon coming into the town, to find many of the people up and some even at breakfast, though it was then but four o'clock. Having breakfasted, we went to bed . . . . I was no sooner up . . . . when who should walk in, but our friend Pitt. He had been some days at Calais where he had waited for a review of the regiment Lionnois, as it was just then going to be reviewed. We were fortunate enough to be able to see a few of their manœuvres, after which we proceeded on our way towards Paris. Conceive us, then, in a coach drawn by six horses with two postilions having long French whips and jack boots, their hair smartly tied up, with Cornwell by our side on a bidet of about eight hands in height and I think you will laugh at the conceit. Here, by the by, I must stop to expatiate on the advantages of the regulations which the drivers and posts are under. The latter are regulated by Government. At certain distances, horses are allowed to be kept for the accommodation of travellers, and the house in each respective town in which these horses are kept, is called la Poste Royale; what is termed une poste, amounts to about six English miles; if the stage exceeds that it is called une poste et demi, deux postes, and so on, and the prices to be paid, the number of horses to be used, &c. &c. &c. are all regularly settled. By this means, impositions—which the French are ready enough to make, particularly upon the English—are avoided; besides which, the drivers all wear the French King's livery and have his arms worked upon the sleeve of their jackets. They are in fact his servants, and if a traveller was to strike or misuse them, he would be liable to imprisonment."

MATTHEW BOULTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1775 July 30. Soho.—Calling attention to the negligence of the Goldsmiths' Company in putting their mark to plate under the standard.

LORD LEWISHAM to his father, the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1775, July 31. Paris.—"The first object that attracted my attention on my journey to Paris was the Pont Sans Pareil, a bridge over two canals at the point at which they cut one another. On 25th July we visited St. Omer a considerable town possessing two handsome churches, the one which appeared the most beautiful was dedicated to St. Bertin and contained some fine paintings by Rubens, and one by an unknown hand, representing our Saviour on the Cross; the other church was the Cathedral, a fine building but much more tawdry in its ornaments. On the 26th we visited Lille, which is esteemed the strongest fortress in France, it is a very beautiful town, for though Glasgow and Bath have parts equal to any here, yet the tout ensemble at Lille surpasses either of them. By an artifice of the grenadier who attended us, and who voted us French, we obtained permission to visit the citadel. We received a good deal of information from the grenadier about the French army. Every regiment is divided into four battalions, each battalion into ten companies, and each company contains 52 men under the command of a captain, a lieutenant, and sous-lieutenant the French soldiers live well, being allowed more than sufficient bread and half a pound of meat a day, they have a right to leave the army after serving eight years and are in general exempt from corporal punishment; in consequence of this they are really a very noble body of men. On the 27th we visited the arsenal at Douay in which the soldiers were working. "I could not help thinking that it would turn to account if our soldiers, instead of loitering about the towns, where they are quartered from morning to night, were employed in some such service. At Douay we saw likewise a College for the education of English Roman Catholics, the young men wear gowns not unlike those of the King's scholars at Westminster the greater part of them are from Lancashire and Cheshire. The foundation seems to be upon a very comfortable footing, the boys till they are of a certain age, lie in cells, afterwards each has allotted him an exceeding good apartment. In this town there is a cannon foundry but as we were in some haste and the men were not then at work we did not see it. At Cambray the chief objects are two churches the one is a Cathedral of great antiquity crowded with monuments of which some are finely executed, amongst the rest there is one to the famous Fenelon, Archbishop of the Diocese. The other is a handsome modern church, belonging to a Convent of Benedictines, in which are some of the most remarkable paintings in chiaro-oscuro by an artist of the name of Guraerto, that I ever saw, they represent the passion of our Saviour and till we were actually come under them we could not persuade ourselves that they were not in bas relief. Here Mr. Pitt, who I informed you in my last we met at Calais and who from St. Omer filled the fourth place in our coach, left us, and proceeded by Rheims to Switzerland.

"On the 28th we breakfasted at Peronne dined at Royes, famous all over France for its biscuits, and lay at Pont St. Maixence, a very dirty old town. Here we were obliged to sup and lie, all of us in the same room, and that not the best in the world, exclusively of its being full of fleas and supposed not to be exempt from bugs, at least my companions were not able to sleep: as for myself I never slept more soundly in my life. The cause of our being so much straitened was that the house was full of soldiers stationed here to prevent riots. We learned that several had been taken up and that the King, conscious of their being so much oppressed by famine had set them at liberty. Two have been I believe executed, at least we saw a proclamation dated in May stuck up upon the walls of St. Denis specifying their names and declaring the time and manner of their execution. At Pont St. Maixence we were informed that the scarcity is so great that the inhabitants have been obliged to begin using the corn of this year."

Rev. JOHN WESLEY to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1775, August 23. Haverford West.—"When I began the enclosed. I designed to send it to Mr. Wharton, according to his desire. But upon reflection, I judged it not improbable that he might make a bad use of it: and thought it might be more advisable, to send it directly to your lordship." Enclosure.

Rev. JOHN WESLEY to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1775, Aug. 23. Haverford West.—"A letter which I received from Mr. Lowland yesterday, occasions my giving you this trouble. You told him, the administration have been assured from every part of the kingdom, that trade was as plentiful and flourishing as ever, and the people as well employed and as well satisfied.

"Sir, I aver from my own personal knowledge, from the testimony of my own eyes and ears, that there cannot be a more notorious falsehood, than has been palmed upon them for truth. I aver, that in every part of England where I have been (and I have been East, West, North, and South within these two years) trade in general is exceedingly decayed, and thousands of people are quite unemployed. Some I know to have perished for want of bread; others, I have seen creeping up and down like walking shadows. I except three or four manufacturing towns, which have suffered less than others.

"I aver, 2, that the people in general all over the nation, are so far from being well satisfied that they are far more deeply dissatisfied than they appear to have been even a year or two before the Great Rebellion, and far more dangerously dissatisfied. The bulk of the people in every city, town, and village where I have been, do not so much aim at the ministry, as they usually did in the last century, but at the king himself. He is the object of their anger, contempt and malice. They heartily despise his majesty; and hate him with a perfect hatred. They wish to imbrue their hands in his blood; they are full of the spirit of murder and rebellion, and I am persuaded, should any occasion offer, thousands would be ready to act what they now speak. It is as much as ever I can do, and sometimes more than I can do, to keep this plague from infecting my own friends. And nineteen or twenty to whom I speak in defence of the king, seem never to have heard a word spoken for him before. I marvel what wretches they are who abuse the credulity of the ministry, by those florid accounts. Even where I was last, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, a tenant of Lord Dartmouth was telling me 'Sir, our tradesmen are breaking all round me, so that I know not what the end will be.' Even in Leeds I had appointed to dine at a merchant's; but before I came, the baillffs were in possession of the house. Upon my saying 'I thought Mr.—— had been in good circumstances' I was answered, 'He was so: but the American war has ruined him.'"

LORD LEWISHAM to his father, the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1775, August 26. Tours.—Gives an account of a voyage down the Loire. On Tuesday August 15 we embarked from Roanne in Burgundy in a large heavy flat-bottomed boat which consisted of three divisions: the hindermost was occupied by our coach, in the middle a kind of shed built of planks—"in the midst of which stood a kind of mongrel animal between a chest for provisions and a table"—formed our parlour. The fore part of the vessel was occupied by our mariners and servants. At night we slept at Digoin. On Tuesday we supped at a village called Decize and slept in our coach. On Thursday we saw the town of Nevers, capital of Nevernois, and passed by a town called La Charité near which is established an English manufactury of buttons. We then passed on to Briare where the Loire communicates with the Seine by means of a navigable canal by which almost all the Burgundy wine is conveyed to Paris. On Saturday we passed the Chateau de Sully and the Chateau de la Veilliere and breakfasted at Orleans, a pretty town much infested by English. The chief object here is a very handsome cathedral founded by Henri Quatre the inside is a mixture of Gothic and Greek. A strict connoisseur in architecture, might perhaps object to such a mixture; but to eyes less critical it is far from wanting in its effect. "I observed in this cathedral, ostrich feathers introduced by way of a frieze to a Gothic column, so that Mr. Adams has not the merit which is usually given him of first introducing them, nor is his British order strictly new, since that time we have more than once taken notice of the same circumstance particularly in the churches here. To the Cathedral at Orleans they are now adding a portal which, when completed, will be a master-piece of modern Gothic. In the midst of the town stands a monument of the Pucelle d'Orleans, kneeling on one side of the Virgin Mary, who is sitting at the foot of the Cross with a dead Christ in her lap, on the other side is a figure of Charles VII. in the same attitude as the Pucelle. This night we lay at an inn just without the town of Beaugency and were entertained during the evening by a fat brown talkative landlady and her singing daughter. Monday we saw the gardens of the Chateau de Mesnar belonging to the Marquis de Marigny who succeeded to it upon the death of his sister Madame de Pompadour. The Chateau itself we were not permitted to see; it was shut up in consequence of some impertinence scribbled upon the furniture so that you see we are not the only nation that descends to such polisonnerie. Of all the French chateaux I have seen, this is in its situation, infinitely the finest, it stands upon a high bank of the Loire and overlooks a flat, though populous, country abounding with chateaux. The greater part of the garden consists of vistas meeting in the same centre, and each terminated by a statue; they are all of them modern, and some of them, by an artist of the name of Theodon, appear to have much merit. There is another part of the garden consisting of a dell, covered with wood which is vastly beautiful, in spite of all attempts to spoil it by strait walks and flights of steps. In the course of the day we passed by Blois, a town finely situated upon a high bank, but, within its walls, one of the dirtiest and most melancholy that I have seen; it swarms with English, the names of those who were pensioned at a house in the town (that is had lodging and board) were put into my hand and amongst the rest I found those of Jekyl and Sir Harry Gough. The country now on one side of the river became really beautiful, it consisted of a rock covered with wood and vineyards and nobly interspersed with chateaux and cottages many of the latter were scooped out of the rocks and had an appearance singularly romantic amongst the chateaux. There was one (the chateau de Chaumont) which being situated upon the point of a rock towering above wood, afforded a very magnificent scene. We all lay to-night in the same room at a little village called Vauve."

LORD LEWISHAM to his father, the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1775, September 29. Petit Bois.—"I rejoice with you that your accounts from America are so favorable. The French talk of nothing else but our American dispute and the proceedings of Spain in the Algerine dominions. With regard to the former, they are universally favourable to the Americans. The town of Tours is continually full of soldiers in their way to Nantes where they are to take shipping for St. Domingo, upon the pretence of strengthening the fortress, but in reality (as is imagined) with an eye towards our proceedings in that part of the globe. It seems the fourth battalion of each of the six first regiments is to be sent upon this expedition, amounting in all to about 3000 men. As to the American declaration and their letter to the people of England, I have seen them in the French papers as also letters of the soi-disant patriots, translated from the English papers in which your Lordship has sometimes the honour of being pulled to pieces a little. . . . . . As we are at present situated in the country, we have not a great deal of society: our principal acquaintance is a near neighbour of the Abbé's a Madam de Jancour; she is grand-daughter to the famous Madam de Sevigné and daughter to the lady to whom her letters are addressed. She is a very amiable old lady, and precisely of that kind that you would fall in love with. She has generally in the house with her the Marquis de Beaumont, an old gentleman qui a beaucoup d'esprit. There is also another family in the neigbourhood which we visit; it consists of fifteen people, mostly related to each other who all pay their share in the family establishment. They are very agreeable people, and care very little what is passing about them. Monsieur de la Tour, to whom the house belongs, is the first person that adopted inoculation in France, and his son is the person in the kingdom who was first inoculated. These with the Abbé's relations who are all roturiers at Tours, and not of the first rank, are the principal part of our Society."

Lord Lewisham to his father, the Earl of Dartmouth.

1775, December 10. Hotel d' Angleterre, Rue de Richelieu, Paris.—Congratulates Lord Dartmouth on his promotion and wishes to know whether the privy seal augments considerably the privy purse. "Pray have your Lordship, my Lady, and the numerous progeny escaped the influenza which I understand rages in England? A disease of the same kind has for some time been very general here the chief cure for which is to live à l'angloise i.e., to eat and drink heartily. We have in general escaped it pretty well, my brother has indeed had a slight attack but it will not prevent his setting out for England to-morrow with Sir H. Gough. I hope the custom house officers will not think of undoing his waistcoat if they do they will find it lined with worked shoes for ladies." Has been presented to the Court at Versailles, "though the King of France is a prodigious despot, he has the art to gild the pill, by a vast apparent freedom from restraint. The King of England never appears so much King, as when receiving the homage of his subjects; the King of France, never so little. At Versailles, the Count de Very, the Sardinian Ambassador, desired to be introduced to me. He said that he was an old friend of yours, and begged that I would mention him very particularly, when I wrote to you. He was exceedingly civil and invited me to come sometimes and eat roast beef at his house, in consequence of which, I have since left my name with him. I like him the more, as he seems to be very much of an Englishman; and to be sure, after all, good English manners, with an English heart, are infinitely preferable to the French manners, with that want of sincerity which usually accompanies them."

J. GOOCH to LORD LEWISHAM.

1775, December 20. Christ Church [Oxford].—This evening's papers take notice of a remarkable sickliness at Paris, I hope you escape it, England has felt it universally, no place has suffered more from the influenza than Oxford.

LORD LEWISHAM to his father, the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

[1775] December 22. Paris.—Asks to have interest made with Lord North for Mr. Henderson's parliamentary candidature for Fifeshire.

" In consequence of your last letter, we left our names with the Duke de Nevernois and I received in return a very polite note expressing " la plus grande impatience " to see my brother and myself. Accordingly I waited upon him the next day, and was very politely received. He has since done me the honour to introduce me to Madame la Comtesse de Rochefort and Madame la Marquise de Brancas, and on Tuesday next is to present me to the Duchesse de Cosset, his daughter. All these ladies see company upon certain nights in the week, and when one is once introduced one has regularly the entrée of those houses upon the visiting nights. Stevenson—which I am very sorry for—was mentioned in Lord Carmarthen's letter as my gouverneur, a charge which is here confided to such low people, that the " Gens de condition " do not shew attentions to the travelling tutors vulgo—bear-leaders; so that by that means, Stevenson is unfortunately excluded from those societies for which I am redevable to the Duke de Nivernois. However Mr. Dutens whom we met at Tours, has been kind enough to introduce us both to Madame la Comtesse de Bouffler, a femme savante, who has been in England and is particularly well acquainted with the English literature, and whom we found to be a very agreeable woman. Next week we are to be presented by Mr. Matty the Ambassador's chaplain, a friend to a family of Mr. S.'s from Geneva, which is settled here. I understand that we shall here meet all the Gens de lettres in Paris. I have not yet been able to profit myself of the civility of the Sardinian Ambassador, as he has lately been exceedingly ill of a disease in his bowels attended with a jaundice. However, he is now getting better, so that I shall soon in all probability, have the honor of reckoning him amongst my acquaintance. I expect much pleasure from this connexion, as he appears to me a very worthy man. From this account you will certainly be very much surprised if you find me in the Spring as unlicked a cub as when I left England, so that upon the whole I am not sure that it is politic to have given it you. As for my dancing and fencing, I expect to make something of them before I leave Paris."

RICHARD CHAMPION to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1775, "Cecil Street No. 3."—Is applying to parliament for an extension of the term of his Patent for the manufacture of porcelain resembling the Asiatic and Dresden, which he is working at Bristol. He hopes for the favour of Lord Dartmouth's assistance.

1776, January 1. Petitions of several members of his Majesty's Council and principal gentlemen and inhabitants of Nova Scotia against Francis Legge, esquire, Captain General and Governor in Chief of that Province, with depositions in support of same and on behalf of the Governour.

SIR WILLIAM HAMILTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 16. Caserta.—"The very worthy family of the Boyds, whom your lordship was pleased to recommend to me, have been at Naples some time. To be sure, Lady Boyd is very like Mr. Wilkes, but she has a way of pushing forward that face of hers and filling every muscle of it with good humour, that her homeliness is forgot in a moment. Our having been much here has prevented yet our having contributed as much as we could have wished, to render their stay at Naples agreeable to them, which we have much at heart, both on account of their own merit and the recommendation they brought with them. The young Boyd is as genteel and well behaved young man as any I have seen during my long residence at this Court, and the girls are also well behaved. Sir John has had a severe fit of the gout, and I had the good fortune to keep it from his stomach by giving him a bottle of brandy 60 years old.

"It is singular, but is certainly true, that I am become more a ministre de famille at this court than ever were the ministers of France, Spain, or Vienna. Whenever there is a good shooting party H. S. Majesty is pleased to send for me, and for some months past I have had the honour of dining with him twice or three times a week, nay sometimes I have breakfasted, dined, and supped with their Sicilian Majesties in their private party, without any other minister. Your lordship can easily conceive the footing on which the very visible Court favour I enjoy here, must place me in this country, which renders our stay here very agreeable and enables us to make the sejour of Naples likewise agreeable to our friends. The English are very sensible of their reception at this court, being more distinguished than that of the foreigners of any other nation. I have His Majesty's permission to return to England for a few months, and we shall probably leave Naples by the end of April. My plan is to enjoy the society of my old friends a little, settle my affairs in Wales, where some leases of consequence have dropped, and return quietly to my post here. I hope to be able to compass likewise the honour of being named of the Privy Council, which will be a token of the King's approbation, et me donnera du relief abroad.

"N.B.—I have served longer than Sir William Lynch who has been a Privy Councillor these three years. I most sincerely congratulate your lordship and Lady D. on the very essential addition to your family. I have always thought a daughter would be a much more comfortable family creature than a son. What with schools, university, and launching into different lines of life, your sons will be from you, but the girl will be growing up and in proportion to Lady Dartmouth's growing lazy, will rise into activity, make the tea at breakfast, and in the evening, sing and play (which I am sure your daughter must do well), and in short a thousand other little comfortable circumstances attend a daughter, which may seem trifles, but are very essential to those whose chief comfort is in a domestic life. I rejoice for you, likewise, that you are free from the very ungrateful employment you have been loaded with for some years past. As I have the honour of being a little acquainted with the nature and disposition of the King our worthy master, of Lord North's, and of your lordship's, and to hear such characters represented as revengeful and bloodthirsty, I own has often [put] me out of all patience, and made me reg[ret] much less the having passed so many years out of my own country, when party rage has been carried to such indecent length. There is at present a slight eruption of Mount Vesuvius. I have continued my remarks with constancy and assiduity: you will soon see a proof of my diligence in the researches I have made relative to the volcanoes of this country. A new edition of my letters with additions and 50 coloured plates will, I flatter myself, shew this wonderful operation of Almighty power, in a much clearer light than has ever yet appeared. Such a one is just ready. It is for the benefit likewise of a poor English painter."

JOHN MOORE, for Thomas Broughton, Secretary to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1776, January 23. Hatton Garden.—By order of the Society, enclosing a letter from Sir Harry Trelawny recommending that Lord Dartmouth should be applied to on behalf of Omiah the native of Otaheite whose baptism and instruction has been neglected. Enclosure. —A letter from Sir Harry Trelawny dated from "Dr. Glass', Greenford, near Southall, Middlesex."

Rev. SAMUEL PARR to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH at St. James Square.

1776, February 11.—It has always been his fixed opinion that academical honours should be conferred on those who have distinguished themselves by the observance of academical discipline. Has not the honour of knowing Mr. Villiers, but Lord Dartmouth's recommendation stamps his character.

THOMAS PROCTER to FRANCIS LEGGE, Esquire.

1776, March 6. Cumberland [America]. —"Agreeable to my recruiting instructions I used all diligence in my power for the benefit of that service, all which hath proved ineffectual. I made stay of three days in the different parts of the district of Cobequid in hopes of getting a few volunteers, but found the people very tenacious of preserving what they term their liberty, by not entering into the service as soldiers; some through this principle, and others through fear—either real or feigned—of the rebels paying them a visit in the spring; in consequence of which they say the families of such as are any way concerned with Government will suffer. From thence I proceeded the shortest course over the mountains to Cumberland, where [I] arrived the 8th February and found the people very much dissatisfied and turbulent, and by various reports was informed that they had had several town meetings in different parts of the county and that they had appointed a Committee of Safety—so called—which was for the inspection of all letters sent to Halifax to prevent intelligence of their proceedings, and that from the reports of some incendiary villains, tending to the disadvantage of our King's troops, as that they were totally defeated, and Bunkers Hill retaken by the Americans, which seemed to give general joy through this county, in expression of which a triumphal sleigh drawn by six horses with postillions and a Flag of Liberty went through different parts of the county, and an oration—as they term it—spoke in praise of Liberty, and at their meeting they had invited or notified the Arcadians who sent their representatives to join them and came into their measures determining to oppose Government, whose authority they made a slight of, hinting that it would soon be changed for one more eligible, and many other opprobrious threats and menaces, which, if true, deserves particular notice. It is certain that some of their body have gone off to Machias where they are arrived.

With them are some Arcadians and a Captain Eddy who was the late Deputy Provost Marshal, and a Mr. Samuel Rogers, who is a member of the House of Assembly. Their whole number is fourteen. They made some threats when they went off, viz.: that they would soon return—which I doubt not but they will—and with force sufficient to destroy what persons or property they may choose in these parts, if no force is sent here to oppose them as by what I can learn there is not above ten persons in the county but would join them on their first appearance. Thus, sir, is my expectation of getting recruits in these parts disappointed, and as to proceeding for the Island of St. John the severity of the winter is such, there will not be any possibility of attempting it with safety till the latter end of April from the quantity of ice in the bays, &c. However, I should have tried it, could I have prevailed on anyone to go with me, but even money would not tempt them. I wrote to my brother at Sackville on my first arrival here, in which I slightly mentioned the disturbances here, and desired him to forward it to, or acquaint Captain Barry with its contents. I should have wrote more fully but was cautioned against it, as the Committee of Safety, or their emissaries would intercept it. These various reports and accusations against individuals and the people in general, arise from proceedings before my arrival here, since which, they seem very quiet, and have many of them intreated my interposition and enquiry into the matter, the accusers, etc., but as I have no power to take such a step I have given them for answer, it is the duty of their magistrates. They say they have sought to them for redress and fair trial of their accusers. face to face, but cannot obtain it. How far they may be guilty or innocent, I cannot say, but I firmly believe had some of the people in power here exerted a little spirit, they might have nipped these disturbances in the bud, and have prevented what now seems to threaten rebellion and the effusion of blood. I should have left this place some time since, had I not received advice from Halifax, that on these matters being represented to your Excellency in Council, it was mentioned that I should be ordered to make enquiry into the truth of the complaints against John Allen and Jotham Gay, as abettors and encouragers of rebellion; but not having received any such orders, I shall, with first convenient opportunity, proceed for Halifax where I can more explicitly acquaint your Excellency of these commotions. As Mr. Allen's son seems particularly accused, at his desire, by letter, I have wrote him on that head, which I suppose he will show you. Mr. McLean arrived at Halifax two days since and acquaints me that he believes a party of soldiers will soon be ordered here. Could I depend on this, should tarry till their arrival, as I believe several who are now deterred by fear from acknowledging themselves on Government's side, would then throw off the disguise, and I might succeed in obtaining a few recruits."

R. Molesworth to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1776, April 20. Thornhill Lees.—Asking the grant of "a small pension, or anything else your Lordship could desire" to aid him in his distress. "I was originally entered into my uncle, Lord Molesworth's regiment of dragoons, a cornet before I was sixteen, . . . I was many years presumptive heir to the peerage of Molesworth and very considerable estates . . . . My father served the King in the Irish Parliament for upwards of thirty years. I, myself, was four and twenty years an officer and . . . . . was aid de camp to the Marquis of Lothian. I sold out, at the reduced price, when my increasing family prevented me from being able to bear the expenses of an officer. I am now . . . . given up to the ministry of the Gospel."

"Cob" [James Reynardson?] to Lord Lewisham.

1776, September 6.—The entrance up the Tagus to Lisbon is the most beautiful thing of the kind I ever saw. The remains of the earthquake and fire are visible even among some of their new buildings, the streets and squares of which have merit. "The Praso or grand square containing the Change and other public buildings, is fine, and will when finished be magnificent. At present there is only the front and part of the sides finished, about two stories high, though the whole by means of a façade shews you the design. This scheme was executed last year by the Marquis da Pombala who, willing to show his plan to the King his master, and fearing he might not live to see it executed, proclaimed a gala on the erecting a prodigious fine equestrian statue of the King in bronze when the square was to appear as complete, and it and the whole city illuminated on the occasion for the amusement of el Rey, which was a great thought and must have had a noble effect, particularly as the south front of the Place is open to the Tagus, forming a fine harbour for the shipping near eight miles in breadth, bounded, I think, by the distant hills of Algarva on which were exhibited from the craft all sorts of feu d'artifice. The streets in general, though built upon these hills which are so steep as to make it impossible to travel in anything better than the old calash with mules, are from the nature of the inhabitants who make it a rule to fling everything out and take nothing away, so intolerably dirty and offensive to the nose that I am amazed it does not prove pestilential even paribus minus acutis of the Portuguese themselves who, literally speaking, have no idea of any scavengers except excessive sunshine, wind, and hasty showers. Even when the latter predominates, no good housewife will sweep her filth into the streets. These excellencies, together with their oil and coutinual fryings, render the stench of the town intolerable, to an English proboscis at least.

"Their habits, I mean their outward habits, are entertaining, and the uncommon quantity of hair powdered and pomatomed to the greatest excess, particularly in the males, exhibits clubs, queues, Ramillies, and Boucles (?) beyond the caricature of a Banbury.

"By what little I could observe, I find that the whole race are haughty, not dissembling and revengeful. The nobility, from ignorance and its inseparable companion, pride, unwilling to degrade themselves by associating with any but themselves. The greatest part of the noble and ancient families have nothing left but their pedigrees to feed their pride with, it having been the plan for some time for the King instead of renewing the grants to the successors, to take possession himself, whereby they are rendered very abject and harmless and el Rey considerably aggrandised by his acquisition. This in point of policy may be reckoned the best game. The Minister is, in the meanwhile, not much impoverished but well repaid by his royal master. The Marquis is throughout Portugal the very bugbear to the méchant and sufficient to deter anybody from cutting your throat if you was aware of your enemy, but has not yet, in spite of all precautions, been sufficient to intimidate those who mean to compliment you with their knife in your back. As a proof of which, it is only necessary to add that notwithstanding stillettos and even sharp pointed knives have been interdicted some years by the Marquis, I was informed of twenty-seven open assassinations during my stay there, besides innumerable murders that are never heard of, scarce anyone daring to talk of these accidents in their family, not knowing who may have occasioned them."

Rev. WILL. GILPIN to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1776, September 17. Cheam.—"I had the honour of your lordship's favour by the hand of your three little couriers, and was glad to receive them so well. No hint can be given more obligingly than your lordship's about grammar. In return, I shall give your lordship my sentiments on the subject with great openness. I never had an opinion of my own grammatical abilities. Before I had any thoughts of the mode of life, I used to think it squabbling with dictionaries and grammars, to get at the critical meaning of a word, and the exact investigation of a tense. I liked to read on trusting the context for the sense. But when I came here, I was well aware, that however this might suit a reader, it by no means suited a teacher, and therefore I got as good a grammarian into my school as I could find. Indeed I take Mr. Fleming to be such a man, as I really think he takes great pains. The grammatical deficiency, in my own opinion, lies in my department, at a time when the more critical parts of grammar are wanted. I can take the liberty of speaking very freely to your lordship; because I know I am heard with candour: but to everybody, as well as to your lordship (whom I have thought critical in their ideas) I have always for that reason recommended private tuition, or a public school for a year or two before their boys go to the university. Indeed to say the truth, I never was ambitious of being thought to give the last finishing to a classical education; and have been so often mortified with boys when they come to the age of right and wrong, that I have long wished to have no connection with them. I think, my lord, I may predict better things of yours. Thus far I am persuaded, they are boys of great purity of manners. In their literary abilities, I see your lordship thinks, as I do, that nature has made some difference. Harry has both parts and application; and Edward has as strong sense, and clear a head, as any boy of his age; I wish I could add he was as industrious. I have the happiness to assure your lordship that we are all perfectly well, and have nothing now to distress us, but the apprehension of evils. I wish I could make Mrs. Gilpin a practical convert to that wise doctrine about the 'sufficiency of the evil for the day'; but I am afraid it is not in my power. I have refused several boys this summer; and though I have not yet reduced my school to the number I propose, I have considerably lessened it. I wish I could find that lessening my school, could lessen her anxieties; but I think they grow upon her; and I begin to entertain serious thoughts of giving up this way of life. I do not however talk publicly of it; and it will necessarily be some time before it can possibly be brought about. Of this however, your lordship may be assured, that you shall be acquainted with every step I take. I beg many pardons for troubling your lordship with all this egotism, but I have not time to reduce it into a small compass; and I have already kept your lordship's letter too long by me. The sentiments are what I meant to communicate; the garb your lordship will excuse.

"Your lordship was misinformed about the papers which you honour with an inquiry. They were never put into form; but little more than copied out from my shorthand, which is in truth a miserable character, and in which they would have been lost, even to myself, in a twelvemonths' time. In that condition, Mr. Mason took them with him to Aston. If ever they should be put into form, or in their present dishabille if your lordship chooses it, they shall wait upon you. But I know not when I shall have them. In the mean time, I have other tours lying by me, just as good; which I think I may safely say, no eye but my own, ever saw: one is a tour round the coasts of Kent, and Sussex; the other into Norfolk, &c. If these in their present rough and unadorned state can give your lordship the least amusement, I am sure it will give me great pleasure to blow the dust from them and send them to Sandwell. I suppose if they are sent to your lordship's house in St. James' Square, they will easily from thence find their way into Staffordshire. The subjects of both are tame. Scotland indeed has some animation in it; and in the form in which these are I propose to draw it out likewise. Whenever it becomes legible, your lordship may command the use of it."

JOHN ROBINSON to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1776, October 1. Sion Hill.—"We have no further news, though momentarily expect it. Lord North is anxious to a degree, indeed, more so than I could wish in many things. I was afraid it might hurt him, but, thank God, I trust all that is now over. However, public affairs oppress him much, and among the rest, not a little, Ireland. The appointment of a Lord Lieutenant presses forward apace. He can't succeed for Lord Hillsborough; Lord Rochford will not go, and he has got into a cleft stick about Lord Buckingham. Your lordship fully knows to what this appointment leads. I need not describe it, but shall only say, to everything disgraceful, distressful and baneful, I may add, to him, his friends and his family. He sees it and cannot relieve himself. Indeed, if possible it should be avoided, but he knows not to whom to seek for succour. He has no one that he can send confidentially, connected with him and the thoughts of being driven to acquiesce in the nomination of Lord Buckingham, (who will owe nothing to him, but take it, and with it feel disobligation, from a sense that he is taken of necessity and not of choice) distresses him and harasses his mind much. Lord North talked to me upon it to-day very much. He said you had been named as one proposed to go, but that he did not think your lordship would like it, and therefore he did not mention it when at Sandwell. If he could have supposed that it would be agreeable to your lordship, he certainly would have mentioned it, and it would make him most happy and relieve him, but that unless he knew it was agreeable to your lordship, he could not press it, and he must submit to anything rather than add to his own disagreeable situation by distressing his friends. Thus, my lord, you see the state of Lord North's mind upon this subject. I thought it my duty to state it fairly and candidly to your lordship. You are sensible of the effects it must have to Lord North and all his connections, if Lord B[uckingham] goes. You know the situation of things, and if it is your wish, or it would be agreeable to you, or you could make it so to relieve Lord North, I hope you will permit me to say that I do really believe you would do the most acceptable thing that could be done, at this time and under such circumstances. I trust your lordship will excuse the warmth [with] which I write on this subject, and the freedom I take with your lordship in it. Impute it, my lord, to the anxiety of a mind affected with whatever distresses Lord North, and one who truly has no wish, no views, nor any interest, but for the happiness, comfort, and welfare of those, to whom with a grateful heart he feels himself obliged and attached by ties of gratitude and sincere affection and regard."

JOHN ROBINSON to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1776, Oct. 6. Sion Hill.—"Fearing lest my letter of Monday last may not reach your lordship so soon as the business to which it relates requires, by your being in Yorkshire and Lord North's anxiety increasing as the time for Lord Harcourt's departure advances, Lord North wished me late last night to dispatch a messenger to your lordship to say how much he desires the favour of your speedy answer. It is indeed difficult my lord to convey to you what Lord North feels on this occasion and in the state this business is. It is not from the idea alone of losing his situation, that he is uneasy, for he says, to be well and honourably quit of that, would make him happy, but it is from seeing himself circumvented, and if Lord B[uckingham] is at last to go, disgraced, while kept in a situation the most laborious and which no one will take in the manner he has it; and he says that to be perpetually teasing the king and receiving refusals is so disagreeable to him, that he cannot bear it or think of pressing any more for Lord Hillsborough. To insist on that at this juncture would he thinks be seeming to take an unfair and ungenerous advantage, and that I believe he never will bring himself to do. Thus circumstanced my lord, I write with freedom to you, and I shall only beg leave to add that if your lordship's answer should be favourable to the plan, it will give Lord North the sincerest satisfaction and the truest pleasure."—Marked, Most Private.

The EARL OF DARTMOUTH to LORD LEWISHAM.

1777, February 3. London.—I wish you to be at home by the 14th or 15th of April, though if Parliament should be up as early as we suppose it will, you will not then be in time to take your seat in the House of Commons, of which there seems to me to be great probability that you will at that time be a member. Lord North has proposed to me a seat that you will not dislike and in a manner you will be pleased with, and if it should be vacated in two or three weeks as is likely the whole business will be over without giving you any other trouble than to make a visit to your constituents when you come home. The world here is mad with that new species of wit called Charade.

REV. SAMUEL PARR to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1777, February 4.—"I think it my duty to give your lordship the earliest and most explicit information of a change that is likely to happen in my situation. I have long wished to be fixed under the protection of a regular establishment, and in consequence of those wishes have applied for the mastership of Colchester School, to which I shall probably be elected in the course of this month. My residence however is not expected, till I have with propriety and strict justice to my present employers settled my affairs at Stanmore. I mean to open the school after the Easter holidays, and to introduce nearly the same plan of education that I have pursued at this place. On leaving it I find the most solid satisfaction in reflecting that I cannot charge myself with want of fidelity or diligence, at least in my endeavours to deserve whatever success I have hitherto experienced. For the greater part of that success I sincerely feel and gratefully acknowledge myself indebted to your lordship's support. Believe me, my lord, when I declare to you that your repeated acts of kindness to me will ever command my gratitude and my respect. I shall look back to them with that pure and exalted comfort that an honest mind must feel from the protection of a good man. After the interposition of your lordship in my favour when I settled here, it might seem indecent and even presumptuous to solicit the continuance of a connection that has proved so useful and so honourable to me. On a subject so very interesting I submit myself entirely to your lordship's judgment and absolute determination. Yet you will easily conceive how solicitous I must be to complete the education of a scholar whose virtues and whose attainments are justly dear to me, and I hope to be excused for adding that my best exertions should be united with the best expedients to accomplish that momentous work. This general declaration I make in full reliance on your lordship's candour. If authorized by your express permission, I mean to lay before you a more particular account of my future designs, and especially of such as more immediately concern the improvement of Mr. Legge at his critical time of life."

Rev. SAMUEL PARR to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1777, February 11.—"The letter which I had the honour of receiving from your lordship last Saturday, was in the highest degree flattering to me. I now sit down to give you a more full account, both of the general scheme that I have laid down for the school of Colchester, and of the particular measures that I should, under your lordship's approbation, think advisable for Mr. Legge. The statutes require sixteen boys only to be admitted on the foundation, and forbid the collective number to exceed sixty. I know not how far the trustees may be disposed to recede from the prohibition, nor with my present views am I likely to bring this point to the test; but the limited number of those who are entitled to the privileges of the foundation, was a powerful inducement for me to undertake the school. The mastership has for twenty years past been a sinecure, but upon inquiry, I find that it has not been usual for any boys to be sent to the grammar school, unless such as were of more genteel families, and intended for some liberal profession. There is, happily both for the town and the master, another institution where the children of lower people are instructed in such inferior branches of knowledge, as are more suited to their station and conducive to their advantage. The boarders I intend, at least for two years, not to exceed twenty. The school is placed in a more remote part of the town, and I intend to assign particular spots and particular times for the boys to go out. The custom of two dinners, which took its rise at Dr. Sumner's from accidental want of room to accommodate all the forms, and which Mr. Heath has, I think, judiciously suppressed, I mean to discontinue, and to retain only the privilege of a distinct supper for those boys who are in the highest class. Mrs. Parr and a writing assistant, to whose care the lower boys will be constantly entrusted out of school, will attend the dinners. Studies will be built as at Stanmore, and only one single room can be spared in the present situation of the house, which, however, will be properly repaired before I go to it. I am not without hopes of obtaining a yet larger and more elegant house belonging to the master's estate, should I be able to set aside a lease, the terms of which are very injurious and the validity disputable. The negligence, or rather the bodily infirmities of the late master, I consider as eventually advantageous to me, since I am exposed to no incumbrance from precedents I might wish to remove. I am by these means left at liberty to pursue even in the minutest particulars such a system of education as I approve, nor do I think it necessary to make any great change from my present scheme, either in the choice of books, or the manner of teaching them. In respect to Mr. Legge I have with great pleasure observed the expansion of his mind, and his increasing curiosity after knowledge; his lessons are performed with accuracy, and I find his compositions arrived at some pitch of elegance and taste. If he should pursue the same plan of study with the same degree of application, I have no doubt but your lordship's most favourable expectations will be fully answered. Private instruction I think highly necessary for him, both to confirm and extend the knowledge which he requires in the general train of business, to preserve the habit of reading, to multiply the objects on which it is employed, and above all to correct and refine his ideas of composition. This task I would gladly undertake myself, and from the nature of my designs at Colchester I shall be far more at leisure to attend to it than I can be at Stanmore. Your lordship will excuse me for mentioning that my terms for private tuition are distinguished from Mr. Roderick's, only a guinea per annum, and his were four guineas. By standing in this near relation to Mr. Legge, it will, I hope, be in my power to forward his improvement in classical learning and to provide neither unprofitable nor disagreeable employment for his hours out of school. To this account your lordship will give me leave to add, that no attention would be wanting either on Mrs. Parr's part to the preservation of his health, or on my own to the regulation of his morals."

"Elizabeth calling herself Duchess of Kingston" to Lord Lewisham.

1777, February 13.—Is sorry that Lord Lewisham, Mr. Legge, or Mr. Stevenson should have had an uneasy moment when calling upon her. Desires to see Lord Lewisham about her journey.

Rev. J. Parsons to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1777, February 15. Birmingham.—"I understand that there has been a petition presented to the House of Commons for leave to bring in a bill to license a theatre at Birmingham. I need not say anything to your Lordship upon the propriety or impropriety of such a business, as I am conscious that you will view it in its proper light, and consider it as a thing which must be productive of idleness and dissipation. But I have the satisfaction to inform your Lordship that the greatest part of the inhabitants are very averse to such a measure and dread the licensing of a theatre as an evil which they would wish to prevent, and from your wonted kindness to this town and its interests, I have presumed to beg the favor of your Lordship to oppose the passing of such a bill into a law."

Papers attached to the letter.—"14 April, 1777.—The sense of the inhabitants who pay to church and poor having been taken since the first instant, on the following question—'Are you for a theatre being licensed in the town of Birmingham, or not?' the numbers stand as follows:—

Number of inhabitants who pay rates - - -	2449
Against a licensed theatre - - - - -	1468
For a licensed theatre - - - - -	124
Neuter - - - - - - -	192
Not at home when called upon - - - -	665

"Reasons against the passing of any bill for licensing a theatre in Birmingham.

"Inter alia, Because it will subject the inhabitants of Birmingham to the painful necessity of admitting players into the town, whether agreeable or disagreeable to the people; as there will then remain no power, either to the inhabitants or Civil Magistrate, to prevent their coming to act, or to correct any abuse which may arise from their acting. Because it is supposed that the practice of forcing playhouse tickets upon dependent workmen, as part of their wages, will increase in a very great degree, when such practice cannot be suppressed by a removal of the players who promote it."

Rev. J. PARSONS to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1777, February 24. Birmingham.—"I cannot but return your Lordship my most sincere thanks for the honor of your letter, and also for the kind part, which you are so obliging as to take with respect to the licensing of a theatre at Birmingham. I have, since I troubled your lordship upon this business, enquired very minutely into the motives for an attempt of this nature. The advocates for the scheme, offer different things in support of it. Some say, that the town of Birmingham is of that consequence, that it ought to have in it a place of public spectacle established by authority, as well as Manchester, and other towns, perhaps of far less note. But I presume, that it never can, or will be, considered, as a reason why Birmingham, contrary to the consent of the major part of its inhabitants, should be obliged to have a licensed theatre, because Manchester and other places have had one in compliance with their own wishes and desires. But others allege, that it is better to have one licensed theatre than two which are not so. And indeed it is too true, that, during a few months in the two last summers, there were two play-houses permitted to be opened in this town. And perhaps it may appear that, during the contest between rivals in interest and profession, some bad practices existed on each side. These bad practices, say the friends to the intended scheme, will be prevented by a royal theatre. But in this, I think, they are mistaken. For if the mischiefs complained of, are not prevented by a greater power, how are they to be prevented by a less one? At present, we have a power not only of curing the disorders, but of removing the causes of them; and, therefore, if these persons were in earnest about effecting a cure, they ought not to be less so in the application of a proper remedy. But I fear, it is their intention to bring upon us the plague, under a notion or pretence of curing two pimples, which will die away of themselves, but if not, may at any time be removed by having recourse to those salutary laws, which were made for the correction of those and such like evils. And besides, it is observable that most of the people, (who signed the petition in favour of a licensed playhouse) of fortune and credit, are proprietors of such play-house, and therefore they perhaps may be fairly allowed to be influenced a little by their own interest; nay, some of them have owned to me that they signed such petition because they were proprietors. Such seems to me to be the nature of the case in dispute, but I am sensible that your lordship will view the evil tendency of such pernicious plan in every light, which it ought (sic). Many persons in this place have written to their friends in the House of Commons for their assistance in order to defeat the intended project. And we have received assurances, from some, of their friendly aid in this matter. But on the other hand, we are assured that there is an exertion of almost every nerve by Mr. Yates and his partisans, in favour of his plan. And we are sorry to find that Sir Henry Bridgeman is amongst the number, who was heretofore supposed to be a friend to the interests of this town. I have written to Lord Guernsey and Mr. Finch, but I rather fear that they may have listened too much to some previous applications made to them in favour of Mr. Yates. And if any credit may or can be given to common fame Lord Lyttelton will give Mr. Yates every assistance in his power. I have been desired by many persons in Birmingham to write thus fully to your lordship, and beg the favour of you to be so kind as to give us instruction, if necessary, how to proceed, provided Yates' bill should pass the House of Commons; and I am, in their names, also to request of you the acceptance of their warmest acknowledgments for your good services in this business, which is considered to be of great importance to this town and its interests."

Rev. John Newton to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1777, March 3. Olney.—" Mr. Madan informed me a few [days] ago, that he had visited unhappy Dr. Dodd, three times at his desire and that he had hopes he was in a frame of spirit suitable to his situation. But an expression or two in his speech when upon trial (if genuine) and his address to his friends in the last London Chronicle, do not fully confirm the hopes which Mr. Madan's account had raised in me. When I first became acquainted with the religious world, Dr. Dodd seemed to bid fair for being a useful minister of the Gospel. I know little of his history since he was at West Ham; but I suppose the fear of men or the desire of their favor, turned him from that good way in which he set out. He loved the present world, and, alas! what has been the event."

Granville Sharp to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1777, March 22. Old Jewry.—" I have the honour to enclose the extracts from Prynne which I promised to your Lordship, relative to the examples of joint elections for all the knights, citizens, and burgesses of some particular counties, at one time and place for each county respectively and which I humbly proposed as precedents from whence some wholesome regulations might be adopted for the reduction of the enormous inequality of Parliamentary Representation at present enjoyed by the petty venal boroughs to the manifest injury of the counties and great cities, and, indeed, to the extreme danger of the whole state, by facilitating parliamentary corruption, and depriving the King of the faithful disinterested counsels and genuine sentiments of the nation, which alone can insure the safety and dignity of the Crown."

Matthew Boulton to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1777, March 22. Soho [Birmingham].—" As your Lordship will probably have observed my name annexed to a petition to Parliament in favour of licensing a playhouse at Birmingham, and as I shall always be diffident of my own judgment, when it doth not accord with your lordship's, I beg permission to communicate to you my reasons for thinking that one licensed theatre will be eligible to the town. If we have not one house established by authority, I know we shall continue to be pestered with two, which being more than the place can support, necessitates the losing party to have recourse to various stratagems for putting off their tickets, at any rate, even at half price, and from this result many evils to apprentices and the lower class of people. Hence it is self-evident that while we have two houses uncontrolled, this grievance will continue; whereas, I am convinced, that one licensed house open for four months only in the year, and under the direction of twenty inhabitants of respectable character in Birmingham, would produce a quite contrary effect. All well regulated states have found it expedient to indulge the people with amusements of some kind or other, and certainly those are most eligible that tend to improve the morals, the manners or taste, of the people, and at the same time prevent them from relapsing into the barbarous amusements which prevailed in this neighbourhood in the last century, when Birmingham was as remarkable for good forgers and filers as for their bad taste in all their works. Their diversions were bull-baitings, cock-fightings, boxing matches, and abominable drunkenness with all its train. But the scene is now much changed; the people are more polite and civilized, and the taste of their manufactures greatly improved. There is not a town of its size in Europe, where mechanism is brought to such perfection, and we have also made a considerable progress in some of the liberal arts; which hath been the means of extending our trade to the remotest corners of the world. I have frequently given my designers, painters, and modellers, tickets to the play, in order to improve them in those arts by which they are to live and gain reputation, and I have found my account in it. Your lordship, I presume, will allow that it is impossible for a person to paint or model an attitude or a passion which he never saw well expressed, nor can any such artist arrive at any degree of elegance without advantages of this sort. Of late years, Birmingham hath been visited much in the summer season by persons of fashion, and it is some inducement to prolong their stay when their evenings can be spent at a commodious airy theatre. This is a fact I mention from experience, and it is certainly our interest to bring company to Birmingham, as it contributes much to the public good, not only from the money they leave behind them, but from their explaining their wants to the manufacturers themselves, and from their correcting the taste and giving hints for various improvements which nothing promotes so much as an intercourse with persons from different parts of the world. The town of Birmingham hath been much agitated upon this matter, but I have taken no active part myself, any further than by signing the petition. There are one or two gentlemen of a contrary opinion that have been exceedingly fierce and active in procuring names to a counter petition which, I have reason to believe, doth not give the general sense of the town."

Dr. JOHN ASH to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1777, April 3. Birmingham.—In the name of the Trustees for the Hospital, thanks Lord and Lady Dartmouth for their ample benefaction. Hopes soon to obtain the sum of 2,500*li.*, the amount of the estimate for completing and furnishing the house. Has already got more than 2,000*li.* Is much obliged to Lord Dartmouth for recommending the design to Lord Clarendon and Lord Warwick. The season is at hand to finish the work, and a contribution from any noble minds at this time would be doubly useful to it.

"I shall send your lordship in the most open manner, my real sentiments of the Birmingham playhouse bill, the opinion of the town in general of it, and a history of my conduct in the business. The first rumour of the petition being presented, threw the town into the greatest confusion and hurry, and every man seemed ready to take up his pen to write his name against it. The free spirit of this place showed a total aversion, in general, to a patent playhouse ; and the accounts we had received from Manchester and Liverpool, where they have such houses, confirmed us in the opinion, that they are highly prejudicial in large and populous towns, especially manufacturing ones ; where the masters on the solicitations of their correspondents force tickets on their workmen instead of money, which they are obliged to sell at a half or a less price to buy bread ; and where the house is licensed, the players are no longer subject to the control of the magistrate. On this principle I entered into this public business, and with cheerfulness and alacrity signed the petition against the bill. In a few days after this, Mr. Yates came down, was surprised at the general opposition to the bill ; was all compliance to bring in the bill in any form that should be agreeable to the town, to restrain it to three or four months, and whatever other restrictions should be recommended to him. These proposals softened the violence of some more moderate men, and as he came to me often on the business, I listened to him with some attention, and told him, if these proposals should meet with the approbation of the town, I should certainly acquiesce with them, although I still was of opinion that no patent should be had in this place. On his return to London, I suppose, with a view to flatter me, or other reasons best known to himself, he told every person to whom he thought that I might be known, that now I approved of the bill, with the restrictive clauses. I told him that I should certainly acquiesce, if the restrictive clauses could be put into the bill, but that I find cannot be done. And the principal motive I had for this acquiescence was not in approbation of a patent in any shape, but as the most ready way to get rid of the other play-house ; for two playhouses are two of the greatest nuisances in such a place as this ; not to say anything on the subject, whether playhouses in general are not contra bonos mores. It will certainly be difficult in so large a place, precisely to ascertain the majority of the inhabitants, whose opinion ought to have the greatest weight, who are against the bill. I may say to your lordship, and I believe with the greatest truth, that there are four to one, at the least. But an accurate account is taking, and I believe to be printed, if so, your lordship may depend on having a copy sent to you : and in confirmation of my real sentiments, I signed a petition against the bill, ten days ago, that is intended to be presented to the House of Lords, if the bill should pass the House of Commons. I most sincerely congratulate you and Lady Dartmouth on the happy recovery of your two youngest children under inoculation, and both of you and the kingdom in general on the happy re-establishment of Lord North's health."

"THE GENTLEMEN OF BIRMINGHAM" (Rev. J. Parsons, John Kettle, William Russell, Thomas Russell, Jonathan Grundy, Francis Goodall, D. Winwood, John Goodall, E. W. Patteson, Brooke Smith, Sampson Lloyd, Sampson Lloyd, junior, Charles Lloyd, Thomas Price, John Cope) to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1777, April 14. Birmingham.—"We have presumed to trouble your Lordship again on the business of the Birmingham playhouse bill, begging your Lordship's assistance, in the defeat of a project which threatens such great and lasting evils to the town of Birmingham. We think it proper to inform your lordship that far the greater part of the inhabitants of this town, who pay rates to the support of church and poor, are, as you will see, from the enclosed account, exceedingly against the intended licence, and very much wish to prevent it. The few that favour the scheme are either mostly interested proprietors of the playhouse, which they pray may be licensed, or persons nearly connected with them, and therefore may possibly behold the matter through a wrong medium. And though it is said that we have had two playhouses, against law, heretofore, we can assure your Lordship, that, as far as in us lies, there will not be two, against law, hereafter, and therefore that we may not be under the painful and disagreeable necessity of having one established by law, against our consents, we do humbly beg your lordship's aid to frustrate a thing, so big with mischief, as a licensed theatre in the town of Birmingham."

"GENTLEMEN OF BIRMINGHAM" (Rev. J. Parsons, John Rose Holden, and Thomas Price) to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1777, May 3. Birmingham.—"We, as well as many others, think ourselves under great obligations to your Lordship, for your kind assistance, in effecting the defeat of Mr. Yates's playhouse bill, which, if it had passed into a law, we have every reason to suppose, would have been productive of much evil to the town of Birmingham."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1777, July 3. Olney.—"While I was writing the carrier brought me a box in good time to thank your Lordship by this opportunity for the books, which you may depend upon being carefully forwarded according to direction, when we have read them, in which we will make all due dispatch. Mr. Cowper joins me in thanking your Lordship for the sight of them, as also for the receipt, which had we possessed it sooner might have saved the lives of some of my poor trees now, alas! almost eaten up by insatiable insects."

T. PELHAM to [LORD LEWISHAM].

1777, December 22. Vienna.—"I am not surprised at your being so much smitten with Madame Albani; she is a most voluptuous woman, and as your uncle was persuaded to drink prosperity to the Americans, you might have been forgiven for creating a little pretender.

"Your friend Madame Thun is surrounded with English bulls who prevent us half starved Italians from approaching her; however, I have contrived to present your compliments and enforced your reproaches which she promises no longer to deserve, I do not remember your mentioning any feats of activity being performed at her house. This year we have instituted a Sadler's Wells. There is a Hanoverian Baron one our well-beloved subject who walks upon his head as being, I suppose, the heavier end; there are other gentlemen equally expert in different exercises."

W. LEGGE to LORD LEWISHAM.

1778, January 6. All Souls [Oxford].—You have been nominated one of the Stewards for the Lichfield Races next year, I was forced to act for you as your vice and by dint of dunning I made a collection of 103*li*. for next year's plates.

SIR W. H[AMILTON] to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1778, February 17. Naples.—"On Thursday last we had the pleasure of receiving Lord Lewisham in perfect health, and I gave him the letter you sent me enclosed for him, with several others that had been directed to his lordship here. As there was a Festino at court that night, I dashed him at once into the thick of the Neapolitan nobility, and after having passed some time quietly at Rome, he seemed to be struck with the life and gaiety of Naples. But I see already that he has too good a taste to be struck with the Neapolitan ladies; who, from a total neglect of education, are as ignorant and awkward as possible. We have entreated Lord Lewisham and Mr. Stevenson to give us as much of their company as they can, and we hope they are pleased in complying with our request, as I do assure you we have the greateat satisfaction in their society. I will defer telling you exactly what I think of Lord Lewisham till I have seen more of him, but as yet I can not find the least fault in him, except that his outside is a little too fat. Mr. Stevenson seems to be as proper a companion for a young man as any I have ever seen in that situation. The Carnival here, which will be by far the most brilliant in Italy, has drawn together all the foreign travellers, and as my house is well known throughout Europe, all bring me letters, and of course pass much of their time with Lady H. who never stirs out of an evening. The sensible and sedate, soon tired of the noisy Neapolitan conversations, take refuge with us, and indeed, I know of no other true society at Naples. We have at present some Germans, Russians, Dutch, Poles, &c. of high distinction and of good education, which with a mixture of some few Italians of learning and education that have found the benefit of our society, produce some most interesting conversations interspersed with anecdotes of their respective countries, which is often highly entertaining and instructive. I flatter myself as I direct Lord Lewisham in his tour to the curious spots in this country, rich with monuments of antiquity, and great operations of nature, both of which he seems to have a great taste for, he will pass his mornings agreeably, and as to the evenings he is sure of as many balls, operas, conversations, as he can find time to go to, but I dare say we shall soon see him take refuge at the end of evening in our coterie. I always, as a duty, shew myself in the great world, but live chiefly at home; but it is very right and natural that a young man should be in the thick of the amusements. However he told me that he was very sick of the masquerade, the other night, which, though very magnificent, he thought very stupid. I have often wondered the Italians who are surely lively enough out of mask, should be so devoid of all humour in mask. I never yet saw a well supported character at a Neapolitan masquerade. How differently are you employed in London! I mostly heartily wish, as all parties seem to be tired of this horrid war, that some accommodation may prevent the necessity of another campaign."

LORD HARDWICKE to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1778, February 18. "In return for the marks of attention I have received from you, I beg leave to send your Lordship the print of a Gothic Chateau—a ruin, which I have erected at Wimpole. Perhaps the views may strike you as no bad contrast between ancient and modern times. They are by a friend, I furnished the hint. I am, as a companion to this antique,—engraving a modern Italian loggia, which I have set up at Wimpole, under the auspices of Mr. Stewart. It shall be sent your Lordship when finished. These arrangements are as edifying—certainly more pleasant—than those which have sometimes been the subject of your correspondence. I shall therefore cultivate them in future, more than the others."

Rev. H. Zouch to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1778, February 24. Sandal.—"It being the duty of every man, however inconsiderable in himself, to use his endeavours in the support of the constitutional authority of his country and most of all in the crisis of public necessity, your Lordship will pardon the liberty I now take of trusting a hint or two to your Lordship's consideration. The number of alehouses, which are now kept in every part of the kingdom, with the variety of ills attending them, call loudly for a reformation, they are indeed the great burthen of my office, both as a clergyman and a magistrate, and they are an increasing mischief and perhaps without a remedy. It is highly proper that these open receptacles of idleness and vice, as they cannot be restrained, should in some way or other be rendered more contributory to the public weel, and how can this be more effectually done, than by an additional charge upon their licences, if the half, or third part, nay even double, was to be added, it would be a considerable augmentation to the revenue, it might be collected at the same expense, the person in effect and not the commodity would be charged. Malt being now reduced in price, the same quantity and strength of liquor is sold at the same rate. It seems to be a tax, that would be paid without a murmer, excepting by those, who are immediately interested and to whom little regard is due, and in some places very probably, it might tend to throw the business into more orderly hands.

"There is, my Lord, another most intolerable nuisance, of which every one complains, and everyone complains in vain. I mean the continual increase of the breed of every species of dogs, and which nothing but a tax can possibly remove. The shepherd and the butcher, the lady with her lap dog, and the idle gentleman with his spaniel at his heels will hardly scruple a small annual tribute for an useful, or a favourite animal.

"From that time and expense which is dedicated to the preservation and pursuit of the game, the qualified sportsman of England will find their account in a reduction of the number of dogs, and which will of course also diminish the number of night hunters and poachers of every denomination. The certain prevention of the dreadful deaths from canine madness by the introduction of a law of this sort, will justify every attempt to promote it.

"But I am ashamed of this intrusion upon your Lordship, yet I cannot forbear to intimate that the calamities which have been silently and slowly approaching, seem now to be thickest upon this kingdom, and must create very uneasy feelings in the minds of cool and dispassionate men.

"Hath Providence entered into a controversy with the land? or what grounds have we to hope for the interposition of the supreme Agent."

Sir Edward Newenham to [the Earl of Dartmouth.]

1778, March 5. Belcamp—"What I mentioned in some former letters to your Lordship is now apparent; the spirits of a certain class of men are openly expressed by repeated declarations. Their insolence rises upon the arrival of every French mail. I submit it to your Lordship that a good body of troops be immediately sent into the southern parts of this kingdom, or at least, all the remains of General Burgoyne's army should be landed here."

Sir Edward Newenham to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1778, April 21. Belcamp.—"Having attended the present election for the City of Kilkenny, I was both eye and ear witness to the temper and wishes of certain men; therefore we ought to be more and more on our guard. The tunes their pipes played and the toasts they gave, were as good evidence as if given under their hands. The declarations of the younger females, who have not as yet learned political hypocrisy, were as bold as in former times.

"I have by agreement, prevailed upon Mr. William Knaresborough, eldest son of that ancient Romish family, to conform, upon promise of a pair of colours. In consequence, I yesterday wrote to Lord North for a commission, but I fear success, as few requests are made except for private advantage, and his Lordship may neglect it on that ground; if he does he will do wrong, where he may do essential service to his Majesty and this kingdom. However, I have done my duty, and given my reasons for so doing, and time will shew it.

"I proposed and carried the address in this county, which no man or interest could do, except myself. It was the first address to his Majesty, and it is the only one in which the county representatives are mentioned. It was voluntary and unsolicited. I took that arduous task."

Sir Edward Newenham to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1778, May 1. Belcamp.—Desires to give "a serious and honest hint to the British Ministry" which if neglected they will be sorry very sorry for it. Recommends that the Dublin Paving Bill never be returned "to this Kingdom, if it does the consequences will be disagreeable and that union and cordiality which I have lately settled will be dissolved." He is almost unable to hold a pen having sat up six nights with Lady Newenham who is ill.

Sir Edward Newenham to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1778, May 15. Belcamp.—Has delayed answering his Lordship's letter to enable him to give a true account of the great meeting held in the City of Dublin on Monday last, to consider of some mode to relieve the manufacturers said to be out of employment.

"The meeting was very numerous and attended by many members of the House of Commons, particularly those styled the friends of Government. Large subscriptions were immediately opened to provide provisions for those out of employment. I did not oppose the plan, lest I should appear single amidst thousands. However, I refused to subscribe, and find my private opinion agrees with that of the Speaker, the Provost, and others of our ablest Commons, whom I consulted upon the subject; for they do not approve of the subscription in money as they will not return to work while they can be maintained for nothing, and it is a dangerous precedent at this critical juncture, and may extend its baleful influence through the north. The Provost informed me this morning that he had set on foot a subscription for every Collegian (300) to buy two suits of Irish cloth. I know my private opinion (as to my name only) will be kept secret by your Lordship, though I have no objection to Lord North, singly, knowing my name, therefore I freely give it to your Lordship, viz. :—I do not think the manufacturers so extremely distressed as some represent them. I own they are somewhat distressed and may be more so, if some advantages are not given to their trade. I fear that some men inimical to our sovereign and establishment in Church and State have spurred on the lowest of the people to throw them into that habit of idleness which renders them ready engines for any desperate purpose or sudden tumult; for, like the Swiss, they will fight for the first that pays them best. I also fear that disorders will soon arise; I speak this as my private opinion. We certainly want some advantage for our woollen trade, as that and credit are much sunk here; besides, my Lord, I know the opinions of intelligent men, that whenever peace shall be restored between us and America, emigrations will desolate this nation and men of rank and fortune will join in them. Two banks and nineteen merchants breaking in ten days have made a great hiatus in our little domestic trade and credit. Mr. Birch, a member of the House of Commons, and noted as a perjured villain, and convicted before Parliament of the altering public Bank accounts and recorded in those characters upon the Journals of Parliament—first began the train of bankruptcy. This public nuisance and national curse, with only a small capital, kept a little grocer's shop and sold spirits by retail. Having increased his capital by an increase of his villainy, he set up for a discounter of notes, then a purchaser of estates, by giving annuities during the then possessor's lives, viz. :—the late Lord Kingsland's (but I hope the present Lord, nephew to Lord Fauconberg will soon regain his birthright), George Ogle, William Doyle, Esquires, Mr. Gerards and several others. This scheme obliging him to pay larger annual sums than double his income, induced him to pass notes and drafts; striving to gain more, he gamed high; but having lost a thousand pounds to a gentleman, he gave a draft for it, which, being refused, the run on banks and merchants became general. This was the real origin of our present distress in the commercial line. I long much to see the present Lord Kingsland, for, from an intimacy of twenty years with his late uncle, I am enabled to give him some instructions tending to recovering his right. I should have wrote to him, but I do not know where he lives in England."

Sir Edward Newenham to [Lord Dartmouth].

1778, May 16. Belcamp.—Enclosing an account of the proceedings at the meetings held for the relief of the manufacturers. He hopes it may answer the good end of the donors, but has fears that all will end in riot and confusion. "This day, I had a letter from Cork, which mentions a great spirit arising in regard to raising troops for their own defence, though the militia bill is not passed, nor have they any law for it; however they dread their own popish mob. How will your Lordship be surprised at the following fact, which I relate upon my own knowledge. The small castle called Shiddy's Castle in the main street in the City of Cork, entirely surrounded by and joined to some houses, is one of the magazines where the gunpowder is kept, and not more than one sentinel is ever placed there. Besides it is in the popish quarter of that popish city. The present governor, Mr. Lysaght, is not very qualified for that office; it ought to have been given to some old veteran."

SIR EDWARD NEWENHAM to [the EARL of DARTMOUTH].

1778, May 19. Belcamp.—"I much fear my suspicions which I hinted in my last to your Lordship, will prove too true unless some bills and extension of trade are immediately granted to this Kingdom. Great matters arise from trifling causes; the first person who struck off the working manufacturers was a Mr. Reynolds, a noted and violent papist; he lives in Ash Street, in the city of Dublin. By way of eminence he is styled audaciously the great God of Ash Street. His power and influence among the lower order is amazing, and if nature ever formed a complete counterpart of St. Ignatius, he is the man. His art (sic) begun the cry, and the chase is now become general. I hope it may not take too serious a turn.

"Those towns in Britain that opposed the bills will first feel the weight of associations here, which may shortly be formed, and recent melancholy examples will dictate the wording of them. Enthusiasm will cement the bond, and those heretofore unanimous will become divided. As a friend to both countries I sincerely regret the introductions of those Bills unless they receive the Royal assent. Could I devise a mode to accomplish so desirable an object, I would hazard much to obtain it, but that can only be done by his Majesty's servants in England. Our Viceroy began this cursed subscription of ready money for meat and drink, worked upon by the intriguing Dean Woodward. This man will make a job of it, by handing over part of it to his favourite wholesale woollen drapers, as a bounty to them for laying in a stock of cloth. This subscription, my lord, can only give meat and drink for a few weeks; the opulent subscribers will retire when Parliament is prorogued, to their distant counties, and those who have been charitably fed for 40 days will not peaceably sit down to work for the succeeding months. It is giving the sanction of charity to confirmed idleness. Balls given at the Castle and to appear in Irish manufactures would do more than 4,000*li.* in meat and drink. I wish your Lordship, or some person equally inclined to take the advice of independent men, was now here. Lord Buckinghamshire with, I believe, good intentions, has been misinformed and led astray by designing men, some (and I could name three in particular) of whom have made popularity a ladder to his confidence, and others, under the mask of charity and religion, have made these heavenly virtues subservient to worldly gain.

"Was I of consequence sufficient, or placed near the throne, I would advise an instant extension of our woollen manufacture and I would safely pledge my honour and my life that my king and country would be benefitted, and altercations dissonant to unanimity would be avoided. Your Lordship might seek for information, Lord North might direct the best to be laid before the Council, but that cannot be obtained, in such cases, by the channel of office, for there truth is blinded with self-interest; nor can it be obtained from the majority of those styled the opposition. Those only are to be relied upon who could approach the altar and swear that they would not accept of place or any emolument for their aid and advice.

"Our House meets on Friday and some resolutions are preparing in case Great Britain refuse the bills. If any resolutions should then be tendered, they will be carried, and the whole kingdom will catch the flame; then nothing remains but the British Parliament to sit long enough to pass some favourable laws." . . . .

"Pardon the bad writing and literary errors in this letter as I am scarce able to hold a pen after three days pruning trees; an operation I never let my gardener perform."

LORD BARRINGTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1778, June 6. Cavendish Square.—Acquainting Lord Dartmouth with the election of his son Lord Lewisham as Member of Parliament for Plymouth.

LORD BARRINGTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1778, July 13. Cavendish Square.—If Lord Barrington was in the situation of Lord Lewisham, his answer would be, "That he has no objection to the payment of twenty pounds in case the Mayor [of Plymouth] thinks it proper that an addition should be made to the compliment, which has been made heretofore at Elections. But that he leaves that matter entirely to the determination of the Mayor and such gentlemen as he shall please to consult on the occasion."

Rev. SAMUEL PARR to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1778, August 2. Colchester.—Giving a character of Mr. Legge at his school and requesting Lord Dartmouth's interest for his election as Master to Norwich School.

Rev. WILLIAM GILPIN to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1778, August 17. Vicars Hill.—This place is at present growing into some repute. Many families which like privacy prefer Lymington to Southampton. Among others, Lord Warwick and his family are here.

THOMAS JENKINS to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1778, September 2. Rome. — Stating that by Lord Lewisham's instructions he has forwarded cases containing portrait of Lord Lewisham, prints and plants.

Enclosing :—Account of disbursements on behalf of Lord Lewisham amongst other items. For a ring with a cameo. To the gardener of Prince Borghese for plants. "Paid Mr. Sydelham for a drawing, 10 seq. 20.50. To Pompeo Battoni for the remainder of Lord Lewisham's portrait, 155.00."

Dr. W. WATSON to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1778, September 12. Lincoln's Inn Fields.—Requesting that Lord Dartmouth will allow his name to be put forward as successor to Sir John Pringle for the presidency of the Royal Society.

NEVIL MASKELYNE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1778, September 22. "Royal Observatory at Greenwich."—"Your lordship is doubtless apprised, were it only by the public prints, that Sir John Pringle means to resign the office of president of the Royal Society on the Anniversary election at St. Andrew's day next. I can add, that, about a fortnight ago, he declared that resolution at a council which he had summoned on purpose, without any person being then mentioned either by himself or any other member of the council, as eligible to succeed him. It was, doubtless, his intention not merely to pay a compliment to the council, but rather to give the members an opportunity of enquiring after a proper person to fill the President's chair, and to make an opening for some person of distinguished rank and character, like your Lordship, to offer their service to the Royal Society on the day of their Anniversary election. There is no person, who publicly declares himself as aspiring to the Chair; so that it is entirely open; and from conversations which I have had with several fellows of the Society on the propriety, and even necessity, of prevailing on some nobleman to honour us by accepting the office of President, it appears to me that they are waiting for such an event, which would at the same time do most honour to the Society, and be most advantageous to science; for, without rank in the chair, the Society itself will not be so much respected and obtain that éclat, either at home or abroad, which so useful an institution deserves; nor will the great end of the Society, the promotion of Science, be carried on with so much vigour, since it is well known, that without the protection of the great, the Arts and Sciences will always fade and languish. Your Lordship, I flatter myself, will not be surprised, after what I have advanced, not without good grounds, of the sentiments of a great part of the Royal Society, at my declaring myself one of many who earnestly wish your Lordship would do us the honour to give us leave to mention your name to the fellows of the Society at large, and canvass them, in order to your nomination to be elected President of the Royal Society on November 30th next. At present (although I have mentioned your Lordship's name at a distance, to many fellows of the Society, and found it always received with the utmost respect and attention), yet, out of regard to your Lordship's delicacy, I have only apprised a very few gentlemen of this address to your Lordship, viz., Mr. Daines Barrington, Dr. Shepherd, Mr. Walsh, Dr. Warren, and Mr. Wegg, Vice-President and Treasurer of the Society. We are fully satisfied, that if your Lordship would but permit us to name you to our Brethren of the Society, even without your Lordship appearing at all in it yourself, if you did not choose it, that there would not be the least difficulty or obstacle to the gratification of our wishes, and the fixing your Lordship in the President's chair on the day of the election. We are the more induced to indulge our hopes that your Lordship will honour us by acceding to our wishes, from the consideration that your Lordship once actually accepted the office of President before Sir John Pringle was nominated, and only declined afterwards on account of the engagements of a busy office which your Lordship then held—that of Secretary of State for the American Department; which however having long since resigned, your Lordship is now at leisure to accept an honourable office with some share of business. We expect, in about a twelvemonth, to take possession of the new and magnificent apartments which his Majesty has been pleased to give us in the new erection on the old site of Somerset House, which will be more agreeable to your Lordship, as well as the Society, than our present incommodious crowded house; and where we may expect to have our meetings attended by more persons of rank and quality than heretofore. If the usual hours of the meetings of the Society should be less convenient to your Lordship, they might be altered either to a later hour, or to one before dinner. And when it might not be convenient to your Lordship to attend at all, the chair might be taken for the time by a Vice-President, who is always of the President's nomination.

G. W. KEMPSON [to LORD LEWISHAM].

1778, November 4. Whitehall.—The principal conversation here is upon Sir Hugh Palliser's letter. It is, no doubt, a very extraordinary proceeding and beneath the dignity of a commanding admiral, for, having made a long appeal to the public in a very irregular way, he concludes his letter by refusing to answer except in the regular forms, which I cannot help thinking absurd. If his own ship was so disabled as not to be able to obey the signals, was his whole squadron in the same condition? Possibly the affair may provoke an answer from Mr. Keppel, although I should rather think it will not, for he seems to have behaved with real dignity hitherto in waiting till that which is indeed the public shall call him to an account.

REV. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1779, February 2. Olney.—"I have been busied of late in transcribing a volume of hymns, which is now almost ready for the press. A much smaller proportion of them than I at first hoped for are my dear Mr. Cowper's; the greater part will be my own. We had in view when we commenced this design to erect and leave behind us a monument of that intimate friendship in which the Lord had united us, as well as to contribute to the comfort and edification of plain Christians. Had not the mysterious wisdom and will of the Lord laid him aside by an affecting indisposition, he would have probably furnished the chief materials for this fabric, and the book might have been more worthy the notice of the public. I long withstood the solicitations of friends to print, in hopes of seeing him at liberty to return to the work, but as that desirable hour is not yet arrived, I am at length compelled to yield to send them abroad as they are. My chief motive for mentioning this is to inform your Lordship and Lady Dartmouth that I shall take the liberty to beg your acceptance of two copies when they shall appear in print." Seal.

LORD NORTH to LORD LEWISHAM.

1779, February 23. Downing Street.—Asking Lord Lewisham to move an address to the King on the birth of another prince [Prince Octavius]. Col. Stuart has been requested to second the address.

ALEXANDER MACAULAY to LORD LEWISHAM.

1779, March 27. Nimeguen.—"I observed upon my arrival at the Hague that the success of the British arms in Georgia and St. Lucia made deeper impressions on the minds of men in Holland than in England. The friends of Britain were more elated and those of France more dejected than, I am afraid, that success deserved. But when the Gazette announced the taking of Pondicherry, the fate of the war was considered as already decided, and on the mere expectation of that news, in the eight days preceding its being confirmed, English East India Stock rose 16 per cent. at Amsterdam. It is very probable that before these events there was a strong party in Holland who would risk the consequences of an open rupture with England rather than desist from their pretensions of furnishing France with the means of continuing the war; but now, I imagine, qu'ils n'en feront rien.

"I have read all the treaties between England and the Republic since the middle of the last century. They are a striking instance of the blunders or ignorance of ministers of state and ambassadors. They contradict one another, and yet every preceding treaty serves as a basis for, and is confirmed by, the subsequent. But with all their inconsistencies and defects, they are more favourable to the claims of England than to the pretensions of Holland, and supposing the contrary, the great law of necessity will always justify you in depriving your enemies of the only means of continuing the war; for it is allowed on all hands that it will be impossible for France to fit out her fleets if she is prevented from carrying naval stores in Dutch bottoms from the Baltic, and by preventing this you do not, in fact, interrupt the Dutch trade; it is entirely the trade of France. The French buy these stores in the kingdoms of the north, and the ships which carry them never touch now in a Dutch harbour.

"I suppose your Lordship is acquainted with the disputes on this subject since the commencement of hostilities between England and France. The French ambassador was furnished with the materials of all his memorials by his partisans in the town of Amsterdam; but his Court has bungled the business. If it shall now be properly managed by us by their distinctions and exemptions in favour of Amsterdam and Haarlem, and given just offence to many who might otherwise be disposed to protect by strong convoys the ships carrying naval stores. It might, indeed, be expected that France would complain if the States had prohibited their subjects from carrying naval stores; but to tell them that they must protect this trade by convoys is to dictate to them as subjects and to regulate their internal government. They may as well order them to alter the forms of their courts of justice, and in this light many view now the conduct of the Court of Versailles.

"Though the spirit of faction is abroad among us here as much as among you in England, and notwithstanding the violence of parties fomented by the emissaries of France in this country for the last six months, I have still a good opinion of the prudence of many individuals, and I imagine they will go on to please and to displease both France and England alternately, without taking a decisive for or against either. One party will be clamorous in demanding convoys to prevent the depredations of the English, another will complain loudly of the conduct of France. The first will demand an augmentation of the navy, the second of the army. Perhaps the leaders all the while understand one another perfectly, and neither army nor navy will be augmented. A strong presumption of this is, that though they have voted 20 millions of florins for the navy, they have yet borrowed but two millions. (But why borrow any, if it is true, as they pretend, their coffers are full.) This conduct may preserve their neutrality unless the passions of the people, who are often ungovernable in this country, shall be too much inflamed.

"It is believed in Holland that Necker has lately borrowed 20 millions of livres, that the subscription was filled up in France, and that he borrowed also a considerable sum in Genoa. But it is certain that Sarline's savings on the old naval establishment contributed more than any other circumstance to enable France to make such exertions last year without increasing considerably her debt, and that if Keppel had taken or destroyed some French ships he could not have stood his ground a fortnight against the clamours of the Coups de la plume who made fortunes by the abuses which formerly prevailed in his department.

"Keppel's trial has luckily established at last a conviction on the continent that the French fleet was defeated. D'Orvillier was enraged when he read it, and those who laugh at him say that he has not spoke a word since. On dit, aussi, que D'Estaign aura le baton du Marechal mais qu'il ne sera pas du bois de St. Lucie. They may console themselves by making epigrams; but the French trade is ruined, and the nation must soon tire of the war. They could not borrow a stiver in this country, and the merchants of Bordeaux, the American Company at Nantes and their associates, the bankers at Paris, who are securities for the money raised for the Americans in Holland, are disabled from paying the interest of it, in consequence of the extraordinary success of our ships in taking prizes.

"Peace was to be proclaimed in Germany, the 19th of this month, etant le jour de Saint Joseph. The Emperor will receive a considerable district in Bavaria, but it will scarcely compensate a debt of 52 millions of German florins which the extraordinaries of the war cost him. The King of Prussia will be secured in the succession of his family to the Margravate of Anspach, and perhaps to Berg and Juliers. The Elector of Saxony will have Mindelheim and some seigniories in the Upper Palatinate. But it is not certain that any party is satisfied or that the peace will be durable. The first news of it raised a tumult at Vienna, where it was necessary to forbid to speak of it, ni en bien, ni en mal. But the Empress was crying and praying for many months; her son was obliged to yield. The King of Prussia is old, and his brother, they say, growing sickly and infirm. It is pretended that the Emperor is highly offended with the conduct of France, and yet he lately made the Minister of France at Vienna, a prince of the Empire. Time and the attention of your ministers will discover if France can derive of any advantage from selling the peace of Germany."

"SAINT ELVERDIN" to LORD LEWISHAM.

1779, March 31.—"Before your Lordship receives this letter, the States General will probably rescind their convention with Great Britain in the month of October or November last, and pass a resolution to escort ships carrying naval stores to France. They act very imprudently unless they are convinced that you will allow them to convoy their ships unmolested or unless they are determined to submit to the affront when you attack their convoys and carry their ships into your harbours; for their commerce in naval stores is no object to them, though it is absolutely necessary to France if they are resolved to continue the war; and if you declare war against the States, or even revoke the restrictions in favour of their commerce, which you lately laid on your ships of war and privateers, their whole trade may be absolutely ruined in a few months.

"A report was industriously circulated that you was disposed to allow them to carry naval stores to France. All the trade of the Republic was likely to centre in the town of Amsterdam as the edicts of the French King granted extraordinary exemptions and privileges to the ships of that town and of Haarlem, and as the ships of the other towns in Holland and those of the Province of Zealand were not only exposed to all possible vexation in the ports of France but were seized at sea and their crews whipped and tortured. Instead of demanding satisfaction for these terms, the States, in order to induce the Court of Versailles to revoke their edicts, will resolve to grant the protection of their convoys to ships carrying naval stores to France.

"It seems they believe that it is less dangerous for them to quarrel with France than with you. I wish they may not be mistaken. Thirty thousand Hanoverians who are ready to take the field, and their own army augmented to fifty thousand which may be done almost instantaneously, will prevent a French army from crossing rivers and passing by fortified towns to attack them by land, though the King of Prussia should remain inactive. But nothing can protect their trade against the navy and privateers of Great Britain. Their factories in Bengal and on the coast of Coromandel and the Island of Ceylon from which they import cinnamon, the most valuable branch of their Asiatic commerce, must fall into your hands, for they are not and cannot be readily prepared to. . . . themselves by sea either at home or abroad. I wish both countries well and I wish and hope matters may be compromised. The town of Amsterdam acquired a majority in the States of Holland by the defection of some of the nobles from the Prince of Orange; they demanded convoys. The Prince wrote a circular letter to the different provinces demanding previously an augmentation of the navy and army. It seems they are to grant convoys and no augmentation."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1779, June 13. Olney.—"I believe the hymn books I mentioned will wait upon your Lordship and Lady Dartmouth soon. They are in general a portrait of my own exercises and experience and therefore I hope may not be unacceptable to those, whose hearts are like mine. The preface will inform you what gave rise to the first thought of such a publication. The Lord having been pleased to unite dear Mr. Cowper and me in a very intimate friendship, we were willing to leave a monument of our mutual regard by jointly composing a volume of hymns. The indisposition which took place soon after prevented him furnishing the quota I wished for, and after setting out a little way with him, I was forced to proceed alone. The end however will be answered, though not in the manner I had hoped."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1779, August 13. Olney.—"I hope the Olney hymn book waited upon your Lordship in the course of the last month and might opportunely serve as a testimony of my great regard when for such impediments as I have formerly mentioned I was prevented writing at my accustomed time, I need add nothing to what appears in the preface concerning the occasion and design of this publication. Most of the hymns are copied from the exercises of my own heart. . . . . It was my custom for several years to compose a new hymn weekly for our evening public service on the Lord's day. I seldom attempted more except at the entrance of the New Years, and these in a course of time amounted to a number sufficient to make a sizeable volume, including the few which my dear friend had prepared before his illness."

WILLIAM KNOX to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1779, September 11. Whitehall.—Concerning the behaviour of Mr. Browne, governor of the Bahamas, and his taking upon himself to publish a proclamation forgiving the inhabitants their ill behaviour at the time the island was attacked by the rebels.

PRINCESS AMELIA to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1779, October 9. Gunnersbury.—Thanking him for procuring a living for Mr. Greenhill.

LORD NORTH to [LORD LEWISHAM].

1779, November 7. Bushey Park.—I wish to have the address at the opening of the session moved by a friend who can do it well and creditably. That you are my friend you will not, I dare say, dispute, and I shall not ask your opinion with respect to the other qualification. I hope that your answer will be favourable.

CHARLES SIMPSON to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1779, December 17. Lichfield.—Requesting Lord Dartmouth's interposition with the Secretary at War to remove certain of the troops at Lichfield, there being only fifty-two public houses, of these two are principal inns, six are moderate houses, the rest pot-houses. There are quartered on the George Inn 70 men, on the Swan 65, Hartshorn 34, King's Head 30, Crown 30, and so, in proportion, that the poorest houses have at least 10.

WILLIAM INGE to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1779, December 18. Lichfield.—Takes the liberty of seconding an application which will be made to Lord Dartmouth by the publicans of the City of Lichfield, who labour under very considerable oppression from the number of soldiers and French prisoners quartered upon them.

The EARL OF GUILFORD to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1780, April 17. Bath.—"A letter I have had from the Bishop has given me infinite pleasure. He tells me the Speaker is likely to resign, and it is said Fred. Montagu is to be proposed by the Opposition, and not opposed by Lord North—Fred. Montagu's unblemished character and peculiar qualifications for that office, would make his being proposed by Opposition very creditable to them, and give Lord North an opportunity of shewing that no party considerations would weigh with him to oppose what is so indisputably reasonable and right, and enable him to gratify the desire he must have of making a return for the marks of friendship and obligations we have been receiving from Mr. Montagu during the awkward situation into which the ill treatment of Lord Halifax had unfortunately thrown him. I know Lord North's love and gratitude to Fred. Montagu would dispose him to embrace with alacrity the opportunity of doing him so honourable and essential a service, and that was he not to embrace it, he would never forgive himself, nor could I ever forgive him. Yet I am afraid he will be terribly worried upon the subject by his political friends (more anxious, I fear for the gratification of their party interests and resentments than for the support of his honour and credit) against doing what is right, and therefore, though I cannot do him such an injury as to suppose it possible they should make any impression, your Lordship will be so good as to forgive my begging you to talk frequently with him upon the subject, and be fortifying him against all arts which may be used, to lead him out the way.

Postscript.—"You will, I know, forgive me, when you consider what I feel from the apprehensions of Lord North being teased and persecuted upon a subject in which his honour, conscience, and judgment, are so much concerned."

Rev. THOMAS VIVIAN to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1780, May 23. Cornwood.—Asks advise as to whether a Dutch ship taken by a privateer belonging to his eldest son, a wine merchant of Truro, may be detained or not as the present situation with respect to Holland is not certainly known. Lord Lewisham, by declining to stand for Plymouth, has avoided much trouble. The death of Sir Charles Hardy has given Mr. Culme a great advantage.

SIR CHARLES MIDDLETON to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1780, June 7.—"It has been reported here that the rioters intend to pay a visit to Deptford Yard, and which has occasioned our making an application for some troops for its security. Your Lordship's house on Blackheath has been likewise mentioned as an object of their resentment, and which I am the more anxious in communicating, last Lady Dartmouth should be upon the Heath and your Lordship unacquainted with their design."

THOMAS FAUCONBRIDGE to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1780, June 8. Birmingham.—"I hope your Lordship will please to pardon the liberty I take in addressing myself to you on the present occasion, but having heard it mentioned that it is expected the populace to rise in this town, which, if such an event should happen, they may commit similar outrages to what they are now unhappily doing in London, I think it my duty as a loyal subject, to do everything in my power to prevent such a circumstance from taking place: and being this year High Bailiff of the town, and having no Justice of the Peace resident with us, I can with propriety call a meeting of the inhabitants to enter into such measures as I should hope would be effectual to prevent any public disturbance. I have this day spoke with several gentlemen privately on the subject, who are all ready and willing to lend their utmost assistance to stop such tumults, should any be intended, and from several circumstances, I have too great reason to believe there are some in Birmingham would rather encourage than prevent such proceedings. I flatter myself your Lordship will not think me officious in this business, but if an association of the friends of government should be thought necessary, I have no objection or fear to stand foremost, although I may, in consequence, be the first object of resentment, should a tumult take place.

"I am informed, Dr. Ash has this day received a letter in which it is said a party from Birmingham is expected in London, and I hear, the the valuable effects at a Romish chapel at Edgbaston, have been removed for fear of their being destroyed."

Rev. SAMUEL PARR to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1780, June 12.—"I take the liberty to request your Lordship's acceptance of two sermons which accompany this letter. I had flattered myself with the expectation of being honoured with your Lordship's presence at our Guild, and of sharing with you in the satisfaction which I am sure you would feel from Mr. Legge's exertions. I hope, my Lord, that both yourself and Lady Dartmouth are perfectly at ease, and that the horrid tumults which have lately disturbed your repose, are totally quelled. I cannot help expressing to you the happiness I feel, as a citizen of a free country and a member of the noblest constitution in the world, from the temperate, judicious, and firm exertions of Government upon this awful occasion. I would to God, that upon all the questions which have divided and distressed us, all parties would now unite in promoting the common welfare. I can look with compassion upon the insanity of Lord George Gordon; but I cannot reflect without detestation upon those men who, at such an alarming crisis, dare to insult the feelings and the understandings of every honest man and to inflame the passions of the rabble by their groundless, senseless, and shameless invectives against a ministerial mob (sic)." Seal.

Thomas Fauconbridge to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1780, June 14. Birmingham.—"I have the pleasure to inform your Lordship that at present we have not the least apprehension of any riot, but on the evening I wrote your Lordship, about fifteen hundred people had assembled together and had made an effigy which they called Dr. Dodd, and made a large fire and burnt it. Whether this was done with intention to commence a riot or not has not been discovered. It is generally said to have commenced on a quarrel between two Jews. However, it was happily suppressed by our Bridewell keeper and his assistants, but not without some difficulty. A woman who was most active in the business was taken into custody, and next morning taken before Dr. Spencer, who discharged her. The next day several persons distributed inflammatory papers about the streets, but were immediately pursued by the officers of the parish, and prevented their further distribution. Since when, nothing has happened; except that one night 'no popery' was wrote with chalk on several doors about the town."

[Rev.] Will. Roundell to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1780, June 16. Gledston House.—"The disgrace that this county is in by being the first petition will, I hope, be wiped off by its being the first to address to his Majesty at this alarming crisis, expressive of our loyalty and attachment to his Majesty's person and government. In the York and Leeds papers I have directed a paragraph to be inserted intimating that a requisition would shortly be made to the high sheriff to call a county meeting for the purpose of considering such an address."

Lord Fauconberg to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1780, July 3. Cheltenham.—"An address to his Majesty I am confident would spontaneously flow from that part of the county of York I have the honor to be publicly concerned in, and I am confident your Lordship will do me the justice to believe that it is not more my duty than my sincere inclination to promote what is so justly due to the manly and affectionate conduct of the King."

ROBERT SCOTT to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1780, July 16. Woodsome.—"As your Lordship has not heard from Woodsome this good while, I take the liberty just to say all is safe and well, and the plantations of last spring tolerably promising, considering the cold and dry weather we have had. I mention our safety, as we have not been free from alarms here, owing to a strange idle report, that Lord North was fled from London and was with your Lordship here; this was so much believed by the common people for some days, that a man came from Lascelles Hall one evening, and demanded an audience of Lord North; being told he was not here, he grew abusive, and the next day a considerable number of the rabble, about forty, with horns, pans, and one gun, assembled on the Coombs to come again, and another body beyond Kirk-Heaton. But happily they were dissuaded from it. I am told their pretence for seeing Lord North was on account of the new Malt tax, and that both he and your Lordship encouraged popery, and such stuff. I was unfortunately on my journey in the north, but got home a few days after, when all was happily subsided and still remains quiet. Yet, I am told by some of our neighbours, that the Malt bill is so ill-relished that they wish for any pretence for rising, saying they can live in summer, but winter is the trying time when milk is not to be had. As all is quiet, I hope your Lordship will be under no apprehensions for the safety of the old house. I should have informed your Lordship sooner of this, but for fear of alarming you. From all the information I have been able to get hitherto, [I] do not find any particular charge can be laid so as to take hold of any of them, if it had been prudent so to do in an unguarded state."

JOHN ROBINSON to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1780, August 26. Sion Hill.—"The time presses so much in respect to the great measure, that I must own it strikes me as extremely necessary that Lord Lewisham's situation should be explicitly fixed. Lord North has, I daresay, mentioned to you, the Duke of Northumberland's goodness. I have had a letter from his Grace on the subject this night, and I must give him an answer for his Government. Your Lordship will, I daresay, see the absolute necessity there is for this being done with all dispatch, and will, I hope, excuse me the impertinence of this scrawl."

JOHN ROBINSON to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1780, August 28. Sion Hill.—Is surprised to find Lord Dartmouth was not before acquainted with the Duke of N[orthumberland's] having expressed himself to be desirous of bringing in Lord Lewisham. He knows of Lord Lewisham's other expectations and his wishes were to have an opportunity to talk the whole over to press a settlement and fix what answer was to be given to the Duke. It is impossible for him to come to town but if Lord Dartmouth can "make a stretch to this cottage" he will find both him and Lord North.

THOMAS GEM to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1780, September 14. Birmingham.—"The determination of our two late representatives to withdraw from the future service of the County of Warwick, in Parliament, is a matter of great and just concern to their numerous friends and constituents in this town and neighbourhood.

The various commercial regulations so frequently made by the Legislature affect the trade and manufactures of this place very much and render it an object of great importance to its inhabitants, that gentlemen may, if possible, be chosen for the County who are connected with the people and not entirely uninformed of the particulars in which their interest consists. While, therefore, we lament the loss of our former members, it concerns us to exert ourselves in the choice of, at least one proper person to succeed them. We have applied to Sir Robt. Lawley for this purpose, who has consented to stand forth as a candidate on the day of nomination at Warwick on Friday next. As he is a gentleman of affluent fortune and truly independent principles we flatter ourselves he will meet with your approbation and support. The freeholders in this place and its environs are almost unanimous in his favour. We have reason to believe that the sentiments of the gentlemen in the neighbourhood agree with ours, and if we are favored with your co-operation, there is little doubt of success."

The Earl of Sandwich to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1780, September 24. Blackheath.—"Upon considering over what your Lordship has just now mentioned to me, I cannot avoid intimating to you that any favour of the Crown, given at this time in Huntingdonshire, through the Duke of Manchester's recommendation, or to any of his party in that county, would be exceedingly prejudicial to my interest there; and to the interest of Government, which I am endeavouring to support at no small trouble and expense. There is no place in England where the parties are more at variance than in Huntingdonshire; we could not dine together on the election day, and the two members could not agree to give a joint ball to the ladies; and as a personal mark of enmity to me, the Duke of Manchester has thrown up his trust in Lady Cork's separate maintenance, giving it as a reason, that he could not concern himself any longer in her affairs because her uncle was so inimical to him. This inimical conduct in me can mean nothing but my having had a majority of friends against the intended petition for redress of grievances, and having carried my son's election by a very great majority both in numbers and property. The county is now divided between two parties, that of Government and Opposition; and I know that Lord Hinchinbroke, as well as myself, would feel himself very much hurt if any favour was shewn to our opponents. If they can gain their objects through any channel but mine, all hopes of getting them over to us will be at an end, and their party will increase upon the ruins of mine. On this account, I hope your Lordship will not pursue the point you had the goodness to consult me upon, the consequences of which did not occur to me in their whole extent when first you mentioned this business to me; but I must further beg that you would not mention my interposition either to the Duke of M[anchester] or to the other person in question; as it would undoubtedly occasion an open quarrel, the matter being already very inflammable between us."

Lord North to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1780, September 26.—"I beg leave to transcribe for your consideration a clause in a letter I received late last night from a great personage. I shall be in town to-morrow when I will tell you what I had written, to which the following extract is an answer, and we may have some conversation upon the proposition contained in the letter.

"Lord Dartmouth deserves every kind of attention and I cannot see why Lord Lewisham should not at once have the Comptroller's Staff. Lord North cannot seriously think that a private gentleman like Mr. Penton is to stand in the way of the eldest son of an Earl. If that idea holds good, it is diametrically opposite to what I have known all my life; besides, Lord Lewisham stands for a county, his vacating frequently his seat is, therefore, not eligible, consequently here seems a very natural way of pleasing Lord Dartmouth.

"All this is very kindly meant. You will judge how far it will suit you or your son."

JONAS HANWAY to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1781, January 21. Red Lion Square.—Setting out his views in favour of solitary confinement for felons.

SIR RICHARD JEBB to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1781, September 10. Great George Street.—"I hope the bathing still agrees with you, and I have been thinking how far it might be carried on at home by the use of a shower bath. No one rejoices more sincerely over His Royal Highness' good health and happiness; few so much, only because they have not had my opportunities of seeing him upon so many trying occasions I have had, or they would revere, to my pitch, the most just, gentle, and noble spirit that ever inhabited the form of man. To your Lordship, I dare say further: I still hope in God that he will live to be one day of use to that country of which he is certainly at this moment one of the brightest ornaments."

GRANVILLE SHARP to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1781, September 23. Wicken Park, near Stony Stratford, Bucks. —"I have this moment received a letter, of which the enclosed is a copy, urging in very strong terms the necessity of an immediate peace with America, and though the letter is without a name, and even the handwriting unknown to me, yet by some particular circumstances, I have no room to doubt from whom it comes, and consequently am well satisfied that the information is truly important and such as ought not to be neglected. The intelligence is from a different channel, I am very sure, from that which I before communicated and is equally authentic.

"When I had last the honour to wait on your Lordship, the Americans were at liberty to treat separately for peace, as I then informed you from unquestionable authority; since that time, there have been reports of a more strict Treaty of Union being formed between the Allies, such as must exclude all hope of any separate treaty with America; but the letter from Holland, an extract of which the anonymous writer has sent me, plainly indicates that there is still a possibility of treating with America, if the business is undertaken immediately, so that no such treaty of absolute Union between France and America, as was reported, can yet be ratified, though it is probable such an one may be actually on the tapis and near a conclusion, which it is the manifest interest of this kingdom to prevent, if possible, by a previous agreement with America, and I sincerely wish that no delusive hopes of subjugating America, and compelling her to submit once more to the Crown, may any longer prevent an effectual reconciliation.

"I had the honour to give your Lordship notice of a seasonable opportunity when the Americans might have been prevailed on to come again under the Crown, which was near eight months after their declaration of independence; and I likewise informed you of the very latest period that such a constitutional accommodation could possibly be promoted with success, and also that no terms short of independency, would, or could, be attended to, six months after that time; and the fruitless effects, even of a Parliamentary Commission, twelve months afterwards, sufficiently prove that my information was right. The true interests of this Kingdom in 1778, required us to admit the independence of America, which at that time would have prevented an open rupture with France and Spain, and would have been the means of recovering the American trade, whereby we should have received almost as much solid benefit from the Colonies as if they had still continued subject to the British Crown, and the landed interest of England would not have felt that severe reduction in the value of their estates, which they have since, unhappily, experienced. I have sufficient proofs that Lord North was at that time of a similar opinion, but was unhappily deterred from openly declaring it, by the violent opposition that was made by Lord Chatham, Lord Shelburne, and others to the Duke of Richmond's seasonable proposition on that head. Ever since that time, the accumulated expenses of a bloody and fruitless war have been immense, and the loss of many fruitful islands and of numerous trading ships captured on the high seas, inestimable and ruinous. It is true we have still several valuable islands in the West Indies, and extensive territories in the East, but the intrinsic value of all these to this country, can exist no longer than our ability of keeping open a free communication with them and of protecting on the high seas, their mercantile remittances to this country, for this has been so far beyond our national ability of late that we have had the fatal experience of a whole fleet of rich East India ships being captured and carried into the ports of Spain, and of a whole fleet, richly laden from the West Indies, being carried into the hostile ports of France, and our Jamaica Fleet has lately been compelled to return back into the ports of that island, whereby the value of their produce will be eat up by port expenses and demurrage, which proves that the possession of our distant dominions is no longer valuable, than whilst a free trade and communication with them can be maintained. And, besides all these fatal effects of the American War, the continual depredations of our united enemies on our very coasts have almost annihilated even our coasting trade, so that the enormity of risk in all branches of trade has already enhanced the prices of insurance beyond the abilities of the fair trader to comply with them. The first loss, therefore, that of American dominion, is not to be compared to the subsequent losses which a prudent accommodation might have prevented; and a continuance in the same obstinate and fatal career is not likely to retrieve our misfortunes. Let me therefore intreat your Lordship to represent and urge, wherever your interference may be most effectual, the necessity of making a speedy agreement with America. You was (sic) apprehensive that any Minister who should venture, in treating for peace, to admit the independence of America would be impeached: nevertheless, I have already mentioned to your Lordship a nobleman who, I am sure, would undertake it. But if the King, or his Ministers, should be unwilling to accept of his service, though few men are so able, yet I flatter myself that I can still name others of sufficient dignity and abilities who would not shrink from so good and necessary an undertaking, through any false fear of risk, provided Administration will give them sufficient powers to act.

> Enclosure.—"Though my name will not be at the end of this letter I must intreat your particular attention to the following extract of a letter I have just received from a person of great worth in Holland and who loves England most cordially notwithstanding he is much in the confidence of a principal person on the American side of the question now in Europe. Look out and find a sensible honest man in office and conjure him to save his country from eternal ruin by making up matters immediately with America the first cost will be the least, the longer the matter is delayed the more will America be estranged from England. The interest and power of France increases daily owing to the inconsiderate persistence of the English councils, which drives the Americans to the necessity of defending and securing themselves by every possible means. Nothing can be more fatal to England than that France should have the absolute settlement of the terms of peace and yet this will be the case, if a great and liberal conduct is not immediately pursued. I cannot explain myself, but I intreat you to consider this as no slight hint. The Englishman who does is an enemy to his country."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1781, September 25. Hoxton.—"My dear friend Mr. Cowper, though yet a stranger to personal comfort, has been so far at liberty as to produce a number of poems sufficient to make a very sizeable octavo. If I had not experienced much of the dilatory spirit of printers and booksellers, I should say they will soon appear in that form, for they have been sometime in the press. I doubt not but that they will entitle him in the public judgment to rank among the best of the modern poets. His principal pieces are all designed to illustrate and recommend the grand truths of the gospel. He has assigned me the office of editor, and the honor of introducing them by a preface. Thus, posterity shall know that he numbered me among his friends."

SIR RICHARD JEBB to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1781, October 6. Great George Street.—Recommending Lord Dartmouth the use of a shower bath and horse exercise, and also a little physic or diluted sea water to restore Mr. Henry's complexion.

THOMAS MITCHELL to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1781, November 1. Perth.—Requesting Lord Dartmouth's interest in the development of three mathematical inventions.

Rev. GEORGE BURNETT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1782, March 29. Elland.—"The rules of our society for young men, are these, that as many as come under the rules of the Society, shall personally appear at their meeting at Elland, and if accepted that their friends shall assist them as they are able. Some, as Mr. Knight of Halifax, have given in all 50*li.*, others 10*li.* per annum. They have hitherto been sent, without exception, to Cambridge where Mr. S. Key, of Magdalene, has exceedingly befriended them; and the tutors Farish and Jowet are both serious men. We have contributed to some who never personally attended us, as particularly to Mr. Foster who lately obtained a prize medal; but still we don't esteem them as peculiarly our wards. We have not any rule against sending them to Oxford, but the advantage they have at Cambridge has prevailed in its favour. We have not once attempted to place them above the ranks of sizars, as, neither would our finances by any means admit of it, nor does it seem profitable for the young men themselves. They have generally been entered at Michaelmas term or soon afterwards. Our expenses are various, from 60li. to 50li. or 40li. per annum, as their friends are of ability to assist them or not. I believe Mr. Tyler cost us more than 60li. I am sure it will give pleasure to every member of our Society to shew gratitude to your Lordship for your great kindness to us. Yet I fear the above rules may not suit with your plan; though I hope your Lordship will judge them on the whole to be reasonable. At present our finances are exceedingly low, but two or three young men will leave us before the next vacation. The Society meets next in the latter end of May, when what your Lordship has said will be particularly mentioned, and any other commands wherewith I may be honoured. Blessed be God we have hitherto gone on with much success."

Lord North to the Earl of Dartmouth.

[1782, March].—"Think of your health and take care of it. We are beat completely, and nothing but health and domestic comfort is left, that is worth thinking of. I suppose you know that notwithstanding the method we took to elude a defeat, we lost the question by 19. General Conway, not contented with carrying the question, moved an address of the House to the King to be presented by the whole House, in order to make the measure as grievous and insulting as possible to his best benefactor."

Sir Robert Murray Keith [to Lord Lewisham].

1782, April 20. Vienna.—"The events of the last years have been calamitous to the last degree and have baffled all the upright and patriotic exertions of the late Ministry. I shall ever deplore that fortune so obstinately denied them any share of that success which their parts and principles gave them so fair a right to claim; but I now dare hold to Lord North, to Lord Dartmouth, and to those other friends in the late Administration to whom I feel myself so deeply indebted, a language which was perhaps never before held before Ministers quitting the helm, but which is founded upon the certain knowledge I have of their generous and disinterested way of thinking. May they soon find under the national success and prosperity under those men who now lead the public councils the best and most solid comfort which they can possibly enjoy. I beg of you, my dear Lord, to say this in my name to your worthy father. I am sure it will not offend him, and I beg you will add that the warmest sense of the essential obligations which he and Lord North have conferred upon me and my family will accompany me and mine to the grave.

"I must not write from Vienna without mentioning the Pope, who after a most extraordinary and I have every reason to believe, a very unsuccessful visit of a month to the Emperor, sets out on Monday next for Munich and from thence to Venice on his way to Rome. This visit is perhaps the most singular event of this extravagant age. The Holy Father seems to have over-rated his own eloquence when he thought it possible to divert the Emperor from the pursuit of those enlightened and humane views which he has begun to carry into execution. But he has a thousand opportunities of knowing the good qualities and of enjoying the cordial hospitality of that Monarch, and be he pleased or not, as head of the Romish Church he must infallibly have been highly satisfied with the respect and kindness which he has experienced from all ranks of people in this country.

"Vienna has of late been the theatre of strange visits. We have had the Greet (sic) and Duchess of Russia, who like us so well that they are expected here again in August, and will be made most welcome."

The British Inhabitants of Bengal to Lord Lewisham.

1782, July 20.—Thanking him for his exertions in preparing the accurate and masterly report, accompanied by a most complete body of evidence concerning the complaints of the inhabitants of Bengal, which was laid before Parliament. Signed.

Heneage Legge to Lord Lewisham.

1782, June 10. Bristol.—"I was attacked some days ago by the influenza which heated me and made me extremely uncomfortable, but it seems to be leaving me now. I am afraid I shall have my cough increased by it as I hear it generally goes off with a cough. I wish you joy upon having escaped it."

R. A. Curzon [to Lord Lewisham].

1782, June 12. Lichfield.—"Upon my arrival here I found the recruits surprisingly come in for the time, the adjutant has spared no trouble in perfecting them. The men are in general 'influenzed' and will most likely continue so some time as the weather is still rainy."

Major General W. Wynyard to Colonel Lord Lewisham.

1782, July 14. Warley Camp.—"By a letter I received this morning from Lieutenant General Lord Townshend, I am ordered to acquaint your Lordship of the news of the Dutch Fleet being expected on the coast, and that his Lordship is persuaded you would be sorry to be absent at such a time."

Elihu Hall to Lord Lewisham.

1782, November 25.—"I beg leave to congratulate you in your connubial connection. May you be the rising hopes of your ancestors, and may there never want to this nation a Legge to stand upon nor a Pitt to bury her enemies."

Alexander Macaulay to Lord Lewisham.

1783, February 8. Calcutta.—Giving an account of affairs in India. He considers the Peace with the Mahrattas entirely attributable to the efforts of Mr. Macpherson. Thinks Lord Lewisham has formed a wrong opinion as to the origin of the Mahratta War, Mr. Hastings did not begin it and he could have finished it in his own terms if the commanders of his expeditions had done their duty and if his measures and government had not been factiously opposed. The angry paragraphs in general letters from home and the minutes put upon record in India condemning the war, etc., were made known to all the Vakeels in Calcutta, translated into Persian and sent to Poonah with assurances that there would be speedily a change in the Indian Government; the same means which were used at home to foment rebellion in America were used in India to encourage the Mahrattas to continue the war and from the same motives.

It was generally expected that on the cessation of hostilities with the Mahrattas the Presidency of Bombay would have attacked Hyder's dominions on the Malabar side of India but they remained inactive notwithstanding the expense of General Goddard's enormous war establishment which exceeded every thing of the kind in even the profusion and extravagance of India.

"Hyder died early in December. His last advice and request to his son was to make peace with the English as soon as possible, and never to place any confidence in the French. It seems to be the difficulties of a new reign in India, and especially of succeeding to such a government as Hyder's, have hitherto prevented Tippoo Sahib from continuing the operations of war, or making any advances towards a peace, and the Government of Madras (I am sorry to say anything to the disadvantage of Lord Macartney for whom I have a high esteem, but I have promised to write without reserve to your Lordship) takes no advantage of his embarrassments though there are three armies now in the field, any one of which would have been thought superior to any power in India twenty years ago, one under General Matthews on the coast of Malabar, another under Colonel Lang at Trichinopoly, and a third at Madras. But it is to be hoped that when General Coote, old and infirm as he is, returns to the coast, his presence will give vigour to our operations. He is waiting here impatiently for the Medea frigate to carry him to Madras, but there is reason to fear that she has been taken or that she has run to Bombay to give Sir E. Hughes intelligence of Suffrein's motions.

"The French fleet went to Acheen to avoid the monsoons but they appeared off Ganjam the 8th of last month. They took some small rice vessels and the Blandford Indiaman coming empty from Madras and may do more mischief while they are masters of the Bay, but I am persuaded that the gallant old Admiral with his usual coolness and judgment weighed the consequences of all that could happen during his absence. Before the hurricane he had five ships ready to sink, and the Superbe was dismasted in the gale. He was obliged to leave the coast before the arrival of Sir R. Bickerton as he could not fight Suffrein the fifth time with such an inferior force and so many disabled ships. He joined Sir R. Bickerton off Tellicheri and having five ships that could be refitted without being docked at Goa, proceeded with the rest to Bombay where I am persuaded he will use all possible expedition. He will return with 11 ships of the line, copper bottomed and in perfect order, though weakly manned. Suffrein has creaky ships with sickly crews and in want of stores and common necessaries. He expects a reinforcement of four ships of the line and transports with Bussy from the Mauritius but after a junction he must be inferior to Sir E. Hughes considering the different conditions in which the two fleets must be by this time, and we have nothing to fear from the combined efforts of our enemies, if you continue to intercept the fleets sent to them from Europe, and (shall I add, I will, my dear Lord, with the same freedom I would speak to you, if we were still gathering champignons dans le bois de Gramont) do not disturb us by resolutions of Parliament. Many of these resolutions appear to me to be more adapted to the situation to which India was in 1762, than in 1782 when they were passed. The debates concerning the Carnatic, for instance, and the resolutions which followed them, seem to suppose that Hyder Ali never existed, or had not settled the dispute between the Nabob of Arcot and the Rajah of Tanjore. While Hyder was only an officer in the service of the Regent of Mysore, it was perhaps, natural for a Governor of Madras to wish to establish a balance of power in the Carnatic, by making the Rajah independent of the Nabob. But we should have prevented Hyder from becoming the sovereign of dominions yielding an annual revenue of above five millions sterling, or have united all the forces and resources of the Carnatic to oppose him. This is the use which the Nabob made of the revenue of Tanjore and this is the use which we should have obliged the Rajah to make of them or have made of them ourselves. With these revenues the Nabob maintained a body of cavalry which would have prevented Hyder from entering the Carnatic. He proposed to us to employ them for the same purpose, that fine body of cavalry was disciplined and commanded by our officers. When disbanded they went to Hyder and to them he owed in a great measure, his success in this war. The law of self-preservation should be the rule of our conduct in such cases. It is now too late to affect moderation and self-denial. All our acquisitions on this side of India are usurpations; but all the princes of Hindostan are, like us, usurpers, only of an elder date. It is little more than a century since the Rajah of Satarah united the Mahrattas, though an ancient people, into a body under one head, and their present rulers are an aristocracy of Brahmins who lately usurped the rights of the Rajah and keep the genuine Mahrattas in absolute dependance. I affirm that not only the natives at large, but even the dependant Rajahs and Zemindars, are happier under our dominion than they were for centuries before, notwithstanding the cry against our ambitious encroachments and extortions.

"The wisdom of all political maxims depends upon relative circumstances, and what is sound policy in one situation, may be extreme folly in another. The power of our neighbouring states in India has been very different of late years, from what it was twenty years before. In the same proportion that they extended their dominions, augmented their armies, and improved in discipline, it was necessary for us to enlarge our military establishments and extend our influence, and it is to this very extension of influence which it is now the fashion to reprobate, that we are indebted for the peaceable possession of these provinces since we acquired them. In this country there is no medium between a decided superiority and absolute dependance. We must either return to our original state of factors and merchants, or be the first military state in India, and I hope the madness of reformation will never induce us to deprive Great Britain of the resources which have enabled her to make such extraordinary exertions in this war. I am convinced that these resources are, besides the profits on trade, the fortunes of individuals remitted from India and placed in our funds and in circulation. It is difficult to form an idea of the great amount of these remittances, but a Chancellor of the Exchequer knows the value of them and if he could raise the supplies if they were stopped. Add to this that we carry on a most expensive war in India without any pecuniary remittances from home, a circumstance which must make these distant military operations infinitely more expensive to other European nations than to Britain. No Indian power will ever give sums of money to an European ally and I defy Monsieur Jolly de Henry to send as many lacs to the Carnatic as Bengal sends to Madras.

"But, my Lord, some of the late resolutions of Parliament, if followed up to [the] spirit of them would greatly diminish these resources, and at the time they were passed, were highly impolitic and unseasonable. If the resolutions regarding the Mahratta war for instance, had been translated into their language and sent to Poonah, I would have despaired of the ratification of their treaty with us. I indeed wish we had never begun that war and I think we might have avoided it; but considering the circumstances of the times and the motives of the war, there was nothing criminal in it, even in the views of the Princes of India. The Nizam and the neighbouring princes acknowledged Ragobah as Peshwa and made treaties with him, and even Scindia owned that our refusing to abandon Ragobah to his enemies gave him the first desire of being in alliance with us. But I should add to what I have said above of Scindia, that the march of a brigade to the Province of Oude in his neighbourhood, from whence his country was open to an invasion, and our cession to him of Baroach to secure his attachment and as a mark of our esteem for his character, were motives with him for the steady part he acted.

"A gentleman with whom your Lordship sat in a Committee could inform you by whose petulance and extortion the King was forced to withdraw himself from our protection and forfeit the tribute which on certain conditions we stipulated to pay to him. But was not the resolution of Parliament regarding that business at least unseasonable. Suppose Shah Alum in consequence sent a Vakeel to Calcutta to demand his arrears and a continuance of his tribute. To pay it would distress the Company beyond measure and, I am afraid in their present situation, make them bankrupt, and to refuse payment would be contrary to policy and good faith.

"It would be very easy to show in this manner that there are other resolutions equally unseasonable and impolitic. They condemn measures as unjust which the Princes of India consider perfectly just and legal, and it will be as absurd in us to introduce the politics of Europe into Hindostan as to introduce the laws of England into Bengal. I wish this may be attended to when a late transaction in this part of the world becomes the subject of consideration at home. I mean the deposing of Cheyt Sing, Rajah of Benares. There is not a prince in India that would not punish such disobedience in a feudatory Zemindar. His very claim of independence was rebellion according to the laws of Hindostan. It is perhaps of little purpose to observe, though I believe nothing to be more true, than that he was encouraged in his disobedience by some men in power in this Government. The principal question is whether a superior, situated as this Government was, had a right in such circumstances to command assistance from a vassal. There is not a prince in India who does not command it. It is one of the tenures on which a vassal holds his Zemindary, and whatever rashness or impudence there may have been in the manner of managing that business, the principles on which Mr. Hastings acted are very justifiable, and I am persuaded the information which the despatches by the Nancy have conveyed home, will place the whole business in its proper light.

"Pray, my dear Lord, if your favourite treaty of Allahabad savour more of justice and moderation than the treaty of Benares, and was not the last founded as much on wisdom and policy as the first? I am sure at least it has been productive of the most beneficial effects. It is to the influence we established in the Province of Benares and in the Vizier's dominions by that treaty, that we are indebted for the security of these provinces for many years, and for the resources which have enabled us to remit above four crores of rupees to Madras and Bombay. Cast now your eye on a map, from the mouth to the source of the Ganges and you will see that we are surrounded by the sea on one side, and on the right and left by a chain of hills impenetrable at least to any army and that there is scarcely a possibility of invading us but through the Vizier's dominions into Benares and from thence to Behar and Bengal. But the Province of Benares is become our own and our troops maintained by our neighbour and ally the Vizier in his own dominions cover our frontiers in the only part in which we are exposed to an invasion. These may be schemes of conquest and enlargement of dominion, but I am sure they have presented the best boundaries for our defence and instead of weakening the force and influence, and diminishing the resources of the Company, they have strengthened and augmented them.

"There have been undoubtedly great abuses in our administration of India, and they have grown in the course of time to such a height that it will require all the industry and abilities of men of the purest virtue and firmest resolution to correct them, but these abuses have escaped the attention of your committee, while they have lowered the government of this country in the eyes of the natives and neighbouring powers and diminished that respect and obedience which it was our interest to make them believe they owed to its authority and power We may one day be sensible of the danger of teaching them to disrespect that authority and resist that power, Their ideas of obedience and attachment never extend beyond their immediate rulers and are proportioned to the supposed strength of the hand that is next to them, and we should have continued to govern them through the medium of their own ideas.

But however faulty the former internal administration of these provinces may have been, I am certain they never can be governed with more wisdom, ability, justice, and integrity, than they have been in the last fifteen months. When Mr. Macpherson arrived in Bengal, the Governor-General was blocked up in the Fort of Chunar, the Province of Benares was in open rebellion, and there were symptons of disaffection from the frontiers of Oude to the neighbourhood of Calcutta and even among the Europeans there were many who wished to see faction and contentions renewed again among the members of administration. But without any retrospect to what had been done, he made it his first object to support the authority of government, and his next by mildness, moderation, and example to reconcile men to corrections and retrenchments which were becoming absolutely necessary. To contradict reports which had been industriously propagated, a proclamation was instantly published to the natives at large, that the members of government were united, and that resistance to its authority and every insult offered to it in the person of the Governor-General would be exemplarily punished and public intimation was given that every native collector or farmer, who received and did not pay, would be prosecuted with rigour. The custom formerly was to grant remissions to farmers, renters, &c. who had address enough to secure protection; but not a single remission has been granted during the last fifteen months. A bond is taken for what cannot be paid, and that bond must be the first payment in the next collections. To have a complete idea of other savings and arrangements, I beg of you to look into the minutes of the Governor-General and Mr. Macpherson of the 12th December, and you will see that by good management a million sterling has been saved to the Company. As I have made this reference I may avoid to enter into particulars. However, it is but common justice to Mr. Hastings to inform you that he concurs with cheerfulness and firmness in all these salutary measures, and it is easy to account for his past inattention to them. His abilities, great as they are, were scarcely sufficient to procure him respect in his own Council, and to preserve his government from contempt in the eyes of the natives and the neighbouring powers. He now finds in his colleagues the most liberal support in every useful measure, and he is not obliged to purchase that support by conniving at abuses or even granting favours. He has I am convinced, a sincere friendship for Mr. Macpherson, yet Mr. Macpherson has not taxed that friendship with the request of a single favour since he came to India. I do not know that I can give your Lordship a stronger proof of this than that I myself am not a rupee richer than I was when I left Europe. I repeat it, I make no apology for writing without reserve to your lordship.

"If I am rightly informed, a private wish for obtaining Eastern situations was lurking under the professions of public virtue in the bosoms of many at home who wished to remove the members of this Government. But the salaries of the Governor-General and Council, though great in comparison of the salaries of offices in Europe, do little more than enable them to maintain an appearance suitable to their stations, and if they attempt rapidly to make fortunes for themselves or their adherents, others will follow the example, and jealousies, factions, contentions, minutes about the disposal of places and lucrative contracts &c., and a struggle at home as well as abroad to support one party and sink another, must be the consequence. This has been the case for many years at Bengal, and opposition, which has been often the security of the public interest at home, and almost proved its destruction here, and this will be the case again if the members of government do not adopt a system of economy and retrenchment and persevere in it with firmness and resolution for many years. It is impossible for any state to support the enormous expense of this government in its various branches (I speak only of what is avowed) for I cannot get learned in the knowledge of secret abuses and that expense never will be retrenched by men who will come out with the idea with which I suppose new men do come to India or have not a cordial support from the Court of Directors and from his Majesty's Ministers, while they do their duty. Violent or indeed frequent changes in this Government must have a very bad effect upon our political consequence and connections in India and at this particular period may be dangerous and must interrupt operations which in my opinion are absolutely necessary to save the Company. The corrections and retrenchments which are begun must be continued and carried to the proper extent; good management in the collections and economy in the expenditure of the revenues must be introduced and a proper check put upon the provision of the investments. In all these respects a great deal has been done already without violence or faction and if the intended plans of this government are carried into full execution, the resources of this country are such, that they will in time relieve the Company from all its distresses and greatly alleviate the burdens of the mother country."

LORD HARDWICKE to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1783, March 8.—"I shall be glad to hear your health is better. I am still confined, except to airings, &c. I recur to past times for amusement, and think as little of the present as I can. May I ask the favor of your Lordship to lend me your grandfather's MS. notes on Bishop Burnet; the extracts which Sir J. Dalrymple has given from them, impress me with a very strong opinion of his integrity and fidelity. At the same time, if the request is at all improper or inconvenient neither your Lordship nor I need think any more about it. I never took any denial amiss, but that of the Duchess of Newcastle and Lord Pelham, to gratify me with a sight of my father's letters to the Duke of Newcastle, which I thought I had some claim to, and my father did not preserve many copies."

CHARLES LEGGE to [LORD LEWISHAM].

1783, March 8. Jersey.—"The state of public affairs is certainly very peculiar, and the coalition you mention no less so, how far it may tend to keep up Lord N[orth's] popularity time must shew, but what I think might be made a handle for much mischief in some people's hands is the present universal discontent in England of the army and navy, so much so that we are told here not a man-of-war can sail from Spithead because the sailors don't choose to go, and insist upon being put upon a footing with the soldiers and entitled to their discharge after three years service. Some of the regiments in England refuse to parade with arms and in other respects do what they please."

ALEXANDER MACAULAY to LORD LEWISHAM.

1783, March 17. Calcutta.—"Allow me to make an observation on the appetite which appears to prevail for Eastern situations. The largeness of salaries in India, when compared with those attached to places at home may induce many to become candidates for the first offices, but if they act honorably when they succeed, they will find themselves mistaken. With the present appointments of a councillor in Bengal, a man must serve the best part of his life before he can retire with a fortune adequate to his trouble and services, while there are many in inferior stations who can save a fortune in a few years. I am convinced that thirty or even forty thousand pounds for a Governor-General, and twenty or even thirty for a Councillor would scarce make their situation more lucrative than that of many who are below them. It is with a view of making a fortune that men of abilities and education come to India, and it is better to give it to them than to oblige them to take it, and I would then furnish with a halter any man who acquired unlawful gain. Sure I am, that one who would attempt it in the present situation of affairs would be callous to all sentiments of honour and to the distress of his country.

"Mr. Macpherson saw things in this light from the instant he arrived in Bengal, and who can presume to speak of public integrity and zeal for the Company's interests, if it is not evident that his own intentions are good and liberal and his conduct perfectly disinterested. To reconcile to a change of system the minds of individuals who gained by former abuses, it was necessary to shew that a man did not wish to retrench for his own benefit, but for that of the public and that he was not actuated by the ambition of forming a character at their expense, but by a sense of the public danger and distress, which made certain measures absolutely necessary to preserve the power and influence of the Company, and even to protect themselves in the possession of what they had acquired. By a different conduct in an hour of such universal danger and distress, India might have been lost to Britain, and I venture to say that a different conduct will still prevent it from being what it may be by proper management, a relief to the distresses of the mother country, and at the same time a fertile field for producing at least moderate fortunes for individuals. If new men are to come out, I wish to God they may come with these impressions or receive them when they arrive.

"I am very certain that to govern and secure India on a proper system is very practicable. But a proper system and a perseverance in that system are absolutely necessary. There is not a country in the universe more easily defended than this, or whose cultivation and manufactures may be increased to a greater extent. If you cast your eyes on the map and view the chain of impassible hills that secure these provinces from Chittagong to the frontiers of Oude on the one hand, and from Balasore on the other, and consider almost the impossibility of invading it by sea, you will see a natural barrier which may be easily defended. We can be invaded only through the Vizier's dominion where we have happily established an influence which secures us, and yet your committees condemn the acquiring that influence. Though the late military operations have not been as successful as we had reason to expect, our arms have made an impression in the very heart of Hindostan which will be long remembered. The power of the Mahratta state is broke; we have nothing to fear from them. It will be the interest of Scindia whose dominions are open to our invasions from Bombay and from these provinces, to be always in friendship with us, and, indeed, by a just and liberal system of politics with the country powers, we may maintain peace among all the states of India, from the province of Delhi to Cape Comorin and prevent any connections between them and other European nations which can be hurtful to us.

"Supposing peace were established, I cannot give you an idea of the extent to which the cultivation and manufactures of these provinces may be carried, without raising in your mind a suspicion that I use the privilege of a traveller. The manufactures of Bengal are carried to almost every civilised part of the globe, and if the servants of the company are allowed to remit their fortunes home in these manufactures, which may be done without any detriment to the Company's sales, London may be the centre from which these manufactures circulate in Europe, at least, and foreigners will be deprived of the advantages they now derive from trading with the stock of British subjects. Indeed, the fortunes of individuals may in time be remitted in new articles of commerce for which we now send money to other countries, such as sugar, indigo, tobacco, rum, silk, &c., &c.

"The loss of America and even the West Indies will be inconsiderable, if we preserve Bengal and improve all its advantages, labour is so cheap in Bengal that its produce must be cheaper here than in any other country.

"At the same time considerable sums will be annually remitted to Britain in specie, and its commerce with other countries properly encouraged will always bring in more money than can be remitted. The balance of trade with every other country is in favour of Bengal. Excepting in spiceries, imported by the Dutch, the produce of China, and in some British manufactures by ourselves, for our own consumption, almost all returns are made in specie. The commerce with other countries will always bring in more money if that commerce is properly encouraged, than can be remitted to Britain. In spite of the power of Spain it may be extended to South America, and the produce of the mines of Peru, through the medium of the manufactures of Bengal, may centre ultimately in Britain; I say if properly encouraged by regulations and good management, otherwise too great a diminution of the specie necessary for this country is certainly very possible. It has already in some measure, taken place, in consequence of the large sums sent to Bombay and Madras. With regard to the remittances which have been made to Britain, though they have been so considerable as to enable her to make such extraordinary exertions this war, at least I am convinced that without these remittances she could not have made such exertions. I really believe that as much money was annually sent from these provinces to Delhi during the Mogul government, as has been sent to Britain since we became masters of them.

"But to make our empire in India of this utility to the mother country, it is necessary to govern it by men who will be firm and disinterested in their conduct here, and feel themselves while they do their duty, independent of changes and parties at home. All the advantages I have mentioned may be procured by good management, and the magnitude of them must be apparent to any who consider the burdens of the nation and the consequences which the loss of America may produce. But by mismanagement we may lose the empire of India as speedily as we acquired it by accident. There never was a national object that required and deserved more serious consideration and dispassionate decisions than the manner in which we are to secure and govern India, and I hope in God we shall deal no longer in temporary expedients and dangerous experiments, or allow the important interests we have at stake in this country to be affected by any changes which may happen at home."

March 24. "If your Lordship has received my letters, you will recollect what I wrote to you very early of the advantage of attacking the dominions of Hyder on the coast of Malabar. The extraordinary success of General Matthews justifies more than I said. He took Onore, Candahar, and other places on the coast where he found a 60-gun ship on the stocks and three of 50 guns nearly completed, and large quantities of naval stores, ammunition, &c. He forced his way through the strong passes that lead into the Bednore country, though defended by 10,000 men, and an inconceivable quantity of cannon. Capt. Donald Campbell, who was a prisoner in the fort of Bednore, opened negociation between General Matthews and Huit Sahib (said to be an adopted son of Hyder's) Commandant of the fort of Bednore and manager of all the country of that name, yielding an annual revenue of above a million sterling. The treaty was soon concluded on advantageous terms, and the fort surrendered without opposition. Hydernagur, Rajahmandru, and other forts deemed impregnable, were stormed and taken, with 600 pieces of cannon, 8,000 stands of new arms, some treasure, and provisions and warlike stores of every kind. The Bednore is the most fertile and most tenable country of the same extent in India. It was Hyder's favorite conquest, the country of which he considered himself as the sovereign. He continued to rule Mysore as regent, but on his coins he styled himself Nabob of Bednore. Matthews has but a handful of men; they have done all that men could do, but they stand in need of immediate support, and it is to be hoped that the Presidency of Bombay, who have now no occasion for troops to defend themselves, will send him a considerable reinforcement, and that our armies in the Carnatic will follow Tippoo Saib who, they say, has moved to oppose General Matthews. It is much to be regretted that Sir E. Coote was not now on the coast; he has been detained here till now by the French ships that blocked up the river. We have a fine army under General Stewart at Madras and another under Col. Lang at Trichinopoly. Both these armies can penetrate into Tippoo's country, particularly Col. Lang's, and oblige him to return to defend his capital before he has time to attack General Matthews. If Matthews' little army is cut off, or even obliged to retire, Tippoo may recover what he has lost and become formidable. The Mahratta peace and the success of General

Matthews are two great events, which if improved to advantage must soon give us peace with all the country powers of India. The article in the Mahratta treaty which regarded Hyder, and now his son, is highly favourable to us. We are not prevented from indemnifying ourselves until he has evacuated the Carnatic, restored all the places he has taken and delivered up our prisoners (of whom, by the by, General Matthews is said to have found near three battalions in Bednore) and before Tippoo complies with these terms we may have as much of his territories as will repay us in some measure the enormous expense of this war. The possession of the seaports of the Bednore country will keep the whole pepper trade almost in our hands, and, at a small expense, the whole country may be defended against all the force which any power in India can bring against it. But do not I forget to whom I am writing, perhaps to one who will say, this is not a system of defence founded on moderation and wisdom; it is a scheme of ambition and conquest. Call it, my dear Lord, what you will, I affirm it is sound policy. The Mahrattas are now bound by treaty not to allow the French to make any establishment in their dominions. By keeping the coast of Malabar to ourselves at least by treaty with Tippoo Sahib, we may bind him by a similar stipulation. This is necessary for our security; with regard to a freedom of trade it is our interest to allow it.

"I am, perhaps, too much elated with our late success, for still a great deal certainly depends upon the operations at sea. Some of Sir E. Hughes's squadron were so much damaged that the necessary reparations would detain him, it is said, to the 20th of this month at Bombay. Suffrein has retired to the southward with all his ships. It is reported that he was re-embarking his troops at Cuddalore. His fleet will certainly be better manned than ours, but our ships will be in a better condition in every other respect, and, indeed, superior in numbers to that of Suffrein if he is not joined by Bussy of whose arrival we have yet no accounts. In that case Suffrein will lock himself up in Trincomalee. It will be a very tedious business for us to starve him, and he will have too great a force for us to besiege him."

Lord Sydney [to Lord Lewisham?].

1783, March 25. Albemarle Street.—"I have the King's commands to desire that your Lordship would communicate to the Staffordshire Regiment of Militia his Majesty's thanks for their steady and laudable behaviour in the support of the civil magistrates, and quelling the riots which lately prevailed near Newcastle-under-Lyme. At the same time I have the pleasure to add that his Majesty was pleased to express himself in strong approbation of your Lordship's readiness in going into that county, where your weight and influence could not fail of being of very great service."

Lord Hardwicke to the [Earl of Dartmouth].

1783, March. St. James' Square.—"I return you my best thanks for the perusal of the very interesting volume you have favoured me with. I have kept it no longer than it was necessary for my own perusal, and have shewn it to nobody. I am of a very tolerating spirit in historical matters, and am never surprised or hurt at differences of opinion, as our means of information and the company we keep will necessary create that difference. I am sure your Lordship's grandfather was a very honest man, a good subject, and a faithful servant to the Crown."

LORD HARDWICK to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1783, April 1. "Lord Hardwicke's best compliments to Lord Dartmouth. He still continues (and doubts he shall some time longer) under an uneasy confinement. Wishes sincerely that Lord Dartmouth could give him reason to think that some administration would soon be formed, for it is more than time. Those who have been the real occasions of the delay have much to answer for."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1783, September 17. Hoxton.—"I spent near three weeks at Olney. I was cordially received by the people. I think there is a better spirit prevailing than when I saw them last. I hope Mr. Scott gains ground. I was sorry to find him much afflicted with an asthma. He can sometimes hardly breath, and is generally forced to apply a blister on Saturday to enable him to speak and go through the services of the Sunday. My dear friend Mr. Cowper is much as he was when I was with him two years ago. Able to support general conversation with apparent ease and cheerfulness, but the uncomfortable impression which has been forced upon him of his own state as to spirituals remains in its full strength."

Dr. SAMUEL PARR to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1783, December 21. Emmanuel College, Cambridge.—"Rumour (it is a fashionable and a fatal word) informs me that a dissolution of Parliament is to be expected in the course of next week. How must I lament the measures and distrust the men, whence so frightful and desperate an outrage has arisen? I had retired hither, my lord, exhausted by a long and laborious application to my professional business. I had determined to return, after some relaxation, to Norwich, and I hope to resume with recruited strength the work which has been long on my hands, and which requires not the accession of new matter, but the correction and revisal of what is already accumulated. Here I must stay till the election comes on. I wish it were in my power to ask your guidance in both my votes. The one you will command, and in such a manner, I am well assured, as not to violate those feelings of anguish, indignation, and honour, which some late scenes have roused in a mind not quite destitute of penetration or sensibility. To Lord Euston (?) I am bound in honour to give the other vote, as his father assisted me in my master's degree, and I cannot employ against his son the privilege for which I am in some measure indebted to his Grace's kindness. If any opposition be expected in Warwickshire, I shall certainly go down and support those gentlemen whom you think the friends of their country at this awful crisis. I am sorry to break in upon your lordship's time. To Mr. Pitt I am prepared to give such an answer as such a minister deserves; but I shall stand aloof from the other candidates till I am honoured with a line from you."

The PRINCE OF WALES' ESTABLISHMENT.

1783.—"The establishment of the Prince of Wales in the year 1783, having made some noise, on account of the circumstances which attended it, the following may be considered as real facts. The Ministry had resolved to allow him 100,000 li. per annum, including the revenue of the Duchy of Cornwall. The Duke of P[ortland] informed his Majesty that such was their intention, and that they meant to apply to Parliament for the sum of 40,000 li., his Majesty granting 50,000 li. from the Civil List, which with the 10,000 li. (at which the Duchy of Cornwall was estimated) made up the sum proposed. His Majesty acquiesced and told the Duke of P. that he could not leave the business in better hands than his. A few days after, when the Prince's debts came to be collected, they were found to amount to 29,000 li.; upon which some alterations were proposed in the mode of raising the 100,000 li. per annum, with a view of discharging the debt. The proposition was laid before the King who, in a letter of some warmth, complained much of the extravagance of his son, and said he would abide by the first proposal. The idea of discharging the debt was then relinquished, and the first proposition was supposed to stand good. But his Majesty, in a second letter to the Duke of P. objected to the whole of the mode of the sum proposed. He said that the country could not bear so great an additional expense, and that he meant to take the burthen of the Prince's establishment upon his own shoulders; that he would allow him 30,000 li. a year out of the Civil List, which, with the Duchy of Cornwall, was all he was [to] expect; adding that if that was not acquiesced in, his Majesty should think it necessary to make known to the public, his ideas with respect to the Prince's establishment. This letter was received the day before the business was to have come on in Parliament; notice of the King's message having been previously given for that day. The Ministers met in the evening, and it was proposed that they should resign immediately. However, afterwards, it being considered that they should by that means put the power into the hands of people who were not so well disposed towards the Prince as themselves, they relinquish that idea, at the same time preserving the opinion, that if they had come down to the House of Commons out of office, and proposed the 100,000 li. per annum, they should have carried it by a great majority. They then told the Prince that they had done all they could and that they must abide by the King's pleasure. His Royal Highness immediately gave up all hopes of obtaining the income which he had been taught to expect by the King's ministers and by the acquiescence of his Majesty to their first proposition, for which he had been to Windsor, on purpose to thank him. The establishment as proposed by his Majesty was then carried in the House of Commons without any opposition, with the addition of 60,000 li. to pay the debt and to furnish Carleton House. His Majesty then sent another letter to Col. Hotham to be shewn to his Royal Highness, in which he appeared much dissatisfied with the Prince's conduct, complained much of his extravagance and of his neglect of himself and the Queen and of his inattention to all religious duties and insisting that his Royal Highness should promise him to live within his income in future. The answer, which was written by the advice of his friends, Col. Lake, Stevens, and Hotham, and altered in some parts by his Royal Highness, professed the greatest respect and duty to their Majesties, apologising for the neglect complained of as not having been intentional; but at the same time care was taken that he should not commit himself with regard to the promise of living within his income. His answer to that part of the letter was that though he could not but feel much disappointed at the smallness of his income after his Majesty had consented to a much larger provision from him, it was his intention (as far as it was in his power) not to run in debt."

Rev. JOHN NEWTON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1784, September 22. Hoxton.—"I durst not, therefore, upon my principles have accompanied Mr. Lunardi in his late balloon expedition I looked after him in his flight, with a mixture of admiration and compassion. How great the hazard, how poor the motives. A strange creature man is, his powers of invention, the ardour and enterprise of his spirit bespeak his original; but the misapplication of his powers loudly proclaim his depravity. He is continually making new discoveries, but to the need, and worth, and way of salvation he is blind and insensible. If gain or the applause of his fellow creatures be his prospect, he will venture the greatest risk, and expose himself to the greatest hardship, but a happiness suited to his nature and the approbation of God, are disregarded as trifles, unworthy of his pursuit. I was glad to hear that Mr. Lunardi was again safe upon terra firma, but I hear he is meditating a new excursion and that many others animated by his success are eager to follow his example. I fear this balloon mania will not subside till some awful events put a stop to it. The Philosophers I am told are sanguine in their expectations of making this new art of flying more generally practicable, but I believe and hope they will not succeed. We are bad enough already, but were it possible for men to transport themselves at their pleasure through the air, how greatly would the mischiefs and missions of human life be multiplied. As the providence of God is concerned in all events, there must I think be some ends to be answered by this discovery and these attempts in the balloon way, but at present I can only moralize upon them. I would learn in the first place not to be peremptory in determining what is or what is not impossible. A while ago it would have been thought impossible for a man to travel through the air. Many things which at present appear equally inconceivable may in time be easy, for who can say what secret powers may be in the course of nature. The effects of gunpowder and of electricity were unknown for ages. Again, I observe, how preposterous is the judgment of men; a person is talked of and admired by thousands for venturing up with a balloon, though it is a mere point of curiosity, not likely to be productive of any benefit, while He who came down from Heaven to dwell for a time with men, and to die for them is slighted and disregarded."

G. HOTHAM to LORD LEWISHAM.

1785, February 6. Stanhope Street.—"I laid Sir Francis Bassett's letter to me this morning (since I had the honour of seeing your Lordship) before the Prince of Wales. I had his Royal Highness's commands, in consequence, to signify to Sir Francis (which I have done) that he thought, as the present officers of his Duchy of Cornwall who were obnoxious to his views dropped off, it might be prudent and proper to have their places supplied by others whose interests might be consonant with his own; but that he thought it would, at present, be a violent and an injudicious measure to deprive the old servants of the Duchy of their employments, who had behaved faithfully in them, if no other reason than their following their own political opinions could be assigned for such deprivation." Seal of arms.

Rev. WILLIAM GILPIN to the [EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1790, June 2. Vicars Hill.—"I have some time had an intention of writing to you on the subject of a posthumous charity I have in view.

The foundation of it is this. The world is pleased to suppose my drawings of some value, and though I laugh in my sleeve and think them of very little, yet if people are pleased to be duped, I, like many others, have no objection to dupe them. In short, I mean to have them sold after my death, and the scheme I have is to establish a little school for poor people, like one in a distant part of my parish, which I think does some good. My plan is, however, yet undigested. Something or other, however, I think may be done; and though I should not think it right to employ my children's patrimony to a purpose of that kind, yet, if I can make a little fund out of a stick of Indian ink and a few sheets of paper, I think it will be a mighty clever thing. Nothing but some such stimulus as this would keep a pencil, I am sure, at all in my hand, and by means of that I have now got a tolerable collection of drawings, which, assisted by Mr. Christie's eloquence, would make some show. The idea was put in my head by an artist who was with me here some time ago, and on my asking him what figure my drawings would make in a sale-room? If they were properly brought forward, said he, they would bring you more money than you would easily conceive. Now, my Lord, one mode of bringing them properly forward I have conceived to be to get what persons of consequence I can to give me letters assuring me that they will, when my executors inform them of it, endeavour to recommend my sale among their friends. This is all the letters are to engage for; at the same time my will gives them a power to inquire into the profits of the sale and the expenditure of the money. Now, if your Lordship will be so good as to send me a letter on this occasion, you will let it be distinct from other matter, that it may lie quietly by my will, that my executors may know they may apply to you, I am not free enough with Lord Lewisham to ask the same favor of him, but if your Lordship will ask him, I shall be obliged to you. . . . .

I am very sorry to find my young friend's bloody-mindedness has so soon been gratified with a commission. We had some conversation on that head, and I could not well convince him that war was an evil. But the world, you know, my Lord, is made up of contrarieties and we are not to wonder therefore when we see the most amiable manners joined to a sanguinary temper. For myself, however, I wish he might spend his summer in commanding under your Lordship, when you hoist your flag in the narrow seas as Lady Dartmouth tells me you intend."

[The Earl of Dartmouth to Rev. William Gilpin.]

1790, June.—" Your benevolent intention of establishing a charity upon the profits that may arise from the sale of your drawing cannot be sufficiently applauded, and if the plan, when it comes to be digested should afford a reasonable prospect of good to be done by it, nobody will more sincerely rejoice in it than I shall. Whether the world will be duped or not in the value it appears to set on your handiwork, is a question that I will not enter into; all I shall say upon it is, that I am one of those willing to be so duped, and while you are laughing in your sleeve at the ignorance of those who fancy themselves connoisseurs, I shall be inclined to smile at the simplicity of an artist who possesses the rare quality of being disposed to think too meanly of his own performances. It may perhaps be a question with some, whether the fund you propose to found might not be better supported by an immediate sale and whether the superstructure you mean to raise upon it, might not be more satisfactory and more successfully carried up under your own inspection than by being left to a future and, I hope, very distant period; but of this you will be the best judge. Whatever mode you shall think best to determine upon, you may be sure that I shall be one of those who will endeavour to recommend the sale among their friends." Draft.

Rev. William Gilpin to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1790, July 8. Vicars Hill.—"I return you many thanks for both your letters. . . . Your Lordship's second letter has made me very happy, in your approbation of a scheme, which, as I said before, I think it some presumption to expect much from. Your Lordship is not the only one of my friends who has advised me to execute my plan in my lifetime, to which my only objections are these. It is commonly supposed by artists that it is death which gives the great value to their works. To what merit they have, the idea is added that there are no more to be had. If so, then secondly, I shall probably be disappointed in my aim, and if so, then thirdly I shall be ashamed of my presumption. A dead man, you know, cannot blush. Now, my Lord, if I could find any casuist who could satisfactorily answer me these questions, or any city broker who would insure my gains, I should immediately begin, and your Lordship should see in the papers a flaming advertisement:—On such a day should be sold a parcel of drawings, in the highest taste for composition and effect, &c. &c."

Thomas Amory to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1790, September 10. Paris.—"Lord Dartmouth will have heard of the unfortunate affair which took place between Sir George Ramsey and Mr. Macrae to whom the writer was second, suffice it to say that Sir George was the challenger and fired first at Mr. Macrae and Mr. Macrae immediately returned his fire and wounded Sir George, who died two days after of his wound. Conscious of his innocence and knowing that almost every gentleman approved of his conduct Mr. Macrae would have returned on the day fixed for his trial had he not been dissuaded by his counsel who informed him that Sir George's family had prejudiced the people of Edinburgh so much against him and made so false a representation of the affair that Mr. Macrae would have very little chance of a fair trial. He was also informed that Lord Justice Clerk who was to be one of the judges had opened without authority his letters and those of his friends and informed Mrs. Macrae who was almost in a state of distraction that she would never know where her husband was as he would take care to intercept all his letters and immediately burn them. Before they venture to return they would wish to obtain the assurance of his Majesty's pardon in the event of their being condemned."

Rev. W. Jesse to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1791, July, after 16th, "Sunday morning. West Bromwich.—"Your lordship will soon hear of our doings; probably at first a vague report of them. All Birmingham is in an uproar. The meeting of the Revolutionists to celebrate the infamous revolution in France has given occasion to the most dreadful riotous proceedings. Previous to the meeting, the republican dissenters circulated a paper, of which I obtained a copy last night and mean to enclose. This paper gave great offence, as did the toasts at the meeting, which were immediately known all over the town. Someone had written in large characters on the church 'To be let' or 'This barn to be let, or pulled down"; for the report of this writing is various. So great was the offence taken at this writing, with the other proceedings, that the mob assembled and destroyed all the windows of the hotel where the Revolutionists met. They then burnt down the new meeting house, the old meeting house, Dr. Priestley's house at Fair Hill, with everything therein contained. Some say that very treasonable papers were found in his study. The Doctor had escaped into Shropshire, or he would certainly have made his last exit. The mob solemnly cut off his head in effigy. Mr. Ryland's, formerly Baskerville's house, was next burnt and about twelve of the mob drinking in the cellar, when the roof fell in, perished. Mr. Taylor's house was next burnt; and here, too, some of the drunkards perished. Mr. Humphrey's house was bought off by a sum of money, but it was expected the mob would return to it again. Mr. Hatton's town house was spared in consideration of a quantity of gunpowder in the house adjoining, but his country house quite consumed. I ventured to go to Birmingham yesterday afternoon. On all the houses, window-shutters, and doors in the approach to Birmingham, and on every house there, was written 'Church and King for ever.' I met the crier on horseback at the bottom of Snow Hill crying the enclosed printed paper and distributing his papers to the multitude. Every shop shut. Many of the principal inhabitants fled out of town. The mob were, at the time I was in Birmingham, assaulting Mr. William Russell's house at Moseley Wake Green. Captain Keir at the great house, Hill Top, was chairman at the meeting of the Revolutionists. He expects the mob has provided arms, &c. and means to stand on his defence. The coachman of one of the gentlemen whose house was burnt, attempted to defend. He killed one of the mob and then lost his own life. I hear he was the son of one of my parishioners, a worthy man. I met Mr. Ingram, who told me that he narrowly escaped by the interposition of a servant in the critical moment, that one of his men had an arm and another a leg broken. Many I was told have suffered. The military are sent for. There is a report, which I do not credit, that the Republican party have pulled down a church at Coventry. Though I smiled and was much pleased to read the old toast 'Church and King' on every house, I am very sorry for the occasion. I fear this opposition will give strength to the opposed. I cannot help feeling sad apprehensions in view of the spirit which is prevailing through Europe. But we have slighted the Divine government and may read our sin in our punishment . . . . . . I copied the enclosed in Mr. Barr's shop."

Enclosures.

Printed Proclamation.

"1791, July 16. Birmingham.—Friends and fellow countrymen. It is earnestly requested that every true friend to the Church of England and to the laws of his country, will reflect how much a continuance of the present proceedings must injure that Church and that King, they are intended to support, and how highly unlawful it is, to destroy the rights and property of any of our neighbours. And all true friends to the town and trade of Birmingham in particular are intreated to forbear immediately from all riotous and violent proceedings, dispersing and returning peaceably to their trades and callings, as the only way to do credit to themselves and their cause, and to promote the peace, happiness, and prosperity of this great and flourishing town. God save the King.—J. Carles, B. Spencer, Henry Greswold Lewis, Charles Curtis, Spencer Maddan."

Copy Proclamation in handwriting of Rev. W. Jesse.

"1791, July.—My Countrymen, the second year of Gallic liberty is nearly expired. At the commencement of the third, on the 14th of this month, it is devoutly to be wished, that every enemy to civil and religious despotism would give his sanction to the majestic common cause by a public celebration of the Anniversary. Remember, that on the 14th day of July, the Bastile, that high-altar and castle of despotism, fell. Remember the enthusiasm, peculiar to the cause of liberty, with which it was attacked. Remember the generous humanity that taught the oppressed, groaning under the weight of insulted rights, to save the lives of the oppressors:—Extinguish the mean prejudice of nations and let your numbers be collected and sent as a free-will offering to the National Assembly. But is it possible that" [In my hurry I omitted something here to complete the sentence]. "Your own Parliament is venal, your ministers hypocritical; your clergy legal oppressors;—The reigning family extravagant; The Crown of a certain great personage becoming every day too weighty for the head that wears it, too weighty for the people who gave it; Your taxes partial and excessive; Your representative a cruel-insult upon the sacred rights of property, religion, and freedom;—But on the 14th of this month, prove to the political sycophants of the day, that you reverence the olive branch, that you will sacrifice to public tranquility till the majority shall exclaim;—'the peace of slavery is worse than the war of freedom.' Of that moment, let Tyrants beware!"

Rev. W. Jesse to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1791, July 20. West Bromwich.—"As I had taken the liberty to inform your lordship of the riotous transactions at Birmingham, I would have written again on Monday or Tuesday, if I could have collected any further information of particulars which were at once important and authentic. The best and most certain information is, that a troop of horse by a forced march of sixty miles from Nottingham, arrived at Birmingham and restored peace and safety. Lord Aylesford has been very active from the beginning of the confusion and offered his person to be exposed to the greatest danger. His lordship went on Friday last to the mob who were at Fair Hill enjoying their sacrifice of Dr. Priestley's property. He called to the ringleaders of the mob, who all came about his lordship and formed a circle round him, when he addressed them in that common sense argumentation which is apt to move such a congregation as his lordship had to preach unto. "Aylesford for ever" was the universal cry. His lordship then marched at the head of the mob into Birmingham: but when they arrived there, neither Lord Aylesford, nor anyone else knew what to do with them, as there was no force to disperse them. The mob therefore took their own direction and proceeded to the destruction of houses in Birmingham and the neighbourhood. The magistrates then swore in constables, with a view to subdue the rioters by force, without the aid of the military. The design was excellent, but executed most wretchedly. They swore into office everyone who offered himself: and it is supposed, a great many of the party which they meant to oppose. They then sallied forth without order, on which ensued a scene of the most dreadful confusion. It was no better than mob against mob. A gentleman who was in this affray told me he could not conceive a scene of greater danger. There is one thing very remarkable; prudence in the midst of so much disorder. The mob were at the pains of taking all the seats and the timber of the meeting house into the burying ground, lest they should fire the neighbouring houses. Dr. Priestly, I am told, secured a cartload of his papers and books which are lodged in a stable. Many wish to search them in expectation of treasonable papers. But I understand that without sufficient information, the magistrates cannot touch this wreck of the doctor's property. Some of Mr. Russell's papers have fallen into Lord Aylesford's hands which are said to be of a very serious nature, and that his lordship has sent them to London. I hope something will be brought to light which will affect the good old cause: otherwise, I fear that the revolutionists will gain consequence and strength by this opposition. In the midst of these commotions, we must rejoice that we are subjects of a kingdom which cannot be shaken."

J. Bacon to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

1795, January 29. Newman Street.—"About seven or eight months since I had the honour of waiting on you with a sketch of my design for the equestrian statue of King William which I have received orders to execute and, with permission of the trustees, to erect in St. James' Square; by the advice of your Lordship I waited on the Duke of Leeds with the sketch, and, by his grace's request, on Lord Amherst, and having obtained their opinions on the subject, and communicated the result to Mr. Maberly, agent for Christ's Hospital, his idea was that it would be necessary to prepare a drawing to be laid before the trustees. This I did, in the course of last summer, and yesterday I received a letter from Mr. Maberly directing me to lay my design before them as soon as possible for their approbation, and mentioned it as probably the best way, to request Mr. Saunders to call a meeting of the trustees for that purpose."

The Earl of Aylesford to [the Earl of Dartmouth].

[1795, April.] "To begin with thanking you for favours to me and mine, would be taking up room in this paper, designed for other things, and offending you so far, as I know you would not have me write, what you will not permit me to say to you. I had a rough passage cross the Thames, but as Lady Dartmouth was not with me, did not think it very disagreeable. I found the King had been at the House to pass all the Bills ready for the royal assent; and I hear the yachts are ordered to be ready by the 16th inst. The Bill for naturalizing the Princess of Wales, had been read twice, and the House waited the engrossment, which came in about half an hour after the King was gone, was read the third time and passed, and sent to the House of Commons by the C[hief] J[ustice] of the C[ommon] P[leas] and another judge, for their concurrence. The D[uke] of N[ew]c[astle] took the lead and management of that bill. The order of the day was called for. Then Lord Win[chels]ea offered a petition from the Master and Fellows of Trinity College, in Cambridge, setting forth, that the revenue of the college consisting, in great measure, in parochial tithes, separated from the cure, the college was yet obliged to find curates to officiate in those parishes, and that it cost them £500 per annum, in stipends to fellows and scholars of the College, to officiate in those places; and praying that those advowsons may not be reckoned into the moiety allowed to colleges in proportion to their fellows, being a great burden, and no advantage &c. The like is the case of Christ Church Oxford, and some other colleges. This I believe came from the Chancellor of Cambridge, and laid a difficulty, which stopped Lord Win[chelsea] from saying anything the whole day. The petition was laid on the table, and the House adjourned during pleasure. Lord L. . . . was called to the chair. The debate was upon the first clause, but I never heard less said upon any church point in my life. The whole lay in great measure upon the Bishop of Sarum, who was much humbler than I ever saw any churchman before, which prevented a good deal of roasting that was ready prepared for the Bishops. Lord Hard[wic]k came into a proviso for the saving of purchases made bonâ fide, and also for the transfer of stock, exclusive of the 12 months for land, and 6 months for stock, which is to be offered tomorrow. For after the two first clauses were agreed to (which they were without a division) the House was resumed and proceed to-morrow. The debate lasted till nearly 7 o'clock, and the Bishops were a little roasted, but their humility prevented a great deal (as I said before), and I have not room to write the particulars of Chest[erfield]'s speech, who talked much of a bargain between the Bishops and the First Minister; which I believe some understood, but I know nothing of. I never saw people more disconcerted. The Bishops not pleased, the Court sullen, and in great measure silent, Cart[ere]t very flippant, Win[chelse]a, Marl[boroug]h, and others quite low in spirits, and nobody pleased. Everyone dining in private, and no conversation to be had, etc. We had however some diversion from a colt. Lord Hinton opened furiously upon the first clause, talked a great deal in a most exalted nonsensical strain, without head or tail, no argument, no rhetoric, but a parcel of strange words, to the amazement and great concern of those who knew not why he began, nor how he would come off. As we proceed to-morrow, I should be very happy if your Lordship would accept of such a bait as I can give you; for believe me in the present situation of affairs (of which you will judge better when you are in the House), it will be a vast satisfaction to a man out of all schemes, and entirely devoted to the service of his country, to talk freely with a real friend."

Richard Grey to Lord Lewisham.

1795, August 3. Somerset Place.—Enclosing letters from Lord Cholmondeley and Mr. Baynton acquainting Lord Lewisham that by the Prince's commands the salaries annexed to the offices of Lord Warden [of the Stanneries] and Surveyor General are to be discontinued, and the money arising therefrom to be paid to a number of pensioners.

The Earl of Dartmouth to Lord Lewisham.

[1796, October 22?] "I return you Mr. Lyson's letter, and beg the favor of you to tell him that I am not able to give him answers to his questions concerning Lewisham and I believe Wright knows as little of the matter as I do. Mr. Dunn may possibly do more than either of us as he has had inspection of some old deeds relating to that parish. There are few family or other portraits in my house there; among others are two half-length portraits of King Charles II., a King James, one of Frederick late Lord Guilford, and one of myself, both painted by Jenkins when his Lordship and I were at Rome together. You will point out your own portrait by ——anni and after that I do not recollect any other that is worth notice unless it be the portraits of some of my younger sons, in small sizes, and two small whole lengths of Mr. Duncombe and my daughter, Lady Charlotte Duncombe, drawn by Edridge."

Hon. H. LEGGE to his father, the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1796, November 7. Lincoln's Inn.—"Be so good as to tell Mrs. Legge that I could not find the Pontypool warehouse which I remember in the Strand, but that I have been to another near St. Dunstan's Church, where there is a great variety of goods of that sort. The real Pontypool is almost as dear as Mr. Clay's manufacture but there is an imitation of it made in London which appears to me to be just as good in substance, and much prettier in patterns, which is cheaper. A tea-board of 28 inches by 20, costs 24 shillings, (Mr. Clay's of the same size is two guineas) a size larger costs 27 shillings. There are also waiters of all sizes, the prices from 3 shillings to 12. If she approves of these prices and will tell me how many she wishes to have of each sort, I shall be happy to execute her commands."

Hon. H. LEGGE to his father, the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1796, November 10. Lincoln's Inn.—Thanks Augustus for his letter and will execute his commission at Jefferies and Jones. In a letter he wrote a day or two ago he sent a message to Mrs. Legge upon the subject of "Ponty Pool tea boards."

HENRY DUNDAS to LORD LEWISHAM.

1797, January 4. Langley Lodge.—"It is certain that some, and probably that all the high situations in India, may be very soon vacant. I am perfectly aware that family considerations may render these situations not equally eligible to you, that under other circumstances they might have been. At the same time it is not impossible that those considerations in another point of view may lead you to another conclusion. I have, however, decided to make no arrangement without giving you an opportunity of forming your own deliberate decision, and whatever that decision may be, your Lordship will at least do me the justice to feel that putting in your offer one of the most important situations the country presents, and upon the due execution of which depends everything that can render my public life comfortable, is an unequivocal proof of the sincere regard and esteem, which I have for your Lordship."

Rev. JOSEPH JEFFERSON to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1798, August 22. Basingstoke.—Asking for a piece of land in London Street Basingstoke for the site of a new chapel for the society of Protestant Dissenters at Basingstoke of which the writer is minister.

THE SOCIETY OF ANTIQUARIES.

1799. Correspondence relative to a dispute as to the choice of the Earl of Dartmouth or Earl of Leicester as President of the Society of Antiquaries.

COLLEGE at CALCUTTA.

1801, September.—Copy of opinion by Mr. Hastings in favour of the establishment of a College at Calcutta as recommended by the Marquis of Wellesley. Attached are some letters and papers as to the appointment of Mr. Mackintosh as professor of the proposed college.

EAST INDIA COMPANY.

1801, October 15.—Copy of Lord Clive's answer to complaints and insinuations brought against him, addressed to C. Mills Chairman of the Court of Directors of the East India Company.

1801, October 23.—Copy of "Hints to Lord Cornwallis," from the Court of Directors of the East India Company touching his mission to India concerning the French claims there.

1801, December 22–25.—A bundle of Copies of dispatches from the Governor in Council at Bombay to the Court of Directors of the East India Company.

LORD CLIVE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1802, February 17. Fort St. George.—"It affords me peculiar satisfaction to observe that your Lordship concurs in the salutary principle so earnestly supported by the Marquis Cornwallis, that the Governments abroad cannot be advantageously administered, if restrained in the choice of subordinate instruments by the controlling power at home. A principle recognised by all the distinguished characters connected with the administration of Indian affairs and indispensable to the preservation of an honorable discharge of public duty in this country cannot fail to be ultimately established on a firm foundation; and if the recent representation which I have made on the subject of its direct subversion by the Court of Directors, shall fail to produce a suitable impression, I shall be happy to have contributed farther to its establishment by the personal example of my resignation of the Government."

WILLIAM COBBETT to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1802, February 22. Pall Mall.—As to publishing a book on which no other bookseller will venture. Hopes for Lord Dartmouth's patronage. Refers to an article on printing paper in the fifth number of his Register. Torn.

LORD CLIVE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1802, March 25. Fort St. George.—"Your Lordship is apprised of the motives which have induced me to comply with the request of the Marquis Wellesley, by retaining the government of Fort St. George until the Court of Directors should be apprised that their recent orders have produced a dissolution of my Administration. This delay has enabled me to receive the instructions of the Governor-General with respect to such a reduction of expenses as may be practicable, in consequence of the peace, and to commence the assessment of the Land Revenue in the territories subject to Fort St. George, upon a permanent foundation. Having, in consequence, addressed a letter upon these subjects to the Chairman of the Court of Directors, I do myself the honour of transmitting to your Lordship a copy of that letter and of the papers connected with it, in the assurance your Lordship will participate my satisfaction in the present state of the resources of my government. I will be grateful to your Lordship to observe that the effects of the measures executed during my administration, have removed every impediment to the improvement of our territorial revenues, and that the ordinary expenditure of this Presidency has been so far diminished as to leave an actual surplus applicable to the investment of the East India Company.

"The sacrifice of my feelings by remaining in India under the injurious orders which I have had the mortification to receive from the Court of Directors, will be compensated in some measure by the opportunity afforded to me, of stating to your Lordship this favorable result of my administration. During my farther continuance to preside in this Government, I shall endeavor, with the most anxious solicitude, to relieve the embarrassment with which our resources were loaded at my arrival, and to improve the ample means of prosperity which have been acquired during my residence in India. I encourage, therefore, a sanguine hope, that at my departure, I shall be enabled to leave the finances of Fort St. George in a condition of contributing substantively to the relief of the affairs of the Company.

"I cannot, however, conceal from your Lordship, that the successful administration of British India is, in my judgment, absolutely dependent on an early revision of the principles on which the Court of Directors appears to be desirous of degrading the Government abroad; and, although the question with respect to myself is decided, I deem it to be my duty to press upon your Lordship's consideration the momentous consequences dependent on the nature of the control to be in future exercised by that body."

W. Wilberforce to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1802, June 5. Broomfield.—"Having seen your Lordship's card when I was in Town on Thursday, I was this morning about to trouble your Lordship with a few lines to explain that I could not do myself the honour of waiting on your Lordship, on account of my being out of town, until Parliament should meet again. I meant likewise, to add a few words on Dr. Smith's subject in consequence of an intimation I received from Mr. and Mrs. Pitt, when I was favored just now with your Lordships note of yesterday. When I complied with Dr. Smith's urgent entreaties, and consented to present his petition and take the chair in his council I told him plainly how numerous my engagements were and how much my indifferent health obstructed my discharge of business. I really however have attended to his concern not remissly, and I believe the report would most likely have been finished, if not presented to the House, ere this time, but for a brother member of the Committee, having undertaken to compile the report and appendix, and after keeping all the papers some time, having returned them on my hands re infecti, from finding as I myself but too well understand, his time so broken in upon, that he could not fulfil his intentions. I say this merely to do myself justice. Yesterday and to day the first days (except Sundays [and] I believe, one single Saturday) I have been able to spend here I have been hard at work on Dr. S[mith]'s business and trust the report will be ready by Monday next, when the House will resume its sittings. It is, however, my real opinion that it would not be unfavourable to Dr. Smith for some delay to take place, and for the report to be taken up in another Parliament, in which opinion I know Lord Glenbervie concurs. But though I say this, I will use my best endeavours to push forward his business in consideration of his feelings; and your Lordship's wishes will furnish a strong additional incitement to the same exertion."

SIR RICHARD KAYE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1802, June 26. Devonshire Street.—"I took the liberty of leaving a print of the Arundel family at your Lordship's door yesterday. It was given me by the old Duke of Norfolk (Edward) a short time before his death. He told me he had only six of seven impressions left of which he gave me two, and two more, he said, for our old friend the late Archbishop of York, who, he remarked, liked prints. Sir Joseph Ayloffe on knowing this, desired me to ask his Grace whether the plate was not destroyed at the fire of Worksop Manor, but I never saw him afterwards. Your Lordship would probably observe that all the children have their mother's striking features, eyes, nose, and lips; and I scarcely know a branch of the Howards but which has preserved them ever since. There has been but one exception which has fallen within my notice."

JOSEPH BONOMI to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.]

1802, October 18. 76 Great Tichfield Street, London.—He is informed that Lord Lowther has not a house in the North and it is believed he wants to build one, if Lord Dartmouth knows him or some of his friends the writer begs to be recommended to him. Prays Lord Dartmouth to excuse the liberties he takes but his plea is the support of his numerous family.

Rev. THOMAS MAURICE to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.]

1803, January 13. British Museum.—Begging Lord Dartmouth's interest in promoting the success of his Modern History of Hindostan.

M. WOOD to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1803, August 20. Llanthony Abbey.—"It would have afforded me a most particular satisfaction could I have confirmed your Lordship's very natural surprize that my time was devoted at this very critical period in raising volunteers to resist the long meditated formidable attack intended against our country. But, my Lord, it is with equal concern, as with astonishment, that you will learn, that so far from Government taking any measures to place the country in that state of preparation and defence which our very critical situation requires, we seem to be a devoted nation, and if by the chance of seasons Buonaparte can land any great body of troops, I am sorry to say that I think his success almost certain.

"I am, my Lord, a sincere well-wisher to Government and no man is more attached to his King and to his country. How mortifying therefore must it be to see my country so wantonly exposed to destruction, solely owing to the want of knowledge and want of ability of those who at this awful period presume to direct public affairs. Our dockyards—Plymouth and Chatham—are in a manner wholly defenceless; our arsenals not supplied with one half the number of arms required at this time and almost every barrel of gunpowder and every stand of arms confined to the City of London, in place of at least 20 different magazines being established in various secure situations throughout the country. Our coasts from their vast extent must necessarily be always subject to insult, and scarcely any force can prevent it, but the most common and self evident precautions have been neglected. As for extensive fortifications to secure our coasts, any idea of the kind is preposterous, but there are certain situations where batteries to act in concert with a small naval force might be erected, with certain great advantage, provided such redoubts or batteries be closed in the rear and secured against any coup de main of an enemy. On many parts of our coasts, batteries or cannon are erected without sense or any professional knowledge, by which means, the instant an enemy lands they will find abundance of artillery provided for them.

"Most of our old experienced officers, to whom in cases of emergency the country would look up, and who, when their country is in danger, would readily give their services in the Cabinet, if they could not be usefully employed in the field, are totally set aside without the smallest regard to their distinguished characters or former services. To my certain knowledge scores of old experienced officers who have passed their lives abroad in the service of their country, and whose service to command corps would at this time be invaluable, have been totally neglected, notwithstanding most pressing tender of services. So far as our regular infantry, small and contemptible as it is in point of number, being recruited with that degree of expedition suitable to situation and circumstances, the neglect is beyond belief, and our militia corps are at this very time, when they ought to be complete only ballotting in several counties for their supplementary militia. Our corps of marines so far from being increased in such manner as to secure subordination in our ships of war, on which the fate of Britain at this time solely depends, is not half the number it ought to be.

"Under those circumstances, I derived some comfort from the General Armament Bill, to reflect that even if our defence was so shamefully neglected in most material points, yet that the energy and spirit of the people would fully compensate, and undoubtedly so it must have operated, had not the Government, in a manner which is to me totally incomprehensible, counteracted and, I must say, prevented every possible exertion. If really, my Lord, they were in the pay of Buonaparte, they could not more essentially forward his views, and heavy indeed must be the responsibility of those who will thus so cruelly risk the safety of their country.

"About the City of London and some of the adjoining counties the spirit of volunteering went forward in a manner highly flattering to the country, and I assured myself that the same spirit, the same energy, and exertion pervaded the whole island. How grievously, therefore, was I disappointed, to find in my progress to the westward not the smallest exertion, and solely occasioned by the most unaccountable conduct of the Government. In an extent of country of 120 miles—nay I may say all the way from London to Bristol and from Bristol to Milford Haven—I do not believe that there are 1000 troops, or one barrel of gunpowder, or one stand of small arms. At Bristol a corps of 1200 volunteers had re-embodied themselves and only asked the loan of arms and after upwards of a month—if not two months—delay in answering their letter, they are still left in uncertainty by an equivocal sort of answer whether they are to have arms or not. Another corps of 150 gentlemen volunteered to arm discipline and accoutre themselves as cavalry, and after a delay of many weeks no answer is received. Another corps of 1200 gentlemen and merchants in Bristol offered their services under Aldermen D'Aubany and Daniel—two of the most patriotic leading men of the place, but no answer received. In short, my Lord, every man believes that Government have already obtained more men for our defence than what is required and they do not wish for any more, and Mr. Addington's last bill to dispose with the services of such parts of his subjects as he may judge necessary, has completely confirmed every person in this belief.

"At the same time, Bristol, and the whole of our coasts and ports, from Lands End to Liverpool are so defenceless, that two French frigates with 500 men landing at King's Road, would lay Bristol in ashes.

"As for myself, I have tendered my own poor services in any way whatever in which they can be useful. I first waited on the Duke of York and had many, many bows and thanks. I afterwards tendered my services to his Royal Highness, through my old masters the East India Company, and had a most polite answer. Finding nothing done, and being one of the Deputy Lieutenants of Surrey, and not wishing to be totally idle, I offered to take 13 companies of riflemen for the 13 hundreds of Surrey, provided Government would assist me with arms, to be again returned into store so soon as the service was over, and after waiting ten days I was referred to Lord Hobart, to whom I again wrote, particularly pressing for a letter by return of post, but I do not expect any answer for these two months, and most likely it will be an evasive one. For the purpose of drawing a speedy answer, I told his Lordship that I knew where to find 500 stand of rifle arms totally unemployed, provided I should have the loan of them.

"In short, my Lord, sorry, sorry, am I to say that unless our good genius evermore presides over the safety of Great Britain, our destiny is determined, and what is most provoking, that this country is full of resources, also of men who, as soldiers, I really think if properly disciplined and commanded, are superior to all other men in the world. Nothing, my Lord, but the high respect which I have for your Lordship's most respectable talents and virtues, could have possibly induced me to have said one word upon so delicate and so interesting a subject, and I have therefore taken the liberty to commit myself without the smallest difficulty or reserve. I most sincerely hope that my apprehensions may not be equally prophetic in regard to England, as they were in respect to Malta and Egypt."

M. Wood to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1803, August 20. Llanthony Abbey.—This estate was granted by Cromwell to one of his officers named Arnold and some of the oldest people recollect his living in a part of the old Abbey. After the death of Arnold it was purchased by Lord Oxford and I bought it from the present lord about two or three years ago. Had a trifle of money been laid out upon repairs this beautiful old ruin might have been preserved for ages, but by neglect within the last five years the most beautiful parts of the old Abbey have been destroyed. The whole of the western front gave way during the night, in the course of last winter, at which time I had masons employed in the repair, and now it is so much destroyed that after spending a few hundred pounds in endeavouring to restore the old building I fear I must desist, I have, however, by pointing and securing the walls saved some considerable part of the ruin for at least half a century.

Miss A. HAYMAN to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1803, November 5. Wrexham.—Requesting Lord Dartmouth's assistance on behalf of Dr. Burney who in consequence of the expense of the times and the thoughtless extravagance of some of his children has been driven to the necessity of resuming the tiresome profession of music master at a very advanced age.

HENRY JAMES PYE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1804, May 20. West End near Pinner.—Submitting for Lord Dartmouth's perusal the ode for his Majesty's ensuing birthday.

Poem enclosed commences

As the blest guardian of the British Isles.

ends

Brave in their country's cause who triumph or who bleed.

LORD NELSON and BRONTÉ to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1804, May 23. The Victory.—"I have been favoured with your letter of March 24th respecting Mr. John Frederick Parker of the Gibraltar, Your Lordship need not have made any excuse recommending any person to me and I should be happy, did opportunity offer of promotion in this country, but none of us will die, and Mr. La Touche Treville will not come out and kill some of us or give us an opportunity, which we should eagerly embrace, of taking some of his fleet. The Gibraltar has just joined the fleet and I shall receive Mr. Parker into the Victory. He bears a most excellent character from his Captain."

Dr. BURNEY to the DIRECTORS of the CONCERT OF ANCIENT MUSIC.

1804, May 27. Chelsea College.—Thanking them for the liberal testimony of esteem and approbation with which he has been honoured.

Mrs. SARAH SIDDONS to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1804, June 30. Strawberry Hill.—"Encouraged by some friends who have the advantage of being well acquainted with your character, and whose good will and solicitude for my welfare I may well be pardoned for being proud of, I presume to hope your lordship will not only forgive the liberty I take in addressing you, but also that your habitual benevolence will be gratified in doing good to me. That I may not trespass on your lordship's time, or increase my own diffidence which grows upon me every moment while I am making this effect, I will come at once to the point. My health, my Lord, has lately been very precarious, living in London disagrees with me exceedingly and my professional duties will not allow me to be at any distance from thence, but might I, through your lordship's goodness, be allowed to hope for an appointment in Kensington Palace. I am confident that not only my ability to pursue that profession, would be greatly facilitated by the improvement of my health, but that I should thereby enjoy the remainder of my laborious life in that quiet and comfort, which I find to be incompatible with a residence in London. In a situation so gratifying to my wishes, and so necessary to my health (should I be thought not unworthy to attain it) the most pleasing occupation of my mind would be a sentiment of unceasing and heartfelt gratitude towards the goodness which had placed me in a state of so much enjoyment." Holograph.

EDWARD DUKE OF KENT to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH, Lord Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household.

1804, July 17. Castle Hill Lodge near Great Ealing—"His Majesty has acquainted me with his intention of taking Lord Bute's apartments at Kensington Palace from him (as he knows he does not use them himself) and allotting them for the accommodation of Princess Charlotte and her attendants, as also of giving the Prince of Wales' apartments (those now occupied by Mrs. Wynyard) together with all the private rooms of the late Queen, which are understood to be those immediately at the back of the Queen's state, drawing, and dining room, and those behind the Queen's gallery communicating with Mrs. Meynell's (which also forms a part of them) to the Princess of Wales. This he stated as an arrangement to which he had made up his mind, after giving the subject much consideration, and to carry which into effect, it was his determination to take an early day of riding over to my apartments at the Palace, and then going over the others with Mr. Wyatt. From the mention of this circumstance I am led further to suggest to your Lordship's consideration (as I conclude it must be your wish to Mrs. Wynyard and her family not to suffer from being displaced if it possiby can be avoided) whether it would not be advisable, in the event of the demise of Mrs. Rowe, which, I understand, is shortly expected, to make no promise in the first instance as to the disposal of her apartments in favor of any person, as thereby, when Mrs. Wynyard's are required by his Majesty, your Lordship would at once be enabled to accommodate her without difficulty or delay. Your Lordship will excuse my suggesting this to you, but it occurred to me as a circumstance that might possibly escape your attention, and which appeared, nevertheless, worthy of thought, as it certainly will tend to obviate objections to the King's plans, that would otherwise inevitably occur." He suggests an alteration to the entrance to the Lord Chamberlain's apartments.

HENRY F. GREVILLE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1804, July 27. 7, Princes Street, Cavendish Square.—"I was looking over some papers when the enclosed met my eye. I had drawn out this hasty sketch of my notions, before the Amateur closed, and though I think, in all human probability, I shall not be able to take an active concern in the undertaking treated upon, yet I confess I am enthusiastic enough in the cause to wish to see the plan adopted, from whatever quarter it may derive support. If his Majesty would grant either a patent or even a licence, I am sure society might reap very considerable benefit from a greater encouragement being administered to the exertion of talent supported by refinement and taste. In almost all countries, excepting this, there is some establishment partaking of a mingled form betwixt public and private and wholly under the management of independent gentlemen. Where gain alone is the object, private advantage and comfort cannot be supposed to carry attractions, and no improvement will be made in the taste of the age when criticism is to fall to the lot of a gallery. Pardon me for troubling you with these hasty reflections. When you have read the enclosed, you may dispose of them as you think proper. You have the power if you possess the inclination certainly of granting to the public as well as to private society, the means of increasing its national amusements."

Enclosure.—"To the Lord Chamberlain. The Amateur Concert having given universal content, it is in contemplation to carry it on yearly, and to that end to take the Pantheon and fit it up for the purpose, which will occasion a considerable expense. In order to defray this expense the managers would be obliged to the Lord Chamberlain if he would grant them the same licence which belonged to Sir John Gallini and which now is useless in his hands. They shall then open the Pantheon to the public twice a week with music and dancing. There is another purpose they would also put this building to when completed, and that is to the limited representation of genuine comedy and approved good tragedy. As the theatres are now organized and as their size is now enlarged, neither actors or audience can receive gratification when the ear is to hear a greater share in the evening's entertainment than the eye. I know several very approved authors who would write for a little well conducted theatre like the one I propose to have, who would shrink from bringing out their performances at Drury Lane or Covent Garden. My proposal is then, that his Majesty should sanction dramatic performances at the Pantheon twice a week commencing on the Queen's birthday, and ending on the King's. The prices to be,—two shillings, gallery; four shillings, pit; six shillings boxes, and the house not to contain more than 600 persons; the nights of performance to be Tuesdays and Saturdays. This arrangement could not interfere with any of the theatres, while it would present a facility for many persons of taste to attend performances from which Punch and Harlequin and Bears and Bolognas are entirely banished. Independent of the comfort held out to men of real genius, there is no small share offered to the modesty of our female admirers of true genuine drama. Framed as our theatres are, out of a private box, can an unprotected female now venture or even protected, does she ever sit out a whole play and regain her carriage without either actual insult or continued dread of experiencing it? It surely is a very great hardship on the inhabitants of this augmented metropolis to be denied one little place of public resort where true criticism unbiassed and unbullied, may rescue merit from undeserved condemnation, while it will not scruple to impart censure, when found to have been fairly excited. Of 600 persons attending these nights amusements, I will venture to assert not twenty would otherwise have attended the public theatres; but, granting the whole number was drawn from the theatres, what right and title have these establishments to a monopoly of the whole town. The patents were granted to a small town and small theatres. As the town extended, the size of playhouses have augmented. As theatres for the representation of the drama they are no longer appropriate. Actors in ordinary plays can no longer command interest or draw applause; all must be strained, from the actor's tone and action to the hearer's eye and ear. Immense profit may be made, but merit is confined to bodily strength and mechanic ingenuity. I repeat therefore, my request which is to be licenced to open the Pantheon to the public, four times a week, viz.—Mondays and Fridays, music and dancing; Tuesdays and Saturdays, drama; and Fridays, the Amateur concert, private. No patent is required, only a licence. Drury Lane now monopolizes a spare one, for she has a patent locked up and acts upon a licence. Let her yield up her licence and act upon her dormant patent. No fortune is to be amassed, not even money made by this plan proposed, but the accommodation and satisfaction it would generally impart, is scarcely conceivable. I have never heard an objection raised against it; even the proprietors of regular theatres ought to support it, if they have ought in view but the accumulating of money."

LORD NELSON and BRONTE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1804, August 13. The Victory.—"With the view of meeting your Lordship's wishes as speedily as possible, I took Mr. Parker from the Gibraltar the moment she joined, but having received the enclosed letter from him, I have, against my opinion of the propriety of the measure, given him my permission. Capt. Rynes spoke of his conduct in the handsomest manner."

Enclosure.—Letter from J. F. Parker requesting to be discharged into the first ship going to England.

HENRY F. GREVILLE to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1804, October 12. Margate.—"First of all I fancy that the Pantheon is not in a situation to please the generality of people who may like to patronise any new undertaking, and secondly, there are so many proprietors, that I believe it would be difficult to make them agree among one another. I have therefore, said nothing to them respecting a licence, which perhaps however, they have obtained. I do perfectly join with your Lordship in thinking that a great deal of opposition would be made by the proprietors of the three winter playhouses, to any establishment calculated to attract any, even the smallest part of that community which they choose to engross and monopolize to themselves, autant gagné par les autres est perdu pour eux, and that is their maxim; but the question is whether improvement and utility are to be prevented shooting forth to maturity because the individual interests of three patentees whose affairs are most flourishing are to be in some measure rivalled. I have lately had a great deal of conversation with Mr. Braham on the subject of the encouragement which ought in this country to be given to music, and he seems very willing to head any establishment which would answer so desirable an end and not subject him to risk, either pecuniary or personal. There certainly is even now in this country sufficient musical talent of British growth to render success in an attempt to exclude foreign competition, very probable, and I think it may be very fairly urged that, circumstanced as the playhouses and the opera now are, London and its society could very well bear the addition of a moderate sized public theatre where, twice a week, musical amusements might be given on a novel plan, and calculated to encourage home-bred merit, and be more congenial to the tastes as well as the habits of a certain class of people who (and it is their own fault) are rather more in the background than they ought to be. There is now a spot vacant in Albemarle Street particularly well calculated to answer the end proposed; it is my Lord Suffield's house and ground adjoining, in which a very fine room might be erected, capable of answering more purposes than one. I once submitted to the Dilettante, a plan for removing their meetings thither and putting that society on a more extensive scale; and Mr. Knight with whom I had frequent conferences on the subject, much approved it, as it tallied with one he had of his own. Now my opinion is, that if a licence which should preclude all acting of tragedy and comedy, could be given for a certain time—subject to recall if the grounds on which it is given are invaded—there would be found a sufficient number of active capable gentlemen who not only would embark their property on the undertaking, but would have sufficient influence with the great world to make it succeed. With the town it must prove popular as it would flatter national vanity, and, as the public meetings are to be restrained to two days in the week the same locale would serve for the yearly Amateur which would not take about eight nights in the season. I did not intend troubling your Lordship with my thoughts on the above subject till we met in London, but having accidentally fallen in with Braham at this place and conversed with him upon it, I felt tempted to give you my sentiments, and I do really think that if the matter was properly and fully laid before and understood by the King he would not refuse his sanction to a measure, the usefulness of which (to say no more) must be so apparent to every thinking mind."

JOHN HALE to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1804, October 18.—"I have sent the licence for Mrs. Goldsmith. There can be no objection to her having it but the proprietors of the other theatres are sometimes apt to be clamorous when the little Theatre is very frequently opened Lord S. granted the licence for plays with very few exceptions only to decayed players and musical people. It would indeed be often an act of charity to withhold the benefit licence as I have heard from Mr. Jewell that not one in three is ever reimbursed for the expense and trouble attending it. I have just heard that we have taken three Spanish frigates."

EDWARD, DUKE OF KENT to LORD DARTMOUTH.

1804, November 24. Kensington Palace.—Asking for the loan of the Lord Chamberlain's apartments at Kensington Palace for his brother Augustus, Duke of Sussex, until the apartments occupied by Mrs. Middleton can be procured, on account of the Duke of Sussex's extreme ill-health, &c. The only accommodation he at present has is one page's room at Carlton House and "I leave your Lordship to judge what he must suffer in such a lodging subject as he is to daily severe attacks of an incurable asthmatic complaint."

The EARL OF DARTMOUTH to the DUKE OF KENT.

1804, November 24.—Your royal Highness' letter has thrown me into a dilemma, from which I find it difficult to extricate myself, after the circumstances you mention, had I considered myself at liberty I would have made an immediate offer of the temporary use of the Lord Chamberlain's apartments at Kensington Palace to the Duke of Sussex, but Captain Paget has in all probability just become possessed of the temporary use of these rooms with his bride. Draft.

JOHN SPENCER to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1804, November. Wheatfield House, Tetsworth.—Asking for Lord Dartmouth's interest on behalf of Andrew Loder a violin player of Bath who is anxious to get into the Birthday Band. "His pretensions to your favour are these:—Himself and four others, whom he engages, always pass their summers at Weymouth and play at the Theatre, Balls, Rooms, and to amuse the Queen during dinner. They are excellent musicians, but what they can (with their utmost exertions) earn at Weymouth, is nothing adequate to their merits. The Queen and Princesses, sensible of this, offered (two years ago) to endeavour to procure him a situation in the Birthday Band and the Princess Elizabeth actually continued to get his name put upon Lord Salisbury's list of candidates."

PHILIP ASTLEY to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1804, December 3. "Hercules Hall, Hercules Buildings."—"My Lord, Mr. Astley, senior, equestrian artist, most humbly solicits your Lordship to grant him a licence, for the winter months, within your Lordship's jurisdiction, for music to accompany various new equestrian entertainments, and which, my Lord, are intended to be exhibited on horses, perfectly calm to every object: their action in pure cadence; strictly conformable to musical expression. The rising generation, both military and civil, may witness a useful and strong example in the noble elements d'equitation. Such, my Lord, are the amusements intended to be performed by my pupils; immediately under my eye and direction, in a place to be called 'Astley's Equestrian Pavilion.' Your Lordship is most respectfully informed that the severe loss of my property, which took place at one and the same time in the year 1803, by the dreadful conflagration at the Amphitheatre, Westminster Bridge, and which property, to the amount of thirty thousand pounds, was totally lost. And at that period, escaping from Paris, being there, by my Sovereign's permission, leaving a freehold estate called Amphitheatre des Artists et Professeurs d'equitation, and licensed by the present government of France, for my life; which property is valued at seven thousand pounds, has placed such substance, which I acquired by forty-two years study and labour, in a very unpleasant situation: and although I am at the advanced age of sixty-three, I am desirous, by a respectable vigilance on my part, if possible, to extricate from all encumbrance; and which my Lord, I have every reason to hope, may be fully accomplished by a positive exertion of my little equestrian merit, in my native country, by and with your Lordship's approbation and sanction to my requests, and which, my Lord will ever be remembered with gratitude."

FRANCIS KNIGHT to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1805, March 15. Park Row, Knightsbridge.—Resigning the office of Bookseller and Stationer to the King and calling attention to certain irregularities in the supply of stationery to the King's Libraries. Seal.

W. WILBERFORCE to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1805, May 11. Broomfield, Clapham Common.—"It was only latish last night that I heard that a general meeting of the Society for the Suppression of Vice was to be held on Monday next, on a subject which will be more fully explained to your Lordship in a paper which I shall have the honor to enclose; and not being able conveniently to go to town this morning, I have resolved to trouble your Lordship with a few lines, a step to which I am encouraged by the impression I retain of the friendly manner in which your Lordship has always treated me. I address your Lordship in your character as president of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, on an occasion which appears to me to be in the highest degree important to its interests. I am aware that you cannot have time to attend to the detail of the Society's proceedings, but probably your Lordship might not think it improper to come forward for the purpose of preserving the harmony of the Society and preventing the many and great evils which an open rupture, on such a ground as that in question, would infallibly produce. It strikes me, however, that as all who attend the meeting on Monday will come prepared either to affirm or to deny the lawfulness and expediency of using deceit in the detection of offenders, it would neither be fair or eligible to call on them suddenly for an opinion on a proposition of a different tenor, and, therefore, that it would be best to notify the middle proposition stated in the enclosed paper, and then adjourn for a fortnight or three weeks to afford time for considering it. If this course meets with your Lordship's approbation, a hint from you would probably ensure its adoption. While I am writing on this subject, allow me to add that I was very unwillingly drawn into any contest on the principles of the Society's proceedings, being well aware of the bad consequences which result from such divisions among men who profess to be all united for the suppression of vice. But it really appeared to me indispensable to oppose the establishment of the principle of resorting to fraud and deceit, as it was laid down in the report of the committee, and my sense of the mischiefs likely to follow from our admission of such a principle was greatly heightened by a letter which was sent round to the members of the Society in order to support the doctrine of its being lawful to use fraud, &c, as well as what was said by different members in speaking in defence of the same position. Your Lordship and I have both lived long enough in the world to be aware of the effects likely to ensue to the credit and (as efficiency much depends on credit) on the efficiency of our Society, by its being known that many of its members have been forced to withdraw because they would not sanction the principle of using deceit to discover and punish offenders, especially when we take into account that great aggravations and misrepresentations will, as usually happens, take place. Now, would it not be well to prevent all this, by adopting a middle term—a compromise, which, without requiring either party to give up its principles, secures the common harmony. Supposing the Society to do less good than it would be able to effect if the free use of deceit were retained—though this may well be doubted from the experience of a former Society of which it was a rule that no deceit should be used—yet, would the difference be worth purchasing at the price which must be paid for it? But I will detain your Lordship no longer than while I apologise for troubling you at all. I regret not knowing sooner, the Society was to meet on Monday next but on thinking this morning, with some anxiety, on the question which is coming forward, it occurred to me to be right to make an effort, however weak, to prevent that separation and breach, which, unless some compromise can be devised, must, I fear, be the consequence. If your Lordship approves of the idea I have thrown out, your Lordship will, perhaps, short as the interval is, adopt some mode of ascertaining the sentiments of some of the vice-presidents and leading members of the Society, and of procuring their support. I will only add, that if any other compromise, really such, could be devised, I daresay there would be in those who think as I do, every disposition to adopt it."

Postscript:—"I beg your Lordship will not trouble yourself to answer this letter at length. Any line with which you may favor me had better be directed to me in Old Palace Yard; and if any interview should be desirable I could wait on your Lordship before the meeting takes place, at one exactly, at the Crown and Rolls, Chancery Lane, on Monday next."

LORD HAWKESBURY to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1805, July 4. St. James' Square.—I have this day received his Majesty's commands to inform you that, in consequence of the complaint in his eyes, he has judged it most prudent to defer his projected tour till another year, and he intends immediately after the Prorogation of Parliament to proceed to Weymouth. He regrets that any circumstances should have prevented his visiting you this summer, and would be much obliged if you would undertake to lay the first stone of the new church at Birmingham in his name.

LORD HOOD to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1806, January 11, Greenwich.—"Since your Lordship's letter by Mr. Beckwith, I have received a second, in which you request I will present in your Lordship's name to the Hospital, the funeral car which conveyed to the grave the remains of the late Viscount Nelson there to remain as a permanent memorial of the gratitude a generous nation is ever willing to shew to the memory of those heroes who have fallen gloriously in its naval service. With very great pleasure I shall obey your Lordship's command."

The EARL OF CHATHAM to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1806, February 6. St. James' Square.—Has received Lord Dartmouth's letter stating that he thought all the preparations would be in readiness for the last sad ceremony to take place on 22nd inst. If Lady Chatham's health will permit he will certainly take upon him the melancholy office of attending as chief mourner, but it is impossible for him to lay before Lord Dartmouth as soon as to-morrow the names of such friends of his brother as he should be desirous should fill the other melancholy duties to which Lord Dartmouth alludes. Lady Chatham has not gained any ground for two or three days past.

J. G. S. LISLE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1806, February 19.—Despite his efforts, events, which he could not control, have detained him in London, and chased him to the brink of ruin. He proposes to hasten to Italy whose shores must shortly become the theatre of active operations, and where he may expect an opportunity again to earn and again to wear the laurel of honour. He begs Lord Dartmouth to give him a trifle to cover his expenses of embarking with the convoy at Portsmouth. Endorsed Major Limple the noted swindler. Note—there is a similar letter to Lord Dartmouth dated 17 March 1808.

KING GEORGE III. to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1806, February 28. Windsor Castle.—Declaring his intention to appoint Sir Francis Milman, Physician in Ordinary, in the place of the late Dr. Gisborne. Signed.

GEORGE PRICHARD, Secretary to the Society for the Suppression of Vice to [the EARL OF DARTMOUTH].

1806, July 17. 31 Essex Street, Strand.—Having received applications from various persons residing in Windsor and the neighbourhood for the Society's interference to protect the Sabbath from a general and systematic violation, and feeling embarrassed by scruples of respect and delicacy as to the propriety of extending its activity to the place of the King's residence, and within the sphere of the example of the royal family, it requests Lord Dartmouth's advice as to the conduct most becoming in them to pursue on this occasion.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE to the EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

1808, March 7.—Requesting him to put off the drawing room until next week on account of Princess Amelia having the measles.

B[EILBY PORTEUS], BISHOP OF LONDON, to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

[1808] April 5. St. James' Square.—Considers it his duty to lay before Lord Dartmouth a complaint which had been made to him founded upon the text Deut. xxii. 5 "The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth to man." Who Mr. Wilkinson is, he does not know, he is one of those many correspondents who think themselves entitled to write to him on all kinds of subjects. Encloses Lord Dartmouth a copy of his correspondent's letter.

Enclosure:—Copy of a letter, unsigned, and undated calling attention to a notice in the papers that Madame Catalini's benefit was fixed for "the seventh," when she was to appear in male attire in a new piece entitled "The Feasts of Isis." The writer would first call attention to the above text, and asks if the Lord Chamberlain, and the Bishop of London, will suffer such gross violations of an express command of the Almighty. In the next place in regard to the opera itself. What have they to do with Egyptian abominations. Surely "the land is defiled, the Feasts of Isis in a Christian country and exhibited before the nobles, the priests, and the rulers of our land, and this in the solemn season of Lent."

Appended is the Draft of Lord Dartmouth's answer to the Bishop :—

"Your letter, which I had the honour to receive yesterday, has given me some uneasiness, as every letter which contains hints and suggestions from your Lordship must do, whenever I find myself from any cause incapable of profiting by them. If Mad^{me} Catalani, from a spirit of mean cupidity, chooses to decorate herself in male attire, I do not see how the Lord Chamberlain can interfere to prevent it, without at the same time taking steps to abolish the practice of either sex, as the text in Deuteronomy extends to both, assuming the dress of the other and upon the national theatres, a practice so inveterate, that I much doubt whether the power of the Lord Chamberlain would be of avail to prevent it. With us it is as old as our stage itself, and your Lordship will recollect that all Shakspear's characters of women were originally acted by men, and some of the best of his plays as well as others of establish'd reputation upon the stage depend wholly for their plot upon disguise of sex and could not be represented if any such prohibition were now at last to issue. It is not for me to offer to your Lordship any comment upon the text in question, but is the change of attire for the purpose of theatrical representation necessarily comprehended within it; at any rate an usage which has extended itself for more than two centuries seems to require greater powers than those of a Lord Chamberlain to counteract it."

CHARLES ABBOT to [LORD DARTMOUTH].

1808, April 27. Palace Yard.—" Some time ago I desired the Duke of Portland would lay before his Majesty my humble request that he would be pleased to command a portrait of himself to be placed in the principal apartment of this house, which his Majesty has (upon the address of the House of Commons) assigned to the use of the Speaker for the time being. To-day, the Duke of Portland, as your Lordship will see by the inclosed letter, (which I will thank you to return to me) has been graciously pleased to accede to my request, and the next step suggested is for me to trouble you. Pray tell me how I am to set about this in a proper way and, above all, how I can best contrive to get something better than a daub for the place in which [I] intend to place this same portrait. It may as well be made to suit the size and light of the place for which it is destined, and if so, the limner (whose name I really do not know) may as well look at it beforehand. I have really some anxiety that this memorial of the royal donor of this house to my predecessors and successors, should be somewhat suited to the veneration which we all feel towards our royal master."

WALTER SCOTT to the Right Hon. ROBERT DUNDAS.

1808 [June 7]. Edinburgh.—" I write you hastily, at the desire of Lord Chief Baron and Justice Clerk, who are anxious about the state of the Edinburgh theatre, the patent of which is now at an end. Upon the last renewal, it stood in the names of Lord Melville and the Duke of Hamilton. Lord Melville, having more material things in hand, took no interest in the management, the Duke gave his interest for value received to Mrs. Esten. The C[hief] Baron, Duke of Buccleugh, &c., &c., have judged it will be very advisable to have the patent vested in some public persons, and one or two people connected with literature as trustees for the public, who will of course lease the house from term to term to such managers as shall show themselves most disposed to exert themselves for the public amusement. The Chief Baron did me the honour to ask me to be a patentee among others, and to take some charge of the thing. But we are now informed that the representatives of Jackson who held the last patent but one, are, underhand, endeavouring to get the patent renewed in their name, which cannot but be attended with the ruin of the concern. We are therefore very anxious that no advantage should be taken, and that to prevent it, a caveat should be lodged in the Lord Chamberlain's office, under the Duke of Buccleuch's countenance, and yours, to keep matters open and entire. A Mr. James Campbell, solicitor-at-law, will wait upon you to have your advice and countenance before lodging such a caveat, and I hope it will be convenient for you to see him for five minutes. I have furnished him with two lines as a sort of credentials for intruding upon you, and I really hope you will have so far compassion upon the miserable state of our theatre, as to give your aid in preventing the patent becoming, for the third time, a private job. All your friends here entertain the same sense and views concerning this subject, but perhaps you may think it necessary to speak two words to the Duke upon the subject, whose sentiments, I believe, coincide with those I have already expressed."—Holograph.

1808, June 10. Sefton House.—Report of the Committee appointed to consider the plan for building a New Opera Theatre.

Robert Dundas to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1808, June 11. Downing Street.—Enclosing a letter from Mr. Walter Scott "with whose political talents you are probably well acquainted and whose preliminary request respecting the Edinburgh Theatre to prevent a patent being granted without due inquiry into its circumstances seems very reasonable."

Sir Joseph Banks to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1808, November 21. Soho Square.—Has sent Lord Dartmouth 200 Cranberry plants enough to plant a new bed, at the distance of 18 inches from plant to plant.

Henry Siddons to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1809, September 19. Edinburgh.—Having invested all his money and involved himself in debt in building a theatre in Edinburgh, upon the strength of the King's Patent, he begs that a licence may not be granted to Miss Jackson to act plays in Edinburgh.

R. B. Sheridan to the Earl of Dartmouth.

1810, May 1.—"A copy of the performers' petition having been refused by them to the proprietors, I have but this moment received through Mr. Arnold a copy of the same, coming, I believe, though not officially, from your Lordship's office. I cannot sufficiently express my astonishment at the contents of this extraordinary performance, which is, from the first word of it to the last, as devoid of truth as it is of gratitude and justice; the parties signing having thus most unfairly concealed both the wording and object of their petition, in order that it might be delivered to his Majesty before their employers could have an opportunity of exposing their fallacious statements. I do most earnestly, on behalf of the proprietors, the Drury Lane trustees, the renters, and all the other just claimants on the destroyed property, appeal to your Lordship's candour and justice to allow them a few days to state their case, in order that a paper so injurious and unfounded, may be accompanied, at the time it is submitted to his Majesty, by a full refutation of all its contents, a statement which will on our part be dictated under at least as respectful and dutiful a deference to his Majesty's gracious pleasure as can have influenced the subscribers to the petition in question."

Various Royal and other Letters.

1806–1824. Letters from George III. (1804–5), the Duke of Cambridge (1804), Frederick Duke of York (1806), George Prince of Wales (1806), the Duke of Orleans (1806), Princess Elizabeth (1806), the Princess of Wales (1809–10), Princess Augusta (1824), and Mrs. Siddons, of no particular interest.

INDEX.

A.

- Abbot, Charles, letter of, 292.
- Abdala, Almocadem, 52.
- Abercrombie, Sir James, 86, 87, 89.
- Aberdeen:
  - letter dated at, 208.
  - University, Beattie professor at, 202.
- Abingdon:
  - Lord (1688), 133.
  - —— (1736), 155.
- Acheen, 259.
- Acuna:
  - Henrique de, 38.
  - Isabell, da, 39.
- Adams:
  - John, 26.
  - Mr., 221.
- Addington, Mr., 282.
- Admiralty, 124.
  - letter dated at, 177.
  - Commissioners of, Lords of, 45, 71, 100, 104, 121 bis, 123, 148.
  - —— letters to, 45–48.
  - Powers of the First Lord of, 179.
  - Court of (Scotland), 102.
- Albani, Madame, 237.
- Albemarle, 10.
  - Duke of, death of, 58.
  - —— (1638), 124.
  - Earl of (1712), 91, 92, 94.
  - —— defeat of, at Denaine, 90.
  - the "late" Duchess of, 147.
- Aldborough, co. Suffolk, 7.
- Alderne, Knightly, 26.
- Alderney Island, 57, 67.
- Ale and beer, 98.
  - Excise of, 96.
- Ale, "Ashburton pop," 210.
- Algarotti, 166.
- Algava, hills of (Portugal), 227.
- Algiers, 46, 47, 106.
  - corsairs of, 46.
  - proceedings of the French before, 51.
- Alienations, office of, 101.
- Allahabad, treaty of, 271.
- Allan, Captain, 38.
- Allen, 109.
  - agent of Erasmus Smith, 117.
  - John, accusation against him and his son, 226.
- Allies, the, in the War of the Spanish Succession, 72–84 passim.
- Allin, Captain, 56.
- Allington, Lord (1683), 123.
- Alnage, 97.
- Alphonso, King of Portugal, 25.
- Alsop, Roger, 38.
- Alster (?), 119.
- Allway, Robert, 120.
  - letter of, 120.
- Alum, Shah, 261.
- Alvarez, Juan, S. G. and E. F., 38.
- Alwinkle, advowson of, 186.
- Ambassadors, envoys, &c.:
  - Austrian at Naples, 224.
  - Danish at Stockholm, 196.
  - French at Naples, 224.
  - —— at Vienna, 247.
  - Prussian at Stockholm, 196.
  - Spanish at Naples, 224.
  - —— at Paris, 223.
  - Fanshaw, Sir Richard, envoy extraordinary at Lisbon, 45.
  - Finch, John, at Constantinople, 27.
  - Goodricke, Sir John, at Stockholm, 196, 197.
  - Hamilton, Sir W., at Naples, 224.
  - Harvey, Sir Daniel, at Constantinople, 27.
  - Parry, Fras., Charles II.'s agent in Portugal, 27.
  - Count de Very, Sardinian Ambassador in France, 222.
  - Plenipotentiaries at Utrecht, 91.
- America, 71, 182, 259.
  - loss of, 265, 266.
  - news from, 221.
  - War of Independence, 222, 254–256.
  - —— effects of, in England, 220.
  - North-west parts of, 212.
  - a Secretary of State for, 182.
- Amherst, Lord (1795), 275.
- Amory, Thomas, letter of, 272.
- Amsterdam, 8 bis, 128, 245, 246, 247, 248.
- Anderton, Sir Francis, 146.
  - his marriage, 146.
- Andover, Lord and Lady, 158, 159.
- Angelo, M. See Pictures.
- Anglesea, Lord (1736), 155.
- Anne:
  - Queen, 72–90 passim, 95, 146, 147, 149–151.
  - —— as princess, 122, 124, 126.
  - —— —— her coach, 126.
  - —— —— her husband. See George, Prince, of Denmark.
- Annesly, Mr., 2, 3 ter.
- Anspach, Margravate of, 247.
- Antigua, 71, 199.
- Antiquaries, Society of, presidency of, 277.
- Aprés, letter dated at, 95.
- Apsley, Sir Allen:
  - death of, 125.
  - letter of, 121.
- Aranjo, Alphonso de, 38.
- Arc, Joan of, her monument at Orleans, 221.

Arcadians, the, 225, 226.
Arcot, Nabob of, 260.
Artic exploration, 212.
Argyle:
    Marquess of, 99.
    family, 160, 161, 162.
Armorer, Sir Michael, 120.
Armour, arms, the armoury, 1–5.
Armstrong, Colonel, 91.
Army, 104.
    state of, in 1803, 281.
        See Regiments, Soldiers, Troops, Artillery.
Arnold:
    Mr., 293.
    one of Cromwell's officers, 282.
Arran, Lord (1736), 155.
Arras, 73.
Artillery, 99, 136.
Arundel:
    Lady (1708), 147.
    family, 180.
Ash, Dr. John, 250.
    letters of, 203 (2), 235.
Ashburton, co. Devon, 210.
"Ashburton pop," 210.
Ashby:
    Captain, 55, 68.
    John, 40.
Ashton, Mr., 21.
Asia, North-east parts of, 212.
Astley:
    Mr., senior, his circus, 288.
    Philip, letter of, 288.
Aston, 229.
    letter dated at, 207.
Astrop, co. Northampton, 160, 161, 162.
Athenry, Lord:
    letter of, 156.
    his family affairs, 156.
Atley, co. Kildare, 119.
Atwood, Walter, 27.
Aungier, Lord, 114, 115.
Austria:
    Emperor of, 73.
    House of, 151, 152.
    Princess of, 95.
Avesnes le Sesque, 89.
    letter dated at, 88.
Aylesford:
    Earl of, letter of, 152, 155.
    —— his children Lady Anne and Frances Finch, 153, 155, 159.
    —— (1791–5), 274, 275.
    —— —— letter of, 275.
Ayleway, Robert. See Allway.
Aylmer:
    G., 40.
    Captain George, 40, 51.
    M., 40.
Ayloffe, Sir Joseph, 280.
Aylward, Henry, 38.
Aynho, co, Northampton, 162.

B.

Babell, Owen, 38.
Bacon, J., letter of, 275.
Bacher, Frederick, a Tangier's commissioner, 34, 36, 38.
Bagot:
    Sir Walter, 152.
    —— his wife Barbara, daughter of Lord Dartmouth, 152, 164, 165.
    —— his son's illness, 161.
    —— his family, 158.
    Sir William and Lady, death of their children, 203.
    Dr., 217.
Bahamas, Browne, governor of, 248.
Balam, Alexander, 38.
Balasore, 265.
Ballandyne, Harry, 160.
    —— his nephew Bruce, 160.
Ballileige, 111.
Baltimore, Lady (1739), 161
Banbury, co. Oxon, 162, 163.
    corporation of, 156, 157.
    inhabitants of, 161.
    letter dated at, 156.
    mayor of, 156, 157.
Banker, Dutch commander, 10.
Banks:
    John, 26.
    Sir Joseph, letter of, 293.
    William, 122.
    —— letter of, 126.
Banner, Mary, 24.
Barbadoes, 71.
Barbarini, the, 166.
Barbarossa, an Algerian captain, 6.
Barbary shore, the, 47.
Barebone, Dr., 125.
Barner, Monsieur, 87, 89 bis, 91, 92.
Barnet, letter dated at, 139.
Baroach, 261.
Baronstown, 117.
Barrocio. See Pictures.
Barrow, Dr., P.R.S., 198.
Barrington:
    Lord, letters of 243 (2).
    Mr. Daines, 212, 244. the Hon. Judge, 212.
Barry, Captain, 226.
Barton, —, 74, 75, 77.
Basingstoke, co. Hants, 203.
    letter dated at, 277.
    London Street, 277.
Baskerville:
    John, letter of, 173.
    ——, 273.
Bassett, Sir Francis, 270.
Basten, Mr. Michael, 3.
Bate, Captain, 9.
Bath, co. Somerset:
    Mr. and Mrs. Miller, of, 211.
    Westgate House, 146.
    letter dated at, 193 (2), 194, 249.
    Lady, 192.
    Order of the, 210.
Bath and Wells, Thomas Ken, Bishop of, 39, 53, 59.

Bathurst, Mr. and Mrs., 160.
Batten, Mr., 135.
Battoni, Pompeo, 243.
Bavaria, 247.
  Prince of, 152.
Bawdsey (?), 56.
Bayley :
  Major, 117.
  Hugh, 38.
Baynton, Mr., 276.
Beach, Sir Richard, Naval Commissioner at Portsmouth, 49, 67 bis, 68, 70.
  letter of, 138.
Beachy Head, 57 ter., 59, 62 bis.
  letter dated at, 61.
Beadle, Dick, 139.
Beale, Bartholomew, 4.
Beaston's Mount, Portsmouth, 124.
Beattie, Dr. James, 208.
  his life and works, 202.
  his application for a pension, 202. offered the living of Gosport, 211. made D.C.L. of Oxford, 204.
  his house in Suffolk Street, 204. and the Edinburgh Professorship of Moral Philosophy, 208, 209.
  letters of, 201, 204 (2), 208.
Beaufort, Duke of, 155.
Beaugency (France), 221.
Beaumont, Marquis de, 222.
Becket, Mr., 137.
Beckingham, Henry (1755) :
  pictures belonging to, 170.
  letter to, 171.
Beckman, Major Martin and Sir Martin, 129 bis.
  letter of, 136.
Beckwith, Mr., 290.
Bedfordshire, politics in, 154.
Bedingfeld, 146.
  Mrs., 146.
  her marriage, 146.
Bednore, 266, 267.
Bedwin, 154.
  election at, 153.
Beer. See Ale.
Behar, 262.
Belcamp, letters dated at, 239–242.
Bellewe, Sir John, 119.
  letter of, 117.
Bellingham, co. Louth, 110.
  Captain, 111.
Bell Isle (Portugal), 25.
  a "quinta" named St. Josepha near, 25.
Bellow, Sir John. See Bellewe.
Belong, Lady (1708), 146.
Ben, 137.
Benares, 261, 262.
  Cheyt Sing, Rajah of, 261.
  Treaty of, 261.
Beneficialli. See Pictures.
Bengal, 198, 248, 261–265. letter of British inhabitants of, 258.
Bennett :
  Captain, 7.
  Samuel, 38.
Benning, Humphrey, 26.
Benson, Father Francis, 25.
Bentinck, Mrs., accident to, 196.
Bentincke, Monsieur, 141.
Beresford, Mrs., 161.
Berg, 247.
Berkeley :
  Lord, 51, 57 bis, 58, 59, 69.
  made rear-admiral, 58.
  G., letters of, 205, 208.
  Dr., 218.
  Mrs., 218.
  William, 38.
Berlin, letter dated at, 166.
Berne, B., Engel of, 212.
Berry :
  Head, 67.
  Captain, 16.
  Sir John, 40 passim, 44, 55 bis, 58, 59, 68, 70.
  —— made vice-admiral, 58.
  Duke of, 80, 149, 151.
Bertie, Charles, 143.
Berwick-on-Tweed, plan of, 54.
Berwick, James FitzJames, Duke of, 69, 137, 138, 143.
  warrant of, 138.
Bessborough, Earl of, letter of, 206.
Betty. See Kay.
Beverley :
  Captain, 67.
  Margaret, 39.
Bewdley, election at, 166.
Bickerstaff, Mr. 148.
Bickerton, Sir R., 259.
Biddolph, Mr., 143.
Biddulph, Robert, letters of 174 (2).
Billopp, Captain Christopher, 30, 31.
Birch, Mr., 241.
Bird :
  Thomas, 26.
  William, 26 bis.
Birmingham, 159, 180.
  bridewell at, 251.
  goldsmith's company of, 218.
  hospital at, 235.
  letters dated at, 173, 180, 203 (2), 232, 233, 235, 236, 237, 250, 251, 252.
  petitions from, 214.
  places in :
    Fair Hill, 273, 274.
    Hill Top House, 273.
    Moseley Wake Green, 273.
    Snow Hill, 273.
    Soho, Boulton's factory in, 213.
    —— letter dated at, 198, 213, 218, 234.
  republicans at, 272, 275,
  state of in 1777, 234, 235.
  theatre at, 234,235.
  —— proposed, 232–237.
  Trade of, 198, 199, 234–235.
  my Lord (1670), 113.
Birozzi, Cardinal, his pictures, 171.
Blackheath, co. Kent, 147, 154, 156, 164. conversation held at, 154.
  letters dated at, 152, 182, 200, 209, 253.

Blackheath—cont.
  Lord Dartmouth's house at, 250. value of land at, 165.
Blackstone, Mary, 24.
Blacktail, 56.
Blankenberghe, Blankenburough, 10.
Blanquefort, Marquis de, 21.
Blenheim House, co. Oxon, 161.
Blieth, Elizabeth, 24.
Blithfield, co. Staffs., 158.
Blood, Colonel, his attempt on the regalia, 115.
Boiro, Domingo Dies, 38.
Bolingbroke, St. John, Earl of, 91, 149, 150. See St. John.
Bolland, Mrs., 39.
Boltell, Samuel, 26.
Bombay, 289, 262, 265, 266.
Bonner, Richard, 39.
Bonomi, Joseph, letter of, 280.
Bonus, Mr., 214.
Books, periodicals, &c. See Newspapers:
  The "Tatler," 148.
  "Olney Hymn Book," by Newton and Cowper, 192, 245, 248.
  Gospel Magazine, 210.
  Gibbon's "Decline and Fall," 216.
  Beattie, "Essay on the Nature and Immutability of Truth, &c.," 202.
  —— new edition of, 215.
  Kennicott on the Hebrew Old Testament, 200.
  Burnet's "History," 197.
  a "Virgil" presented to Lord Dartmouth, 174.
  Sir W. Hamilton's Letters, 225.
  Maurice, "Modern History of Hindostan," 280.
  Halsted, "History of Kent," 211.
  Schenchzer's "Itinera Alpina," 205.
  Morrison's History, 214.
  "Paradise Lost," 50.
  "Paradise Regained," 50.
  "Charles Stuart and Oliver Cromwell United," 50.
  An English Bible, 50.
  Sir William Davenant's Works, 50.
  Fuller's "Worthies," 50.
  "The Mystery of Jesuitism," 51.
  Works of King Charles I., 51.
  Prayer Books, 50.
Booth:
  Sir Robert, Chief Justice, 120.
  Sir William, 40, 42, 53, 58, 60, 67.
Bordeaux, merchants, of, 247.
Borghese, Prince, his gardener, 243.
Bosanquet, Mrs., 190.
Bossiere. See Pictures.
Boston, U.S.A.: hostilities near, 216.
  letter dated at 216.
Botham, William, 40.
Bouchain, 95.
  Dutch garrison of, 90.
  surrender of, 95.
Bouffler, Countess de, 223.
Boughton, Mrs., 162.
Boulan, Monsieur. See Bulan.
Boutell, Mr., 26.
Boulton, Matthew, letters of, 198, 213, 218, 234.
Bourbon, the House of, 80.
Bourgo, Marquis del, 151.
Bourke:
  Lady Mary, 113.
  Redmond, 38.
Bovere, Mr., 163.
Bowles, Phineas, secretary to Lord Dartmouth, 142.
  letter of, 140.
Box, Edward, letter of, 156.
  —— letter to, 157.
Boyd, Sir John, and his family, 224.
Boydell, Mr., 214 bis.
Boynton, Marmaduke, Capt., Lieut.-Col., and Colonel, 37, 38, 39.
  —— letters to, 47, 129.
Bradhill, Roger, 26 bis.
Bragge —, 217.
Braham, Mr., 286, 287.
Bramwell, Sir Thomas, 109.
Brancas, Marquise de, 223.
Brandon, Charles. See Suffolk.
Brentford, Syon House by, 24.
Briare (France), 221.
Bridgeman, Sir Henry, 234.
Brill, the, 8.
Bridges, Mr., 124.
Bristol, 199.
  defences of, 281, 282.
  letter dated at, 258.
Britton Ferry, 164.
  letter dated at, 163.
Bromley:
  Captain, 7.
  Mr., 148.
Bromwich. See West Bromwich.
Brooke, Barbary, 24.
  Frances, 24.
Brookes, William, 26.
Broomfield. See Clapham.
Broughton:
  Thomas, secretary of the S.P.C.K., 225.
  Mr. and Mrs., 160.
Brown, Governor, marriage of, 211.
Browne:
  Robert, 38.
  Mr., 93.
  Mr., Governor of the Bahamas, 248.
Bruce:
  Lord (1732), letter of, 153, 154.
  Lady, 160.
  Lord and Lady, 161.
Brudenell, Mr. and Mrs., 160.
Bruffe, James, 38.
Bruges, 90–95 passim.
  canal of, 90, 91.
Brussels, 73, 95 bis.
Bryon, Captain, 38.
Buccleugh, Duke of, 292.
Buchan, Earl of, letter of, 211.

Buckingham:
  Duke of (1707), 146, 147.
  Duchess (1708), 146, 147.
  Lord, and the Lord Lieutenancy of Ireland, 229, 230.
Buckinghamshire, Lord, 242.
Bugia Bay, 5.
Bulan, General and Marshall, 74 bis, 78, 82, 87, 93.
Bulkeley, Lady, letter to, 63.
Bulls, Bay of, 47, 130.
Bunkers Hill, battle of, 225.
Bunn, Captain, 38.
Burch, Samuel, 39.
Burdet, Sir Robert, marriage of, 163.
Burford, Lord (1725), 152.
Burgoyne, General, his army, 240.
Burke:
  Edmund, 180, 209.
  —— letter of, 182.
  —— his son at Christ Church, 209, 217.
  Sir John, death of, 113.
Burnet, Bishop:
  his "History," 197.
  Lord Dartmouth's MS. notes on, 263.
Burnett, Rev. George:
  letter of, 256.
  society of, at Elland, 256, 257.
Burney, Dr., 283.
  letter of, 283.
Burrins, James, 39.
Burrows, Richard:
  letter of, 156.
  letter to, 157.
Burton, co. Staffs., 158.
  letter dated at, 158.
  Mr., 128.
Bushey Park, co. Middlesex, letters dated at, 201, 206, 249.
Bussy, French Commander, 259, 267.
Bute:
  Lord (1764), 174.
  —— (1774), 212.
  —— 284.
Butler, Sir Nicholas, 121.
Buxton, co. Derby, 165.
Byrch, Dr., 146.
  death of his wife, 146.
Byron:
  Sir Robert, Master of the Ordnance, 117.
  Lord (1739), his house, 158.

C.

Cabinet Council, 90, 126, 127, 207.
Cadiz, 47.
  Sir M. Westcomb, consul at, 125.
  letters dated at, 125, 130, 131.
Cadogan, 72, 73, 95.
Calais, 219.
  journey from London to, 217, 218.
  letter dated at, 217.
Calcutta, 261, 262.
  letters dated at, 258, 264.
  college at, 277.
Calke, 147.
Cambray, 73, 74. See Cambresis.
  Benedictine Convent at, 219.
  cathedral at, 219.
  Fenelon's monument at, 219.
Cambresis and Chateau Cambresis, letters dated at, 77–79, 81–83, 85–88, 89. See Cambray.
Cambridge:
  Cowper's visit to, 191.
  University, 257.
    Chancellor of, 276.
    Parliamentary election (1783), 268.
    Emanuel College, letter dated at, 268.
    Magdalene College, S. key of, 257.
    —— tutors of, 257.
    Trinity College, petition of the Master and Fellows of, 275.
  Adolphus, Duke of, letter of, 293.
Campbell:
  Captain Donald, 266.
  James, 292.
  Miss, her marriage, 163.
Camperdown, 8.
Candahar, 266.
Canterbury, 217, 218.
  Archbishops of:
    Thomas Cranmer, his armour, 1.
    (William Sancroft), 34.
    (William Wake), 155.
    (Thomas Secker), 172.
  letters dated at, 205, 208.
  the precincts of Christ Church, letter dated at, 211.
Caracci. See Pictures.
Carlanstown, co. Louth, 109.
Carles, J., 273.
Carlisle:
  fortifications of, 54.
  surrender of, 143.
Carmarthen, Lord, 223.
Carnatic, the, 260, 261, 266, 267.
Caroline Park, 208.
Carpenter, William, 38.
Carr:
  Jane, 24.
  Mary, 24.
Carrington, Mr., 188.
Carter, Captain, 70.
Carteret:
  Sir Philip, 70.
  John, Lord, (Earl Granville), 153, 154, 155.
  (Henry Frederick), Lord, 276.
Cartwright, Mr., 161, 162.
—— Ermine, married to Mr. Ward, 161.
Caserta, letter dated at, 224.
Casie, R., letter from, 117.
Castle Hey Park, 125.
Catalini, Madame, 291.
Catalonia, evacuation of, 148.
Cawerth, Henry, 40.
Ceremonies, 192.

- Ceylon, 248.
- Chamberlain, Lord. See Legge, third Earl of Dartmouth.
- Champagne, 74.
- Champion, Richard:
  - letter of, 223.
  - —— porcelain manufacture of, 223.
- Chapel, John, 39.
- Chaplains, naval, scarcity of, 59.
- Chapman, Richard, letter of, 173.
- Charles, I., armour of, 2 ter.
- Charles II., 7 bis, 9, 34, 49 passim, 106, 107, 110, 131, 197.
  - at Newmarket, 125.
  - at Portsmouth, 122-124.
  - armour of, 2, 3, 4, 5 bis.
  - health of, 125.
  - his ambassador at Constantinople, 27.
  - portrait of, 276.
  - Catherine, wife of, 125.
- Charlotte, Princess, 284.
- Chateau Cambresis. See Cambresis.
- Chatham:
  - co. Kent, 55 bis.
  - —— dockyard, 280.
  - William Pitt, Earl of, 255. See Pitt.
  - John Pitt, second Earl of, 290.
  - —— his wife, 290.
- Chatsworth, co. Derby, 159.
- Chaumont, Chateau de, 221.
- Chaworth, Mrs., her house, 158.
- Cheam, co. Surrey, letter dated at, 228.
- Cheltenham, letter dated at, 251.
- Cheshire, 219.
- Chester, 157, 165.
  - Archdeacon of. See Ward.
  - Bishops of:
    - (Thomas Cartwright), 134.
    - (Edmund Keene), 172, 173.
    - —— letter to, 173.
    - (William Markham), 204, 217.
  - plan of, 54.
  - Castle, letter dated at, 139.
- Chesterfield:
  - Philip, second Earl of, 126.
  - Philip-Dormer, fourth Earl of, letter of, 182.
    - —— —— letter to, 182.
  - Philip, fifth Earl of, 276.
- Chetwynd, Lady, 161.
- Chevalier, the, 81.
- Cheveley, co. Berks, 187.
- Cheyne, of Banbury, 157, 162.
- Chichley, Sir John, 16.
- Chitchly, Sir Thomas, 118.
- Child, Mr., 39.
- China, produce of, 265.
- Chittagong, 265.
- Cholmley, Sir Hugh, 34, 39.
- Cholmondeley, Lord, 276.
- Christchurch, co. Hants, letter dated at, 210.
- Christie's sale rooms, 271.
- Chunar, Fort of, 262.
- Churchill, Lord. See Marlborough.
- Claims, Court of, 109, 112 bis.
- Clapham Common, co. Surrey:
  - Bloomfield, letters dated at, 279, 288.
- Claremont, letter dated at, 179.
- Clarendon:
  - Edward Hyde, Earl of, 143.
  - Thomas Villiers, Earl of, 235.
- Clark:
  - Mr., 123, 124.
  - Mrs., 159.
  - —— Mr. Poole, father of, 159.
- Clarke:
  - Francis, 39.
  - John, 39.
  - Thomas, 26.
  - William, 26.
- Clarson:
  - Henry, Mayor of Banbury, letter of, 156.
  - —— letter to, 157.
- Clarvett, John, 27.
- Claude. See Pictures.
- Clay, Mr., 277.
- Clerk, John, 26.
- Clifden, letter dated at, 162.
- Clive, Lord, 278.
  - letter of, 278.
- Coal. See Sea coal.
- "Cob." See Reynardson.
- Cobbett, William, letter of, 278.
- Cobequid District (Nova Scotia), 225.
- Cock, Robert, 26.
- Colchester:
  - letter dated at, 243.
  - School, 230, 231, 232.
- Cole, Robert, journal of, 51.
- Colingsby, Major, 61 bis.
- Collar for torture, 4.
- Collins:
  - Captain Grenville, journal of, 54.
  - Robert, 38.
- Collyer, Colonel, 63.
- Colonial Secretary. See Dartmouth, second Earl of.
- Colonial Secretaryship, 179, 182.
- Colson, Edward, 26.
- Colston, William, 26.
- Combs, Mr., 110.
- Commonwealth, debt of, 104.
- Comorin, Cape, 265.
- Condon, David, 38.
- Congreve, William, 145.
- Connaught, 110, 114, 117, 118.
  - George Legge's estates in, 116.
  - Lord President of, 103.
- Constable, Everal, 214.
- Constantinople, 27, 127.
- Conway:
  - the Lord (1670), 117.
  - Mr. Secretary, 180.
  - General, 257.
- Conways, Miss, 160.
- Conyers, Dr., 183, 188.
- Cooke, John, 27.
- Coote, General Sir E., 259, 266.
- Cope, John, letter of, 236.
- Copley, Mr., 211.
- Corcos, Mettode, 38.
- Cork, 241.
  - Shiddy's Castle, 241.
  - Lady, 253.
- Cornbury, Lord (1688), 133.

Corneille, Count, 90.
Cornwall:
    smuggling in, 176, 177–179, 215.
    Duchy of, 269, 270.
    —— Lord Warden of the Stannaries, 276.
    —— Surveyor General, 276.
Cornwallis, Marquis, 278 bis.
Cornwell,—, 217, 218.
Cornwood, co. Devon, letter dated at, 250.
Coromandel Coast, 248.
Correa, Antonio, 38.
Correnborough, Lord, 126.
Corsairs, 46.
Corton, co. Suffolk, 21.
Cosset, Duchesse de, 223.
Cotton, Dr., of St. Alban's, 184, 203.
Coumbs, the, 252.
Courts martial, 50.
Courts of Justice (Scotland), 102.
Coventry:
    republicans at, 273.
    Mr., secretary, 114, 120.
Cowes, Isle of Wight, 70 bis.
Cowley, co. Louth, 115.
Cowper:
    the poet, 183, 184, 186, 188, 190, 191 ter., 192 bis, 196, 200, 201, 203 bis, 207, 208, 210, 212, 237, 245, 248, 256, 268.
    —— his servant, 191.
    —— his poems, 256.
    Major, 191.
    John, 192.
Cox:
    John, his travels, 71.
    Sir John ,death of, 7, 21.
    Thomas, 4 bis.
Crabb, Symon, 38.
Crafford Barnaby, 26.
Cranmer. See Canterbury, Archbishops of.
Cranwich, Francis, 38.
Craven:
    Lady, 146.
    —— her cousin Trollop, 146.
Crawford, Captain R., letter of, 139.
Creed, John, 39.
Crichton, Lord (1739), 162.
Cromwell, Oliver, Lord Protector, 282.
Crook, Rev. Mr., 172.
Crosse, Mr., 66.
Cuddalore, 267.
Culliford, Elizabeth, 39.
Cullin, Charles, 26.
Culme, Mr., 250.
Cumberland (America), 225.
    letter dated at, 225.
Cumberland, Duke of, 165, 210.
    Duchess of, 210.
Curson, R. A., letter of, 258.
Curtis, Charles, 273.
Cusack, Colonel, 111, 112 ter.
Customs, 98, 99, 101, 105.
    commissioners of, 169.
    House, 170.
    Irish, searchers of, 103.
    Scotch commissioners of, 102.
Cuthbert:
    Robert, 39.
    Mr., 52.
Cyder tax, 174 bis.

D.

D'Abbevill, Marquis, 60 bis.
Dacre, Lord, letters of, 214 (2).
Daily, Denis, 39.
Dalrymple, Sir John:
    his historical researches, 197.
    his History, 263.
    letter of, 197.
    letter to, 198.
Daly, Judge, his grandson, 156.
Dampier, Dr., letter of, 187.
Danby, Thomas Osborne, Earl of (afterwards Duke of Leeds), 143.
Daniel:
    Alderman, 282.
    of Truro, 179.
Daniell, Charles, 38.
Danish Settlements in East and West Indies, 199.
Darcy, Darcey:
    Captain, 30, 38.
    Edmund, 38.
Dartford, co. Kent, 217.
Dartmouth, Lord. See Legge.
D'Aubany, Alderman, 282.
Davido. See Pictures.
Davies:
    Captain William, 55.
    Mr., a Methodist, 187.
Davis:
    Sir Paul, 111.
    Sir William, 108, 111.
Day, Mr., his buoy, 210.
Deal, co. Kent, 55, 63.
Dean, Forest of, co. Gloucester, 97 ter.
Debt, public, 104.
Decize (France), 221.
Deering:
    Captain, 45.
    Daniel, 40.
De Henry, Jolly, 261.
Delawood, William, 27.
Delhi, 265, 266.
Delinquents' estates, 96.
Denain:
    letter dated at, 91, 92.
    battle of, 90, 91 bis.
Denbigh, Lady (Lady D—, Lady Den—), 145, 146 bis, 147.
Denmark, 152.
    ambassador of, to Stockholm, in 1772, 196.
    Prince George, of. See George.
Deptford, co. Kent, 132.
    dockyard, 250.
Derby, 165.
    silk mill at, 205.
    Charlotte, Countess of, letter of, 106.
    Lady (1708), 146.

Derbyshire, tour in, 205.
De Ruyter, Admiral, 6, 8 bis, 12 passim, 16, 18–21 passim, 23, 28, 29, 32 passim.
D'Estaign, 247.
D'Estrée, Count, 20.
De Touche, Madam, 158.
Devonshire:
  smuggling in, 215.
  Duke of (1739), his house at Hardwick, 158.
  William, fifth Duke of, letter of, 206.
Dies, Diego, 38.
Digby, Frank, death of, 7.
Digoin (France), 220.
Dillon, Colonel Cary, 109–112.
Dissenters, 176, 187, 200.
  Independents, 200.
  Lady Huntingdon's connexion, 204.
  Presbyterians, 200.
Dissolution of monasteries, 115.
Dixmunde, 95.
Dixon, 146, 148.
  Dr., 188.
Dodd, Dr., 234, 251.
Dogger bank, 8 bis, 9.
Dogs, 115.
  Isle of, 165.
Dolby, William, 38.
Domestic letter books. See Letter Books.
Domey, Joseph, 26.
Dominica, 207.
Dominichino. See Pictures.
Domville, Sir William, letters of, 110, 114, 119, 120.
Donleer, co. Louth, 108–110, 117–119. fair and market at, 114.
  suggested new name of Legges borough for, 111.
D'Orvillier, 247.
Douay, 92 bis, 93.
  capture of, 94, 95.
  Dutch garrison of, 90.
  English Roman Catholic College at, 219.
Dover, 139, 143, 217, 218.
Downe, Lord (1688), 142.
Downs, the, 50, 54 bis, 57 ter., 58, 59 ter., 63, 66, 68, 69, 71. letters dated in, 62 (2), 64–66, 71.
Doyle, William, 241.
Dresden, 152, 167.
Drogheda, 108.
  Earl of (1670), 109, 113, 118.
Drongen, letter dated at, 91.
Dublin, 153.
  letters dated at, 107–120, 153, 157.
  meeting held at, 240.
  prices at, 157.
  Ash Street, 242.
  Bachelor's Walk, 157.
  Castle:
    fire at, 115.
    ground plan of, 117.
  Trinity College, 103.
  Paving Bill, 240.
Du Bois, Abbe, 150.
Duffe's farm, 111.
Dumville, Sir William. See Domville.
Dunany, co. Louth, 109.
Duncombe:
  Mr., 277.
  Lady Charlotte, 277.
Dundalk, co. Louth, 110.
Dundas:
  Henry, letter of, 277.
  Right Hon. Robert, letter of, 293.
  —— letter to, 292.
Dundee, Lord, 197.
Duresore, Mrs., 153.
Dungannon, Lord (1674), 118.
Dungeness, 66 bis.
  light, 56, 57.
Dunkirk, negotiations relating to, in 1709, 79–94 passim, 100, 106.
Dunleer. See Donleer.
du Puy, Monsieur, 21.
Durer. See Pictures.
Duryan, 71.
Dutch. See Holland.
  Ships, fleet. See Ships.
Dutens, Mr., 223.
Duxmynde, 95.
Duzele, brigadier, 91.

E.

Ealing. See Great Ealing.
Earle, John, 26.
East India Company, 212.
  —— ——, Court of Directors, 263, 278, 279.
  —— —— ships, 255.
  —— —— stock, 245.
East Indies. See India.
Eccles, Edward, 39.
  John, 38.
Eddy, Captain, 226.
Edgbaston co. Warwick, Romish Chapel at, 250.
Edinburgh:
  letters dated at, 174, 181, 197, 292, 293.
  Caroline Park, letter dated at, 207. letter of the merchants of, 174.
  theatre at, 292.
  Lord Provost of, 198.
  University, 208, 209.
  —— Dr. Ferguson, Professor at, 209.
Edward III., armour of, 2, 4, 5.
Edward IV., armour of, 2, 4.
Edwyn, Sharlott, 160.
Effingham, Lady (1708), 146.
Egmont, Earl of (1765), letter of, 177.
Egypt, 282.
Eldridge. See Pictures.
Elland, co. York, 256.
Elliot, George, 38.
Ellis, John, 189.
Exmore, Captain, 130.
Elmsall, Edward, letter of, 190.
Ely, Bishop of (Francis Turner), 59.

Emanuel, Don, of Portugal, banishment of Jews by, 24.
Emerson:
  Jane, 39.
  Thomas, 38.
Emms, Edward, 38.
Emperor, the, 151, 247.
Enfield Chase, co. Middlesex, 167.
Engel, B., of Berne, 212.
England :
  defences of, 282.
  expenditure of, 99–101.
  forces and garrisons in, 106.
  Kings and Queens of. See under their names.
English, Miss, her marriage, 211.
Epsom, co. Surrey, 161.
  letter dated at, 212.
Erith, co. Kent, 55.
Erlisman, John, Comptroller of Tangier, 36–37 passim, 39.
Erly, Sir William, 160.
Essex, 60.
  Sea walls in, 174.
  (Arthur) Earl of, 119.
  —— murder of, 124.
  —— wife of, 124.
Estaign. See D'Estaign.
Esten, Mrs., 292.
Etherington,—, (a watchmaker ?), 148.
Eton College, 187.
Eugene, Prince, 72–79 passim, 81–84 passim, 87–90 passim, 92–95 passim.
  army of, 78.
Euston, Lord (1783), parliamentary candidate for Cambridge University, 268.
Evelyn, John :
  letter from, 132.
  his son, 132.
Exchequer, 97, 101.
  barons of, 113.
  Scotch, 98, 102.
Excise, 96, 98, 99, 101 bis, 105.
  Scotch, 102.
Exeter :
  letter dated from, 63.
  Dean of, 217.
Expenditure, public, 99–104.
Eyers, Mrs., 146.

F.

Fairborne :
  Sir Palmes, 38, 52.
  Lady, 39.
  —— houses of, in Tangier, 35.
Falck, "a mad doctor," 210.
Falconer, Mrs., 207.
Falkland, Lady (1708), 147.
Falmouth, 177, 178, 214.
Fanshaw, Sir Richard, envoy extraordinary at Lisbon, 45.
Faresh, tutor of Magdalene, 257.
Fargeon, John, 39.
Fashions, dresses, &c., 145, 146, 194, 230.
  "Boucles," 227.
  "Charade," 230.
  Portuguese, 227.
  "Ramillies," 227.
Fauconberg, Lord, 241.
  letter of, 251.
Fauconbridge, Thomas, letter of, 250, 251.
Faversham :
  Lord (1688), 135, 137.
  co. Kent, 59, 141.
  —— fishermen of, 137.
Fee farm rents, 97.
Felons, solitary confinement for, 254.
Fendall, storekeeper at Deal, 63.
Fiamingo, models of, 169.
Fielding, Sir John, 207.
Fifeshire, 223.
Figeredo, Juan Baptista, 38.
Finch. See Aylesford, Earl of.
  John, ambassador at Constantinople, 27.
  Mrs., 145,147.
  Mr., 234.
  Lord (1683), 123.
Fish, Gregory, 37, 39.
Fisher:
  Sir Clement, 153.
  Daniel, 24.
  servant of F. Gwyn, 142.
FitzGerald :
  Edward, 38.
  James, 38.
  Richard, 38.
Fitzherbert, 207.
Fitzwilliam, Mrs., alias Plunket, 115.
Flags, 56.
Flamborough Head, 9.
Flanders, 10, 143, 151.
  forces in, 100, 104, 105.
  —— paid by England, 74.
Fleetwood, 139.
Fleming, Mr., 228.
Fletcher, Mr., 187.
Floyer, John, letter of, 147.
Flushing, 10.
Fontainbleau, truce concluded at, 93.
Fooke, Henry, letter from, 120.
Forbes, Sir Arthur, 118.
Ford, Sir Harry, 116.
Foreign Office. See Letter books.
Foster, Mr., 257.
Fothergill, Dr. John, letter of, 189 (2).
Fowler, Thomas, 40.
Fowles, Captain, death of, 11.
Fox:
  Sir Stephen, 123.
  Teige, 39.
France, the French, 73, 74 bis, 76, 78, 79, 81, 83, 85 passim, 87, 90 bis, 138, 149, 196, 247, 248, 254, 255.
  America, treaty with, 254.
  army of, 219.
  claims of, in India, 278.
  Court of, 74, 75, 222, 247.
  England and, in 1773, 246.
  English agents in, 71.
  in India, 259, 267.

France—cont.
  posting in, 218.
  prisoners, 249.
  proceedings of, before Algiers, 51.
  smuggling from, 179, 215.
  war with, 176.
  Kings of:
    Charles VII., monument of, 221.
    Henri IV., 221.
    (Louis XIV.), 78, 80–88 passim, 151.
    (Louis XV.), 151.
    (Louis XVI.), 222.
Francklyn, George, keeper of the armoury in the Tower, 4.
Fry, 77, 81.
Fuller, Frances, 24.
Furness, 95.
Fynch, Mrs. See Finch.

G.

Gabbard Sand, 57.
Gahan, Daniel, 107.
Gainsborough, Thomas. See Pictures.
  letters of, 193 (2), 194.
  receipt of, 190.
  Earl of (1683), 123.
Galas, Count, 151.
Gallini, Sir John, 285.
Galloper Sands, 14.
Galway:
  county of, 114, 118.
  letter dated at, 114, 118.
Ganges, River, 262.
Ganjam, 259.
Garbett, Samuel, letter of, 180.
Gardiner, Thomas, survey of the Post Office by, 54.
Gargrave, Mr., 131.
Garlies, 207.
Garrick, David, as Hamlet in "Elfrida," 200.
Garrottmoore, Colonel, 118.
Gascoigne, Walwyn, 37, 38, 39.
Gates, Sir John, his armour, 1.
Gauden, Sir Dennis, 132.
Gaultier, Abbé, 149.
Gaunt, John of, his armour, 1, 4.
Gay:
  Jotham, 226.
  Richard, 26.
Gaye, Colonel, 140.
Gebars (Portugal), a bed at, 146.
Geere, Jonathan, 38.
Gem, Thomas, letter of, 262.
Genoa, 47, 246.
George, Prince, of Denmark, husband of Queen Anne, 122–124, 133, 146.
George I., 150–152.
George II., 163.
  Mary, daughter of. See Hesse.
George III., 197, 209.
  his opinion of Lord Dartmouth, 208. visits the fleet, 203.
George III.—cont.
  visits Weymouth, 290.
  letters of, 290, 293.
  Queen Charlotte, wife of, 287.
  —— letter of, 291.
  his children:
    George. See Wales, George, Prince of.
    Frederick. See York, Frederick Duke of.
    Edward. See Kent, Edward Duke of.
    Augustus. See Sussex, Augustus Duke of.
    Adolphus. See Cambridge, Adolphus Duke of.
    Octavius, 245.
    Augusta, letter of, 293.
    Elizabeth, 287.
    —— letter of, 293.
    Amelia, 291.
    —— letter of, 249.
George, Dr., 110, 124.
Georgia, British victories in, 245.
Gerard, Mr., 241.
Gerbier, George, 38.
Germany, 247.
Ghent, 82, 87, 89, 90–94 passim.
  letters dated at, 72, 92, 93 (2), 94, 95 (3).
  troops in, 84, 90.
  Van. See Van Ghent.
Giacomo. See Pictures.
Gibraltar, 43.
Gifford, William, 40.
Gilby, Theophilus, 38.
Giles, Captain, 36–38.
Gilpin. See Pictures.
  Rev. William, letters of, to Lord Dartmouth, 228, 243, 270, 272.
  —— letter to, 271.
  Mrs., 228.
Giovanni Bapt. Bossiere. See Pictures.
Gisborne, Dr., 290.
Glass, Dr.:
  his house at Greenford, 225.
  his quarrel with Dr. Sumner, 187.
Glazebrook, Mr., curate of Rowley, 204.
Gledston House, letter dated at, 251.
Glenbervie, Lord, 279.
Gloucester:
  Lord, 184.
  Duke and Duchess of, 217, 218.
Goddard, General, 259.
"Golden Island," 71.
  Emperor or Duryan of, 71.
Golden Capps, King, 72.
Golding, Mr., box of sulphurs for, 170.
Goldsmith, Mrs., 287.
Gome, Sir Bernard de, 123, 124.
Gonzales, Bartholomew, 39.
Gooch, J., letter of, 223.
Goodall:
  Francis, letter of, 236.
  John, letter of, 236.
Goodricke, Sir John, 196, 197.
Gordon:
  Lord George, 251.
  riots, 250, 251.

Goree, 7, 56 bis.
Gormon :
    Francis, 38.
    James, 38.
    Mackenny, 38.
Gortier, Abbé, 81.
Gosport, co. Hants, 122.
    living of, 211.
Gottenburg, 128.
    a Scotch workman at, 180.
Gough, Sir Harry, 221, 222.
Gower, Lord (1745), 164, 165.
    his regiment, 165.
Grafton, Duke of, temp. James II., 61, 124, 133.
Graham :
    Dorothy, 24.
    John, letters of, 122, 124, 125, 128.
    —— letter to, 120.
    Richard (Judge), 134.
    —— in prison, 141.
    —— letter of, 121.
    Mrs., 123, 125, 126, 128.
    —— aunt to Philip Musgrave, 142.
Gramont, Bois de, 260.
Grand Prior, banishment of, 127, 128.
Grangues, Captain, 92.
Gravesend, 8 bis, 55 passim.
    the "Black Boy" Inn, 55.
Gray, Lord, arms taken in his house, 125.
Great Beare, the (an anvil), 3.
Great Ealing, co. Middlesex, Castle Hill Lodge near, 284.
Green :
    Mr., 145.
    Mr. Valentine, 214.
Greenford, near Southall, co. Middlesex, letter dated at, 225.
Greenhill, Rev. Mr., 249.
Green wax, 97.
Greenwich, 4.
    armour brought from, 3.
    Green Gallery, the, 2, 3.
    letter dated at, 290.
    Royal Observatory, letter dated at, 243.
Grenville, G., 183.
Grevell, Mrs. and Miss, 160.
Greville, Henry F., letters of, 284, 286.
Grey, Richard, letter of, 276.
Griffin, Father George, 25.
Griffins, 127.
Griffith, Captain, 31.
Grimaldo, Spanish Secretary of State, 150.
Grimes :
    Dorothy, 24.
    Jemmy, 97.
    John, 38.
Grove, Thomas, 187.
Grundy, Jonathan, letter of, 236.
Guernsey, 70, 71, 97, 138, 176, 177.
    Lord (1777), 213, 234.
Guibert, Abbé, 150.
Guido. See Pictures.
Guildersome, 190.
Guilford, Earl of. See North.
Gulf Stream, 59.
Gunfleet Sand, 7, 9, 55–57, 60 ter., 62.
    letters dated at, 60 (2), 61.
    buoy removed, 60.
Gunnersbury, co. Middlesex, letter dated at, 249.
Gunning, Mr., 197.
Guraerto. See Pictures.
Guy :
    Captain, 33, 48.
    James, 39.
Gwyn, Gwin :
    Francis, 125, 127, 143.
    candidate for Portsmouth, 142.
    his servant Fisher, 142.
    letters of, 139, 141.

H.

Haarlem, 246, 247.
Haddock, Capt. Richard, and Sir Richard, 7, 14, 121.
Hague, the, 63, 72, 73, 77, 92, 95, 245.
    letters dated at, 72 (2).
Hainault, Prince of, 87.
Hale, John, letter of, 287.
Hales, Sir Edward, 59.
Halifax :
    (Nova Scotia), 225, 226.
    Mr. Knight, of, 256.
    Lord (1780), 249.
Hall, Elihu, letter of, 258.
Hamburg, 56.
Hamilton :
    Sir William, letters of, 225, 238.
    Lady, 238.
    Duke of, 292.
    Lady Archibald, 160, 162 bis.
    —— letter of, 162.
Hampden, John, trial of, 125.
Hampton River, 61.
Hampshire, 153.
    representation of, 153.
Hampton Court, letter dated at, 196.
Hanaper, 97, 101.
    Irish, 99.
Hannam, Captain, death of, 7.
Hanover :
    letter dated at, 74.
    Elector of, 74, 75, 78.
    —— letter to, 74.
Hanoverians, 93, 247.
Hanway, Jonas, 254.
Harboard, Sir Charles, 15.
Harcourt :
    Lord (1776), 230.
    Lady, 192.
Harding, Mr., 146.
Hardwick, co. Derby, 158.
    Joseph, 26.
Hardwicke, Lord, letters of, 238, 263, 267, 268.
Hardy, Sir Charles, death of, 250.
Harford, Mr., 39.

Harman, Sir John, Vice-Admiral of the Red, 9, 13 bis, 14, 18, 20 bis.
Harnage :
  Helen, 24.
  Mary, 24.
Harpur, Lady, 146, 147.
Harris, 163.
  Captain, 20.
  Evan, 38.
Harrison, Mr., his invention of a watch, 177.
Harrow, co. Middlesex :
  letters dated at, 194. 195 (2).
  School, 187, 194, 195.
Hart, Captain, 88.
Harte, —, 217.
Harvey, Sir Daniel, ambassador at Constantinople, 27.
Harwich, 16, 55 ter., 56 bis, 63.
  removal of the light at, 59.
Hasted, Edward, letter of, 211.
Hastings :
  Anthony, 40.
  Captain, 42, 61.
  Warren, 259, 261, 262, 278.
Hatton, Mr., 273.
Haverford West, letters dated at, 220 (2).
Haweis, Mr., 186, 189.
Hawkesbury, Lord, letter of, 290.
Hawkins, Dr. Francis, chaplain at the Tower, 145.
Hay, Lord (1736), 156.
Hayman, Miss A., letter of, 283.
Hayward :
  Henry, 27.
  a sculptor, 170.
Heard, Isaac, Lancaster Herald, letter of, 210.
Heath, Mr. : elected headmaster of Harrow, 195.
  as headmaster, 231.
Heligoland, 9.
Henderson, candidate for Fifeshire, 223.
Henry VI., armour of, 2, 4.
Henry VII., armour of, 1, 2, 4 bis, 5.
Henry VIII., armour of, 1, 2, 3, 4 bis, 5.
Henry, Prince, son of James I., his armour, 1, 2, 3.
Heralds. See Heard.
Herbert :
  Admiral, 42, 43 bis, 45.
  —— his brother, 125.
  Arthur, 39.
  Mr., 60.
  Mrs., 147. See Worsley.
Herne, Mr., 212.
Hesketh, Roger, 24.
Hesse, Mary, Princess of, 163, 164.
Hewer, William, treasurer for the affairs of the Tangiers garrison, 39, 40, 51.
  letters of, 130, 131.
Hicks, John, 26.
Higgins, Mrs., 146.
Hill :
  John, 38.
  Thomas, 26.
  Mr., commander of troops in Dunkirk, 87, 91.
Hillsborough, Lord, 188, 229, 230.
  his marriage, 189.
  his "red bag," 196.
  letter of, 179.
Hinchingbrook, Lord (1780), 253.
Hinton, Lord (1795), 276.
Hitchin, Giles, 27.
Hoare, Sir Richard, bill of lading addressed to, 169.
Hobart, Lord, 282.
Hodder, Mr., 64.
Hodsden, Mr., 167.
Hoffman, 152.
Holdin, John Rose, letter of, 237.
Holland :
  Hollanders, Dutch, 6–23 passim, 33, 55, 56, 57 passim, 63, 73, 74, 76–78 passim, 80, 81–83, 85, 87, 90, 92–94, 128, 143, 151, 152, 246, 250, 254, 256, 265.
  Conservator of Scotch Privileges in, 181.
  the Pensionary, 72 passim.
  the Deputies, 72, 73, 75–77 passim, 81–83 bis, 87 bis, 88, 89.
  letter from, 76.
  public feeling in (1779), 245.
  States General, 247, 248.
  —— convention of, with Great Britain, 247. fleet. See Ships.
Holles, Hollis, Sir Frescheville, his death, 7, 23.
Holme, Sir R., 68.
Holmes :
  Sir John, 14.
  Sir Robert, 21, 23.
  of New College, 217.
Holt, Henry, 38.
Holt Forest, letter dated at, 174.
Holte :
  Sir Lister, his courting, 159.
  Lady Anne, death of, 163.
Holy Island, plan of, 54.
Home :
  John, author of "Douglas," 174, 181.
  William, 181.
Hood, Lord, letter of, 290.
Hope, Mr., 78.
Hopson, Captain, 60.
Hopton, Thomas, 40.
Hord, William, 38.
Horizonti. See Pictures.
Hornspech, Count, 90, 95,
Horses' names :
  Lowther, 126.
  Turk, 126.
Horwood, Brome, arrest of, 124.
Horzdesnell, Henry, 39.
Hoskin, Captain, 138.
Hoskins, Captain, 59.
Hotham :
  Colonel G., 269.
  letter of, 270.
Hounslow Hospital, 143.
How, James, merchant of Leghorn, 171.

- Howard:
  - Sir George, master of Queen Elizabeth's armoury, his portrait, 1.
  - Mr., Governor of Carlisle, 143.
  - Lord, 131.
  - family, 280.
- Hoxton, letters dated at, 256, 268, 270.
- Hudson, Mr., the painter, 165.
- Hugbon, Thomas, 39.
- Hughes:
  - Commissary Edward, 37, 38.
  - Sir E., 259, 267.
  - T., 50.
- Huit Sahib, 266.
- Hull, 199.
- Humphrey, Mr., 273.
- Hungary, news from, 127.
- Hunslet, near Leeds, 172.
- Hunter, Richard, 38.
- Huntingdon, 183, 184.
  - S., Countess of, 188.
  - —— letter of, 186.
  - —— sect of, 204.
- Hutchinson, Alderman, of Dublin, 107, 108.
- Hutt, George, 39.
- Hutton, Ann, 24.
- Hyder Ali, 259, 260, 266, 267.

I.

- Imperialists, the, 72, 73, 90.
- Income. See Revenue.
- Independents. See Dissenters.
- India, 245, 258–267, 277, 278, 279.
  - French claims in, 245. See also East India.
- Indies, the, Portuguese possessions in, 26.
- Influenza, 222, 223.
- Inge, William, letter of, 249.
- Ingram:
  - Robert, 38.
  - Mr., 273.
- Inns, names of:
  - in Lichfield, 249.
  - Crown and Rolls, Chancery Lane, 289.
  - The Black Boy, Gravesend, 55.
- Ireland, 47.
  - army in, 104.
  - expenditure of, 102, 103.
  - famine in 1674, 119.
  - Lord Lieutenant of, 103, 108, 109, 110, 113 bis, 116.
  - —— letters to, 71.
  - Lord Lieutenancy of, in 1776, 229, 230.
  - Parliament of, 242.
  - primate of, 109, 110–112.
  - Privy Council of, 110.
  - Protestants of, 107.
  - state of, in 1672–3, 116, 117.
  - —— in 1778, 237–242.
  - taxes, 206.
- Irico (?), Admiral of Algiers, 6.
- Irish at Portsmouth, 70.
- Iron industry, 180.
- Isaac (servant of Charles Musgrave?), 126.
- Ismael, Muley, 126.
- Izard, Mr., 38.

J.

- Jack (John Graham?), 125.
- Jackson:
  - —, 292.
  - Robert, 39.
  - Miss, 293.
- Jacobs:
  - Abraham, 26.
  - Henry, 26.
- Jamaica, 58, 199.
  - forces in, 100, 104.
- James I., 4.
  - Henry, son of. See Henry.
- James II., 56–71 passim, 132, 133, 134, 140–143, 197.
  - address to, 132.
  - flight of, 59 bis, 139–143.
  - Mary, wife of, 58.
  - portrait of, 276.
  - as Duke of York, "The Duke," 6–10 passim, 13–23 passim, 110, 116, 122–124, 127, 131.
  - —— instructions of, to the fleet, 33.
  - —— health of, 125.
  - —— shipwreck of, 198.
- James, Muley, 126.
- Jancour, Madame de, 222.
- Jarvis, Mr., of Banbury. See Jervis.
- Jebb, Sir Richard, letters of, 254, 256.
- Jefferies and Jones, 277.
- Jefferson, Rev. Joseph, letter of, 277.
- Jeffereys, Sir George, Chief Justice, 125, 128, 129.
- Jekyl, 221.
- Jenefer, James, 23.
- Jenkins:
  - Secretary Sir Leoline, 122, 125, 126.
  - —— letters to, 33 (3), 34 (2).
  - Thomas, account of, 243.
  - —— letters of, 167–171, 181, 200, 208, 243.
  - —— pictures by. See Pictures.
- Jenner, recorder of London, 125.
- Jennings:
  - Charles, 24.
  - Sir J., letter of, 148.
  - Jennens, Sir William, 58, 61, 69 bis.
- Jenyns, Mr., 216.
- Jersey, 70, 97, 138, 176.
  - letter dated at, 264.
- Jervis, Jarvis, Mr., of Banbury, 156, 157.
- Jesse, Rev. W., letters of, 272, 274.
- Jevington, co. Sussex, 217.
- Jewell, Mr., 287.
- Jews in Portugal, 24.

John, King of Portugal, 25.
Jones:
  Aickin, 118.
  Daniel, 40.
  James, 114, 115, 118.
  —— letters of, 107–112.
  Nicholas, 114, 118.
  —— letters of, 113–118.
  Richard, 38.
  Thomas, 187 bis, 188.
  Captain, 46.
  Mr., 119.
Jordan, Sir Joseph, 14, 15, 17, 19 bis, 22, 23 bis.
Joseph, the Emperor, 151.
Jowet, tutor of Magdelene, 257.
Judges, 188.
  salaries of, 98, 101.
Juliers, 247.
Justices (Ireland), 103.

K.

K . . ., Lord, 154.
Kay, Benjamin, 187.
Kaye:
  Arthur, letter to, 145.
  Sir Arthur, Bart., M.P., his diary, 71.
  —— —— letters to, 147, 149.
  notes for speeches by, 148.
  —— —— proposal for his daughter's hand, 149.
  —— —— and the South Sea Scheme, 149.
  Lady, her daughter Elizabeth (Betty). See North, Elizabeth Lady.
  —— her lameness, 163.
  —— letters to, 145–148, 157–164.
  Sir Richard, letter of, 280.
Keating, Mr., 109.
Keck:
  Mr., 162.
  Lady S., 162.
  family, 160, 161.
Keemer, Henry, 4.
Keir, Captain, 273.
Keith, Sir Robert Murray, letter of, 257.
Kellegrew, H., 40.
Kempe, John, 37 bis, 39.
Kempson, G. W., letters of, 217, 245.
Kempthorne, 139.
  Sir John, 13, 14 bis, 19.
Kelk, Mr., 39.
Ken, Dr. See Bath and Wells.
Kennicott, Dr. B.:
  his work on the Hebrew Old Testament, 200.
  letter of, 200.
Kent, 155.
  plan for a tour in, 229.
  Edward, Duke of, letter to, 287.
  —— —— letters of, 284, 287.
  Lady, 146, 147.
Kentish Knock, the, 56.
Keppel, 245, 246.
  trial of, 247.
Kettle, John, letter of, 236.
Kew, co. Middlesex, 212.
Kildare, Curragh of, 114.
Kilkenny, election at, in 1778, 240.
Killigrew, Captain, 130, 131.
Kilmorey, Lord (1773), 203.
  his son, Mr. Needham, death of, 203.
Kilsaran, co. Louth: lordship of, 108–111.
  —— preceptory of, 109.
Kindal, Anthony, 215.
King:
  Richard, 4.
  Colonel, 86, 87.
  General, 89.
Kingsland:
  Lord (1778), 241.
  the late Lord (1778), 241.
King's Road, 215.
Kingston:
  Elizabeth, calling herself Duchess of, letter of, 232.
  Duke of, 158.
Kinnoul, Lord, 209.
Kippax, co. York, 172.
Kirke, Colonel Percy, Governor of Tangier, 40, 48, 51 passim.
  —— his regiment. See Regiments.
  —— letter of, 129.
  —— letter to, 129.
  —— report of his dealings with the Alcayde, 51.
Kirk-Heaton, 252.
Kirk Hill, letter dated at, 211.
Kirkwith, Madame, 46.
Knaresborough, William, 240.
Knight:
  Francis, stationer to the King, resignation of, 288.
  Mr., 286.
  —— of Halifax, 256.
  Dr., 189.
Knightley, 148.
Knock, Fort, 95.
Knowsley, letter dated at, 106.
Knox, William, letter of, 248.
Kynoin, John, 39.

L.

Labady, 139.
La Charité (France), English button factory at, 221.
Lake:
  Colonel, 269.
  Sir John, 86.
Lama, Philippo, See Pictures.
Lancashire, 146, 219.
Lancaster, Duchy of, 97.
Landrecies, 74, 87, 88.
Lands End, co. Cornwall, 178, 215.

Lane:
Sir George, 110, 112.
George, jun., 26.
William, 26.
Laug, Colonel, 259, 266.
Langford John, 38.
Langley Lodge, letter dated at, 277.
Lanthony Abbey, co. Hereford, letters dated at, 280, 282. ruin of, 282.
Lassells Hall, 252.
Lathmar, Monsieur, 73.
Laurence:
Mr., 132, 133.
Dr., 37.
John, 38.
Lawley, Sir Robert, 253.
Laws, Mr., 91, 95.
Leeds, 200, 220, 251.
Duke of (1795), 275.
Leeward Islands, hurricane at, 199.
Legg, John, 38.
LEGGE:
George, First Baron Dartmouth, 22, 34 bis, 39, 40, 51–56 passim, 58, 127,131.
—— his arrival at Tangiers, 33.
—— his battalion of seamen, 40.
—— his character and conduct, 197, 198.
—— courts martial held by, 50.
—— his estates in Ireland, 116.
—— his father, 114.
—— his grandson christened, 142.
—— his horses, 126.
—— his house in Pall Mall, 115, 117 bis.
—— his papers, 197, 198.
—— his patent as admiral, 49.
—— his wife, 134, 140.
—— death of his father (1670), 114.
—— William, son of (" Mr. William " and " Billy "), 124.
—— letters of, 33 (3), 34 (2), 45–48, 59–71, 129.
—— letters to, 114–142.
William, First Earl of Dartmouth, grandson of First Baron, 148, 159, 267.
—— letters of 72–96 passim, 149, (2), 151, 152 (2), 165.
—— letters to, 72–95 passim, 148, 149, 153 (2), 154, 155, 156, 160, 164, 165 (2).
—— letter books of, as Secretary of State, 71.
—— Anne, wife of, 159, 163.
—— —— letter to, 147.
—— Lord Lewisham, son of, 149.
—— Anne, daughter of, 159. See Holte.
—— Barbara Bagot, daughter of. See Bagot.
William, Second Earl, grandson of First Earl, son of Lord Lewisham.
—— marriage of, in 1755, 169.
—— First Lord of Trade, 179, 182.
—— patronizes Beattie, 201, 202, 204.

Legge, George—cont.
—— visits Portsmouth, 203.
—— Lord Privy Seal, 222.
—— and the Lord Lieutenancy of Ireland, 229, 230.
—— donation of, to Birmingham Hospital, 235.
—— proposed as president of the R. S., 243, 244.
—— proposed as president of the Society of Antiquaries, 277.
—— letters of, 182, 198, 200, 203, 209, 230, 271, 276, 287.
—— letters to, 167–278 passim.
—— as Lord Lewisham, 164.
—— —— vaccination of, 164.
—— his wife, 181, 207, 235, 236, 250, 275.
—— —— letters to, 187, 192.
—— —— portraits of, by Gainsborough, 193, 194.
—— Charlotte, daughter of. See Duncombe.
—— a daughter born, 224.
—— his son's schooling, 187.
—— his children ill with mumps, 189.
—— vaccination of his younger children, 236.
—— his tenants in Lewisham, 167.
—— portrait of, 168 bis.
—— pictures for, 171.
George, Third Earl, letter of, 287.
—— letters to, 287–283 passim.
—— as Lord Lewisham, 232, 243, 254, 271, 277.
—— —— his travels on the continent, 217–223, 238.
—— —— a seat in Parliament for, 230.
—— —— a steward of Lichfield Races, 237.
—— —— elected M.P. for Plymouth, 243.
—— —— declines to stand for Plymouth, 250.
—— —— his prospects, 252.
—— —— his marriage, 258.
—— —— proposed for office in India, 277.
—— —— his portrait, 243.
—— —— letters of, 211 (2), 217, 218, 220, 221, 222, 223.
—— —— letters to, 209, 217, 223, 230, 237, 245–247, 249, 257, 258 (5), 264, 276 (2), 277.
Augustus, 277.
Charles, letter of, 264.
Edward, 248.
Lady Elizabeth and Lady Anne, daughters of Lord Lewisham, granddaughters of First Earl, 162.
Francis, letter to, 161.
Francis, Governor of Nova Scotia, 223.
Heneage, son of First Earl of Dartmouth, Baron of the Exchequer, letter of, 166 (2).
—— letter to, 167.

- Legge—cont.
  - Mr. Heneage (1775–1780).
  - —— at school, 214, 231 bis, 232, 243, 251.
  - —— attacked with influenza, 258.
  - —— letter of, 258.
  - Henry, 228, 256.
  - Hon. H., letters of, 277 (2).
  - Hon. William, journey of, from Portsmouth to Southampton, 210.
  - —— letters of 210 (2).
  - W., letter of 237.
  - W. B., letter of, 173.
  - William, master of the armouries, 4.
  - Captain and Colonel William, 124, 127.
  - —— his house in the Minories, 113.
  - —— letters of, 123.
  - —— letters to, 107–114.
  - Captain, 127.
  - Colonel, 108.
  - Hon. Miss (1755), 169.
  - Mr., candidate for Winchester, 176.
  - Mr., 232.
  - Monsieur, 106.
  - Mrs., 277 bis.
- Legges at Harrow school (1771), 195.
- Leggsburrogh, new name suggested for Donleer, co. Louth, 111.
- Leghorn, 46 bis, 47 bis, 171.
- Leicester:
  - Earl of, armour of, 2, 5.
  - —— (1799), proposed as president of the Society of Antiquaries, 277.
- Leicestershire, 165.
- Leighton, Th., 40.
- Leinster, 114.
  - provost marshall of, 103.
- Leisant, letter dated at, 93.
- Leith, citadel of, 104.
- Le Mont, C. D., Governor of Dunkirk, 89.
  - letter from, 89.
- Le Neve, Captain, 22.
  - his death, 33.
- Lenoble, Peter, 27.
- Lenthall, Francis, 26.
- Leslie, Captain, 39.
- Lesly, Sir James, letter to, 129.
- Letter books:
  - Domestic, 71.
  - Foreign Office, France (3), 71.
  - —— Portugal, 71.
  - —— Spain (2), 71.
  - Irish, 71.
- Levants, the (winds), 42.
- Leveson, Miss, 161.
- Levett, Theophilus, letters of, 164, 165 (2).
- Lewis, 164.
  - Henry Greswold, 273.
- Lewisham, co. Kent:
  - history of, 276.
  - state of the church of, 149.
  - vestry of, 192.
  - waste of the parish of, 192.
  - letters dated at, 149, 167.
- Lewisham, Lord. See Legge.
- Lichfield, co. Stafford, 147.
  - French prisoners quartered at, 249.
  - guildhall at, 132.
  - letters dated at, 164, 165 (2), 249 (2), 258.
  - races at, 237.
  - troops quartered at, 249.
  - Lord (1764), 175.
- Ligne, Prince de, 93.
- Lill, James, 115.
- Lille (France), 89.
  - description of, 219.
- Limple, Major, 290.
- Lisbon, 23, 45, 46.
  - description of, 24–26, 227.
  - convent of St. Jerome at, 24.
  - English college and nunnery at, 24.
  - English nunnery called Sion House, 24.
  - grievances of English wine merchants at, 181.
  - Irish convent and college at, 24.
  - letter dated at, 181.
  - packets from, 177, 178.
- Lisle:
  - Mr., 153.
  - J. G. S., letter of, 290.
- Little Beare, the (an anvil), 8.
- Liverpool, 200.
  - letter dated at, 173.
  - Edmund Street, letter dated at, 171.
  - theatres at, 236.
- Livesey, Mrs., 24.
- Lloyd:
  - Charles, letter of, 236.
  - Sampson, letter of, 236.
  - ——, junior, letter of, 236.
- Lloyde, Colonel, 87 bis, 88 bis, 89 bis.
- Lock, Mr., 110.
- Loder, Andrew, 287.
- Lodington and Sutherland, Messrs., 126.
- Loftus, Dr., 108.
- Loire, the river, 221.
  - voyage down, 220, 221.
- Lomond, Loch, 208.
- London, 7, 9, 23, 55 ter., 69, 71, 82, 106, 171.
  - bishop of, 143.
  - Beilby Porteus, bishop of, letter of, 291.
  - bishop of, 34.
  - bishop of (1688), letter to, 59.
  - excise of, 96.
  - hospitals in, 143.
  - the lord mayor, 134.
  - letters dated at, 122, 124 (2), 125 (2), 128, 140, 142, 164, 189, 202, 203, 230.
- London and Westminster, places in:
  - Albemarle Street, 286.
  - —— letter dated at, 267.
  - Cary House in Tuttle Street, 118, 119, 120 bis.
    - —— demolition of, 125.
  - British Museum, letters dated at, 198, 281.
  - Bruton Street, letters dated at, 214.
  - Carleton House, 269 287.

London and Westminster—cont.
    Castle Street, letter dated at, 148.
    Cavendish Square, letters dated at, 243 (2).
    Cecil Street, letter dated at, 223.
    Chelsea College, letter dated at, 283.
    Christ's Hospital, 275.
    Cockpit, the, 140.
    College of Arms, letter dated at, 210.
    Covent Garden Theatre, 285.
    "Crown and Rolls," Chancery Lane, 289.
    Dean's Yard, 161.
    Devonshire Street, letter dated at, 280.
    Doctor's Commons, letter dated at, 126.
    Downing Street, 245.
    Drury House, treasurers at, 97.
    Drury Lane Theatre, 285, 293.
    Essex Street, Strand, letter dated at, 290.
    Gray's Inn, 117.
    Great George Street, letters dated at, 254, 256.
    Great Tichfield Street, letter dated at, 280.
    Grosvenor Square, letter dated at, 173, 182, 185.
    Guildhall, 69 bis, 134.
    Hanover Square, burglary in, 207.
    Harpur Street, letter dated at, 189.
    Hartley Row, 133.
    Hatton Garden, letter dated at, 225.
    Heathen House in the Minories, 114.
    Hercules Buildings, letter dated at, 288.
    Irish Walk, in the Exchange, 120.
    "Katherine Wheel," in Pall Mall, 115, 117.
    Kensington Palace, 283, 284.
    —— letter dated at, 287.
    Lord Chamberlain's apartments in, 287.
    King's Bench, 188.
    Lincoln's Inn, letters dated at, 277.
    —— Fields, 134.
    —— —— letter dated at, 243.
    Lock Hospital, the, 212.
    Lombard Street, 152.
    Marlborough Street, coffee house in, 174.
    Marshalsea in Southwark, 115.
    Minories, the, 113.
    Newman Street, letter dated at, 275.
    Old Jewry, letter dated at, 234.
    Old Palace Yard, 289.
    Palace Yard, letter dated at, 292.
    Pall Mall, letter dated at, 278.
    Pantheon, the, 285, 286.
    Park Row, Knightsbridge, letter dated at, 288.
    Princes Street, Cavendish Square, letter dated at, 284.
    Queen's Square, Westminster, letter dated at, 155.
    St. Dunstan's Church, 277.
    St. Katherine's hospital, 143.
    St. James's, 117, 126, 140, 146.

London and Westminster—cont.
    St. James's, Court balls at, 194.
    —— Park, 148.
    —— Square, 225, 229.
    —— —— equestrian statute of William III. in, 275.
    —— —— letters dated at, 48, 205, 267, 290 (2), 291.
    St. Paul's, 146.
    Salisbury Street, Strand, 214.
    —— —— adjoining the Adelphi, letter dated at, 212.
    Sefton House, letter dated at, 292.
    Shoe Lane, 3.
    Soho Square, letter dated at, 292.
    Somerset House, 244.
    Somerset Place, letter dated at, 276.
    Stanhope Street, letter dated at, 270.
    Suffolk Street, Haymarket, letter dated at, 201.
    Tower, the, 125.
    —— armoury in, 1, 4.
    —— chaplain of, 145.
    —— Dutch regiment in, 139.
    —— guards of the, 54.
    —— hospital in, 143.
    —— St. Peter's Chapel within, 145.
    —— letter dated from, 136.
    —— Hamlets, deputy lieutenants of, letter of, 142.
    —— Hill, 113.
    Westminster Bridge, building of, 165.
    —— School, 161.
    Whitehall, 3, 126, 132.
    —— letters dated at, 127, 129, 139, 140, 245, 248.
Longford, co. Wilts., 211.
Longitude, commissioners for discovery of, 177.
Longsands Head, 7, 56 bis, 61.
Loraine, Dorothy, 24.
Lord Chamberlain's Office, notices from 194 (2).
Lord Chancellor, the, 134, 136.
    —— (Ireland), 103.
Lords. See Parliament.
Lothian, Marquis of, 227.
Lough, John, 38.
Louisburg, U.S.A., 216.
Louth:
    county of, 108, 114.
    —— George Legge's estates in, 116.
    Lord, 109.
    the Lord of, 115.
Low Countries, 151.
Lower St. Colomb, co. Cornwall, head quarters of smugglers, 215.
Lowestoft, 9, 12, 17, 21.
Lowland, Mr., 220.
Lowth:
    William, 167.
    —— letter of, 167.
Lowther:
    Lord (1802), 280.
    Sir John, 143.
    —— letter of, 131.
Lucas, Lord, Lieutenant of the Tower, 134, 136.

Ludman, Captain, 7.
Luke:
    John, 38.
    Nathaniel, 39.
Lumley:
    General 95.
    Lady Anne, 154, 155.
Lunardi, Mr., balloon expedition of, 270.
Luton, co. Beds, 212.
Luttrell of Luttrellstone, 115.
Lymington, co. Hants, 243.
Lynch, Sir William, 224.
Lys, River, 91.
Lysaght, Mr., Governor of Cork, 241.
Lyson, Mr. 276.
Lyttelton:
    Lord, 183.
    Sir George, letters to, 166 (2).
    Mr., junior, 166.

M.

Maberly, Mr., agent for Christ's Hospital, 275.
Macartney, Lord, 259.
Macaulay, Alexander, letters of, 245, 258, 264.
Macclesfield, co. Cheshire, rebels at, (1745), 165.
Maccullock, Mrs., 158.
McDonell, Ran., 40.
Mac-Ellicott, Colonel, 138.
Machias, 225.
Mackdonnell, McDonnell, Captain, 40, 42.
Mackenny:
    Alexander, 38.
    John, 38.
Mackenzie, 183.
Mackintosh, Mr., 278.
McLaren, a perfumer, 174.
McLean, Mr., 226.
Macpherson, Mr., in India, 259-264 passim.
Macrae, Mr., 272.
Madan, Rev. William, 186, 187, 189, 191, 201, 234.
    —— death of his son William, 191.
    —— letter, of, 212.
Maddan, Spencer, 273.
Maddock, Peter, 26.
Madock, Samuel, 27.
Madras, 259, 261, 262, 265.
Madrid, 74, 150.
Mæstricht, 91.
Mahrattas, the, 258-261, 265-267.
Maidstone, Lord, 7.
Malabar coast, 259, 266.
Malta, 282.
Malt tax, 252. See Taxes.
Man, Isle of, illicit practices carried on there, 176, 178.
Manchester, 200. places of entertainment at, 233, 236.
    Duke of (1780), 253.
Mander, Mr., 152.
Mansel:
    Lord, 164.
    Lady, 164.
    Mr., 164.
Mansell, 155.
Mansfield:
    Lord (1773), 201, 207.
    letter of, 181.
Mantua, 151.
Maps, plans, &c., 51.
    Berwick-on-Tweed, 54.
    Carlisle, 54.
    Chester, 54.
    Holy Island, 54.
    York, 54.
March, Richard, 26.
Marchiennes, 74.
    letter dated at, 75.
Marchmont, Earl of (1764), 174.
Marcott, Edward, 27.
Mardike, 100.
Margam, 163.
Margate, co. Kent, letter dated at, 286.
Marigny, Marquis de, 221.
Marke, Father John, 25.
Marlborough, 154.
    John Churchill, Duke of, 73.
    —— as Lord Churchill, 121, 127, 133.
    Duke of (1795), 276.
    —— (1725), 152.
Marmora, 45.
Marow, Lady, letters of, 145-148.
Marsalla (?), a Frenchman, 157.
Marseilles, 47.
Marshall, Richard, 27.
Marsham, Sir —, 147.
Martell, French Rear-Admiral, 27.
Martin:
    Edward, 27.
    Thomas, letter from, 114.
Mary of Modena, wife of James II., her flight, 58.
Mary, Queen of Scots, her apartment at Hardwick, 158.
Maskall, George, 38.
Mason:
    —, 207.
    Mr., 229.
Massum, Mrs., 146.
Matlock, co. Derby, mine at, described, 205.
Mathews, James, 187.
Matthews:
    General, 259, 266, 267.
    Mrs., death of, 146.
Matteos:
    Fernando Louis, 38.
    Manuel, 38.
Mattos, Juan Alvarez de, 35.
Mattoso, Viera Belchoir Viera, 38.
Matty, Mr., chaplain at the Paris Embassy, 223.
Maule, Mr., 112.
Maurice, Rev. Thomas, letter of, 280.
Mauritius, 259.
Maynard:
    George, 26.
    Thomas, British Consul at Lisbon, 27. 45.

- Maynard—cont.
  - Walter, 27.
  - Lord (1688), 143.
- Mayne :
  - Sir William, 204.
  - —— house of, at Southgate, 204.
  - Lady, letter of, 205.
- Maynell, Mrs., 284.
- Mayo :
  - county, 118.
  - Lieutenant, 15.
- Mead, Captain, 171.
- Meagher, John, 35.
- Mearne, Miss, detention of, at Nice, 208.
- Medford, Richard, 27.
- Mediterranean Sea, 27, 43 bis.
- Medway, River, 55, 64.
- Mellifont, co. Louth, 113.
- Mellish, Thomas, 27.
- Melton, 207.
- Melville, Lord, 292.
- Mercer, George, 39.
- Mervin, Bernard, 26.
- Mesnar, Chateau de, 221.
- Methodists. See Dissenters.
- Middlesex, 155.
- Middleton :
  - Charles, 39.
  - Sir Charles, letter of, 250.
  - Mrs., apartments of, at Kensington, 287.
  - Erasmus, 187.
  - Charles, Earl of, 66, 143.
- Milan, 151.
- Milbanck, John, 26.
- Miles, Katherine, 24.
- Milford Haven, 281.
- Military watches, 106.
- Miller :
  - Henry, 118.
  - Mr. and Mrs., of Bath, 211.
- Milles, —, 217.
- Mills, C., Chairman of the Court of Directors of the East India Company, 278.
- Milman, Sir Francis, 290.
- Milton, Lord, letter of, 206.
- Mindelheim, 247.
- Mint, 97, 101.
- Mitchell, Thomas, his mathematical inventions, 256.
  - —— letter of, 256.
- Mogul, the Great, 3, 5.
- Molesworth :
  - R., letter of, 226.
  - Lord (1739), 157.
- Monasterboice, co. Louth, 109.
- Monmouth, James, Duke of, 35, 128 bis, 131, 132.
- Montagu :
  - Charles, letter of, 154.
  - Fred, 249.
  - Frederick, letters of, 196, 207.
  - —— mother of, 207.
  - Duke of, his death, 147.
  - Lady, 205.
- Montague :
  - Mr. See Wortley, 36.
  - Sidney, 38.
- Montandre, Madame, 161.
- Montgomery, Captain, 54.
- Moodie, D., letter of, 138.
- Moore :
  - Billy, 161, 162.
  - Francis, 38.
  - John, letter of, 225.
  - William, 38.
  - Mr., 111, 112 bis.
- Moors, the, 33, 35, 42, 44, 45, 47, 51, 53 ter., 129.
- Morant, an Oxonian, 210.
- Moreland, Henry, letter of, 175.
  - pictures repaired by, 175.
- Morgan, Walter, 27.
- Morley, co. York, 190.
  - Stumpcross in, 190.
  - Charles, 142.
- Morocco, Sultan of, 51.
- Morton, Dr. Charles, letter of, 198.
- Mount Edgcombe, co.   , 210.
- Moyle, Joseph, letter of, 176.
- Mulloy :
  - Daniel, 38.
  - James, 38.
  - Lucy, 39.
  - Mrs., 37.
- Mumper. See Pictures.
- Mundin, Captain, 57.
- Munich, 258.
- Munster, Provost Marshall of, 103.
- Murray :
  - Lord James, 77.
  - Lord (1683), 122, 126.
- Musgrave :
  - Sir Christopher, 122, 124 bis, 125, 126, 127, 142.
  - —— letters of, 121, 122, 124 (2).
  - —— reports by, 54 (4).
  - —— surrender of Carlisle to, 143.
  - Philip, letters of, 134, 135, 137, 142.
  - —— William, uncle of, 143.
  - Mr., 140.
- Mysore, 266.
  - regent of, 260.

N.

- Nabo, Fernando da, 38.
- Nantes, 222.
  - American company in, 247.
- Nantwich, co. Chester, 165.
- Napier, a pilot, 21.
- Naples, 151, 224.
  - festivities at, 238.
  - foreigners at, 238.
  - letter dated at, 238.
  - Queen of, 211.
- Napoleon Buonaparte, 280.
- Napper, Frances, 24.

Narborough, Captain John (Sir John), Naval Commissioner, 13, 21, 27, 54.
Narrow Seas, 106.
Navy, the: See Admiralty, Ships.
    cost of, 100.
    debt incurred for, 105.
    pressing of men forbidden, 69.
    reports on, 33.
    secretary of, 70.
    state of, in 1783, 264.
    treasurer of, 100, 105 bis.
    board, 63.
    —— commissioners, 100, 104; and see Narborough, Sir John.
Naze, the, 7, 56.
Nazeland, 56.
Necker, 246.
Needham, Mr., death of, 203.
Nelson and Bronte, Lord:
    letters of, 283, 286.
    funeral car of, 290.
Nemours, Duke de, 25.
Ness, the, 57.
Nesse, Van. See Van Nesse.
Netherlands, 79.
    commerce in, 94.
Neuville, 75.
Nevers in Nevernois, 221.
Nevill:
    Quartermaster, 38.
    John, 38.
    the widow, 37, 39.
Newcastle-on-Tyne, 216.
Newcastle:
    Duke of (1795), 275.
    —— Lord Hardwick's letters to, 264.
    Duchess of (1709), 147.
    Duke of, 155.
    —— (1765), 185.
    —— letter of, 179.
    Duchess of, 264.
    co. Staffs., riots at, 267.
Newenham, Sir Edward, letters of, 239–242.
Newfoundland fleet, 131.
Newham, Leonard, 26.
Newmarket, 125 bis, 126.
Newport, 95.
New Quay, co. Cornwall, 215.
Newspapers: of York and Leeds, 251.
    Ghent Gazette, 96.
Newton, John and Rev. John. offered a post in America, 180.
    —— his book Ecclesiastical History, 191, 192.
    —— his literary work. See his letters passim.
    —— his letters to Lord Dartmouth, 171, 173, 175, 180, 183 (2), 184 (2), 185, 187, 188, 189, 190 (3), 191 (3), 192 (2), 196, 199, 200, 203 (2), 207, 208, 209, 212, 216, 234, 237, 245, 248 (2), 256, 268, 270.
    —— letters to, 173 (2).
New York, customs of, 215.
Nice, detention of Miss Mearne at, 208.
Nicols, Richard, 7.
Nimeguen, letter dated at, 245.
Nivernois:
    Duke de, 223.
    —— his daughter, 223.
Noell, farmer of customs, 96, 98, 105.
Nore, the, 7, 9, 55 bis, 56, 59, 60, 65, 68, 69, 71. buoy at, 59, 71, 139, 143.
Norfolk:
    plan for a tour in, 229.
    Duke of, 145.
    Edward, Duke of, 280.
North:
    Francis, Lord, Earl of Guilford, 163, 165.
    —— letters of, 157, 164, 249.
    —— letter to, 154, 156.
    —— portrait of, 276.
    —— Elizabeth, wife of, letters of, 158 (2), 159 (3), 160, 161 (2), 162, 163 (4).
    —— —— letters to, 162, 164.
    Frederick, Lord, son of the above, 193, 201, 202, 203, 210, 213, 223, 224, 229, 230, 240, 241, 249, 250, 252, 255.
    —— proposed for office, 179.
    —— defeat of his ministry, 257.
    —— his popularity, 264.
    —— letters of, 201, 206, 245, 253, 257.
Northampton, 200.
    Marquis of, his armour, 1.
North Foreland, 7, 9, 57.
North Sand Head, 57, 66.
Northumberland:
    Duke of, his armour, 1.
    —— (1766), 183.
    —— (1780), 252 bis.
    Countess dowager of, (1698), account book of, 145.
Norton, Colonel Richard, 137, 138, 142.
    letter from, 135.
Norway trade, 179.
Norwich school, 243, 268.
Norwood, Captain, 38.
Nott, Mr., 214.
Nottingham, 200.
    letter dated at, 158.
    Daniel Finch, Earl of, 101, 143.
    —— design of shooting, 198.
    —— letter of, 121.
Nova Scotia, 216.
    petition of the inhabitants, 223.
Nova Zembla, 212.
Noyelle, letters dated at, 78, 79 (2), 83 (2), 86, 88 (2), 89 (3).

O.

Oaze Edge, 9, 56.
    letter dated at, 59.
    buoy, 7.
O'Bryan, Kennedy, 38.
Offchurch, co. Warw, 145.

- Officers at sea, duties of, 106.
- Ogle, George, 241.
- Okehampton, co. Devon., letter dated at, 211.
- Olney, co. Bucks, 191, 192.
  - Cowper settles at, 183.
  - small-pox at, 192.
  - Rev. John Newton's description of, 175, 183, 185, 186.
  - letters dated at, 175, 180, 183–185, 187–192 passim, 196, 199, 200, 203 (2), 207 208, 209, 212, 216, 234, 237, 245, 248 (2).
  - the parade, 183.
  - market place, 183.
- Oliver, John, 57.
- Omiah, a native of Otaheite, 225.
- O'Neile, Mr., 107.
- Onore, 266.
- Onslow, Mr., 181.
- Opdam, Dutch commander, 10.
- Oporto, grievance of English wine merchants at, 181.
- Orange, Prince of (1688). See William III.
  - (1779), 248.
- Ordnance:
  - the, reports on, 33.
  - Office, the, 54, 97, 140.
- Orkney, Lord (1712), 95.
- Orleans, (France), 221.
  - cathedral at, 221.
  - Duke of, the regent, 80, 149, 150, 151.
  - —— son of the regent, 151.
- Ormond, James Butler, duke of, 120, 125, 133, 146.
  - his son. See Ossory, Earl of.
  - (son of Ossory), 73, 81, 85 passim.
  - —— his instructions, 72.
  - —— letters of, 72–96 passim.
  - —— letters to, 72–96 passim.
- Orrery:
  - Earl of (1712), 95.
  - Lady, 146.
- Ossory, Earl of, 22, 30 bis, 31 bis, 32, 120.
- Orvillier. See D'Orvillier.
- Osmaston, co. Derby, 158.
  - letter dated at, 163.
- Ostend, 10 bis, 73.
- Ostermann, Count, 196.
- Ottoboni, Cardinal, his collection of pictures, 181.
- Oughton:
  - Colonel, 170.
  - Sir James Adolphus, 202, 208.
  - —— letter of, 207.
  - —— letter to, 208.
- Oude, 261, 262, 265.
- Owens, Thomas, 119.
- Oxford, 187, 188, 203.
  - influenza at, 223.
  - race, 11.
  - University, 204.
  - —— "Law election" at, 217.
  - —— the Vice-Chancellor, 187, 188.
  - the colleges:
    - All Souls, letter dated at, 237.
    - Christ Church, 275.
    - —— Edmund Burke's son at, 209.
- Oxford—cont.
    - Christ Church, letter dated at, 200, 217, 223.
    - —— prizes for essays at, 217.
    - New College, 217.
    - St. Edmund's Hall, proceedings at, 137.
  - Earl of, 96, 282.

P.

- P . . , duke of, 269.
- Packington, co. Warw., 146.
  - letter dated at, 152.
- Padstow, co. Cornwall, 117.
  - letter dated at, 214.
  - Gulland, 214.
  - Newland Rock, 214.
- Paget:
  - Sir Capt., 287.
  - T., letter of, 160.
- Palatinate, the Upper, 247.
- Palatines, troops of the, 92.
- Palliser, Sir Hugh, 245.
- Palmer, Samuel, 27.
- Pampas, the, 8.
- Panama, 72.
- Papists. See Roman Catholics,
- Papplewick, co. Notts., letter dated at, 158, 196.
- Parella. See Pictures.
- Pargiter, John, 26.
- Pariente, Solomon, 35.
- Paris, 96, 288.
  - Hotel d'Angleterre, Rue de Richelieu, letter dated at, 222.
  - Pont Sans Pareil, 218.
  - sickliness at, 223.
  - the fall of the Bastile, 274.
  - letters dated at, 218, 223, 272.
- Parker, John Frederick, 283, 286.
- Parkinson, Mrs., 190.
- Parliament, 78, 80, 116, 139, 249, 261, 262, 290.
  - James II.'s last, 140.
  - convention in 1689, 140, 142.
  - defeat of Lord North's ministry, 257.
  - proceedings in, 148, 275, 276.
  - Acts of, Acts of Settlement, 113.
    - Armament Bill, 281.
    - Dublin Paving Bill, 240.
    - Bill on privilege of Peerage, 181.
  - House of Lords, 78, 188.
  - —— address of, to William III., 141, 143.
  - —— appeals in, 152, 153.
  - —— election of Scotch Peers, 211.
  - Lords Spiritual and Temporal, meeting of, in the Guildhall (1688), 69 bis, 134, 135.
  - —— —— secretary of, 139.
  - —— —— warrant of, 136.
  - House of Commons, 78, 213.
  - —— petitions, 232, 234.

Parliament—cont.
  House of Commons, Speaker (1780), 249.
  —— —— his apartments, 292.
  —— Theatre Bill for Birmingham, 232, 237.
  Irish, 242.
Parliamentary representation, 234.
Parr, Dr. Samuel, 200. candidate for headmastership of Harrow, 194, 195.
  opens a school at Stanmore, 195.
  becomes headmaster at Colchester, 231, 243. candidate for Norwich School, 243.
  letters of, 194, 195 (3), 214, 216, 225, 230, 231, 243, 250, 268.
  his wife, 231, 232.
Parry, Francis, agent of Charles II. in Portugal, 27.
Parsons:
  John, 26.
  Rev. J., letters of, 232, 233, 236, 237.
  Dr., 189.
Patteson, E. W., letter of, 236.
Pattison, Captain, 21.
Paulet:
  Lord H., 153. family, 161 bis, 162.
Payne, Mrs., 160, 162 bis.
Peace, Justices of, 97.
Peachy, William, 26.
Peak, the, co. Derby, 205.
Pearce, Captain, death of, 7.
Pearse, Surgeon-General, proposals of, about Hounslow Hospital, 143.
Pedro. See Portugal, Kings of.
Peirse, Robert, 117, 118.
Pelham:
  Lord, 264.
  T., letter of, 237.
Pembridge, James, 38.
Pembroke, Thomas Herbert, Earl of, 143, 147.
Pendennis, co. Cornwall, 46, 48.
Penrice, Grace, 24.
Penryn, co. Cornwall, 179.
Penton, Mr., 254.
Pepys, Samuel, Secretary to the Navy and Clerk of the Acts; a commissioner for Tangiers, 34 bis, 36 bis, 39, 40, 54, 55 bis, 131.
  —— letters to, 59–66 passim, 68–71 passim.
Peronne (France), 219.
Perry, Thomas, 38.
Perth, letter dated at, 256.
Peterborough:
  Charles Mordaunt, Earl of, 146.
  Lady, 39.
  —— her house in Tangier, 35.
Petersfield, co. Hants, 203.
Petit Bois (France), letter dated at, 221.
Philip. See Spain.
Phillips, Thomas, 81, 122, 129.
  letter from, 135.
Philpot:
  Ann 39.
  John, 39.
Phipps, Hon. Captain, 212.
Phœnix, Eleanor, 39.
Pia Principa, 168.
Pictures, 193, 194, 243.
  several described, 175.
  Volume of M. Angelo, Raphael, &c., 168.
  Barrocio, Miniature of Duchess of Urbino, 170.
  Beneficialli, "La Sibilla d'Egitto," 168.
  Caracci, A. "Characters of Bologni," 168.
  —— "Crucifixion after Tintoretto, 168.
  Claude Lorraine, 168, 169, 170.
  Davido, "Game," 171.
  Dominichino "Head of a Prophet," 168, 170.
  Durer, A., prints by, 168.
  Eldridge, portrait by, 276.
  Gainsborough, "Lord Dartmouth," 190
  Giacomo, Padre, "March of an Army," 169 bis.
  Gilpin, Rev. W., drawings of, 270–272.
  Giovanni Bapt. Bossiere. Views of Rome, 168, 171.
  Guido "San Francesco," 168–170.
  Guraerto, Chiaro Oscuro by, at Cambray, 219.
  Horizonti, landscapes, 168, 170.
  Jenkins, Thomas, pictures by, 169–171.
  —— Portraits of Lord Dartmouth and Earl of Guilford, 276.
  Lama, Philippo, "San Girolamo," 168–170.
  Mumper, landscapes, 169, 170 bis.
  Parella, landscapes, 168.
  Pompeo, portrait of Earl of Dartmouth, 171.
  —— —— Earl of Guilford, 171.
  Poussin, Gaspar, landscapes, 168 bis, 169, 170, 181.
  —— "Magdalen," 181.
  ——, N. do. 168, 170.
  Raphael, drawings, &c., after, 168 bis.
  Reubens, paintings of, at St. Omer, 219.
  Salvator Rosa, landscape, 168.
  —— battle scene, 169, 170.
  —— pictures retouched by, 168.
  Tasso, Augustin figures, 169, 170.
  Tempesta di Genoa, sea view, 169, 170.
  Titian, "Judgment of Paris," 168, 169, 170 bis.
  —— landscape, 168, 169.
  Torregiani, landscapes by, 168, 170.
  Van der Mulen, "Dead Game," 168, 170.
  Viviano, architecture, 169.
  —— a perspective, 170.
  Wilson, pictures by, 169, 170.

- Pictures—cont.
  - Portraits:
    - —— Charles II., 376.
    - —— James II., 376.
    - —— Dartmouth, Earl of, 168 bis, 171, 190, 276.
    - —— Devonshire, Earl of, 214 bis.
    - —— Duncombe, Mr. and Lady C., 276.
    - —— Howard, Sir G., 1.
    - —— Guilford, Earl of, 168 bis, 171, 276.
- Piedmont, Prince of, 151.
- Pimm, Lieutenant, 16.
- Pinner, co. Middlesex, West End near, 283.
- Pinnon, Lieutenant, 16.
- Pipe Office, 97.
- Piper, Sir Hugh, Lieutenant-Governor of Plymouth, 48.
- Pitt:
  - Mr., 166. See also Chatham.
  - —— forming a Ministry (1766), 183.
  - William, the younger, 218, 219, 268.
  - —— funeral of, 290.
  - Mr. and Mrs., 279.
- Plays:
  - "Douglas," by John Home, 174.
  - "Elfrida," 200.
  - "Feasts of Isis," 291.
  - "The Island Princes," 145.
  - "The Way of the World, 145.
- Plunket. See Fitzwilliam.
  - Mrs. Mary, 111.
- Plymouth, 48 bis, 58, 210, 214.
  - letter dated at sea off, 120.
  - Sound, letter dated from ship in, 47.
  - Dockyard, 280.
  - duty, 97.
  - election at, 250.
  - mayor of, 243.
  - smuggling at, 178.
  - Lord Lewisham elected M.P. for, 243.
- Poland:
  - King of, 152.
  - Queen of, 152.
- Polexfell, John, 26.
- Polexton, Nicholas, 26.
- Pombala, Marquis da, 227.
- Pompadour, Madame de, 221.
- Pompeo, Mr., 169. See Pictures.
- Pondicherry, taking of, 245.
- Pont St. Maxence (France), 219.
- Pontypool ware, 277.
- Poole:
  - co. Dorset, 58.
  - Mr., 159.
  - his daughter, Mrs. Clarke, 159.
- Poonah, 259, 261.
- Pope, Edward, 39.
- Pope, the. See Rome.
- Popish. See Roman Catholic.
- Popular Cries:
  - "No Boot," 188.
  - "Wilkes and Liberty," 188.
- Portland:
  - Duke of, (1767), 185.
  - —— (1772), accident to, 196.
- Portland—cont.
  - Duke of, (1772), his son Lord Titchfield, 196.
  - —— (1808), 292.
- Portsmouth:
  - letters dated at, 135, 138.
  - Blockhouse Point, 123.
  - Charles II.'s visit to, 122–124.
  - Charles Fort at, 70.
  - fortifications of, named, 122–124.
  - garrison at, 70.
  - 49, 55, 57 bis, 58, 59, 64 ter., 65 bis, 67, 71, 124, 142, 143, 203, 210.
  - Godshouse at, 34, 122, 123, 124.
  - Gosport, 122, 123, 124.
  - Hell Head, 135.
  - hospital at, 123.
  - James Fort at, 70.
  - mayor of, letter to, 70.
  - officers of the yard at, 69.
  - Southsea, 70, 122–124.
  - surrender of, 137.
  - Duchess of, 123, 124 bis, 126.
- Portugal:
  - the Portuguese, 23–26, 45, 71, 130.
  - the King of, 39.
  - —— his bed described, 146, 147.
  - —— Harness for, 147.
  - Pedro Perera, King of, 25.
  - —— Maria Francesca Isabel de Savoia, wife of, 25.
  - —— Isabella Maria Josepha, daughter of, 25.
  - English in, their names, 26.
  - Jews in, 24.
- Portuguese church at Tangiers, 34, 35.
- Postage, 97.
- Postmasters, their duties, 33.
- Post office, the, 54.
- Pougsley, John, 27.
- Poussin. See Pictures.
- Povey, Mr., 36 bis.
- Powderham, co. Devon, 210.
- Powes, Chief Justice, 120.
- Powlet family. See Paulet.
- Preistman, Captain Henry, 119. See Priestman.
- Presbyterians. See Dissenters.
- Presean, letter dated at, 94.
- Preston:
  - Richard Graham, Viscount, 136, 143, 197, 198.
  - —— godfather to Lord Dartmouth's grandson, 142.
- Price:
  - Mr. John, of Lombard Street, 152.
  - Thomas, letter of, 236, 237.
  - a hackney coachman, 39.
- Prichard:
  - George, letter of, 290.
  - Sir William, 125.
- Priestley, Dr., 273–275.
- Priestman, Preistman, Captain Henry, 40, 47 ter., 119.
- Prince Edward Island. See St. John Island.
- Pringle, Sir John, P.R.S., 243.
- Privy Council, 206, 224.

Procter:
  Thomas, letter of, 225.
  —— his brother at Sackville, 226.
Prussia:
  King of, 247, 248.
  ambassador of, to Stockholm, in 1772, 196.
Prussians, 72.
Prynn, Nicholas, 27.
Prynne, extracts from his works, 234.
Puntal Castle, 131.
Pye, Henry James:
  letter of, 283.
  ode by, 283.
Pyend Captain, 16.

Q.

Queensborough, Duchess of (1708), 146.
Quesnoy, siege and capture of, 73–78 passim, 81, 82, 94, 95.
Quixote, Don, 26.

R.

Ragobah, 261.
Ramsey:
  Mr., 174.
  Sir George, 272.
Randolph, 217.
Ranelagh, Lord (1688), 134.
Rathdrum, 111.
Rawlings, William, letters of, 176, 178, 214.
Read, Morgan, 39.
Receipt, court of, 101.
Regiments, 72, 119, 139. See Troops.
  Four companies of dragoons on Scotch Establishment, 102.
  Grenadiers, 48, 52, 53.
  guards, 77.
  —— pay of officers of, 100.
  Handyside's foot, 165.
  Irish dragoons, 135.
  Kirke's, 52, 53.
  Life Guards, 99.
  Lord Cobham's dragoons, 165.
  Lord Gower's, 165.
  Lord Molesworth's, 226.
  Mac-Ellicott's, 138.
  Staffordshire Militia, 267.
  Trelawney's, 35, 51, 53.
  —— colours of, 40.
  on Irish Establishment, 103.
  Dutch, 139.
  French, "Liennois," 218.
  Holstein dragoons, 92, 93.
  of Trèves, 92.
  of the Palatinate, 92.
  Walloffé's, 88, 92, 93 bis.
  the Walloon, 73.
Regiments at Tangier:
  list of commissioners and staff officers of, 50.
  musters of, 50.
  the Scotch, 51.
  Trelawney's, 51 bis.
Renalson, William, 24.
Revenue, public, of England, 96–98.
  —— Scotland, 98, 99.
  —— Ireland, 99, 100.
  —— committee of House of Commons on (1659), 96.
  auditor of, 101.
  receiver of, 101.
  and expenditure, public, 96–104.
Reynardson, James ("Cob"), letter of, 227.
Reynolds, a papist, of Dublin, 242.
Rheims (France), 219.
Richmond:
  Duke of (1683), 124.
  —— (1745), 165.
Ridgsand, 55.
Rigges, Mr., 123.
Riland, Mr., 273.
Roads, account of the, in England, 33.
Roanne in Burgundy, 220.
Roberts:
  Nathaniel, 39.
  Thomas, 39.
Robertson, Colonel James, letter of, 216.
Robinson:
  John, letters of, 229, 230, 252 (2).
  Sir John, Lieutenant of the Tower, 41, 145.
  Captain, 9.
Rochefort, Countess de, 223.
Rochester, co. Kent, 139, 140, 141, 143, 217.
  Laurence Hyde, Earl of, 121 bis, 123, 127, 135–137, 140, 142, 146.
  —— letter of, 140.
Rochford, Lord, 229.
Rockingham, Marquis of, 179, 180.
  letters of, 182 (2), 185, 188, 206.
Rockley, Sir Richard, of county Stafford, 161.
Roderick, Mr., 232.
Rodrigues:
  Duarte, 39.
  Elizabeth, 39.
Rogers, Samuel, 226.
Rolland, Symon, 126.
Roman Catholic, papists, popish, 58, 136, 137, 152, 208.
  chapel at Edgbaston, 250. officers, 69, 134, 135, 143. priests, 70.
  "No Popery" riots, 250, 251. estates of, 96.
Rome, 238.
  letters dated at, 167–171, 200, 208, 243.
  views of, 171.
  the Pope, 200, 208, 211.
  —— visits Vienna, 257.

- Romney, Lord (1736), 155.
- Rooke, Captain G., afterwards Sir George, 40, 42 bis.
- Rothe, Edward, 37, 39, 51.
- Rotherhythe, co. Kent, 132.
- Roundell, Rev. William, letter of, 251.
- Row, 123.
- Rowe:
  - Thomas, 39.
  - Mrs., 284.
- Rowley, co. Lanc., 204.
- Roy (France), 219.
- Royal Society:
  - the, 189, 190.
  - anniversary of, St. Andrew's Day, 243, 244.
  - new apartments of, at Somerset House, 244.
  - presidency of, 198.
- Royston, Lord (1768), 189.
- Rudge:
  - Edward, 26.
  - James, 26 bis.
- Rugeley, co. Staff., 165.
- Rupert, Prince, 10–12 passim, 26, 33.
- Russell:
  - Captain, 140.
  - Mr., 142.
  - Mary, 24.
  - Thomas, letter of, 236.
  - —— letter of, 236.
  - William, 273.
  - —— his papers, 275.
  - Lord, 197.
  - Lord John (1732), 153.
- Russia:
  - politics of, in 1772, 196, 197. .
  - Czar of, 152.
- Ruyter. See de Ruyter.
- Rye-house plot, 140.
- Rynes, Captain, 286.

S.

- S. Lord, 287.
- Sabine, 95.
- Sacheverell, Dr., his sermon, 148.
- Sackville, 226.
  - Colonel Edward, commander of the Tangier garrison, 51.
- Sadlington, Captain, 16.
- St. Albans:
  - Duke of, his son, 152.
  - Head, co. Dorset, 58, 67.
- St. Ange, Colonel, 139.
- St. Anthony's fire, 145.
- St. Clare, Colonel, 139.
- St. Columbe, Colomb, co. Cornwall, letters dated at, 176, 177.
- St. Croix, 199.
- St. Denis (France), 219.
- St. Domingo, French troops sent to, 222.
- St. Donat's Castle, 164.
  - letter dated at, 164.
- "Saint Elverdin," letter of, 247.
- St. George Fort, India, 278, 279.
  - letters dated at, 278 (2).
- St. Helena, the island, 27.
- St. Helens, Isle of Wight, 57, 58, 65, 66, 67, 68 bis.
- St. John:
  - Captain, 37.
  - Thomas, 39.
  - Mr. (Bolingbroke), 86 passim. See Bolingbroke.
  - Mrs., 160.
  - Island of (Prince Edward Island), 226.
- St. Kitts, in the West Indies, 199.
- St. Loe, George, 40.
- St. Lucia, British victories in, 245.
- St. Mary's Port, 131.
- St. Omer (France), 219.
  - cathedral at, 219.
  - letter dated at, 218.
- Saite:
  - Anne, 39.
  - Griffith, 39.
- Salee, 45 bis, 46, 47, 126.
- Salisbury:
  - James II. at, 68.
  - Lord (1804), 288.
  - Mariana, 24.
  - Ursula, 24.
- Salt:
  - excise of foreign, 98.
- Salt Hill, 203.
- Salvaterra, 25.
- Sambige, Sir William, his daughter, 111.
- Samms, John, 39.
- Sandal, letter dated at, 239.
- Sandison, Robert, 39.
- Sandwell, co. Staff., 158, 229 bis.
  - letters dated at, 149 (2), 150, 159 (2), 165, 198.
- Sandwich:
  - Edward Montagu, first Earl of, 14 bis, 15, 17 bis, 11, 19 bis, 21, 22, 39.
  - —— death of, 7.
  - John Montagu, fourth Earl of, 188.
  - —— letter of, 253.
- Sandypoint, living of, 199.
- Sanford, Nicholas, 36 bis, 39.
- Sarum, Bishop of (1795), 276.
- Satarah, Rajah of, 260.
- Saunders, Mr., 275.
- Savile, Mr., 21.
- Saxony:
  - Elector of, 247.
  - Electress of, 152.
  - Prince of, 152
- Scawen, Mr., report by, 96.
- Scheldt, River, 74, 75.
- Schoorwelt, 9, 10 ter., 11, 12.
- Scilly, Islands, smuggling in, 177.
- Scindia, 261, 265.
- Scot, Mr., 268.
- Scotland, 211, 216,
  - army in, 100, 104.
  - expenditure of, 102.
  - revenue of, 98, 99.

Scotsmen, 207, 208.
Scott:
    Sir Edward, 70, 137, 138.
    Lady, 70.
    —— letters of, 137, 138.
    —— Aylmer, cousin of, 138.
    Robert, letter of, 252.
    Walter, 293.
    —— letter of, 292.
    Mr., letter to, 152.
    Mrs., 218.
Sculpture:
    Apollo Belvedere, 171.
    —— Vil Meden, 171.
    —— e Daphne, Vil Borghesia, 171.
    Hermaphrodite, Vil Borghesia, 171.
    Zingaro, Vil Borghesia, 171.
Sea coal, 101.
    duty on, 97, 98.
    duty on exportation of, 96.
Seckendorffe, Major-General, 92, 93.
Secker, Dr., lectures of, 214.
Secretaries of State, not named, 49, 72, 197.
Sedley, Miss, marriage of, 163.
Seine, River, 221.
Selle, River, 75, 76 bis.
Seller, Mr., 39.
Senhouse, Richard, 39.
Sensell, River, 72.
Sevigné, Madame de, 222.
Seville, 131.
Seymour, Lord, of Sudeley, his armour, 1.
Shackleford, John Edward, 174.
Shaftesbury, co. , 211.
Shakerley, Peter, letter of, 139.
Shakespeare, his female characters acted by men, 291.
Sharp, Granville, letter of, 234, 254.
Sheerness, 62, 63 bis.
    fort, letter dated at, 139.
Shelburne, Lord (1781), 255.
Sheldon, Ralph, 143.
Shelley, Captain, 16 bis.
Shelness, co. Kent, 137.
Shelton, Ralph, 139.
Shepherd, Dr., 244.
Shere:
    Sir Henry, 39, 136.
    —— letter of, 133.
Sherburne:
    Sir Edward, 136.
    —— letter of, 136.
Sheridan, R. B., letter of, 293.
Sheriffs, 97, 99, 101.
    accounts of, 99, 101.
Sherrow:
    John, 39.
    Mary, 39.
Shipman, Joseph, 187.
Ships, 28 passim, 58 passim, 59 passim, and see infra.
    Algerian, destroyed, 5.
    Brandenburger, captured, 63–65.
    Dutch, 6, 9, 10, 13, 14, 27–32 passim, 56–61 passim, 63, 65 passim, 66, 67, 134, 250, 258.
    —— East India fleet, 8, 9 bis.
Ships—cont.
    Dutch, Holland squadron, 18.
    —— Zealand squadron, 18, 19, 20, 23.
    French, 6, 7, 9–13, 15, 18–20, 27, 28 passim, 32, 259, 266.
    —— the Bordeaux fleet, 9.
    Spanish, captured, 287.
    East India, 8.
    English, 8.
    —— sold, 106.
    —— taken by the Dutch, 106.
    —— burnt, sunk, or broken up, 106.
    Jamaica fleet, 255.
    Newfoundland fleet, 131.
    a yacht, 60.
    Captain Hoskin's yacht, 138.
    scouting smacks, 56.
    scarcity of chaplains on the fleet, 59.
    a galliot, 8.
    Alice, 15.
    Anne, 18.
    Anne and Judith, fireship, 20.
    Antelope, 58.
    Assistance, log of H.M.S., 27.
    Assurance, frigate, 57, 62, 65.
    Bantam, fireship, 20, 21.
    Blandford, Indiaman, 259.
    Bonaventure, 46 bis, 58, 60, 68.
    Breston, 6.
    Bristol, 16, 70.
    Cambridge, 6, 10, 11, 19, 22, 23.
    Castle, fireship, 22.
    Centurion, 27, 45 bis, 47, 48, 57 ter., 62, 65.
    Charles, fireship, 65, 66.
    —— 16, 18 bis, 19, 124.
    Charles and Henry, fireship, 63.
    Cleveland, yacht, 56, 57, 67.
    Constant Warwick, 47, 57, 131.
    Crown, 45.
    Dartmouth, 16, 22, 34, 45 bis, 46, 56, 57.
    David, 42.
    Defiance, 55.
    Diamond, 6,
    Diamond and Crown, 8.
    Dover, 18, 45, 47, 56, 63.
    Dragon, 47 bis.
    Drake, 46.
    Dunkirk, 58, 69.
    Edgar, 14, 15, 20, 58, 69.
    Elizabeth, 55.
    Fairfax, 6, 22.
    Fan-Fan, sloop, 58.
    Foresight, frigate, 57, 60, 61 bis, 63.
    Fountain, fireship, 21.
    Francis, 15.
    Fubbs, Phubbs, yacht, 70 bis, 71 bis, 127, 138.
    Gibraltar, 283, 286.
    Gloucester, hulk, 40.
    Grafton, 47 bis, 48.
    Greenwich, 13.
    Greyhound, 45, 46.
    Guernsey, 11.
    Halfmoon, fireship, 65, 66.
    Hampshire, 31.

Ships—cont.
- Hedleburghs, Heldrenbergh, hospital ship, 58.
- —— loss of, 67.
- Henrietta, 44, 47.
- —— smack, 139.
- —— yacht, 33.
- Henry, 8, 15, 22.
- Hopewell, smack, 59.
- James, galley, 42, 45, 46 bis.
- Jammy, yacht, 139.
- Jersey, 58, 67 bis.
- Joshua, 126.
- Katherine, 16.
- —— yacht, 56, 61 bis, 62, 63.
- Kitchin, yacht, 56, 61.
- Lark, 46.
- London, 15, 16 bis, 17, 23 bis.
- Mary, 62, 65.
- —— merchantman, 171.
- —— yacht, 71 bis.
- Marygold, fireship, 27.
- Mary Rose, 14, 19, 47.
- Medea, frigate, 259.
- Merlin, Dutch galley, 17.
- —— yacht, 54.
- Monk, 6, 8.
- Montague, 46 bis, 47, 57 bis, 65, 67, 69 bis.
- Nancy, 261.
- Newcastle, 56, 57, 66.
- Nonsuch, 42, 54 bis, 56, 70.
- Old James, 6, 15.
- Ossory, 124.
- Oxford, 46.
- Paradise, 138.
- Pearl, 46 bis, 58, 63.
- Pendennis, 58, 60, 67.
- Phœnix, 6, 22, 23.
- Phubbs, yacht. See Fubbs.
- Portsmouth, 62.
- Prince, 6, 7 bis, 8, 13, 16 ter., 17, 20, 21, 31 passim, 32.
- Princess, 8 bis.
- Prudent Mary, fireship, 30, 31.
- Quaker, ketch, 56.
- Rachel and Thomas, 15.
- Resolution, 6, 16 ter., 22, 23, 55 passim.
- —— letters dated on board, 59–71.
- Richmond, 15.
- Robert, 15.
- Roebuck, fireship, 65.
- Royal Charles, 11.
- Royal Citadel, hired ship, 120.
- Royal James, 13, 14, 15, 16, 19, 22 ter.
- Royal Katherine, 21, 22.
- Royal Prince, 7, 20 bis, 30 passim, 31, 32 ter., 33.
- —— journal of, 9–13.
- Ruby, 16 bis, 17, 56, 62.
- Rupert, 15, 58, 69 bis.
- St. Alban, 57 bis, 66.
- St. Andrew, 19.
- St. David, 45, 46,
- St. George, 30 passim, 32.
- St. Michael, 6 bis, 13 bis, 16 bis, 19, 20, 21 ter., 23 bis, 27, 30 ter.

Ships—cont.
- Sally Rose, 63.
- Sampson, fireship, 62.
- Sapphire, 42 bis, 45 bis, 46 bis.
- Saudades, merchantman, 23, 56, 58, 61.
- Scedam, prize, 43.
- Sedgemore, 139.
- —— frigate, 59.
- Sovereign, 9, 11, 12, 17, 18 passim, 22.
- Speedwell, fireship, 58, 63 bis.
- Superbe, 259.
- Swallow, 45, 60.
- Swan, 47.
- Swan pink, prize, 44.
- Swiftsure, 11.
- Three Brothers, smack, 59.
- Tiger, prize (Turkish), 46, 48.
- Two Lyons of Salee, prize (Tunisian), 47.
- Unity, fireship, 63.
- Vansittart, Indiaman, 178.
- Victory, fireship, 5.
- —— 6, 20, 22, 23 bis.
- —— Nelson's flagship, letter dated abroad, 283, 286.
- Warspite, 58, 69.
- Woolwich, 57, 66.
- York, 18, 67 bis.
- Young Spragge, 54 bis, 55.

Shooter's Hill, co. Kent, 217.

Shovell:
- Captain Cloudesley (afterwards Sir C.), 40, 42 bis, 45.
- Lady, 147.
- —— her daughter's marriage, 147.

Shrewsbury, fortifications of, 54.

Shuttleworth, John, 39.

Shutz, Colonel, 160.

Sicily, King of, 224.

Siddons:
- Henry, letter of, 293.
- Mrs. Sarah, letters of, 283, 293.

Siegar, an apothecary, 155.

Signs, Katherine Wheel, 115, 117. See Inns.

Simmonds, George, 39.

Simpson, Charles, letter of, 249.

Sing, Ceyt; Rajah of Benares, 261.

Sion Hill, letters dated at, 229, 230, 252 (2).

Sittingbourne, co. Kent, 217.

Skelton:
- Captain, 58.
- —— lieutenant of the Tower, 134.

Sladway, the, 7, 56.

Slingsby, Harry, 142.

Small-pox, 163.
- inoculation against, 164.

Smith, 109 bis, 111 bis, 112.
- Bridget, 24.
- Brooke, 236.
- Erasmus, 117.
- Mary, 24.
- William, mayor of Tangiers, 33, 34 bis, 35, 36, 39.
- Dr. 279.

Smolt, Thomas, English chaplain at Lisbon, 27.
Smugglers and smuggling, 177, 214, 215.
Smyth, Dr. See Smith.
Smyrna, 27.
Soldiers, 61. See Regiments.
Sole Bay, 6, 7, 9, 60.
Solesmes, 75.
  letters dated at, 75 (2).
Somers, William, armour of, 14 bis.
Somerset, Duke of (Protector), his armour, 1.
  Charles Seymour, Duke of, 124, 143.
Songs, " You see at Derby," 145.
Soper, Major Thomas, letter of, 139.
Sound, the, 8.
South America, 71, 265.
Southampton, 122, 123, 124, 210, 211, 243.
  letter dated at, 176.
South Foreland, 57.
South Sand Head, 57.
Southgate, co. Middlesex :
  Arno's Grove, 204.
  —— letter dated at, 204,
Southsea Castle. See Portsmouth.
South Sea scheme, 149.
South Seas, John Cox's travels in, 71.
Southwold Bay, 15, 18.
Spain :
  Spaniards, 45, 71, 72, 79 bis, 255, 265.
  a Spaniard, 54.
  crown of, 149–152.
  King of, 78, 131, 149.
  Philip, King of, 80, 83.
  Philip V., king of, his abdication, 150–152.
  —— Don Louis, his son, 150.
  proceedings of, in Algeria, 222.
Sparkes, Henry, 39.
Speake, Mr., 124.
Spelman, Lady B., 148.
Spencer :
  B., 273.
  John, letter of, 287.
  Dr., 251.
Spithead, 57–59, 64–66, 68 bis, 71, 133, 140, 264.
  letters dated at, 48, 66, 69 (2), 70, 139.
  etter dated at, referred to, 139.
Spitzbergen, 212.
Spragg, or Sprague, Sir Edward, 13, 15, 23 passim, 30 passim.
  death of, 13, 32, 33.
  journal of, 5–9.
Sreeves (?), President of, 91.
Stackhouse, Lieutenant, 39.
Stafford, 165 bis.
Staffordshire :
  musters in (1745), 165.
  letter to the deputy-lieutenants and J. P.'s of, 164.
  rebels in (1745), 165.
Staines, William, 39.
Stair, Lord (1712), 95.
Stanhope:
  Rev. George, letter of, 149.
  General, 149.
Stanhope—cont.
  Lord, 150.
  Lady (1708), 146.
Stanley:
  Captain, 57.
  Henry, 26.
  Richard, 26.
Stanmore, co. Middlesex, 200, 230, 232.
  letter dated at, 195.
Stant, Captain, 21.
Stapleton:
  Mr., 148.
  Mrs., 148.
Stapylton, Sir Miles, 154.
Star Chamber, fines in, 97.
Start Point, co. Devon, 58, 67.
  letter dated on board ship off, 47.
States, the. See Holland, the Dutch.
Stawell, Lady :
  her action at the Winchester election, 176.
  her marriage, 189.
  letter of, 189.
Steele, Mr. (Sir Richard), 148.
Stene Bank, 11.
Stern, Signor, 168–170.
Stevens, 269.
Stevenson, Lord Lewisham's tutor, 218, 223, 232, 238.
Stewart :
  Mr., 238.
  General, 266.
Stiller, 163.
Stillingfleet, Rev. Ed., letter of, 204.
Stockport, co. Cheshire, rebels at (1745), 165.
Stokes Bay, 61.
Stone:
  co. Staff., 165.
  Mr., 174.
Stoney Stratford, co. Bucks., Wicken Park, near, 254.
Stow, 183.
Strafford :
  Earl of (1712), 73, 74 bis, 76, 80–82, 84–89 passim, 91, 95 bis.
  —— his journey to England (1712), 76.
  —— (1727), letter of, 152.
  —— his appeal in the House of Lords, 152.
  Lord (1736), 155
Strawberry Hill, co. Middlesex, letter dated at, 283.
Strickland, Sir Roger, 54, 119.
  resigns his commission as vice-admiral, 58.
Stuart:
  Sir L., 153.
  Col., 245.
Sturges, Mr., 211.
Stutt, Thomas, 27.
Subsidy of 400,000*l.*, 97.
Sudeley, Lord Seymour of, his armour, 1.
Sudlington, Captain, 22.
Suffeild, Mr., 138.
Suffield, Lord, house of, in Albemarle Street, 286.

- Suffolk :
  - Charles Brandon, Duke of, his lance, armour, &c., 1, 2, 4, 5.
  - Earl of, 211.
  - —— letter of, 196.
- Suffrein, the French general, 259, 267.
- Sully, Chateau de, 221.
- Sumner :
  - Humphrey, candidate for headmaster of Harrow, 195.
  - Dr., 195, 231.
  - —— his quarrel with Dr. Glass, 187.
- Sunderland :
  - Charles Spencer, third Earl of, 147.
  - Robert Spencer, second Earl of, 60, 122, 125.
- Surdo, Antonio Rodrigues, 39.
- Surrat, Francis, 39.
- Surrey, 155.
- Sussex, 155.
  - plan for a tour in, 229.
  - Augustus, Duke of, 287.
- Sutherland, Messrs. Lodington and, 126.
- Sutton, Brigadier, 92, 93.
- Swale, the River, co. Kent, 55.
- Swansborough, William, 39.
- Sweden :
  - emigration of workmen to, 180.
  - iron industry of, 180.
  - revolution in 1772, 196.
  - King of, 152.
- Swedes, 128.
- Sweet, Mr., 86.
- Swift, Jonathan, letter of, 153.
- Swin, the, 58.
- Swiss, 56 bis.
- Sydelham, Mr., 243.
- Sydenham, 167.
- Sydley, Mrs., 127.
- Sydney :
  - Colonel Algernon, 197.
  - —— trial of, 125, 128 bis.
  - Lord, letter of, 267.

T.

- T., C., letter of, 157.
- Taaffe, Colonel, 112.
- Tabrin, Stephen, 39.
- Tagus, River, 227.
- Tait, Mr. Alexander, 174.
- Talbot :
  - George, 39.
  - family, 110.
- Tangier, 46, 50, 131.
  - accounts of expenditure at, 40.
  - the Alcayde of, 34, 40, 51–52 passim, 54.
  - Commissioners of, 35–37.
  - —— Journal of, 34.
  - Comptroller of. See Erlisman.
  - court-martial, held at, 50.
  - Lord Dartmouth at, 126.
- Tangier—cont.
  - dismantling of, 129, 130.
  - evacuation and destruction of, 47–51.
  - governor of, 126.
  - householders of, lists of, 38, 39.
  - mayor of, 37 passim, 38. See Smith.
  - recorder of, 37 bis.
  - state of, in 1683, 33, 34.
  - survey of naval stores at, 40.
  - regiments at, 50. See Regiments.
  - value of houses at, 37, 38.
  - places in and near :
    - list of streets in, 39.
    - "Bowling Bear," the, 53.
    - Castle, the, 53.
    - Cathedral, 34–36.
    - Catherine, the, 53 bis.
    - Charles Fort, 38.
    - Church of St. Charles the Martyr, 50.
    - Devil's Tower, 53 bis.
    - Fountain Fort, 51, 52.
    - Governor's bastion, 53.
    - Lawson's battery, 53.
    - "Misericordia," 34, 36.
    - Mole, 40–43, 53.
    - Mole and Harbour, 44, 52.
    - Old Spur, the, 53.
    - Peterborough Tower, 52 bis, 53 bis.
    - Pole Fort, 51, 52 bis.
    - Portuguese church at, 34, 36, 45.
    - Pye Corner, 52.
    - St. John Street, 35.
    - "The Sallee Port," 52, 53.
    - Seamen's battery, 52, 53.
    - "Spurr," the, 53.
    - Stainer's battery, 53 bis.
    - "Tangier River," 52.
    - "Town House" of, 34 bis, 53.
    - Water Gate, the, 53.
    - Whitby Fort, 53.
    - Whitby Gate, 53.
    - York Castle, 41, 53 bis.
  - letters dated at, 33(3), 34(2), 45(2), 46(3), 129(2).
  - orders given at, 39.
- Tanjore, Rajah of, 260.
- Taxes, 174, 239, 252.
- Taylor, Edward, letter of, 181.
- Tellicheri, 259.
- Tempest, Captain, death of, 11.
- Temple, Lord, 183.
- Templetown, co. Louth, 109–112.
- Termonfeckin, co. Louth, 109, 111.
- Tessin, Ewald, 39.
- Tetsworth, Wheatfield House, letter dated at, 287.
- Tewe, Nicholas, 39.
- Texel, the Island, 7, 8 bis, 10, 27 bis, 28 bis, 32, 33 bis.
- Thames, River, 7 bis, 9, 12, 55, 64, 132.
  - removal of buoys from (1688), 59.
- Thanet, Lady (1709), 147, 160, 162.
  - her little girl, 161.
- Theatres, 285, 286, 291, 292. See Plays.
  - New Opera Theatre, 292.
- Theodon, an artist, 221.

Thomas, 145.
    Hamilton, 40.
    Jenkin, 39.
Thompson, a pilot, 21 bis.
Thoresby House, 158.
Thornhill, letters dated at, 190.
Thornton, Dr., 188.
Thun, Madame, 237.
Thynne, Mr., 120.
Tiffeny, Joseph, 39.
Tilley, William, 39.
Tin, coinage of, 97.
Tippoo Sahib, 259, 266, 267.
Titchfield, Lord (1772), accident to, 196.
Titian. See Pictures.
Tobin, James, 39.
Tonbridge, co. Kent, 146. See Tunbridge.
Toran, Frances Maria, 39.
Torbay, co. Devon, 57 ter., 58 bis, 65, 67 passim.
Torcy, Marquis de, 78, 79 bis, 81 bis, 83, 84 bis, 89, 90 ter., 92, 149.
    letters of, 84, 86.
    letters to, 78, 80, 81, 85.
Tories, 154.
Torigiani. See Pictures.
Torlwahan, letter dated at, 156.
Torture, collar for, 4.
Tottenham Park, letter dated at, 153, 154.
Tour, Monsieur de la, 222.
Tournay, 72.
    letter dated at, 73.
Tours (France), 222.
    letter dated at, 220.
Townshend :
    Lieut.-General Lord, 258.
    "Spanish" Charles, 179.
    Charles, Chancellor of the Exchequer, 182.
    —— Viscount, letters to, 149–151.
Treasury, the, 123.
    Lords Commissioners of, 101, 104 bis, 125, 169.
    powers of first lord, 179.
Treaties : See Utrecht.
    Allahabad, 271.
    between the Tangier Governor and the Alcayde, 51.
    between Charles II. and the Sultan of Morocco, 51.
Treherne, Richard, 39.
Trelawney :
    Colonel Charles, 35. See Regiments.
    —— letters to, 129.
    Francis, 39.
    Sir Harry, 225.
Trenchard, trial of, 125.
Trevanion :
    Captain, 19.
    Mr., 7.
Trevanyon, Nicholas, 27.
Trèves :
    Elector of, 92.
    troops of, 92.
Treville, La Touche, 283.
Trichinopoly, 259, 266.
Trim, co. Meath, 115.
Trinity House Brethren, 63.
Tripoli, 46.
    corsairs of, 46.
Trollop, 146.
Tromp, Admiral, 10, 11 bis, 12 passim, 28–32 passim.
Troops, 72-95 passim, 247. See Regiments.
    Danish, 94.
    Holstein, 87, 88.
    Saxon, 87.
    Swedish, 128.
    Trèves, 92.
    Holsteiners, 88.
    Waloffées dragoons, 88.
    winter quarters for, 93.
Trotter, Captain, 9 bis.
Trumball, William, LL.D., a Tangiers Commissioner, 34, 39.
    letter of, 126.
Truro, co. Cornwall, 179.
Tucker, Samuel, 26.
Tunbridge Wells, 163. See Tonbridge.
Tunis, 46, 47 passim.
    corsairs of, 46.
Tunisians, the captain of a ship captured, 47.
Tunston, Christiana, 24.
Turkey :
    at peace with Russia (1772), 196.
    the Grand Seigneur, 127.
Turner, Mrs., 148, 159.
Turnor, Mr., 116.
Turnham Green, co. Middlesex, letters dated at, 145–147.
Turvill, Henry, 58.
Tutbury, co. Stafford, Woodmote held at, 125.
Tyler, Mr., 257.
Tyrconnell, Earl of, 110–112.
Tyrell, John, 40.

U.

Unwin :
    Mrs., 183, 184, 186, 188, 190.
    —— her maid, 186.
    Miss, 183.
    Mr., funeral of, 183.
Upper Ossory, Lord, 206.
Urbino, Duchess of, miniature of, 170.
Usquebaugh, 113.
Uxbridge, co. Middlesex, 135.
Utrecht :
    peace of, negociations relative to, 75–91.
    —— proposed articles of, 80, 83.

V.

Vaccination, 164, 222.
Vaghton, Captain Hodg, 7.
Valtravers, L., letter of, 212.
Valenciennes, siege of, 72, 73.
Vanderberg, Colonel, 91.
Van der Mulen, Mr., 169, 170. See Pictures.
Van der Zane, 6.
Van Ghent, 14, 15 bis, 20–22.
Van Nesse, 20–3 passim.
Vansisterflitt, Daniel, 39.
Vauve (France), 221.
Vegelin, Mr., 94 ter.
Veilliere, Chateau de, 221.
Venabels, John, 24.
Venn, Mr , 180.
Verdonstown, 117.
Vernan, Mr., 153.
Vernatty, Phillibert, 39.
Vernon:
    Miss M. V., letter of, 192.
    Colonel, 123, 125.
Versailles, 74, 80.
    Court of, 246.
Very, Count de, 222.
Vesuvius, Mount, 224.
Vicar's Hill, letter dated at, 243, 270, 272.
Vice, Society for the Suppression of, 288–290.
Victor:
    Frances, 24.
    William, 39.
Vienna, 247, 257–258.
    Court of, 151, 152, 247.
    letter dated at, 237, 257.
    visit of the Pope to, 257.
Villars, Marshall, 72, 75–95 passim.
    letters of, 75, 78, 79(2), 83, 84, 86, 87, 88 (2), 89 (5), 91–95.
    letters to, 75, 78, 79 (2), 82–84, 86, 87, 88(3), 89, 91, 93.
Villiers:
    Sir William, 134.
    Mr., 225.
Vincent, Stephen, 35, 39.
Vivian, Rev. Thomas, letter of, 250.
Viviano. See Pictures.

W.

Wager, Charles, 39.
Waldegrave, Lord (1739), 162.
Wales, 165.
    Prince of, 58 bis.
    —— rockers, 71.
    Frederick, Prince of, and the Princess, visit of, to Wroxton, 162.
    George, Prince of, 254, 268–70.
    Henry, Prince of. See Henry.
    Princess of (1795), naturalisation of, 275.
Wallace, Archibald, merchant, of Edinburgh, letters of, 174, 181.
Wallingford, Lord (1739), 161.
Walloffé, Baron, 87, 90, 91, 92. See Regiments.
Walpole, Mr., 214.
Walsh:
    Walter, 114.
    Mr., 244.
War:
    preparations for, 106.
    treasurers at, 105.
    Office, 71.
Ward:
    Mr., 161.
    —— Archdeacon of Chester, letter of, 173.
Warden:
    Sir John, his office in St. James', 117.
    Colonel, 126.
Warley Camp, letter dated at, 258.
Warneton on the Lys, 87.
Warren:
    Christopher, 26.
    Dr., 244.
Warwick:
    Lord, 235, 243.
Warwickshire:
    election in (1783), 268.
    Parliamentary representation of, 252, 253.
Waterwoorth, Captain, death of, 7.
Watkins, Mr., 96.
Watkinson, Mathias, 24.
Wats, Mrs., lodging-house for Westminster School, 161.
Watson:
    Betty, 162.
    Dr. W., letter of, 243.
Watt, James, 213.
    his inventions, &c., 213.
Weary, Lady, 158.
Wegg, Mr., 244.
Welbeck, 196, 207.
Welch, Benjamin, 39.
Welderen, Monsieur, 78.
Wellesley, Marquis of, 278.
Wentworth, 207.
Wesley, Rev. John, letters of, 220 (2).
West, Dr., sermon of, before the House of Commons, 148.
West Bromwich, letters dated at, 204, 272, 274.
Westcomb, Sir Martin, consul at Cadiz, 130.
    letter of, 125.
West Ham, co. Essex, 234.
West Indies, 54, 131, 199, 265.
    British possessions in, 255.
    ships from, 177, 255.
Westminster, 147, 201.
    school, 161.
    —— King's scholars at, 219. places in. See London.
Westmoreland, Lady (1708), 146.
Weston, Mary, 39.
Weymouth, 287, 290.

Wharton:
    Mr., 220.
    Francis Gwyn's aunt, 142.
Wheatley, Mr., 169.
Wheatonaston, co. Staffs., 187.
Wheeler, or Wheler:
    Captain, 42, 48.
    Francis, and Sir Francis, 40, 57.
Whigs, 78 bis, 129.
White:
    Elizabeth, 39.
    Thomas, 39.
    an Englishman in Bruges, 94.
Whitehaven, 216.
Whitfield:
    Mr. Peter, 173.
    Mr., 186, 188.
    —— death of, 192.
Whitley, Colonel, 140.
Whittaker's widow, 39.
Wicken Park, co. Bucks., letter dated at, 254.
Widdrington, Lewis, 119.
Wiggott, John, 26.
Wight, Isle of, 1, 6, 57 ter., 58, 61, 62, 66–68.
Wilberforce, W., letter of, 279, 288.
Wilford, Captain, 62.
Wilkes, Mr., 191, 224.
Wilkinson, Mr., 291.
William I., armour of, 2, 5.
William III.:
    equestrian statue of, 275.
    his private papers examined by Dalrymple, 197.
    as Prince of Orange, 8, 57, 60, 64, 69–71, 133, 134, 137, 139, 140–142.
    —— at Amsterdam, 128.
    —— arrival at London of, 69.
    —— despatches of, 64.
    —— fleet of, 63.
    —— forces of, 138.
    —— lords' address to, 135.
Williamson, Dr., 110.
Wills, probate of, 97.
Wilmot:
    John Eardley, 159.
    —— his christening, 148.
    Sir Robert, 158 bis, 163.
    Lady, 157, 158 bis, 163.
Wilshaw, Captain, 22 bis.
Wilson. See Pictures.
    James, 39.
    Mr., 168, 171.
Wimpole, co. Cambridge, buildings at, 238.
Winchester, 39, 123, 124, 203.
    letter dated at, 122, 123.
    bishop of (John Thomas), 211.
Winchilsea, Lord, 275, 276.
Windsor, 137, 139, 146, 290.
    Castle, ball at, 194.
    —— installation at, 194.
    —— letter dated at, 290.
    —— Queen's Guard Chamber in, 194.
Wine licenses, 97.
Winnington, Sir Francis, 117.
Winwood, D., letter of, 236.
Wirksworth, co. Derby, lead works at, 205.
Witham, Edward, 39.
Withers:
    Captain, 40.
    Mr. Justice, 128.
Wolfe-aker lane, 132.
Wolverhampton Canal, 199.
Wolverton, co. Warw., 158.
Wood:
    Joseph, 4.
    M., letters of, 280, 282.
    Captain, 212.
Woodford, 161.
Woodmote Court held at Tutbury, 125.
Woodsome, co. Yorks., 71, 147.
    letter dated at, 252.
Woodward:
    Mr., 4.
    Dean, 242.
Worcester, Bishop of, 1773, 204.
Worden, Captain, death of, 11.
Worksop Manor, fire at, 280.
Worsley:
    Sir Robert, 145, 147, 153.
    —— his house in the Isle of Wight, 146.
    Lady, 145,, 147.
    —— her cousin, Herbert, 145.
Wortley, alias Montague, Mr., his house at Tangiers, 36.
Wren, Captain Ralph, 40, 45, 47.
Wrettzsley, John, 27.
Wrexham, letter dated at, 283.
Wright:
    Richard, letter to, 165.
    Lieutenant, 55, 62 bis.
Wrights, the, 160.
Wroxton, 156, 165.
    letters dated at, 163 (2).
Wurtemburg, Duke of, 79 ter., 87.
Wyatt, Mr., 284.
Wyborne, John, 40.
Wylde:
    Charles, 40.
    Captain Charles, 27.
Wyly, James, 39.
Wynne, O., letters of, 127, 129.
Wynyard:
    Major-General W., letter of, 258.
    Mrs., 284.
Wyrley, Mr., 203.

X.

Xeres, 131.

Y.

Yarbrough
- Sir Thomas, 145.
- Lady, 145.

Yarmouth, 68.
Yates :
- Richard, 24.
- Mr., his Theatre bill, 232, 237.

York, 251.
- castle of, 54.
- city of, 54.
- defenders of, 54.
- Archbishop of (John Gilbert), 173.
- —— (Robert Drummond), 201, 202, 209, 280.
- Frederick, Duke of, 282, 293.
- James, Duke of. See James II.
- Mr., 163.
- Sir Arthur Kaye, M.P. for, 71.

Yorkshire :
- politics in, 154.
- West Riding of, 220.
- engagement, 97.

Young, —, 148.
Yprés, 89. See Aprés (?)

Z.

Zane, Van der, 6.
Zealand, 7, 8, 10, 247.
Zouch, Rev. H., letter of, 239.

Circular of the Commission.

Public Record Office, Chancery Lane,
London, W.C.

Her Majesty has been pleased to appoint under Her Sign Manual certain Commissioners to ascertain what unpublished MSS. are extant in the collections of private persons and in institutions which are calculated to throw light upon subjects connected with the civil, ecclesiastical, literary, or scientific history of this country. The present Commissioners are:—

Lord Esher, Master of the Rolls, the Marquess of Salisbury, K.G., the Marquess of Bath, the Marquess of Lothian, K.T., the Earl of Rosebery, K.G., Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice, the Bishop of Oxford, the Bishop of Limerick, Lord Acton, Lord Carlingford, K.P., Sir G. W. Dasent, and Mr. H. C. Maxwell Lyte, C.B.

The Commissioners think it probable that you may feel an interest in this object and be willing to assist in the attainment of it; and with that view they desire to lay before you an outline of the course which they usually follow.

If any nobleman or gentleman express his willingness to submit any unprinted book, or collection of documents in his possession or custody to the examination of the Commissioners, they will cause an inspection to be made by some competent person, and should the MSS. appear to come within the scope of their enquiry, a report containing copies or abstracts of them will be drawn up, printed, and submitted to the owner, with a view to obtaining his consent to the publication of the whole, or of such part of it as he may think fit, among the proceedings of the Commission, which are presented to Parliament every Session.

To avoid any possible apprehension that the examination of papers by the Commissioners may extend to title-deeds or documents of present legal value, positive instructions are given to every person who inspects MSS. on their behalf that nothing relating to the titles of existing owners is to be divulged, and that if in the course of his work any modern title-deeds or papers of a private character chance to come before him, they are to be instantly put aside, and are not to be examined or calendared under any pretence whatever.

The object of the Commission is solely the discovery of unknown historical and literary materials, and in all their proceedings the Commissioners will direct their attention to that object exclusively.

In practice it has been found more satisfactory, when the collection of manuscripts is a large one, for the inspector to make a selection therefrom at the place of deposit and to obtain the owner's consent to remove the selected papers to the Public Record Office in London, where they can be more fully dealt with, and where they are preserved with the same care as if they formed part of the muniments of the realm, during the term of their examination. Among the numerous owners of MSS. who have allowed their family papers of historical interest to be temporarily removed from their muniment rooms and lent to the Commissioners to facilitate the preparation of a report may be named: The Duke of Rutland, the Duke of Portland, the Marquess of Salisbury, the Marquess Townshend, the Earl of Dartmouth, the Earl of Ancaster, Lord Braye, Lord Hothfield, Mrs. Stopford Sackville, Mr. le Fleming, of Rydal, and Mr. Fortescue, of Dropmore.

The costs of inspections, reports and calendars, and the conveyance of documents, will be defrayed at the public expense, without any charge to owners.

The Commissioners will also, if so requested, give their advice as to the best means of repairing and preserving any papers or MSS. which may be in a state of decay, and are of historical or literary value.

The Commissioners will feel much obliged if you will communicate to them the names of any gentlemen who may be able and willing to assist in obtaining the objects for which this Commission has been issued.

J. J. Cartwright,
Secretary.

HISTORICAL MANUSCRIPTS COMMISSION.

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s. d.
1870 (Re-printed 1874.)	First Report, with Appendix - - Contents :— England. House of Lords; Cambridge Colleges; Abingdon, and other Corporations, &c. Scotland. Advocates' Library, Glasgow Corporation, &c. Ireland. Dublin, Cork, and other Corporations, &c.	f'cap.	[C. 55]	1 6
1871	Second Report, with Appendix, and Index to the First and Second Reports - - - - - - Contents :— England. House of Lords; Cambridge Colleges; Oxford Colleges; Monastery of Dominican Friars at Woodchester, Duke of Bedford, Earl Spencer, &c. Scotland. Aberdeen and St. Andrew's Universities, &c. Ireland. Marquis of Ormonde; Dr. Lyons, &c.	„	[C. 441]	3 10
1872 (Re-printed 1895.)	Third Report, with Appendix and Index - - - - - - Contents :— England. House of Lords; Cambridge Colleges; Stonyhurst College; Bridgewater and other Corporations; Duke of Northumberland, Marquis of Lansdowne, Marquis of Bath, &c. Scotland. University of Glasgow; Duke of Montrose, &c. Ireland. Marquis of Ormonde; Black Book of Limerick, &c.	„	[C. 673]	6 0
1873	Fourth Report, with Appendix. Part I. - - - - - Contents :— England. House of Lords; Westminster Abbey; Cambridge and Oxford Colleges; Cinque Ports, Hythe, and other Corporations, Marquis of Bath, Earl of Denbigh, &c. Scotland. Duke of Argyll, &c. Ireland. Trinity College, Dublin; Marquis of Ormonde.	„	[C. 857]	6 8
1873	Ditto. Part II. Index - - -	„	[C. 857i.]	2 6

Date.	——	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s. d.
1876	FIFTH REPORT, WITH APPENDIX. PART I. - Contents :— ENGLAND. House of Lords; Oxford and Cambridge Colleges; Dean and Chapter of Canterbury; Rye, Lydd, and other Corporations, Duke of Sutherland, Marquis of Lansdowne, Reginald Cholmondeley, Esq., &c. SCOTLAND. Earl of Aberdeen, &c.	f'cap.	[C.1432]	7 0
„	DITTO. PART II. INDEX - - -	„	[C.1432 i.]	3 6
1877	SIXTH REPORT, WITH APPENDIX. PART I. - Contents :— ENGLAND. House of Lords; Oxford and Cambridge Colleges; Lambeth Palace; Black Book of the Archdeacon of Canterbury; Bridport, Wallingford, and other Corporations; Lord Leconfield, Sir Reginald Graham, Sir Henry Ingilby, &c. SCOTLAND. Duke of Argyll, Earl of Moray, &c. IRELAND. Marquis of Ormonde.	„	[C.1745]	8 6
(Reprinted 1893.)	DITTO. PART II. INDEX - - -	„	[C.2102]	1 10
1879 (Reprinted 1895.)	SEVENTH REPORT, WITH APPENDIX. PART I. - - - - - Contents :— House of Lords; County of Somerset; Earl of Egmont, Sir Frederick Graham, Sir Harry Verney, &c.	„	[C.2340]	7 6
(Reprinted 1895.)	DITTO. PART II. APPENDIX AND INDEX - Contents :— Duke of Athole, Marquis of Ormonde, S. F. Livingstone, Esq., &c.	„	[C. 2340 i.]	3 6
1881	EIGHTH REPORT, WITH APPENDIX AND INDEX. PART I. - - - Contents :— List of collections examined, 1869–1880. ENGLAND. House of Lords; Duke of Marlborough; Magdalen College, Oxford; Royal College of Physicians; Queen Anne's Bounty Office; Corporations of Chester, Leicester, &c. IRELAND. Marquis of Ormonde, Lord Emly, The O'Conor Don, Trinity College, Dublin, &c.	„	[C.3040]	8 6
1881	DITTO. PART II. APPENDIX AND INDEX - Contents :— Duke of Manchester.	„	[C. 3040 i.]	1 9

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s.	d.
1881	Ditto. Part III. Appendix and Index Contents :— Earl of Ashburnham.	f'cap.	[C. 3040 ii.]	1	4
1883 (Re-printed 1895.)	Ninth Report, with Appendix and Index. Part I. Contents :— St. Paul's and Canterbury Cathedrals; Eton College ; Carlisle, Yarmouth, Canterbury, and Barnstaple Corporations, &c.	„	[C.3773]	5	2
1884 (Re-printed 1895.)	Ditto. Part II. Appendix and Index Contents :— England. House of Lords, Earl of Leicester; C. Pole Gell, Alfred Morrison, Esqs., &c. Scotland. Lord Elphinstone, H. C. Maxwell Stuart, Esq., &c. Ireland. Duke of Leinster, Marquis of Drogheda, &c.	„	[C.3773 i.]	6	3
1884	Ninth Report. Part III. Appendix and Index Contents :— Mrs. Stopford Sackville.	„	[C.3773 ii.]	1	7
1883 (Re-printed 1895.)	Calendar of the Manuscripts of the Marquis of Salisbury, K.G. (or Cecil MSS.). Part I.	8vo.	[C.3777]	3	5
1888	Ditto. Part II.	„	[C.5463]	3	5
1889	Ditto. Part III.	„	[C. 5889 v.]	2	1
1892	Ditto. Part IV.	„	[C.6823]	2	11
1894	Ditto. Part V.	„	[C.7574]	2	6
1895	Ditto. Part VI.	„	[C.7884]	2	8
1885	Tenth Report This is introductory to the following :—	„	[C.4548]	0	3½
1885 (Re-printed 1895.)	(1.) Appendix and Index Earl of Eglinton, Sir J. S. Maxwell, Bart., and C. S. H. Drummond Moray, C. F. Weston Underwood, G. W Digby, Esqs.	„	[C.4575]	3	7
1885	(2.) Appendix and Index The Family of Gawdy.	„	[C.4576 iii.]	1	4
1885	(3.) Appendix and Index Wells Cathedral.	„	[C.4576 ii.]	2	0

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s.	d.
1885	(4.) Appendix and Index Earl of Westmorland; Capt. Stewart; Lord Stafford; Sir N. W. Throckmorton, Sir P. T. Mainwaring, Lord Muncaster, Capt. J. F. Bagot, Earl of Kilmorey, Earl of Powis, and others, the Corporations of Kendal, Wenlock, Bridgnorth, Eye, Plymouth, and the County of Essex; and Stonyhurst College.	8vo.	[C.4576]	3	6
1885 (Re-printed 1895.)	(5.) Appendix and Index The Marquis of Ormonde, Earl of Fingall, Corporations of Galway, Waterford, the Sees of Dublin and Ossory, the Jesuits in Ireland.	"	[C. 4576 i.]	2	10
1887	(6.) Appendix and Index Marquis of Abergavenny, Lord Braye, G. F. Luttrell, P. P. Bouverie, W. Bromley Davenport, R. T. Balfour, Esquires.	"	[C.5242]	1	7
1887	Eleventh Report This is introductory to the following:—	"	[C. 5060 vi.]	0	3
1887	(1.) Appendix and Index H. D. Skrine, Esq., Salvetti Correspondence.	"	[C.5060]	1	1
1887	(2.) Appendix and Index House of Lords. 1678-1688.	"	[C. 5060 i.]	2	0
1887	(3.) Appendix and Index Corporations of Southampton and Lynn.	"	[C. 5060 ii.]	1	8
1887	(4.) Appendix and Index Marquis Townshend.	"	[C. 5060 iii.]	2	6
1887	(5.) Appendix and Index Earl of Dartmouth.	"	[C. 5060 iv.]	2	8
1887	(6.) Appendix and Index Duke of Hamilton.	"	[C. 5060 v.]	1	6
1888	(7.) Appendix and Index Duke of Leeds, Marchioness of Waterford, Lord Hothfield, &c.; Bridgwater Trust Office, Reading Corporation, Inner Temple Library.	"	[C.5612]	2	0
1890	Twelfth Report This is introductory to the following:—	"	[C.5889]	0	3
1888	(1.) Appendix Earl Cowper, K.G. (Coke MSS., at Melbourne Hall, Derby). Vol. I.	"	[C.5472]	2	7
1888	(2.) Appendix Ditto. Vol. II.	"	[C.5613]	2	5

Date.	——	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s.	d.
1889	(3.) Appendix and Index - - - Ditto. Vol. III.	8vo.	[C. 5889 i.]	1	4
1888	(4.) Appendix - - - - The Duke of Rutland, G.C.B. Vol. I.	„	[C.5614]	3	2
1891	(5.) Appendix and Index - - - Ditto. Vol. II.	„	[C. 5889 ii.]	2	0
1889	(6.) Appendix and Index - - - House of Lords, 1689–1690.	„	[C. 5889 iii.]	2	1
1890	(7.) Appendix and Index - - - S. H. le Fleming, Esq., of Rydal.	„	[C. 5889 iv.]	1	11
1891	(8.) Appendix and Index - - - The Duke of Athole, K.T., and the Earl of Home.	„	[C.6338]	1	0
1891	(9.) Appendix and Index - - - The Duke of Beaufort, K.G., the Earl of Donoughmore, J. H. Gurney, W. W. B. Hulton, R. W. Ketton, G. A. Aitken, P. V. Smith, Esqs.; Bishop of Ely; Cathedrals of Ely, Gloucester, Lincoln, and Peterborough; Corporations of Gloucester, Higham Ferrers, and Newark; Southwell Minster; Lincoln District Registry.	„	[C. 6338 i.]	2	6
1891	(10.) Appendix - - - The First Earl of Charlemont. Vol. I. 1745–1783.	„	[C. 6338 ii.]	1	11
1892	Thirteenth Report - - - This is introductory to the following :—	„	[C.6827]	0	3
1891	(1.) Appendix - - - - The Duke of Portland. Vol. I.	„	[C.6474]	3	0
	(2.) Appendix and Index - - - Ditto. Vol. II.	„	[C. 6827 i.]	2	0
1892	(3.) Appendix. J. B. Fortescue, Esq., of Dropmore, Vol. I.	„	[C.6660]	2	7
1892	(4.) Appendix and Index - - - Corporations of Rye, Hastings, and Hereford. Capt. F. C. Loder-Symonds, E. R. Wodehouse, M.P., J. Dovaston, Esqs., Sir T. B. Lennard, Bart., Rev. W. D. Macray, and Earl of Dartmouth (Supplementary Report).	„	[C.6810]	2	4
1892	(5.) Appendix and Index - - - House of Lords, 1690–1691.	„	[C.6822]	2	4
1893	(6.) Appendix and Index - - Sir W. FitzHerbert, Bart. The Delaval Family, of Seaton Delaval; The Earl of Ancaster; and General Lyttelton-Annesley.	„	[C.7166]	1	4

Date.	—	Size.	Sessional Paper.	Price.
				s.	d.
1893	(7.) Appendix and Index - - - The Earl of Lonsdale.	8vo.	[C.7241]	1	3
1893	(8.) Appendix and Index - - The First Earl of Charlemont. Vol. II. 1784–1799.	,,	[C.7424]	1	11
1896	Fourteenth Report - - - This is introductory to the following :—	,,	[C.7983]	0	3
1894	(1.) Appendix and Index. The Duke of Rutland, G.C.B. Vol. III.	,,	[C.7476]	1	11
1894	(2.) Appendix. The Duke of Portland. Vol. III. -	,,	[C.7569]	2	8
1894	(3.) Appendix and Index. The Duke of Roxburghe; Sir H. H. Campbell, Bart.; the Earl of Strathmore; and the Countess Dowager of Seafield.	,,	[C.7570]	1	2
1894	(4.) Appendix and Index. Lord Kenyon - - - -	,,	[C.7571]	2	10
1896	(5.) Appendix. J. B. Fortescue, Esq., of Dropmore. Vol. II.	,,	[C.7572]	2	8
1895	(6.) Appendix and Index. House of Lords, 1692–1693 - -	,,	[C.7573]	1	11
1895	(7.) Appendix. The Marquess of Ormonde - -	,,	[C.7678]	1	10
1895	(8.) Appendix and Index. Lincoln, Bury St. Edmunds, Hertford, and Great Grimsby Corporations; The Dean and Chapter of Worcester, and of Lichfield; The Bishop's Registry of Worcester.	,,	[C.7881]	1	5
1895	(9.) Appendix and Index. The Earl of Buckinghamshire, the Earl of Lindsey, the Earl of Onslow, Lord Emly, Theodore J. Hare, Esq., and James Round, Esq., M.P.	,,	[C.7882]	2	6

Government
Publications

BINDING SECT. MAY 1 3 1977

Government Publications